Character study of a young Southern girl, Elizabeth Cramer. Her mother's inability to forget her proud heritage and her beautiful plantation home, Laurel, had ruined both the girl's father and her parents' marriage. The novel traces the effects of the resulting bitterness upon Elizabeth herself.

"The story is written with a great deal of insight, and one gathers that the violence of its bitterness is a personal thing with the young author. To that extent the book is convincing. However, I wish there had been more reason than her own blindness for Elizabeth's obsession, and I wish that in the end she had become a bigger person, able, for instance, to appreciate the brilliance and tragedy of her father." Olive Carruthers
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 Mr 26 '50 550w

"Miss Fellows is a good writer and a thoughtful person, but her first novel does not deal with people so much as symbols of sharply-felt emotions and attitudes, who obediently perform the required actions." W. P.
Commonweal 52:78 Ap 28 '50 200w

"A first novel, by a very young writer, this has many talents which include a classical severity, a suggestive sense of time and place, and a cumulative intensity. . . For more discriminating readers, this is haunting, holding."
+ Kirkus 18:70 F 1 '50 190w

"Painful, almost Jamesian study of jealousy and class consciousness." F. A. Boyle
Library J 75:318 F 15 '50 70w

"Miss Fellows projects with much skill the conflicts and anxieties of her protagonist. There is, however, throughout the novel a curious sense of incongruity, produced by Miss Fellows telling her story in the first person. The author writes with much perceptive insight, with—and this is the difficulty—far more than the tortured and myopic Elizabeth of the novel could possibly have and remain the character which she is. . . Miss Fellows's obvious and impressive abilities are of an order much higher than those of the 'I' of her novel." Coleman Rosenberger
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 Mr 26 '50 550w

"Miss Fellows' best perceptions are frequently watered down in this first novel, but she manages to give a sense of quiet, but unevenly controlled, authority." J. M. Brinnin
N Y Times p22 Ap 2 '50 430w

"Miss Fellows falls naturally into a romantic and foreboding tone that is well suited to the kind of story she wants to tell, but she deals so lovingly with each small everyday crisis that Elizabeth's big scene, when it comes, is an anti-climax."
+ New Yorker 26:102 Mr 11 '50 90w

"As a first novel it has unusual promise, and leads one to hope that when Miss Fellows has written more and lived more—surrendering herself to the eternal cycle of the writer gathering material—she will come to a less pessimistic point of view and will want to portray life with some contrasting lights to her shadows. Deep pessimism is a fault of generous youth and a much better sign than shallow optimism, which is usually not a fault of youth, popular opinion to the contrary. Miss Fellows has the seeing eye, the discerning hand, and the power to convey what she has felt. It is always exciting to discover a new writer of her caliber." Evelyn Eaton
+ Sat R of Lit 33:31 Mr 25 '50 360w

"In 'Laurel' we have an example of the well-made novel. It is an accomplishment in observation and in writing discipline—the expression balanced, the mood unvaried, the tone held. But it gives no indication that it has been lived and deeply felt, so precisely has the author bent the study of selfishness to an ideal of literary form." Harry Hansen
Survey 86:155 Mr '50 150w

FELSEN, GREGOR. Bertie makes a break; il. by Jane Toan. 192p $2.50 Dutton 49-6245

"In two earlier books Mr. Felsen has presented the activities of Bertie Poddle, fat boy. In general, Bertie's problems are those of any 15-year-old boy. . . Most of all, this year, Bertie wants money to match the sizable bank accounts his best friends earned at summer camp. He becomes an unwitting party to a swindle, but later helps to trick Mr. Sleemish, the perpetrator, at his own game. But the most important thing Bertie does is to grow up." N Y Times

Booklist 46:190 F 1 '50
Kirkus 17:555 O 1 '49 130w

"Here is a third Bertie book, as good as the first, better than the second. . . Fast and funny. Recommended." R. M. McEvoy
+ Library J 75:113 Ja 15 '50 80w

"Although Bertie is the same irresistible fat boy, to this reviewer the story does not hold the interest as did Bertie Comes Through, and the humor falls flat. However, it has its good points: stress on sportsmanship and high ideals and the understanding of teen-agers and their problems. Not important for libraries." M. A. Herr
— + Library J 75:113 Ja 15 '50 100w

"Except for an occasional lapse into caricature, all is done with appealing humor and genuine understanding." F. C. Smith
+ N Y Times p26 O 16 '49 180w

FELSEN, GREGOR. Davey Logan, interne. 191p $2.50 Dutton
50-5739

Davey Logan, country boy, liked animals but not people, so his career as a physician did not look like a promising one to his instructors. Nevertheless Davey wanted a lucrative city practice. After a year's internship in a city hospital he became interested in his patients and learned from them that the country people were lacking medical care. Davey returned home to start a rural practice, a wiser and happier man. For grades 7 to 9.

Booklist 46:305 Je 1 '50

"A little romance, some horseplay and a good story make this pleasant reading . . . and the medical detail is unobtrusive but accurate. Good career book."
+ Kirkus 18:100 F 15 '50 120w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:644 Ap 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by G. E. Cartmell
Library J 75:1198 Jl '50 40w

"Mr. Felsen's book is not labeled 'vocational fiction,' but it does give the reader a good deal of insight into the training and problems of a young doctor. More often, it describes the struggle over values that is so often faced by young people in any vocation." R. A. B.
Sat R of Lit 33:33 Ag 12 '50 140w

"A good career book and a good story."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:31 Mr '50

FELSEN, GREGOR. Hot rod. 188p $2 Dutton
50-8827

Story of teen-age drivers and driving. Bud Crayne, an orphan, and his high school buddies are the leading characters. Bud's genius for driving brought death to two small boys. In a teen-age Roadeo, which was to prove the need for driver training in the school, Bud began to see the light. A "rat race" ending in death for eight young people, finished his enlightenment. For junior and senior high school readers.

"This book has questionable features—its technical details about hopped-up cars, its loosely built plot, and poor characterization. The value lies in its promotion of safe driving. Librarians should read before buying."
Booklist 47:44 S 15 '50

"Fast-moving, candid, and includes some safe driving questions and answers."
+ Kirkus 18:305 Je 1 '50 190w

"Although this has been endorsed by the National Safety Council, one wonders if the good sense of safe driving would not seem pale after the thrill of speed which pervades most of the book. Would those who need it, read it? Good intentions but doubtful value." Siri Andrews
Library J 75:1913 N 1 '50 80w

"Shocking and tragic yet true to fact, this story about teen-age drivers is certain to rouse wide interest. . . Bud and LaVerne are real teen-agers. Their story is packed with action and suspense. One of the best things in the book is this boy-girl relationship, which Mr. Felsen handles with frankness and good taste." Howard Pease
+ N Y Times p16 Jl 30 '50 230w
Wis Lib Bul 46:28 S '50

FELT, SUE. Rosa-too-little; story and pictures. [24p] $2 Doubleday
50-9505

Rosa was too little for this, too little for that, and it made her sad. But her main heartache was the fact that she could not join the library and take out books because she was too little to write her name. This story for ages four to six shows what Rosa did about that.

Booklist 47:16 S 1 '50

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 O 29 '50 70w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p9 N 13 '50 80w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

Horn Bk 26:369 S '50 60w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 26:456 N '50 90w

Kirkus 18:461 Ag 15 '50 100w

"The sombre atmosphere that pervades this appealing picture-story book is reflected in the sepia-and-black illustrations. The theme will intrigue the many children who have shared Rosa's experience, and the library background is a welcome innovation." Claire Nolte
+ Library J 75:1514 S 15 '50 80w

"It is a very touching yet quite unsentimental tale, with realistic pictures in two colors. It brings the branch library and Rosa's neighborhood alive for the happy recognition of all city children." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 1 '50 190w

"This is a slight story, but it reflects the immense satisfaction which a child gets from earning a privilege for herself and in passing, as in the case of a real book lover, a very important milestone. The pictures are a little amateurish but appealing." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p24 O 1 '50 140w

"It is a slight story, but it tells with humor and understanding of an important event in the life of a new American citizen. Miss Felt has caught, to an unusual degree, the children of New York's Upper East Side. . . It is good to have one adventure told and pictured so well."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:53 O 21 '50 270w

FELTON, HAROLD W. John Henry and his hammer; il. by Aldren A. Watson. 82p $2.50 Knopf 398.21 Folklore—U.S. 50-10105

A retelling of the folk tale about John Henry, the giant Negro superman, who worked on the railroads and told about his work in songs. For ages eight and over.

Booklist 47:141 D 1 '50

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 D 10 '50 130w

"This well-written book, with its distinguished illustrations, will attract boys who are good readers and many who usually want nothing but comics. Fine for the storyteller too."
+ Horn Bk 26:487 N '50 70w
Kirkus 18:513 S 1 '50 140w

"Young railroad fans, as well as all who enjoy American folklore, will welcome this fine story, in which tunnel-builders and railroad-forgers are only partly mythical heroes. The distinguished illustrations are by Aldren A. Watson."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 12 '50 70w

"This is a well-told version of the John Henry legend. Its sonorous prose harmonizes with the work songs and hammer rhythms. In full harmony, too, are the drawings, which express the power, gentleness and dignity of the hero." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p22 N 12 '50 140w

"Narrated with the repetitive richness of a Negro ballad and with impeccable dialogue and action."
+ New Yorker 26:187 D 2 '50 70w

FELTON, HERBERT, il. See Harvey, J. H. English cathedrals

FENICHELL, STEPHEN S., and ANDREWS, PHILLIP. Vatican and Holy year. (Halcyon house bk) 115p il $2 Garden City pub. co.
282.09 Vatican (city) 50-7621

"A small handbook giving a history of Holy Year, a chronological list of all the Popes, a description of the buildings which comprise Vatican City, and an outline of its art treasures." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

"The most interesting feature of this book is the large number of photographs."
Cath World 171:240 Je '50 40w

Reviewed by J. O. Supple
Chicago Sun p9 Ap 14 '50 50w

Reviewed by Beach Conger
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 My 28 '50 80w

"A book for all interested in Holy Year activities." G. C.
+ Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 180w

FENISONG, RUTH. Grim rehearsal. 218p $2.50 Doubleday
50-10572

Detective story.

"Complicated, and not completely resolved, but good reading."
+ — Kirkus 18:648 O 15 '50 100w

"Miss Fenisong's new one is a Grade-A story of death backstage." Elizabeth Bullock
+ N Y Times p38 N 19 '50 120w

"Not topflight, but readable enough."
New Yorker 26:172 N 11 '50 60w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p23 D 3 '50 80w

Sat R of Lit 33:44 D 9 '50 50w

FENISONG, RUTH. Ill wind. 221p $2.25 Doubleday

50-5985

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p6 Mr 10 '50 90w

"Despite excitement, this author's admirers may be disappointed by this jungle folderol."
Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 Mr 19 '50 50w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 19 '50 180w

N Y Times p35 Ap 30 '50 130w

"Miss Fenisong is undoubtedly an agile and resourceful operator in her elected field; the chances are that she can do better than this."
New Yorker 26:104 Mr 4 '50 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ap 23 '50 100w

FENNER, PHYLLIS REID, ed. Cowboys, cowboys, cowboys; stories of roundups and rodeos, branding and bronco-busting; il. by Manning deV. Lee. 287p $2.50 Watts, F.

50-6387

Contents: The cliff dance, by Stephen Holt; Whitey's first round-up, by Glen Rounds; Cowpony's prize, by L. R. Davis; The mail starts, by C. L. Skelton; The challenge, by Covelle Newcomb; Midnight, by Will James; Spurs for Antonia, by K. W. Eyre; The branding, by Billy Warren; Workaday cowboy, by Kerry Wood; The horse drive, by C. M. Martin; The round up, by Kate Seredy; The grand prize, by Covelle Newcomb; If you weel permit me, by Glenn Vernam; Lone cowboy, by Will James; Trouble on the range, by Adolph Regli; Pecos Bill, by Anne Malcolmson; His spurs, by Will James.

Booklist 46:248 Ap 1 '50

Bookmark 9:214 Je '50 20w

Chicago Sun p5 My 16 '50 40w

"The selections are representative of outstanding authors in this field, and are without exception fine examples of the thrills, fun, courage, and good humor which has made the American cowboy a favorite with boys and girls, young and old. This is a most attractive book in format and illustration and will find a ready place on school and library shelves." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Ap 16 '50 170w

Kirkus 18:102 F 15 '50 120w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:642 Ap 15 '50 80w

"Excellent short stories of cowboys, both in the old and the new West." M. D. Read
+ Library J 75:783 My 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 4 '50 50w

"Just when one is beginning to think that cowboy stories are all alike, along comes this generous anthology, surprising in its range and freshness. Not all of them are cowboy stories in the strict sense, which makes for variety." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p30 My 14 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:29 Ap '50

FENNER, PHYLLIS REID, ed. Giggle box; pictures by William Steig. 144p $2.50 Knopf

50-10106

A collection of funny stories for boys and girls. Contents: The doughnuts, by Robert McCloskey; Billy had a system, by Marion Holland; Anne's terrible good nature, by E. V. Lucas; Oscar, the trained seal, by M. E. Neikirk; Uncle Torwal and Whitey go to town, by Glen Rounds; Some of my father's adventures, by R. S. Gannett; The Huckabuck family and how they raised popcorn in Nebraska and quit and came back, by Carl Sandburg; The prize corn chowder, by Carolyn Haywood; The very mischief, by Lesley Frost; A trainload of soldiers, by Eleanor Estes; Pig wisps, by Carl Sandburg; The Ruggleses go to a Christmas party, by K. D. Wiggin; Little Eddie goes to town, by Carolyn Haywood; Camel into eagle, by M. P. Allen; Augustus and spring tonic, by LeGrand.

Booklist 47:103 N 1 '50

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 10w

"All kinds of 'funny people' are included in the fifteen stories that make up this delightful and useful collection."
+ Horn Bk 26:488 N '50 100w

Kirkus 18:514 S 1 '50 200w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 12 '50 80w

"Fifteen stories which are really funny, as children agree time and time again." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p42 O 15 '50 140w

FENNER, PHYLLIS REID, ed. Indians, Indians, Indians; stories of tepees and tomahawks, wampum belts & war bonnets, peace pipes & papooses; il. by Manning deV. Lee. 287p $2.50 Watts, F.

Indians of North America—Juvenile literature 50-4869

A compilation of seventeen short stories and excerpts from books, all about Indians. For ages ten to twelve.

Booklist 47:16 S 1 '50

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p5 Jl 25 '50 20w

"These stories would make excellent supplementary reading in American history."
+ Kirkus 18:357 Jl 1 '50 170w

"Recommended if story collections are needed." Claire Nolte
+ Library J 75:1306 Ag '50 80w

"The illustrations and make-up are so stunning that the book will have wide appeal. One hopes that in both schools and libraries, the original books will be displayed along with it, thus serving its purpose of introducing children to some excellent titles." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 3 '50 200w

N Y Times p42 O 15 '50 110w

FENTON, CARROLL LANE, and FENTON, MRS MILDRED (ADAMS). Worlds in the sky; il. by the authors. 96p $2.50 Day

520 Astronomy—Juvenile literature 50-13348

A beginner's astronomy, suitable for grades four to seven. It tells the "story of the stars, planets, and other heavenly bodies" including the earth. Illustrated in dark blue and white. Brief glossary.

Booklist 47:47 S 15 '50

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 40w

"A fine addition to the science shelf."
+ Kirkus 18:467 Ag 15 '50 120w

"An outstanding book in this field for the very young reader, because in 96 pages many of the intricacies of the earth, sun, moon, and heavenly bodies are briefly but carefully explained. Recommended." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 75:1514 S 15 '50 80w

"The Fentons use a fine, clear style, with no wasted words, and cover this tremendous subject for the young very cleverly in a brief space. Their diagrams and drawings are splendid, and the whole is most effectively printed in blue." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 O 8 '50 200w

New Yorker 26:188 D 2 '50 60w

FENTON, EDWARD. Hidden trapezes; il. by Reisie Lonette. 239p $2.50 Doubleday

50-9411

"The story of Robin whose parents had been famous trapeze artists; whose uncle, Danilo the

FENTON, EDWARD—Continued
Dauntless, was still a top performer, but who had decided the circus was no life for a boy; of Robin's longing to be a 'flyer'; and of Mrs. Fatima, the retired snake charmer, who not only understood Robin's desire but helped him achieve it." Publisher's note

Booklist 47:65 O 1 '50

"The story of his stay among the kindly ex-circus people is one of action and humor. Unforgettable characters who loved to entertain the boy with stories of past grandeur, and the no less famous trained animals, furnish delightful entertainment for any young circus fan right up to the grand finale when like all good troupers, everybody turns out to do his part for a friend in need." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 O 8 '50 200w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 140w

+ Horn Bk 26:473 N '50 80w

"A very good story."
+ Kirkus 18:355 Jl 1 '50 200w

"This lively and entertaining story is full of amazing characters who take you behind the scenes into the lives of the circus folk. Recommended for ages 10-14." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 75:1671 O 1 '50 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 31 '50 150w

"This story of circus life provides fascinating close-ups of a group of big-top characters. . . The skill, subtle humor, and understanding in this tale deserve wide appreciation." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p30 S 24 '50 180w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor
San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 12 '50 170w

"The humor of this story, the queer assortment of people, and the warm-hearted good fellowship that held them together give it an unusual flavor."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:48 N 11 '50 180w

FENWICK, ELIZABETH. Afterwards. 219p $2.50 Rinehart

50-14132

A study of divorce and its effects upon a group of middle class Americans. Eila had abandoned her husband, Nick, and her son Barty, during the war, to marry a young soldier. When he was killed, leaving her with a baby daughter, Eila lived for some time with her sister in California. In an effort to make her own way Eila returns to Massachusetts to try to borrow money from her mother, in order to start in business on her own. But her domineering mother responded by appropriating the baby, and shoving Eila aside. In order to save young Barty and the baby from a repetition of her own fate Eila had to remake all her old decisions.

"A delicate dissection here of emotions which are disturbed rather than intense, of people who are caught in a complexity of relationships which confuses them but from which they cannot escape."
Kirkus 18:433 Ag 1 '50 190w

"After divorce the undercurrents of life are diverse and confusing and in this story nothing is worked out. Women may like it—men will not. Only the malice of an Ivy Compton-Burnett makes this type of story endurable." K. T. Willis
Library J 75:1406 S 1 '50 80w

"Sensitive and perceptive novel." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 1 '50 600w

"The situation is one that would have proved the undoing of a less skillful writer. As it is, the pulled-out tension is moving and believable." Andrea Parke
+ N Y Times p27 O 15 '50 170w

"The writing has the skilful beauty that keeps you unaware of the skill; subtlety and perceptiveness are so much integral to the story and its actors that only later does the perfection of some of the sentences and images become apparent. Those who are bewailing the lack of successors to our aging, and in some instances, declining novelists would do well to contemplate Elizabeth Fenwick." Kathleen Sproul
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 O 14 '50 900w

FERGUSON, RUBY. Horse of her own; il. by Caney [Eng title: Jill's gymkhama]. 192p $2.50 Dodd

50-6535

First person story of Jill, an English girl, who bought a pony before she even knew how to ride, and took all the care of him. She was fortunate in her pony and in the person who trained her, and in time she became quite an expert. For ages ten to fourteen.

"A lively story, which includes excellent pointers on good horsemanship." Margaret Miller
+ Library J 75:989 Je 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 My 14 '50 80w

"This is not a manual on horsemanship, but it does emphasize the importance of a good many fine points which the blue-jeans variety of horse story often overlooks. Yet, unlike some English stories of this type, this one is not stuffy, for Jill is an entertaining miss, enthusiastic, determined and unconsciously funny." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p18 My 21 '50 160w

"The fact that this is what boys and girls call an 'I' story may interfere with its popularity. Its background and atmosphere are definitely British. Some of the social 'rules and regulations' may seem a bit strange to American young people, but the chief character is very well drawn."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:48 Ap 8 '50 140w

FERGUSSON, HARVEY. Grant of kingdom. 311p $3 Morrow

50-7498

A chronicle of the old southwest, based on an actual episode. It is the story of a Spanish land grant, here called the Ballard land grant. Jean Ballard, drifter and trader, manages to force the family of a Mexican girl, Consuelo Coronel, to agree to their marriage. Their lives and the lives of three other men and one woman, are fused together to complete the story.

Booklist 46:286 My 15 '50

Bookmark 9:243 Jl '50 50w

Christian Science Monitor p9 My 27 '50 240w

"Despite a clearly plotted theme, Grant of Kingdom's easily-flowing narrative reflects little interest either in character or in people as such." E. S. S.
Commonweal 52:158 My 19 '50 70w

"A vital backdrop, complete with cast of characters, but not fully realized as a novel. Nonetheless, a real contribution to the saga of our southwest."
+ — Kirkus 18:143 Mr 1 '50 170w

"A thought-provoking novel—not the usual Western. For the mature reader." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 75:774 My 1 '50 120w

"Fergusson's Mexican characters especially speak as they would in real life. Perhaps the novel forsakes authentic early days once or twice in its modern treatment of sex. But few readers today will quarrel with that. Harvey Fergusson writes with simplicity, clarity, and extremely well. . . Descriptions of the country are true and excellent. Harvey Fergusson's many followers will be cheered to know that he has returned to his native inheritance in the Southwest." Conrad Richter
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 My 7 '50 900w

"The characters are tightly drawn and become very real. Clay Tighe, an amalgam of Clay Allison, Wyatt Earp and Bat Masterson, is superb." Hoffman Birney

+ N Y Times p26 Je 4 '50 270w

New Yorker 26:100 Je 3 '50 120w

"Once into the novel, readers will be unwilling to lay it aside. And quite probably these six, the four men and the two women, will live on in the memory of the reader. Their creator can certainly ask no more than that."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 My 29 '50 850w

"Harvey Fergusson has known the Southwest and its inhabitants all his life and writes of the land and its people with an understanding and authenticity of detail that makes his characters live and his novel glow with historical interest." Ethel Dexter

+ Springf'd Republican p6D Jl 16 '50 490w

FERM, VERGILIUS TURE ANSELM, ed. Forgotten religions (incl. some living primitive religions). 392p il $7.50 Philosophical lib.

290 Religion, Primitive. Religions 50-5099

Contents: The dawn of religions, by Phyllis Ackerman; The religion of Ancient Egypt, by S. A. B. Mercer; Sumerian religion, by S. N. Kramer; Assyro-Babylonian religion, by A. L. Oppenheim; Hittite religion, by H. G. Güterbock; The religion of the Canaanites, by T. H. Gaster; Religion in prehistoric Greece, by G. E. Mylonas; Mystery religions of Greece, by G. E. Mylonas; The inhabited world, by C. A. Robinson; Mithraism, by I. J. S. Taraporewala; Manichaeism, by I. J. S. Taraporewala; Mazdakism, by I. J. S. Taraporewala; Old Norse religion, by Murray Fowler; Tibetan religion, by Li An-che; The religion of the Australian aborigines, by A. P. Elkin; South American Indian religions, by J. H. Steward; Shamanism, by Mircea Eliade; The religion of the Eskimos, by Margaret Lantis; The religion of the Navaho Indians, by L. C. Wyman; The religion of the Hopi Indians, by Micha Titiev. Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Am Soc R 15:326 Ap '50 250w

"If a reviewer may venture out of his proper province, this one would like to express regret that the price of the book under review imposes an undue restraint on purchasers. The format leaves nothing to be desired, and the content is throughout of a very high order. The Editor's Preface, in which he outlines the meaning of religion in human societies, is lucidly, succinctly, and persuasively stated; the reviewer knows no better statement." W. D. Wallis

+ Ann Am Acad 270:184 Jl '50 300w

"As contributors to this symposium, Prof. Ferm has enlisted an extraordinary company of experts in various parts of this bewilderingly intricate field. They are scholars whose names are doubtless known to their colleagues and honored by them, but few of them are familiar to a very wide circle of readers. The researcher who spends his life in digging deeply into a forgotten and buried culture runs the risk of becoming a forgotten man. But contemporary culture and scholarship owe a large debt to him." W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 67:175 F 8 '50 1400w

"Professor Ferm has not only seen a real need for a book long overdue, but he has produced with the help of seventeen other scholars a volume which will serve as a ready handbook of reference. . . A little more care in the editing of this valuable material would have served to give the volume a unity which it unhappily lacks. In a similar vein a complaint must be registered with regard to the failure of the printer to purchase the correct type for indicating long vowels and other diacritics. The quality of the printing is poor for a book which is priced as high as this one is. Yet the quality of the material submitted by such an outstanding group of scholars is quite sufficient to render these criticisms of minor importance." J. B. Pritchard

+ — Crozer Q 27:345 O '50 850w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 26 '50 270w

"Since the competence of the authors of the sketches varies from outstanding scholarship to amateur standing, each article must be judged separately. Some are original and excellent summaries of present knowledge, and some even contain new information; other articles are more or less accurate compendia of information accessible in standard works. As a whole, the book should prove useful to students and to general readers."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:165 Je '50 200w

FERM, VERGILIUS TURE ANSELM, ed. History of philosophical systems. 642p $6 Philosophical lib.

109 Philosophy—History 50-10138

"Not just another history of philosophy, but one planned along different lines. Co-operation of forty-one eminent professors of philosophy, representing American, Canadian, European, and Asiatic academic institutions made the work possible. Each contributor writes on his specialty. Part I, dealing with ancient and medieval periods, discusses Far Eastern, Greek, Jewish, and Christian philosophies. Part II, dealing with modern and recent philosophies, opens with renaissance philosophies and after a more or less chronological treatment of some thirty systems, concludes with a chapter on 'Philosophies of Religion.'" Library J

Reviewed by Gilbert Twiss

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 N 5 '50 100w

"A valuable book for mature reader and for student of philosophy." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 75:1822 O 15 '50 130w

"The collaboration guarantees an encyclopedic thoroughness of the total history of philosophy, but precludes the necessary study of the interrelations of the various systems. This shortcoming is serious, but the lay student will find much in the volume that compensates for the lack of historical synthesis." R. G. C.

San Francisco Chronicle p28 D 3 '50 120w

School & Society 72:237 O 7 '50 20w

FERRARS, ELIZABETH. Hunt the tortoise. 224p $2.25 Doubleday

50-7847

Detective story.

"Engaging assemblage of characters in mildly interesting puzzle of criminal conniving." Drexel Drake

Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Je 11 '50 50w

Kirkus 18:188 Mr 15 '50 130w

"As usual, E. X. Ferrars tells a crime story with quiet charm. This particular riddle is not very perplexing, but the reader finds himself carried along by the book's character and atmosphere."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Jl 2 '50 210w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

N Y Times p19 Je 25 '50 180w

FERRE, NELS FREDERICK SOLOMON. Christianity and society. (Reason and the Christian faith) 280p $3.75 Harper

261 Church and social problems. Sociology, Christian 50-6197

"With the volume before us, Professor Ferré brings to an end Part I of his magnum opus on the Christian faith. Part I as a whole is entitled Reason and the Christian Faith, and consists of I, Faith and Reason, II, Evil and the Christian Faith, and III, Christianity and Society. . . Christianity and Society is at once an embryonic social philosophy, philosophy of history, and social ethics, as well as a branch of Christian theology. The governing concept of the book is Christian love, agapé." (Crozer Q) Index. For earlier volumes in this series see Book Review Digest 1946, 1947.

FERRE, N. F. S.—Continued

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 67:867 Jl 19 '50 2050w

"Like its predecessors, it is a work of close-textured reasoning informed with certain valuable Christian insights. Within the limits of its initial assumptions and behind its raher arid scholastic terminology, it faces honestly and sometimes helpfully the problems of a Christianity seeking social as well as individual expression." Robert Peel

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 S 9 '50 1250w

"There is much fine gold in this book and it is well worth digging for; 'tis a pity that it is written in such turgid language. There are many places where simpler methods of expression would add strength." J. H. Titus

Churchman 164:16 S 1 '50 210w

"The book as a whole is vigorous and challenging. If it presents little that is fundamentally new in theory, it is nevertheless a valuable confrontation of our modern world with the principle of love, boldly and concretely conceived. It provides a Christian focus for thought and action." E. S. Brightman

+ Crozer Q 27:248 Jl '50 1400w

Reviewed by E. L. Allen

Hibbert J 48:400 Jl '50 40w

"This is solid reading but it will repay those who appreciate genuine scholarship and deep religious insight."

+ Kirkus 18:168 Mr 15 '50 150w

"It is a welcome attempt to bring theory and principle into relation with concrete situations." J. E. Smith

+ N Y Times p18 Ap 16 '50 230w

FERRIL, HELEN. Indoor birdwatcher's manual; Anne Folsom, drawings. 64p $1 Duell

741.5 Caricatures and cartoons

Collection of humorous drawings and descriptions identifying such "birds" as the Hairy-chested Backslapper, the Red-headed Henpecker, the Great Bald Ego, and other unfortunately "not rare" species.

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 2 '50 450w

Springf'd Republican p6C Ap 9 '50 90w

FESTINGER, LEON, and others. Social pressures in informal groups; a study of human factors in housing; with chapters by Catherine Bauer and Robert Woods Kennedy. 240p il $3 Harper

301.15 Social psychology. Housing 50-13371

"The University of Michigan's Research Center for Group Dynamics sponsored this study of the formation and functioning of social groups in two housing projects for married veteran families at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. One basic concern is to see how architectural design in housing projects affects the pattern of friendship and communication; another point of investigation is the reasons for group cohesion and the treatment of the member of the group who deviates from the normal pattern." (Library J) Index.

"Modest but useful study." John Sirjamaki

+ Am Soc R 15:696 O '50 220w

Booklist 47:151 D 15 '50

Reviewed by M. E. Monroe

Library J 75:1177 Jl '50 130w

Springf'd Republican p12C S 17 '50 250w

FFRENCH, YVONNE. Mrs Gaskell. (English novelists ser) 112p $2 Swallow, A.

B or 92 Gaskell, Mrs Elizabeth Cleghorn (Stevenson) [49-6453]

A short biographical sketch of the author of Cranford, which gives also a short resumé of Mrs Gaskell's more important books. Bibliography. Chronology. Index.

"It is a fair portrait, briskly and impersonally done, but the author who rose out of the inspired and fluent journalist still eludes us. Such a picture, though, the full length study for which we are still waiting, Mrs. Gaskell herself might not have recognised." Naomi Lewis

+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:128 Jl 30 '49 1100w

"This is an admirable addition to the English Novelists Series." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Mr 26 '50 250w

"Miss ffrench's brief study is beyond cavil in its design and execution. She sketches Mrs. Gaskell's life and writings with a sharply focused eye and pen. Moreover, she succeeds in doing what is too rarely true in such studies: enthralling the reader in her volume and at the same time stimulating him to go directly to the writer's works. Her book is excellent as an end in itself and as the means of uncovering a minor novelist of major felicities." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 Ap 29 '50 200w

"This essay is a fine and accomplished little work, abounding in shrewdness and subtlety of observation." C. E. Vulliamy

+ Spec 182:614 My 6 '49 550w

"Miss ffrench, in her new book, has failed to establish Mrs. Gaskell as a real person. There is, moreover, rather too much of the condescending, patronising comment fashionable some twenty or thirty years ago in references to Victorians, to encourage the belief that the book is likely to bring many new readers to this, the most attractive of Victorian woman novelists."

Times [London] Lit Sup p310 My 13 '49 900w

FIELDS, ARTHUR C. World without heroes. (Whittlesey house publication) 271p $3 McGraw

50-7167

"The subject of this novel is the experiences of an American rifle-squad taking part in the mopping-up of World War II German Army units engaged in their last frantic combat tactics. . . Mr. Fields bares the psychology of men under fire, plodding from one exhausting combat situation to another. Here is a group of men who, unlike civilians, have no choice of associations—they can avoid neither each other nor the enemy. Their backgrounds and sensitivities are vastly different and come into edged conflict as the action of the novel moves through well-planned, intense incidents." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by H. B. Ellis

Christian Science Monitor p4 Ap 15 '50 900w

Kirkus 18:140 Mr 1 '50 180w

"Mr. Fields's war is not one of unrelieved gloom. There are humorous figures. . . One could argue that there ought to be a greater saving grace in a story as sorrowful as this; some hope that might be held out to make the human sacrifice at least partially worth while. But Mr. Fields, himself a wounded infantry veteran, has none to offer, and his story is made all the more meaningful by the fact that it was written from a bed in Halloran Hospital on Staten Island." Herbert Kupferberg

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 30 '50 700w

"Norman Mailer remains at the head of the class, but Arthur C. Fields has done a creditable job of proving again that Sherman was right." Richard Match

N Y Times p43 Ap 16 '50 150w

"The mechanics of war have been written about many times, but Fields gives a fresher slant, a better organization, a keener description to the functions, the workings of an infantry squadron, which, in themselves, contribute an important part to the movement of the story. Still they do not get in the way of the theme, development of character, or suspense. Only a good novelist can do this, and it is remarkable that Fields does it in his first book." A. B. Simon

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 21 '50 500w

"'World Without Heroes' slowly crawls under the reader's skin, excites, horrifies, and builds up to a climactic fury when, in a nightmare atmosphere, all the pressures of hatred and fear of combat combine to drive men mad with killing. Mr. Fields obviously bases much of the descriptive details on his own experiences during the last war. But where many others have failed he has managed to write an honest, eloquent, and dramatic novel." Siegfried Mandel

+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 Ap 22 '50 600w

Reviewed by R. F. Henchey
Springf'd Republican p9B Jl 2 '50 180w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 40:192 autumn '50 30w

FINCH, JEREMIAH STANTON. Sir Thomas Browne; a doctor's life of science and faith. 319p il $3.50 Schuman

B or 92 Browne, Sir Thomas 50-10750

A biography of the author of Religio Medici published in 1642. Dr Finch, assistant dean of the college, Princeton University, has long been a student and ardent admirer of Browne. Bibliography. Index.

"A dazzling amount of material make this study of a man and period a find for the student."

+ Kirkus 18:543 S 1 '50 180w

"Since the ideas and beautiful English prose of Browne are still avidly read by physicians, college students, or simply lovers of good literature, Finch's biography is a distinct contribution toward popularizing post-Renaissance history. Illustrated and well-documented." J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 75:1654 O 1 '50 140w

"The new 'Life' by Jeremiah S. Finch, assistant dean of Princeton University, is rich fare indeed, a familiar biography bearing modestly the marks of fine scholarship and an understanding of the difficult and amazing age in which Browne lived." T. H. Maren

+ N Y Times p7 D 31 '50 250w

"Treating of Browne as physician, man of science and letters, and moralist, Mr. Finch's book is an outstanding example of scientific biography written for the general public. . . Mr. Finch's well-written biography not only revivifies Sir Thomas Browne and places him before us in all his many dimensions, but it points to the moral problems of society—tolerance and understanding of others—which, in a tragic sense, transcend any particular age and still await final resolution." I. B. Cohen

+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 N 11 '50 600w

FINDLEY, FERGUSON, pseud. See Frey, C.

FINK, DAVID HAROLD. Be your real self. 307p $2.95 Simon & Schuster

131.32 Mental hygiene 50-8297

The author of Release from Nervous Tension (Book Review Digest 1943) here continues his advice with suggestions on how to attain better mental and emotional balance. He discusses the power to think realistically, and the ability to enjoy happier relations with family, friends, and co-workers.

Booklist 46:327 Jl 1 '50

Bookmark 10:4 O '50 30w

Reviewed by Lloyd Wendt
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Jl 9 '50 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '50

"Dr. Fink seems to present relaxation as therapy in simple, untechnical fashion. It is a home treatment to take the kinks out of you—not by escape but by reorientation."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 O 15 '50 200w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 S '50

FINKE, MRS MARY BERKELEY, and KNOX, HELEN. Moneywise; the intelligent woman's guide to everyday finance. 298p $3.50 Putnam

332 Finance, Personal 50-5986

"Two women, each with twenty years of experience as manager of the woman's department of a famous bank, provide intelligent women who have money to manage with essential information about handling it. . . Starting with opening a checking account, it deals with 'charting the family income,' the kinds of savings banks, using consumer credit, taxes, social security, how to make a will and how important it is to keep it up to date, estate planning, buying or building a house, and the problems of investment, carrying through to such special matters as handling club funds, and to a glossary of financial terms." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:213 Mr 1 '50

+ Bookmark 9:156 Ap '50 30w

"It is a satisfactory guide to careful saving and wise spending, expertly written by two women with bank experience."

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 11 '50 50w

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '50

Library J 75:564 Ap 1 '50 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Mr 12 '50 140w

Springf'd Republican p10C My 14 '50 120w

FINKELNBURG, WOLFGANG. Atomic physics; tr. from the rev. German ed. in cooperation with the author, by George E. Brown. 498p il $6.50 McGraw

541.2 Atoms. Nuclear physics 50-8680

"A substantial treatise written on an advanced level. A broad view has been taken of the scope of atomic physics, hence there is much material in the book on the liquid and solid states as well as on the atomic nucleus. The audience is such technically trained persons as graduate students of chemistry and physics, and professional physicists and chemists. The work first appeared in German in 1948 as Einführung in die Atomphysik. The American edition has been translated from the manuscript of the revised German edition." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1301 Ag '50 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:60 Jl '50

FINKELSTEIN, LOUIS, ed. Jews: their history, culture, and religion. 2v 744; 745-1431p pl maps $12 Harper

296 Jews—History. Jews—Civilization. Jews—Religion [50-5213]

"This embodies the first attempt ever made to describe the whole extraordinary phenomenon of Jewish history. The work of 34 scholars, it provides a panoramic record of every aspect of Jewish culture and religion, ancient and modern. It is a summary of the best contemporary scholarship on Judaism and the Jews." (School & Society) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"It is to Dr. Finkelstein's credit that he lays bare his situation and gives us to understand that, as a scholar representing a minority group struggling toward equal rights in the American family, he views his present labors as an accommodative technique as well as a contribution to the final victory. The intellectual consequences of such a starting point can be summarized easily. They are of real interest to all students of racial and cultural relations." Marshall Sklare

+ Am J Soc 56:205 S '50 1150w

Reviewed by M. J. Cohen
Ann Am Acad 269:197 My '50 800w

"An invaluable book for an audience that values scholarship, objectivity and careful

FINKELSTEIN, LOUIS—Continued
writing above surface analysis cast in journalistic idiom. It is one of the most important religious books of the year." J. O. Supple
+ Chicago Sun p7 F 19 '50 70w

Reviewed by F. A. Levy
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 19 '50 650w

"Intelligent Christians will not expect to find their own estimate of Jesus and of Christianity expressed in a book about the Jews written almost entirely by Jews. . . In a work of this nature there are always some omissions, the proportion and balance of the parts is never perfect, and there can never be complete agreement among all the writers. Scholars of this caliber cannot be pushed around by any editor, however great. . . The biggest gap is the absence of adequate treatment of recent years in Palestine. The editor recognizes this. But the gestation and birth of the state of Israel are too recent to come within the compass of a work which, by reason of its magnitude and composite authorship, must necessarily find itself outrun by the events. A later edition will certainly supply this lack." W. E. Garrison
+ — Christian Century 67:677 My 31 '50 1800w

"In spite of basic omissions and many overlappings of material this is nevertheless a valuable reference work for all who wish to expand their knowledge and understanding of the Jewish people." J. L. Teller
+ — Christian Science Monitor p5 Mr 11 '50 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '50

Current Hist 18:296 My '50 30w

"This is a rare book in that it will be satisfying to the scholar and at the same time interesting to the average reader."
+ Kirkus 17:647 D 1 '49 270w

Nation 170:190 F 25 '50 50w

"This volume of 35 essays serves as a corrective to the recent spate of superficial books on Israel and the Jews because a number of its authors recognize the validity of these truisms. It is not complete or without error, but it is the work of scholars whose erudition in both general and specific fields has enabled them to seek their data in original sources and interpret the meaning and value of their discoveries." J. J. Smertenko
+ New Repub 123:19 N 27 '50 1250w

"To leave out Palestine in a history of the Jews is to leave out Hamlet in Shakespeare's supreme masterpiece. Yet the subject which flavors and leavens, indeed which gives significance to every era of Jewish history, is 'postponed'! The editor explains that the chapters were written by a well known scholar but that distance made it impossible to keep in close touch with him to permit his study 'to fit into the over-all scheme of the work.' . . These important caveats having been entered, it must be said that an auspicious beginning has been made for a major co-operative history." A. L. Sachar
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Mr 26 '50 850w

"The work owes its form, its direction, its proportions, and much of its quality to its devoted and learned editor, Louis Finkelstein, who is president of the Jewish Theological Seminary. It is inevitably a mosaic, constructed by many scholars both Jewish and gentile. . . The pieces of the mosaic do not always fit. There are various discrepancies and inconsistencies. Occasionally there are important differences of interpretation. There are also omissions, and particularly there is no account of the Jewish community in present-day Palestine or of the new state of Israel—a lack the editor promises to remedy in future editions. . . The enlightenment these volumes seek to bring about is surely desirable. . . The story is rich with meaning for all men, for in their strength and in their weakness, in their great achievements and in the great sufferings the Jews have been 'human, all too human.'" R. M. MacIver
+ — N Y Times p7 F 19 '50 1400w

"Christian and Jewish scholars, schools and libraries, as well as general readers, will find this study an extremely valuable reference." I. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Mr 26 '50 270w

School & Society 71:94 F 11 '50 60w

"The subject of anti-Semitism, though necessarily touched on here and there, has been deliberately omitted. That chapter would find its fitting place less in a work on Jews than in one dealing with the cultural reactions of the generality of mankind. For the rest, in chapters which are often brilliantly written, we are presented with an attempted basic definition of who are Jews." D. de Sola Pool
+ — Survey 86:270 My '50 600w

FISCHER, BRUNO. The angels fell. 246p $2.50 Dodd

50-6174

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p6 Mr 10 '50 200w

"Well oiled plot in which some neat characters provide action and suspense."
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 Mr 19 '50 70w

"A terse but not underwritten mystery. . . Too many characters and too much chicanery detract from this book rather than add to it."
— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Mr 12 '50 120w

"This is all familiar enough material, and in inferior hands could make a fairly hackneyed novel. But there's nothing inferior about Bruno Fischer. From first to last, his new novel displays a warm understanding of human relationships." A. B.
+ N Y Times p33 Ap 2 '50 110w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 26 '50 60w

FISCHER, LOUIS. Life of Mahatma Gandhi. 558p $5 Harper

B or 92 Gandhi, Mohandas Karamchand
50-9391

A long, full, affectionate biography based on a variety of sources, published books and articles, unpublished letters, documents, official files, and personal interviews. Author is an American journalist who has spent many years abroad in Europe, India, and the Middle East. Index.

Booklist 46:325; 47:38 Jl 1 '50; S 15 '50

Bookmark 10:4 O '50 40w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p4 S 12 '50 500w

"Mr. Fischer's book is carefully written, as objectively as a great personal admiration will permit, and carefully documented. There are times when one can not easily follow him, as when he absolves the Mahatma of all blame for the disorder in 1942, when India was laid open to a Japanese invasion. There are many inconsistencies in the life of the saint-politician that pass unnoticed. . . But the reader will overlook these in the many merits." P. M. Buck
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 10 '50 550w

"Fischer fails to lift himself above the conflicts in which Gandhi engaged. He continues to be a partisan after the event and so is incapable of seeing the British role in India in the perspective in which Gandhi saw it and in which it well may stand in history. These are not minor failures, but they do not spoil the great value of this book. The fact that it is by far the best yet written on the most challenging figure so far produced by the 20th century, or perhaps in modern times, should but probably will not gain it the wide reading it deserves." H. E. Fey
+ — Christian Century 67:1296 N 1 '50 1250w

"To read this bulky, rather pedestrian life of Gandhi is an illuminating experience. For anyone reasonably familiar with the existing literature about the Mahatma and with the historical role he played, much of the material covered in this book must be already familiar —though never before, perhaps, gathered together in such orderly and complete form. Yet as one follows the honest but extrovert account, one is gradually lifted again to the wonder, the reverence, and the excitement which the miracle of Gandhi's life must always rouse in any thoughtful person." Robert Peel
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 S 15 '50 600w

"Louis Fischer's biography is a laudable achievement, though lacking in precision and often hurrying over the more profound problems in a trivial or superficial way." Max Fischer
+ — Commonweal 53:99 N 3 '50 1200w

"This new volume deserves from its very title respectful, patient and critical examination. It has its virtues and its defects, but the earnest student of Gandhi's life and of Indian affairs will reap his reward from the reading—even the faults of the volume, which are many, may stir him to a saner, more comprehensive view of this notable career." J. C. Archer
+ Current Hist 19:287 N '50 1250w

"Fischer may have gone beyond the province of a biographer in reading motives and thoughts into Gandhi's mind, but so steeped is he in the Gandhi philosophy, that his writing has the ring of authenticity. Not always easy, but usually rewarding reading."
+ — Kirkus 18:378 Jl 1 '50 500w

Reviewed by Beatrice Libaire
Library J 75:1286 Ag '50 110w

"Fischer's book may be read to advantage by all interested in India so long as they take it as a faithful portrait of how Gandhi regarded himself, or of how he would have liked to be regarded, rather than of how Gandhi actually figured in the India of his day." Daniel Thorner
+ — Nation 171:251 S 16 '50 1200w

"The first full-length biography of Gandhi to appear since his death. . . Mr. Fischer has with great skill drawn a line through all the many Gandhian contradictions. He has given us a coherent story of what Gandhi did and the beginning of an idea of what Gandhi was. On both counts, his contribution is a major one. We may hope, however, for more searching and more sharply analytical studies of Gandhi, both as a personality and as a political leader. . . This is not said to detract from the immense value of the narrative account Louis Fischer has written." H. R. Isaacs
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 S 10 '50 1250w

"The style is as inept as the organization. Clichés pock the pages. Sometimes the sentences are broken-backed." Dwight MacDonald
— N Y Times p37 S 24 '50 800w

"The Gandhi story has been told many times before, but no other Western author, writing for Western readers, has ever depicted the Mahatma's life and teachings—they amount to the same thing—with such coherence."
+ New Yorker 26:148 O 14 '50 240w

"Louis Fischer, who perhaps knew Gandhi as intimately as any American, has undertaken to show us how greatness took hold of this little man and made of him one of the world's most striking personalities. . . He does not, some readers may be happy to learn, overwork psychiatric terms and labels. This would indeed be difficult to do with a person who practises no concealment of his guilt feelings. Fully one-half of Louis Fischer's account is the result of his skill as reporter and this is by all odds the better half." E. C. Lindeman
Sat R of Lit 33:11 S 16 '50 1150w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p12D D 3 '50 500w

"Louis Fischer's biography of Mahatma Gandhi is as timely as it is valuable. . . This is an important book for readers who want the facts, the thinking, the personalities behind current generalizations about India and Gandhi. It will be particularly useful to the traveler, business man, social worker, the United Nations or embassy staff who seek an Eastern world compressed within the covers of one book. It is also fascinating as a narrative which takes us to a South Asia divested of the strange mysticism and extravagant splendor that too long have kept us from realizing how close East and West are in human needs and goals." E. R. Lucke
+ Survey 86:417 S '50 1550w

FISH, HELEN DEAN. Invitation to England. 220p $2.50 Washburn
914.2 England—Description and travel
50-7044

Practical information for the traveller on a first trip to England. Includes an outline for a first visit of thirty days; suggestions for amount of luggage; tipping on steamship and on land; hotels; what to see; etc. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:301 Je 1 '50

"As one who was in England last summer and acted on some of the information and advice to be found here, I can say, 'It's the truth'; as soon as may be I shall act on more." A. C. Ames
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 My 21 '50 220w

Kirkus 18:155 Mr 1 '50 190w

"Author's rich literary background, her wide general knowledge and her genuine love for England seep through every page and the result is an excellent and most readable guide book for the beginning traveler." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 75:489 Mr 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by Beach Conger
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 My 28 '50 70w

"Most usefully, the book offers a proposed visit of thirty days for the first-time visitor and a rather complete section concerning good reading on the subject of England." H. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:43 Ap 8 '50 150w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 Je '50

FISH, RACHEL ANN. Newel post. 376p $3.50 Coward-McCann
50-8128

A family chronicle in which Lucy Prescott, mistress of a large estate in upper New York state, is the central character. Madame Lucy had always been a domineering woman, who ruled her farm and her three sons with the same grim determination. The marriage of Paul, the oldest son, to a girl who had not been selected by his mother set off a train of events which brought heartache and tragedy in its wake.

Booklist 47:13 S 1 '50

"Mrs. Fish has something to say in 'The Newel Post' but I fear many a reader is going to cringe at the way she says it. I read the novel in two torrid evenings when the temperature was above 90. That is no time for fiction redolent of a college freshman's essay. Still, I am a pushover for family chronicles and I would have stayed with the novel even if I hadn't been getting paid for doing so." V. P. Hass
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Jl 9 '50 390w

"Though Mrs. Fish would have been fairer if she had not made Cathy such a spoiled child, she presents both sides of the question. Her treatment, though occasionally hurried, is enhanced by a solid familiarity with her material and by her humor."
Christian Science Monitor p6 Jl 29 '50 120w

"Patterned on the incident upon incident of soap opera techniques, this nevertheless manages something of integrity in various characters and sincerity in household events."
Kirkus 18:266 My 1 '50 230w

FISH, R. A.—Continued

"A few of the characters are well drawn and description of life on country estate is convincing. First novel of some promise recommended for large fiction and rental collections." H. P. Bolman
+ Library J 75:1180 Jl '50 80w

"'The Newel Post' is a relentless demonstration of why, in the Chinese written character language, 'trouble' is two women under the same roof. But the devastation, as Mrs. Fish presents it, is a bit too sweeping and the suffering unwisely prolonged. A farm, however feudal, is not a prison. You wonder how much of the trouble could have been averted if the antagonists had acted normally—simply by getting out of combat range." Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Jl 9 '50 550w

"Page by page the reader is treated to a running mother-in-law-daughter-in-law battle, to an assortment of unworkable marriages, to vague ruminations about the condition of being to the manner born, to some of the most tissue-thin and without-sex suggestions of philandering to see print in a long time." B. V. Winebaum
N Y Times p18 Jl 16 '50 130w
New Yorker 26:72 Ag 12 '50 200w

"The novel, a first one, isn't wholly free from contrived passages, but, on the whole, it is a good story, one that will give you enjoyment as well as something to think about." J. V.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p15 Jl 30 '50 340w

Reviewed by Pamela Taylor
Sat R of Lit 33:31 S 2 '50 270w

FISHER, MRS AILEEN LUCIA. Trapped by the mountain storm; il. by J. Fred Collins. 124p $2 Aladdin

591.5 Animals, Legends and stories of 50-9633

Story of the struggles for food and safety of various animals caught in a snow storm—the mountain goats and a mountain lion, a cony, snowshoe rabbits, mice and birds all suffer the storm. When it is over the survivors welcome joyously the smell of the coming spring in the air.

"An easy-reading, episodic story. . . Strong fare, possibly, for some children."
Booklist 47:120 N 15 '50

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 O 1 '50 200w
Kirkus 18:516 S 1 '50 120w

"There is poetry in the telling and an apparent authenticity. The ending ties the chapters neatly together—much after the manner of the end couplet in an Elizabethan sonnet. Ages 8-12 and beyond." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 75:1910 N 1 '50 70w
San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 12 '50 110w

FISHER, MRS DOROTHEA FRANCES (CANFIELD). Our independence and the Constitution; il. by Robert Doremus. (Landmark bk) 188p $1.50 Random house

U.S.—History—Juvenile literature 50-10543

Thru a fictional device of a young girl intensely interested in the comings and goings of Franklin and Jefferson and others in Philadelphia in 1776, and 1787, the author shows what the writing of the Declaration of Independence and later the Constitution meant to the people of America yesterday and today.

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 N 12 '50 230w
Kirkus 18:473 Ag 15 '50 210w

"Mrs. Fisher gives [a surprising, original treatment] to those might-be-dull subjects for people under twelve, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. . . 'Report to Debby,' is a little masterpiece. Mrs. Fisher successfully conveys her own excitement about our two greatest 'landmarks' of all. She makes place, people and points at issue really live for boys and girls." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 12 '50 120w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p6 N 12 '50 30w
New Yorker 26:190 D 2 '50 40w

FISHER, MRS DOROTHEA FRANCES (CANFIELD). Paul Revere and the minute men; il. by Norman Price. (Landmark bk) 181p $1.50 Random house

Revere, Paul—Juvenile literature 50-11711

A retelling of the story of Paul Revere for junior and senior high school age.

Booklist 47:142 D 1 '50

"A readable, reliable account of the activities of the famous patriot."
+ Kirkus 18:473 Ag 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 12 '50 120w

"A thrilling and dramatic story." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p6 N 12 '50 30w

FISHER, GEORGE CLYDE. Life of Audubon; with a foreword by John Kieran, illustrated with paintings and drawings by John James Audubon from the permanent collection of the American museum of natural history. 75p $2.50 Harper

B or 92 Audubon, John James 49-11967

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 26:27 Ja '50 160w

"Mr. Fisher was formerly attached to the American Museum of Natural History. He knew the outdoor world as intimately as Audubon did. He chose to tell about the career of the great artist-naturalist in a popular easy style that invites readers of all ages except the youngest. And it was a happy and fortunate decision to bring these authoritative bird and animal life paintings within the reach of young people." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:46 Ja '50 100w

Reviewed by J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 75:178 F 1 '50 90w

"This makes an unusual book for the price. Mr. Kieran's glowing foreword and Dr. Fisher's capable text offer a fine, brief introduction to the life of this most fascinating pioneer artist and naturalist. It will appeal to older boys and girls and also to adults." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 9 '50 80w

"The book is written especially for young people but there is no one, young or old, who will not find it rewarding." B. W. Shaffer
+ Sat R of Lit 33:46 F 11 '50 180w

"To the telling of a romantic story, the author brings not only enthusiasm for his subject, scientific knowledge, the experience of years as curator in the American Museum of Natural History, and the direct response to nature as he has known it in explorations, but the human touch as well. Full-page illustrations in color, reproductions of Audubon's pictures, some of which have never before appeared in books, make this an important contribution to children's reading."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:25 Mr '50 100w
Wis Lib Bul 46:24 Ja '50

FISHER, LOIS J. Bill and his neighbors [il. by the author]. 55p $1.75 Houghton 50-5906

A story treatment of the problem of prejudice, written for grades 8 to 10. "The students of Blossomville High School see the growth of prejudice when one of the students, frustrated in his attempt to win a drawing contest presided over by mustache-wearing judges, transfers his antagonism to all those wearing mustaches and their families. Other students find a release for their major and minor frustrations in a group hatred against the mustache-wearers. Only when the school unity threatens to dissolve, do the students gather in a Crab Session to analyse the situation. In these meetings the students discover the basic and destructive elements of prejudice related to their own experiences." (Kirkus) Bibliographies.

"Not quite so clear cut and effective as some of Miss Fisher's earlier books, but it should be useful as a model for group discussions."
Booklist 46:248 Ap 1 '50
Bookmark 9:187 My '50 30w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p3 Ap 29 '50 270w

"This book, like others by Lois Fisher, has much food for thought." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:202 My '50 120w

"The material here is sound, factual and entertaining and the author's drawings are delightful. However, young people may well resent the somewhat condescending device of the mustache-wearers and the circling-around-the-subject."
+ — Kirkus 18:65 F 1 '50 220w

"Recommended." M. E. Martignoni
+ Library J 75:705 Ap 15 '50 70w

"The pictures doubtless will carry many a youngster through what is really a little sermon, as well as a story of boys and girls at school. Some of the pictures and the ideas did come from just such young people. It makes a very complex problem seem rather too simple, but we can only hope it succeeds as well as it deserves." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 21 '50 250w

"If the device seems thin, it does reduce prejudice to an absurdity and readers from 10-14 will absorb through lively pictures and concrete examples sound information on its cause and cure. This is a good book for home as well as school and public libraries." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Times p36 Mr 19 '50 230w

"The book is soundly based in anthropology and psychiatry, highlighted with humor in text and illustrations. It should help its readers, teen-age or adult, to understand and deal with prejudice, wherever met." E. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ap 2 '50 170w

"The satire of this book may not be as readily detected and appreciated by the young as by the adult reader. To some the plot may seem unreal and insignificant. Those who read the book thoughtfully cannot avoid the realization that all prejudice is based upon the same immaturity, the same lack of understanding and consideration for others that Bill and his friends exhibited. Psychologically sound, his story seeks to give real insight into the origin and growth of prejudice." M. R. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 33:37 My 13 '50 230w
Wis Lib Bul 46:30 Ap '50

FITCH, LYLE CRAIG. Taxing municipal bond income. 161p pa $2.50 Univ. of Calif.

336.294 Taxation, Exemption from. Municipal bonds. Income tax 50-7422

"This brief study presents and appraises the arguments in the long and unsuccessful attempt by the U. S. Treasury and many students of taxation to secure the removal of the existing exemption from federal income tax now allowed to income from state and local government bonds and other obligations. The ten chapters are grouped under three headings: Benefits and Costs of Tax Exemption, The Case Against Exemption and the Question of Policy, Techniques for Taxing Municipal Bond Interest." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography.

"The work, though hard and involved reading, is commendable for its objectivity and scholarship." H. M. Groves
+ — Ann Am Acad 272:247 N '50 420w

"This book is probably the best attempt to date to look into both sides of a bitter argument. . . The book is recommended as an antidote to some of the more extreme contributions to an argument that has been more emotional than reasoned." A. W. Viner
+ J Pol Econ 58:459 O '50 500w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:317 S '50 150w

FITTS, SISTER MARY PAULINE. Hands to the needy; Mother D'Youville, apostle to the poor. 336p $3 Doubleday

B or 92 Youville, Mère Marie Marguerite (Dufrost de Lajemmerais) d'. Grey nuns of the cross 50-8150

Biography of Mother d'Youville, the founder of the Grey Nuns, established in Montreal in 1737. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Edward Barry
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 1 '50 150w
Kirkus 18:289 My 15 '50 160w

"This will be wanted in all Catholic communities." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 75:975 Je 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ag 20 '50 350w

"This is a moving and highly readable biography. If rich resources of local color have been left untouched, the facts of Marguerite d'Youville's life have been allowed to stand forth in their own heroic dimensions." Francis Sweeney
+ N Y Times p21 Je 18 '50 320w

FITZGERALD, STEPHEN E. Communicating ideas to the public; a practical application of public relations techniques to everyday problems in human communication [pub] in assn. with Modern industry magazine. 267p $3.50 Funk

301.154 Communication and traffic. Publicity 50-5492

"It is the purpose in this book to examine the problem of human communications and public relations from a special point of view: how people get information, especially information on which they base action and opinion. . . The book will attempt to show something of what we know about how people really get their information and how we can use this knowledge to get our ideas across to other people." (Foreword) Index.

Booklist 46:227 Mr 15 '50

"A lively, thought-provoking discussion."
+ Bookmark 9:156 Ap '50 40w

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 23 '50 60w

"Mr. Fitzgerald deserves congratulations for helping to close a gap in the literature of public relations and business management by presenting this evaluation; he is to be commended, moreover for underscoring the relationship of public relations to the social sciences. For the general executives he covers his subject well. Without being stuffy, he has one sharp eye on scholarship and, without being dull, the other on case histories. This book yields much useful knowledge and in a way that makes it pleasant reading." E. K. Moss
+ Management R 39:359 Je '50 500w

"As a practical, beginner's guide to the general field of public relations, this book has real merit." G. S.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 26 '50 70w

FLAIANO, ENNIO. Short cut; tr. from the Italian by Stuart Hood [Eng title: Mariam]. 302p $3 Pellegrini & Cudahy

50-6659

An Italian officer in Abyssinia during Mussolini's war with that country, has a brief encounter with a native girl, and, accidentally, kills her. Thereafter he is pursued by twin fears, the fear of retribution and the fear that the girl may have infected him with leprosy.

FLAIANO, ENNIO—Continued

"This book fluently translated by Stuart Hood, can be added to the list of superior titles which have reached us from Italy since the war." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 185:88 Ap '50 650w

Reviewed by R. L. Weaver
Canadian Forum 30:69 Je '50 420w

"Stuart Hood's translation of Ennio Flaiano's novel is excellent. Those who have been fed on a diet of realism for too long should welcome this richly descriptive, imaginative narrative as a refreshing literary experience." Josh Greenfeld
+ Chicago Sun p21 Mr 26 '50 260w

"Fresh, imaginative fiction is so rare that its appearance ought always to be honorably acclaimed. 'The Short Cut' is a novel of intense strangeness and vitality, beautifully composed, and extraordinary in both substance and effect. It may not be a book which will immediately win great popularity; but it is one which is sure to be memorable for all its readers; and it carries certain signs of masterful distinction." Richard Sullivan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 26 '50 300w

"Signor Flaiano is wholly implicit, and esoteric. He draws all in elaborate perspective. . . The climax, that nothing will happen to the hero . . . is almost more than he can face. . . Understatement could hardly go further, yet, throughout, the novel has tremendous pace, the 'majestic urgency' of the Hound of Heaven, relentlessly pursuing his quarry." Anne Fremantle
+ Commonweal 51:683 Ap 7 '50 500w
Kirkus 18:8 Ja 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 O 14 '49 90w

"Flaiano's characters are real, we know their minds, are interested in them, yet the account of the narrator's obsession has a hallucinatory quality rather reminiscent of Kafka. But above all Flaiano has narrative power, and as his novel, with exquisite judgment, gathers momentum, we realise that he is one of those rare novelists who entice us from page to page, our fingers itching to turn them. This is Flaiano's first novel, and it shows him capable of bringing into the Italian novel that necessary element, the artist." Michael Swan
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:492 O 29 '49 330w

Reviewed by Alfred Hayes
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Mr 26 '50 550w

"With this sardonic first novel, Ennio Flaiano reaches the front rank of Italian novelists, for he is a writer of unusual power, observation and subtlety. He brings to contemporary Italian fiction a new character, the hero in reverse, and attempts to turn a realistic thriller into a curious parable of human guilt created by fate and canceled by chance." Nancy Lenkeith
+ N Y Times p6 Mr 26 '50 320w
New Yorker 26:114 My 6 '50 120w

"Ennio Flaiano has a gift much like Conrad's. Though leaner in prose, simpler in narrative, less vivid in characterization, he possesses the same intensity and wealth of imagination." Charles Spielberger
+ Sat R of Lit 33:55 Ap 15 '50 500w

Reviewed by R. D. Charques
Spec 183:480 O 7 '49 70w
Time 55:98 Ap 3 '50 500w
Times [London] Lit Sup p693 O 28 '49 550w

FLANAGAN, EDWARD JOSEPH. Understanding your boy, as told to Ford McCoy. 180p $2 Rinehart

136.77 Boys. Children—Management. Parent and child 50-7253

Father Flanagan's philosophy of boy training. "He analyzes personality, guidance, behavior, will, habits, punishment, play, character and religious training. . . Accents the normal boy and importance of home training." (Library J)

Booklist 46:310 Je 15 '50

"Parents and professional workers will find here wise, simple counsel on how to instill the attitudes and habits in boys that more fully develop their 'capacity for the cultivation of an integrated personality.'"
+ Bookmark 9:182 My '50 40w

"A book of general principles and precepts stated with simplicity."
+ Kirkus 18:162 Mr 1 '50 130w

"Epigrammatic style, lucid presentation highly suitable for parents, teachers and boy workers." James Hurley
+ Library J 75:772 My 1 '50 120w
Wis Lib Bul 46:23 Je '50

FLANDERS, RALPH EDWARD. American century. 101p $2.50 Harvard univ. press

973.918 U.S.—Politics and government. U.S. —Foreign policy 50-9695

Three essays on American foreign and domestic policies delivered as the Godkin lectures at Harvard in 1949, by the Senator (Rep.) from Vermont.

Am Pol Sci R 44:1045 D '50 30w
Current Hist 19:291 N '50 70w

"A brief but stimulating volume." Joseph Borome
+ Library J 75:1398 S 1 '50 100w

"'The American Century' is a brief book, necessarily sketchy and incomplete. But it deserves to be read by all who are seeking for a middle way through the political extremes of the time." August Heckscher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 5 '50 650w

"On the theory that American influence abroad is dependent on American prosperity at home, Senator Flanders offers his prescription for maintaining both. He would steer a middle course, rejecting the extremes of conservatism as well as of what he calls 'emotional liberalism.' In fact, whether he is talking about domestic tax policy or overseas trade, he doesn't step very far out of character as a broad-minded but hard-headed business man." J. B. Oakes
+ N Y Times p12 O 1 '50 440w

"Senator Flanders is a hard, independent thinker with a dash of the unorthodox. In these days of strident hot-headed emotionalism, his trust in empirical rationality as an approach to national issues is reassuring." P. R. Levin
+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 D 9 '50 220w

FLAVIN, MARTIN. Black and white; from the Cape to the Congo; with il. by Paul Whitman. 332p $4 Harper

916.7 Africa—Description and travel. South Africa—Native races 50-5676

The author recently took a trip thru South Africa, from Johannesburg into Bechuanaland, and down the Congo to Léopoldville. Hence "his commentary on the 'civilizing process' being applied to the natives of that potentially explosive continent is a factual one, based on the assumption that the process is necessary." (New Yorker) No index.

Booklist 46:231 Mr 15 '50
Bookmark 9:156 Ap '50 40w

"A fascinating, warm-hearted, penetrating book that is likely to give you a new perspective on the Dark Continent." Ben Kartman
+ Chicago Sun p5 Mr 9 '50 650w

Reviewed by W. M. Krogman
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 26 '50 360w
Foreign Affairs 28:691 Jl '50 50w
Kirkus 17:669 D 1 '49 240w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 75:2160 D 15 '50 30w

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
Nation 170:600 Je 17 '50 750w

"It is often said reproachfully that American visitors to Africa stay little time, and thereafter write much nonsense. I have no such reproach to offer Mr. Flavin; his observations are trustworthy and keen and he concludes well by saying 'the civilizing process would go on, for better or worse. There was no other end to it.' Also he conceived a sincere love of the simple and patient people of Africa, and for that I forgive him wholeheartedly for his other occasional assumptions of superiority." Alan Paton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 12 '50 1650w

"Mr. Flavin's prose, while perishable, glows and gleams as would no ordinary traveler's. That explains why the reader will come out of this book with a good idea of what is right and what is wrong with Africa." John Barkham
+ N Y Times p14 F 19 '50 390w
New Yorker 25:99 F 11 '50 220w

"I can think of no one who could have done this job better than Mr. Flavin or, indeed, half as well. Reading him, you'll get a new and vivid idea of the teeming black millions of Africa, the physical aspect of the continent and the few whites who, in one way or another, are running things so far. You'll get no snap conclusions, either. Mr. Flavin thinks straight and reports sharply, with all the talent of an expert writer. Which brings me back to what I've already said. This is a top-shelf travel book from any angle, a book you shouldn't miss." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 3 '50 950w

"This is a remarkably interesting and entertaining book. For a first effort in factual reporting by this brilliant playwright and the Pulitzer-Prize-winning novelist, it is genuinely outstanding." Linton Wells
+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 F 25 '50 650w
Springf'd Republican p3D F 26 '50 600w
Wis Lib Bul 46:22 Mr '50

FLEMISH paintings; with an introd. and notes by Thomas Bodkin. (Pitman gallery) 24p pl pa $1.95 Pitman

759.9493 Paintings, Flemish 50-6618

"Ten color plates with critical remarks attached; with a short introduction by a reputable scholar in the field. . . It is something of a tour de force for Professor Bodkin to have encompassed Flemish painting from the Van Eycks to Pieter Bruegel within this format. Wisely, he devotes his introduction to a survey of the historical background of this school and to an interesting account of the artist's circumstances during that period." N Y Times

Booklist 46:234 Mr 15 '50

"The standard of color reproductions is unusually high. These reproductions may not be absolute replicas of the paintings in question but, on the other hand, they do not vilify the originals." Stuart Preston
+ N Y Times p7 D 25 '49 150w
School Arts 49:6a Ja '50 20w

FLETCHER, MRS INGLIS (CLARK). Bennett's welcome. 451p $3.50 Bobbs

50-9890

This sixth novel in the author's Carolina series is the second in chronological order. The first part takes place in England in 1651. After the battle of Worcester Charles II barely escapes with his life, and Richard Monington, a captain in the King's army, is sent to Virginia as an indentured servant because of his part in the King's escape. In Carolina (which was then a part of Virginia) Richard, after many hardships, finally discovers the woman he really loves, and comes into his own.

Booklist 47:34; 61 S 15 '50; O 1 '50

"Mrs. Fletcher shows her characteristic grasp of complex historical background, and she exhibits again her skill in unfolding a narrative that is both sweeping and dramatic. Against strongly colored period scenes she shows a varied cast of characters, each one distinct and individual." Walter Havighurst
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 22 '50 440w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p40 D 3 '50 180w

"For half her book Inglis Fletcher is a highly competent historical novelist. . . Following the superior first act, the Virginia half of the book is a let-down. . . Even in its less convincing moments this story is dignified by the author's obvious devotion to her material. It's too bad, though, that she didn't quit when she was winning, at half-time." Richard Match
+ — N Y Times p30 O 29 '50 310w

"Mrs. Fletcher knows how to convey the confusion in people's minds during a changing world. That is why her novels are so alive and timely, regardless of period or prevailing moods." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 O 15 '50 400w

"It is a pity that such evidently careful work in research in the infinite details of this exciting period should result in so lifeless a picture." M. S. Douglas
Sat R of Lit 33:67 D 2 '50 200w

FLETCHER, SYDNEY E. Big book of cowboys; il. by [the author]. [26p] $1 Grosset

917.8 Cowboys—Juvenile literature 50-7666

Large colored pictures and text describe the life, action, and equipment of the American cowboys for young readers.

Booklist 46:306 Je 1 '50

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 18 '50 50w
Christian Science Monitor p4 O 21 '50 70w

"There is hardly a small boy to be found who would pass by this book with its large pictures of horses and the men who ride them on the range. For the most part, the pictures are realistic and vigorous and in excellent color, some of them filling the double pages." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:282 Jl '50 80w
+ Kirkus 18:259 My 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by M. J. Meade
Library J 75:1054 Je 15 '50 80w

"The pictures will thrill all boys from six up, all full of fine action, and with the horses very well done."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 My 7 '50 220w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p30 My 14 '50 50w

FLETCHER, SYDNEY E. Big book of Indians. [24p] il $1 Grosset

970.1 Indians of North America—Juvenile literature 50-12398

Large size book about various phases of Indian life and customs, with special attention to their equipment, implements, and children's toys and games.

Booklist 47:141 D 1 '50

"Could be enjoyed by almost any age. . . Especially useful for grades 6-8. Recommended." Nelle McCalla
+ Library J 75:2016 N 15 '50 110w

"Its text is brief, with no pretense to inform about all the tribes, or any history. But its pages of Indian implements and equipment, and of Indian children's toys and games are fascinating and valuable. It offers splendid display material." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 12 '50 100w

FLIGHT, JOHN W., and FAHS, MRS SOPHIA BLANCHE (LYON). Drama of ancient Israel. 201p il maps $2.75 Beacon press

221.95 Bible. Old Testament—History of Biblical events 49-11291

An account of five centuries in the story of the nation of Israel. The book begins with the Hebrews' invasion of Canaan in 1377 B.C. and ends with the division of the kingdom in 925 B.C. The story is based on the Bible accounts and archaeological records. For junior and senior high schools. Bibliography.

"While especially intended for boys and girls of junior and senior high school age, the book should make fascinating reading for adults as well. . . The pictures, illustrations and maps are exceptionally well selected." K. M. Chworowsky

+ Churchman 163:16 D 15 '49 180w

"As the story is traced through the great events, fictionalized conversation is employed to attract and hold interest. This method is not always successful. The dialogue often lacks the dynamic qualities of the Bible text and becomes rather matter-of-fact. . . Such substitutes for the Bible text tend to become modernizations of dialogue which lose the character and point of the original. . . All the facts of the invasion are not clearly established as yet and that should be recognized. The author's reconstruction should not be set down as fact. . . The story is strong in its character of secular history and will help to this kind of understanding. But it does not awaken awareness of God at work confronting man in his political and economic life." J. P. Berkeley

- + Crozer Q 27:166 Ap '50 500w

FLOHERTY, JOHN JOSEPH. Aviation from the ground up. 157p il $2.75 Lippincott

629.13 Aeronautics 50-12005

"A bird's-eye view of aviation covering aerial advertising, helicopters, jet propulsion, crop spraying, and the Berlin airlift, with special attention given to careers in flying. Written to replace the author's Aviation from Shop to Sky [Book Review Digest 1941] this has new and up-to-date material and puts less emphasis on the U.S. Air Forces." Booklist

Booklist 47:99 N 1 '50

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 10w

"Anecdotal, informal prose with no talking down, pace this entertaining, stimulating story."

+ Kirkus 18:612 O 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by M. I. Ross

Library J 75:2159 D 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by Creighton Peet

N Y Times p17 D 17 '50 130w

"It is too advanced for the younger boys, but it answers almost any question that older boys might ask. Like all, Mr. Floherty's books, it is readable and clear in its information."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:66 N 11 '50 80w

FLOHERTY, JOHN JOSEPH. Watch your step. 160p il $2.75 Lippincott

614.8 Safety education. Accidents—Prevention 50-6783

"The author gives on-the-scene accounts of accidents observed while cruising with Coast Guard cutters and riding with the highway patrol, and valuable information on the causes and prevention of accidents. Chapters cover accidents in the home, school, woods, water, and on the highway, with a safety quiz on each chapter." Booklist

"A very readable book on a required subject in many schools."

+ Booklist 46:290 My 15 '50

Bookmark 9:163 Ap '50 30w

"Floherty, who has encountered danger at sea, in the air, on land and under the ground in acquiring material for his long list of books, has also acquired a code of rules for personal safety from men and women who must practice them if they would live. These he sets down in entertaining fashion. This is no treatise of do's and don'ts to meet every situation. It contains few statistics. But based on the premise that accidents are fewer where hazards are the greatest, he has packed a volume full of information on how to avoid accidents." William Yates

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Je 25 '50 190w

"Written in an easy, pleasant style, the book makes good reading and gives valuable information on safety in the water, in the woods, driving the car in city and country, handling of fire, using electric equipment, and many other activities and sports which present hazards and claim lives every year. . . No child of an understanding age is too young and no adult too old to profit by this book." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 9 '50 160w

"Watch Your Step is lively reading in spite of its earnest import." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:203 My '50 80w

"Floherty's excellent style of presentation, the interesting facts he tells, and the safety quiz at the conclusion make this a more attractive book than most in this field. The principles of safety are made palatable to adolescents." C. B. Gilbert

+ Library J 75:989 Je 1 '50 80w

"Many excellent photographs add greatly both to the excitement and to the explanations." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 9 '50 90w

Wis Lib Bul 46:24 Jl '50

FLOWER of cities, a book of London; studies and sketches by twenty-two authors; il. with original drawings; twenty-four plates in monochrome, twelve plates in colour and two maps in colour. 324p $4 Harper

914.21 London—Description 50-4858

Twenty-two essays on various aspects of the city of London. Partial contents: London railway stations, by John Betjeman; Palaces and parks, by Christopher Sykes; Fleet street, by G. R. Taylor; Regent's park and St. John's wood, by Elizabeth Bowen; Hampstead: 'Field of the most hay,' by E. A. Robertson; Bloomsbury, by Leonard Woolf; A London suburb, by Stevie Smith; Museums, by Jacquetta Hawkes; London art galleries, by T. W. Earp; The contemporary theatre, by J. C. Trewin; The English ballet, by Eveleigh Leith.

Bookmark 10:4 O '50 30w

"Contributions are individual but well disciplined to harmonious scale and approach. Of the various authors, only Leonard Woolf and Elizabeth Bowen have much of a reputation in this country. All acquit themselves well, however, and every article contributes toward developing the generalization that of all cities London is not only the largest but among the most interesting and rewarding." A. C. Ames

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 30 '50 500w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 19 '50 400w

"I, a Londoner of less than twenty years' standing and therefore hardly a Londoner, read this book, half fascinated by the revelation of mysteries of which I was only dimly aware, and half furious that my village, my corner of this dear damned, sprawling cross-section had been left out. . . Now that I come to think of it, I could not have bestowed higher praise on this excellent symposium of essays than by complaining that one more essay, the one that I would write myself, was needed to make it complete." Eric Newton

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 30 '50 650w

"A remarkable book in every way. If you're planning to visit London for the first time, it will be an invaluable companion piece to the guidebook you'll undoubtedly want for reference anyway. If you've known London, this will be all the better reading. And if you've neither been to London nor plan a trip, you have still pleasure ahead of you here if you have even the faintest interest in the subject, for the contributors' list is, as near as one could imagine such a thing, an ironclad guarantee of high quality. The idea, the scheme, and the execution of the book, in fact, are all so good that one thinks immediately of other cities which could and should profit by the same kind of treatment—and of readers who would profit, too." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Jl 15 '50 650w

"No book could do full justice to London's many-sidedness, but Flower of cities [is] recommended for [its] stimulating and entertaining qualities." Philip Magnus

+ Spec 183:928 D 30 '49 350w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 S '50

FOGARTY, JONATHAN TITULESCU, pseud. Name is Fogarty; private papers on public matters. 126p $1.50 Vanguard

817 50-6762

Political satire couched in semi-humorous vein, setting forth the writer's attempts to find a World Brain to bring peace and happiness to all.

Reviewed by J. F. Nims

— Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 2 '50 250w

— Kirkus 18:153 Mr 1 '50 60w

"As a kind of latter-day Mr. Dooley commenting on foreign and domestic affairs, Fogarty has his points and his moments—but as a wit, alas, he doesn't come up to Mr. Dooley's novel, and as a satirist he is one of the lamest and most loquacious since the early Pleistocene." Ralph Thompson

— + N Y Times p10 Mr 26 '50 360w

FOLEY, MARTHA, ed. Best American short stories, 1950; and the Yearbook of the American short story. 452p $3.75 Houghton

Short stories—Collections (16-11387)

Contents: Where did yesterday go? by Charles Angoff; Shadow of evil, by James Aswell; The wild flower, by Sanora Babb; Edge of doom, by Warren Beck; A sermon by Doctor Pep, by Saul Bellow; Death under the hawthornes, by Peggy Bennett; Pastor Dowe at Tacaté, by Paul Bowles; Jishin, by Robert Christopher; The NRACP, by G. P. Elliott; The fear of innocence, by L. A. Fiedler; The pigeon, by Ralph Gustafson; The mouse, by Marianne Hauser; The author, by J. W. Johnson; The artist, by Ralph Kaplan; "Hail brother and farewell," by Sylvan Karchmer; Comes a day, by Speed Lamkin; The glass wall, by Victoria Lincoln; The world outside, by Howard Maier; The cape, by Esther McCoy; My brother's second funeral, by Edward Newhouse; Take her up tenderly, by Hoke Norris; Bright and morning, by Glidden Parker; The old acrobat and the ruined city, by Clay Putman; Not with our fathers, by Abraham Rothberg; The promise, by Ramona Stewart; A master time, by James Still; The hired man, by Joan Strong; A wife of Nashville, by Peter Taylor; Biographical notes.

Booklist 47:39 S 15 '50

"Whether this range of stories from almost-slick to almost-too-literary is a just representation of the short story in America today, or simply direct evidence of Miss Foley's breadth of taste, one cannot know. But it is surely true that Miss Foley has submitted in her latest annual anthology not the unquestionably 'best,' by the most exacting standards, but rather a collection of undeniably good stories of varying levels of accomplishment." Paul Engle

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 13 '50 400w

Kirkus 18:401 Jl 15 '50 200w

"The editor confesses in a jocular Foreword that she goes crazy before each annual deadline. Perhaps that accounts for the pall of melancholia hanging over the recent issues of The Best [sic] American Short Stories." E. F. Walbridge

Library J 75:1410 S 1 '50 130w

"Despite the preponderance of juveniliana, I should think that this particular 'yearbook of the American short story' would appeal to a great variety of tastes. . . These are not merely good stories; they are superior stories and, for the most part, I think they justify Miss Foley's blissful martyrdom." J. J. Maloney

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Jl 23 '50 700w

Reviewed by Horace Gregory

N Y Times p17 Ag 6 '50 450w

"There is not a shoddy story in the lot. Miss Foley has chosen well, and it is evident she had a good crop to choose from, perhaps the best in many years. Certainly the American short story has escaped from what once seemed to be its machine-made sameness and has found new vitality." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 1 '50 850w

"The collection is a dull one, a charge frequently made in the past which must be made more sharply this time. The criticism can be qualified because there is here also a high proportion of finished writing. . . Most of the stories are not only by younger writers but they have appeared in the university and regional reviews and in the 'little' magazines. This last means that they are not the stories which Americans in any large number are reading. However, it is probable that many more Americans will be reading future stories by many of these writers, partly because they have received Miss Foley's accolade. More important still, younger writers will be reading them. Happily, they can learn much from them in craftsmanship. It is to be hoped that they don't take over also the defeatism, failure of completion, and feeling of lethargy which pervade the collection." E. J. Fitzgerald

Sat R of Lit 33:13 Jl 29 '50 1050w

Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 23 '50 90w

Time 52:74 Ag 7 '50 280w

FOLEY, RAE, pseud. See Denniston, E.

FOOTE, HENRY WILDER. John Smibert, painter; with a descriptive catalogue of portraits, and notes on the work of Nathaniel Smibert. 292p pl $6 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Smibert, John. Smibert, Nathaniel 50-9807

A biography of one of America's earliest artists. Born in Edinburgh, Smibert began as a coach-painter. He went to London and to Italy, and finally journeyed to America. There is an account of his "colour shop" which was his studio and was, in all but name, our first academy of painting. Bibliography. Index.

"Recommended." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 75:2078 D 1 '50 150w

"A well-organized, painstaking life and complete catalogue of the works of the earliest recorded American artist, which may be of more interest to the social historian than to art students. Except for the paucity of illustrations, it is impossible to imagine the job's being more thoroughly done." Lincoln Kirstein

+ — New Repub 123:25 D 11 '50 50w

"The catalogue will be the devil's own advocate to plague the purveyors of spurious colonial portraiture, since this Foote is a ferrit with gimlet eyes and true Yankee caution." D. P.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 26 '50 300w

FOOTE, JOHN TAINTOR. Hoofbeats; the great horse stories of [the author; il. by Milton Weiler]. 243p $3 Appleton

50-7357

Thirteen short stories about racing and race horses. Includes the author's well-known The

FOOTE, J. T.—Continued
Look of Eagles. Some of the stories have not been published before in book form.

Booklist 46:287 My 15 '50

"Foote ranks with the best of living sports writers. . . Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:1190 Jl '50 30w

FOOTE, SHELBY. Follow me down. 271p $3 Dial press
50-8530

A middle-aged, religious Mississippi farmer, with an unfortunate background, ran off with a teen-aged girl leaving his wife and family. When his conscience got the better of him he murdered the girl and went home. Eventually he was arrested, and the story of his life and his trial, as related by eight people, makes up the novel.

"Shelby Foote brings nine points of view into play in 'Follow Me Down,' but they all reflect his own. Even unusual words and odd mannerisms of style are repeated by characters who have nothing else in common."
— Chicago Sun p5 Jl 18 '50 80w

"Presenting a story in such fashion calls for considerably more polish than Mr. Foote exhibits in 'Follow Me Down.' It is bogged down by repetition. . . But as a straight story it would have been first rate." R. L. Blakesley
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 2 '50 270w

"On the whole, Mr. Foote handles this complex structure quite adroitly, although he does have the irritating habit of reporting the same slight incident as seen through the eyes of first one and then another of his characters without ever differentiating enough between the accounts to justify the repetition." J. J. Maloney
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Jl 16 '50 1400w

"Very few young writers are able to write as sharply or as shrewdly as Shelby Foote. 'Follow Me Down' is this young ex-marine's second novel, yet it is written as confidently as if it were his twenty-second. In the face of these virtues, which are usually reserved for older writers, it is genuinely disappointing to have to say that Mr. Foote has written a false book. . . Despite his unusual gifts of construction and his stabbing use of language, or perhaps because of these, the author is more concerned with showing off his virtuosity than in using it to deepen or enrich his matter. In his too-deft hands murder, adultery, poverty and human wretchedness are exploited unjustly and almost cheaply." Seymour Krim
— + N Y Times p20 Jl 9 '50 180w

"Except for an occasional ascent into rhetoric, Mr. Foote's writing is marvellously exact and positive. His attitude toward his people is respectful and human, as though he had thought about them a great deal and knew too much about them ever to take them for granted."
+ — New Yorker 26:70 Jl 22 '50 140w

Reviewed by John Cournos
Sat R of Lit 33:31 S 2 '50 270w

"All that keeps him from writing a really first-class novel is an unfortunate tendency to borrow over-much from the verbal mannerisms of Neighbor William Faulkner. But there is nothing wrong with Novelist Foote that a little more literary independence cannot cure."
+ — Time 56:80 Jl 3 '50 600w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 40:192 autumn '50 70w

FORBES, KATHERINE RUSSELL. Thirsty lion; with pictures by Lisl Weil. 88p $2 Crowell 50-4466

The thirsty lion escaped from a zoo because he was so tired of being stared at by children with bottles of things to drink, which they never offered to share. Luckily he could talk, so when he took up residence in a little playhouse in the woods, the children who owned the playhouse were not frightened. In the end the thirsty lion had a new deal. For ages 6 to 10.

Booklist 47:65 O 1 '50

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p9 N 13 '50 60w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

Kirkus 18:330 Je 15 '50 150w

"Happy nonsense." M. J. Meade
+ Library J 75:1834 O 15 '50 80w

"This bit of nonsense is rather fragile as a story for a full-length book, and not very convincing to an adult; but I suspect children will love it, at about six to ten." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 24 '50 160w

"This is good nonsense, scaled to the humor and the imagination of young children. Lisl Weil's drawings make it even funnier, for these have the vitality and the humor of a good cartoon." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p30 S 17 '50 150w

FORBES, ROBERT JAMES. Man the maker; a history of technology and engineering. (Life of science lib) 355p il $4 Schuman
609 Technology—History. Engineering—History
50-13194

"This is, as far as is known, the first compact history of man's scientific progress written for the general reader, covering a span from the stone age through the jet plane and television." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"Although the book is ably and interestingly written and includes much factual detail, it may prove to be too objective and not sufficiently interpretive for the average reader. Because of the author's failure to synthesize the complex developments described, such a reader may be left with an assortment of interesting facts but only such conclusions as he can draw for himself. This is unfortunate in view of the applicability of such a study to international problems of present vital concern." Karl Willenbrock
+ — Christian Science Monitor p16 O 20 '50 480w

Kirkus 18:194 Mr 15 '50 180w

"This has two outstanding virtues: (1) it is short, and (2) fully half of the space is devoted to progress before 1750. On the debit side are the matter-of-fact style which results in the book seeming in many spots to be an outline for a larger book and the omission of too many names and inventions especially in the chapters dealing with modern times." R. R. Hawkins
+ — Library J 75:1301 Ag '50 130w

"The creative contribution of technology to the cycle of security and productivity emerges clearly from Mr. Forbes' narrative." Eliot Janeway
+ N Y Times p3 D 24 '50 800w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 S 24 '50 150w

School & Society 72:159 S 2 '50 40w

Special Libraries 41:330 N '50 70w

FORD, CHARLES HENRI. Sleep in a nest of flames [poems] with a foreword by Edith Sitwell. 64p $2.50 New directions 811
49-11841

"New collection of poems by Charles Henri Ford, which takes its title from Rimbaud." N Y Times

---

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun p5 F 13 '50 80w

"Mr. Ford's poems are puzzling and many of them are written as puzzles. Taste, wit, and cleverness they undoubtedly show, but they are also, for those who like that sort of thing, ingenious, somewhat precious, and obscure. Mr. Ford's highly figurative poetic diction can be best described in his own phrase as an 'algebra whose symbols cry havoc.'" Maurice Irvine

N Y Times p24 Ja 15 '50 230w

"Mr. Ford's originality is a trifle dulled by a crowd of precedessors in the Surrealist field, some of whom, notably Paul Eluard, he closely resembles. He neverthless has a distinct sense of humor, which is rare in this group, and at his best he can react with more than Surrealist directness to a concrete event, such as a lynching bee."
+ — New Yorker 26:106 Mr 11 '50 90w

"Mr. Ford seems a highly talented poet, but if his fight against the outworn conventions of verse means an easy surrender to outworn conventions of feeling, perhaps he ought to try another way." Howard Nemerov
Poetry 76:234 Jl '50 1000w

"Charles Henri Ford can be as precious as any of them and, since he is less inhibited, much sillier than most. But there is more blood in his veins, and when he discards the jeweled mask and puts off his tiresome air of 'the poet's je m'en fous,' he writes poetry. . . Mr. Ford is no Cummings, and the pose of the Wise Clown is more deadly even than that of the Costume Jeweler. The latter is prettily tedious but the former strikes at the spirit of today's art." Dudley Fitts
Sat R of Lit 33:16 Ja 14 '50 410w

Times [London] Lit Sup p166 Mr 17 '50 480w

FORD, COREY. How to guess your age; il. by Gluyas Williams; introd. by Edward Streeter. [47p] $1 Doubleday
817 Humor 50-7499

"A reprint in book form of a piece that appeared in Collier's several months ago, in which Mr. Ford lists some changes he's been noticing recently—in the size of print, for example, and the weight of snow—that may just possibly be symptoms of his own approaching middle age." New Yorker

Kirkus 18:225 Ap 1 '50 160w

Reviewed by Frank Sullivan
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 25 '50 1200w

"A cheerful treatment of an extremely depressing subject."
+ New Yorker 26:123 My 20 '50 100w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Jl '50

FORD, FORD MADOX, originally FORD MADOX HUEFFER. Parade's end; with an introd. by Robie Macauley. 836p $5 Knopf 50-9209

Four out-of-print novels brought together in one volume. They are: Some Do Not (1924); No More Parades (1925); A Man Could Stand Up (1926); and The Last Post (1928). "They concern the personal history of one man, and the social history of Tory England, in World War I and after." (Library J)

"Although it has dull stretches and is occasionally confusing in its abrupt changes of time and place, Parade's End has a driving power and a richness of content which are seldom encountered in the novels of today." C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 186:84 O '50 950w

Booklist 47:78 O 15 '50

Bookmark 10:32 N '50 40w

Reviewed by Fitzroy Davis
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 17 '50 600w

Kirkus 18:396 Jl 15 '50 190w

Reviewed by H. W. Hart
Library J 75:1406 S 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
Nation 171:369 O 21 '50 230w

"This novel, so curiously neglected for a quarter of a century, now emerges as one of the few real masterpieces of fiction that have been produced during our era. . . 'Parade's End' has an excellent introduction by Robie Macaulay, who was a student at Olivet College when Ford, the year before his death, was 'author in residence' on the campus." Lloyd Morris
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 1 '50 1350w

"It is easier now to read the Tietjens novels than when they were first written. It is becoming apparent that when he wrote them Ford was writing history, as any novelist is writing history when he records faithfully the happenings of his times. . . Ford was one of the most brilliant and faithful recorders of his time. . . It is easy to see why Ford's work was not popular in his own day, but it is hard to see why it has been neglected in our own, for he would seem, in these times, to have a special claim on our attention." Caroline Gordon
+ N Y Times p1 S 17 '50 2000w

Reviewed by Hamilton Basso
New Yorker 26:126 O 7 '50 1450w

"Ford Madox Ford was so magnificently able a novelist, so fine a technician and craftsman, that anyone with a serious interest in fiction cannot afford to miss him. . . Thousands of people, I believe, who are willing to absorb 'Parade's End' slowly, thinking about what Ford is saying and applying it to their own experience, will suddenly find that the world in which they have been living suddenly falls into a focus new for them, and will discover that he crystallizes for them much that they have hitherto perceived only dimly. You can hardly ask a novel, or a novelist, to do more than that." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 24 '50 1700w

Reviewed by James Gray
Sat R of Lit 33:16 O 21 '50 950w

Time 56:102 S 25 '50 1200w

"Parade's End is a book of great brilliance and very little charm. There are scenes—such as one at a breakfast party—as dazzling as anything in modern English fiction; but those winning aspects of the world which at the same time heighten the tragedy of man's aloneness and go far towards reconciling him to it find no place in the novel. There isn't, for instance, a single child or even a likeable dog in the whole 836 pages. And as long as human beings want to like life, charm will outlast brilliance in fiction." Paul Pickrel
+ — Yale R n s 40:189 autumn '50 1500w

FORD, TERENCE. He feeds the birds. 275p $3 Dial press
50-9210

New York city in 1939-1940 is the scene of this novel of life among the Bohemian set who drink, make love, wander aimlessly and only now and then find some satisfying employment. The chief characters are Rex Lannin and Ben Clarke who try to collaborate on a play without much success.

Chicago Sun p12 Ag 22 '50 80w

Reviewed by Fitzroy Davis
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ag 20 '50 500w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 O 22 '50 140w

"The author's cardinal failure is in characterization. He is under-sentimental. We never feel an internal difference between Rex and Ben. They are bright surfaces. The central pattern is therefore lost: the story lacks the directed energy necessary for a satire. And, by allowing his bifurcated central character to operate as a talking team, Mr. Ford loses the formal elegance of a good farce." M. M. Ahern
— + N Y Times p22 Ag 27 '50 360w

"This book has a curious ambivalence. It contains not a single likable or interesting character, yet Mr. Ford was interested enough to write some three hundred pages about them. But his intentions toward them waver. . . Mr. Ford's style is lively and frequently engaging. His settings and his memory of the period have an authentic ring. Unfortunately he has chosen to concern himself with characters of little interest and has neglected to have anything interesting happen to them." E. J. Fitzgerald

FORD, TERENCE—Continued
— + Sat R of Lit 33:35 S 9 '50 290w

FOREST, MRS ILSE. Early years at school; a textbook for students of early childhood education; with a foreword by William Heard Kilpatrick. 381p $3.75 McGraw 372 Kindergarten. Education, Elementary
49-50181

"The purpose of this book is to orient the student in the field of early childhood education. A brief survey designed to place present-day theory and practice in historic perspective is given in the two opening chapters; a third chapter is devoted to a description of child growth patterns in terms of which educational projects for the early childhood period are set up and administered. The rest of the book is devoted to the curriculum and the services not directly related to classroom teaching which the modern school offers young children." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"Early Years at School should prove useful, not only to teachers already in the field of early childhood education, but also to teacher-trainers who have been seeking an adequate textbook for use with their would-be nursery-school, kindergarten, and primary-grade teachers. It should also prove to be a fine book to put into the hands of elementary- and secondary-school teachers, particularly those in training, because it may help to underline the reasons why they need to understand the patterns of growth and development of early childhood even though their charges may be elementary-school, high-school, or even college students." John Withall
+ El School J 50:543 My '50 650w
School & Society 70:367 D 3 '49 50w

FORESTER, CECIL SCOTT. Mr. Midshipman Hornblower. 310p $3 Little 50-6407

A sixth Hornblower story (the first chronologically) which tells, in ten adventurous episodes, how this English fictional hero rose from midshipman to naval lieutenant.

"Enjoying as I have every episode in Lord Hornblower's career, I am now grateful to Mr. Forester for having turned the clock back to show us the gawky, spunky boy as he first went up the chains." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 185:78 My '50 300w
Booklist 46:247 Ap 1 '50
Bookmark 9:160 Ap '50 40w

"The fresh whiff of salt sea air and the stimulating tang of disciplined writing combine for the delight of the reader in this, the sixth of the Hornblower stories." Mary Sandrock
+ Cath World 171:231 Je '50 150w

Reviewed by Ney MacMinn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 26 '50 600w
Christian Science Monitor p4 Ap 8 '50 170w

"Not as vigorous story-telling as the other Hornblower yarns, but good reading for armchair naval strategists."
+ — Kirkus 18:2 Ja 1 '50 160w

"Good, quick action: lots of excitement. Hornblower addicts will not be disappointed." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:397 Mr 1 '50 110w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel
Manchester Guardian p4 Je 9 '50 50w
Reviewed by Alfred Stanford
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Mr 12 '50 500w
Reviewed by William McFee
N Y Times p28 Mr 12 '50 500w

"Hornblower, aged seventeen, is a human and appealing fellow, and Mr. Forester treats him with the humor and respect he deserves."
+ New Yorker 26:118 Mr 18 '50 60w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 17 '50 800w
Reviewed by Harrison Smith
Sat R of Lit 33:16 My 13 '50 500w

"Mr. Midshipman Hornblower is hung on a string of brave exploits, and for that reason is just a bit schoolboyish; Mr. Forester does not allow himself the imaginative elbow-room he used to excellent advantage in The Gun or The General. Still, the excitement and the peculiarly salt comedy are there. . . A rather hurriedly contrived ending barely rounds off a tale that is accomplished enough in the telling but that lacks ambition. Besides, there is no love interest, and I doubt whether in the ordinary way—there are exceptions, of course—an adult novel can do without it." R. D. Charques
+ — Spec 184:736 My 26 '50 360w

"A period of English naval history comes truly alive through these stories. They are authentic in feeling and sustained in tension; the historical novel is rarely so well served."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p321 My 26 '50 440w
Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Ap '50

FORESTER, CECIL SCOTT. Randall and the river of time. 341p $3 Little 50-10441

The first of a series of books about a young English inventor. While on leave during World war I Randall is trapped into marriage by an unscrupulous woman. When his wife's lover falls from a window and is killed Randall is accused of his murder. He is set free after the trial and the book ends with Randall deciding to go to America.

Booklist 47:115 N 15 '50
Reviewed by F. N. Litten
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 D 17 '50 650w
Christian Science Monitor p8 D 23 '50 240w
Kirkus 18:488 Ag 15 '50 170w
Reviewed by H. W. Hart
Library J 75:1824 O 15 '50 100w
Reviewed by Richard Bissell
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 5 '50 950w

" 'Randall and the River of Time' is additional proof that Forester is a first-class novelist." William McFee
+ N Y Times p6 O 29 '50 330w
New Yorker 26:130 O 28 '50 60w

"Those who know Forester's storytelling talent will find it turned to good account here, and if the novel is not a very profound affair, perhaps a good many will be just as glad. Certainly few writers could handle the twists and turns and tensions of a murder trial anything like as well as Forester does it." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 6 '50 750w

"It is a clear, direct, well-managed story, showing a young man's dilemma in the modern world. It is also a little slick. Mr. Forester is in charge; his skill and readiness are quite equal to all the changing overtones and tensions of Randall's experience in peace and war. If the characters were larger he might not manage so well." Walter Havighurst
Sat R of Lit 33:12 D 16 '50 500w
Springf'd Republican p3D N 19 '50 220w
Time 56:106 N 27 '50 350w

FORMAN, SIDNEY. West Point; a history of the United States military academy. 255p il $3.75 Columbia univ. press
355.07 U.S. Military academy, West Point
50-8255

A history of West Point: its first fortifications, its strategic value during the Revolution, and its transition from garrison to military academy. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:35 S 15 '50

"Fresh evaluation based on thorough research."
Bookmark 9:239 Jl '50 10w

"The subject-matter is certainly fascinating and often surprising. . . As the only history of the Point now current, the book forms a useful study in special education." Fletcher Pratt
+ N Y Times p18 Jl 9 '50 230w

"This brief history does little to bring out the glamour and interest of cadet life at West Point. . . The book is well printed, there are a number of good illustrations and a good index, but the bibliography is inadequate. Books and manuscripts cited in the text are not included, the most conspicuous omission being the papers of Gen. Joseph G. Swift, the first graduate, who did so much to keep the institution functioning in the face of much opposition and indifference." T. R. Hay
— + Sat R of Lit 33:31 S 16 '50 320w
School & Society 71:350 Je 3 '50 20w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:330 S '50 280w

FORSTER, ARNOLD. Measure of freedom; an Anti-defamation league report. 256p $2.50 Doubleday
296 U.S.—Race question. Jews in the U.S. 50-7254

"The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith prepares this report on anti-Semitism and other manifestations of prejudice in the U.S., particularly those involving violations of civil rights. Names persons and organizations who seek to foster racial and religious bigotry, and lays bare their activities. Discusses the Ku Klux Klan and its imitators, and some well-known and lesser-known agitators. . . Appendixes list persons and organizations with anti-Semitic records, and their publications." (Booklist) Index.

Reviewed by M. R. Davie
Am Soc R 15:697 O '50 280w

Reviewed by Robert Rockafellow
Ann Am Acad 272:225 N '50 470w
Booklist 46:282 My 15 '50
Chicago Sun p8 My 7 '50 40w

"It is impossible to endorse it too highly; read it and spread it abroad." J. H. Titus
+ Churchman 164:16 Je 1 '50 240w

"An objective presentation of some very disturbing material, this is for a professional rather than popular audience."
Kirkus 18:232 Ap 1 '50 170w

"It is to be regretted that this generally convincing thesis is often supported by admittedly selective and inconclusive data and by documentation of much that is already familiar." David Spitz
New Repub 122:19 Je 26 '50 320w

Reviewed by Margaret Evans
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Je 25 '50 550w

Reviewed by Carey McWilliams
N Y Times p19 Ag 20 '50 450w

"This hard-hitting, provocative and documented report of the Anti-Defamation League of Bnai Brith is written by the director of the Civil Rights Division of this national Jewish organization which promotes better human relations." I. B.
San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 7 '50 650w

" 'A Measure of Freedom' is a valuable survey. It is regrettable, however, that all the important organizations concerned with the fight for expanding civil rights—the NAACP, the ACLU, the American Jewish Congress, the American Jewish Committee, as well as the ADL—have not thus far found it possible to publish a single, comprehensive annual survey." M. R. Konvitz
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 S 30 '50 500w
School & Society 71:367 Je 10 '50 30w
Springf'd Republican p12C Je 11 '50 210w

Reviewed by Justine Turner
Survey 86:335 Je '50 350w
Wis Lib Bul 46:17 My '50

FOSBURGH, HUGH. The hunter. 233p $2.75 Scribner
50-5349

Character study of Monk Taylor whose feeling for the mountains, the wild animals, and his dogs were the biggest things in life to him. When a hunting trip nearly ended in tragedy for him he thought things would be different, and while recovering from his wounds he proposed to Marge. But with his returning health Monk changed again, and once more turned to his hunting.

Booklist 46:181; 200 F 1 '50; F 15 '50

"The prose is tough, hard-boiled and self-consciously intense about stressing the coarser animal bodily movements. Put this down as a miss."
— Cath World 171:74 Ap '50 250w
Chicago Sun p7 Mr 12 '50 160w

" 'The Hunter' is incidentally, almost a reading must for any real or dream hunter—a hunting man's book so vivid that it crackles like a shot re-echoing against deep canyon walls." Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 19 '50 650w
Kirkus 18:29 Ja 15 '50 180w

"When it is concerned with the forthright action of men or animals, 'The Hunter' is stimulating and very readable fare. But, as is true of many books by new writers who admire stripped and vigorous prose, this book has extended sequences of dialogue that seem to exist solely for their own sake. Although it is the style and not the subject matter that has been clipped and trimmed, it is a good bet that Mr. Fosburgh's main difficulties as a writer are those of inexperience. On the evidence of 'The Hunter' there is a good story teller here." Mark Saxton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 F 26 '50 600w

"A coldly brilliant short novel, 'The Hunter' is about a man in search of his soul. The brilliance, however, comes in flashes, and the one sustained quality is violence." Hal Borland
N Y Times p34 F 26 '50 230w
San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ap 23 '50 270w

"This, I believe, is a first novel, and one of the most interesting ones I've ever read. It has affinities with another first novel which never got its dues: Clyde Brion Davis's 'The Anointed' and, as far as I am concerned, that is praise enough." W. R. Burnett
+ Sat R of Lit 33:21 F 25 '50 500w

FOSS, MARTIN. Symbol and metaphor in human experience. 204p $3 Princeton univ. press
153.65 Symbolism 49-48743

"A dissertation on the meaning and interpretation of symbols, in their application to philosophy, the arts, law. Professor Foss (Haverford) also probes the area beyond sensationalism and rationalism, whether in myth or religion." Current Hist

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook
Current Hist 18:40 Ja '50 30w

"This book is not a contribution to technical philosophy. It is marred by historical inaccuracies, misleading, foolish statements, bad reasoning, and almost perversely obscure, unnecessarily high-flying abstractions. Although it is avowedly a philosophy of symbol and metaphor in the universe, life, and art, Cassirer and Peirce receive only passing nods, while Urban, Reid, Morris, and Langer are ignored entirely. As a sensitive and speculative sermon, on the other hand, the book is noteworthy. Its author is a deeply sincere and human person." D. N. Morgan
+ — Ethics 60:229 Ap '50 500w

FOSS, MARTIN—Continued
Reviewed by C. H. Hamburg
J Philos 47:720 N 23 '50 550w

"For large philosophy collections only." George Freedley
Library J 74:1910 D 15 '49 50w

FOSTER, MRS CONSTANCE (JACKSON). Story of money; il. by Crockett Johnson. 207p $2.50 McBride

332.4 Money—Juvenile literature 50-8006

"Published originally in 1943 under the title of This Rich World [Book Review Digest 1943] Brought up to date by the addition of five new chapters: Money museum, Famous money men, Post-war problems, Sick money, A peek into the future." (Booklist) Brief bibliography. No index.

Booklist 46:322 Je 15 '50

"A lucid, beautifully handled, and entertaining approach to some elements of economics."
+ Kirkus 18:278 My 15 '50 110w

"Packed with a mass of worthwhile and informational material . . . this zestful and entertaining book will prove popular with those of ten and up. In content, it is accurate and down to earth, yet challenging. . . Recommended for first purchase." Helen Swartz
+ Library J 75:1309 Ag '50 90w

FOSTER, MRS GENEVIEVE (STUMP). Abraham Lincoln; an initial biography. 111p il $2 Scribner

B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham—Juvenile literature 50-9340

An introductory biography of Abraham Lincoln, for grades four to six. Follows the pattern set in the author's George Washington (Book Review Digest 1949).

Booklist 47:47 S 15 '50
Bookmark 10:4 O '50 30w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 O 1 '50 150w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 30w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

"Although it can be read by fourth-graders, it is not written down to them, and because of its interesting text and lively pictures will appeal to older children too."
+ Horn Bk 26:379 S '50 40w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 26:457 N '50 90w

"A beautiful and simple biography."
+ Kirkus 18:516 S 1 '50 100w

"Very interesting and understanding story of the childhood and manhood of Lincoln." S. J. Robinson
+ Library J 75:1671 O 1 '50 50w

"The decorative pictures in two colors add to the appeal of a well conceived, distinguished little book."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 12 '50 230w

"The wide acclaim won by Genevieve Foster's Initial Biography, 'George Washington,' is further justified by the excellence of this volume on Lincoln. Here again is the prose style that makes easy reading for younger children, and the sense of humanity which reaches and satisfies older readers. Many a biography three times as long reveals less truth and understanding of Lincoln." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p13 S 3 '50 130w
New Yorker 26:188 D 2 '50 60w

FOSTER, JACKSON WALTER. Chemical activities of fungi. 648p il $9.50 Academic press

589.2 Fungi. Botanical chemistry 49-11323

"Deals not only with the biochemical processes of molds as these proceed under natural conditions but also with the manipulation and regulation of these processes in such ways that optimum amounts of desired chemical substances are produced under laboratory or factory conditions. Essentially, the book is a critical review of the published literature. It has been prepared chiefly for use as a textbook at the advanced undergraduate and graduate levels. . . The author is Professor of Bacteriology in the University of Texas." N Y New Tech Bks

"This book is highly recommended as a reference source as well as a text for the student in the field of mold metabolism." E. M. Weber
+ Chem & Eng N 28:1872 My 29 '50 360w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:91 N '49

"Ample background material throughout the book makes it an excellent text for students at the graduate level, and an authoritative reference work for all concerned with the chemistry of the fungi."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:100 Mr '50 240w

FOSTER, SAMUEL LYNDE. In the canyons of Yosemite national park of California. 121p il $3 Humphries

917.9447 Yosemite national park 50-6030

An account of the author's solitary camping trips in Yosemite national park, where he has tramped and explored many times.

"Books have been written about mountain tops—dozens of them—but this is one of the few written about the depths of canyons and the grandeur of mountains seen, in this sense, in reverse." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Jl 22 '50 120w

"A vivid and interesting account." Ethel Dexter
+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 26 '50 220w

FOSTER, WILLIAM ZEBULON. Twilight of world capitalism. 168p $1.50 Int. pubs.

335.4 Capitalism. Communism—History 49-9999

"This is an orthodox Stalinist survey of the political, social, and economic world as it appears to the current leader of the Communist Party in the United States, Mr. William Z. Foster." Ann Am Acad

"The book is not a contribution to our political thinking. It has no pretense to scholarly accuracy. It has no philosophic depth, no literary sparkle. But it is for the student of politics an interesting sample of the American Communist mind and line in mid-twentieth century." Crane Brinton
Ann Am Acad 268:227 Mr '50 290w
Foreign Affairs 29:147 O '50 10w

"I think it is fair to say that, as a diagnosis of social change, this book is nothing more than a new edition, with different title and author, of the standard Communist declaration of faith on the evils of capitalism and the inevitability of communism. It would be a wearying experience to force one's self to read it, were it not for the fact that it constitutes another historical document demonstrating the intellectual sterility of the Communist movement in the United States. As such, it has a certain fascination; one wonders if slogans adapted to the nineteenth century will continue to be used for the whole of the twentieth." C. E. Lindblom
— J Pol Econ 58:172 Ap '50 260w

FOX, MRS ANNETTE (BAKER). Freedom and welfare in the Caribbean; a colonial dilemma. 272p $3.50 Harcourt

972.9 Caribbean sea. Colonies 49-10764

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"The central theme which Mrs. Fox has developed, and which she uses to give the scheme of organization of the book, is the rich and rewarding one of the contradictions and coincidences between social, economic, and political development. . . In working out the elements which enter into this and related dilemmas, Mrs Fox has drawn upon a wealth of materials—indeed, not the least of the values of her book lies in her footnotes which bring together the mass of documentary and secondary literature available. The one critical comment which this reviewer feels called upon to make is that the book's scheme of organization inevitably fails to create a sense of the living existence, of the flesh and blood reality of any of the several colonies and peoples with which it deals." Rupert Emerson

+ — Am Pol Sci R 44:204 Mr '50 700w

Reviewed by M. W. Gordon
Am Soc R 15:315 Ap '50 450w

Reviewed by J. F. Rippy
Ann Am Acad 268:210 Mr '50 550w

Foreign Affairs 28:519 Ap '50 30w

Reviewed by Hubert Herring
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Jl 23 '50 500w

"This work is an important and timely contribution to the understanding of the problems of the Caribbean and a source of information for classes in international relations on the college level." O. C. Fish
+ Survey 86:215 Ap '50 390w

"Throughout the volume there runs a theme of overwhelming problems urgently demanding solution, a feeling that something far greater than anything yet undertaken must be done. Neither blueprint nor indictment, this survey is a challenging analysis of the Caribbean dilemma, one that measures theory against fact, experiment against performance, and aspiration against harsh reality."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:505 D '49 260w

FOX, CHARLES KIRBY. Advanced bait casting; il. by Fred Everett. 204p $3.75 Putnam

799.12 Fishing 50-6881

"'The game fish, [the author writes] have adjusted themselves to the interference of man. . . Gone are the days when indifferent methodical plugging (bait casting) produced.' His solution: midget lures, with light rod and line and a free running reel. The author, a onetime editor of The Pennsylvania Angler, makes a convincing case for this refined form of angling. . . Mr. Fox takes you to many of Pennsylvania's streams and lakes, lets you stand by as he converts anglers (including fly fishermen!) to the light-plug school, discusses tricks of casting, hooking and landing the catch and finally adds a clear voice to the urgent need for conservation." N Y Times

---

"This is the best looking and most down to earth book on bait casting that this writer has seen in many a moon. . . This is a Ph D. course in angling for the amateur or once a year fisherman who needs help." Bob Becker
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 7 '50 60w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '50

"An excellent book, with attractive drawings by Fred Everett. Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:779 My 1 '50 60w

Reviewed by Nate Aleskovsky
N Y Times p34 Ap 16 '50 170w

"An excellent book, with attractive draw-As he describes his equipment and his methods he uses personal reminiscence of particular days astream, and of particular large fish he has brought to net. But never does he talk down to less-skilled mortals. He gives the most illuminating advice and help in terms of campfire talk between men who all understand the things he understands." C. H. F.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 21 '50 500w

FOX, JAMES M., pseud. See Knipscheer, J. M. W.

FRANCE [brought up to date by Georges Monmarché, and others]. (Les guides bleus: English ser) 808p $6 Crown

914.4 France—Description and travel

"Guide to France. . . For each important city there is a nugget of history, a list of hotels, restaurants, and local specialties, and a handled tour through the town." (Sat R of Lit) "There's even a little language lesson, useful words and phrases to get by with in case you speak English only. There is hotel information, railroad data, descriptions of chief places of interest in whatever area a tourist might find himself." (San Francisco Chronicle)

Reviewed by Beach Conger
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 My 28 '50 30w

"A thoroughly edited job to be studied before one leaves on a short trip and to keep in hand while he's in the land described." W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 19 '50 50w

"Not a book to read for pleasure, this latest 'Guide Bleu' is the most up-to-date, most complete work on France in the encyclopedia-guidebook category." H. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 Mr 11 '50 130w

FRANCIS DE SALES, SAINT, bp. Introduction to the devout life; tr. and ed. by John K. Ryan. 256p $3 Harper

242 Devotional exercises 50-5298

"Francis de Sales (1567-1622) was Roman Catholic bishop of Geneva during the last 20 years of his life, and he was founder of the Order of the Visitation. Earlier he had specialized on the conversion of Protestants. His two great devotional works, the most popular of which is here given an excellent new English translation and an attractive printing, have been found serviceable in the cultivation of the devout life for more than three centuries." (Christian Century) Index.

"Some parts of the Introduction will appeal only to Roman Catholics, other parts will be but slightly edifying for persons whose minds are not set in 17th century molds, but there are extensive sections of permanent and general value."
+ Christian Century 67:499 Ap 19 '50 150w

"The editor of this volume tells us that an Anglican rector in 1701 prepared a 'special edition' of Francis' work 'that would not be offensive to Protestants.' Happily we have gone beyond such tactics. The devout Protestant will love this book for what it is. Two great Catholic saints bear the name of Francis, and both are worth knowing. . . The scholarly reader will be grateful for the editor's notes on the text." J. W. Brush
+ Crozer Q 27:189 Ap '50 310w

"This classic of devotional literature in this new edition will be welcomed not only by Catholics but by all who are interested in developing the life of prayer and then applying it to the problems of life."
+ Kirkus 18:53 F 1 '50 100w

FRANK, BERNARD, and NETBOY, ANTHONY. Water, land, and people. 331p il maps $4 Knopf

628.1 Water supply—U.S. Conservation of resources 50-10432

"'As we look back upon it, land mutilation is one of the greatest tragic facts in our history.' This sentence is the theme of this startling, dramatic and thought-provoking report on our fast-dwindling water resources, loss of irreplaceable topsoil by erosion, and the dire consequences we are sure to face unless more constructive steps along the lines of conservation in all its phases are undertaken at once." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"A sound and comprehensive study."
+ Commonweal 53:182 N 24 '50 30w

Kirkus 18:502 Ag 15 '50 150w

FRANK, BERNARD—Continued

Reviewed by L. R. Etzkorn
Library J 75:1654 O 1 '50 100w
Nation 171:537 D 9 '50 50w

"Clearly enough, an honest and competent account of the fundamental relationship of water, land, and people can be of tremendous use at this time. Bernard Frank and Anthony Netboy have given such an account." Paul Sears
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 N 19 '50 850w
San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 19 '50 400w

"An excellent stock-taking of past and present conservation practices, with sound ideas as to what we need to do to protect the future welfare of our country in so far as the use of our natural resources is concerned." Fairfield Osborn
+ Sat R of Lit 33:10 N 11 '50 410w
Wis Lib Bul 46:13 N '50

FRANK, EDGAR BLOCK. Old French ironwork; the craftsman and his art. 221p pl $6 Harvard univ. press

739.4 Iron work 50-9903

"Two years ago, Edgar Frank published in Paris his Petite Ferronerie Ancienne. The present volume using the same handsome plates, the same chapter headings, and practically the same bibliography is not a translation but rather a re-writing by the bi-lingual author. Using as examples items in his own collection which he acquired during forty years residence in France, Mr. Frank carries over to his readers the enchantment which he finds in keys and knockers, scissors, lecterns and figurines. There are anecdotes about guilds, craftsmen, and apprentices, and information about Gothic accomplishment and Renaissance elegance." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"Highly specialized and very scholarly."
+ Kirkus 18:505 Ag 15 '50 140w

"Recommended." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:2078 D 1 '50 140w

"A book that is both scholarly and utilitarian, for it should interest makers of hardware as well as students of the crafts. . . This is in no sense a definitive work, but it lavishly proffers the knowledge of a man who has devoted the spare time of a lifetime to the study of French ironwork and to the people and the conditions which produced it."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:45 N 4 '50 290w

FRANK, JEROME. Courts on trial; myth and reality in American justice. 441p $5 Princeton univ. press

347.9 Courts—U.S. Justice, Administration of 49-11391

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by K. C. Cole
Am Pol Sci R 44:201 Mr '50 700w

"Few judges are articulate, for all the opinions they write. Judge Frank is not only articulate but concerned, and he dignifies himself in showing how the profession can dignify itself by improving its means of inquiry. This should never be called reform: it is a worthy exercise in discovery and maturity, and a contribution to honest legal thinking." Curtis Bok
+ Ann Am Acad 268:219 Mr '50 360w

"Courts on Trial is in the Frank tradition; and it deserves to be regarded as a high point of that tradition. Would it had been the author's first book! For then its main theme could receive that quiet attention which it deserves unobfuscated by boisterous controversies still echoing from Law and the Modern Mind. This new contribution to contemporary juristic thought deserves to be freed once and for all from past encumbrances. . . I hope that this book will be assessed for its major import to the progress of justice under the common law, rather than provoke more empty echoes of somewhat stale and sterile controversies of the past." Julius Stone
+ Harvard Law R 63:1466 Je '50 3600w

"Despite misleading exaggerations there is much sanity and fruitful thought in this book. It is necessary to read and reflect on it as a whole, however, for particular statements, chapters, and, sometimes even, themes running throughout the book, have to be put against other materials in order to be seen for what they intend. Somewhere along the line Judge Frank discovered Aristotle. The effect has been very beneficial." E. N. Garlan
+ J Philos 47:707 N 23 '50 700w

"Bound to be a most influential book. Direct, clear, and frankly unafraid to use the 'I' instead of the assumed modesty of 'the writer,' Judge Frank is a reformer, one who 'will not take evil good naturedly.' " L. M. Brooks
+ Social Forces 28:458 My '50 330w

Reviewed by N. D. Palmer
Social Studies 41:331 N '50 250w

Reviewed by A. A. Berle
Survey 86:90 F '50 900w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:202 Je '50 240w

FRANK, MRS MARY (HUGHES), and FRANK, LAWRENCE KELSO. How to help your child in school. 368p $2.95 Viking

649.1 Parent and child. Child study. Home and school .. 50-14675

"The Franks explain each phase of a child's development from nursery school through elementary grades in an attempt to give practical, usable advice to parents. They interpret the school curriculum and aims for the parent and with painstaking carefulness describe how the child tries to fit in with both home and school situations." (Library J) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 47:1; 70 S 1 '50; O 15 '50
Bookmark 10:29 N '50 30w

"Two experts in family guidance, Mary and Lawrence K. Frank, have written a book both matter-of-fact and full of excellent matter. Designed specifically to help mothers and fathers, it will undoubtedly be of use to teachers as well." Ruth Johnstone
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 O 4 '50 420w
Kirkus 18:450 Ag 1 '50 150w

"Never has a book appeared with a more apt title—exactly descriptive of its contents. . . A detailed discussion which never bores, never 'bogs down' written with a directness and clarity which is a joy to read. Here is sound, authoritative information which every parent from PhDs to lesser lights, will read with profit. Highly recommended. Authors are well known in field of child guidance, especially parent-child relationships." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 75:1398 S 1 '50 140w
+ N Y Times p43 O 15 '50 470w

"This is a book of opinion about children based on experience as well as upon a vast knowledge of what is applicable in psychology and psychiatry to the growth patterns of young children. It is so simply written that the general run of reader can understand it and get the point—and there is always a point and usually a vital one. It is addressed to parents and its attitude is one of helpfulness rather than criticism." Caroline Pratt
+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 S 9 '50 600w
School & Society 72:254 O 14 '50 30w
Springf'd Republican p30A D 17 '50 210w

"Teachers will learn from this book by seeing 'their' children at home with their parents, as parents will learn by sharing the teachers' knowledge of many children's ways of growing and learning." L. P. Woodcock
+ Survey 86:520 N '50 300w

FRANK, PHILIPP. Relativity: a richer truth; foreword by Albert Einstein. 142p $2 Beacon press

530.1 Relativity (physics). Science—Philosophy 50-6084

"Object of this book, written by a scientist, is to interpret the real spirit of modern science; to clarify, in the spirit of integration, its relationship with objectives in the fields of philosophy, religion and ethics; and to refute the idea that science and the humanities are in conflict." (Library J) Reading list. Index.

Reviewed by Rubin Gotesky
Ann Am Acad 271:219 S '50 450w

"Philipp Frank, of Harvard University, a noted physical scientist and philosopher . . . successfully translates the technical jargon of both the physical scientist and the philosopher into a language readily understandable to those with no training in these fields." Karl Willenbrock
Christian Science Monitor p18 Mr 24 '50 480w

"This little volume is well worth reading by those who are interested in the moral, ethical, and political implications of modern science. To be fully understood it is quite unnecessary to be familiar with any aspect of modern science. The chapters are lucid, thoughtful, and not repetitious." Eugene Ayres
+ Crozer Q 27:375 O '50 300w

Reviewed by F. H. Heinemann
Hibbert J 48:396 Jl '50 60w

J Philos 47:666 N 9 '50 1000w

"A well written and scholarly book for those interested in philosophy, religion and science and their relationships."
+ Kirkus 17:646 D 1 '49 180w

"Book is brief but important, over-condensed in its presentation of a wide and difficult field, thus not easy to grasp completely except by those conversant with scientific and philosophical concepts and systems. Recommended." G. O. Kelley
+ Library J 75:493 Mr 15 '50 140w

"Dr. Frank's aim is constructive, his tone exemplary, his strategy excellent. His tactics, however, are not beyond improvement." T. V. S.
+ — N Y Times p37 O 8 '50 320w

FRANKEL, GODFREY. Bike-ways; introd. by Nathan E. Cohen. 224p il maps $2.50 Sterling pub. co, inc, 141 E. 44th st, N.Y. 17
796.6 Bicycles. Cycling 50-8424

A book for young people who employ a bicycle for recreational purposes. Contents: Bike-ways today; Lure of the open road; Hosteling; Bike camping; Tours and routes; Organizing a bike club; Rodeo games; The right bike for you; Selecting accessories; Tips on how to ride; Care and repair; Safety first; Long years ago; Appendix I—List of hostels in the United States; Appendix II—A Y H check list of equipment and clothing. Index.

Booklist 46:337 Jl 1 '50

"Practical and informative book for the bicycle enthusiast." M. A. Herr
+ Library J 75:1309 Ag '50 70w

School & Society 71:383 Je 17 '50 40w

Springf'd Republican p8D Je 18 '50 120w

FRANKEN, ROSE D. (LEWIN) (MRS WILLIAM BROWN MELONEY). From Claudia to David. 273p $2.75 Harper
50-5821

This is the sixth in the series of Claudia books. It describes the experiences of the family: David, Claudia, the three children, and the maid Bertha in a rented cottage in the Adirondacks, where David is recuperating from tuberculosis.

Booklist 46:233 Mr 15 '50

"The skillful concentration on the reactions of the central figure makes it appear almost as if Miss Franken had nothing to do with the book, that she simply put Claudia there and let Claudia experience and feel. The simple, straightforward, undistinguished prose adds to this effect." Clare Jaynes
+ Chicago Sun p6 F 22 '50 420w

"The saccharine character of the woman, the tremulous, sentimental standards by which she lives and the author's insistence that the reader be allowed to share every cloying emotion make the whole performance in dubious literary taste." Maureen Daly
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 19 '50 350w

Kirkus 17:676 D 15 '49 130w

"Claudia fans know how Miss Franken's characters will act in any given set of circumstances, but fresh sets of circumstances come naturally—and frequently—to this popular writer. But this time the formula is obvious, and the tug at the emotions seems a trifle calculated."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Mr 12 '50 110w

"The effectiveness of the Claudia books, I suspect, lies in the fact that Miss Franken tells the truth, or almost the truth, as far as she goes, but doesn't go too far. It is in her not going too far that the secret of her popularity probably lies. The novel is realistic enough to be convincing—and amusing and touching—but not disturbing." Granville Hicks
+ N Y Times p34 F 19 '50 550w

"Eleven-o'clock-in-a-busy-morning tears. If you cry, you'll be ashamed, but the chances are you can't hold out. Inevitably to be continued." C. M. Brown
— Sat R of Lit 33:28 Mr 18 '50 140w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p6C Ap 9 '50 210w

Wis Lib Bul 46:24 Mr '50

FRANKENBERG, LLOYD. Pleasure dome; on reading modern poetry. 372p $3.50 Houghton 811.09 American poetry. English poetry
49-50103

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"Lloyd Frankenberg offers us Pleasure Dome in the hope that it will 'provide a bridge to modern poetry for readers like himself brought up on prose.' I'm not too happy about the image of the bridge: one book is not going to provide the poetically benighted with a passage to the poetic paradise across the water. What Pleasure Dome does, rather, is to teach the benighted how to swim. The teaching is straightforward and pleasurable, and it deftly avoids the dangers that attend a venture of this kind: pomposity and condescension." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 185:80 Mr '50 850w

Bookmark 9:103 F '50 50w

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun p5 My 1 '50 190w

Cleveland Open Shelf p1 Ja '50

"Frankenberg has read his poets and the criticism around them. His essay on Eliot is unusually well marshaled; his appreciations of Cummings, Stevens, Marianne Moore sympathetic and alert. Even the shorter pieces on Pound, Williams and others are good examples of clear, deft analysis. If the explications (of 'Prufrock,' for instance) are not always dead-center, still the 'perception, precision, compression' with which he credits Elizabeth Bishop are his virtues also. It is only with what the book is not that we quarrel, for that unwritten volume is a most important one." M. L. Rosenthal
+ — New Repub 122:20 F 6 '50 430w

"The strength of Mr. Frankenberg's attack is in part a function of his enthusiasm, his obvious sincerity, his discrimination and his powers of explication; but it is also in the quality of the material—the poetry of the past thirty years now speaks for itself as impressively as that of any like period in our history. The weakness of the book is in its dual nature. On the one hand, Mr. Frankenberg is himself much too much of a Devotee to examine objectively any of the objections of the Philistines. . . On the other hand, he is too much of a critic to rest his case on the verse that requires no intellectual analysis." Selden Rodman
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 Ap 16 '50 800w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
New Yorker 26:161 N 4 '50 210w

FRANKENBERG, LLOYD—Continued

"It seems to me that anyone who reads and enjoys the poetry of any age should delight in this work. It stimulates one to read all of the poems which are sometimes, to our frustration, printed in excerpts. It is a pleasure to participate in the author's penetration of the works. But it is no beginner's book on how to read modern poetry. It does not give the vain reader easy clichés to toss about, for Mr. Frankenberg does not attempt to generalize the results of his examinations into pronouncements about the present tendencies of modern poetry. He has chosen examples for their originality." Gladys Campbell

+ Poetry 76:294 Ag '50 1150w

"Mr. Frankenberg takes these poets to pieces and puts them back together remarkably well. His limitation concerns values and frames for sometimes he will perform loving and astounding exegesis on poems not worth bothering with at all." T. H. Ferril

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 30 '50 150w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:12 Mr '50 280w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 Mr '50

FRANKL, LEE. Exterior-interior finish for the small house [by] Training-thru-sight associates: Lee Frankl [director]. 105p $2.95; to schools $2.20 Prentice-Hall

694 Carpentry. Building 50-7855

"Covers in pictures which are supplemented by a very concise text all of the carpentry operations in roofing and finishing a small house. Electrical wiring and plumbing are not covered." Library J

"The illustrations are exceptionally clear and the text is adequate." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:1193 Jl '50 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:50 Jl '50

FRANKL, LEE. Masonry house; step-by-step construction in tile and brick [produced through the efforts of Training-thru-sight associates, directed by the author] in cooperation with Structural clay products institute. 124p il $2.95 Duell

690 Masonry. Building 50-8592

"This book describes and illustrates the construction of a masonry house. Its main emphasis is on engineered construction methods and their coordination with modular materials. . . As in other books on home construction, 'Small House Carpentry: framing, sheathing, insulation,' and 'Exterior-Interior Finish for the Small House', this book deals with the specific problems encountered in building a particular house." Pref

Booklist 47:7 S 1 '50

"A very worthwhile book for beginners in building."

+ Library J 75:1193 Jl '50 80w

FRANKL, OSCAR BENJAMIN. Theodor Herzl, the Jew and the man; a portrait [tr. by Alexander Gode]. 190p $2.50 Storm

B or 92 Herzl, Theodor 50-195

"Not a conventional biography but an attempt to present, by dramatizing some outstanding episodes in his life, an intimate portrait of the father of modern Zionism. Against a background depicting the social and political conditions prevailing in Europe in the closing years of the past century—the period in which Herzl commenced his Zionist activities—Dr. Frankl presents, in quick succession, scenes showing the Zionist leader at the decisive moments of his career as a champion of Jewish nationalism." (Ann Am Acad) No index.

Reviewed by Carl Alpert

Am Hist R 55:876 Jl '50 170w

"Although Dr. Frankl—a onetime close associate of Herzl—is admittedly subjective and writes about his subject with the reverence of a worshipper, his sketches combine into a picture offering the reader a deep insight into the amazing personality and efforts of the man." Samuel Koenig

+ Ann Am Acad 269:199 My '50 460w

"An interesting but not important book." C. W. Roth

+ Library J 74:1817 D 1 '49 110w

Sat R of Lit 33:28 Ag 5 '50 320w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p6D Jl 16 '50 180w

FRANKLIN, BENJAMIN. Letters to the press, 1758-1775; collected and ed. by Verner W. Crane; pub. for the Inst. of early American history and culture at Williamsburg, Virginia. 308p $6 Univ. of N.C. press

973.311 U.S.—Politics and government—Revolution 50-8151

This collection of the political writings of Benjamin Franklin contains over a hundred and forty items, ranging in time from 1758 to 1775. Some ninety pieces were published over forty-two different signatures. "Mr. Crane has here studied in detail the eighteen years during which [Franklin] was the principal representative of the colonies in London and the steady supporter of their interests in resistance to what the Americans considered the encroachment of the royal government. It turns out that Franklin then wrote and printed much more than has been realized, in letters to the press which Mr. Crane has run down with patient skill and here shown to have been by the master of propaganda." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Index.

"The new pieces vary a great deal in length and importance. Had they been written by a lesser man in a less important cause, they would scarcely have been worthy of the exhaustive study which they have here received. Since they were written by Benjamin Franklin in the cause of the American colonies, they have been well worth the effort." E. S. Morgan

+ Am Hist R 56:114 O '50 750w

Reviewed by R. J. Graf

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 18 '50 550w

"The work is done with remarkable knowledge and accuracy, and this is a valuable addition to the Franklin canon."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Jl 2 '50 850w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich

Sat R of Lit 33:24 O 28 '50 240w

Springf'd Republican p5C My 28 '50 130w

"The editor has written an Introduction giving the background of the letters and Franklin's relation to the press of London. This is highly valuable as well as interesting. The book would attract most the specialist in American history, but also any person interested in the intellectual—or propaganda—aspect of American thinking in the early years."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:339 S '50 180w

FRANKLIN, BENJAMIN, and GREENE, MRS CATHARINE (RAY). Their correspondence, 1755-1790; ed. and annotated by William Greene Roelker. (Memoirs of the Am. philosophical soc.) 147p il $3 Am. philosophical soc.

B or 92 50-5650

"It begins when the lady concerned was 23, and Franklin was not much short of 50, and continues at intervals until 1789, the year before Franklin's death. By then the lady was a grandmother. The acquaintance began with a meeting in Boston and a drive in a carriage together to Newport. . . What is beyond dispute is that each made a conquest of the other's lasting friendship and loyal confidence." (N Y Times) "Franklin's letters to her have most of them been in print for a century or more, but almost none of hers to him. . . Now William Greene Roelker, one of her descendants, has edited [them] with related letters from other members of their families and profuse notes explaining the references to persons and places in the correspondence." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R)

Reviewed by G. H. Knoles
Am Hist R 56:115 O '50 470w

"A delightful record of a singularly warm and rich friendship. It was without doubt what is called 'innocent,' but it had a prevading and prevailing warmth which never failed either of them. This emerges in every line, with high spirits to lighten it."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 F 12 '50 460w

"A very cosy picture of the celebrated Dr. Franklin is presented in this correspondence. . . Letters back and forth between Franklin and his widowed sister, Jane, are here to round out the picture of a happy relationship, which reflects the intimate life of New England in the period that saw the birth of this republic. If there is an overload of genealogical detail, the editor must be forgiven. This, too, is part of the picture." H. I. Brock
+ N Y Times p30 F 19 '50 280w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:309 S '50 280w

FRANKLIN, GEORGE CORY. Wild animals of the Southwest; il. by L. D. Cram. 214p $2.50 Houghton

591.5 Animals, Legends and stories of 50-8849

Fifteen nature stories in each of which a wild animal of the Southwest is the central character. For grades five to eight.

Booklist 47:16 S 1 '50

"In spite of a tendency now and then to endow animals with human thought and reason, the stories are not sentimental, and they do show differences in temperament and ways of life, and so do have value." S. M. A.
+ — Horn Bk 26:376 S '50 70w
Kirkus 18:351 Jl 1 '50 110w

"This is a book certain to be a favorite with boys and girls who demand stories of the great out-of-doors." J. M. Smith
+ Library J 75:1516 S 15 '50 40w

"Boys and girls of around twelve who like stories of the West will find them an enjoyable variant of their horse and dog stories, and full of interesting facts. The illustrations are good." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 13 '50 110w

Reviewed by A. N. Fedder
N Y Times p42 N 5 '50 180w

"Mr. Franklin knows how to make the animals appealing and dramatic although he never gives them qualities that do not belong to them. This is natural history in dramatic form. Full-page illustrations in black and white and especially effective end-papers make the characters vivid and add to the value of the book."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:43 S 16 '50 70w

FRANKLIN, JAY, pseud. See Carter, J. F.

FRANTZ, ADOLF INGRAM. Half a hundred thralls to Faust; with a foreword by Carl F. Schreiber. 315p $4 Univ. of N.C. press

832.62 Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von—Faust 50-5078

"A study based on the British and the American translators of Goethe's Faust, 1823-1949." (Subtitle) Bibliographical notes. Index.

"It would seem at first glance that a book of this title could be nothing but dull, but it is quite the reverse—witty and urbane." J. W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Mr 19 '50 170w

"It is possible that Mr. Frantz, sometimes by choosing faulty passages to illustrate the kind of error made, and at others by choosing for commendation passages which do not commend themselves out of their context, has done scant justice to what he uncritically calls 'the imposing row' of translations. Unhappily, as he reads on, a critic feels less and less inclined to trust the judgment of the author in this highly delicate matter; for everything he says about Faust shows at the most conventional appreciation, marred at times by grave misinterpretations. If, however, the reader takes a lower line and merely seeks for information about names, personalities and dates, he will find them in this study; and evidently he would also find most of the texts in the William A. Speck collection of Goetheana at Yale University."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p535 Ag 25 '50 1500w

FREAR, DONALD ELISHA HARDING, ed. Agricultural chemistry; a reference text; v. 1, Principles of agricultural chemistry. 812p il $9 Van Nostrand

630.24 Agricultural chemistry (50-6567)

"In his preface to this first volume of a projected two-volume work, Dr. Frear, Professor of Agricultural and Biological Chemistry at Pennsylvania State College, says that his intention has been to collect an authoritative general reference text, written by men who are recognized specialists in their fields. The work is aimed at 'serious students of the subject'—graduate level students, specialists engaged in agricultural work, such as county agents, extention workers, and technical employees of firms dealing in agricultural chemicals, and, finally, research investigators who need information in fields bordering their own. The second volume is to be devoted to practical applications of the principles of agricultural chemistry." Chem Eng

Reviewed by H. A. Lepper
Chem & Eng N 28:2547 Jl 24 '50 350w

"While many of these chapters are beautifully lucid, some of the authors have not had the forbearance to write for the miscellaneous audience defined in the preface, but have essentially written review articles for scientists within their own clans. On the whole, the work is an excellent summary of the state of knowledge in its field as of late 1948." W. V. Van Arsdel
+ Chem Eng 57:304 Jl '50 550w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:365 S '50 320w

FREEDBERG, SYDNEY JOSEPH. Parmigiànino, his works in painting. 265p 167pl $12.50 Harvard univ. press

759.5 Mazzuoli, Francesco, called Parmigianino 50-8064

"The first part deals with the sixteenth-century artist's concepts of style; the second section is devoted to a discussion of the paintings with a postscript devoted to Parmigianino's place in sixteenth-century style. The third part of the book is a catalogue raisonné; bibliography, index, etc. Large number of plates in black and white. From Parma to Rome, to Bologna and back to Parma we go, absorbing some understanding of the trend to Mannerism as the High Renaissance expired." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 75:1295 Ag '50 140w

"Its publication is an event for public and scholar alike, for no book on Parmigianino has previously appeared in English, and neither of the two European works on this master was prepared with anything like the care, sensitivity and accurate discernment which Mr. Freedberg has lavished upon his beloved painter. . . The monumental size of Mr. Freedberg's task has not produced a dry book. All the detailed scholarship which will render the volume indispensable to any art library is relegated to a catalogue raisonné in order to clear the text for an introduction to Parmigianino's style and a splendid account of his development as an artist." Frederick Hartt
+ N Y Times p7 Jl 16 '50 650w

FREEDBERG, S. J.—Continued

"Dr. Freedberg's book is the first full-length study of Parmigianino in English, a work of careful, probing scholarship in which every known painting by the artist is analyzed and located within his career. . . The author's devoted scrutiny of the paintings and drawings, his mastery of the literature of his subject give us confidence in his conclusions about the problematic pictures. Yet we feel in reading this heavily written book that Dr. Freedberg has constrained himself too much, allowing too little place to his warmest impressions and reactions. As a critical study it lacks freshness and suffers from a certain narrowness and repetition, due mainly, I think, to the method." Meyer Schapiro

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:69 O 7 '50 900w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:270 S '50 260w

FREEDMAN, BENEDICT, and FREEDMAN, NANCY MARS. This and no more. 406p $3.50 Harper

50-2686

Character study of Lucien Sadler from the age of twelve when he nearly died of rheumatic fever, to the death of his wife some years later.

Booklist 46:303 Je 1 '50

"A tedious, pompously pathetic novel told in maudlin prose." Mary Sandrock

— Cath World 171:314 Jl '50 160w

Reviewed by August Derleth

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 30 '50 330w

Christian Science Monitor p8 My 13 '50 270w

Kirkus 18:75 F 1 '50 200w

"It would be interesting to have—in one short paragraph of unclouded prose—a précis of 'This And No More' from the authors. They might find it difficult, but the reader—conscientious but confused—would really like to know what they meant to convey."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 My 21 '50 330w

"Bloated, exasperating, corny, interminable tear-jerker." John Brooks

— N Y Times p4 Ap 16 '50 460w

"A long, maudlin, and ferociously pretentious book."

— New Yorker 26:121 Ap 22 '50 70w

"One might quarrel with the motivations in the book at several points, and with the morbid concern the authors show with the details of the mental and physical illnesses in the book. But the story is direct and full of interest and will have a great appeal for the reader who likes detailed analysis of the development of character." C. N. Govan

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:28 My 13 '50 400w

FREEDMAN, EDWARD H. Conversational drawing. 159p $2.50 Farrar, Straus

741.4 Drawing—Instruction 49-11599

"The author uses art as a means of communication when words fail. He feels that a working vocabulary of pencilled ovals and rectangles with some connecting lines and plenty of practise makes it possible for anyone to express himself graphically. Book is ingeniously devised and leads any reader to the scribble and it can make him draw." Library J

Booklist 46:119 D 1 '49

"Recommended for public and librarians." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 75:174 F 1 '50 80w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Mr '50

FREEDMAN, PAUL. Principles of scientific research. 222p $3.25 Public affairs press

507.2 Scientific research 50-9119

"This book is not a scholarly treatise on the methodology and foundations of scientific research; rather it is an attempt to describe the field of scientific research to the young men and women contemplating it as a profession. Mr. Freedman—who draws upon long experience in industrial research—confines himself to the discussion of the physical and biological sciences; he is not here concerned with the social sciences." Christian Science Monitor

Reviewed by Karl Willenbrock

Christian Science Monitor p6 Ag 26 '50 650w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown

Library J 75:1398 S 1 '50 140w

"The most penetrating and also most moving representation of the young scientist's struggles has come from novelists, like Sinclair Lewis, C. P. Snow, and Neville Shute. Mr. Freedman too comes nearest to the truth when he renders with feeling and imagination the experiences of his own life. . . He has a wide knowledge of the problems troubling workers in research laboratories and can bring such situations alive in his pages. But his attempts at codifying the procedure of discovery which occupy much of his book are of less value." Michael Polanyi

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 9 '49 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p467 Jl 22 '49 650w

FREEMAN, FRANK SAMUEL. Theory and practice of psychological testing. 518p il $3.50 Holt

151.2 Character tests. Mental tests 50-6300

"Presents a comprehensive description of psychological tests and explains the theoretical principles upon which they are based. The author covers all types of psychological tests, grouping them so that they may prove most useful to those interested in particular types or levels. To show the developmental stages of certain tests, both older and newer tests are included. A special feature of the book is its extensive treatment—descriptive, evaluative, critical—of personality inventories and of projective methods, especially in dealing with the Rorschach Test, the Thematic Apperception Tests and situational tests for evaluating personality." (Management R) Index.

Management R 39:504 Ag '50 100w

+ School & Society 71:158 Mr 11 '50 40w

FREEMAN, GRAYDON LAVERNE, and TAYLOR, ERWIN K. How to pick leaders; a scientific approach to executive selection [pub] in assn. with Modern industry magazine. 226p $3.50 Funk

658.3124 Leadership. Executives 50-7668

"Recent research in the effectiveness of various testing and interviewing techniques is evaluated in this guide to selecting men for executive jobs. As a summary of principles and a scientific approach to the subject, the book is of value for both employer and employee but the whole course of procedure outlined may be too elaborate for many organizations." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:329 Jl 1 '50

Reviewed by Winifred Baum

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 23 '50 40w

FREEMAN, KATHLEEN. Greek city-states. 274p maps $3.75 Norton

938 Greece—History. Greece—Politics and government 50-10299

Studies of nine of the Greek city states. In each case the author, drawing on the evidence of ancient literature, coins, archeology, and inscriptions, attempts to reconstruct the course of the city's history. Athens and Sparta are omitted as too well known. A final chapter suggests the lesson for the modern world implied in the history of these communities.

"Their stories are well and simply told and their great men come to life in their particular geographical and historical setting." T. B. L. W.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 F 28 '50 170w

"Miss Freeman writes deftly, making excellent use of anecdote, quotation, and precise detail; her scholarship is expert and unobtrusive, her apprehension of the ancient world realistic and sympathetic with no touch of the sentimental." George Genzmer
+ Nation 171:534 D 9 '50 800w

"Miss Freeman, with her scholarship and enthusiasm, should be an illuminating guide. I hate to say that she isn't because this book is so respectable, so remote from shoddiness or vulgarity of any sort; besides, you all the time feel that she's trying to set her own imagination free. . . How much more force this point would have had if Miss Freeman, in her accounts of the states, had been able to disengage her own imagination! The shackles of scholarship tether her. She never gets off the ground. She's defeated by the facts." Giles Romilly
New Statesman & Nation 39:379 Ap 1 '50 850w

Reviewed by J. H. Randall
+ N Y Times p6 D 17 '50 950w

"In her lucid discussion of the city-states, which is perfectly understandable to the general reader, Dr. Freeman presents a vivid picture of a civilization which, because of its weaknesses, perished, and which can yet teach the modern world something of its strength and truths if only we take time to study the glory of its ruins." A. B. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p8 N 26 '50 170w

"If the book does not quite come off, if it cannot be described as a series of delightful vignettes, it does nevertheless make pleasant and interesting reading." C. A. Robinson
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:18 D 9 '50 650w

"Dr. Freeman has turned to account for the general reading public her scholarly and enthusiastic acquaintance with the world of ancient Greece; she has put together a very readable book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p294 My 12 '50 700w

FRENCH, JOSEPH MILTON. Life records of John Milton. 4v v 1 446p $5 Rutgers univ. press

B or 92 Milton, John (50-5106)

"In this first of four projected volumes Professor French establishes the scope and scale of his truly monumental study of Milton's life. His intention clearly is to omit no fact either direct or tangential in its importance. Volume I, dealing with childhood, which offers fewest facts suitable for chronicle, and youth, covers thirty of Milton's sixty-four years. . . He does not present a biography in narrative. Instead he records, year by year, month by month, day by day, every known fact, and all the significant conjectures, of Milton's life history." Nation

---

"Professor French has narrowly circumscribed the circle of his endeavor. His appeal is limited to those who wish a friendly and comprehensive guide to research in the records of John Milton's life. Nevertheless, so completely has he filled with facts his circle, using industry, intelligence, and a nice skill in translation, that he places future biographers under heavy obligation." D. N. Raymond
+ Am Hist R 55:970 Jl '50 400w

"Such thoroughness of treatment suggests a late repetition of David Masson's classic work. But Professor French has written a very different and in many ways a much more usable book. . . Each entry is thoroughly documented from both primary sources and trustworthy secondary ones. The reader has before him, therefore, not only the facts themselves but also the evidence which justifies their acceptance." D. A. Roberts
+ Nation 171:132 Ag 5 '50 650w

"The truth is that Dr. French has attempted too much. For the student of Milton's poetry the half of his book (or even more) has no relevance. He has brought to his undertaking industry beyond measure, and to some parts of it learning. Some of the documents which he uses have not been used before. They have their proper place somewhere. But placed where they are they obscure what they should illustrate, Milton the man and poet. . . His Latin scholarship also must be pronounced defective. Many, perhaps most, of the Latin documents which he transcribes are rendered almost unintelligible by his treatment of the abbreviations and contradictions which abound in the originals."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup 232 Ap 14 '50 1200w

FREUD, SIGMUND. Question of lay analysis; an introduction to psychoanalysis; tr. by Nancy Procter-Gregg; with foreword by Ernest Jones. Am ed 125p $2.50 Norton

131.34 Psychoanalysis 50-5506

An introduction "to the main discoveries of psychoanalysis, as well as an account of its use as a therapeutic method." Its main argument is whether the practice of psychoanalysis should be reserved for medical practitioners alone. The work has been unobtainable in English for many years. No index.

New Repub 123:21 Jl 24 '50 450w

"It is welcome news that this short work of Freud's unavailable in English for many years, is published again. It is perhaps the most brilliant short exposition of the principles of psychoanalysis. Its publication is particularly timely because the question of lay analysis has become a widely discussed topic in recent years." Erich Fromm
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 25 '50 950w

"The book is written in his excellent style and with his perfect literary expression—which in so many American translations has been so obscured." Frederic Wertham
+ N Y Times p32 Mr 19 '50 750w

FREUDENTHAL, ALFRED M. Inelastic behavior of engineering materials and structures. 587p il $7.50 Wiley

620.1 Building materials. Strength of materials. Mechanics, Applied 50-8870

"Essentially this is an advanced book on strength of materials for engineers concerned primarily with machine design. It begins where the customary undergraduate study leaves off and deals with the behavior of materials beyond the elastic range. Such topics as plastic flow, creep, fracture, and work-hardening are discussed. The material has special application to the design of light-weight, high-speed machinery of which turbine rotors are an example." (Library J) Indexes.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1301 Ag '50 70w

"A contribution of considerable importance to the understanding of the behavior of engineering materials when they are strained beyond the elastic limit."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:75 S '50

FREUND, PAUL ABRAHAM. On understanding the Supreme court. 130p $3 Little

347.99 U.S. Supreme court 49-49565

"A collection of three essays derived from a series of lectures given by Professor Freund last year at Northwestern University under the auspices of the Julius Rosenthal Foundation. In his first essay Professor Freund points up the major themes on which the present Supreme Court is in basic agreement, and explains the chief issues which divide its members. . . In his second chapter, Professor Freund redefines liberalism for the legal profession through an examination of the judicial qualities and temperament of his own mentor, Mr. Justice Brandeis. . . The third essay deals with the effect on constitutional doctrine of all the activities which take place prior to the day on which the high court meets to make its decision." (Christian Science Monitor) Index.

Reviewed by A. T. Mason
Am Pol Sci R 44:494 Je '50 600w

FREUND, P. A.—Continued
"Intellectual vigor and graceful style are primary traits in the legal writings of Paul A. Freund. These qualities may now be observed in 'On Understanding the Supreme Court.' . . Although this collection will be of interest to everyone in the field of law and government, it will be even more highly valued by the author's former students. To them its wit and clarity will serve as a continuing reminder of Freund's classroom technique." Covington Hardee
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ja 12 '50 550w

Current Hist 18:355 Je '50 30w

"I have said it is a pleasure and a profitable experience to read Professor Freund's book. I want to reiterate that statement. It exhibits a clarity of thought and analysis and a cool approach to the questions treated. It is couched in superior English. The expression is at once terse, clear, and elegant. Altogether it is a rare performance." O. J. Roberts
+ Harvard Law R 63:1080 Ap '50 1050w

"Professor Freund writes with deceptive ease and clarity; the layman can follow easily, probably unaware of the precision and power of the analysis behind the fluent and witty generalizations. The first lecture particularly should make it clear even to the superficial reader that the task of the Supreme Court is one of great complexity." J. D. Hyman
+ New Repub 121:18 D 26 '49 200w

"Three unusually wise and sensitively written essays." Jerome Frank
+ N Y Times p4 F 12 '50 800w

"The book, is on the whole, a clearly expressed and eminently readable appraisal of factors at work in the judicial process. It will be of deep interest to those in the field, and should appeal also to a wider audience." V. M. Barnett
+ Pol Sci Q 65:465 S '50 750w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:202 Je '50 260w

FREY, CHARLES F. (FERGUSON FINDLEY, pseud). My old man's badge. 216p $2.50 Duell 50-5051

Detective story.

"The undercover tactics are often more theatrical than likely and the propulsion, while vigorous is chancy. But you'll probably read it from beginning to end." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p6S Ja 13 '50 100w

"Quick thinking, quick talking—snappy yarning."
+ Kirkus 17:614 N 1 '49 60w

"A good, tough cops-and-robbers story. . . Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 74:1818 D 1 '49 90w

"Mr. Findley writes with real pace, but the most notable thing about his book is its seemingly authoritative account of the New York police force and how it works."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 22 '50 150w

"Fortunately, though Mr. Findley has carefully injected the prescribed doses of sex and sadism, his book is too drably deficient in style and vigor to make much impression on the bloodthirsty audience at which he aims. The result is merely a farrago of weak motivation, wild coincidence, and misplaced sentimentality." A. B.
— N Y Times p16 Ja 8 '50 180w

Reviewed by John Garrett
Spec 184:406 O 20 '50 200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p593 S 22 '50 150w

FRIEDLANDER, MAX J. Landscape, portrait, still-life; their origin and development [tr. from the German original by R. F. C. Hull]. 288p 41pl $6 Philosophical lib.

758.1 Landscape painting. Still life painting. Portrait painting 49-50136

"Max J. Friedländer, who is perhaps the outstanding authority in the world on Flemish and Dutch painting" (Nation) discusses the origin and development of landscape and genre painting, with less space given to portrait, still-life, and religious art. Index.

"Professor Friedländer brings a sophisticated awareness of philosophical, political, and social factors to bear on his more or less popular account of the origins and development of the various subject classes of Western painting. His book will be useful to those who have no previous acquaintance with the history of the things it deals with. It is also interesting because it orients the perspective of European art on the Flemish, Dutch, and Germans rather than the Italians and French. And once in a while it offers some new information or a telling reformulation of something we already know. . . But on the whole this book remains . . . for all its pseudo-pregnancy, as one more example of the pedestrianism endemic to art writing. Professor Friedländer has written much better elsewhere." Clement Greenberg
+ — Nation 170:381 Ap 22 '50 650w

"Dr. Friedländer has taken the broadly historical view of his subjects, but his range of allusion in art is not very wide. To write what is intended to be an inquiry into the origin and development of landscape painting must surely entail a discussion of Italian and French paintings, and some references to the actual origins of landscape painting; but Dr. Friedländer hardly moves out of the Netherlands and Germany. . . The translation is no more than adequate, with its mis-spellings and occasional clumsiness, and if a reader lays down the book with a certain dissatisfaction that may be due to the lack of life in the prose style. The illustrations are good and well-chosen."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p4 Ja 6 '50 1000w

FRIEDMAN, FRIEDA. Carol from the country; il. by Mary Barton. 191p $2 Morrow 50-4654

The story of a sensitive eleven-year-old girl who is a member of a country family obliged to move to the city and live in a tenement. Carol does not adjust as well as her brother and sister, but she eventually learns to enjoy city life. For grades four to six.

Booklist 47:47 S 15 '50

Bookmark 10:11 O '50 40w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 O 22 '50 90w

Horn Bk 26:372 S '50 70w

"Again as in the other books, the city children are the prototypes of a sociologist's dream—socially conscious, eager to group and unreservedly cordial to strangers. However, in spite of this artificial touch, the background is real and appealing, and Carol's change of heart can be easily accepted."
+ — Kirkus 18:353 Jl 1 '50 200w

"Recommended." Juanita Walker
+ Library J 75:1514 S 15 '50 80w

"This is the sort of big type, easy-reading, everyday story that one hopes will reach the little girls who need it to encourage them to be more democratic and friendly, wherever they happen to live." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 O 29 '50 230w

"This exceedingly well worked out story has sound characterization and development." Phyllis Fenner
+ N Y Times p26 D 10 '50 180w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor
San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 12 '50 120w

"As in her 'Sundae for Judy,' Miss Friedman gives a picture of a friendly neighborhood in the heart of New York which is as well integrated in its life as a small town, but more interesting in its variety of people. Her portrayal of the difficult adjustment of a sensitive twelve-year-old girl is sympathetic and realistic." R. H. V.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:48 N 11 '50 240w

Wis Lib Bul 46:27 S '50

FRIEDMANN, RUDOLPH. Kierkegaard. (Direction ser) 68p $1.50 New directions

B or 92 Kierkegaard, Søren Aabye [49-29091]

A Freudian interpretation of the nineteenth century Danish philosopher. The author is a British critic and psychoanalyst. Glossary. Chronological table.

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Ap 23 '50 80w

"To Mr. Friedmann Kierkegaard is a 'schizothymic genius,' a 'strange, Gothic, phallic figure.'. . Other Freudian themes are pursued as vigorously; and, in less than seventy pages, Kierkegaard is firmly shaped to Mr. Friedmann's template. The analysis is followed by a glossary and chronological table, which will help the reader through the undergrowth." N. K. B.
N Y Times p43 Mr 19 '50 200w

"Such extreme type-psychology narrows the author's point of view in a study already too parochial for any but the most devoted Kierkegaard follower." A. B. T.
— San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ap 9 '50 60w

FRIENDLICH, DICK. Pivot man. 192p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.

49-10823

"Vard Ransom transfers to little Castlemont College from a large western school where he played hard-driving, competitive basketball. Touchy and proud, he gets into trouble his first day. He finally wins acceptance from his teammates, however, and learns to play basketball the Castlemont way." Library J

Booklist 46:84 N 1 '49

"Good basketball story for older boys (college level) this combines technical detail about the game with a fast moving story."
+ Kirkus 17:514 S 15 '49 120w

"Story has suspense; style and dialogue are satisfactory and the situations not too contrived. Will serve to meet the demand for new basketball stories." Lillian Morrison
Library J 75:501 Mr 15 '50 80w

FRIENDLICH, DICK. Warrior forward. 190p $2.50 Westminster press

50-9211

"Story of a boy who took his excellence in sports as a matter of course and never really exerted himself. College basketball nearly proved his undoing, until he learned team play and good sportsmanship." Library J

Booklist 47:159 D 15 '50

"Good basketball with a new twist."
+ Kirkus 18:471 Ag 15 '50 100w

"Good college atmosphere and good basketball. Recommended for children's rooms." M. D. Read
+ Library J 75:1417 S 1 '50 60w

"Not notable writing, but the sound knowledge of basketball tactics and the emphasis upon good sportsmanship give this appeal and merit." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 22 '50 100w

Reviewed by W. R. White
San Francisco Chronicle p5 N 12 '50 100w

"A fast and exciting basketball story." R. A. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 33:61 N 11 '50 60w

FRIENDS, SOCIETY OF. American Friends service committee. United States and the Soviet Union; a report prepared for the Committee. 39p $1; pa 25c Yale univ. press

327.73 Peace. U.S.—Foreign relations—Russia. Russia—Foreign relations—U.S. 49-49323

"'Some Quaker proposals for peace' clearly presenting basic considerations and making specific recommendations." Wis Lib Bul

"A masterfully condensed analysis of the basic conflict of our day and a set of recommendations aiming at the relaxation of tension." N. S. Timasheff
+ Commonweal 51:397 Ja 13 '50 450w

"This dispassionately surveys the basic elements of difference between the U. S. and the Soviet Union in the urgent necessity of the war versus peace crisis. It has a heartening, calm, almost spiritual quality."
+ Kirkus 17:645 N 15 '49 260w

"The argument of 'The United States and the Soviet Union' is simple and appealing." A. M. Schlesinger, Jr.
+ N Y Times p3 N 27 '49 800w

Reviewed by August Heckscher
Sat R of Lit 33:12 F 18 '50 600w

"This noble, highminded pronouncement was preeminently worth presenting. The extent to which it is practical politics in the foreseeable future is a question upon which we have a right to further answer from our political leaders." Ordway Tead
+ Survey 86:90 F '50 650w
Wis Lib Bul 46:13 Ja '50

FRIIS, HENNING KRISTIAN, ed. Scandinavia between East and West. 388p $4.50 Cornell univ. press

914.8 Scandinavia—Politics. Scandinavia—Social conditions. Scandinavia—Economic conditions 50-8531

"A compilation of a series of lectures delivered by Scandinavian and American scholars at the New School for Social Research. It deals with Denmark, Norway, and Sweden and includes comprehensive discussions of the economic, political, and social characteristics of these nations. Particular attention is paid to economic planning and social welfare in the Scandinavian countries." (Current Hist) Selected bibliography. Index.

"The book is pleasantly free from the sort of romanticism that meets one in certain eulogistic reports of the so-called 'middle way' states. It is direct, honest, informative—occasionally throwing facts and figures at the reader too furiously for comfort. It is earnestly recommended as a notable contribution to our knowledge of Scandinavia, which is altogether too sparse. A true evaluation of the significance of these experiments in democratic collectivization is still to be made." Ake Sandler
+ Am Pol Sci R 44:1051 D '50 300w

Reviewed by Ruth Riemer
Am Soc R 15:697 O '50 250w

Reviewed by Sverre Kjeldstadli
Ann Am Acad 272:291 N '50 410w
Current Hist 19:165 S '50 50w
Foreign Affairs 29:153 O '50 10w

"Friis's is indeed an important book. . . Bryn Hovde concludes this book with an admirable summary of American-Scandinavian relations. Even more important than the testimony of the experts are the revelations of the pertinent statistics in the appendix, from which the reader may draw his own conclusions, which may differ from the judgment of the authorities." H. G. Leach
+ Sat R of Lit 33:30 Ag 12 '50 650w

FRISCH, WILHELMINE. Storks of Lillegaard; il. by Anne Marie Jauss. 231p $2.50 Bobbs

Children in Denmark 50-9951

Life on a farm in southern Jutland is the background of this story for children of nine to eleven. Nels boasts that he will put a silver band on the leg of a young stork nesting on the roof of his home, and then runs into difficulty making good.

FRISCH, WILHELMINE—Continued

Booklist 47:141 D 1 '50

"An attractive and unusual choice for 10 and 11 years olds."
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 D 16 '50 100w

"Occasionally the characters, speaking of the habits of storks or the customs of the country, talk as if they were reading from an encyclopedia; but on the whole this is a fresh and interesting story, well worth adding to our collection of 'stories of other lands.' "
+ — Horn Bk 26:473 N '50 120w

"It is good to find a book about a foreign country so completely authentic. Children will probably like this story, but it ought to be of interest, also, in a classroom where Denmark is being studied." Inger Boye
+ Library J 75:2016 N 15 '50 90w

"[The story] is stronger in its pleasant picture of a year's cycle of every-day living and customs than in its characterization; but there is integrity, if not literary skill, in this story for boys and girls of nine to twelve, or thereabouts." Siri Andrews
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 12 '50 100w

FRISCHAUER, PAUL. So great a queen; the story of Esther, queen of Persia. 356p $3 Scribner

Esther, queen of Persia—Fiction 50-9696

A novel based on the life of Esther, the Hebrew maiden, who became Queen of Persia.

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 8 '50 450w

Kirkus 18:432 Ag 1 '50 210w

"Dull and heavy, perked up with spicy bits about the sex customs of the natives and Arabian Nights like glimpses of the harems. Of doubtful value for public libraries." M. H. Zipprich
Library J 75:1406 S 1 '50 50w

"It is an unhappy task to report that Mr. Frischauer has not succeeded in moulding this material into an exciting novel; it is difficult to go along with him as he recites the details he has imagined or conjectured for the heroic historical adventure in which a beautiful Jewish queen saved her people from massacre through the skillful use of her beauty and intelligence. The simple reason for this is that Mr. Frischauer fails to make his characters come alive." Thomas Sugrue
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 S 24 '50 430w

"Mr. Frischauer's portraits of the main characters are effective. Haman the rabble rouser, Mordecai with his faith in an unseen God, Ahasuerus indulging himself with the prerogatives due to kings—these are convincing and memorable. Esther is less so, perhaps because we lose sight of her in the second half of the book, where the story bogs down as Mr. Frischauer describes the involvement of the neighboring nations in the conspiracy against the King of Kings." Bradford Smith
Sat R of Lit 33:43 O 21 '50 650w

FRISKEY, MRS MARGARET (RICHARDS). Shoe for my pony; pictures by Jean Edgerton. [25p] $1 Children's press

50-7764

Picture book showing the feet of various animals and how they are used. The text is partly in rhyme; and the book can be used with first and second grades.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p12 Ag 15 '50 20w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 13 '50 60w

"Mrs. Friskey again charms beginners with a text they can read and a subject they can understand." E. E. Beatty
+ Library J 75:986 Je 1 '50 70w

"A most attractive book, with fine color printing, and a text I would judge very useful for a 'pre-primer.' It is a charming addition to nursery age picture books." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 23 '50 40w

FRISON-ROCHE, ROGER. First on the rope; tr. by Janet Adam Smith. 246p $2.75 Prentice-Hall

50-14405

Story of a young Swiss who has an accident while on a rescue trip in the Alps. He loses his nerve and thereafter suffers from vertigo when climbing. Unwilling to give up his lifetime ambition to become a guide he makes a strenuous effort and with a friend achieves the summit that was his goal.

Booklist 47:96 N 1 '50

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p18 D 1 '50 240w

"The writing is crystal-clear, sharp, dramatic." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 26:501 N '50 80w

"A magnificent, heart-reaching book." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:1660 O 1 '50 130w

"This is exactly the kind of novel one would expect a Chamonix guide to write—blunt in style and treatment, unevenly paced, about mountain climbing, of course, and authentic down to the last piton, the last, breath-taking moment before the summit." Patricia Highsmith
+ — N Y Times p50 N 12 '50 240w

"M. Frison-Roche, who used to lead such expeditions himself, writes with great enthusiasm about the perils and triumphs of climbing but is very much less at ease in the purely romantic parts of his book, which read as though he had discovered, too late, that the truth about his guides' lives was infinitely more engrossing than any fiction he could produce about them."
New Yorker 26:131 O 7 '50 80w

FRITERS, GERARD M. Outer Mongolia and its international position; ed. by Eleanor Lattimore; with an introd. by Owen Lattimore [issued under the auspices of the Int. secretariat, Inst. of Pacific relations]. 358p maps $5 Johns Hopkins press

327.5173 Outer Mongolia 49-11854

"Discusses [Outer Mongolia] beginning with its revolution in 1911 and considering its geography, its society, its relations with Russia, China, Japan and other powers. Mr. Friters has carefully studied Russian documents and those in English, French and Chinese; he found few in Mongolian." San Francisco Chronicle

Reviewed by Franz Michael
Current Hist 18:225 Ap '50 500w

Foreign Affairs 28:517 Ap '50 30w

Reviewed by H. J. Wiens
Geog R 40:502 Jl '50 950w

"Mr. Friters has written a learned work, quoting a large number of Russian sources quite unknown to the ordinary reader. . . The book has a long introduction by Mr. Owen Lattimore. In a way this is a disadvantage: the introduction is so much livelier than the main text." G. W.
Manchester Guardian p4 Je 20 '50 550w

Reviewed by A. T. Steele
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Je 25 '50 500w

"A thorough and painstaking reconstruction of the modern relations of Russia, China and Japan with Outer Mongolia which is much more than a diplomatic record. He summarizes practically all the facts known in the West about this inaccessible area." J. K. Fairbank
+ N Y Times p11 Ja 1 '50 320w

"Gerald Friters has written a study which will find a place in every reference library concerned with international relations. Nearly all that has been written on the subject under consideration is here systematized, digested and commented upon. Even the physical geography of what is now the Mongolian People's Republic is set forth in some detail." J. N. Hazard

+ Pacific Affairs 23:195 Je '50 1450w

"Carries an introduction by Owen Lattimore, director of the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations at Johns Hopkins and number one American expert on Mongolia, and for those who know, that marks the book as important. . . First of its kind in English, the book is well indexed and includes a copy of the Constitution of the Mongol People's Republic, an excellent bibliography, and a list of some Mongol personalities." E. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p30 D 11 '49 220w

"Mr. Friters has written a comprehensive compendium of everything the student of international affairs will need to know about Outer Mongolia. . . What he presents is a scholarly and meticulous account of everything that is known of the relations of Outer Mongolia with Soviet Russia, with China, with Japan and (much less important) with other Powers. The account is thoroughly documented and accompanied by a full and valuable bibliography."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p343 Je 2 '50 1150w

"The last chapter describes the present international position of Outer Mongolia and sheds light on many complicated questions. Unfortunately, Friters' book contains a good many mistakes, some characteristic of the literature on Mongolia in general and others caused by his inaccuracy in citations." Nicholas Poppe

+ — Yale R n s 39:566 spring '50 360w

FROEHLICH, CLIFFORD PAYO. Guidance services in smaller schools. 352p il $3.75 McGraw

371.42 Personnel service in education 50-7318

"A work which is featured by many first-hand accounts of guidance practices obtained by the author from school systems in rural areas and in small cities. The material has been organized to depict orientation programs, the dissemination of occupational information, analysis of the individual, counseling, placement, and other elements of the guidance program." (School R) Index.

"This has been prepared in the hope that it will challenge smaller schools to improve their guidance services, but more than that it attempts to illustrate how they can have these services."

School & Society 71:254 Ap 22 '50 40w

School R 58:363 S '50 70w

"The detailed information and the many descriptions and materials make this a most helpful book for personnel in either large or small schools." M. R. Brown

+ School R 58:495 N '50 650w

FROHOCK, WILBUR MERRILL. The novel of violence in America, 1920-1950 [il. by Ed Bearden]. 216p $3.75 Univ. press in Dallas

813.09 American fiction 50-8028

"The title of this study describes only its major concern. Actually Mr. Frohock's thesis is that between 1920 and 1950 the American novel has been bifurcated into two strains of sensibility: one of erosion (or the passage of time) and the other of violence. Thomas Wolfe would be an example of the first and late Hemingway of the second. Between his introductory and concluding chapters, which expound his thesis, he discusses eight major contemporary novelists [John Dos Passos; Thomas Wolfe; James Farrell; James M. Cain; William Faulkner; Erskine Caldwell; John Steinbeck; Ernest Hemingway]." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

"Here is a book about the contemporary novel in America, brief, and crisp, and fascinating as some of the best novels themselves. . . Whether we agree with this critic or not, his book is exciting and a pleasure to read. Recommended." Shirley Barker

+ Library J 75:976 Je 1 '50 120w

"Much of what Frohock says about individual writers is sound, but on the subject of the novel itself he is not rewarding. Even if his scheme of classification is faulty, a bolder analysis could have used it to more interesting effect. What seems to be called for, however, is not a scheme at all but a careful empirical study of what various forms of violence mean to contemporary novelists and their readers." Granville Hicks

+ — N Y Times p12 My 14 '50 450w

"He is a flexible critic, fortunately, and does not force any of his subjects into his procrustean frame. He obviously prefers the novel of violence, since this type, as he conceived it, is dramatic in structure and ethical in content. His own style is strikingly informal, even unbuttoned, and points up his intelligent insights with an engaging understatement. What he says is generally enlightening and always engrossing." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R of Lit 33:21 Je 3 '50 170w

FROME, DAVID, pseud. See Brown, Z. J.

FROMM, ERICH. Psychoanalysis and religion. 119p $2.50 Yale univ. press

131.34 Psychoanalysis. Psychology, Religious 50-9952

"In studying neurosis, the author discovers that he is studying religion. Shows that Freud was not necessarily 'against' religion, Jung not necessarily 'for' it. There could be a mutual relationship between psychoanalyst and priest, although the former helps the patient attain the attitude of humanistic religious thinking. Rich in parables selected from many universal religions. Concludes that the 'idols' of our whole secular culture threaten religious attitudes." (Library J) No index.

Booklist 47:88 N 1 '50

"Because of his arbitrary definition of religion his attempt to prove the compatibility of psychoanalysis and religion is bound to fail. After reading this book one is more convinced than ever before that the doctrine of Freud and true religion are as far from one another as any two things may be." Rudolf Allers

— Commonweal 53:71 O 27 '50 1250w

"A scholarly book, with a careful analysis of the attitude of Freud and Jung towards religion. For those interested in psychoanalysis and for the more liberal schools of Protestant and Jewish thought on this subject."

+ Kirkus 18:604 O 1 '50 340w

Reviewed by J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 75:1286 Ag '50 140w

"This is a timely and provocative book for our confused world. It points out wherein religion has failed in our world, and to teachers of religion and psychology, it will be a source of information. To those who are hostile to psychoanalysis it should dispel many of the fears which unfortunately surround the subject. And lastly, it should help people to understand that psychoanalysis can set men free of their unconscious conflicts. When man becomes free he will be able to continue his mental and spiritual growth in the fundamental religious faiths of our culture." C. J. Kew

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 19 '50 900w

"In this brief volume, Fromm has, I think, put his finger on quite the central issue of religion. It is, therefore, a book not to be missed by those interested in man's spiritual growth." H. A. Overstreet

+ N Y Times p5 O 29 '50 850w

FROST, FRANCES MARY. Maple sugar for Windy Foot; il. by Lee Townsend. (Whittlesey house publication) 184p $2 McGraw 50-5418

The third story about Toby Clark and his pony, Windy Foot. This time the story is about the process of making maple sugar, from the tapping of the trees to the making of the sugar cakes. A serious note is added when the flood comes, bringing much damage to the farm. For grades four to six.

Booklist 46:205 F 15 '50

Bookmark 9:164 Ap '50 60w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 My 28 '50 270w

Reviewed by Millicent Taylor
Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 25 '50 110w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:104 Mr '50 90w

"Miss Frost writes out of a sound and familiar background, but she doesn't forget to tell a story." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 26:172 My '50 70w

"Family relationships here are intimate and real, although perhaps the family seems almost too light-hearted in disaster."
Kirkus 18:61 F 1 '50 100w

"Rich in details of family life. Well written. For boys and girls 10 years old and up. Recommended." M. E. Martignoni
+ Library J 75:986 Je 1 '50 70w

"A good many facts are mixed with plenty of excitement. . . This is a family story on a high level." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 2 '50 230w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p24 Mr 26 '50 150w

New Yorker 26:180 D 2 '50 50w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 33:46 Mr 11 '50 200w

Springf'd Republican p12C Ap 16 '50 120w

FROST, FRANCES MARY. Then came Timothy; il. by Richard Bennett. (Whittlesey House publication) 155p $2 McGraw 50-9412

A story of the O'Kelly family, Grandpa, Grandma, Kathy, Michael the dog, and Miranda the cat who lived on an island off the Maine coast, with Mr and Mrs North and Philip for neighbors. Things were not quite all they should be until Timothy Sweetfern, the leprecaun, came over from Ireland and set all to rights.

Booklist 47:47 S 15 '50

"It is all told in the gayest, most lilting style you can imagine, about characters as real and distinctive as can be. The pictures are fun, too." P. G.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 12 '50 160w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 50w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

"Not every author can write this kind of story convincingly, but Miss Frost has succeeded in making not only Timothy come alive but also Kathy O'Kelly and her friend Philip; Michael the Collapsible Dog; Miranda, the cat, and most of all, perhaps, Grandpa and Grandma, who have long been friends of the leprecauns. For children from seven to eleven."
+ Horn Bk 26:375 S '50 90w

Kirkus 18:418 Ag 1 '50 140w

"Boys and girls 8-10 years old will enjoy this if they are still in the fairy book stage. Recommended." M. E. Martignoni
+ Library J 75:1834 O 15 '50 80w

"A most charming, merry, modern fairy tale." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 12 '50 140w

"Miss Frost has told her story with sense and charm, and a good feeling for language, English and Irish. The illustrations by Richard Burnett have that fey quality that would do nicely with the text." Marjorie Fischer
+ N Y Times p20 N 12 '50 140w

"As in all her books Miss Frost has woven in her background with lovely words. It is not quite a fairy story because the scene is completely real, but Timothy himself came straight from 'over the border.' "
+ Sat R of Lit 33:41 N 11 '50 180w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p5D S 10 '50 180w

FRY, CHRISTOPHER. The lady's not for burning; a comedy. 98p $2.50 Oxford 822 49-9260

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 186:85 Jl '50 420w

Booklist 46:317 Je 15 '50

"Mr. Fry is a dramatic poet: that is to say, an imaginative writer who strikes off brilliant ideas and casts them in dramatic form. It is purely incidental that he happens to write in a loose, bounding sort of blank verse; but it is not incidental that his language teems with that enchantment of imagery that is the sovereign badge of the English poetic drama." Lister Sinclair
+ Canadian Forum 30:20 Ap '50 420w

"Unquestionably this is a work of genius, a rare enough occurrence at any time. It is a comedy in a sense which has been all but forgotten among us. . . The genius of Christopher Fry at this stage is not a mature genius, but it is a precocious one, filled with bright promise. It is shown first of all in a skill with words that might mislead the casual reader into mistaking it for a dazzling display of verbal pyrotechnics. That it is a brilliant one there can be no doubt, but it is much more than that." B. M. Kelly
+ Cath World 171:477 S '50 400w

" 'The Lady's Not For Burning' is a medieval comedy rich in character drawing, killingly funny even in the library and shot with passionate and brilliant lyric poetry." Robert Pollak
+ Chicago Sun p7 Ap 9 '50 350w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '50

Kirkus 18:224 Ap 1 '50 160w

Reviewed by George Freedley
Library J 75:405 Mr 1 '50 20w

Reviewed by R. A. Scott-James
Nation 171:315 O 7 '50 1050w

Dramatic criticism by Margaret Marshall
Nation 171:466 N 18 '50 950w

"James Bridie, writing in the New Statesman and Nation recently, observed that the English theatre today is 'on the point of removing [from the Shaw era] into the era of Christopher Fry.' . . 'The Lady's Not for Burning' is entertaining to read, but obviously it would be still more entertaining to see: the rhetoric and the metaphors cry to be spoken; the scenes demand to be acted. Still the idea of a 'Fry era' in playwriting is disquieting." A. L. Goodman
+ — New Repub 122:19 My 1 '50 800w

"As a poet Christopher Fry is in complete command of an admirable blank verse. His delicate ear is attuned to the sounds of words just as his facile wit is alert to the play of words. In his set pieces he writes verses that smack of greatness. In his comic lines he plumbs the depths of laughter." W. R. White
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 30 '50 700w

Dramatic criticism by J. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 33:44 D 2 '50 500w

"There is a certain compassion in any observation which has more than one dimension. It is a joy to report that England has produced another poet with this kind of indispensable compassion, a silver tongue, and a reported stage sense which we have yet to see, but which we are promised for the next season. In the meantime the literature of the stage has been enriched."

+ Theatre Arts 34:10 Jl '50 550w
Time 55:112 Ap 24 '50 650w

FRY, CHRISTOPHER. A phoenix too frequent; a comedy. reissue 43p $1.75 Oxford 822 [50-13638]

A long one-act play, which is an early work of the author. It was a failure on Broadway.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 186:85 Jl '50 420w

"Even Mr. Fry has his faults, and while there are certainly no shortcomings in either character or language, the action is often leisurely, to put the kindest word to it. But that will only occur to you in the cold light of the critic's winter morning. In the theatre, or in your armchair, you will be carried along; and Christopher Fry will take you on a merry and delicious journey." Lister Sinclair
+ — Canadian Forum 30:20 Ap '50 80w

"It is a witty, poetic, dramatic comedy. Recommended for all poetry and drama collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:1047 Je 15 '50 30w

"Freighted with no ponderous metaphysic, Fry's verse is extremely clear and unabashedly romantic. Controlled and facile, it can switch from lyrical heights to rhodomontade, as it dishes up unexpected images and metaphors galore." Frank Jones
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ag 13 '50 350w

Dramatic criticism by J. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 33:44 D 2 '50 500w

FRY, CHRISTOPHER. Venus observed. 99p $2.50 Oxford
822 [50-21670]

A poetic drama by the British author of The Lady's Not for Burning. The play deals with the rivalry of father and son for the love of the daughter of the father's bailiff.

Booklist 47:10 S 1 '50

Reviewed by Harold Hobson
Christian Science Monitor p3 Mr 4 '50 750w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '50

"Mature work. Highly recommended for drama and poetry collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:1299 Ag '50 40w

"Christopher Fry's Venus Observed is full of verse, but has little poetry. Much less (from the reader's point of view) than 'The Lady's not for Burning,' which drew the eye from line to line with a feeling of some excitement. The humour is heavier, too." G. F.
— Manchester Guardian p4 F 21 '50 50w

Reviewed by R. A. Scott-James
Nation 171:315 O 7 '50 1050w

"Read simply as a dramatic poem, Venus Observed continuously delights me with its felicities; and it may very well be my own denseness that does not see something beyond this. But Mr. Fry has certainly developed a flexible dramatic line: he has a remarkable gift of phrase: he has fertility, inventiveness, flow. It may seem ungrateful when he gives up so much to demand more: but without this more, Mr. Fry's work seems to me in danger of falling short of its own possibilities." T. C. Worsley
+ — New Statesman & Nation 39:322 Mr 18 '50 480w

Reviewed by Saul Colin
+ N Y Times p16 D 10 '50 450w

"The frisky, philosophic Duke and his loquacious, droll servants remind one of Molnar's memorable comedy figures. There is an elegance and exquisite beauty in everything that Mr. Fry says. One wishes that he said still more and with greater depth." Frank Jones
+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 O 8 '50 420w

Dramatic criticism by J. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 33:44 D 2 '50 500w

"The Duke is a hero of considerable magnitude; his story, though mild and witty, has an element of tragedy. Christopher Fry has written a charming verse-play. In addition, he has created an extraordinary part that other great actors will want to play." L. N. Roditte
+ Theatre Arts 34:7 S '50 950w

FRY, CHRISTOPHER, tr. See Anouilh, J. Ring round the moon

FRY, D. W., and GOWARD, F. K. Aerials for centimetre wave-lengths. 172p $3.50 Cambridge
621.384135 Radio antennas. Radar [50-13720]

"A condensed presentation of theory, characteristics, and design practices pertaining to aerials for the transmission (and reception) of radiation in the 10cm. and 3cm. bands. It is addressed primarily to communications engineers who are concerned with the design of radar apparatus; hence most of the text deals with types of aerials and secondary radiators, their characteristics, and with design procedures. The book is based largely on work done during World War II at the British Telecommunications Research Establishment, but pertinent research and inventions made in America and elsewhere are represented." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:874 My 15 '50 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:62 Jl '50

FRYE, PEARL (MRS L. S. RAU). Game for empires. 471p $3.50 Little Nelson, Horatio Nelson, 1st viscount—Fiction 50-8817

A biographical novel which follows the career of Horatio Nelson from 1793 when he was given command of the Agamemnon to 1798 and the defeat of the French fleet in the Battle of the Nile.

"Few men have played such a brilliant, decisive role in keeping an empire together and Pearl Frye has made the most of it in this exciting, romantically factual drama of the 18th century. For adventure, thrills and sustained suspense her story will be hard to beat this year." Richard Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ag 27 '50 290w

"To the present volume Pearl Frye has applied her ability to make scenes of action exciting and a gentle wit that mitigates a warrior's history. In doing this, she has drawn largely from Nelson's letters and has stuck to her intention to present him and his problems as they appeared to him and his contemporaries, without our privilege of hindsight." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 26 '50 400w

Kirkus 18:337 Je 15 '50 270w

"This is a story of action against a real historical background, well planned to hold the interest of masculine readers. Recommended." H. A. Wooster
+ Library J 75:1291 Ag '50 80w

" 'A Game for Empires' may be read for its battle scenes, for its picture of the times, or as the human story of a man who was now the ecstatic warrior, now the troubled husband, now the ambitious admiral and often just the bewildered citizen of a changing world." E. L. Acken
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 S 10 '50 320w

" 'A Game for Empires' is a superior historical romance. It is excellent history and absorbing fiction. It is a very remarkable achievement for a woman. Not even that badly neglected novel, 'He Brings Great News,' by Clemence Dane brings to life so powerfully the England of the Napoleonic era." William McFee
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 20 '50 430w

FRYE, PEARL—Continued

"An American lady artist has, in this, her second novel, brought Admiral Lord Nelson to life as few of his biographers have done, and she has also captured the sweep and tremendous drama of the Mediterranean naval wars and the English victories just before Napoleon's rise to power. Likewise, she has captured the boredom, disease, and the endless years of those sea campaigns. In short, Miss Frye has written a first-rate novel, a story of which any historian or biographer might be proud." C. W. Weinberger

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 S 3 '50 550w

"The author makes liberal use of Nelson's correspondence and his dispatches. But for all that, or because of it, her portraiture of Nelson adds very little to his well-established picture. In short, it is hard to see what Miss Frye has aimed at in her book—unless it has been her desire to indulge her enthusiasm for the hero she has read so much about and win new enthusiasts for him among a generation grown somewhat weary of the glamour of battles." Robert Pick

Sat R of Lit 33:32 S 2 '50 230w

FRYER, DOUGLAS HENRY, and HENRY, EDWIN RUTHVAN, eds. Handbook of applied psychology; contributors: Theodora M. Abel [and others]. 2v 380;383-842p $12.50 Rinehart

150.13 Psychology, Applied 50-8129

"A compilation of the writings of more than 100 distinguished authors representing every field of applied psychology. The 18 chapters comprising this handbook fall into four major divisions: The first unit presents the general applications of psychology to group living and to individual efficiency and adjustment. The second unit, of particular interest to the business reader, presents 29 different articles on specific applications of psychology to business and industry—interviewing, rating, testing, special selection devices, training, working conditions, personnel research and other significant applications. The third unit is devoted to applications of psychology to education, and the fourth, with various professional matters—e.g., problems of independent practice, relations with other professions, etc." Management R

"An excellent compilation."

+ Management R 39:504 Ag '50 200w

School & Society 72:47 Jl 15 '50 40w

FUELOPE-MILLER, RENE. See Fülöp-Miller, R.

FULLER, EDMUND. George Bernard Shaw; critic of western morale. (Twentieth century lib) 123p $2; college ed $1.50 Scribner

822 Shaw, George Bernard 50-9811

"A quiet and cogent discussion of some of Shaw's ideas and their dramatization in the plays." (New Yorker) Selective index.

Booklist 47:77 O 15 '50

Reviewed by Denham Sutcliffe

Christian Science Monitor p6 O 28 '50 350w

"Mr. Fuller has made a contribution to Scribner's Twentieth Century Library that really fulfills its avowed object, 'to give the intelligent layman a basic understanding of those thinkers of the last hundred years who have most influenced the intellectual currents of our time.' He has little that is new to say to the seasoned Shavian, whom he modestly refers to Eric Bentley's book in his preface, but it is to be hoped that his essay will bring to life, not Shaw, but his plays and his ideas, for many an 'intelligent layman' to whom Shaw is now only a faceful of whiskers or an urnful of ashes." Vivian Mercier

+ Commonweal 53:308 D 29 '50 900w

Reviewed by George Freedley

Library J 75:2155 D 15 '50 40w

"Bernard Shaw is a hard man to write a book about. . . Mr. Fuller makes a brave try. In no more than 120 pages he succeeds better than most of those who extend themselves further, and if his is not the book on its subject he can at least console himself with the assurance that there isn't any. Moreover, his book would be still better if it were all as good as the first two chapters." J. W. Krutch

+ — Nation 171:462 N 18 '50 900w

Reviewed by Irwin Edman

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 O 8 '50 350w

"Mr. Fuller himself seems to be of a somewhat Shavian temper, often displaying the 'luminous common sense' with which he credits the old gentleman, and his approach to the magpie's nest of Shaw's thought is always stimulating and often brilliant. If his plot synopses are sometimes heavy-handed and his generalizations sometimes dubious, if he here and there devotes space to such shabby nonsense as Shaw's opposition to vivisection, he has nevertheless given us, in a shrewd and witty book, the best guide yet available to this authentic great man."

+ — New Yorker 26:132 O 28 '50 150w

"Scholars will not learn anything from this book, but laymen may well set it down, after two pleasant hours, with the feeling that they have easily passed in review the masterpieces of a bewildering and paradoxical author." William Irvine

+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 D 23 '50 450w

FULLER, EDMUND, ed. Journey into the self. See Stein, L.

FULLER, ROY. Epitaphs and occasions [poems]. 60p $1.30 Macdonald & co, room 220, 37 Madison av, N.Y. 10

821

A fourth book of poems by an English author. "The book is 'occasional' in the sense that many of the poems deal with the war, and all of them with the sick mess which is contemporary civilization; and by no means the least poignant 'epitaph' is the one which the poet composes for himself—a sane and moving statement of what the good life might be." (N Y Times)

"He has a wry humour and much intelligence. But one is disappointed that he has merely continued, without developing, his inspiration. Though he writes in our time, he belongs to the last decade." L. F. D.

Manchester Guardian p3 D 30 '49 100w

"Rather uneven new collection. . . A purely negative, a purely 'narking' attitude, cannot, even given great skill and great sincerity—Mr Fuller has both—produce satisfactory poetry." G. S. Fraser

New Statesman & Nation 38:624 N 26 '49 660w

"The talent re-emphasized here is limited, but within the limitations of a most intelligent and sensitive light verse, it speaks with great clarity and frequently with a surprising depth of tenderness. . . The faults are chiefly those of a somewhat overworked whimsy verging on coyness, and too much reliance on the guise of the blunt-spoken soldier. The virtues more than compensate, however, and the book deserves and repays careful reading." Dudley Fitts

+ — N Y Times p28 F 12 '50 210w

"This poet's predicament deserves thought. He is an energetic, striving voice, hoping to be heard when he speaks up; this part of his book is good performance, but he sounds best when he is quiet. He is a curiously Hamlet-possessed poet. He is topical in a good many poems, and for the most part traditional in form and manner. If there are others in England like Roy Fuller, poetry is in good health there." John Holmes

+ Sat R of Lit 33:29 Mr 11 '50 270w

Reviewed by Gwendolen Freeman

Spec 184:322 Mr 10 '50 160w

"It is impossible here to suggest every aspect of a book so closely packed as this. Epitaphs and Occasions, as its title hints, is not ambitiously creative writing at full stretch; but its best poems are minor verse at its most accomplished. There is no other contemporary poet who reduces so much thought, socially or politically crucial in the widest sense, to so small a space as Mr. Fuller has done in this book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p858 D 30 '49 900w

FULLER, TIMOTHY. Keep cool, Mr. Jones. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 208p $2.50 Little 50-8759

Detective story.

Booklist 47:138 D 1 '50

Chicago Sun p4 S 12 '50 80w

"Good story with enough of suspense for the fans."
+ Kirkus 18:318 Je 1 '50 130w

"Yankee types, including a despotic dowager, are drawn to (or from) the life. Jupiter seemed a little happier in his original environment, but he is philosophical about small town life, and readers who liked his previous adventures should enjoy this one too." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 75:1291 Ag '50 110w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ag 27 '50 210w

"Though both plot and satire fall somewhat below the level of Timothy Fuller's earlier novels, it's good once more to enjoy the company of one of the few believable amateur sleuths—even though he's developing a tendency to play God with the other characters." A. B.
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 13 '50 190w

"Jupiter continues to be a pleasant and perceptive man, and the story is well above the average in plot and characterization."
+ New Yorker 26:88 Ag 19 '50 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 17 '50 80w

"Well-heeled rustic atmosphere, literate and amusing chatter, plot with treasure-trove angle, and surprise finish."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:40 Ag 19 '50 40w

FULMER, JOHN LEONARD. Agricultural progress in the cotton belt since 1920. 236p $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

338.1 Agriculture—South. Agriculture—Economic aspects 50-7358

"A summarized account written mainly from the economic viewpoint. Statistics are presented, and there are concise discussions of such topics as the use of tractors, increase in production of livestock, mechanical harvesting of cotton, increase in the size of payments, and changes in farmers' income." (Library J) Selected bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by C. C. Taylor
Am J Soc 56:294 N '50 650w

"The book is important not only in collections on agriculture, but also in those devoted chiefly to economics." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:874 My 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by R. W. Howard
Sat R of Lit 33:31 Je 3 '50 220w

"Not intended for the general reader, the study will no doubt be used extensively for reference by students of its subject."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:365 S '50 210w

FULOP-MILLER, RENE. Fyodor Dostoevsky; insight, faith, and prophecy; tr. by Richard and Clara Winston. (Twentieth century lib) 137p $2; college ed $1.50 Scribner

891.73 Dostoevskii, Fedor Mikhailovich 50-14487

Part one considers Dostoevsky, the man and his work; part two deals with Dostoevsky's significance for our times. In this section the author discusses Dostoevsky's place in modern fiction, as a forerunner of psychoanalysis, and as social and political prophet. Short bibliography. Selective index.

Booklist 47:77 O 15 '50

Reviewed by Denham Sutcliffe
Christian Science Monitor p6 O 28 '50 350w

"The volume is suggestive but somehow fails to focus, and in the interest of showing how contemporary Dostoevsky is, [the author] presses to dubious extremes his theses that Dostoevsky's Christ-mystique is peculiarly relevant to the atomic age, and alone calculated to save us all." Irwin Edman
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 O 8 '50 450w

New Yorker 26:156 N 25 '50 150w

"The chronology of the events of Dostoevsky's life is confusing, and the portrait of the author is distorted by excessive emphasis on the few tragic moments and unfortunate failings. . . Nor in the hurried review of his works in this brief compass does one obtain a constructive notion of the development of the creative art of Dostoevsky. . . In the second part of the book, however, Mr. Fueloep-Miller has made an interesting and important contribution." E. J. Simmons
Sat R of Lit 33:29 O 14 '50 950w

FULOP-MILLER, RENE. The web; a trilogy of novellas; tr. by Richard and Clara Winston; il. by Selma Bluestein. 321p $3 Abelard 50-10880

"These three 'novellas,' [Endre, Uncle Joca, The great bear] are minor works of author who is widely known for his studies of the Jesuits, of Rasputin and Bolshevism. Apparently they present childhood memories from Fuelope-Miller's home country, the Banat, in the old Austro-Hungarian monarchy." Library J

"They are charmingly told, and Richard and Clara Winston have translated them very well. Yet they hardly are essential for small or medium-sized libraries." F. E. Hirsch
Library J 75:1825 O 15 '50 120w

"Despite occasional awkwardness, Mr. Fuelope-Miller never lapses into artificiality. A direct, crude-grained honesty sustains his stories. To some readers the dark power of Endre alone will be worth the price of admission. The translation is competent, by the way, and Selma Bluestein's drawings make compelling illustrations." Frederic Morton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 19 '50 500w

"The book opens with 'Endre.' . . The author manages to tell this legendary tale in just the right tone. . . 'The Great Bear' is so overburdened with incident and details of a hidden meaning that it collapses under its own weight. However, in 'Uncle Joca,' the second piece, Mr. Fuelope-Miller is at his best." Richard Plant
+ — N Y Times p26 N 26 '50 270w

"Mr. Fülop-Miller writes in a forthright, unaffected style that accords very well with the simple, folk-tale mood of his stories."
+ New Yorker 26:73 D 23 '50 90w

FUNK, CHARLES EARLE. Thereby hangs a tale; stories of curious word origins. 303p $3.50 Harper

422 English language—Etymology 50-6750

"Mr. Charles Funk makes his book an alphabetical listing of odd and curious word derivations of special interest, his text running from the Arabic-derived 'admiral' and 'alcohol' to 'yacht.' . . Charles Funk's method is to give a paragraph to each of his words, sometimes more, and the result is a volume of just the kind of odds-and-ends information that suits many tastes for pickup reading." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

Bookmark 9:209 Je '50 20w

Christian Century 67:434 Ap 5 '50 360w

FUNK, C. E.—Continued
Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 18 '50 330w

Kirkus 18:91 F 1 '50 120w

"Recommended to everyone interested in the color and background of words."
+ Nation 170:555 Je 3 '50 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 Ap 16 '50 350w

"'Thereby Hangs a Tale' should charm even the earnest reader. Charles Funk, author of 'A Hog on Ice and Other Curious Expressions,' has a sense of history and he writes well. His book is an admirable collection of little essays —no more than a paragraph apiece—on 600 words." Cabell Greet
+ N Y Times p7 Ap 23 '50 200w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 31 '50 450w

Reviewed by E. E. Calkins
Sat R of Lit 33:14 Ag 12 '50 350w

Springf'd Republican p8C My 7 '50 420w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 My '50

FUNK, WILFRED JOHN. Word origins and their romantic stories. 432p $3.95 Funk, W.

422 English language—Etymology 50-6664

The life stories of over three thousand words in use in English today. Partial contents: Origin of words of speaking and writing; These words came from proper names; Where words about human beings come from; Romance behind business terms; Word histories of your garden; Word stories about your dining table; Political terms and their origins; War words and their histories; Romantic stories of words about women; Terms of religion and their beginnings; Origin of the terms of art, music, and the drama. Index.

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 18 '50 330w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '50

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Ap 16 '50 310w

"The earnest reader moves rapidly along until he suspects that for every new etymology he learns he is forgetting one or two others that are much too good to lose. Most word books give this pain to the earnest reader. The true fancier just reads and enjoys the pageant." Cabell Greet
+ N Y Times p7 Ap 23 '50 200w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 31 '50 450w

Reviewed by E. E. Calkins
Sat R of Lit 33:14 Ag 12 '50 350w

"The quest for new values in language will be aided in a large way as a result of extensive research by Dr. Wilfred Funk, widely known as an author and lexicographer and for many years president of Funk & Wagnalls." J. W. C.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C My 7 '50 430w

FURNESS, FRANK, pseud. See Horowitz, H. H.

FUTURE of democratic capitalism, by Thurman W. Arnold [and others] introd. by S. Howard Patterson. 112p $2 Univ. of Pa. press

338.973 Capitalism. Competition. Economic policy. U.S.—Economic policy 50-8293

"What are the chances of survival for America's present economic and political way of life? Contents: 'The Preservation of Competition', by Thurman Arnold; 'The Preservation of Civil Liberties', by Morris L. Ernst; 'Corporations and the Modern State', by Adolf A. Berle, Jr.; 'Organized Labor in a Free Society', by Lloyd K. Garrison; 'The International Community in a Peaceful World', by Sir Alfred Zimmern." Library J

Am Pol Sci R 44:775 S '50 50w

"The lectures . . . contain some challenging and provocative statements and proposals, by this group of liberal thinkers, and will interest a wide circle of readers." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:1412 S 1 '50 110w

"These five Benjamin Franklin Lectures, delivered at the University of Pennsylvania, are remarkable in a time of jitters for their reassuring tone. Their basic theme is ultimate reliance on steady nerves and good sense in the community. For these virtues there can indeed be no substitute." George Soule
+ N Y Times p5 Je 25 '50 850w

"These essays are in nowise topical. On the contrary, they are penetrating enough to raise some vtial questions." C. E. M.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ag 13 '50 300w

G

GABRIELSON, IRA NOEL, and LA MONTE, FRANCESCA RAIMONDE, eds. Fisherman's encyclopedia. 698p il col pl $12.50 Stackpole & Heck

799.1 Fishing Agr50-434

"The editors assembled contributions from about 60 writers, including sports fishermen, sports editors, recognized scientific authorities in the world of fish directors of state and federal agencies, and others. . . There are chapters on both salt and fresh water game species, with excellent black and white and color plates; how to fish in either salt or fresh water, equipment required for different types of angling, where, when, and how to fish, and worthwhile résumé of floating craft suitable for fishing in all waters." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Building a fisherman's library. Glossary. Index.

"The wealth of material has been organized in such a way that the book is very readable."
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 7 '50 190w

"Undoubtedly the standard encyclopedia of fishing, and as such should find a place in every library." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:777 My 1 '50 170w

New Yorker 26:171 D 9 '50 160w

"This book is a significant milestone in outdoor literature. In addition to being a bonanza of information about everything that swims and how to catch same, this Encyclopedia is most handsomely mounted and is worthy of a prominent spot on any library shelf." C. H. Ferguson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 28 '50 550w

"A remarkable book." P. F. C.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 30 '50 130w

GAER, JOSEPH. Heart upon the rock. 214p $2.75 Dodd

50-9812

"The words are few and plain, the story a bare record of days in the life of Hannah, a woman of the Russian Jewish village of Yanovke in the time of the Czar. . . To the Jew, sleeping or waking, religion was his refuge from a bitter world. But Hannah knew that the young people were restless. Four of her children had gone to America. . . Her brilliant Elka, involved in political activities, was exiled. . . And now her youngest, David, so good at singing the prayers, was looking toward the wider western horizon. Hannah would be alone. She mourned, but her heart was upon the rock of her faith." Christian Science Monitor

"Mr. Gaer has the essential texture, the essential human understanding of the Yiddish master, tho here working in a more uniformly somber tone." Edmund Fuller

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 24 '50 500w

"As a piece of literary execution the merit of Joseph Gaer's small book lies in unembroidered simplicity." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 21 '50 230w

" 'Heart Upon the Rock' is a touching book, simple and moving, about a formal pattern of life which has now virtually disappeared from the world."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 O 29 '50 270w

"Though its wonderfully vivid folkways come alive instantly in these pages, the people and the place Mr. Gaer describes seem as remote as some classic legend. Indeed, much of this simple story reads like a folk tale from the distant past—a fragment from the history of a people who have learned the gifts of life and laughter down the centuries, no matter how bitter their isolation." C. V. Terry

+ N Y Times p50 S 24 '50 420w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman

Sat R of Lit 33:27 D 2 '50 340w

GAGEY, EDMOND MCADOO. San Francisco stage; a history. 264p il $3.50 Columbia univ. press

792 Theater—San Francisco 50-8015

A history of the stage in San Francisco from its earliest beginnings in 1849 thru 1899, with a final chapter on the highlights of the twentieth century. It is "based on annals compiled by the research department of the San Francisco federal theatre." Illustrated with photographs. Bibliography. Index.

"A splendid book for those who love the theatre." W. P. Sears

+ Churchman 164:17 S 15 '50 120w

"Scholarly, yet wonderfully readable. Highly recommended for theatre and local history collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 75:1047 Je 15 '50 30w

Nation 171:320 O 7 '50 40w

"It is his careful and dogged insistence on getting in every fact he can that makes Mr. Gagey's book what it is. Taken into consideration with the selected bibliography—unusually full where book titles are concerned—this characteristic is bound to result in the book's being placed on every library reference shelf and on many collectors' shelves as well, even if it is rather special for most general readers." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 Je 28 '50 800w

"Dr. Gagey has chosen wisely to concentrate on vivid personalities up to the turn of the century, but theatrical developments, San Francisco's growth and the last fifty years are not slighted. A jim-dandy of a book, it is good theatre, good history, good Americana, and great fun." Saul Colin

+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 Jl 15 '50 550w

GAGLIARDO, DOMENICO. American social insurance. 671p $5 Harper

331.2544 Insurance, Social 49-10573

" 'Social insurance has attained great importance in the United States, but is far from adequate, and improvement is overdue,' in the judgment of those favoring its extension. The author's object is to give an objective picture of the various forms, state and voluntary, now in force, how they have developed, and how they operate, in the four general fields of old age, unemployment, occupational disability and health, pointing out major defects and proposed courses of action." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by E. F. Young

Am Soc R 14:818 D '49 250w

"I completely agree with Professor Witte's remark, in his fine introduction, on 'the outstanding impartiality' of the author. . . The most interesting part, in my opinion, is the concluding chapter containing a quite remarkable analysis of important factors. . . In the future there should be increased discussion of social insurance in classes on insurance, and students should make use of this excellent 'source of accurate information.' " Alfred Manes

+ Ann Am Acad 267:241 Ja '50 280w

"Gagliardo's material is well organized and clearly set forth. . . When the treatment passes from the descriptive and factual to speculation about security and insecurity and basic political trends, it becomes less convincing and sure in its touch." E. L. Dulles

+ — J Pol Econ 58:277 Je '50 1200w

"Presents a mass of factual material, thoroughly analyzed and applied. Carefully selected bibliographies. A useful basic volume." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 74:1755 N 15 '49 90w

"A useful book, one which outlines the framework of our security system in a particularly illuminating way. The new materials on federal retirement programs, private medical-care and hospitalization programs, and cash sickness benefit programs are lodes which have been carefully and completely mined for pay dirt, and no great criticism is implied by the comment that this great field has been mined unevenly. . . I would object to the author's particular compromise of the fundamental policy question of insurance vs. assistance." William Goldner

+ — Management R 39:631 O '50 1200w

"Within its limits, it is thorough and accurate, and as to security provision for the sick and disabled it provides a fuller picture than Mrs. Burns' work. It remains, however, a useful but not a significant book." J. J. Corson

+ — Survey 86:40 Ja '50 160w

GAIGE, CROSBY. Dining with my friends; adventures with epicures. 292p $3 Crown

641 Cookery. Menus 49-50151

A collection of menus and recipes contributed by friends of the author who are connoisseurs of good eating. Partial contents: A dinner for a winter evening, by Merle Armitage; A quick and easy Welsh rabbit, by Louis Bromfield; A garlic party; A California barbecue, by Harry Caddow; Misssouri fried chicken dinner, by C. F. Dawson; Maid's night out dinner, by Mrs W. H. Eddy; Hog jowl dinner, by Arthur Krock; African duck dinner, by Tom Marvel; Lobster stew for supper, by Jane Nickerson; A winter dinner party, by Mrs. Carmel Snow; An Italian meal, by F. P. Stieff; Three typical Maryland meals; A Mexican dinner, by Cady Wells; A Dutch treat dinner. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '50

"With deep concern for lifting the quality of American food, Crosby Gaige has given connoisseurs a collection of specialty dishes, presented as parts of menus, with directions for preparation that even the inexpert cook will find easy to follow. There are good ideas for special occasions; there are recipes for foods (and drinks) enjoyed and not readily identified, some with regional flavor, some associated with the names of famous chefs."

+ Kirkus 17:620 N 1 '49 130w

" 'Dining With My Friends' makes good reading for anyone who thinks of the dinner table as Mr. Gaige did—as an oasis in a troubled world." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 29 '49 750w

"A book to own and cherish." H. S. Neal

+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 5 '50 190w

GAINES, DIANA. Tasker Martin. 342p $3 Random house

50-7047

"Eight people wait tensely for the return of the inexplicably missing Tasker Martin. Each wanders back in memory to the point where he or she was, for good or evil, drawn into the orbit of his fiercely dominating personality. 'Tass' had made life hard for himself. He used his friends ruthlessly, brooking no opposition, yet commanding unshakable loyalty. His life and character as well as theirs, emerge clearly through the reflections of his wife, his mistresses, his lawyer, his doctor, his publicity man." Library J

GAINES, DIANA—Continued

"Starting with Hollywood-clever phraseology and clinical allusions, the author's perception sharpens, as the story develops, into a real compassion for her characters, regardless of her gift of epigram, until the final flowering of revelation in Martin's character, and the solution of the story embraces that prime requisite of any novel which hopes for more than passing entertainment—faith in the human process." Olive Carruthers
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 23 '50 390w

Kirkus 18:112 F 15 '50 160w

Reviewed by H. R. Forbes
Library J 75:492 Mr 15 '50 90w

"As a picture of the heyday of the gangster era, it is lush and unblushing. . . Diana Gaines takes you on a safari through darkest America, a tooth-and-claw jungle with Sunday supplement morality, and leaves you with an uneasy feeling that her findings may be closer to the truth than one could wish."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Ap 30 '50 110w

Reviewed by J. P. Quehl
N Y Times p27 My 21 '50 140w

GAINES, ROBERT. Final night. 250p $2.75 Doubleday
50-6149

The final night edition of a London newspaper provides the background for this novel of Fleet Street in action. During the course of one day several things happen: a murder trial ends in suicide; Dr Brukmann, a mysterious diplomat, arrives in London and is murdered; a young girl reporter decides to give up Fleet Street for the haven of marriage; her father, an aging reporter, once more makes the front page; and a crisis in the life of the paper's managing editor resolves itself.

Reviewed by Jack McPhaul
Chicago Sun p5 Mr 27 '50 170w

Kirkus 18:32 Ja 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by J. D. Scott
New Statesman & Nation 39:252 Mr 4 '50 180w

"The veritable product of a genre, this novel is a thriller with brains, nothing less, nothing more. It measures out entertainment in muted, equal portions of violence, tension, despair, fear, guilt, the failure of nerve, the small death, the real death, love and the taste of dust. . . 'Final Night,' particularly in the character of Brukmann and in the court-room scenes, reads a lot like the Graham Greene of 'The Confidential Agent,' and 'The Man Within,' respectively, but that is nothing against it." Gilbert Millstein
+ N Y Times p28 Mr 12 '50 230w

"The most arresting character in the novel is Granger, whose loyalty to his paper in the face of personal tragedy and disillusioning aspects of human nature has something sterling about it. All in all, a very readable novel." J. C.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ap 22 '50 250w

Reviewed by Marghanita Laski
Spec 184:288 Mr 3 '50 50w

"In spite of the authenticity of its setting, the story fails to convince; the incidents are too melodramatic; there is too lavish a use of coincidence. . . Worse still, the author has seen fit to write in the style of Mr. Graham Greene."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p69 F 3 '50 330w

GALENSON, WALTER. Labor in Norway. 373p $5 Harvard univ. press

331.88 Trade unions. Labor and laboring classes—Norway 49-8524

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"In general the book is dependable, critical, and highly suggestive, emphasizing the profound significance of Norwegian experience for the United States." F. D. Scott
+ Am Hist R 55:423 Ja '50 410w

"This is an important book for political theorists and public administrators as well as for specialists in labor and economics. For social scientists generally it sets a high standard for painstaking inquiry, careful reporting, and penetrating but guarded analysis and interpretation." J. H. Ferguson
+ Am Pol Sci R 44:206 Mr '50 600w

"The main strength of the book lies in its comprehensive and concrete presentation of these developments in terms that should interest the industrialist, the trade unionist, the economist, the political scientist, and the sociologist. When books of equal scope and merit have been published concerning other European countries, we shall at long last know with whom to deal in Europe, and why." Bjarne Braatoy
+ Ann Am Acad 267:214 Ja '50 360w

Reviewed by E. P. Hohman
J Pol Econ 58:89 F '50 1000w

"Although limited to Norway, this study has wide applicability to the general understanding and treatment of industrial relations, regardless of the forms of government concerned with them."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:369 S '49 400w

GALL, MRS ALICE (CREW) and CREW, FLEMING H. Here and there and everywhere; pictures by Nils Hogner. 56p $1.50 Oxford

Animals, Legends and stories of 50-6620

Nature stories describing how caterpillars become butterflies, how tadpoles become toads, how woodpeckers get their food, how bees make honey, how bats sleep, how birds nest and migrate, how meadow mice dig tunnels, and how grasshoppers shed their skins. This companion volume to All the Year Round (Book Review Digest 1944) is for ages 5-8.

Booklist 46:237 Mr 15 '50

"Nils Hogner's lovely two color illustrations are as appealing as the short tales and young nature lovers will find both accurate information and good entertainment in this easy-to-hold little volume." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Ap 16 '50 120w

"The work of the two writers has proved their knowledge of outdoor things, and they have had long experience in writing for young children who enjoy nature stories. Nils Hogner's authoritative drawings give the book added value." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:198 My '50 80w

Kirkus 18:175 Mr 15 '50 110w

Reviewed by H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 75:703 Ap 15 '50 70w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 My 7 '50 80w

"By skillfully blending fact and fancy and without becoming too whimsical, the authors have made their characters seem like attractive children talking and playing together. Two-color illustrations by Nils Hogner are a perfect complement to the text." Elizabeth Hodges
+ N Y Times p24 Mr 26 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:27 Ap '50

GALLICO, PAUL WILLIAM. The abandoned [Eng title: Jennie]. 307p $2.75 Knopf 50-9484

Peter, a lonely little English boy who longed for a cat as a pet, was knocked down by a lorry as he rushed out to rescue a stray kitten. In his delirium Peter finds himself changed into a cat, with a companion, Jenny, who teaches him the lore of the cat world. Peter and Jenny have some lively experiences before Peter returns to consciousness, and a repentant family.

Booklist 47:2; 39 S 1 '50; S 15 '50

"You should be warned that if you hate cats you'd better not read this story, for it will so entertain you and instruct you in the ways of cats, that your interest and liking will be aroused in spite of you. It's pure fantasy, too, which makes it a little harder to take for people who can't be bothered with sentiment and fancy, such as the cat lovers display. That is, it's almost pure fantasy—there's a perfectly logical explanation of the fantastic turn of events, but this is a blemish on the artistic finish of the book, as tho Paul Gallico were a little ashamed to write something that a rational person could say was quite impossible. But with the rationality sheared away, the story is unalloyed delight." Kelsey Guilfoil

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 10 '50 500w

"Paul Gallico's 'The Abandoned' is classified as a novel. . . But poetry and fantasy so skillfully impregnate the story that a parable of haunting wistfulness emerges. Peter and Jenny seem to typify the search of the lonely hearted for that which is longed for." C. B. Burnett

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 D 19 '50 600w

Reviewed by Joe Dever
Commonweal 52:610 S 29 '50 320w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 26:501 N '50 70w

"A deep knowledge of cat lore and legend, feline psychology and behavior aims this toward a cat-loving audience while its message of loneliness and love will find a reception among those who have a feeling for sentiment."

+ Kirkus 18:394 Jl 15 '50 250w

"Paul Gallico tells a very plausible story, and most young people will be completely charmed by it." M. D. Read

+ Library J 75:2161 D 15 '50 70w

+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 10 '50 120w

"Mr. Gallico's fancy turns to pathos at the end; even Jennie becomes sentimental finally, which shows what happens to cats who play around with humans. And Mr. Gallico's prose slaps its feet firmly on the ground, primate fashion. No sentence leaps through the air, none pounces. Cats prowl a mysterious world on tip-toe, but this position is a difficult one for the writing human. Mr. Gallico doesn't quite achieve it." Richard Lockridge

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 S 17 '50 600w

Reviewed by John Brooks
N Y Times p28 N 19 '50 280w

"Catcalls and cat-astrophe to the human race if this endearing fantasy does not become the 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' of stray cats! In portraying Jennie, a London tabby, Paul Gallico has given us not only a cat's-eye view of the cosmos but a cat immortal." A. F. Wolfe

+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 N 4 '50 270w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 N '50

GALLINGER, MRS OSMA (PALMER) COUCH. Joy of hand weaving; the complete step-by-step book of weaving. 306p il $5.50 Int. textbook

745.52 Weaving 50-6739

A textbook in weaving for the home student. Beginning with the fundamentals of materials and history of the craft, the book gives step-by-step instructions on weaving, first over a small piece of light wood, then thru the uses of various types of looms and the working of complicated patterns to the finished materials and their use in clothing, accessories, draperies, etc. Bibliography. Glossary. List of sources of supplies. Index.

Booklist 46:299 Je 1 '50

"The satisfactions of hand weaving continue to claim more and more amateur craftsmen. Although a fair number of books have already been published for such folk, here is a worthwhile addition to the shelf. Designed for the weaver who must learn the art without formal instruction, it is well organized, clearly written, and adequately illustrated." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:699 Ap 15 '50 120w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:48 My '50

+ School Arts 49:4a My '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 My '50

GALLOWAY, JOHN DEBO. First transcontinental railroad; Central Pacific, Union Pacific. 319p il maps $5 Simmons-Boardman

385 Central Pacific railroad. Union Pacific railroad 50-5137

"In 1863 ground was broken at Sacramento for the start of construction of the Central Pacific, and at Omaha for the Union Pacific. Between that time and the day in 1869 when the rails met at Promontory, Utah, the story is one of labor and more labor on the part of the organizers, the administrators, the financiers, the engineers, and all the rest down to the pick and shovel crews. Mr. Galloway's study begins with chapters on general railroad history and early plans and surveys, but the bulk of the compactly written volume deals with the actual organizing, financing, locating, and building of the road. Bibliography. Index." (San Francisco Chronicle)

"Technically, the book has both its good points and bad. Its greatest virtue in this regard is the inclusion of thirty-two pages of excellent pictures, many of which speak volumes about the problems of the project, but this valuable adjunct is more than offset, in this reviewer's mind, by the failure to include any maps other than the incomplete endpaper sketches. This omission is a decided handicap to the reader trying to follow Galloway's story of the numerous exploratory surveys, especially those in the Wyoming region for the Union Pacific end of the route. The author's style is generally straightforward and clear, but here and there is a tendency toward repetition and the introduction of irrelevancies." H. F. Bennett

+ — Am Hist R 55:930 Jl '50 800w

Reviewed by D. P. Locklin
Ann Am Acad 270:161 Jl '50 240w

"This, the story of the spanning of a continent by the iron horse, probably will never be a best seller. It is too factual, too statistical, too prosaic for the average reader. But for the historian or the railroad fan there is romance aplenty in this chronicle." William Yates

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 Mr 5 '50 140w

Eng N 144:42 Mr 16 '50 140w

"Although Mr. Galloway seems to have had no literary pretensions and his volume is far from, say, Oscar Lewis' 'The Big Four' in literary quality and vividness, it is nevertheless an admirable compendium." Ruth Teiser

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ja 29 '50 500w

"It is an engineer's treatment of an engineering job—solid, substantial, factual, a sound piece of reporting."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:27 My 27 '50 140w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:331 S '50 280w

GANDHI, MOHANDAS KARAMCHAND. Letters to a disciple; with an introd. by John Haynes Holmes. 234p $2.50 Harper

B or 92 Slade, Madeleine 50-8532

This volume contains the letters written by Gandhi to Mira behn, an Englishwoman (Madeleine Slade) who became a disciple of Gandhi's through the influence of Romain Rolland's biography of him. The letters cover the period from 1924 to 1948.

Booklist 47:11 S 1 '50

Chicago Sun p12 Ag 22 '50 140w

"Tho these letters . . . are often brief and sometimes concerned with what may seem

GANDHI, M. K.—Continued
trivialities, they probably bring us closer than anything else that has been published to one of the great saints of our time. Dr. Holmes is quite right when he suggests that the relationship between Gandhi and Mira suggests 'the story which must have attached to Jesus' relations with the high-minded and heroic women who clustered about Him in His ancient ministry in Palestine.'" Edmund Wagenknecht

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 9 '50 410w

"These 351 letters from Gandhi to his English disciple, Mira, preoccupied largely with domestic affairs, diet, and matters of health, appear to be the least vital of the literary offerings on 'the Mahatma' since his assassination. . . Undoubtedly it is a moving story of heroism in devotion, the half of which, however, is untold, for the letters from Mira that brought these brief but affectionate replies do not appear. . . The letters offer little to the reader who would know more of a man whose extraordinary hold over India's teeming millions followed no known rules of leadership." Henry Sowerby

— + Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 15 '50 420w

Kirkus 18:596 O 1 '50 140w

Reviewed by B. B. Libaire

Library J 75:1183 Jl '50 130w

Reviewed by Vincent Sheean

N Y Times p6 Jl 16 '50 800w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 S 3 '50 200w

"Although there is not the least attempt at metaphysical speculation or literary expression in these utterly simple documents—Gandhi was neither a theologian nor a poet—they nevertheless trace something of the outline of the Mahatma's own and of his beloved disciple's heroic march to the divine. . . This book will live when much that is fashionable in literature today is remembered no more. Dr. Holmes's prefatory essay is on a par in felicity of expression and depth of feeling with his great introduction to Renan's 'Vie de Jésus.'" Pierre Van Paassen

+ Sat R of Lit 33:10 Jl 29 '50 500w

GANDHI, MOHANDAS KARAMCHAND. Mahatma and the missionary; selected writings; ed. by Clifford Manshardt. (Humanist lib.) 140p $2 Regnery

275.4 Christianity and other religions—Hinduism. Missions—India 49-11871

"This collection of Gandhi's writings provides the Christian missionary enterprise with a means to see itself through the eyes of a non-Christian friend. . . Among other lessons to be learned here, the Christian missionary is reminded by Gandhi that the individual to whom the Gospel is proclaimed is not a person in isolation. As Gandhi's writings reveal, to preach 'Christ' without taking into account the factors of tradition, caste, religion, occupation, family, neighbors, and village organization, may lead to tragic consequences." (Publisher's note) Glossary.

Booklist 46:183 F 1 '50

"Gandhi's views on any subject are important in recent Indian history. His views on Christian missionary activity are particularly worthy of consideration by American churchmen. And the personality of Gandhi, here as elsewhere, is wonderfully magnetic." A. C. Ames

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ja 8 '50 210w

Christian Century 67:273 Mr 1 '50 490w

"It is an exciting book, flooded with intelligent arguments and wideawake questions, and if Gandhi's frankness does not disturb the conscience of the Christian reader, something is wrong." H. E. Paine

+ Springf'd Republican p6D F 19 '50 500w

GANN, ERNEST KELLOGG. Fiddler's Green. 302p $3 Sloane

50-8111

"Bruno Felkin, born of poor and drunken parents, receives from fisherman Hamil Linden affection previously unknown to him. Under this intoxicating influence, he forsakes pedalling dope, gives up framing Carl Linden for a murder he has committed, and loses his life attempting to save drowning Carl in an angry sea. His death severs the triangle of Bruno, Carl and Connie Thatcher." Library J

Booklist 46:335 Jl 1 '50

Reviewed by R. L. Blakesley

Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Je 4 '50 300w

"A story of action played out on two levels, moral and physical, the drama here is direct rather than subtle; holds its own on a popular plane."

Kirkus 18:214 Ap 1 '50 170w

"The ingredients of a literary novel are present, but they have not gelled to my satisfaction. Recommended, but without enthusiasm." M. G. Checrallah

Library J 75:694 Ap 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by Jean Garrigue

New Repub 123:19 Jl 3 '50 30w

"The author writes good adventure stories and his people are not stock characters. There is true suspense throughout the book. Mr. Gann also knows his San Francisco waterfront and makes the reader feel as if he, too, knew it. The only letdown comes at the conclusion when, after exciting action and apt characterization have kept the reader deeply interested, the author sees fit to tie up the loose ends neatly and to dispose of his characters carefully—and obviously." E. L. Acken

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 O 1 '50 320w

"Bruno Felkin is plausible enough as a small-time criminal. At sea, however, he fails to achieve the stature that Mr. Gann seems to have intended for him; he is not and never will be Ishmael. The land-bound characters, Bruno's girl and a tired cop who is trailing him, are only routine detective-fiction characters. The novel, too, has a serious technical flaw: continually insistent on plot, it nevertheless includes a series of vignettes of characters who never touch the story and therefore serve to confuse the reader. The best of 'Fiddler's Green' is its picture of the fishing life." John Brooks

+ — N Y Times p5 My 28 '50 550w

"Police inspectors, murderers, drunks, bartenders, and, of course, fishermen all have hearts of solid gold in this book, which is a disarmingly unpretentious piece of work and thoroughly fake from beginning to end."

— + New Yorker 26:106 Je 10 '50 120w

"Fast-paced, yet solid, adventure yarn. . . For myself, one of those who found his Fiddler's Green, the subordinate character, Corky Mullins, is the most memorable character in the whole book. Someone once suggested that a novelist's ability to create minor characters was one of the tests of the true story-teller. By this test, as well as others, Mr. Gann comes through with flying colors. In fact, this whole story does, within the limits the author set for it." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 14 '50 850w

"If the publishers were to advertise 'Fiddler's Green' on a money-back guarantee, it would likely prove the safest risk of the season. The author has written a story of such dimension that it will certainly find its place among the better works of contemporary fiction." J. M. Grant

+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 Jl 1 '50 410w

GANNETT, RUTH STILES (MRS PETER KAHN). Elmer and the dragon; il. by Ruth Chrisman Gannett. 86p $2 Random house

50-10224

After Elmer Elevator, hero of My Father's Dragon (Book Review Digest 1948) rescued the baby dragon from the animals of Wild Island, the grateful dragon offered to fly Elmer home to Popsicornia. This sequel tells about their trip home.

Booklist 47:120 N 15 '50

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 12 '50 160w

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 20w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 26:355 S '50 320w

"The pictures are as perfect as the story."
+ Horn Bk 26:469 N '50 80w

Kirkus 18:557 S 15 '50 130w

"Highly recommended." Margaret Martignoni
+ Library J 75:2157 D 15 '50 90w

"All Elmer's practical abilities, in his dream world, are so true to a small boy, in his pet black rubber boots; the baby dragon as created by both author and artist is such a lovable, real person; the enchanting details of the pictures are so well done; the whole is so beautifully printed—that it makes an outstanding book. It stands on its own feet as a story, but should also create new audiences for its predecessor." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 12 '50 270w

"A fresh and original plot, delightfully logical nonsense, appealing characters and irrepressible humor." Eulalie Steinmetz
+ N Y Times p20 N 12 '50 220w

New Yorker 26:176 D 2 '50 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p10 N 12 '50 150w

Sat R of Lit 33:41 N 11 '50 150w

GANOE, WILLIAM ADDLEMAN. My heart remembers. 245p $3 Crowell

B or 92 50-9697

Describes the author's boyhood in various Methodist parsonages in Pennsylvania, shortly after the Civil war.

Booklist 47:2; 136 S 1 '50; D 1 '50

Reviewed by Mildred Walker
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 O 29 '50 450w

"Opinions continue to differ, but most of those who read Mr. Ganoe's book will agree on the value of intellectual honesty, the kind word and the understanding heart, loyalty, and faith."
Christian Science Monitor p15 N 11 '50 180w

"There's little humor, but somehow it is not heavy handed. Uneven but rewarding reading."
+ — Kirkus 18:566 S 15 '50 200w

"Recommended for readers with a definite religious interest." R. P. Tubby
+ Library J 75:1407 S 1 '50 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p32 D 3 '50 140w

"This is another 'I remember' book, but it differs from most of its predecessors in that Mr. Ganoe does not strain constantly to be funny. Rather, he seems intent on paying a sincere tribute to two of Methodism's faithful shepherds." Charlotte Capers
+ N Y Times p39 O 15 '50 20w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 5 '50 320w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 N '50

GANTENBEIN, JAMES WATSON, ed. Evolution of our Latin-American policy; a documentary record. 979p $12.50 Columbia univ. press

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations—Latin America. U.S.—History—Sources 49-50406

"Collection of some 300 official documents—selected from U.S. Government publications, speeches of leading statesmen, diplomatic notes, and international agreements—tracing the main lines of our foreign policy regarding Latin America." (Am Pol Sci R) Index.

"Rather than find fault with any shortcomings, teachers and students should accept this latest tool for the study of inter-American relations with gratitude, and supplement it, if necessary, with other compilations. Dr. Gantenbein should be congratulated for giving us this timely volume." A. C. Wilgus
+ — Am Hist R 55:995 Jl '50 320w

Am Pol Sci R 44:512 Je '50 40w

Current Hist 18:164 Mr '50 70w

Foreign Affairs 29:163 O '50 10w

"The chief value of this work is that it makes readily accessible to students widely scattered documents relating to the development of our political and economic policies toward Latin America. The book should prove most useful as a reference work for the historian and for our State Department and foreign service personnel. For economists interested primarily in international trade and in Latin-American economics it should prove a convenient source book." W. H. Delaplane
+ J Pol Econ 58:460 O '50 450w

School & Society 72:15 Jl 1 '50 20w

GANZ, PAUL. Paintings of Hans Holbein. See Holbein, H. the younger

GARBETT, CYRIL FORSTER, abp. Church and state in England. 320p $3 Macmillan

261.7 Church and state in England. Church of England [50-3708]

"It would be wrong to suppose, and Dr. Garbett does not imply, that the present weaknesses of the Church of England could be overcome entirely by changing its relations to the State. Some of its defects can be traced deep into social history, others are spiritual and symptomatic of a general decline in faith. In this book, however, Dr. Garbett is concerned solely with the impediments to the growth and pastoral activity of the Church which arise from the present conditions of establishment, and he shows clearly that these impediments are serious." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Index.

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 67:1360 N 15 '50 2200w

Reviewed by F. J. Moore
Churchman 164:17 N 1 '50 260w

"Whatever may be the verdict on the proposals which the Archbishop makes in this volume, a tribute of unqualified admiration is due for the method by which the proposals are presented. It is a book in which the arrangement of subjects, the excellent historical surveys by which each question is introduced, and the wealth of personal experience, family, priestly and episcopal with which actual situations are illuminated, might well provide a model for intending authors. While the Archbishop disclaims any desire to offer original research, and indeed the busy life of an archbishop precludes such a possibility, the extent of the historical presentation of each subject reveals a skill and depth of reading which many more leisured writers might envy. . . As a 'deviator' myself, I am convinced that there will have to be changes in its present 'fundamental doctrines'. . . I know it must be difficult, especially for a bishop, not to desire a clearer foundation from which to work; but I believe that the proposals which Dr Garbett makes with such moderation and good sense would still be spiritually disastrous to the future of the Church of England." James Parkes
+ — Hibbert J 48:402 Jl '50 1200w

"Temperate, lucid, and uncontroversial study." Geoffrey Bruun
+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 N 4 '50 320w

School & Society 72:350 N 25 '50 30w

Times [London] Lit Sup p2 Ap 7 '50 1050w

GARCEAU, OLIVER, and others. Public library in the political process [a report of the Public library inquiry]. 254p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

027.473 Libraries 49-50082

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by H. F. Gosnell
Am Pol Sci R 44:503 Je '50 150w

Current Hist 18:166 Mr '50 60w

"There is much to be gained from a careful and thoughtful reading of Mr. Garceau's provocative and serious analysis of the actual practice of public libraries. The material is presented in a clear-cut and realistic fashion. While there may be disagreement with some of his suggestions, there can be little quarrel with his conclusion that librarians must understand the political process of which they are a part and must develop a more dynamic participation in the political life of our society. This book is an important addition to library literature and deserves to be widely read and discussed." Harry Brinton
+ Library J 75:272 F 15 '50 500w

Reviewed by Reuben Frodin
Library Q 20:302 O '50 1800w

"Those both within and without the library field, and particularly political scientists, will find much of interest in this study which probes deeply into the political process."
+ Special Libraries 41:28 Ja '50 120w

Reviewed by Althea Warren
Survey 86:166 Mr '50 500w

"Although many librarians will disagree with some of Dr. Garceau's interpretations and conclusions, this book is a stimulating and valuable discussion of the problems it presents, and should be of interest to social scientists as well as to librarians."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:90 Mr '50 280w

Wis Lib Bul 46:11 N '50

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Case of the musical cow. 275p $2.50 Morrow

50-7856

Detective story.

Booklist 46:353 Jl 15 '50

"Technical and tricky detection."
Kirkus 18:220 Ap 1 '50 70w

"Rob is not the most effectual of heroes, and the details about his profession of dog training seem irrelevant here—perhaps they might make another mystery for Mr. Gardner. The scientific background is the only thing which keeps this story from being one of Gardner's lesser efforts."
— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Jl 2 '50 230w

"It's a pity that the only thing [Gardner] forgot to add to this latest book was a good story. His plot (a matter of murder and smuggling which somehow involves cowbells) is slight and its solution based on singularly weak deduction. Even so, the book is still worth investigating for one episode of postmortem reasoning, which is as fine a specimen of fictional use of forensic medicine as anything since the Thorndyke novels of R. Austin Freeman." A. B.
— + N Y Times p21 Jl 9 '50 180w

"Nonsense but agreeable. Incidentally, neither Perry Mason nor Doug Selby appears this time, and on the whole it seems to be an improvement."
+ New Yorker 26:112 Je 10 '50 90w

"The least satisfactory Gardner in many a long moon." E. D. Doyle
— San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 4 '50 70w

"Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 Je 10 '50 30w

Springf'd Republican p8D Je 18 '50 130w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Case of the negligent nymph. 275p $2.50 Morrow

49-50387

Detective story.

Booklist 46:233 Mr 15 '50

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p58 Ja 6 '50 200w

"Decorated plot, providing Perry Mason with one of his most agile courtroom performances."
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ja 22 '50 70w

+ Kirkus 17:613 N 1 '49 70w

"This is one of Perry Mason's less involved cases. The denouement is so simple as to be almost anti-climactical, but it is sound for all that, and there is some good courtroom stuff behind it."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ja 8 '50 190w

"Fine legal intricacies, a neat deductive puzzle, whirlwind tempo and a long spectacular court room scene are what you expect of the best Mason mix-ups. They are all here, plus an unexpected life and bite to some of its writing. When it is really at the top of its beat, 'The Case of the Negligent Nymph' has overtones that almost make one believe that Mr. Gardner has been collaborating with his colleague, A. A. Fair." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p16 Ja 8 '50 180w

"Overfamiliar but better than his last few."
New Yorker 25:84 Ja 7 '50 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 22 '50 150w

Springf'd Republican p17A Ja 8 '50 110w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 Ja '50

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Case of the one-eyed witness. 270p $2.50 Morrow

50-10518

Detective story.

"There seem a few weak spots, but it's good reading to the end."
+ — Kirkus 18:537 S 1 '50 90w

"This is good Gardner, fast paced and most ingeniously plotted."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 D 24 '50 200w

"Perry Mason's latest case, involving arson, alibis and adoption rackets, gets off to a slow start and may prove easily solvable to the amateur, but Mason's legal pyrotechnics have rarely been more brilliant." A. B.
+ — N Y Times p38 N 19 '50 120w

"Not one of this author's best."
New Yorker 26:168 N 4 '50 70w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 17 '50 80w

GARDNER, HELEN LOUISE. Art of T. S. Eliot. 185p $3 Dutton

811 Eliot, Thomas Stearns 50-9034

"Miss Gardner concentrates on a detailed interpretation of 'Four Quartets,' but she sees these later works in the light of Eliot's work as a whole, and she analyzes the earlier poems and plays with sympathetic insight. Part of the book is based on a series of lectures delivered by the poet in Oxford in 1948." New Yorker

---

"Many readers will be unable to share Miss Gardner's reverent attitude toward a poet who, for all his talk of love, seems singularly wanting in that large humanity of which Shakespeare is the supreme example. . . Yet one cannot fail to be grateful to her for her appreciation of the particular ways in which Eliot's work is fibred with 'the boredom, and the horror, and the glory,' and for her careful elucidation of his technique." Babette Deutsch
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 O 1 '50 700w

"A volume to stand beside Matthiessen on the now crowded shelf of Eliotiana."
+ New Yorker 26:141 O 21 '50 60w

"Miss Gardner unfortunately doesn't grasp what the full subject of the Quartets is, until nine-tenths of the way through her book, and then it is too late to make much use of her discovery. . . Miss Gardner's learning and her sympathy with Eliot's purposes make her book interesting in spite of its poor organization, its ill-concealed delight in Eliot's many incidental orthodoxies and tamenesses, and its tendency to force its good points with casuistry. Much of her sleuthing is fresh and illuminating. If one seems unduly impatient with the pious truisms on which the useful matter of such a book is launched, it is because one fears everyone's patience will give out before the one disciplined, sympathetic and self-effacing study appears which will justify all that has gone before." R. W. Flint

— + Poetry 77:41 O '50 2300w

Reviewed by George Snell

San Francisco Chronicle p19 D 3 '50 550w

GARDNER, MONA. Middle heaven. 282p $3 Doubleday

50-13208

Japan before and shortly after the war is the scene of this novel. It is a story of transition from the days of ancestor worship, with the women of the family completely dominated by the men, to the modern outlook, where women are allowed to manage their affairs. The heroine is Tomo, who learns by harsh experiences, that women can, and sometimes must, assume the leadership.

Booklist 47:39 S 15 '50

"Definitely a contrived tale, but the dialogue strikes an Occidental ear with an authoritatively Oriental tone. The life of a Japanese peasant family is charmingly described with a sure air that makes it realistic enough for a reader who has never penetrated west of San Francisco." Mary Sandrock

+ Cath World 172:74 O '50 200w

"The author shows a great understanding of the myriad customs, traditions and superstitions that hedge about every Japanese life. Only once does she stretch imagination a bit far. That is when she pictures Tomo, almost at the end of the tale, becoming 'modern' with the advent of the occupation and postwar years." Edith Weigle

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 27 '50 290w

Reviewed by Takashi Oka

Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 12 '50 950w

"Though this lacks the maturity, the sureness of The Good Earth it could almost be defined as a Japanese parallel. . . It is an absorbing and utterly fascinating book, a perceptive portrait of the Japanese way of life, as new ideas begin to take root with the defeat which put them under the foreign heel. The rhythms are Oriental without hampering the pace of the story."

+ Kirkus 18:362 Jl 1 '50 300w

"A novel that should create an atmosphere helpful in understanding the task of the Japanese. A good light story, quickly and easily read. Recommended." M. P. McKay

+ Library J 75:1291 Ag '50 90w

"Her story of a rural family in war-time Japan is both credibly human and unmistakably Japanese. Since much writing on Japan is either inexcusably romantic or unduly critical, this is in itself a rare achievement. . . Her sense of Japanese psychology is sure and sympathetic, her knowledge of its idiom and custom intimate and informed. As a result, her book makes the impression of having been written from inside. . . I can think of no better introduction to Japan and the Japanese than this well told, well conceived, revealing and sensitive story." Bradford Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ag 6 '50 750w

"Mona Gardner's style is excellent, her characters are well drawn and alive. If comparisons with 'The Good Earth' inevitably arise, 'Middle Heaven' holds its own. It is a thought-provoking, moving book for which, as Tomo might have said, 'our thanks flow on.'" Evelyn Eaton

N Y Times p16 Ag 6 '50 400w

"A vigorous and entirely absorbing story, with a heroine who sounds unpromising but is actually more attractive and human than most fictional women are apt to be."

+ New Yorker 26:72 Ag 12 '50 80w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 20 '50 750w

"'Middle Heaven' is a book which should certainly be read for a sympathetic understanding of a misled people who may yet become our fighting allies." L. H. Crockett

+ Sat R of Lit 33:47 S 23 '50 450w

GARFIELD, JAMES ABRAM, and HINSDALE, BURKE AARON. Garfield-Hinsdale letters; correspondence ed. by Mary L. Hinsdale. 556p $5 Univ. of Mich.

B or 92 49-11580

"When Burke Aaron Hinsdale, aged sixteen, entered Western Reserve Eclectic Institute, at Hiram, Ohio (later it became Hiram College), he met there a teacher seven years his senior who was earning his way, in advance, through Williams College. James A. Garfield left for the East a year later, in 1854, but the friendship between Garfield and Hinsdale held on. . . The correspondence between these two men and minds has been available to Garfield biographers . . . but it has never been published in extenso. Actually Miss Hinsdale has here transcribed only 300 of the 900 letters available, taking care to include all which are of political significance." Sat R of Lit

"The correspondence lacks much that today is considered desirable. There are no scandals, no revelations, no confessions. Neither man was capable of writing with the bitterness and cynicism now fashionable. In fact they wrote right through the period considered nowadays as corrupt and disastrous, without being aware of it. They saw things that they did not like; they condemned the same things that are usually cited in modern writings, but they never considered the country rotten nor society bankrupt. There is something tonic in their resolute good faith and good sense. The late Miss Hinsdale edited the letters with care and thoroughness, doing an especially successful job in identifying every one of the many names included, whether at Washington or on the Western Reserve." T. C. Smith

+ Am Hist R 55:634 Ap '50 440w

"The correspondence goes above and beyond politics. Garfield's was one of the finer intellects to reach the highest office in America (only one President held it for a shorter period) and evidence of this fact is frequent in the letters." J. T. W.

+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 Mr 11 '50 240w

"The main interest of this correspondence is naturally in the field of American political history, and it is a valuable source that fully justifies publication and the pious labours of Dr. Hinsdale, who edited it, but died before she could see this commemoration of the close, impressive and revealing friendship between her father and his teacher and political leader."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p188 Mr 24 '50 1250w

GARLAND, HENRY BURNAND. Schiller. 280p il $3.75 McBride

B or 92 Schiller, Johann Christoph Friedrich von 50-8004

In his preface the author says: "The aim of this book is twofold. I have sought in the first place to portray Schiller as a credible person, not the carefully posed, statuesque figure which too often does duty for him. I have attempted to do this by dealing fully with his early struggles, in which he appears particularly clearly as a sensitive, suffering human being. Secondly I have endeavoured to interpret Schiller's work as something which, while transmuting reality, never ignores the truth of human character which is its foundation. In consequence of this double aim the emphasis of the book gradually swings from the events of his life to concentrate, in Schiller's later years, almost exclusively upon his work, as it develops into the object and focus of all his faculties and powers." Bibliography. Index.

GARLAND, H. B.—Continued

"Recommended to medium-sized libraries." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:1192 Jl '50 50w

"Schiller's letters and works, collated with German and English biographies, are the sources out of which he has constructed his own first-rate biography, the first to be published in some time." C. E. M.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 18 '50 270w

"Dr. Garland's study does not try to peer into Schiller's mind; wherever he interprets him as a person he does so on the strength of his writings and letters. Very well written and arranged to be read easily even by the uninitiated, this book should be a welcome addition to the narrow shelf of recent studies of German literature." Robert Pick
+ Sat R of Lit 33:26 Je 17 '50 250w

School & Society 72:319 N 11 '50 20w

"Professor Garland's [book] is addressed primarily to teachers and students of German literature. . . . Straightforwardly informative and written out of sincere admiration for Schiller's integrity of character, [his book] will fulfil a useful function by giving English students, too long forced to rely on foreign criticism in this field, something to counteract both snooty attempts to reduce him to a mere rhetorical idealist and chauvinistic attempts to distort him into a national hero. But the publishers, according to the dust-cover, imagine it will also appeal to those whose interest in German literature is less specialised. I wonder." E. M. Wilkinson
+ Spec 184:24 Ja 6 '50 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p81 F 10 '50 2350w

GARNER, CLAUD. Cornbread aristocrat. 328p $3 Creative age
50-9433

"The backdrop of this novel is early nineteenth century Arkansas Territory complete with pioneers and Indians. In the supporting roles are the usual two desirable women—one with virtue, the other Amberhued. Thus the stage is set for Tobias Giles, whose personal history forms the fabric of this book. It is the tale of a youth who emerges from the waterfront slums of Norfolk, goes West to make a fortune, and becomes a man of distinction in the frontier settlement of Washington." N Y Times

Reviewed by F. N. Litten
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 22 '50 300w

"An absorbing novel that paints a richly colored panorama of the old Southwest frontier from the 1820's to the eve of the Civil War."
+ Kirkus 18:400 Jl 15 '50 220w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge
Library J 75:1407 S 1 '50 90w

"As the plot suggests, this is an intensely moral book, with all the sins of flesh and bottle spelled out, and good Christian virtue—by name—triumphing handily. With the exception of some interesting historical background on the predicament of the slave-owning states prior to the Civil War, Claud Garner's book is the familiar roistering, sexy, plot-filled, sometimes tedious historical novel."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p36 N 12 '50 300w

Reviewed by Sergei Lenormand
N Y Times p35 O 1 '50 180w

Springf'd Republican p8D N 26 '50 150w

GARNETT, ARTHUR CAMPBELL. Freedom and planning in Australia. 331p $4 Univ. of Wis. press

338.994 Australia—Economic policy. Australia—Politics and government. Australia—Social conditions 50-5037

"In the main a study, based on immigration and settlement policies of the past, of the politically active Australian people, and the advances made toward planned social security. The author, Australian born, university professor in U.S. since 1928, devotes chief attention to analysis of the development of labor relations through conciliation and arbitration courts, and progressive attitudes toward state action on unemployment and socialization." Library J

"The book's title is somewhat misleading, and some concepts such as socialism and planning are used loosely. However, the book's contents are informative and valuable." Werner Levi
+ — Am Hist R 55:971 Jl '50 280w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
Ann Am Acad 270:189 Jl '50 140w

Booklist 46:195 F 15 '50

"It is all told in exceptionally interesting fashion."
+ Current Hist 18:165 Mr '50 50w

Reviewed by Walter Watson
Ethics 61:85 O '50 110w

"Garnett's approach is that of a 'progressive' political scientist who combines secular stagnationist economics with the New Republic version of the class-conflict interpretation of politics (actually Garnett is a philosopher by profession); consequently crotchety hairsplitters like this reviewer can find much to criticize. . . But the material on welfare legislation and employment policy in Australia is so well organized and expounded that the questionable points in the analysis may legitimately be overlooked. The really serious shortcoming of the book lies in Garnett's failure to attain his stated objective: he does not succeed in giving us the 'feel' of life and politics in Australia." Donald Dewey
+ — J Pol Econ 58:275 Je '50 900w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:176 F 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by Edward Littlejohn
Pol Sci Q 65:631 D '50 220w

Reviewed by P. R. Levin
Sat R of Lit 33:20 My 6 '50 230w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:203 Je '50 160w

GARNSEY, MORRIS EUGENE. America's new frontier; the mountain West. 314p $3.50 Knopf

978 West—Industries and resources. West—Economic conditions 50-7765

The "Mountain West" is comprised of the states of Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico. "The first purpose of this book is to examine the economy of the Mountain West as it now exists and to anticipate, in some degree, its future development. The second purpose of the book is to analyze and assess the current policies of government and industry which are determining the present and future economic structure of the region." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:10 S 1 '50

Current Hist 19:166 S '50 40w

Kirkus 18:198 Mr 15 '50 150w

"An important book for all those having a stake in the future of the West." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 75:557 Ap 1 '50 140w

Reviewed by H. N. Smith
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 4 '50 2000w

Reviewed by Haniel Long
N Y Times p15 Je 18 '50 150w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 18 '50 420w

"Here is an important and engrossing book, so full of the future yet so stoutly grounded in the present that it has every possibility of becoming a landmark in economic thought about the West and in American political tradition. Everyone who is concerned about the future of the West or, more broadly, about the most urgent social problem of our day, the finding of a satisfactory equilibrium between centralization of power, human liberty, and economic progress, can take fresh courage from this vigorous argument for a vital new regionalism." D. L. Morgan

+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 Je 10 '50 750w

"The book is a lucid and first-rate piece of writing intended for general readers as well as professionals; it should win a high place in the growing literature of regional economic and political analysis."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:354 S '50 260w

GARRATY, JOHN ARTHUR. Silas Wright. 426p $5 Columbia univ. press

B or 92 Wright, Silas 49-10575

Biography of Silas Wright, lawyer, politician, United States senator, and governor of New York in the Jacksonian era. Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Garraty's account of Wright's life, while clear and well balanced, is by no means free from defects. There are points at which the author's critical judgment has not been given full play, as in his treatment of Wright's attitude toward small bills, and his analysis of the Democratic 'stop and tax' position of the early 1840's. The book's interest is diminished by the author's penchant for laboriously worked out detail, and his frequent use of lengthy paragraphs. There is only a modicum of interpretation and generalization. But if Mr. Garraty's book has its faults, it also has its virtues. The style is simple and straightforward. The exposition of political situations, particularly of the confused and complex New York state politics of the 1820's, is clear and reasonable. Anecdotes and stories are used repeatedly and with good effect." G. G. Van Deusen

+ — Am Hist R 55:625 Ap '50 550w

Am Pol Sci R 44:506 Je '50 20w

"The two biographies of Wright published within a few years of his death were ponderous, denatured, and dull. A modern critical biography has long been needed, and John A. Garraty's new book thus fills an important gap. Wright left no papers of his own, but nearly every large contemporary collection of the papers of a prominent Democrat has many Wright letters. Professor Garraty has done an industrious and faithful job in locating Wright material in libraries and private collections through the eastern states. The result is a well-documented, careful, and able reconstruction of the life of Silas Wright." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.

+ Ann Am Acad 268:217 Mr '50 440w

"The book is well organized, well written, and often penetrating in its insights into the exuberant and labyrinthine politics of the eighteen-twenties, thirties, and forties."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:40 Mr '50 320w

GARRETT, CONSTANCE. Growth in prayer. 156p $2 Macmillan

264.1 Prayer 50-5677

A study of prayer as a communication with God, as opposed to the simple idea of asking for what we want. The book is divided into sections: Learning to pray; Vocal prayer; Mental prayer; Group prayer; Practice of prayer. Contains prayers and litanies. No index.

"The obvious theme and real value of the book are in the help it gives to those who are concerned with the personal growth in prayer they desire for themselves or for those whom they would teach and lead. It would be difficult to imagine anyone who would achieve no growth in prayer by reading this book." R. E. Keighton

+ Crozer Q 27:285 Jl '50 140w

"A very simply written book on prayer. . . This would be a good book to put into the hands of a member of a confirmation class or to give to a new seeker for the truth. Particularly useful for Episcopalians but not exclusively so."

+ Kirkus 17:649 D 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 26 '50 320w

GARRETT, EILEEN JEANETTE (LYTTLE). Sense and nonsense of prophecy. 279p il $2.75 Creative age

B or 92 Prophecies. Occult sciences. Psychical research 50-9904

"In this companion volume to Adventures in the Supernormal [Book Review Digest 1949], Mrs. Garrett continues her reminiscences. As a famous medium, she met, and here comments on, the outstanding personalities in her field—Besant, Ouspensky, Steiner, Orage—as well as various colorful charlatans. Her special interest, psychic research, is further explained." Library J

Booklist 47:150 D 15 '50

"This book is delightful reading." W. P. Sears

+ Churchman 164:16 D 1 '50 120w

"A sound, popular approach which is readable, sympathetic and presumably authoritative. There is a steady and definable market for this type of book."

+ Kirkus 18:544 S 1 '50 180w

"Recommended." E. L. Lewis

+ Library J 75:1654 O 1 '50 120w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 D 10 '50 210w

New Yorker 26:189 N 18 '50 200w

Springf'd Republican p4D O 22 '50 160w

GARRETT, HELEN. Tophill road; il. by Corydon Bell. 251p $2.50 Viking

50-6975

Story of a city family's move to the country where the children at first were lonely and discontented, but in time found plenty of entertainment. When Dad's book was finished and it was time to return they agreed that tho it was good to go back to their friends and good times in the city, they would look forward to a return later to country life.

Booklist 46:278 My 1 '50

Bookmark 9:214 Je '50 40w

Chicago Sun p5 My 16 '50 70w

"This happy, realistic family story, enriched by the author's insight into the world of the outdoors, is one nine to 12 year olds will love reading to themselves, but it is a book for the whole family to enjoy together." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 4 '50 320w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '50

"The theme of the story is a familiar one, but it contains a slight though well-sustained mystery, certain fresh characters and a fine appreciation of outdoor things. Corydon Bell's drawings are sympathetic and effective." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:194 My '50 120w

"A happy, intelligent story whose locale is almost any country town."

+ Kirkus 18:61 F 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by Louise Davis

Library J 75:635 Ap 15 '50 70w

"A good, leisurely story of family living." E. W. Turpin

+ Library J 75:987 Je 1 '50 80w

"It makes a grand story for a family to read aloud, full of good practical suggestions, but also full of touching and moving observation of a very human family." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 23 '50 350w

GARRETT, HELEN—Continued
"Although weak in plot, the book has considerable charm because of the author's success in showing happy family relationships and because of her vivid descriptions of outdoor life." Elizabeth Hodges
+ — N Y Times p22 Ap 30 '50 130w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor
San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 12 '50 110w

Sat R of Lit 33:28 Jl 8 '50 170w

Wis Lib Bul 46:26 My '50

GARST, MRS DORIS (SHANNON). Crazy Horse, great warrior of the Sioux; il. by William Moyers. 260p $2.75 Houghton

B or 92 Crazy Horse (Oglala Indian)—Juvenile literature 50-5660

Fictionized biography of the leader of the Sioux Indians who fought constantly against the encroaching white men. The climax of the story is the Custer "massacre" followed shortly by Crazy Horse's capitulation and death. For grades 7-9. Chronology. Bibliography.

Booklist 46:221 Mr 1 '50

"Unusually well-written biography."
+ Bookmark 9:165 Ap '50 40w

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 16 '50 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 26:290 Jl '50 100w

"A dramatic, exciting story with a feeling for the period."
+ Kirkus 18:65 F 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:639 Ap 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by S. J. Johnson
Library J 75:785 My 1 '50 50w

"The story is exciting and, of course, brutal. It leads to the horrors of Custer's last stand, Miles's fight with Sitting Bull, and the surrender of Crazy Horse in 1877. The trick by which he finally was killed makes a tragic end, which will leave young readers with more sympathy than ever for the Indians. A long bibliography is preceded by a useful summary of dates of true events covered in the story." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 19 '50 290w

"This would have been a more valuable book had Mrs. Garst indicated just how much of the story is fictionized, for parts of this study are occasionally confusing when compared to the chronology of Crazy Horse's life which has been included. Even so, this account of a heroic fighter for justice will give readers of 12 and up a keen realization of those violent days of Indian fighting and an insight into the Indian viewpoint." E. L. B.
+ — N Y Times p22 F 19 '50 180w

New Yorker 26:189 D 2 '50 60w

Sat R of Lit 33:42 My 13 '50 150w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:289 S '50 120w

Wis Lib Bul 46:27 My '50

GARST, MRS DORIS (SHANNON). Will Rogers: immortal cowboy; il. by Charles Gabriel. 174p $2.75 Messner

B or 92 Rogers, Will—Juvenile literature 50-7011

A fictionized account of the life of Will Rogers, written for grades seven to nine. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:291 My 15 '50

"This is an exceedingly well-written biography of this favorite American, suitable for any age, but particularly good for teen agers."
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 S 9 '50 110w

"This biography wisely plays down the more sardonic elements in Rogers and emphasizes the energy and versatility of the man; nevertheless some material appears liberally watered and the direct quotations are a sharp contrast to the rather elemental manufactured dialogue. As a story this reads well and has plenty of entertaining anecdotes."
+ — Kirkus 18:66 F 1 '50 170w

"An adequate study, though somewhat marred by a pedestrian style and a tendency to eulogize. Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges
Library J 75:1198 Jl '50 80w

"The story of his rise to fame is well presented with emphasis upon his skillful roping and his transition from cowboy to the cowboy commentator who charmed audiences with his pungent, witty remarks about the daily scene." Margaret Scoggin
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 My 7 '50 150w

"This author has used her material well. Her understanding characterization provides both a lifelike acquaintance with a favorite American and an enjoyable book." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p16 Jl 16 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:27 My '50

GARTHWAITE, MRS MARION (HOOK). Tomás and the red headed angel; il. by Lorence F. Bjorklund. 190p $2.50 Messner 50-10108

A romance for older girls, of the early days of California when it was still under Spanish rule. The heroine is Angelita, red-haired daughter of a high-born Spanish family; the hero is the young Indian boy whom Angelita befriends and who becomes her most devoted servant.

Booklist 47:120 N 15 '50

"This new winner of the Julia Ellsworth Ford Foundation award shows a fine feeling for people and place and a gift for story telling which should make it highly popular with 10 to 14 year olds." P. G.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 12 '50 160w

"A handsomely written and sensitively constructed novel."
+ Kirkus 18:469 Ag 15 '50 240w

"The plot rises to exciting climax, with the enforced betrothal of Angelita, and her escape from one she does not wish to marry, through the help of Tomás. It is all well written, vigorous, colorful. Tomás is a boy who personifies a cruel period which, through him and Father Boniface, also held hope of a kinder future in California." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 12 '50 220w

"The plot, although loosely woven, creates a telling picture of mission days in California. The romance is shadowed by the hardships of the Indians under Spanish rule. Older girls will appreciate the special setting and the exciting episodes." I. S.
+ N Y Times p28 N 12 '50 150w

New Yorker 26:182 D 2 '50 80w

"Perhaps the most important thing about the book except the fact that it holds the reader spellbound from the first paragraph to the last, is that the author hasn't sentimentalized the California scene as many writers of adult fiction have done."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p8 N 12 '50 450w

GARVE, ANDREW, pseud. Fontego's folly. 214p $2.50 Harper 50-7724

Murder and its detection in a British colony (typical of the West Indies colonies). Part of the action concerns the rehabilitation of a leper settlement.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p5 Je 6 '50 60w

Reviewed by Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Je 11 '50 50w

Kirkus 18:188 Mr 15 '50 110w

"The reader who is hand in glove with the criminal knows who killed Dubois. The suspense lies in the criminal's attempts to cover his own tracks, which in time become so frantic that he exposes himself. A negligible crime story which carries a mild interest because of its unusual background."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Je 11 '50 190w

"Andrew Garve, a new writer, not only sustains the excitement but draws a convincing picture of a character in the process of disintegration. His 'local color' includes a leper colony and a drunken native fiesta." Hillis Mills
+ N Y Times p20 Je 4 '50 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p25 My 21 '50 90w

"Exotic semitropical (West Indian?) scene, bizarre and tragic characters, excellent writing, give 'suspense novel' more than ordinary stature."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 Je 10 '50 30w

GARY, ROMAIN. Company of men; tr. from the French by Joseph Barnes. 248p $3; pa $1 Simon & Schuster
50-7120

The hero of this tale is a young French boy, son of a hero of the Resistance killed by the Germans. The boy refuses to become a ward of the nation after the Liberation and enters instead the Parisian underworld of thieves, prostitutes, black marketeers, ex-collaborationists.

Booklist 46:275 My 1 '50

"Despite occasional flashes which reveal the plight of morally adrift young riffraff, the novel lacks authority. It is not the story of a Luc and his shabby companions but an awkwardly contrived piling of horrors. Putting the tale outside the realm of the believable, it is elaborately told in the first person by unschooled Luc. Characters and motives are lost in a cheap adolescent mist." Mary Sandrock
— Cath World 171:393 Ag '50 200w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p9 Ap 30 '50 600w

" 'The Company of Men' is a novel which carries tremendous conviction. One may easily and properly question its wistful philosofy of futility; but of its characters and its events one can feel no doubt. These people are real; they have the strength and mobility and drive of actual persons. And the sordid, desperate involvement which is here presented as life is every instant full of shock, compulsion, and an intolerable authenticity." Richard Sullivan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 23 '50 270w

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p7 Ap 22 '50 850w

Kirkus 18:36 Ja 15 '50 200w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 S 8 '50 130w

"How desperate all this sounds! And so it is—but told with what high spirits! When moral intent is delivered with such esthetic tang, art and meaning enjoy a happy life together." Jean Garrigue
+ New Repub 123:22 Ag 7 '50 450w

"Thanks to a most adroit translation the novel makes excellent reading. But deeper than that, and in spite of its faults it is a fine, exciting parable of love and suffering in our time." Frederic Morton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 23 '50 950w

"Despite the sordid substance of this novel, it is a powerful work of bitter satire and first-rate humor. Gary is a social critic who knows how to write. The French blame the blackness of his vision on the fact that he was born in the land of Dostoevsky. However this may be, his novel, as a picture of life in newly liberated Europe, should take its rightful place beside the Italian film 'Shoeshine.' " Justin O'Brien
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 16 '50 420w

Reviewed by A. J. Liebling
New Yorker 26:90 Je 17 '50 800w

"Despite defects and confusion, 'The Company of Men' is a powerful and brilliantly told story, a hideously clear and fearful picture of abandoned children and a novel that well reveals the very marked ability of its author." C. W. Weinberger
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 14 '50 900w

"How much of compassion and how much of bitter disillusionment there was in Luc's last recorded act, each reader must decide for himself, and he must decide, too, exactly what it was that Romain Gary wished to say in his closing, somewhat ambiguous, pages. Whatever the decision, 'The Company of Men' will have proved itself a book worth reading. Joseph Barne's translation is, as far as I can judge without seeing the original, excellent." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 Je 3 '50 650w

"The story does not, in truth, make sense, while its philosophising is always a little juvenile and phoney, but the random humours and excitements are contrived ingeniously enough." R. D. Charques
— + Spec 184:330 S 22 '50 190w

Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 130w

Time 55:94 My 29 '50 450w

GASSNER, JOHN, ed. Treasury of the theatre [from Henrik Ibsen to Arthur Miller]. rev ed for colleges 1120p il $5.50 Simon & Schuster; for sale by Dryden
808.82 Dramas—Collections (50-8153)

A revision of volume one of Treasury of the Theatre (Book Review Digest 1935) edited by Burns Mantle and John Gassner, and revised by P. M. Buck and others in 1940. Includes 39 plays of which 17 were included in the earlier volume. Bibliography.

"Gassner's fine critical mind and nice historical instinct is apparent in the choice of plays, the introduction, [and] the critical analyses of the authors represented." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:1047 Je 15 '50 100w

"Its new edition is sure to become established as the leading textbook in the modern drama; more than that, it is a godsend—and also a bargain—for the general reader."
+ Theatre Arts 34:5 Ag '50 420w

GASTER, THEODOR HERZL. Thespis: ritual, myth and drama in the ancient Near East; foreword by Gilbert Murray. 498p $8.50 Schuman
291 Mythology. Drama. Rites and ceremonies. Levant—Religion 50-6864

"What this extraordinary book tries to do is 'to discover [the] circumstances which . . . inspired [an] important genre of ancient literature' and to demonstrate its full meaning for us today. In effect, what Theodor Gaster does is to trace the evolution of ritual into myth and the evolution of both into drama." N Y Times

"Enormously valuable for all theatre, religion and Near East collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:1828 O 15 '50 70w

"Mr. Gaster, Associate Professor of Ancient Near Eastern Civilizations and Folklore at the Asia Institute in New York, worked 'twelve uneasy years' on this remarkable volume. Its successful completion is to the credit of the Littauer Foundation, which made publication of the book possible. A monumental endeavor admirably undertaken has been monumentally realized." Saul Colin
+ N Y Times p15 Ag 6 '50 600w

GATHORNE-HARDY, ROBERT. Recollections of Logan Pearsall Smith; the story of a friendship. 259p $3.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Smith, Logan Pearsall 50-7048

A personal memoir of an American-born English essayist, remembered chiefly for his volumes Trivia, and More Trivia. The author met his subject when he, a young man in his twenties, was a clerk in an antiquarian bookshop, and Logan Pearsall Smith was a man of sixty. Mutual interests led to friendship and to a financial arrangement by which the younger man became the older's disciple and aide. The friendship lasted over sixteen years but was marred at the end by Smith's insanity.

"What is especially irritating in the book is the tone of intense, somehow paltry seriousness and complacency. This may be interesting psychologically in the subject: it is unforgiveable in the writer. A certain skill in a mandarin-like prose tends to make matters worse." Chester Duncan

— Canadian Forum 30:76 My '50 320w

"Those who have made a cult of 'Trivia' and accepted Logan Pearsall Smith as 'the Sage of Chelsea' or 'a saint of the life of letters' must be prepared for a shock when they read this book. . . Far from being a genial postscript to Smith's graceful if deftly fatuous memoir 'Unforgotten years,' it proves to be one of the grisliest examples of literary biography that has come to light within recent memory." M. D. Zabel

Nation 170:405 Ap 29 '50 1600w

New Repub 123:19 Jl 3 '50 420w

"This book is moving, frightening, a precise account of the toll of a mental disease, set down with both objective and subjective detail. . . Gathorne-Hardy's recollections are a clinical record of manic depression, set down with beauty and tenderness, and also horror. I think the recording will stand as Boswell's account of Johnson stands, as a document of a period in literary history; and as Sir Osbert Sitwell's account of his father stands. All are monuments to the personalities they describe. . . Presently some other scholar, with these materials, and greater scope of Pearsall Smith's beginnings as well . . . will hand on the legacy of Pearsall Smith's English prose and his research into the past, and the lessons of his curious life, and dreadful death." Ernestine Evans

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 My 14 '50 1000w

"After many years of mutual trust and affection the relationship of Pearsall Smith and Gathorne-Hardy began to deteriorate. Toward the end, Pearsall Smith behaved very badly to his disciple. This book, skillfully, sensitively, truthfully written and worthy in those respects of his disciple, is the story of that tragic friendship. . . Psychologically, the book is extremely interesting. I have one fundamental criticism to make: it should have been part of a biography of Pearsall Smith." Desmond MacCarthy

N Y Times p38 O 22 '50 650w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson

New Yorker 26:99 My 27 '50 650w

"It may be that this book will stand as the best character analysis that will ever be made of Pearsall Smith. It may just as well be that others who knew him will refute some of Gathorne-Hardy's points, since it is clear enough that though the latter knew his subject well he is hardly an unprejudiced observer. In any event, those who know Pearsall Smith's work and admire his brilliance will follow Gathorne Hardy's account with fascination." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 21 '50 850w

"The book in general suffers from two major shortcomings. For the recollections of Smith one would expect a chronicle of the fabulous society in which he moved, a snob among snobs, but the magic names are merely mentioned, and only occasionally. . . Instead we see him in the twilight of his life and only while he was working or quarreling with his 'perpetual apprentice.' What we have, then, is a series of glimpses through the keyhole of Smith's study. . . The other shortcoming is entirely the author's. Since Smith quarreled with him and disinherited him, he is constantly on the defensive, protesting that he is fair and without bias." Robert Halsband

Sat R of Lit 33:29 Ag 19 '50 500w

"A fascinating memoir."

+ Time 55:117 Ap 24 '50 600w

"There remains enough material in Logan's life for several more biographies but there will never be another which conveys with such intensity of detail, such an extraordinary picture of a remarkable human being."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p6 Ja 6 '50 2100w

GATZKE, HANS WILHELM. Germany's drive to the west (Drang nach Westen); a study of Germany's western war aims during the First World war. 316p $5 Johns Hopkins press

940.343 European war, 1914-1918—Germany. Germany—Politics and government 50-7516

"An analysis of German war goals during the First World War to show political conditions and the expansionist aims of parties, Junkers, and the ruling class. The influence of the industrial leaders on military plans is discussed." Current Hist

Reviewed by Kent Forster

Am Hist R 56:197 O '50 400w

"This is a very solid survey of German war aims towards the west, the Drang nach Westen, during the war of 1914-18, based on a wide variety of first hand sources. Although the general (and in part the particular) nature of these aims was familiar enough, this appears to be the first systematic survey in English of their definition and more particularly their development during the four years of war." R. Flenley

+ Canadian Hist R 31:325 S '50 650w

Current Hist 18:354 Je '50 40w

Foreign Affairs 29:154 O '50 10w

"In general, this is a wholly admirable book, worth considering by every contemporary student of history or politics." A. J. P. T.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 S 29 '50 300w

"This book is valuable; there has been need for a study like it for thirty years. . . Mr. Gatzke's evidence makes the failure of the successive peace feelers understandable and illuminates a neglected aspect of the war-guilt question. If there is anyone who believes that the secret treaties and territorial greed of the Allied Powers were the only or chief impediments to an earlier negotiated peace he should read this judicious exposé."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:20 Jl 15 '50 320w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:331 S '50 380w

GAUM, CARL GILBERT, and others. Report writing. 3d ed 384p $4 Prentice-Hall

808 Rhetoric. Reports—Preparation 50-6645

"Text-book on technical report writing. From the simpler report in letter form it proceeds through discussion of forms of composition and requirements in style to procedure in gathering facts, planning the report and preparing the manuscript, including the use of tables and graphical devices to make the report more understandable. Some actual reports, or excerpts, are included for illustration. Classified bibliography of books and periodicals useful to the report writer." Library J

Booklist 46:355 Jl 15 '50

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

+ Library J 75:1188 Jl '50 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:64 Jl '50

School & Society 72:31 Jl 8 '50 10w

GAUSS, CHARLES EDWARD. Aesthetic theories of French artists, 1855 to the present. 111p $3 Johns Hopkins press

759.4 Painting, French. Esthetics 49-11002

"Starting with the rejection of Gustave Courbet's realism by the jury of the Exposition in 1855, a rapid survey explores the ideas which motivated the painting of Manet, Seurat, Pissarro, Renoir, Cézanne, Gauguin, Matisse, Braque, Dali, and others, down to the present. . . The essence of each significant movement (realism, impressionism, symbolism, fauvism, cubism, and surrealism) is briefly stated, as often as possible in the artist's own words, from letters or manifestoes. Sometimes the writings of outstanding critics contemporary with the artists . . . are also used. The result is a handy sampling of, and guide to, the essential literature of these influential art schools." Sat R of Lit

---

"Mr. Gauss has written a book which is packed with information elsewhere inaccessible. Unfortunately he has had to translate his documents into English and omit the French originals and he has also omitted the illustrations which might have made portions of his work more telling. His demonstration of the scientific and philosophic background of the manifestoes is merely sketched in. But when all this is admitted, it must be granted that he has accomplished something which no other book, so far as we know, has even attempted." G. B.

+ — J Philos 47:534 Ag 31 '50 240w

"Though Mr Gauss's central concern is with 'painterly problems,' it might have been refreshing if, perhaps with the aid of a few illustrations, he had taken the trouble to show specifically how different ideas had resulted in different styles of painting and more purely esthetic solutions. Instead, this is a book on artists without a single picture. . . But these are minor criticisms of a solid, if admittedly modest, achievement." S. J. Kahn

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:66 D 3 '49 700w

"Mr. Gauss, associate professor of philosophy at the George Washington University, has contributed an informative study of the aesthetic theories of French artists. His book has two great merits. First, the writings of modern artists have been chosen as the basis of research. . . The second merit of the book is to show that each aesthetic theory reflects a philosophical background, and that therefore the problems of the artist are the problems of the philosopher, the engimas of the external world."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p148 Mr 10 '50 1350w

"Some of the parallels seem far-fetched. The exposition of the painters' theories is, however, thorough, and the extracts from their often not easily accessible writings are both interesting and valuable."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:443 D '49 320w

GAYNOR, FRANK, ed. Pocket encyclopedia of atomic energy. 204p $7.50 Philosophical lib.

541.2 Atomic energy 50-8607

"The terms include not only those which relate specifically to atomic energy and nuclear fission but a selection of technical terms from related fields which are sometimes encountered in literature dealing with atomic energy. As examples of the latter, 'Ohm' and 'Oxygen' are included. Definitions range from single lines to more than a page. Unfortunately many of the definitions are couched in technical terms. There are several supplementary reference features, including short biographical sketches of prominent men in the field, a table of isotopes, etc." N Y New Tech Bks

---

Booklist 47:71 O 15 '50

"Although the work will probably find its way into few pockets, it should be useful on library reference desks, the desks of journalists, and other places frequented by nonspecialists who must struggle with the new vocabulary of nuclear fission and related fields."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:49 Jl '50

"The author makes no claim to completeness but he has covered in remarkably clear and concise fashion the leading topics in this rapidly changing field. He is also very up to date." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 15 '50 200w

GAZDANOV, GAITO. Specter of Alexander Wolf; tr. from the Russian by Nicholas Wreden. 223p $2.75 Dutton

50-6246

Story of a young Russian-born Parisian journalist and his search for the mysterious Alexander Wolf. Wolf was the author of a short story in which the young Russian recognizes an account of a meeting which he and only one other witnessed—and that other one was presumably dead. Eventually the two come together again and finally the "specter" is laid to rest.

Reviewed by George Miles

Commonweal 52:50 Ap 21 '50 350w

"Not easy reading, but those who seek novels of the poltergeist school will find it absorbing. A skillful piece of difficult translation by Nicholas Wreden."

+ — Kirkus 18:34 Ja 15 '50 190w

"Book has a certain sombre distinction, with its dwelling on the impermanence of human life and the constant icy presence of death, and will be appreciated by readers of (say) Crime and Punishment." E. F. Walbridge

Library J 75:492 Mr 15 '50 100w

"Though not adroitly written, Gazdanov's book is never tedious, and it succeeds in insinuating serious meaning into a plot that might easily have been formula-ridden." Stephen Stepanchev

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Mr 26 '50 320w

"This book is a curious but adroit mixture of novel, psychological study and reportage." Rene Fulop-Miller

N Y Times p40 Mr 19 '50 230w

"His novel has much of the flavor of a Maupassant story, and it would have gained in ultimate effectiveness as a long short story, for its interesting plot is too thin to sustain a full-length novel. Length is achieved largely by the element of psychologizing but it is excessive and often static, and an existentialist involvement of the death-wish in the person of the mysterious Alexander Wolf is annoyingly alien in its modernity to the total atmosphere of the story. . . On the whole, this is a highly acceptable first effort, Mr. Gazdanov has a real talent for dramatic action, which is only furtively suggested in the novel, especially in the incident of the criminal Curly Pierrot." E. J. Simmons

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:28 Mr 25 '50 500w

Reviewed by R. F. Henchey

Springf'd Republican p10C My 14 '50 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p657 O 20 '50 180w

GEBLER, ERNEST. Plymouth adventure; a chronicle novel of the voyage of the Mayflower. 377p $3 Doubleday

50-7049

A fictional account of the voyage of the Mayflower from England to Cape Cod, and of the first winter spent by the Pilgrims in New England. The story is reconstructed from letters, journals, and histories.

Booklist 46:254; 275 Ap 15 '50; My 1 '50

Bookmark 9:185 My '50 30w

"An earnest, careful book, but the reader is apt to find it a plodding tale."

+ Cath World 171:313 Jl '50 220w

"'The Plymouth Adventure' is without the poetic fire and sense of the epic which marked Carl Sandburg's retelling of this same voyage in the first section of 'Remembrance Rock.' But if it lacks the epic sense of the poet, it does have the everyday quality of the realistic novelist and this brings its own rewards." Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun p5 My 4 '50 450w

"This, it seems to me, is the truest picture that we could have of the Plymouth adventure, the more remarkable in that it was written by a man of mixed Czech and Irish ancestry who has never been in this country. The hardships endured become painfully real and the conflicting forces that pulled the Pilgrims one way and another are completely realized. It will be a long time before we have a better account." Kelsey Guilfoil

GEBBLER, ERNEST—Continued
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 30 '50 500w

"It has taken Mr. Gebler, an Irishman living in England who has never so much as set foot in America, to present the Mayflower story stripped of its stultifying conventions, as a living chronicle of living men and women. . . Mr Gébler has given us a memorable book." Ruth Chapin
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 My 6 '50 1350w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '50

"I found it absorbingly interesting, even to those parts of the record that are familiar."
+ Kirkus 18:139 Mr 1 '50 320w

"This is a warm book. . . Nothing about the whole Plymouth enterprise, Mr. Gebler thinks, can be quite as dramatic as the facts, and his book is written to prove it, which it pretty well does." E. B. Davis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 14 '50 1050w

Reviewed by Edward McSorley
N Y Times p32 Ap 30 '50 190w

"Mr. Gébler prefers the phrase 'documentary chronicle' to 'historical novel' as a designation for his work, on the ground that he hasn't tinkered with the actual sequence of events, as set forth in his sources. In the course of plugging up the historical gaps, however, and deducing the personalities of his characters, he has strayed far from the path of documentation and, quite often, of probability."
New Yorker 26:106 Ap 29 '50 180w

Reviewed by Anne Comfort
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Jl 2 '50 450w

"Ernest Gébler's clear, sympathetic, lifting story of the first Americans to risk their lives for freedom of opinion will refresh and nourish all who believe in that American ideal and mean to have it for themselves. It is a fine book—admirable, authentic within its terms, and fascinating reading to the Americans nursed on a cambric-tea account of the Mayflower. It deserves a place among books which have something to say and in that sense is contemporary." Edward Stanley
+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 Ap 29 '50 900w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 23 '50 480w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 My '50

GEE, WILSON, PARHAM. Social science research methods. 390p $4 Appleton
307.2 Research. Social sciences 50-8236

"Designed as an introduction to methods of research common to all the social sciences, this book opens with a summary of the nature and interrelationships of the social disciplines, moves to an assessment of their current development and prospects, to a presentation of the nature of research in general and of social science research in particular, to the description of some methods (e.g. logical, historical, survey, experimental) chosen by the author as important in all the disciplines concerned, and ends with a chapter on social science research organizations. The exposition develops principally through the citing of extended quotations from 'authorities' on the topics covered." (Am Soc R) Index.

Reviewed by G. E. Swanson
Am Soc R 15:695 O '50 280w

"The author has properly anticipated one of the major criticisms of this work in his preface, when he attempts to forestall adverse comment growing out of the too liberal use of quotation and excerpts. Unfortunately no amount of preface explanation can override this glaring deficiency. By actual count, on almost two-thirds of the pages the quoted materials exceed those which have been prepared by the author. . . However, if one has the tenacity which is emphasized as one of the essential qualities of a researcher, and if he accepts the limitations imposed by the excessive quotation without synthesis, he will find the book suitable as a reference document." L. L. Moak
Ann Am Acad 272:260 N '50 340w

Current Hist 19:107 Ag '50 50w

School & Society 72:399 D 16 '50 30w

GEISEL, THEODOR SEUSS (DR SEUSS, pseud). If I ran the zoo [written and il.] by Dr Seuss. [54p] $2 Random house
50-10185

In verse and pictures shows what young Gerald McGrew would do if he ran the zoo. Gerald was tired of the same old lions and tigers, so here is what his fancy run wild makes of the new zoo.

Booklist 47:120 N 15 '50

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 12 '50 150w

"Has a range and freedom of extravaganza that I found utterly delightful." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 26:354 S '50 80w

Horn Bk 26:466 N '50 70w

Kirkus 18:558 S 15 '50 150w

"As you turn the pages, the imaginings get wilder and funnier, the rhymes more hilarious. There will be no age limits for this book, because families will be forced to share rereading and quotation, for a long, long time. Hurrah for you, Dr. Seuss, and thank you for one of the funniest children's books in a blue moon." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 12 '50 230w

"All the Dr. Seuss books are popular with children, as well as with the adults who read them aloud. . . This newest one is among the best." Frances Chrystie
+ N Y Times p42 N 19 '50 130w

New Yorker 26:175 D 2 '50 60w

"Dr. Seuss has never imagined or created a better or funnier picture book than this one."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:37 N 11 '50 200w

GELBER, LIONEL MORRIS. Reprieve from war; a manual for realists. 196p $3 Macmillan 341 International relations. World politics
50-8755

A Canadian historian in this book applies the lessons of predominant power to the 1950 situation. He maintains that power, concentrated in the right hands, is the only solution for a world on the verge of global war. Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:1056 D '50 10w

"The only section of this book with any life to it is the part that deals with the founding of the state of Israel. . . In his command of historical facts, the author shows his best side. As a writer, he is an elephant on skates; a ponderous academic trying to write with what he assumes is literary grace. Despite the attempted frills, the writing is pedantic and humorless. Ideas and countries are moved about like chess-men. It is hard to discover any link with living, suffering, searching humanity." A. A. Shea
— + Canadian Forum 30:161 O '50 900w

"In the matter of who should be counted among the free nations, Mr. Gelber's argument leaves room for close scrutiny. When he declares that the hope of enlisting Germany in the cause of the West is a piece of sheer unteachableness—comparable to German unteachableness in matters democratic—he excludes a number of possibilities that appeal strongly to the Anglo-American nature. . . Mr. Gelber has some shrewd comments to make on the East-West struggle. . . By way of peroration, Mr. Gelber leaves his cold war theme to unburden himself of a bitter ex parte tirade against Britain for its delays in establishing a Jewish state in Palestine." Henry Sowerby

Christian Science Monitor p6 Ag 12 '50 750w

Current Hist 19:229 O '50 60w

"The market for a book of this type is problematical; study groups primarily, I'd say."
Kirkus 18:327 Je 1 '50 280w

"Mr. Gelber is much vaguer in his discussion of Far Eastern problems than in dealing with Europe and the Middle East. He is inclined to regard the Communist conquest of Asia as a potential liability to the Kremlin; he is sound in pointing out the immense appeal of 'Asia for the Asiatics' but rather less helpful in providing an answer to this slogan." H. W. Baehr
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ag 27 '50 750w

"A brief and vigorous book." E. D. Canham
+ N Y Times p9 Jl 30 '50 900w

"Mr. Gelber's sane and often penetrating views on the state of the world deserve a better mode of presentation." H. L. Roberts
+ — Pol Sci Q 65:596 D '50 750w

San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 10 '50 200w

"Taking the hard facts of history, Lionel Gelber has furnished us with a rational argument for power politics. It is a particularly timely book when we realize just what the lack of power—on the part of those who believe in freedom—has cost us in Korea." Walter Johnson
+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 S 16 '50 650w

GELFAN, LEWIS DAVID. Embroidered city. 369p $3 Little 50-6378

A story of a Chinese city during the war years and the attempts of Americans to bring in relief to the famine-stricken inhabitants.

Booklist 46:210; 246 Mr 1 '50; Ap 1 '50
Bookmark 9:212 Je '50 40w

"Mr. Gelfan's novel labors under a heavy burden of sometimes useless incident, an unfortunate amount of patness in characterization and a Hollywood coloring in background. Yet its effect is one of power because it is sincere and deeply moving. It is a solemn and terrible picture of the helplessness of the little people when they entrust their destiny to unscrupulous leaders." V. P. Hass
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Je 4 '50 500w

"An intelligent integration of international pressures and individual aspirations, there's restraint here and more than a little irony."
+ Kirkus 18:34 Ja 15 '50 190w

"Characterizations are done in broad strokes, writing is fast-moving, liberal, and faintly ironic in exposing human frailty. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 75:397 Mr 1 '50 100w

"'The Embroidered City' . . . is completely satisfactory as a novel of adventure. . . As the love-story of Diane Hadley and Peter Corey, it seems to me least successful, though many readers may enjoy that couple's somewhat maundering conversations and personal soul-searchings. As a picture of China, uneven as the book is, sliding frequently into caricature only to be wrenched back into the real world by the harshness of its incidents, [it] is, I think, most rewarding." J. J. Espey
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 23 '50 900w

"Characterization is uneven: the U. N. R. R. A. leader is a mouthing moron; the vice consul is the only dynamic actor among the Occidentals. But the Chinese are well done—especially the cowardly, illiterate general and the subservient mayor." H. E. Wedeck
N Y Times p30 Ap 23 '50 190w
New Yorker 26:118 My 6 '50 150w

"The book is particularly well timed. One hopes it will be well and widely read." Eleanor Breed
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 23 '50 600w

"'The Embroidered City' is a painstaking book. It is refreshing to find a first novel not blurred by self-conscious impressionism and cloudy passages of 'style.' A writer is brave to be so ambitious in his first attempt and Mr. Gelfan has doubtless learned much from experimenting with so many figures upon one stage. We shall wish him luck in concentrating his strong pictorial powers with greater emphasis and direction." Margaret Mackay
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:26 Je 10 '50 550w

Reviewed by R. F. Henchey
Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 140w

GELLHORN, WALTER. Security, loyalty, and science. 300p $3 Cornell univ. press
351.74 Loyalty. Scientific research. Scientists 50-14649

"This volume is one of a series made possible by a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation to Cornell University. For two years a group of scholars working individually under my direction have studied the impact upon our civil liberties of current governmental programs designed to ensure internal security and to expose and control disloyal or subversive conduct. This research has covered federal and state legislative activities in this area, the operation of federal and local loyalty programs, and this book by Professor Walter Gellhorn of the Columbia University School of Law is a study of the administration of security policies in 'sensitive' areas." (R. E. Cushman in Preface) Index.

Booklist 47:127 D 1 '50

"Professor Gellhorn's book . . . is lucid, balanced, and judicial; and the very moderation of its tone makes its conclusions all the more impressive and devastating. . . 'Security, Loyalty, and Science' is the first volume in a series of basic importance for all Americans who care about their freedom. I hope it gets the wide audience it deserves." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.
+ Nation 171:392 O 28 '50 1400w

Reviewed by J. R. Newman
New Repub 123:18 N 6 '50 2900w

Reviewed by H. S. Commager
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 O 15 '50 1350w

"This is a superlatively good book. In treating a difficult and delicate subject Walter Gellhorn, Professor of Law at Columbia, is penetrating, eminently fair, and highly readable." G. R. Stewart
+ N Y Times p3 O 15 '50 800w

"Scholarly in the best sense, which means that it is well documented, judicious, and free from cant or jargon. Any intelligent reader can comprehend [it]." J. E. Burchard
+ Sat R of Lit 33:9 D 30 '50 700w

"The whole job is done neatly, carefully and eloquently." George Britt + Survey 86:462 O '50 1700w

GEORGE, JOHN LOTHAR, and GEORGE, JEAN CRAIGHEAD. Masked prowler; the story of a raccoon; il. by Jean George. (American woodland tales) 183p $2.50 Dutton
Raccoons—Legends and stories 50-9413

Detailed record of the daily life of Procyn, the raccoon, among the other wild creatures in a southern Michigan forest. For boys and girls of 12 to 14.

Booklist 47:65 O 1 '50
Horn Bk 26:476 N '50 40w

"A beautifully written and illustrated story."
+ Kirkus 18:561 S 15 '50 100w

"Beautiful writing, combined with sound knowledge of wild life make this a distinguished book. Excellent format." M. A. Herr
+ Library J 75:1674 O 1 '50 70w

GEORGE, J. L.—Continued

"The Georges' style is purely descriptive, and its meticulous nature descriptions could seem dull to some younger readers. However, to many of twelve or over, their acute observations will continue to be fascinating, and their enthusiasm for the woods contagious." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 12 '50 270w

"Again the Georges have shown themselves to be astute, sympathetic observers of wildlife; again they have depicted in readable prose and fine illustration a realistic animal character. But they have not succeeded in recapturing the dramatic quality and the element of suspense which distinguished their first book, 'Vulpes, the Red Fox.'" Elizabeth Hodges

+ N Y Times p34 O 8 '50 180w

GEORGI, CARL W. Motor oils and engine lubrication. 514p il $8.50 Reinhold

629.2874 Automobiles—Lubrication 50-8470

"A comprehensive survey of the current knowledge of lubrication requirements and problems in internal combustion engines. About half of the volume is devoted to discussions of the production, qualities, and testing of lubricating oils produced for engine lubrication. The remainder is devoted to performance of oils in engines, especially automotive engines, although there is some discussion of stationary engines. (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"The subjects are presented in a clear and concise manner. This book is useful both as a textbook and as a reference book, and it can be recommended to all who are interested in lubricating oils and the performance of lubricating oils in engines, including students, oil salesmen, fleet operators, lubricating engineers, and advanced workers in theory and practice." H. C. Mougey

+ Chem & Eng N 28:2997 Ag 28 '50 250w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:57 Jl '50

"The book is of potential interest to every automobile driver. It will be particularly useful to fleet operators, as well as to petroleum technologists and automotive engineers, and to students."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:388 S '50 230w

GERAHTY, DIGBY GEORGE (ROBERT STANDISH, pseud). Follow the seventh man. 244p $3 Macmillan

50-9485

Novel of England and an eastern country called Zimbatan. Peter, an upright English lad, and his child sweetheart Sue, were friends to Selim, son of the Sultan of Zimbatan. When all three were grownup Peter was summoned to Zimbatan to become advisor to the new Sultan Selim. With Sue as his wife Peter was happy at first, until he began to see thru the machinations of Selim. Tragedy ended the friendship begun in England.

Reviewed by Mary Sandrock

— Cath World 172:75 O '50 200w

"As fiction it doesn't come off; its phrasing is wooden; its people are thin; there is more Malayan life on one chosen page of Joseph Conrad than on all the pages of this earnest book, or in all the Malays of Zimbatan as rendered here. Yet the scenario is first rate." Richard Sullivan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 S 17 '50 330w

"More than a little Hichens' derivative here, this is neither better nor worse than the recent Elephant's Walk."

Kirkus 18:368 Jl 1 '50 180w

"All the human relationships are at conventional magazine-level and worthless. Yet there are passages . . . in which Mr. Standish is very interesting: his descriptions are vivid and his political comments shrewd, and it is a touch of imaginative realism that gives him the idea of building Selim's palace with the Aberdeen granite formerly used as ship's ballast and surrealistically dumped on this glittering shore." Norman Shrapnel

— + Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 25 '50 130w

"Mr. Standish's people are recognizable, for we have seen them before in Kipling and Somerset Maugham and all their imitators. Unfortunately they are not memorable, except as types. . . It all makes for pleasant enough light reading. Maybe that was all Mr. Standish intended." Bradford Smith

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 O 1 '50 550w

Reviewed by James Kelly

N Y Times p28 S 17 '50 290w

"Mr. Standish has written a good adventure yarn, investing it richly with the glamor of far away places. But the story lacks something." J. V.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p26 N 26 '50 400w

"From the wooden British public servant Peter Rumbold and his story-book sweetheart, Susan, to Selim, the demoniacal Malayan potentate, the human element rings false at every touch. Their history is contrived all the way and we cannot take them seriously, which is too bad for the actual erudition which must have gone into creating a setting for them." N. L. Rothman

— Sat R of Lit 33:54 O 7 '50 130w

Reviewed by L. A. G. Strong

Spec 184:279 S 8 '50 350w

GERNSHEIM, HELMUT. Lewis Carroll, photographer. 121p 64il $4 Chanticleer

B or 92 Carroll, Lewis, pseud. of Charles Lutwidge Dodgson. Photography 50-6198

A study of Lewis Carroll as an amateur photographer during a period from about 1855 to 1880. The work is based chiefly on extracts from unpublished diaries, an album of photographs, and the author's knowledge of the art of photography as practiced both professionally and as a hobby during the nineteenth century.

Booklist 46:245 Ap 1 '50

"If you have any interest at all in the early days of photografy, which Mr. Gernsheim covers before dealing with Carroll's contribution, this book should fascinate you." Robert Cromie

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Ag 13 '50 200w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 75:781 My 1 '50 100w

"Though these photographs do not at first sight impress one like those by Julia Margaret Cameron, whom Mr. Gernsheim has dealt with in a previous book, one gradually realises that they show a subtlety and variety of composition which is really remarkable." S. B.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 3 '50 270w

"Mr. Gernsheim's book gives an account of the early decades in the new art, quotes at length from unpublished Carroll diaries, reprints Carroll's own writings on photography, and is (claims the publisher) 'definitive and exhaustive.' Certainly it throws an enhancing side-light on the most irresistible and curious of all the great Victorians." G. W. Stonier

+ New Statesman & Nation 39:308 Mr 18 '50 1150w

Reviewed by Ernestine Evans

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 16 '50 500w

Reviewed by Walker Evans

N Y Times p7 Mr 5 '50 140w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson

+ New Yorker 26:127 My 13 '50 700w

"His book will be a required volume for Carroll collectors and for all others interested in knowing more about the private life of the man who created Alice, her Wonderland and Her Looking Glass. . . The accident that led Mr. Gernsheim to the old album in which Carroll mounted 115 of his photographs, and thus made possible this book, was a fortunate one for all who confess to an interest in Carroll, and Mr. Gernsheim's excellently developed examination of this side of Carroll's private life is and will remain a significant contribution to our understanding of the sensitive, imaginative artist-mathematician-writer whose books for and about children are among the greatest in the English language." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 6 '50 500w

Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ag 19 '50 300w

"Biographically as well as photographically this book is a most valuable and entertaining addition to the vast Victorian library which is now accumulating on our shelves, and Mr. Gernsheim is to be congratulated upon a highly successful presentation." C. E. Vulliamy
+ Spec 184:282 Mr 3 '50 900w

"Lewis Carroll: Photographer must rank among the most stimulating and entertaining picture-books that have reached us during the past year. A long and informative preface contains interesting extracts from Dodgson's photographic diary."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p212 Ap 7 '50 1100w

GERSON, NOEL B. Savage gentleman. 306p $3 Doubleday
50-7981

Historical novel based on the period of Queen Anne's war, 1702-1713, as it affected a group of people living near Schenectady, New York. The heroine is Leah Hill, the beautiful young daughter of a prosperous American frontiersman; the hero, Jeffrey Wyatt, an Englishman who was a bondsman on Leah's father's estate.

"Good accounts of wilderness fighting distinguish this effort from others of its genre."
Chicago Sun p5 Ag 6 '50 70w

" 'Savage Gentleman' has the merit of restraint and spare writing, tho not at the expense of color or action. Its movement is rapid and steady, and no reader will find the novel dragging at any time. Mr. Gerson's historical research seems to have been adequate, and he has indeed re-created a little known period of American history. . . Yet, despite its good historical background, despite the feeling that the author is quite properly more interested in history than romance, 'Savage Gentleman' is neither better nor worse than the average American historical novel." August Derleth
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 11 '50 350w

"High adventure and romance during the French and Indian wars, told with an enthusiasm and flair that almost salvages a hackneyed plot and thin characters from oblivion."
— + Kirkus 18:144 Mr 1 '50 170w

Reviewed by H. F. West
N Y Times p24 Je 25 '50 230w

San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ag 27 '50 100w

Reviewed by J. M. Grant
Sat R of Lit 33:26 Jl 29 '50 220w

GERSTELL, RICHARD. How to survive an atomic bomb. 150p $1.95 Combat; for sale by Rinehart
623.3 Atomic bomb 50-11807

Instructions and advice for the general public on what to do in case of an atom bomb attack. Presented chiefly in question and answer form. Author is at present a consultant to the Civil Defense Office of the National Security Resources Board.

Booklist 47:129 D 1 '50

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 19 '50 270w

"This is a good book so far as it gives facts on which citizens can plan with confidence, a dangerous book in so far as it encourages a national tendency to overconfidence. Mr. Gerstell on The Bomb has produced an aspirin for Armageddon." Michael Amrine
N Y Times p26 N 5 '50 750w

San Francisco Chronicle p29 D 10 '50 280w

Springf'd Republican p8D N 12 '50 160w

GERVASI, FRANK. Big government; the meaning and purpose of the Hoover commission report. (Whittlesey house publication) 366p $4 McGraw 353 U.S. Commission on organization of the executive branch of government. U.S.—Executive departments 49-10899

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by Ferrel Heady
Am Pol Sci R 44:217 Mr '50 380w

"Of all the growing body of literature concerning the great work of the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government (Hoover Commission), this book best combines detail and readability. It is a magnificent contribution to the program for public understanding and support of governmental reorganization. At the same time, it is firm evidence for the general proposition that apparently dry materials can be presented in vividly readable style and also with dignity." F. L. Burdette
+ Ann Am Acad 268:215 Mr '50 340w

"A good reportorial job of reducing the findings and recommendations of the Hoover Commission to a compass within the grasp of the layman."
+ Foreign Affairs 28:509 Ap '50 20w

Reviewed by L. M. Hacker
Sat R of Lit 33:40 Ja 28 '50 500w

"Big Government will not replace the original Commission reports for the serious student, but it does present an interesting account of the significant work of the Hoover Commission."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:506 D '49 280w

GESELL, ARNOLD LUCIUS, and others. Vision: its development in infant and child. (Paul B. Hoeber bk) 329p il $6.50 Harper
136.7221 Sight. Child study 49-48915

"The study is divided into three sections preceded by an Introduction which discusses in three chapters the genesis and scope of the book. Part I, The Growing Action System, contains four chapters. The first treats the genesis of vision, the remaining chapters describe the growing action system in infancy, in the preschool, and in the school child. The five chapters of Part II are descriptively titled: The Visual Domain, The Complex of Visual Functions, The Young Eye in Action, The Ontogenesis of Visual Behavior, Maldevelopment and Child Vision. Part III has two chapters, A Development Hygiene of Child Vision, and The Conservation of Child Vision. There are appendices on examination sequences and procedures, and on ontogenetic gradients of visual behavior." U S Quarterly Bkl

"The parents who have enjoyed Dr. Gesell's earlier books may find this one tough going, but all persons working or associated with children—or adults for that matter—as well as teachers, psychologists and philosophers, should put it on their list. The persistent lay reader will also find much of interest." Merle Lawrence
+ N Y Times p18 D 11 '49 370w

"The style of the text is easy but somewhat wordy. The book will be of interest to all students of child development."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:85 Mr '50 210w

GESSLER, CLIFFORD FRANKLIN. The reasonable life; some aspects of Polynesian life: what we may learn from it in developing in our own lives the strength of quietness. 214p $2.75 Day 919.6 Conduct of life. Polynesians 50-8003

The author, an American journalist, lived for some time on two small islands of Polynesia. His book tells only indirectly of his experiences, deals directly with the lessons, which, he believes, the Polynesian's ways of life hold for Americans.

GESSLER, C. F.—Continued

"As a journalist, Mr. Gessler displays a concern for reportorial accuracy and a talent for lucid description lamentably rare among his contemporaries. As an anthropological study, the book is satisfactorily comprehensive and, as a narrative, it maintains a nice balance between personal experience and careful observation. Unfortunately, the author does not confine himself within the limitations of his profession but, deducing general principles from his observations, he proceeds to apply these in a critical fashion to western society. . . Not content with presenting his data accurately and in what is admittedly a pleasing style, the author involves himself in a speculative exercise which is manifestly absurd." P. H. C.
+ — Canadian Forum 30:164 O '50 450w

"Information and philosophy interesting, but manner of presentation tends towards the pedantically solemn." H. S. Taylor
+ — Library J 75:981 Je 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by Walter Karig
N Y Times p14 Jl 30 '50 350w

"Perhaps the best thing about 'The Reasonable Life' is Mr. Gessler's own reasonableness. He does not set out to be 'inspirational'; he is no professional 'do-gooder.' But he does want to pass along, to any who may find it worth their while, what he has found good in the reasonable life in which his Polynesian friends are so well grounded." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 6 '50 800w

"The book obviously makes no contribution to anthropology. The repetition of small exhortations such as, for example, 'We need to cultivate a sense of proportion,' and, 'Let us not be discouraged by imperfection,' is more than a little tiresome. But on its own level, as a kind of combination travel and 'self-help' book, it is a not uninteresting account of some of the folkways of Polynesia." Robert Bierstedt
Sat R of Lit 33:33 Je 24 '50 220w

GHEON, HENRI, and BROCHET, HENRI. St Anne and the gouty rector, and other plays; tr. by Marcus Selden Goldman and Olive Remington Goldman [with an introd. by Marcus Selden Goldman] 190p $2.50 Longmans
842 50-7423

Seven plays translated from the French. The title play is a modern version of the St Nicholas legend. Contents: St Anne and the gouty rector, by Henri Gheon; The gardener who was afraid of death, by Henri Brochet; The sausage maker's interlude, by Henri Gheon; The poor man who died because he wore gloves, by Henri Brochet; Parade at the devil's bridge, by Henri Gheon; Christmas at the crossroads, by Henri Brochet; St Felix and his potatoes, by Henri Brochet.

"If this volume does not find its way into multitudinous Catholic libraries they will be much the poorer. And if our secondary schools and church societies do not hurry to present these vivid and popular examples of Catholic art—instead of reviving old Broadway successes or new Broadway failures—they will have only themselves to blame!" Katherine Brégy
+ Cath World 171:478 S '50 280w

"Recommended for drama collections in college and middle to large public libraries." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:1047 Je 15 '50 50w

GHEORGHIU, CONSTANTIN VIRGIL. Twenty-fifth hour; tr. from the Romanian by Rita Eldon. 404p $3.50 Knopf 50-14872

"This Rumanian writer believes quite simply that we have turned to worship a god, mechanical efficiency, that will destroy the humanity in us and breed monsters. With ferocious irony he tells what happens to a peasant who is caught up in the war and atrociously manhandled by the bureaucracy on both sides—not as a man but as a category, and usually a mistaken one at that." Manchester Guardian

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 186:94 N '50 1000w

"The reader will interpret the novel according to his own historical tenets, but he cannot fail to read in it one of the most poignant indictments of man's inhumanity to man that has ever been put on paper." Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 29 '50 700w

"For all its reiterated philosophical theses, 'The Twenty-Fifth Hour' is highly emotional rather than rational. Reflecting a mood of despair, strongly tinged with bitterness and self-pity, it is an almost classic portrayal of man as victim, but without those gleams of spiritual awareness which sometimes raise such portrayals to a true stature."
Christian Science Monitor p16 D 2 '50 320w

"A serious often compelling work, full of drama and pity and philosophical tensions, but at times repetitious and overly dramatic."
+ Kirkus 18:532 S 1 '50 230w

"One of the few worth-while novels of this type to have come from Europe; well translated by Rita Eldon. Recommended for public and larger college libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 75:1507 S 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel
Manchester Guardian p4 O 20 '50 140w

Reviewed by Frank Hauser
New Statesman & Nation 40:390 O 28 '50 160w

"A shocking, brilliant and sometimes hysterical novel. . . Gheorghiu despises men of every nationality, but the few he pities happen to be Romanian. That is why 'The Twenty-Fifth Hour' may leave readers torn between admiration and dismay. For all of Gheorghiu's indictment of the West as a mechanized hell, his inspired defense of the individual and the human spirit, his own health of soul is not beyond question." Milton Rugoff
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 O 29 '50 1250w

"Mr. Gheorghiu is in noble despair about the dehumanization of man. It would be unfair to judge this novel as a literary work. As such, at least in translation, it isn't much. As decent protest, it is a great deal. . . 'The Twenty-Fifth Hour' is a good novel. It is excellent protest. But it is a novel. It is not a handbook for clerks and jerks. It is not going to help, but three cheers for everybody just the same. Why not? Citizen Gheorghiu shake hands with Citizen Saroyan. Call me pal." William Saroyan
N Y Times p6 O 29 '50 950w

Reviewed by Lionel Trilling
New Yorker 26:157 N 11 '50 1650w

Reviewed by Ward Moore
San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 19 '50 650w

"The author of this remarkable book is a thirty-four-year-old Rumanian ex-diplomat. His novel, immensely successful throughout Europe, has been compared to Koestler's 'Darkness at Noon' and Orwell's 'Nineteen Eighty-Four' by many critics, and by some even to 'Candide.' If comparison there must be, I submit that M. Gheorgiu's novel, on its most impressive level, is reminiscent of Arnold Zweig's 'Sergeant Grischa' and also of the immortal 'Good Soldier Schweik.' . . There is room for a great deal of debate about this remarkable, deeply honest book. For better or for worse, it is a unique document." Robert Pick
+ Sat R of Lit 33:22 N 4 '50 900w

"Despite its European popularity, The Twenty-Fifth Hour is no literary masterpiece. Its plot is heavily propped with coincidence, the characters are undeveloped and its message is spelled out with 'petitions' that bring the story to repeated full stops. Gheorghiu's villain, machine-age power, is neither an original nor a persuasive one. What gives the book its impact is its assembly of evidence of man's inhumanity to man, by no means peculiar to the machine age."

Time 56:110 N 6 '50 700w

"Repetitious and full of Dickensian coincidences, The Twenty-fifth Hour depends for its effect upon its author's passionate pessimism. M. Gheorghiu writes like a man who has endured what he describes. His vision of the collapse of western man is splashed down on paper with a power and indignation that carry the reader away. . . No spark of optimism is allowed to lighten the lives of M. Gheorghiu's doomed humanity; but partial view though it is, The Twenty-fifth Hour is a remarkable achievement."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p657 O 20 '50 480w

GHIBERTI, LORENZO. Ghiberti, by Ludwig Goldscheider. 153p 141pl $5 Phaidon

734.45 Sculpture 50-4504

Contains: a short introduction; a translation of Vasari's life of Ghiberti; the artist's own autobiography (the first time in English); 141 large plates and 44 illustrations in the text; a catalog of Ghiberti's work in the form of notes on the plates; bibliography; and an index locating works.

Manchester Guardian p4 D 6 '49 250w

Reviewed by David Carritt

New Statesman & Nation 39:310 Mr 18 '50 90w

"For the casual, there are many handsome reproductions and a highly readable text; for the serious a valuable collection of information buttressed by copious notes and references. . . There is no other work in the United States to compare with this." L. R. Sander

+ Sat R of Lit 33:41 Jl 1 '50 180w

GIBBS, HENRY. Twilight in South Africa. 288p il $4.50 Philosophical lib.

916.8 South Africa [50-11771]

A description of the author's experiences in South Africa during a three months' visit, with a commentary on what he saw and heard while there. Index.

"[The author] went to learn, and he succeeded so thoroughly that his work gives the completest general picture of South Africa now available. The descriptive part of the book makes one see and feel and even smell South Africa. Most is finely written, though occasionally there are dull patches and personal recitals of no significance. The total effect is to present South Africa as vividly as any film, so that its political problems become intensely real and urgently close." Fenner Brockway

+ New Statesman & Nation 40:78 Jl 15 '50 420w

"Mr. Gibbs has written a truthful and courageous book that throws a fierce white light on some very dark places. Here is the whole unhappy story, documented throughout with chapter and verse, by a visitor who came to praise but returned to blame." John Barkham

+ N Y Times p7 D 3 '50 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p527 Ag 25 '50 500w

GIBBS, SIR PHILIP HAMILTON. Crowded company; in which one meets a variety of men and women in high places and low, famous and unknown, among whom are writers, painters, poets, politicians, pretty ladies, and a crowded company of ghosts from the roll-call of remembrance; il. by the author. 286p $3.50 McBride

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 50-6740

A volume of informal autobiographical essays, chiefly brief anecdotes of people the writer met, lunched, dined or talked with in cities thruout the world, or in country villages. The volume is illustrated with reproductions of Sir Philip's own drawings.

Reviewed by Ney MacMinn

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 16 '50 500w

"This journalist, war correspondent, novelist, lecturer, traveller, and investigator has had much more than his share of experience and knows well how to tell us about it."

+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 30 '49 170w

"The most appealing part of this casual sketch book is that which deals with the Surrey village of Shamley Green, where we see (all too briefly!) some of the author's friends—the Begum of Bhopal, T. S. Eliot, Frank Swinnerton, Major Bowman of Burma and others less famous but no less warmly remembered." Quentin Keith

+ N Y Times p40 S 10 '50 300w

New Yorker 26:123 Ap 8 '50 120w

"Sir Philip, home at last from the wars, writes with a gaiety and briskness that belie his seventy-three years. . . Sir Philip is too good a reporter and too sound a historian to descend to trivia; his anecdotes are excellent, and many of them are important."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:34 O 21 '50 160w

GIBRAN, KAHLIL. A tear and a smile; tr. from the Arabic by H. M. Nahmad; with an introd. by Robert Hillyer [with 4 drawings by the author]. 197p $3 Knopf

892.78 50-5761

This volume of poems, stories and parables "contains both early and later works of the Lebanon-born poet whose fame has grown to the extent that his work has been translated into 20 languages. In the introduction, Robert Hillyer, who knew Gibran, gives a brief outline of the poet's development, pointing out, especially, the changes in emphasis that occur in the later works in which Gibran expresses the possibility of the attainment of 'a felicity here and now.' " (San Francisco Chronicle)

Kirkus 17:685 D 15 '49 70w

"The author is certainly not a poet's poet, nor will his work contribute to poetry's progress. But he helps many people if not to translate and construe at least to transpose their experience. This message has in it neither the opium of supernaturalism nor the alcohol of the revolutionary faith. Its potion-equivalent may be found in those beverages which imitate the color, claim the flavor and repudiate the stimulant of coffee." Gerald Heard

N Y Times p5 F 19 '50 700w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 5 '50 120w

Reviewed by Padriac Colum

Sat R of Lit 33:21 My 20 '50 650w

GIBSON, MRS JEWEL. Black gold. 329p $3 Random house

50-6307

A story of a Texas oil-boom town in the early 1900s.

Kirkus 18:34 Ja 15 '50 90w

"Jewel Gibson is a writer with two tongues, one for each cheek. She mixes realism with satire, adds a touch of slapstick and dishes up the result with a straight face. . . If [Black Gold] contains more humor than regional history normally allows itself, it is because Mrs. Gibson is a writer who, when she sits down to work, can't resist pulling the chair from under herself. It is fun to have her around." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 2 '50 550w

"Mrs Gibson has obviously delved deep into an era when men were men and women were glad of it—in fact, we'd trust her to tame a wildcat well, singlehanded. It's her misfortune that the ingredients of a novel are sometimes more difficult to handle successfully: in the end, her slapdash use of color for color's sake simply overwhelms a ramshackle plot and the cardboard cutouts that never quite animate it." Wilbur Watson

— + N Y Times p29 Mr 12 '50 180w

GIBSON, JEWEL—Continued
" 'Black Gold' is full of vitality, of sociological interest, of remembered oil history—full of everything but art. This is crude oil rather than refined. . . If all this contriving of boy-meets-girl is hilariously implausible, it is just a sheath for the real metal underneath. No one interested in oil history or in sociology will fail to appreciate the ringing authenticity of the material dealing with oil drilling, with the muddy careers that beset the mule skinners or transportation workers, with the social mores of the crowded living in raw boom towns." Lon Tinkle
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:37 Ag 19 '50 300w

GIBSON, JOHN FREDERIC. Memory bay. 172p $2.75 Longmans

B or 92 Voyages and travels 50-9414

From his little cottage in Cornwall the author wanders in retrospect thru Lapland, Australia, Cape Horn, and during the war, Norway. He had decided early in life that he wanted to live in a cottage in Cornwall, but since cottages need supplies, he travelled first. Then, settled in his land of heart's desire, he wrote of his travels.

" 'Memory Bay' is not an easy book to describe, except summarily and baldly. It is full of the savor of sights and sensations, sharp-etched pictures of the sea and the sky and the hills in their various moods. The delight of summer trolling off the Cornish coast, the complex discomfort of a ship's forecastle in a gale, the rainbow of tracer bullets over Narvik as the attack on the port began—all of these are presented with no special concessions to their bizarre or dramatic aspects. Each is given its own value, and the men and women whom the author encounters, in peace or war, fade into the background against which he met them." Harry Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 S 17 '50 450w

"Although he dwells with enthusiasm on the manner in which he has now taken root in Cornwall, he is at his best when describing his many jaunts and the exertions they entailed, leaving one with the feeling that his exchange of belaying pin for typewriter may not turn out to be as final as it sounds."
+ New Yorker 26:122 S 16 '50 120w
Sat R of Lit 33:57 O 7 '50 180w

"There is plenty of evidence here that Mr. Gibson would have learned to write well if he had never submitted himself to this particular discipline of long apprenticeship. He has the quick, selective eye, the reflective depth, the emotional control of the good impressionist. He uses words very precisely, yet with ease and a free-ranging power. There is often a strange beauty to be found in his sensitive net."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p563 S 8 '50 550w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. Autumn leaves; tr. from the French "Feuillets d'automne" by Elsie Pell. 296p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

848 50-2680

"This book is a collection of essays, sketches and prefaces, stretching from 1924 to 1949. Here are Gide's appreciations of his mother, his friends and other writers, a monkeylike little creature who was his companion on a Congo trip, the weather, and the ideals of justice, charity, courage and truth. Of special interest are a few pieces at the end on the idea of God." (Christian Century) Index

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Je 4 '50 350w

Reviewed by Van Meter Ames
Christian Century 67:562 My 3 '50 410w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p7 Ap 22 '50 1250w

Reviewed by D. N. Morgan
Ethics 60:302 Jl '50 270w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard
Nation 170:428 My 6 '50 170w

"It is true that here and there the reader gets flashes of Gide's wit and of his thinking and beliefs, but it is hardly true that the book represents a 'spiritual autobiography' of the man, as is claimed for it on the jacket."
New Yorker 26:122 My 20 '50 90w
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Je 18 '50 150w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. Corydon; with a comment on the second dialogue in Corydon, by Frank Beach. 220p $2.75 Farrar, Straus

132.7546 Sex 50-5507

" 'Corydon' is a tract in defense of homosexuality. Gide couches it in the form of four dialogues. He supposes that he calls upon Corydon, a homosexual friend, that he presents the arguments of conventional morality as Corydon develops his troubling thesis. . . In the end [Gide is] defeated." Sat R of Lit

"A literary oddity for a predictable minority, for doctors, biologists, psychologists; forbidden fruit for the prurient, and adolescent. And for most of the reading public, a tedious bore."
Kirkus 17:666 D 1 '49 180w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard
Nation 170:428 My 6 '50 170w

Reviewed by Justin O'Brien
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Mr 12 '50 700w

" 'Corydon' is 'slanted,' rather than characterized by that excellent balance that is to be found in much of Gide's other writing. His inference, for example, that Greek greatness rested upon pederasty seems highly questionable. More than one culture has tolerated such practices but it has been of relatively low quality. And nowhere in his book does Gide consider the point stressed by so many scientific observers that homosexuality is usually to be equated with emotional immaturity." Gerald Sykes
N Y Times p6 Ja 29 '50 360w

"As literature, 'Corydon' hardly exists. As a sociological pamphlet, it deserves much commendation, but I cannot believe that it has had any great social effect, nor that it will have." Morris Bishop
Sat R of Lit 33:13 Ja 28 '50 800w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. School for wives; Robert [and] Geneviève; or, The unfinished confidence; tr. from the French by Dorothy Bussy. 241p $2.75 Knopf

49-50415

The story of an unhappy marriage told in three journals, those of the husband and wife and their daughter. The first part of the book, the wife's journal entitled School for Wives was published separately in 1929 (Book Review Digest 1929).

"Gide is well below par in these three novelettes."
— Atlantic 185:88 F '50 170w

"The subtlety of the work is amazing; its searching out of the most devious twists of character, its cold penetration into secret depths, its absolute lucidity and control are all rare and memorable signs of masterful writing." Richard Sullivan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 15 '50 450w

"Literally speaking, the book is not among Gide's major works. It lacks the clear sense of direction that so distinguishes some of his other short novels. Much of 'Geneviève' in particular has an air of irrelevance. Yet the very turgidness of the book is due perhaps to the breadth of its scope. Gide is famous for his inconsistencies—his habit of looking at all sides of a question. . . The present work is scrupulously noncommittal in its portrayal—from some six viewpoints—of marriage and the ferment of feminine emancipation in the first quarter of this century." Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 19 '50 650w

Reviewed by L. J. Trese

Commonweal 52:22 Ap 14 '50 800w

Kirkus 17:628 N 15 '49 160w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard

Nation 170:428 My 6 '50 170w

New Repub 122:20 Mr 6 '50 420w

Reviewed by Lloyd Morris

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ja 15 '50 1400w

"If 'The School for Wives' fails as a treatment of the problems of modern woman—which appears to be its purpose—it nevertheless remains a delightful esthetic experience. It is told with a Haydn-like elegance, and should have a touristic appeal, for those Americans who enjoy a peep into a French home." Gerald Sykes

+ — N Y Times p6 Ja 29 '50 230w

New Yorker 26:156 N 25 '50 130w

"The analyses of the characters involved are very shrewd and delicate, very rewarding. But the device of retelling the same story from three points of view is inevitably an awkward one. . . The reader may admire Gide's intelligence while remaining unmoved by his story. It is somehow bleak, pale. As in most of Gide's fiction, the story is a fable, conceived to illustrate a moral proposition, and the characters have the air of personalized abstractions, without the rich inconsequentialities of life. The translation of 'The School for Wives,' by Dorothy Bussy, is admirable in every way." Morris Bishop

— + Sat R of Lit 33:14 Ja 28 '50 320w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. Two legends: Oedipus and Theseus; tr. from the French by John Russell. 115p $3 Knopf

842 50-10664

Translations of the play Oedipus, and the fictional narrative Theseus, with an introduction by the translator. "They interlock and they are fables growing out of the main division in his mind. Oedipus, the enlightened, godless man, who reaches forward to all that promises extra inches to his mind, is brought down by the gross intrigue of original sin. Even so he is not destroyed and he is certainly not reconciled to official religion." (New Statesman & Nation)

Booklist 47:171 Ja 1 '51

Kirkus 18:503 Ag 15 '50 150w

"Written in masterly style, this novelty is recommended to drama and belles lettres collections of size." George Freedley

+ Library J 75:1828 O 15 '50 40w

"'Theseus' is a beautiful philosophic conte . . It is almost Voltairean in its pungent irony and lack of living characters. . . It is one of the finest things that M. Gide has written, with a calm and a universality that are impressive. The play 'Oedipus,' on the other hand, is a failure. . . Mr. Russell's translating is excellent." L. F. D.

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 25 '50 210w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries

Nation 171:536 D 9 '50 50w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

New Statesman & Nation 40:231 Ag 26 '50 1100w

"As John Russell points out in his admirable, brief preface to this volume, André Gide has always been fascinated by ancient mythology. Throughout his long career, he has retold its legends in modern terms, using them symbolically to interpret problems that are characteristic of our twentieth-century world. Of all his works, these are probably the least known to American readers. The present volume offers two representative examples, translated with unusual felicity and beauty." Lloyd Morris

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 31 '50 1050w

New Yorker 26:156 N 25 '50 130w

"The two philosophic tales are delightful and nourishing food for the reader. Great issues are made easy, in Gide's lucid, melodious, effortless style. There is plenty of humor; but one may reflect that anachronism is the easiest comic device. The translation, by John Russell, is in general excellent." Morris Bishop

+ Sat R of Lit 33:27 N 18 '50 500w

GIEDION, SIGFRIED. Space, time and architecture; the growth of a new tradition. 8th ptg enl 665p il $10 Harvard univ. press

720.9 Architecture—History. City planning 50-62

"Not a new edition, but a new printing with additional material on the work of Gustave Eiffel and Robert Maillart, a chapter on Alvar Aalto, and some new illustrations." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1941. Index.

Booklist 46:202 F 15 '50

"Written simply, with hundreds of drawings and photografs illustrating the amazing architectural growth of the world. The book will interest not only architects but the general reader as well." Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ja 22 '50 240w

"Recommended." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 75:782 My 1 '50 130w

GIELGUD, VAL HENRY. One year of grace; a fragment of autobiography. 168p $2.50 Longmans

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 50-9415

An account of the author's year long holiday from his duties at the B.B.C., beginning in August 1948. Most of the time was spent in the United States, with brief sorties into Bermuda and France. One chapter contains a resumé of what Mr Gielgud learned about the United States during his stay here.

Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 21 '50 110w

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p406 Je 30 '50 600w

GIELGUD, VAL HENRY. Stalking-horse [Eng title: Fall of a sparrow]. 250p $2.75 Morrow

49-50386

A British secret service agent is involved in a series of adventures in a trip across Europe in search of a madman who may or may not be Hitler, escaped from Berlin in its downfall.

Reviewed by James Sandoe

— Chicago Sun p58 Ja 6 '50 200w

Kirkus 17:610 N 1 '49 140w

"A literate improvisation, but rather disappointing." E. F. Walbridge

Library J 74:1904 D 15 '49 70w

"The arrangements for these trips are by now pretty well standardised. Men must die like flies. Women live like spiders. Every other nationality has liberty to disgrace itself, but British pluck and endurance never fail. In Fall of a Sparrow, Mr. Gielgud reveals complete mastery of the formula and a delightfully dry narrative style." Ralph Partridge

New Statesman & Nation 37:478 My 7 '49 90w

"Mr. Gielgud's tale is full of violence and suspense, but occasionally the reader feels he's making a mountain out of a molehill. The shadow of Eric Ambler inevitably hangs over the book."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ja 29 '50 190w

"Mr. Gielgud, who is Drama Director of the British Broadcasting Company, seems to have seen his characters and situations as they would have appeared in a scenario and then translated them into prose. Though written with a professional flourish, 'Stalking-Horse' is one of those books best suited for reading on long railroad journeys." J. S. Gordon

N Y Times p16 Ja 8 '50 140w

"Violent and tricky, but with some fairly good characterizations."

+ New Yorker 25:83 Ja 7 '50 190w

GIELGUD, V. H.—Continued

"Mr. Gielgud is very much impressed with Eric Ambler and Dorothy Sayers. But his admiration has not been enough to raise him to their level. Too often his book seems to have been written with an eye to a movie scenario, and, come to think of it, it would be easier to see than to read." M. R.

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Mr 12 '50 150w

"Very good."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ja 14 '50 40w

Springf'd Republican p17A Ja 8 '50 170w

GILBERT, ANTHONY, pseud. See Malleson, L. B.

GILBERT, FELIX, ed. Hitler directs his war; the secret records of his daily military conferences; annotated by [the editor] from the manuscript in the University of Pennsylvania library. 187p $3.25 Oxford

940.534 World war, 1939-1945—Germany. Hitler, Adolf

"In May, 1945, George Allen, a member of the Divisional Counter-Intelligence Office of the 101st Airborne Division, drove to an abandoned Luftwaffe motor pool near Berchtesgaden and spent some time poking through a mass of charred papers in an open pit. . . Mr. Allen retrieved from the ashes fragments of the stenographic record of the daily military conferences which were held throughout the war in Adolf Hitler's headquarters. When these fragments had been pieced together and re-copied, some 800 pages had been saved from a record which must originally have exceeded 200,000. 'Hitler Directs His War' comprises a selection of passages from this surviving text." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko

Christian Science Monitor p18 D 12 '50 400w

"For the psychologist these records should be as interesting as they will be to the historian. Certainly there is abundant evidence here of the complexity of Hitler's character. . . As Felix Gilbert says in his excellent introduction to this volume, it would be going too far to claim that a study of these documents will solve the enigma of Hitler's personality, but they will certainly have to be weighed 'in any attempt to evaluate his military leadership or to explain his hold over the German people.'" G. A. Craig

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 10 '50 1500w

"This book is admirably edited. George Allen, who unearthed the documents, gives a brief and clear account of their discovery, and Felix Gilbert, Professor of History at Bryn Mawr College, analyzes their background and content in a scholarly introduction. The notes are clear and apposite. Altogether this book is a model of editing. I wish all documents were as well presented." H. R. Trevor-Roper

N Y Times p22 N 19 '50 800w

Time 56:104 N 27 '50 1100w

GILBERT, G. M. Psychology of dictatorship; based on an examination of the leaders of Nazi Germany. 327p $4 Ronald

301.155 Psychology. Germany—Nazi movement 50-9698

"In his 'Nuremberg Diary' [Book Review Digest 1947] the author related many of the conversations he had with the Nazi leaders. In his latest work, he uses those talks, plus the results of three years of subsequent research, to lay bare the mechanism which pushed the Nazis along their disastrous road and made the German people follow obediently and, to a great extent, even enthusiastically." (Christian Science Monitor) Bibliography. Index.

Christian Science Monitor p7 N 25 '50 1000w

"The reader will be fascinated with Dr. Gilbert's psychological reports on Goering, Hess, Frank, Von Papen, Ribbentrop, Keitel and others whose personalities were woven into the recognizable pattern of the authoritarian state." Delbert Clark

+ N Y Times p39 N 26 '50 320w

GILBERT, KENNETH. Arctic venture; il. by Clifford N. Geary. 147p $2.50 Holt 50-6697

Story of fifteen-year-old Chuck Morgan's adventures on a trading trip to the Eskimos. At the first post he becomes a blood brother to an Eskimo boy, Kenak. When the expedition meets reverses, it is Kenak and his friends who recover some stolen furs and capture the thieves.

"A rattling good sea story for older readers." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 6 '50 170w

"Readers who like gripping adventure in a cold country will be absorbed in this vigorous story." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:197 My '50 120w

"A clear-cut adventure story with an authentic Arctic background."

+ Kirkus 18:239 Ap 15 '50 150w

"More than enough action for 147 pages, but excellent background with the very feel, smell, and sound of the Arctic." Virginia Haviland

+ Library J 75:989 Je 1 '50 80w

"A brisk adventure story for boys around twelve, with a good deal of information about Eskimo life and about trading in the Arctic." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 23 '50 140w

"The author has a keen eye for colorful atmospheric details. . . Chuck, troubled by occasional misgivings, is an honestly drawn, believable hero." Howard Boston

+ N Y Times p22 Jl 9 '50 150w

"[This] might have been an outstanding adventure yarn if the author had realized all its possibilities. If it had been worked out to a greater length, with careful attention to characterization and a sympathetic 'feel' of the North, it would have appealed to a far wider public. As it is, it is an average story for young people." M. P. A.

Sat R of Lit 33:36 My 13 '50 190w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 Je '50

GILBERT, MICHAEL FRANCIS. Smallbone deceased. 245p $2.50 Harper 50-10225

Detective story.

Booklist 47:98 N 1 '50

Reviewed by Drexel Drake

Chicago Sunday Tribune p46 D 3 '50 60w

Kirkus 18:437 Ag 1 '50 70w

"Delightful reading." W. P. Eaton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 N 26 '50 220w

"The author is a lawyer who looks at the law and the people in it with equal parts of mirth and wisdom. His agreeably understated satire on over-regulated offices is as delightful as is his calm way of telling an exciting story. This is a first-rate job." M. H. Oakes

+ N Y Times p30 N 5 '50 150w

"For excellent plot and characters, high literacy and that inimitable English trick of submerged humor, this one gets full marks." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 O 22 '50 80w

"Tops for any season."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:60 O 7 '50 50w

Times [London] Lit Sup p337 Je 2 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 N '50

GILBERT, VIRGINIA (JOHNSON) (MRS EDWIN GILBERT). Virginia reel. 254p $3 Lippincott

B or 92 Johnson, Mrs Amy Payne 50-8017

"Virginia Reel tells the story of how an impecunious but ingenious mother raised three daughters in a small town in Virginia. It is written by the eldest daughter, now a veteran actress of twenty-five." Publisher's note

"The book offers high entertainment, and is presumably true." Olive Carruthers
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Je 18 '50 400w

"In a sprightly and somewhat forced style Virginia, the eldest daughter recounts the family's many misadventures. . . A delightfully amusing antidote to some of the more depressing accounts of families to whom economic insecurity presents an insurmountable obstacle to a normal attitude to life." H. R. Forbes
+ — Library J 75:976 Je 1 '50 120w

Reviewed by E. H. Smith
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 25 '50 750w

Reviewed by Charlotte Capers
N Y Times p15 Je 18 '50 140w

"Folks at 'White Oaks' had a high old time. So will you." A. F. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 S 16 '50 270w

GILBRETH, FRANK BUNKER, and CAREY, MRS ERNESTINE MOLLER (GILBRETH). Belles on their toes; il. by Donald McKay. 237p $3 Crowell

B or 92 Gilbreth, Mrs Lillian Evelyn (Moller)

Beginning where Cheaper By the Dozen (Book Review Digest 1949) left off, this brother and sister team continue the story of their mother's life after the death of her husband. Her valiant struggle to raise and educate her eleven children is portrayed up to her retirement from her position at Purdue, at the age of seventy.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 186:92 N '50 230w

Bookmark 10:4 O '50 40w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p7 O 1 '50 600w

"As a whole, this delightful book is as clean, clever and cheerful as a story about Mom and her kids should be. From start to finish, it is a reading joy." Marge Lyon
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 8 '50 450w

"Genial, rollicking humor is a tonic to be welcomed at any time. In a period of general tension and insecurity, 'Belles On Their Toes' offers special refreshment. For underlying all its high comedy lies the moving story of one family's brave, united stand against adversity." C. B. Burnett
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 O 14 '50 380w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 26:503 N '50 40w

"It shouldn't take long for this to catch up with its runaway predecessor, Cheaper By The Dozen for again the happy blend of sentiment and comedy is sure-fire."
+ Kirkus 18:442 Ag 1 '50 170w

"There is a sincere and heartwarming atmosphere in this second volume about the famous Gilbreth family that makes it almost better reading, if possible, than the first. . . Highly recommended." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 75:1398 S 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 1 '50 750w

Reviewed by Harry Gilroy
N Y Times p22 O 15 '50 550w

New Yorker 26:134 O 7 '50 160w

"A thoroughly entertaining yarn." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 O 3 '50 800w

GILBY, THOMAS. Phoenix and turtle; the unity of knowing and being. 154p $3 Longmans

121 Knowledge, Theory of. Ontology 50-12527

"For several centuries Western philosophers have debated the metaphysics of the nature of thought and conflicting schools have between them complicated the issue. Here, the author examines both the historical setting of these discussions and seeks to resolve some of the needlessly tricky technicalities they have left. In attempting to find a solution to the problem of our knowledge of reality and the problem of thought he has taken as his theme 'two distincts, division none' and from it developed his explanation of the unity of knowing and being." (Publisher's note) Index.

Cath World 171:480 S '50 90w

Reviewed by Edward Littlejohn
Commonweal 52:298 Je 30 '50 460w

Reviewed by F. H. Heineman
Hibbert J 48:395 Jl '50 30w

"Father Gilby offers a rich fare, but his guest is seldom allowed to enjoy it to the full. Barely has he prepared himself to do justice to a dish when it is snatched away from him and another put in its place, only to be withdrawn as hastily; and there are so many good ideas in Father Gilby's book that it is a pity not to give them full value."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p11 Ap 7 '50 550w

GILES, DOROTHY. Candle in her hand; a story of the nursing schools of Bellevue hospital. 240p il $4 Putnam

610.73 Nurses and nursing—History. New York university. College of medicine. Division of nursing. Bellevue's school of nursing 49-11968

History of nursing and the training of nurses at Bellevue Hospital from its beginnings to date. Bibliography. Index.

"Written for the adult but recommended also for older girls and teenagers." G. E. Cartmell
+ Library J 75:329 F 15 '50 50w

"The Bellevue of today is far from perfect, but we have come a long way. No one who reads this useful book will doubt that women, including the nurses who adopted and expanded the Nightingale concept, had a momentous part in the progress." W. D. Ogdon
+ N Y Times p14 D 18 '49 180w

GILES, MRS JANICE HOLT. Enduring hills. 256p $3 Westminster press

50-6822

Novel of the Kentucky mountain region. Hod Pierce felt that he wanted a larger life than his ancestors had had in Piney Ridge. After the war he and Mary, his wife, went to work in Louisville, so that they could enjoy the material things which Piney Ridge lacked. But contentment was lacking, until Hod and Mary returned to the simpler life of the hill country.

Booklist 46:261 Ap 15 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '50

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 26:397 S '50 40w

Kirkus 18:73 F 1 '50 150w

"Mrs. Giles does not have an unfamiliar story to tell, but she has given it warmth and humor."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p31 O 8 '50 160w

"An over-simplification, perhaps, but showing a genuine love for the Kentucky hills."
Wis Lib Bul 46:22 My '50

GILL, BRENDAN. Trouble of one house. 314p $3 Doubleday

50-9905

Character study of a woman who called forth either love or hate in everyone who knew her well, whether it was her doctor husband, her children, her sister, or her friends. The story is told partly in flashbacks, as she lies dying, attended by a beautiful nurse who is her husband's mistress.

GILL, BRENDAN—Continued

"Exquisitely etched details on a many faceted glass." Mary Sandrock
+ Cath World 172:231 D '50 290w

Reviewed by Edmund Fuller
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 O 22 '50 450w

Christian Science Monitor p18 N 25 '50 270w

"Mr. Gill's ironic theme is worked out a little too patly to be wholly convincing, like much thematic fiction. And the character of Elizabeth is woefully under-developed. . . Her power is never really communicated, except by declaration. . . Brendan Gill is master of the New Yorker short story. Yet, admirable as his vignettes are, considered separately, they do not add up to a masterful mosaic." John Cogley
Commonweal 53:72 O 27 '50 1250w

Kirkus 18:483 Ag 15 '50 160w

"Not a false note is struck in this mature and honest novel. Although the book is beautifully contrived, there is no creak of machinery. Each person, down to the wry, engaging little son, is vivid, complex and always understandably motivated, and the style is consistently quiet and subtle." Kate Simon
+ New Repub 123:20 D 4 '50 360w

"There are moments, in sustaining this long and rather complicated story, when Mr. Gill's skill amounts almost to legerdemain, so quick and so flashing are his movements in creating before your eyes some tender, original, or highly dramatic scene." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 O 15 '50 700w

"Although Mr. Gill's people are not unusual, he has written a story that is at once taut, moving and compassionate." Anne Fremantle
+ N Y Times p4 O 8 '50 450w

"A chaste, austere, disciplined work of fiction in which the author, by muting his prose and keeping himself in hiding from start to finish, appears to be insisting that he be judged purely on his sensibility and imagination. These are obviously not his only gifts, but they are the only ones he has chosen to put on display here. He never once indulges in the kind of writing that calls attention to the art rather than to the matter. . . 'The Trouble of One House' is a deeply moving work and one of the highest integrity." R. H. Rovere
+ New Yorker 26:132 O 21 '50 500w

"An author is entitled to choose his own theme, persons, scene, is he not? Even so, I hope that Mr. Gill next time will be less self-circumscribed, that his humor and general perspective (almost shut out here by his own election of subject) will have fuller sway." J. C. Long
Sat R of Lit 33:63 D 2 '50 550w

Springf'd Republican p4D O 22 '50 100w

"At 36, Brendan Gill is starting later than a lot of this year's first novelists, but evidently not because he has wasted time. In The Trouble of One House, his storytelling method, an indirect, impressionistic one with something of the quality of Virginia Woolf's, takes him precisely where he wants to go."
+ Time 56:104 O 16 '50 390w

GILL, FREDERICK W., and BATES, GILBERT L. Airline competition. 704p maps $5.75 Harvard univ. Division of res.

387.7 Competition. Aeronautics, Commercial. Air lines 49-11652

"A study of the effects of competition on the quality and price of airline service and the self-sufficiency of the United States domestic airlines." (Subtitle) Bibliography. Index.

"The analysis merits the attention of scholars and officials concerned with governmental policies affecting the sound development of commercial airlines." B. N. Behling
+ Am Pol Sci R 44:504 Je '50 270w

"A competent and exhausting study of this particular problem." C. E. Puffer
+ Ann Am Acad 268:236 Mr '50 280w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 74:1755 N 15 '49 100w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:55 Mr '50 240w

GINSBURG, MRS ETHEL L. Public health is people. 241p $1.75 Commonwealth fund

614 Public health. Mental hygiene 50-6896

"Report of the Institute on Mental Health in Public Health held at Berkeley in 1948, attended by 30 health officers and a 'faculty' of 16. Much of the language is that of health officer participants and the situations discussed are those which we encounter daily in local health activities, in clinics, home visits, and in the job of being a successful health officer. . . A substantial portion of the report reviews the content of the institute and the process whereby the health officers and psychiatrists learned the full significance of the concept that public health is people." (Am J Pub Health) Index.

"An exceedingly interesting, readable and useful account of a rich learning experience in everyday problems of public health practice. It is a particularly welcome volume for most of us who are groping to understand mental hygiene and its relation to public health. . . The book is short, inexpensive, enjoyable and worth while, and is recommended for early reading." R. P. Kandle
+ Am J Pub Health 40:887 Jl '50 220w

Booklist 46:348 Jl 15 '50

GIPSON, FREDERICK BENJAMIN. Home place. 248p $2.75 Harper

50-9635

When Sam Crockett's wife died, he took his three young sons and his old grandfather, back to the North Texas hill ranch where he had been born and raised, leaving behind a good job in Kansas City. This somewhat episodic story tells of Sam's attempts to build up the land and to give his children the kind of life he wants for them.

Booklist 47:34; 61 S 15 '50; O 1 '50

Bookmark 10:33 N '50 40w

Reviewed by Mary Sandrock
Cath World 172:155 N '50 200w

"If anything, Fred Gipson's second novel is better than his first. Here, again, is a story told with restraint and yet with gusto; a story of fine people, cleanly told; a story, as was his first, of hill people and yet in no way a duplication of it." V. P. Hass
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 1 '50 400w

Christian Science Monitor p7 N 18 '50 200w

"The manner of the telling is what distinguishes it. Words are almost wholly of one syllable; yet its verbal simplicity seems as natural as it is appropriate. The Home Place also embodies a real feeling for the natural beauty of the American Southwest." E. S. S.
+ Commonweal 53:22 O 13 '50 190w

"The old grandfather is a grass-roots figure, a humorous, almost folklore character. And how Fred Gipson can write! There isn't the legend in the making quality the other book had, nor the sentimental appeal. But it has a warm humanity and much of poetry too."
+ Kirkus 18:431 Ag 1 '50 270w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 75:2161 D 15 '50 40w

"Whatever 'The Home Place' may lack in complexity and studied suspense of plot, it wholly compensates for it with the vitality and charm of its rural incidents." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 O 15 '50 410w

"Those who read and enjoyed 'Hound Dog Man' will be less pleased with 'Home Place.' Gipson's second novel lacks the forthright earthiness and much of the humanity which gave the first its charm." Hoffman Birney
N Y Times p34 O 1 '50 450w

"Mr. Gipson's new novel blends a strictly conventional story formula with a warmth for people and a zeal for the land which save it from being the quite artificial and shallow thing that the mere story shell would have been. He comes out of it successfully with an appealing novel but he takes unnecessary chances of slopping over and shaves it pretty close to the line." Edmund Fuller
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 O 28 '50 500w
Springfield Republican p8D O 1 '50 300w
Wis Lib Bul 46:18 N '50

GITLIN, MURRAY. The embarkation. 219p $2.75 Crown
50-5772

Martin, an American army deserter, hiding in Rome, is discovered by a British agent. He is promised immunity from court martial if he will betray a truckload of Jewish refugees, about to sail for Palestine. Martin's sympathies are with the refugees, and the novel traces his moral struggle, and its outcome.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p6 Mr 3 '50 70w

"Everything is here, including the lovely, submissive and loyal Italian girl . . . everything but the music and the credits. Nevertheless, cinematic as 'The Embarkation' is, Mr. Gitlin makes his small contemporary drama come off, in the main, and makes you like most of it. He has exploited, skillfully enough, all the possibilities of suspense that the thriller married to politics provides; and if 'The Embarkation' looks on the slight side, and seems, finally, a trifle disappointing, that's simply because it is offered on paper and not on film. Film would make it look entirely right." Alfred Hayes
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 19 '50 450w

Reviewed by Robert Wetzel
N Y Times p35 F 26 '50 190w

"Unfortunately, in spite of an exciting and highly original background, the story seems so contrived, and Martin's presence in it so forced, that it is impossible to feel compassion for anyone except the refugees, who remain quite aloof from all the intriguing going on about them."
— + New Yorker 26:118 Mr 18 '50 100w

GLUECK, SHELDON, and GLUECK, MRS ELEANOR (TOUROFF). Unraveling juvenile delinquency. 399p $5 Commonwealth fund
364.36 Juvenile delinquency 50-10259

"'Unraveling' means deep, serious, scientific investigation and not superficial credos about the why and how of juvenile delinquency. This Harvard Law School study in criminology probes causation 'as the basis for truly crime-preventive programs and effective therapy.' Causes are studied through backgrounds in family, school, and community, and by detecting intelligence, character, and temperament traits of the juvenile delinquent." (Library J) Index.

"Excellent strategy in comparing delinquent and non-delinquent youth. Good summaries at close of each chapter. Excellent appended information. Sociology students and civic groups tackling the problem of delinquency in their communities should welcome this intensive 10-year study. Not easy reading, but the density and authoritativeness of information more than compensates. Public, college and university library acquisition." Nathaniel Stewart
+ Library J 75:2003 N 15 '50 180w
School & Society 72:269 O 21 '50 60w

GODDEN, JON. The peacock. 245p $2.75 Rinehart
50-13518

Alice Tallent, an English woman, and her husband, with two friends decide to spend a vacation at Dr Coombes' hunting camp in the Indian forest. All have been there before, and all four of the men are in love with Alice. The effects of the animal life and human emotions are traced in detail, until a tragedy ends the vacation.

Booklist 47:39 S 15 '50

"Finely written tale."
+ Bookmark 10:7 O '50 60w

"The characters are [I am not sure why] lacking in drive, lacking in interest. The non-human elements are much better done. There are wonderful pages on the feel and atmosphere of the jungle, on the streams in which the campers fish, on elephant rides thru the animal crowded forests, on the tiger, moving his 600 pounds on great paws silent as a feather, covering perhaps 20 miles a night in a slow walk." J. F. Nims
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 17 '50 400w
Christian Science Monitor p6 O 7 '50 300w
Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

"A book which exerts a real fascination but which is for the more discerning reader."
+ Kirkus 18:394 Jl 15 '50 230w

"For general purchase—and for the reader who is tired of mediocrity." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 75:1291 Ag '50 130w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 N 24 '50 90w

"In handling the human side of her novel Miss Godden's skill proves inadequate to the task she has set herself. Five troubled, emotionally involved persons interacting upon each other in a pseudo-primitive situation are too much for her, and as an integrated job of novel writing 'The Peacock' is not a success. But as a fictional foray into the jungle, providing an intimate and sensitive account of the natural world vis a vis its enemy, man . . . 'The Peacock' is outstanding." F. H. Bullock
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 17 '50 700w

"Miss Godden, having spent much of her life in India, has a wondrous knowledge of jungle lore and the ways of elephants, tigers, peacocks, deer, and all the teeming life of the forest. She writes with extraordinarily sensitive feeling for the atmosphere of this lush, savage world almost untouched by men." Nancie Matthews
+ N Y Times p5 S 17 '50 500w

"The complications . . . are outlined in a well-bred and melodious murmur that pays due attention to the symbolic as well as the outward aspects of Indian flora and fauna. Since all her characters suffer in varying degrees from either emotional anemia or excessive reticence, their problems don't turn out to be especially engrossing, even when things take a violent turn toward the end."
New Yorker 26:119 S 16 '50 140w

"Miss Godden handles her material expertly and she writes very well indeed. . . I'd like to say that this is as good a novel as the author's 'House by the Sea' last year. The fact is that it isn't. It's good enough to show beyond doubt that Miss Godden knows her job as a novelist and that she is a fine writer." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 29 '50 700w

"Jon Godden's third book is not a great novel: its sense of real life, of interacting lives of people is subordinated to its sense of magic. But the magic is there and it is great magic. . . The magic of Miss Godden's prose is compounded of her utter knowledge of the jungle, the minute, patient, untiring observation and understanding of its crashing violence and its delicacy. Not even Rudyard Kipling gives us more beauty or more unforgettableness." M. S. Douglas
+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 O 21 '50 600w

GODWIN, EDWARD, and GODWIN, MRS STEPHANI (ALLFREE). Greenwood tree; a portrait of William Shakespeare; il. by the authors. 178p $2.50 Dutton

B or 92 Shakespeare, William—Juvenile literature 50-14549

A portrait of Shakespeare, an imaginative biography for ages eleven to fifteen.

"It makes Shakespeare a very real and human character—one that young people will enjoy reading about quite apart from its informative value. Beauty and imagination have gone into its writing." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 12 '50 120w

"A delightfully written and highly idealized portrait." S. M. A.
+ Horn Bk 26:379 S '50 120w

"Much of the writing belongs to the Gadzooks style of formula writing, and there's no excuse for deliberate falsification in juvenile books which should encourage reliable sources of biography."
— Kirkus 18:612 O 1 '50 190w

"Though the book presents as fact much that has been discredited by recent research, it is valuable as a colorful introduction to the great playwright and his times. Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges
+ — Library J 75:2019 N 15 '50 80w

"The many pictures in the Godwins' familiar, delicate style, are appealing, and the beautiful, imaginary color portrait should draw many a romantic younger reader to whom the little old engraved portraits are not warmly human." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 26 '50 250w

"The many legends centering on Shakespeare's life have been incorporated into the story, with no distinction made between fact and fabrication. Nevertheless, the book has undoubted value for young people as a romanticized account of Shakespeare and his England. Elizabethan people, places and events are presented in such an entertaining manner that young readers will gain background for understanding Shakespeare and will be stimulated to further reading." Elizabeth Hodges
+ — N Y Times p34 O 29 '50 250w

GOLD, BELA. Wartime economic planning in agriculture; a study in the allocation of resources. 594p $6.75 Columbia univ. press

338.1 World war, 1939-1945—Agriculture and the war. Agriculture—Economic aspects 49-48852

"A study of the problems of American agriculture, from the broad standpoint of needs and production. All angles of farm economics, crops, and animal life, distribution, government policies are analyzed." (Current Hist) The author was formerly assistant division head of the United States bureau of agricultural economics and economic consultant to the Senate subcommittee on war mobilization. Index.

"For students of economic planning who wish to investigate the operational as well as the theoretical difficulties of this approach to economic order, Professor Gold offers an extraordinarily well documented and highly provocative analysis of the attempt to mobilize agricultural production during the war. . . Professor Gold's report stands as a valuable contribution to the literature of American planning experience." J. H. Street
+ Am Econ R 40:705 S '50 900w

"Because it is a thorough and convincing analysis of a concrete planning situation, Mr. Gold's treatise represents a significant contribution to a field that has largely been characterized by theoretical treatment. It is unfortunate, however, that the literary style is not more lucid and direct, for long and complex sentences frequently keep the reader from gaining the full force of the argument." Norman Wengert
+ Am Pol Sci R 44:490 Je '50 850w

"This is a brilliantly written and closely reasoned analysis of American agriculture in wartime. It is concerned mainly with an examination of the adequacy of agricultural mobilization, and the requirements and needs for effective planning." Benjamin Baker
+ Ann Am Acad 269:165 My '50 500w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook
Current Hist 18:41 Ja '50 50w

Reviewed by L. W. Witt
J Pol Econ 58:276 Je '50 700w

"A scholarly and well-documented analysis that shows how inadequately we marshaled our agricultural resources for war." L. H. Bean
+ N Y Times p25 Ja 29 '50 380w

"In general, the book presents comprehensively one economist's thoroughgoing study of an inevitably controversial subject."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:56 Mr '50 240w

GOLDEN, FRANCIS LEO. Jest what the doctor ordered; with a foreword by N. Bertram Cole; il. by Barye Phillips. 256p $2.95 Fell

817 Joke books 49-11345

A collection of jokes about the medical profession in all its aspects.

Reviewed by Lee Rogow
Sat R of Lit 33:16 F 25 '50 360w
Springf'd Republican p7D D 11 '49 110w

GOLDMANN, MARY ERNESTINE. Planning and serving your meals. (Whittlesey house publication) 213p il $3 McGraw

642.1 Table. Menus 50-6042

"A handy guide to meal planning, marketing, table settings, forms of service, table decorations, sending out invitations, entertaining on special occasions, this book also includes chapters on carving and serving meat and fowl and menus for various functions." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

"The author, an assistant professor of home economics at the University of Texas, has handled her subject most adequately and published a good text for students and a splendid reference for homemakers." R. J. Murphy
+ J Home Econ 42:663 O '50 310w
San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ag 13 '50 40w

GOLDSCHEIDER, LUDWIG. Ghiberti. See Ghiberti, L.

GOLDSMITH, MARTIN M. Miraculous fish of Domingo Gonzales; il. by William de la Torre. 208p $2.75 Norton

50-7445

A satirical novel describing an economic boom in a sleepy Mexican fishing village. It began when an American arrived in Puerto Miguel to buy shark livers and ended when the processing plant was moved to Santa Clara, due to the strange chemistry of "the miraculous fish of Domingo Gonzales."

Booklist 46:281; 287 My 15 '50

"The tale is told agreeably and quite unaffectedly, all things considered. But the invention is a little too thin and stereotyped. . . Mr. Goldsmith has obviously attempted to pay his respects to the simple people and simple life he has met and loved in Mexico. But his tribute has suffered under a double load of rhetoric and art." Milton Crane
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ag 13 '50 300w
Kirkus 18:264 My 1 '50 180w

"A charming and happy satire." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 75:979 Je 1 '50 80w

Reviewed by Ernestine Evans
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 18 '50 550w

"Martin Goldsmith's characters bob up and down like those of a Punch-and-Judy show. Although it is possible for the two-dimensional characters of such a show to achieve either allegory or, at worst, slapstick, Mr. Goldsmith's do neither. There are amusing lines, but as a whole the book achieves little meaning or humor." Harry Sylvester

— N Y Times p8 Je 11 '50 450w

"A gently satirical, highly amusing, friendly and colorful little novel that won't tax you too greatly in the summertime and will still leave you well entertained and with just enough of a moral not to hurt." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 9 '50 750w

"The author's humor, dwelling on the drollness of the good folk of Puerto Miguel, wears slightly thin as his tale draws to its end. But the dramatic speed with which the ironical climax is reached—competitive business defeating itself—makes up for whatever shortcomings reviewers may be tempted to point out. Certainly you will be entertained." Robert Pick
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:20 Jl 8 '50 410w

GOLDSTEIN, HERBERT. Classical mechanics. 399p $6.50 Addison-Wesley

531 Mechanics, Analytic 50-7669

"A new textbook in which emphasis is put upon those aspects of classical mechanics which are important in modern physics. Typical chapter titles are 'Variational Principles and Lagrange's Equations,' 'The Kinematics of Rigid Body Motion,' 'The Hamilton Equations of Motion,' and 'Hamilton-Jacob Theory.' It is designed primarily for graduate students of physics." (Library J) Bibliography. Indexes.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1049 Je 15 '50 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:42 My '50

GOLDSTEIN, RICHARD FRANK. Petroleum chemicals industry; with a foreword by Sir Robert Robinson. 449p il $8.50 Wiley

665.5 Petroleum products 50-7960

"This book covers a wide range of subjects dealing with the manufacture of synthetic organic chemicals from petroleum, especially hydrocarbon gases. It reviews the possibilities and the problems of the industry. The primary objective of the book is to survey the fields of industrial chemistry in which oil is the most economic starting material." (Publisher's note) Indexes.

Am Chem Soc J 72:5353 N '50 400w

"The author has accomplished no small task and done it very well indeed." B. T. Brooks
+ Chem & Eng N 27:3307 N 7 '49 450w

"It is ironical that a British author would be the first to give an adequate account of the petrochemical industry, so much of which originated in the United States. . . Dr. Goldstein has done an outstanding job of surveying the field and presenting it in concise, orderly and interesting manner." K. A. Kobe + Chem Eng 56:257 D '49 750w

"The book will be found most useful as a compact statement of the chemical aspects. Its purchase is recommended for collections in which Ellis's The Chemistry of Petroleum Derivatives, 1934-1937, has enjoyed a fair amount of use." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:1049 Je 15 '50 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:51 Jl '50

GOLFFING, FRANCIS. Poems 1943-1949. 42p $2.75 Cummington press

811

A small book of poems by an American poet, representing his output during the years 1943 to 1949.

"His predominant talent is his technique—the deft metrics and the sensitive use of words—and in reading, one is aware of little else. One notes the well-learned but broadened lesson of Imagism and reverberations of the metaphysical mode, but never a hint of feelings and ideas struggling behind the difficult web of language. The poems stimulate no emotional response except pleasure in their execution, and suggest that that pleasure was the emotion which prompted them." Hubert Creekmore
+ Poetry 76:57 Ap '50 360w

"Mr. Golffing is not exquisitely daft in the 'Nein Nein' way: he makes more of an impression of saying something, and often he succeeds in spite of himself. For he is untiring in his efforts to contort, constrict, to hammer himself into a tinily precious jewel, to make his poems as elegant as The Cummington Press has made his book." Dudley Fitts
Sat R of Lit 33:15 Ja 14 '50 160w

GOLOMBEK, H. World chess championship, 1948. 229p il $3 McKay

794.1 Chess 50-5928

A complete summary of the 1948 world chess championship tournament played in The Hague and in Moscow. Contains records, biographical sketches of the players, and annotated play-by-play accounts of all the games. Index of openings.

Reviewed by R. L. Hanson
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Mr 12 '50 100w

"Contains the score of all fifty games . . . annotated with the thoroughness and class of style that we have come to expect from Golombek. . . The earnest student can learn a great deal from Golombek's concise survey of the theoretical novelties produced by the tourney, and he will find the equally thorough index of opening variations very useful."
+ New Statesman & Nation 39:172 F 11 '50 120w

GOMBRICH, E. H. Story of art; with 370 illustrations. 462p $5.50 Phaidon

709 Art—History 50-7209

"A one-volume survey of the history of art which, for young and old, provides a springboard for more intelligent appreciation and understanding of painting, primarily, but other forms of art as well,—architecture, sculpture, illumination, etc. The author highlights the periods, the artists and their works, but one gets a sense of historic perspective, of continuous narrative following trends of development, punctuated by concentration of individual examples." (Kirkus) Index and glossary.

Booklist 46:258 Ap 15 '50

Bookmark 10:37 N '50 10w

"On the whole the book is a good general presentation of art developments from prehistoric cave paintings to Dali and should prove of value to those wishing a simplified introduction to the subject." F. A. Sweet
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 Ap 2 '50 450w

Christian Science Monitor p14 O 21 '50 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

Reviewed by Priscilla Ordway
+ Horn Bk 26:385 S '50 500w

"This is the best history of art I've seen. It is beautifully illustrated and clearly written." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 26:398 S '50 130w

Kirkus 18:202 Mr 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 75:983 Je 1 '50 100w

"Readable text plentifully illustrated will prove useful to the lay reader or the student beginning to concentrate on art." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:1498 S 15 '50 20w

Reviewed by Robin Ironside
New Statesman & Nation 38:706 D 10 '49 130w

"The book was written for young people. Simple writing and lucid organization recommend it. Because of these qualities, the adult, informed or uninformed, will find ideas juxtaposed which he may not have had occasion to think about. Indeed, ideas, rather than facts, provide the structure of the text, although examples in detail are not lacking." B. H. Hayes

GOMBRICH, E. H.—Continued

+ N Y Times p24 Je 11 '50 700w

New Yorker 26:191 D 2 '50 160w

"'The Story of Art' makes good reading for adults. . . It successfully avoids vocational double-talk. It explores works of art directly, as unique expressions, and mentions only those works which are illustrated. (The illustrations are numerous and of high quality.) It offers good criticism by example but avoids the theory of criticism. . . In the introduction Gombrich urges that there is really no such thing as Art; there are only artists. Though it is desirable to focus attention on creative people rather than on an abstract quality, at least in a book of this sort the statement is much too oversimplified." S. L. Faison

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:68 My 6 '50 750w

"'The Story of Art' is so handsome and so sensibly written that one hesitates to find fault, especially since it contains only one major critical blunder spotted by this reviewer, but so comprehensive a book is necessarily a little like an anthology of poetry: people are always complaining that something important was left out—and the unfortunate answer is that lots of things have been. Except for John Singleton Copley, Whistler, and Grant Wood, and the work of Jefferson as architect, art in America is mostly by-passed. . . Omissions among European artists are even more startling. . . And that Jean Auguste Dominique Ingres, one of the greatest draftsmen in the history of art, a painter whose influence continues to be felt even in work by Picasso, has not even been mentioned is almost incredible." Nelson Lansdale

+ — Theatre Arts 34:2 Ag '50 1450w

"Dr. Gombrich's younger readers are most fortunate in his presentation of the subject, but they will be hard put to it to keep his readable and mature wisdom out of the hands of their elders. This is a book which widely read as it will certainly be, may well affect the thought of a generation on the matters with which it deals."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p51 Ja 27 '50 900w

Wis Lib Bul 46:14 N '50

GOMEZ SICRE, JOSE. Spanish drawings, XV-XIX centuries [ed. by Tana de Gámez Losada]. (Hyperion drawing ser) 100p $2.50 Hyperion

741.946 Drawings 50-3743

A short introductory essay, followed by biographical notes about the artists included, is followed by eighty pages of reproductions of drawings by Spanish artists.

Reviewed by Sydney Key

— Canadian Forum 29:286 Mr '50 90w

"Of interest to the student, collector, artist, and all those who like fine books." Gary Sheahan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p34 D 4 '49 50w

Current Hist 18:155 Mr '50 10w

Kirkus 17:643 N 15 '49 70w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1822 D 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by Stuart Preston
N Y Times p7 D 25 '49 50w

Reviewed by L. R. Sander
Sat R of Lit 33:39 Ja 7 '50 50w

School Arts 49:6a Ja '50 50w

GOODALL, NORMAN. One man's testimony. 128p $1.50 Harper

230.58 Faith 49-50420

"An English religious leader examines his own life to show how he has kept his belief in life, faith in God, and deep spiritual certainty through two world wars and widespread insecurity. Unpretentious writing with a personal appeal." Booklist

Booklist 46:212 Mr 1 '50

"This may very properly be 'one man's testimony,' but it is quite likely to strengthen the testimony of many others, who, like him, have had the events of the last generation assault their faith in Christianity. . . The more men live and write—and the more men read this kind of spiritual pilgrimage, the better our age will be." R. E. Keighton

+ Crozer Q 27:188 Ap '50 140w

Kirkus 18:54 F 1 '50 150w

GOODFRIEND, ARTHUR. If you were born in Russia. 192p il $5 Farrar, Straus

914.7 Russia—Social life and customs 50-7012

A "documentary" in text and pictures, following the life of one Russian worker's family from the birth of Mama's fifth child to Mama's death before the birth of her sixth child. The book describes what the home life is like, what the children are taught in school, what work is in a shoe factory and what are its compensations, what is communism's aim—and finally what is communism's justice.

Booklist 46:277 My 1 '50

"The book gives a colorful surface impression of soviet life, but never gets far beneath the surface." W. H. Chamberlin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 23 '50 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '50

"The Soviet 'experiment' from cradle to grave cannot be understood and analyzed per se according to Mr. Goodfriend's découpage, because it is not presented with its true background: collectivization, the code of communist morals and social doctrines, the school, the hospital, the factory, the collective farm, the army, the press, the stage, the screen, the Church itself . . . all these which have been shaped under the rule of a police state. This is something more than a planned economy, it is an economy, and an ideology, enforced through violence. The collection is incomplete, because there are no pictures of labor-camps, no account of the vigilant and untiring activities of the NKVD, no acknowledgment of what the 'New Soviet Man' has to suffer." Helene Iswolsky

Commonweal 52:155 My 19 '50 850w

"The author has tapped all available informed sources; Henry Shapiro, out of fifteen years of intimate knowledge has contributed generously; the over 200 photographs have been carefully selected to make a rounded whole. The breakdown of the material under subheads makes it valuable as a source book for public libraries and schools."

+ Kirkus 17:685 D 15 '49 300w

"With his lively text and pictures Mr. Goodfriend has torn a rent in the iron curtain through which we can see a little more clearly what goes on behind it." Ernestine Evans

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 30 '50 700w

"The content of this unique synthesis of Soviet life is as honest as any American could have made it, and that is saying a good deal. No one can accept the challenge of 'If You Were Born in Russia' without being glad he was born in America. But since the book is bound to leave open-minded readers with a clearer comprehension of what makes Russians tick, Mr. Goodfriend's contribution to international understanding ought to be required reading for the home front in the cold war." Richard Lauterbach

N Y Times p3 Ap 16 '50 500w

"If one allows for the fact that most of the photographs are from Russian sources, and therefore show the façade of Soviet life that the government wants the world to see, the book would appear to be an objective and praiseworthy piece of work."

New Yorker 26:120 My 6 '50 240w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 14 '50 170w

"Considering the difficulties of the task, Mr. Goodfriend has done remarkably well. To a person with sufficient imagination, his book is the closest thing to actual life in the Soviet Union most of us are likely to desire." Martin Ebon

+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 My 27 '50 500w

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 23 '50 130w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:358 S '50 230w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Jl '50

GOODHART, ARTHUR LEHMAN. Five Jewish lawyers of the common law. 74p $1.50 Oxford

923.4 Lawyers. Jews—Biography 50-644

An expansion of the eleventh Lucien Wolf memorial lecture given at London university in 1947. The professor of jurisprudence at Oxford describes the characteristics of five Jews who have made outstanding contributions to common law in England and the United States. They are: Judah Philip Benjamin, Sir George Jessel, Louis D. Brandeis, Rufus Isaacs (Lord Reading) and Benjamin Cardozo.

"This is one of those rare books about law which will be equally attractive to laymen and lawyers. Presenting the biographies of five celebrated figures at the English and American bars, it is written in a manner simple, clear and engaging." E. N. Cahn

+ N Y Times p14 Ap 30 '50 470w

Times [London] Lit Sup p141 Mr 3 '50 430w

GOODIN, PEGGY. Take care of my little girl [sketches by Marjorie Bauernschmidt]. 189p $2.50 Dutton

50-5361

Satirical novel about Liz Ericson's freshman year at a midwestern university. Her mother had attended the same college and belonged to the "Queens" so it was a foregone conclusion that Liz was to be a Queen also. The story is of Liz's revolt against the whole idea.

Booklist 46:200 F 15 '50

"Peggy Goodin isn't a rabid crusader. Her treatment is strictly once over lightly, and, for me, her way is effective: I like my morals with laughs." Betty Swords

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 26 '50 300w

"Amusing, sharp and somewhat brittle, but it will entertain and, possibly, challenge the more sophisticated seniors." M. C. Scoggin

+ — Horn Bk 26:212 My '50 80w

"An honest, and likeable heroine, a hometown beau and the examination of a controversial subject close to home for most teen-age girls should have a strong appeal."

+ Kirkus 18:25 Ja 15 '50 70w

"A novel that is somewhat slight and sketchy. None the less it is thoroughly amusing, written with vitality, pace and a nice sense of satire."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 F 19 '50 190w

"The villain in this book is . . . the sorority system, and Miss Goodin condemns it with a thoroughness that makes for some lively reading. . . It's a book about college girls, and substantially for college girls, or those a little younger. Save for a few jocular references to sex, it could adorn any juvenile list; and as the references are far more innocent than most of the teen-agers we have met lately, perhaps there is no reason why it should not. Parents of teen-agers can also read this novel with pleasure and profit." Jane Cobb

+ N Y Times p34 F 26 '50 360w

Sat R of Lit 33:29 My 13 '50 110w

Wis Lib Bul 46:28 F '50

GOODIS, DAVID. Of missing persons. 186p $2.50 Morrow

50-7483

Detective story.

"Dramatic realism and tense impact in magnificent yarn of scrupulous police work." Drexel Drake

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Jl 9 '50 70w

"First rate suspense, and smart, fast-paced action. Interesting insight into police operations under a Bureau of which little has been written."

+ Kirkus 18:187 Mr 15 '50 100w

"Not so much a crime story as the personal story of a policeman. A slim novel, prosily written."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Je 11 '50 160w

"The first fifty-odd pages of this fine story are so slow that you may have to fight your way through them. From then on, you'll be held in the grip of a chase which has had few equals this season for tension and suspense." E. B.

+ N Y Times p26 My 14 '50 170w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 23 '50 60w

GOODMAN, PAUL. Break-up of our camp, and other stories. 160p $1.50 New directions

49-48869

A collection of short stories, some of them little more than fragments, and one novelette, the title story.

"Mr. Goodman's consistent performance is of a fine and special order and deserves special praise." Willard Maas

+ N Y Times p18 My 28 '50 320w

"The writing is characterized by a tone of unpleasant self-possession, interrupted frequently by passages of brash humor."

New Yorker 26:116 Mr 25 '50 80w

"There are moments of caught beauty in these surrealist stories, when the universe is seen as a stunned dream, and its people conceived as creatures moving in voids of their own imaginings. Unhappily, in spite of the deft grace with which every one of the stories is written, the reader continually finds himself losing touch with the symbolic vocabulary, which is strikingly original, but often incomprehensibly private." A. B. T.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ap 2 '50 130w

"There is little doubt that Paul Goodman 'has something,' but the exact nature of this intangible something the author does not fully permit us to define. There is good writing here, and such potentialities as gain clarity only in patches, and now and again an arresting sentence which surely conveys the fact that we have here a serious author who has something to say, if only he could organize the proper means for saying it. What he most needs is a proper theme, a proper structure, and a complete mastery over his materials." John Cournos

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:31 Ap 22 '50 300w

GOODSPEED, EDGAR JOHNSON. Life of Jesus. 248p $3 Harper

232.9 Jesus Christ—Biography 50-10789

"Dr. Goodspeed gives a straightforward and rapidly moving narrative of the life of Jesus and such interpretations as naturally emerge from the recital. . . In passing he introduces many items which would be available only to one familiar with late Jewish and patristic literature, with critical studies in the Gospels and the Pauline writings, with little known facts about Jewish and Roman customs in the time of Christ, and with Palestinian topography." (Christian Century) Index.

Booklist 47:167 Ja 1 '51

"It is a wonderful thing to find a life of Jesus which combines literary charm, critical integrity, and true religious fervor. Dr. Goodspeed has given us the book for which we have been waiting." Edward Wagenknecht

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 26 '50 450w

GOODSPEED, E. J.—Continued

"Reading Goodspeed's Life of Jesus is a religious as well as an educational experience. . . This book is a mature product of biblical and historical scholarship which is also a help to faith." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 67:1426 N 29 '50 1150w

"Simply but beautifully written it should have a broad appeal."
+ Kirkus 18:699 D 1 '50 160w

"Its chief merit is a certain modesty and unpretentiousness of character. . . It is not a literary masterpiece, like Renan's immortal work. . . It is a simple, clear, well ordered narrative, alike interesting and informing. I think that, if I were asked to specify the best 'Life of Jesus' now easily available, I would name this trustworthy and attractive book by the outstanding New Testament scholar of our time." J. H. Holmes
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 D 3 '50 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 D 17 '50 100w

"At the age of seventy-nine America's greatest New Testament scholar has published his greatest book. . . Its style is marked with simplicity, vigor, and an unquenchable confidence and happiness which one seldom finds outside the New Testament. It can be read by any person of average intelligence on a winter Sunday, yet it beckons one to return again and again to its luminous and wonderfully moving pages." H. E. Fey
+ Sat R of Lit 33:9 D 23 '50 1200w

GOODSPEED, EDGAR JOHNSON, ed. and tr. See Apostolic fathers

GORDON, ARTHUR. Reprisal. 310p $3 Simon & Schuster
50-7121

Based, to some extent on the Monroe case, in which four Georgia Negroes were killed because one of them had cut a white man in a fight. In this novel a young Negro whose wife had been murdered, decided to take matters in his own hands. The story of his struggle is told as it appeared to a white reporter from the North.

"Novels about race hatred have shown a marked tendency to go all out for melodrama, at the expense of truth, and its sobering complexities. Reprisal is an exception. . . [This] is powered by a quiet, controlled anger that dramatizes its point without histrionics or oversimplification. The characters are intelligently conceived and skillfully individualized."
+ Atlantic 186:82 S '50 90w

Booklist 46:345; 47:13 Jl 15 '50; S 1 '50

Reviewed by Mary Sandrock
Cath World 172:73 O '50 200w

" 'Reprisal' does not pass judgment or offer a solution. Rather in the best tradition of fiction it puts a spotlight on a dark corner of society so that it may be seen more clearly and, being seen, also be understood." Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p12 Ag 22 '50 500w

"Despite the slick magazine quality of much of the writing, the faint undertones of soap opera and the obvious sideglances at Hollywood, 'Reprisal' is a swift, powerful and extremely readable novel." V. P. Hass
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 3 '50 500w

"An absorbing story which poses a problem without offering solution."
Kirkus 18:335 Je 15 '50 290w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
Nation 171:273 S 23 '50 90w

Reviewed by Robert Kee
New Statesman & Nation 40:566 D 2 '50 100w

"As if conscious of his obligations to a subject so compelling, Mr. Gordon intersperses in the swift, flashing action occasional talk about the problem. A journalist from the North probes at it, turns it over inquiringly, prods a variety of stock characters for answers. The resulting cliches are far from what a William Faulkner might have provided. . . We must assume that there are no answers, nor even any questions that matter. The theme deserves something better than that, something more than a thriller from which time cannot be spared for penetration." Tarleton Collier
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 20 '50 800w

"All this is a good deal to get into one book, but Mr. Gordon knows how to keep his story moving. . . A Southerner by birth, he knows his people and his background. He approaches the race problem with a sharp awareness of its urgency and also with intelligence and a generous resentment of injustice. Yet, however serious his intentions, the reader is impressed less by what he says about race relations than by the skill with which he uses the tensions of racial conflict for the purposes of a thriller. In this respect the book has a certain resemblance to Faulkner's 'Intruder in the Dust' but falls a good way short of it." Granville Hicks
N Y Times p4 Ag 20 '50 550w

"The story has several painful twists and a wry, indeterminate ending, but the writing, though honest, is too wooden to achieve more than a general effect of detached indignation."
New Yorker 26:73 S 2 '50 100w

"Technically [the novel] is exceedingly adroit. Mr. Gordon understands how to manipulate his cast of characters, how to interweave the strands of plot and action so that there is no slowing up of the story anywhere. Indeed, its acceleration is such that you are almost physically breathless. No doubt about it, he is expert at his trade. His characters, however, are another matter. Superficially they are neatly drawn. . . But, cleverly as this book is done, sharply as the author drives home his point, lively as his story is—and all these things are true—that's all there is." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 25 '50 750w

" 'Reprisal' arouses indignation in the reader, but never at the expense of interest. It is sharply written, an almost perfect example of the novel of suspense. It has, perhaps, no deeper significance than that, for there is in it no pretense to greatness or fine writing. The characters are sound enough, for the author knows the South, but only a few of them are fully realized. Mr. Gordon has accomplished exactly what he intended. He has produced a powerful and thrilling book, based on a surefire plot and a central story that is a matter of public record." Harrison Smith
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:17 S 16 '50 750w

"This intrusion into the tired dust of the Faulkner country carries little conviction, even though 38-year-old Author Gordon was born in Savannah, comes of an old Southern family, and obviously is against lynchings. His variation on an old theme, played for chills, is not likely to add to anybody's understanding of a complex problem."
Time 56:113 S 11 '50 300w

"[This] is a taut, expertly written novel which in its dramatic excitement and unsentimental indictment of social evil is worthy of comparison with Mr. Richard Wright's Native Son."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p741 N 24 '50 100w

GORDON, CAROLINE (MRS ALLEN TATE), and TATE, ALLEN, eds. House of fiction; an anthology of the short story, with commentary. 649p $5; school ed $3.75 Scribner
Short stories—Collections 50-7725

An anthology of thirty short stories, chosen from the works of European and American writers. In their preface the compilers state: "We have not sought the unfamiliar for its own sake but have tried rather to put into one book an ample selection from the great writers who have been called (after James's phrase) the Impressionist school." Partial contents: Young Goodman Brown, by Nathaniel Hawthorne; The fall of the House of Usher, by E. A. Poe; Three deaths, by Leo Tolstoy; On the road, by Anton Chekhov; The story of a farm girl, by Guy de Maupassant; The beast in the jungle, by Henry James; The hunter Gracchus, by Franz Kafka; The open boat, by Stephen Crane; Disorder and early sorrow, by Thomas Mann; Rain, by W. S. Maugham; The demon lover, by Elizabeth Bowen; The bombshop, by Sean O'Faolain; Sky line, by Peter Taylor. Critical comment by the compilers. Bibliography. Biographical notes on authors.

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Jl 16 '50 90w

Reviewed by S. E. Lind
New Repub 123:22 D 11 '50 150w

"This collection is thoroughly traditional. Its value comes not from novelty of any kind, but because it so authoritatively represents the dominant high-level approach to fiction in the colleges, writers' conferences, quarterly reviews and freshman anthologies. This criticism applies to fiction the intensive technical and symbolic analysis that the New Criticism developed for poetry." R. G. Davis
N Y Times p4 Jl 30 '50 950w

"An ample selection of the great writers of the impressionist school. . . The editors' analyses and criticisms of individual stories are occasionally irritating, frequently controversial, and always stimulating. Miss Gordon's and Mr. Tate's critical estimates appear to be based largely on the premise that the pronouncements of the master, Henry James, are to be accepted as ultimate truth and that all else be heresy. Further, the editors tend to identify their own critical evaluations with absolute fact and consequently are often unnecessarily dogmatic. . . In all other respects 'House of Fiction' is an admirable book, one of the best, perhaps the best, of several similar recently published anthologies." William Peden
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:18 Je 17 '50 500w

GORDON, HAMPDEN. Old English furniture. 158p il $2.75 Dutton

749.22 Furniture 49-11578

"A simple guide" to old English furniture for the average person. Partial contents: The Tudor period; The Stuart period (1603-1688); The period of Dutch influence (1689-1714); The Georgian period: Early Georgian (1715-1740), The Chippendale style, The Adam style and the Hepplewhite style, Painted furniture and the Sheraton style, Regency (1800-1820); The less-known makers and designers. Index.

"For the layman who wants a simple and brief description of the essential features of English antique furniture."
+ Bookmark 10:37 N '50 20w

"Recommended." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:174 F 1 '50 130w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 S '50

GORDON, JULIUS. Your sense of humor; a guide to a happy life. 244p $3 Didier pubs.

171.4 Conduct of life. Happiness 50-6324

A study of humor, which the author defines as a "sense of values, a sense of balance, a sense of perspective." He applies his philosophy to all sides of life, and offers practical suggestions for self help and improvement. No index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '50

Kirkus 18:81 F 1 '50 90w

"An urbane thesis, carefully developed and gracefully written. The style is anecdotal and philosophic. Above all, it is friendly. At the same time, the author's attempt to make a distinction between wit (assumed to be unkind) and humor (considered as more gentle) is not wholly successful." P. W. Wilson
+ — N Y Times p29 F 26 '50 90w

Springf'd Republican p6C Ap 9 '50 210w

GORDON, MRS MILDRED, and GORDON, GORDON. FBI story. 218p $2.50 Doubleday 50-9519

Mystery story.

Kirkus 18:401 Jl 15 '50 70w

"The Gordons have done an excellent job in giving documentary authenticity to an exciting story."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 O 1 '50 180w

"The current vogue of the 'documentary' crime film probably inspired this story; and any crime reader is certain to enjoy some of the fresh and presumably authentic details on the routine working of a regional office of the F. B. I. Unfortunately . . . even The Daily Worker should admit that the F. B. I. deserves a better novel than this." Anthony Boucher
— + N Y Times p39 S 10 '50 140w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p16 O 1 '50 100w

GORDON, MRS MILDRED, and GORDON, GORDON. Make haste to live. 223p $2.25 Doubleday

50-6846

Mystery story.

Booklist 46:353 Jl 15 '50

Reviewed by James Sandoe
— Chicago Sun p6 Ap 14 '50 60w

"Mystery fiction of superior plotting, characters and style."
+ Kirkus 18:148 Mr 1 '50 100w

"Crystal is not the most sympathetic of heroines, and perhaps that's why her predicament holds very little suspense for the reader."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 My 14 '50 140w

N Y Times p39 Ap 16 '50 110w

GORDON, MRS PATRICIA. Taming of giants; il. by Garry MacKenzie. 57p $2 Viking

50-8852

"Apodemus Sylvaticus (field mouse to you) was an inch and a half long and yet he actually, or so he thought, succeeded in taming Giants! When the rising tide flooded his old home he set out to find a new one, and came upon the Giants—a whole schoolroom full of them. It was a dreadful experience but it ended happily when one freckle-faced Giant rescued Apodemus." Horn Bk

Booklist 47:16 S 1 '50

"No better illustrator could be found for this merry fantasy than Garry MacKenzie, who is right at home in a mouse's world of sandpipers and frogs, berries and grasses. His delicate, richly detailed drawings are a delight." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 O 29 '50 250w

"This is a delightful whimsical scrap of a story with charming illustrations to entrance the younger set." M. J. T.
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 D 9 '50 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

"Story and illustrations are delightful."
+ Horn Bk 26:375 S '50 90w

Kirkus 18:512 S 1 '50 90w

"This imaginative, amusing, delightful story is about a boy who brings home a mouse from school. But Apodemus is the hero throughout, and you feel deeply for him in his wild adventures." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 O 29 '50 300w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor
N Y Times p34 O 29 '50 150w

GORER, GEOFFREY, and RICKMAN, JOHN. People of great Russia; a psychological study. 236p $3 Chanticleer

914.7 Russia—Social life and customs. National characteristics, Russian [50-2111]

"The work of two British scientists, a physician-psychologist and an anthropologist. . . Dr. Rickman, the co-author, was a country doctor in Russia between 1916 and 1918. He contributes stories of his experiences then. Gorer seeks the character of these people in their experiences as infants. Great Russian babies are wrapped from chin to toe, their arms bound to their side, for about nine months. This 'horrible experience of being overwhelmed by the impotence of depression, and . . . the feeling of destructive omnipotence when the depression gives way to rage' is half of Gorer's key to adult Russian behavior. The other half of their character is found in the tender care of their babies by Great Russians, the frequent unwrapping, breast feeding and bathing that momentarily releases the infant from swaddling." Chicago Sun

Atlantic 186:101 N '50 140w

"There are a lot more pointers in this book for the average American who today is forced to think about the Great Russians. Its great value, I think, rests on the authors' non-political approach. 'The People of Great Russia' offers no short cuts or miracles. But it will give the reader what should be a welcome change from the emotionally-charged politically-inspired, cold war view of the Russian people who, whether we like them or not, most affect our lives and our future." Irving Pflaum

+ Chicago Sun p16 S 3 '50 600w

"Anyone who wants to learn something about the Russian character in general, and about typical Russian behavior and reactions, will find this book stimulating and instructive, so far as it presents facts. Dr. Rickman's brief sketches in his 'Russian Camera Obscura' are excellent. . . The book would have gained by a more thorough study of world history, of the history of religious thought and of Russian literature, or of Alexis de Tocqueville's eighteenth century moralist approach in his classical study of American democracy." Paul Wohl

+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 S 30 '50 1200w

"The sketches, Ten Sketches of Russian Peasant Life, are brilliantly written, and they read like a skillfully contrived and absorbing short story. But while Gorer seems to think that they throw light on the thesis he is trying to maintain, I fail to see it. . . There is a final chapter in which certain political maxims are set forth. These are in the main, I surmise, sound, but they do not logically depend upon a swaddling hypothesis." Patrick Mullahy

+ — New Repub 123:18 S 11 '50 1250w

"A book of brilliant and startling guesses, some of them very valuable, others that seem to me quite wild examples of psychological speculation conducted in a void. . . I would recommend the reader to read Mr. Gorer with A Writer's Notebook at his side. But it would be wrong to convey that Mr. Gorer is a tendentious inquirer. . . He modestly calls his book an experiment, but it is a highly provocative and disputable one: an experiment in ignoring the historical approach, the generalisations about class, production, tyranny, revolution, the masses, which have usually been the basis for studies of this kind." V. S. Pritchett

+ — New Statesman & Nation 39:43 Ja 14 '50 1350w

Reviewed by Andre Karpinsky
N Y Times p5 N 5 '50 800w

Reviewed by Geoffrey Bruun
Sat R of Lit 33:19 N 11 '50 290w

"Dr. Rickman worked in Russia between 1916 and 1918 as a doctor and member of a Quaker relief unit. His Ten Sketches of Russian Peasant Life, compressed into sixty-odd small pages, are in some respects more valuable and illuminating than ten weighty academic volumes. . . Mr. Gorer's essay on the psychology of the Great Russians ought probably to be treated as an unintentional joke. Mr Gorer tries to explain the Russian national character—anthropologically and psycho-analytically—from the manner in which the Russian peasants swaddle their babies." I. Deutscher

+ — Spec 184:20 Ja 6 '50 550w

GORHAM, MAURICE ANTHONY CONEYS. Television; medium of the future. 142p il $2.50 Macmillan

621.388 Television broadcasting [50-500]

"This is not a technical work. This book is about television as a new medium for information and entertainment, and is for those who want to know more about its present position in the world and its prospects of growing out of the pioneering stage and becoming a real factor in modern life." (Note) The author was in charge of the BBC's television service for two years after the war, and was responsible for the re-opening of the service in 1946. List of principal dates in the progress of television.

Reviewed by Larry Wolters
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 O 22 '50 150w

"An enormously stimulating treatment on television. . . Will be extremely useful to theatre and television collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 75:2013 N 15 '50 40w

"Those who do not believe in miracles or prefer to have them explained in scientific terms, will find this a readable and highly instructive book, despite its tendency to break into statistics, and a general solemnity of presentation which is a little alarming." Thea Holme

+ — Spec 183:546 O 21 '49 950w

GORKY, MAXIM, pseud. (ALEXEI MAXIMOVICH PYESHKOFF). Autobiography: My childhood, In the world [and] My universities; tr. by Isidor Schneider. 3v in 1 616p $3.75 Citadel

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.

"Gorki's autobiographical trilogy—My Childhood, In the World, My Universities—in a new translation by Isidor Schneider, the first complete translation and the first edition of these works (all recently out of print) to be published in one volume. They recall the first twenty-odd years of his life, to the beginnings of his literary career." Library J

"Gorki's 'universities' were the lower depths of Russian society; his book is a harsh and vivid record of his struggle to survive in, and understand, this world. Mr. Schneider's translation is colloquial and unobtrusive; it should enlarge the audience for one of the masterpieces of Russian literature." H. W. Hart

+ Library J 75:106 Ja 15 '50 110w

Reviewed by Avrahm Yarmolinsky
New Repub 122:17 F 27 '50 850w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ja 15 '50 180w

"A journey with Gorky is a continuing search for a sound basis for morality. Along the way we meet the best and worst in human experience through the sharply individualized characters and accompanying situations. The company of this master in his quest for individual and worldly understanding immeasurably rewards the effort." R. H. U.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 26 '50 350w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 33:55 My 13 '50 130w

GORMAN, HERBERT SHERMAN. Breast of the dove. 440p $3.50 Rinehart

Maximilian, emperor of Mexico—Fiction. Charlotte, consort of Maximilian, emperor of Mexico—Fiction 50-6764

A story of Mexico during the brief period when Maximilian ruled as emperor, the pawn and dupe of Napoleon III. The story is told chiefly from the point of view of a young French officer who falls in love with the ill-fated empress, Carlota.

Booklist 46:241; 261 Ap 1 '50; Ap 15 '50

Bookmark 9:185 My '50 50w

Reviewed by Mary Sandrock
Cath World 171:233 Je '50 200w

Reviewed by Willard Motley
Chicago Sun p9 Ap 16 '50 250w

Reviewed by Henry Cavendish
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 16 '50 450w

Reviewed by R. K. Shellaby
Christian Science Monitor p20 My 19 '50 320w

"The genuine drama of the factual material has been used with discrimination and the true tragedy loses nothing of its poignancy in this retelling."
+ Kirkus 18:75 F 1 '50 180w

"This well-known story is retold accurately and sympathetically. Carlota and Maximilian fail to come alive but the minor characters—soldiers and courtiers—are vivid and the reader's interest is held throughout. Recommended." J. L. Ross
+ — Library J 75:560 Ap 1 '50 70w

"All too often in the historical novel information becomes a substitute for imagination, and this is what happens here. Though Gorman has mastered the mechanics of that involved plot in which Maximilian and Carlotta became the victims of death and madness, the once-real doesn't become real again. It is a respectful job, well done, the big lumps of data competently leavened, with a good seasoning of subplots to garnish the dish. And yet the reader is outside the stately procession." Jean Garrigue
— + New Republic 122:19 My 8 '50 370w

"To this reviewer the private troubles of the fictional hero were considerably less interesting and absorbing than the great tale of the fate of Maximilian and Carlota. Mr. Gorman is as inventive as usual in the providing of plausible coincidences, drinking bouts, fleshly intrigues, personal perils, surprises, private vices and virtues—but all his inventions seem trivial compared with the romance and tragedy in the rise and fall of Carlota and Maximilian." B. D. Wolfe
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ap 16 '50 500w

"Mr. Gorman clearly has done a great deal of research for this work, but happily he has not allowed his facts to clog the narrative." John Cournos
+ N Y Times p43 Ap 16 '50 170w

New Yorker 26:118 My 6 '50 120w

" 'The Breast of the Dove' is not without interest, it is rich in period paraphernalia, exotic in setting, informative about royal ceremony, eloquent (via Sam Glib) in its meshing of history and its definitions of democracy. But it is old in story, older still in contrivance, an elegant, rather than an exciting, entertainment." Charles Lee
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:19 My 27 '50 700w

GORSLINE, DOUGLAS W. Farm boy; il. by [the author]. 186p $2.50 Viking

50-6586

"Fifteen-year-old John, insecure and unhappy, had been expelled from several schools and is sent to his uncle Gene, founder and owner of a huge modern farm. Under the strict, inflexible supervision of Anderson, the manager, John learns through hard work that he is capable of sustained effort and being important to a large enterprise." Kirkus

---

Booklist 46:248 Ap 1 '50

"The book catches the mood of an adolescent boy and his first awakening to responsibility as well as the mood of life on a farm through the seasons, the difficulties of the work and its compensations."
+ Bookmark 9:165 Ap '50 60w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p3 My 6 '50 300w

"Whether they belong on the farm or in the city, boys in their teens should find a personal message in this outstanding story, mature and realistic in its approach, told with truth and beauty." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 My 7 '50 220w

Christian Science Monitor p6 Jl 29 '50 120w

"An excellent realistic story for older boys." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:194 My '50 120w

"The great farm, smoothly and efficiently operated, with its life rooted in the turn of the seasons, is a real personality in this book which combines a fascinating picture of life on a modern farm with a study in adolescent restlessness."
+ Kirkus 18:61 F 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:644 Ap 15 '50 80w

"Writing is labored and plot lacks action, for the author sees his people mostly as part of a series of changing landscapes. For mature and reflective readers." Siri Andrews
Library J 75:882 My 15 '50 70w

"There is a staunch reality about the book, plus that extra depth of feeling that an artist would have for the country scene. . . The financial problems that must have worried the old uncle, a most lovable character, are not gone into very deeply. We carry away an appreciation of the change in Johnny from his sharing in adult work and a sense of the traditional skills and love of the land that keep such a farm as this alive through many generations." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 19 '50 230w

"Here is a book with range and power, a tough, sensitive novel for older boys that must be hailed for its rare honesty. It is a story of reformation and growth, set against the practical life of a dairy farm, where a boy's introspections are answered with a man's philosophy." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p22 Ap 30 '50 100w

New Yorker 26:180 D 2 '50 80w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor
San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 12 '50 150w

Sat R of Lit 33:38 My 13 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:30 Ap '50

GOTTMANN, JEAN. Geography of Europe. 688p il maps $6.75 Holt

914 Europe—Description and travel

A geography of Europe for the layman written by a European who has taught at Princeton and Johns Hopkins. It deals with the physical aspects of Europe, and also with the cultural and economic sides of European life. Classified, annotated bibliography. Copiously illustrated. Maps. Index.

Booklist 47:59 O 1 '50

"In addition to his comprehensive study of the geography of Europe. . . Mr. Gottmann has done a most interesting job in discussing the people of the European countries." G. J. Scharschug
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 S 10 '50 200w

"A famous French geographer has written this geography of Europe for Americans, but it is sure to be of worldwide value."
+ Kirkus 18:553 S 1 '50 190w

GOTTSCHALK, LOUIS REICHENTHAL. Lafayette, between the American and the French Revolution (1783-1789). 461p $7.50 Univ. of Chicago press

B or 92 Lafayette, Marie Poseph Paul Yves Roch Gilbert Du Motier, marquis de

50-5286

"This is the fourth of a series of studies on the life and times of Lafayette. It takes him through a period of about six years—from the end of the War of American Independence in 1783 to the threshold of the French Revolution in 1780." (Pref) For earlier volumes see Book Review Digest 1935, 1938, 1942. Index.

GOTTSCHALK, L. R.—Continued

Reviewed by H. B. Hill
Am Hist R 55:892 Jl '50 900w

"It is an occasion for genuine gratification to note the appearance of this fourth volume in Professor Gottschalk's exhaustive study of Lafayette. The present volume . . . reveals the same meticulous research as its predecessors and likewise the same measured judgment and grace of expression." Paul Farmer
+ Ann Am Acad 270:193 Jl '50 450w

Reviewed by Robert Palmer
Chicago Sun p6S Ja 25 '50 500w

"Emerging from this meticulous, sharply critical and readable volume are several new and important interpretations. The influence of the United States upon France and the French revolution is clearly greater than heretofore believed." R. M. Brace
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 22 '50 290w

Current Hist 19:38 Jl '50 50w

Reviewed by C. A. Micaud
Nation 170:353 Ap 15 '50 260w

"It richly merits the James Hazen Hyde prize which it received prior to publication as the best study of Franco-American relations made during the preceding year. It also has intrinsic interest as the story of a developing career and personality." Dumas Malone
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Mr 12 '50 800w

"In this skillful history, a panel in a series on Lafayette, Mr. Gottschalk traces the chosen six years at a leisurely pace, with documentary exactness, and yet with buoyancy borrowed from the French hero who was constitutionally unsuited to sepulchral overtones. Extensive and reliable scholarship is employed discreetly, nowhere distorting the narrative, although, at times, the strict chronological method tends to limit the author's opportunity to develop intellectual themes." Adrienne Koch
+ N Y Times p10 Ja 22 '50 750w

"The complete and skillful searching out of the materials is amply reflected in the efficient system of footnotes. It is nevertheless possible to wish for a bibliographical essay that might reflect in more compact fashion the Odyssean quality of the author's adventure. A teacher of history may conclude on the pedantic note that it might be more valuable to his students than many details about Lafayette." F. L. Nussbaum
Pol Sci Q 65:628 D '50 850w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:170 Je '50 280w

GOUDEY, ALICE E. Good rain; il. by Nora S. Unwin. [31p] $1.75; lib ed $2.25 Aladdin 50-9637

Picture story book for young readers showing the effects of the lack of rain in both the city and the country, and the joy brought by the rain when it comes.

Booklist 47:120 N 15 '50

"Six to 8 year olds will like this refreshing story and its many pictures of city and country life." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 O 15 '50 80w

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 20w

Kirkus 18:510 S 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by Phyllis Fenner
Library J 75:1671 O 1 '50 60w

"This is a charming idea for a small child's picture book, and Miss Unwin has interpreted it happily, with pictures full of feeling." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 12 '50 100w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 N '50

GOUDGE, ELIZABETH. Gentian hill. 402p $3.50 Coward-McCann
49-50320

The setting is the Devonshire coast of England in the years when a Napoleonic invasion of England was feared. The heroine is a little girl rescued from a shipwreck and adopted by a farm couple; the hero, an orphan who deserted the navy, who met and loved Stella when they were children. After the battle of Trafalgar the tangled threads of the plot are straightened out.

Booklist 46:113; 141 D 1 '49; D 15 '49
Bookmark 9:108 F '50 70w

"The whole thing is done so blandly that it seems almost rude to mention sternly that a farm has more pungent odors than those of sweet hay, fresh berries and dew. Perhaps it is rude, for this is undoubtedly a fairy tale and Goudge devotees, at least, should find sugary Gentian Hill palatable." Mary Sandrock
Cath World 170:392 F '50 300w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Ja 4 '50 550w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 1 '50 550w

"As a romance, 'Gentian Hill' is of course written to be read in a state of 'willing suspension of disbelief,' with critical and realistic values largely silenced. Physically and mentally, the story is enshrouded in a golden mist, a gentle miasma in which virtue is very uncomplicated, and even evil is stylized. . . Discriminating readers, while conceding Miss Goudge's story-telling ability, may well consider twice how much they want to submerge themselves in her moral atmospherics." Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p16 Ja 11 '50 370w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '50

"The narrative has an effortless flow, the principals and lesser figures are all admirable, the superable odds are considerable. There is sentimental focus on fresh youth and mellow age, while nature's habiliments periodically get their warm due." E. S. S.
+ Commonweal 51:372 Ja 6 '50 130w

"Charming and irresistible blend of romance, fairy tale, old legends and happy endings set in an iridescent English countryside at the time of Napoleon. . . If the characters are all too good to be true, the net result is nonetheless captivating." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 26:212 My '50 70w

"A fairy tale sort of romance, charmingly told."
+ Kirkus 17:607 N 1 '49 270w

"Most heartily recommended." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 75:43 Ja 1 '50 80w

"The medieval legend that gave rise to the story and the still older lore of the countryside, running back through the Romans to and beyond the Saxons, give the book the mood of almost mystic innocence and childlike gayety and gravity so often associated with Miss Goudge's writing. . . Elizabeth Goudge is a novelist who re-creates life, rather than dissects it, with a special feeling for the continuity of living that has flowed through countless generations down to our own. 'Gentian Hill' will take its place beside other of her books, notably 'Pilgrim's Inn,' for the pleasure of her wide circle of readers." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ja 1 '50 750w

"Miss Goudge loves the Devon country and has evidently studied its history and traditions with some care. Her book evokes its beautiful old thatched cottages; its unhurried and unhurryable plowmen; its solid and enduring mores. 'Gentian Hill' is a caricature of reality, but it is a kindly caricature, and it will bring a whiff of beauty to millions who would never seek it in more difficult places." Horace Reynolds
+ N Y Times p15 Ja 1 '50 410w

New Yorker 25:79 Ja 7 '50 180w

"All the Goudge paraphernalia of sentimentality flourishes luxuriantly in 'Gentian Hill.' But so do her efforts to bring to her readers an awareness of deeper reality and the need for compassion. For many readers the best part of a Goudge story is neither the action nor the characters but the atmosphere she creates which affords a pleasant sense of escape. In 'Gentian Hill' she creates 'a goldwashed atmosphere' which yields perfectly the illusion of being happy and hopeful and safe." Jane Voiles

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ja 22 '50 750w

"The writing has the lovely flowing quality familiar to admirers of Miss Goudge. Among her most delightfully developed characters must be included the animals who play important roles in the Devonshire farm life. . . All are uniformly engaging and could be subtracted from the fairy tale, set down in this hard, cold world and still seem believable. That none of her human beings could pass this test is no reflection on the author's skill." Josephine Lawrence

+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 D 31 '49 460w

"It is good reading, often quite moving, sometimes humorous, and never failing in entertainment." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p16A Ja 15 '50 330w

Time 55:66 Ja 2 '50 550w

"Recommended."

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Ja '50

GOULD, FRANKLIN FARRAR. Maine man in the making. 212p $2.50 Harper

B or 92 Maine—Social life and customs 50-6639

Reminiscences of a Maine farmer. He tells how he and his father cultivated a rocky farm after his mother and the other seven children left for a more comfortable life in the village. At the age of fifteen he decided that he was overworked and set out for New Hampshire and "the road to fortune." There he worked in a milk farm and a department store and left for Boston after unsuccessful ventures in running his own store and managing another failing business. In Boston he worked for six years as an elevated railway conductor, married a girl who loved the country, and returned with her to another Maine farm after ten years more of unwanted city life while earning his living as a railway postal clerk. The book contains many character sketches of his uncles, Maine neighbors and New Hampshire customers.

Booklist 46:225; 245 Mr 15 '50; Ap 1 '50

Bookmark 9:182 My '50 50w

"Readers will find in this sketchy narrative a blend of homely wisdom and earthy humor They will find a backward look over a life of toil and hardship but a life also of full satisfaction. Mr. Gould's pages are warmed by a liking for earth and for simple humanity, by appreciation of food and fire and friendly voices, by a love of seasons." Walter Havighurst

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Ap 16 '50 450w

"This is a true story of life with father and a vivid piece of reminiscing. . . It is clean, straight-forward writing, edged with humor, often surprisingly touched by tenderness. Going back to another age as it does, it takes one back to a part of the United States that has the capacity to remain ruggedly the same in the midst of a changing world." Elizabeth Yates

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 22 '50 600w

"This doesn't have the gaiety of son John's writing but it does have a special New England appeal."

Kirkus 18:49 Ja 15 '50 170w

"Franklin writes a clear hand-chiseled prose. His narrative skill keeps interest rolling; a dry Maine humor riffles through the pages." Richardson Wright

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Ap 16 '50 360w

"There is no amateurish smudging here; the writing is sharp, clear and admirably controlled. Descriptions are curtly vivid, and the author has a keen ear for regional speech. It is a keen book, too, deft in characterization, filled with estimates as natively tart as sparkling cider. Finally it is an extremely funny book." F. F. Van de Water

+ N Y Times p34 Ap 2 '50 430w

"The account is written in that good, sound narrative prose which is something of a Maine tradition. The state has its roots in the eighteenth century and Defoe and Smollett are in the blood as well as the rhythms of the Scriptures. Mr. Gould has given us a Maine book every friend of Maine will be glad to add to his collection." Henry Beston

+ Sat R of Lit 33:29 Jl 22 '50 550w

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 23 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 My '50

GOULD, RALPH ERNEST. Yankee boyhood; my adventures on a Maine farm seventy years ago; il. by Arthur Conrad. 215p $3 Norton

B or 92 Maine—Social life and customs 50-7255

A book of reminiscences about the author's boyhood on a Maine farm seventy years ago. "I was raised in what today would be called bitter poverty, but I never knew it," he says. There was plenty of hard work, but there was fun, too, in this austere life. For the author's earlier books Yankee Storekeeper, and Yankee Drummer see Book Review Digest 1946, 1947.

"Mr. Gould sets down, much as any octogenarian might tell them, the random memories of his boyhood. His are written in the conversational manner. If they lack allurement as literature (that is, are not written in a distinguished style) they have a great deal of allure as an honest picture of the past, and as an illumination of how life in the United States has changed in one man's lifetime." Fanny Butcher

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 14 '50 600w

Kirkus 18:197 Mr 15 '50 310w

"Mr. Gould is a hearty extrovert, with few literary graces. But perhaps his chronicles of life amid the boulders seventy years ago are all the nearer to the facts for that. The facts were sometimes not without a broad humor but singularly without charm." W. P. Eaton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Jl 9 '50 700w

"Tart as barberry jam, here is genuine Maine talk which has it all over the synthetic 'by-heck' variety." S. T. Williamson

+ N Y Times p16 Je 4 '50 330w

"Rather a grim account but an honest and accurate one which should be of particular value to students of regional ways of life in the United States. As a farm book and a Maine book, 'Yankee Boyhood' is one side of a limited picture, and no more." Henry Beston

Sat R of Lit 33:11 Jl 8 '50 450w

GOULD, SAMUEL, B., and DIMOND, SIDNEY A. Training the local announcer. 201p $2.50 Longmans

791.4 Radio broadcasting 50-8192

"A practical text, based on the idea that persons planning to enter the radio field will, in most cases, begin in the small, local station, and for that reason they should have thorough training in the various activities of the small station. A wide variety of exercises and dramatic narrative material is included." Publishers note

---

Booklist 46:329 Jl 1 '50

"Especially good for libraries in communities with broadcasting stations."

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:19 S '50

GOVAN, MRS CHRISTINE (NOBLE) (J. N. DARBY, pseud). Pink maple house; il. by Sari. 283p $2.50 Aladdin

50-12562

The first day her family moved into their new house the autumn leaves threw a pink light on the white paint so Polly named it the "pink maple house." The story tells of Polly's good times with her friend Jenny in the pink maple house. There is a small mystery too.

Booklist 47:120 N 15 '50

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p9 N 13 '50 50w

"A nice homey story for little girls of 10 or 11 to read for themselves. . . Seven and eight year olds will enjoy having it read to them."
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 D 16 '50 120w

"Told with warmth and understanding. This is sure to be a much-loved book."
+ Horn Bk 26:372 S '50 50w

"A quiet, happy family story, although to our mind, too much adult participation and direction."
+ — Kirkus 18:642 O 15 '50 180w

"Little girls will certainly enjoy this story of friendship and happy family life by the author of 'Those Plummer Children.' They will like its humor, its sentiment and its understanding." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p28 N 12 '50 150w

GOYEN, WILLIAM. House of breath. 181p $2.75 Random house

50-9448

"A first novel, much of which has been published in the 'literary' magazines. Poetical, almost plotless, this story of Charity, Texas, its river, the Ganchion house, Christy and the Boy Ganchion evokes a mood through the masterful use of symbols and impressions. Author has much of Wolfe's feeling for time and place." Library J

"Goyen's is an ambitiously experimental book, which is all to the good, but it cannot be said that the author has realized his intentions with much success. . . That The House of Breath is decidedly flawed is, in the final count, of less consequence than the fact that it has exciting qualities. Coming as it does from a very young writer, it announces a notable talent which already has great verbal resources at its command." C. J. Rolo
+ — Atlantic 186:81 S '50 550w

Reviewed by Florence Medow
Chicago Sun p6 S 17 '50 140w

Reviewed by August Derleth
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 S 17 '50 420w

"For its brilliant evocation of a world, for its poetic and disciplined use of language, and for its subtle discernment of character and purpose, 'The House of Breath' stands a major achievement and William Goyen a young writer to be reckoned with." Ruth Chapin
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 16 '50 950w

"An exquisitely written and often brilliant first novel by a young Texan."
+ Kirkus 18:363 Jl 1 '50 280w

"A beautiful little book to be savoured slowly and often." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 75:1410 S 1 '50 70w

"This is not autobiographical fiction as Proust or Dickens wrote it but the fiction of mere sensitiveness. Character and action are unimportant. Just as some novelists depend on lists of house-furnishings or on that bed of Procrustes, the well-made plot, for their impact, the novelist of sensitivity—Mr. Goyen is but the most recent of many—depends on his traumas. Like the Rousseau of the 'Confessions,' he emphasizes his otherness, forgetting that confession and fiction, like salvation and art, have nothing to do with each other." Ernest Jones
+ — Nation 171:252 S 16 '50 800w

Reviewed by Jean Garrigue
New Repub 123:20 D 25 '50 300w

"While much of 'The House of Breath' is far from easy to comprehend at a first reading, it is often exciting to the ear. Some of the influences which preponderate as yet in Mr. Goyen's mannered, highly individual, writing seem to be Whitman as well as Joyce with Melville more dominant than either. . . It is in writing about the external world of nature, rather than about people, that he most succeeds in the difficult, highly poetic prose style which he has used here." Iris Barry
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 S 10 '50 500w

"'The House of Breath,' is not a well-made novel, indeed it is not a novel at all but a sustained evocation of the past, a long search for place and identity, and the meaning of an intense personal experience; an attempt to cleanse the heart of its mysterious burden of guilt, to build with words, breath-made substance, a bridge over the gulf between two disassociated experiences. . . The writing as a whole is disciplined on a high plane, and there are long passages of the best writing, the fullest and richest and most expressive, that I have read in a very long time—complex in form, and beautifully organized, shapely as a good tree, as alive and as substantial." K. A. Porter
+ — N Y Times p17 Ag 20 '50 900w
New Yorker 26:73 S 2 '50 70w

"Here is a real talent gone astray, one hopes merely in a youthful desire to be 'special.' All Mr. Goyen needs to realize his own abilities is a little simplicity." Oliver La Farge
Sat R of Lit 33:19 S 9 '50 650w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 40:192 autumn '50 40w

GRACE, DICK. Visibility unlimited; decorations by Avery F. Johnson. 276p $2.75 Longmans

B or 92 Aviators—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 50-5826

Autobiography of a famous American stunt flier and test pilot who saw combat duty in two world wars. "Dick Grace soloed one of the early crates with no previous hours of dual, when aviation was in its infancy. From that time on the story of his life parallels the history of aviation in its most exciting elements. The behind-the-scenes stories of a Hollywood stunt man, aerial wingwalker, crash pilot, and later pilot in the bombing raids over Germany provide thrills enough for several books." (Springf'd Republican)

Booklist 46:236 Mr 15 '50
Bookmark 9:156 Ap '50 50w

"Today, just over 50, Dick Grace is able to look back over a life that has survived more than enough peril and action for 100 men. And furthermore he has a deft, swift, sure touch for telling about it. Once started on 'Visibility Unlimited' this writer waded straight thru, unable to put it down." Wayne Thomis
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Je 11 '50 300w

"It is a convincing account of a man who dared hugely but always with such skillful calculation of the chances that he seemed to live a charmed life. The writing is prosaic, but the excitement comes through it." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 26:214 My '50 80w
Kirkus 18:24 Ja 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 75:707 Ap 15 '50 70w

"That Dick Grace is alive merely proves that some people can make twenty consecutive passes in a dice game. . . Mr. Grace has absorbed enough punishment to satisfy a few thousand men. Most of these thrills he has recorded in this book with admirable modesty. In a sense, Mr. Grace's story is that of aviation and a readable reminder of the great courage and imagination that converted a daredevil hobby into a major industry." Murray Schumach
+ N Y Times p24 Mr 5 '50 150w

"Dick Grace's story is remarkable for its honesty, for its unconscious faith in its own skill and ingenuity, for its quiet pride in the output of the greatest industrial nation on earth. Boys will find in it excitement, stimulation, and satisfaction. Their elders will find a renewal of faith in our country and its people."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:40 My 13 '50 330w

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 5 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Ap '50

GRACQ, JULIEN. Dark stranger; tr. by W. J. Strachan. 187p $2.50 New directions

50-9035

A psychological novel dealing with the desire for death. A group of young people vacationing at a French resort, are inwardly disturbed by the presence of a mysterious Englishman who finally commits suicide.

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 24 '50 350w

"This story, translated from the French, has a promising beginning. There are some effective lines of place description and personal reflection. Even before a quote is used the likeness to the close, full style of Mauriac is apparent. But the novel never does get beyond its good beginning. There is a ponderous building up of an atmosphere which cannot account for the effects upon the characters noted in the diary of the writer." George Miles

— + Commonweal 52:587 S 22 '50 260w

Kirkus 18:218 Ap 1 '50 250w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
Nation 171:273 S 23 '50 100w

Reviewed by Norma Crandall
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 13 '50 220w

"Few American readers will be moved by 'A Dark Stranger.' The theme is old-fashioned in its labored effort at strangeness; the style, in spite of a very faithful and very adequate translation, will appear over-literary and lush. The vague characterization, the weird dreams, the conversations on Poe and Rimbaud smack too much of decadent and romantic artificiality." Henri Peyre

N Y Times p12 Jl 2 '50 260w

New Yorker 26:86 Ag 26 '50 100w

"The comparison of Julien Gracq with James and Proust, made on the jacket of this novel, is too absurd to be considered. Its matter is morbid, its prose overwrought, its range narrow; it is tedious." John Cournos

— Sat R of Lit 33:34 S 9 '50 230w

GRAEDENER-HATTINGBERG, MAGDA VON (BENVENUTA, pseud). Rilke and Benvenuta; a book of thanks; tr. from the German by Cyrus Brooks. 193p $3 Norton

B or 92 Rilke, Rainer Maria 49-50009

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"'Benvenuta's' memoirs of Rilke deserve a wider circle of readers than those who will find in them a valuable supplement to notes on Rilke's poetry. Magda von Hattingberg's writings also shared the moment of romance felt in the lyric dramas of von Hofmannsthal, and the spirit which is preserved between the pages of her book is not unlike memories of 'Der Rosenkavalier.' The Europe she brings back to mind glowed brightly and then vanished in the darkness of World War I." Horace Gregory

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 9 '50 800w

New Yorker 26:124 S 23 '50 120w

Reviewed by Frank Wood
Poetry 76:92 My '50 1350w

"The descriptions of Rilke's life in this predeluge world—the nature and scope of his own concerns and those of his acquaintances, the seemingly deliberate loftiness of their talks, and (if you want to call it that) the ivory-tower spirit of their existence on a continent approaching crisis—may give to the older generation a pang of controversial nostalgia. Younger readers are not unlikely to think Fräulein Von Hattingberg's reminiscences over-romantic, somewhat stilted, or even gushing. But admirers of Rilke of any age group will be grateful to his indefatigable publishers for making the valuable and fascinating material this volume contains accessible in this country." Robert Pick

+ Sat R of Lit 33:20 Mr 4 '50 700w

Reviewed by John Derby
Yale R n s 39:565 spring '50 150w

GRAFTON, CORNELIUS WARREN. Beyond a reasonable doubt. 338p $3 Rinehart

50-6454

The case of a young lawyer who murders his brother-in-law justifiably, and when his sister is accused of the murder, makes a full confession. The detectives do not believe him, and when his sister is cleared, he retracts his statement, pleads not guilty and acts as his own lawyer, and is acquitted.

+ Kirkus 18:76 F 1 '50 100w

"Mr. Grafton has done a masterly job of construction in which the same details that are used to prove Jess' guilt are also used by him in his attempt to show innocence. It's a long novel, but the sheer ingenuity of it is constantly fascinating."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 My 21 '50 250w

"Jess London is a protagonist worthy of an interesting novel. But this book is a disappointment. While well plotted and filled with realistic detail, it is weak on central motive and characterization. However, C. W. Grafton, a lawyer himself, does make some oblique but penetrating comments on the fallibility of justice." Barbara Frank

+ — N Y Times p27 My 21 '50 90w

New Yorker 26:136 Ap 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 23 '50 150w

"The complex strands of evidence become a formidable tangle in which to trap Jess at the least misstep. And beyond this lies the larger consideration which lends the book its originality and substance. Jess is the protagonist—but should he or should he not go free? There is a serious moral question in Jess's decision to pursue a course of outright perjury and gamble for all or nothing. Mr. Grafton has been skilful and subtle, and on its premises I found his ending quite satisfactory, if surprising." Edmund Fuller

+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 Je 10 '50 230w

GRAGG, FRANCES, and PUTNAM, GEORGE PALMER. Golden Valley; a novel of California. 206p $2.75 Duell

50-42

"The Owens Valley War was an unfortunate episode in California history that resulted from a water shortage in 1904. The conflict arose when Los Angeles, its supplies seriously threatened, initiated a project to pipe water from Owens Valley—a project that would have left insufficient water for the irrigation farming of valley settlers. This book is a novelized version of the episode from the settlers' viewpoint." N Y Times

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 12 '50 190w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Jl 16 '50 130w

"Warm touches supplied by Frances Gragg and George Palmer Putnam, the late author-publisher, give color to the regional settings, but as a novel the book is weak in characterization and unconvincing. The history of Owens Valley is infinitely more interesting than this fictional recreation." Sergei Lenormand

N Y Times p27 Ja 22 '50 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 26 '50 120w

GRAGG, FRANCES—Continued

"Narrated by an aged pioneer grandmother, proclaiming that right exists only in the hinterlands, this fictionized hymn to the Western hills can still claim a certain color and authenticity. A staunch segment of lore far beyond the wide Missouri." C. M. Brown

+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 F 4 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:24 Mr '50

GRAHAM, MRS ALBERTA (POWELL). Christopher Columbus, discoverer; il. by Janice Holland. 127p $1.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

B or 92 Columbus, Christopher—Juvenile literature 50-8693

Fictionized biography of Christopher Columbus for nine and ten year olds.

Booklist 47:16 S 1 '50

Reviewed by A. L. Shea

Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 O 22 '50 80w

Kirkus 18:386 Jl 15 '50 70w

"Recommended." M. E. Martignoni

+ Library J 75:1306 Ag '50 80w

"It is all well done, and yet easy reading for eight or nine year olds. It is lucky that so useful a book has distinguished book-making." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 1 '50 100w

"It is related in fairly simple words, but it succeeds in making vivid the action and drama of the record, and it brings out the personality of the great discoverer."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:64 N 11 '50 60w

GRAHAM, MRS ALBERTA (POWELL). Strike up the band! bandleaders of today. 160p $2 Nelson

927.8 Musicians—Juvenile literature 49-11228

"For teen-aged devotees of jazz and swing, Alberta Graham has written 'Strike Up the Band!' which contains biographical sketches of thirty-five contemporary bandleaders. There are Louis Armstrong, Cab Calloway, Paul Whiteman, and other old masters of jazz; such luminaries of swing as Benny Goodman, Harry James, Count Basie; and representatives of what Mrs. Graham calls 'The Modern Era,' including Woody Herman, Elliot Lawrence and Stan Kenton. Their careers are sketched concisely with enough personal touches to give a human flavor to these peculiarly American success stories." N Y Times

Kirkus 17:605 N 1 '49 150w

"Excellent ready-reference tool for popular music fans. . . Recommended for all young people's collections." Clara Adams

+ Library J 75:178 F 1 '50 90w

N Y Times p22 F 19 '50 120w

Wis Lib Bul 46:31 Mr '50

GRAHAM, MRS ALICE (WALWORTH). See Walworth, A.

GRAHAM, WINSTON. Cordelia. 311p $3 Doubleday

50-5377

Pictures life in Manchester, England, in the 1860's. Cordelia is the beautiful young daughter of a middle-class family, married to the weak-willed son of one of the city's most successful business men, Frederick Ferguson. That domineering individual runs the lives of all who come under his influence: his brother, his sister, his son, all of whom live in his house. When Cordelia attempts to live her own life she is only partially successful. In the end she makes her peace with her father-in-law.

Booklist 46:246 Ap 1 '50

Bookmark 9:136 Mr '50 40w

"Told with a neat, authoritative style, good humor and good sense. . . A novel that makes brightly interesting reading."

+ Cath World 171:73 Ap '50 240w

"Excellent reading." Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 F 5 '50 320w

"Though 'Cordelia' is a good story, rich in sustained interest and wit, its most distinctive element is its background, which is Manchester, England, 80 years ago." W. K. Rugg

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 26 '50 150w

"A substantial, and rather soberly romantic story. . . For women only, this is a rather decorous and sometimes dull novel of a period passion."

Kirkus 17:655 D 1 '49 160w

"Women may like this story which savors each detail of living to the full and presents a picture of temptation overcome and devotion to duty triumphant." Anne Whitmore

Library J 75:43 Ja 1 '50 70w

"Mr. Graham is agreeably Victorian in mood and material, and as you turn the leisurely, detailed but keenly observant pages of his novel you will discover that Cordelia is much in accord." George Conrad

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 5 '50 850w

"The background of Manchester in the Eighteen Sixties is blocked in with authority, and the style is easy and lit with humor. This is Mr. Graham's first novel to be published in America, and it's a good one." M. S. Hurst

+ N Y Times p26 Ja 22 '50 300w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 14 '50 250w

"Cordelia's character is drawn firmly and with understanding, as are those also of her husband, with his literary aspirations, and her father-in-law, for whom family continuity is the only enduring thing. Light relief is furnished by the eccentric Uncle Pridey, whose studies of mice and their habits create a furore in the scientific world."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p309 My 13 '49 220w

GRAHAM, WINSTON. Night without stars. 275p $3 Doubleday

50-9369

Mystery story in which the hero, an English lawyer partially blinded in the war, finally learns the truth about three things: the French girl he falls in love with in Nice; the murder of the restauranteur, Pierre Grognard; and the activities of Charles Benat, ex-leader of the Resistance.

Booklist 47:156 D 15 '50

"A well-paced, capably written English thriller." Mary Sandrock

+ Cath World 172:74 O '50 180w

"There is a tense, dramatic realism to the story that lifts it far above the average of this summer's suspense novels." Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 S 10 '50 200w

Kirkus 18:392 Jl 15 '50 140w

"While the central idea is far from new, the crisp narrative style and realistic dialogue make this thriller a pleasure to read. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 75:1291 Ag '50 80w

"Mr. Graham writes with that kind of understatement which so often gives a sense of greater sensitivity and depth to a yarn of this sort."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 O 29 '50 270w

"Deceptively casual, written in low key, 'Night Without Stars' is that rare occurrence —a well-furnished 'suspense novel' which is credibly motivated and compelling as to character and place." James Kelly

+ N Y Times p4 S 3 '50 600w

"As stories of this sort go, 'Night Without Stars' keeps fairly well within the bounds of credulity. A blind man turned sleuth is a strain, of course, but the author remedies that by having Gordon regain the sight of one eye through a thoroughly described iridotomy. A well-written adventure story, a pleasant evening's reading." A. C. Fields

+ Sat R of Lit 33:37 S 16 '50 360w

GRANGE, WALLACE BYRON. Way to game abundance. 365p il $6 Scribner
799 Game and game birds. Wild life, Conservation of 49-11855

"An explanation of game cycles" (Subtitle) which studies their causes and control, and is based on the research of an experienced wildlife manager. At twenty-two the author became the first superintendent of game for the conservation commission of the state of Wisconsin, and many of the illustrations in the book were taken in that state. Index.

Booklist 46:186 F 1 '50
Kirkus 17:535 S 15 '49 160w

"An extremely important, comprehensive explanation of game cycles. . . Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:48 Ja 1 '50 30w

"It is his hope that every hunter could become an ecologist at heart, and possibly this book will make a few converts. It should for 'without the essential biological background which has been presented,' many of our hunters will still go on wasting their effort and indignation over effects rather than causes." J. W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ja 8 '50 270w

"The book is practical in approach and is written in nontechnical language, but wisely refrains from giving specific directions on how to increase any particular species of game in a given area."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:99 Mr '50 240w

GRANT, BRUCE. Leather braiding; il. by Larry Spinelli. 173p $3 Cornell maritime 745.53 Leather work 50-7746

"Not much has appeared on the handicraft of leather braiding. This new book is probably the most complete collection of information on the subject. Approximately half of it consists of full-page plates, each one of which contains reproductions of six to fifteen drawings. Each plate is accompanied by a page of directions and discussion. The author, a Texas newspaper man, pursued leather braiding as a hobby for many years. The book represents not only his own innovations, but also the best of the techniques and examples that he collected in the pursuit of his hobby." (Library J) Braider's glossary. No index.

Booklist 46:349 Jl 15 '50
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '50
Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1049 Je 15 '50 80w

GRANT, EUGENE LODEWICK, and NORTON, PAUL THORNLEY. Depreciation. 472p $5 Ronald 657 Accounting 49-11738

"An analysis of accounting treatment of depreciation to assist tax men, public officials and industrial engineers meet federal tax laws. It offers proposals for changes in tax requirements to facilitate procedures. Interest tables, court decisions, and examples support the text." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Bibliography. Index.

"For anyone wishing to familiarize himself with the subject on a brass-tacks level, this is the book to read. It seems safe to predict that it will stand for a good while as the authoritative treatise in the field. It is not intended as disparagement of a work so eminently practical in purpose and design to say that it makes no significant contribution to the theory of depreciation. . . Notwithstanding this blemish, the work remains, so far as its real subject, depreciation, is concerned, a generally sound and sensible exposition for the practical reader." George Terborgh
+ — Am Econ R 40:698 S '50 380w
Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 Ap 2 '50 40w

"Engineers and contractors will find this book valuable. It can serve as a manual on the accounting treatment of depreciation and as a guide in making business decisions in which decline in value of physical assets is involved."
+ Eng N 145:42 O 5 '50 300w
Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 74:1824 D 1 '49 100w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:56 Mr '50 280w

GRANT, FREDERICK CLIFTON. Christ's victory and ours; a book for Good Friday and Easter. 85p $2 Macmillan
232.96 Jesus Christ—Passion. Jesus Christ—Seven last words. Sermons 50-5696

"The prologue of this volume is an essay on 'Why Did Jesus Die?' the body of the volume contains short chapters on each of the seven last words from the Cross, and the final chapter is entitled 'The Gospel of the Resurrection.' These are far from conventional meditations but rather discourses on various themes more or less directly suggested by the words of Jesus." Churchman

"Dr. Grant's profound knowledge of the background of the New Testament is used to great advantage in helpfully interpreting the thought of Jesus' time and of Jesus himself." G. M. Day
+ Churchman 164:18 Ap 15 '50 150w

"The emphasis is constructive and while the book is intended especially for Lenten reading it carries a message of confidence and courage for all the Christian year." J. D. Morrison
+ Crozer Q 27:285 Jl '50 100w

"While the author brings to these studies all of the knowledge and insights of a recognized New Testament scholar, there are essentially devotional sermons, not theological treatises. They will, therefore, have an especial interest for Protestant ministers."
+ Kirkus 17:649 D 1 '49 70w
Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p8D Ap 2 '50 360w

GRANVILLE, WILFRED, comp. Sea slang of the twentieth century; introduction and etymologies by Eric Partridge. 271p $3.75 Philosophical lib.
427 English language—Slang 50-9240

"A glossary of slang used by the Royal Navy, the Merchant Navy, yachtsmen, fishermen, bargemen, canalmen, and miscellaneous." Library J

"Some of the most salty sayings of mariners, the blue water lingo of Yankee seamen, seem to be missing. Maybe the author will add a third volume of his slang lexicons [the present book is his second]." Al Chase
Chicago Sun p15 D 10 '50 200w
Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge
Library J 75:1504 S 15 '50 130w

"Rich though it is, the English language (as commonly used ashore) lacks a whole dictionary of words essential to the seaman who wishes to express himself. . . Mr. Wilfred Granville has explained some of these expressions in terms any landlubber can understand. Those intending to run away to sea should not rely exclusively on Mr. Granville's book, particularly if the Merchant Navy is the service of their choice. . . [Some] inaccuracies detract from Mr. Granville's otherwise commendable work."
+ — Manchester Guardian p4 S 30 '50 240w
Reviewed by Charles Poore
N Y Times p10 O 22 '50 360w

GRAPHIC forms; the arts as related to the book [by] György Kepes [and others]. 128p il $4.50 Harvard univ. press

655.04 Book ornamentation. Books 49-50186

Essays on the meaning of good book design, and the possibilities of improving it, first presented as lectures at the Fogg Museum of art in Cambridge. The authors are American designers and typographers. Contents: Function in modern design, by György Kepes; University press book design, by P. J. Conkwright; Trade book design, by W. A. Dwiggins; Evaluation, by C. P. Rollins; Black in the visual arts, by Paul Rand; Static and dynamic concepts, by W. D. Teague; The illustrator and the book, by Lynd Ward; The author and the printed book, by Donald Klopfer; The avant-garde, by Herschel Levit; Experimentation, by Edna Beilenson; The function of the amateur printer, by Peter Beilenson; As the etcher sees it, by Samuel Chamberlain; The new forms—and books, by Merle Armitage; Tomorrow's readers, by J. D. Adams; Epilogue, by Philip Hofer.

Booklist 46:184 F 1 '50

Reviewed by Dorothy Adlow
Christian Science Monitor p11 D 22 '49 120w

Times [London] Lit Sup p428 Jl 7 '50 420w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:3 Mr '50 240w

GRAVES, ROBERT. Occupation: writer. 320p $4 Creative age

828 50-5991

A collection of short stories, plays, and miscellaneous essays, written and for the most part published during the last quarter of a century, here in some instances revised and enlarged. Contents: 'Lars Porsena'; Mrs. Fisher; The shout; Avocado pears; Old Papa Johnson; Interviews with a dead man; Thames-side reverie; -Ess; Charity appeals; But it still goes on: a play; The cult of tolerance; Horses: a play; Colonel Blimp's ancestors; The search for Thomas Atkins; It was a stable world; Caenis on incest; 'Está en su casa'; How mad are hatters?; Pharaoh's chariot wheels; Dead man's bottles; Occupation: writer.

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun p5 Ap 3 '50 40w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 12 '50 300w

Kirkus 18:43 Ja 15 '50 150w

"Not for the squeamish, but rare entertainment for those who enjoy the various uses—many of them flippant and satiric—that his rich learning can be put to. . . Recommended." Shirley Barker

+ Library J 75:315 F 15 '50 100w

"The two outstanding items were written more than twenty years ago for the 'Today and Tomorrow' series—'Lars Porsena, or the Future of Swearing and Improper Language,' and 'Mrs. Fisher, or the Future of Humour.' Both have long been out of print, and every reader who enjoys dead-pan skirting of the conventionally unmentionable will welcome the reappearance of 'Lars Porsena.' . . On the other hand, 'good-humoured' is the last adjective to describe Mrs. Fisher. The author himself calls it venomous; only an essentially humorless man could have written it. . . The longest piece in the present volume is a play called 'But It Still Goes On' a dreary and repellent study in sex perversion and murder, which a man with any capacity for self-criticism—that is to say, humor—would have burnt the first time he re-read it." DeLancey Ferguson

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 5 '50 550w

"Mr. Graves has a strong mind, a stronger style, and a still stronger imaginaton. The combination is hard to harmonize. He believes that 'poetry is truth-telling,' not 'the ingenious postulation of fanciful worlds.' His truth-telling includes worlds up and down history, inside and below the mind, violent, ludicrous. He seeks to document the unimaginable and to state the unspeakable. Each of these pieces has a clear idea back of it, and if in any of them he does not carry the reader off in a chariot of fire, it is because there remains in him a safe amount of the Irish male." D. A. Stauffer

+ — N Y Times p5 F 26 '50 750w

New Yorker 26:118 Mr 25 '50 150w

"A worth-while experience you'll find it, too. But a look at this new book will at least give you an idea of the extraordinary quality of Robert Graves' mind. And if it's your first experience with him, I believe you'll echo my note, above: The things he knows!" J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 1 '50 750w

"Some of the pieces are dull and arid; it is no surprise that even Graves occasionally nods. But there is an abundance of good things, and the whole collection is evidence that he is such a versatile and brilliant writer that even his trifles are prodigiously elegant." Robert Halsband

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:27 Ap 1 '50 700w

"If there is nothing in Occupation: Writer that shows Robert Graves in the full splendor of his poetry, or even at his first-rate second-best (as in some of his novels, mythological studies and essays on poetry) there is still more here in the way of humor, erudition and intellectual enthusiasm than most writers ever achieve at their best."

+ Time 55:101 Mr 13 '50 900w

GRECO, MARSHALL CHARLES. Group life; the nature and treatment of its specific conflicts; with a list of publications of staff members, Research center for group dynamics; comp. by Ronald Lippitt. 357p $4.75 Philosophical lib.

301.15 Social psychology. Neuroses. Psychotherapy 50-10242

"The Research Center for Group Dynamics, a prominent sociological school of thought, introduces an idea that may change the meaning of social and personality conflicts as radically as did Freud through his distinctly genetic and individualistic psychology. The basic premise of this radically different solution is that any symptom must be traced to the total current group-life setting. The neurotic must be viewed now as one who has adjusted to group life not by ineffective means, for 'a symptom has . . . both purpose and social utility.'" (Library J) Case histories. Bibliography. Index.

"Of remarkable interest." J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 75:1655 O 1 '50 140w

School & Society 72:237 O 7 '50 20w

GREEN, ADAM. Funny bunny factory; il. by Leonard Weisgard. [24p] $1 Grosset

50-6958

The story of a rabbit family living in a deserted factory. Two mischievous rabbits pressed a button and pulled a cord and the factory came to life again. The noise of the whistles, steam, and machinery frightened the bunnies away. On their return later that day they found sugar eggs, candy and toys to enjoy; but the happiest rabbit was the one that found carrots in the cellar. For ages 2 to 5.

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Ap 2 '50 90w

Kirkus 18:235 Ap 15 '50 110w

Reviewed by M. F. Cox
Library J 75:880 My 15 '50 60w

"Not much story, and less logic, but pleasing to under six because each event is surprising and there are more merry words than in most books for this age. Children will love to pore over the big pages, finding new things to look at each time they listen. Some few pages have that atmospheric mysticism Mr. Weisgard most enjoys, and those will rest young eyes, stop the pointing fingers and, who knows, perhaps make the deepest impression of all." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 9 '50 200w

"There is more rhyme than reason to this story, but the quick tempo of the text, the repetition of words will please young children. So, too, will Leonard Weisgard's pictures of hundreds of bunnies, even though to adult eyes a number of these illustrations seem too cluttered with details." E. L. B.
N Y Times p24 Ap 9 '50 150w

GREEN, ADWIN WIGFALL. Epic of Korea. 136p $2.50 Public affairs press
951.9 Korea 50-10328

"An introduction to the present Korean conflict. The author discusses Korean history, culture and social habits. He reviews the Korean struggle for independence after World Wars I and II and recounts Korean-American relations and Communist influence in Korea." (Current Hist) Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 47:133 D 1 '50

"As the lack of an index would seem to indicate, this cannot claim to be a scholarly book. It is, in fact, a popular account of some points of the Korean occupation by the Americans with an eye to the moment. In this it is disappointing. . . There are times when one has the feeling that this is the production of a disgruntled junior officer who can only see the bad side of his superiors' decisions. . . Despite these manifest defects the book has some value in presenting a criticism of the American authorities from the inside. . . It needs, though, careful handling and checking because of the author's clear prejudices." George Bennett
Canadian Forum 30:214 D '50 260w

"It was to be expected that the sudden emergence of Korea in headlines would produce a rash of 'all-about Korea' books, hastily drawn up and as hastily discarded. Most of Mr. Green's book is on a considerably higher level. Unfortunately, the opening chapters are very weak indeed: his need for background information has led him to describe the Korean scene in terms so extravagant that the material, at its infrequent best, is poetry. More often, it remains drivel." M. B. Jansen
Christian Science Monitor p16 D 4 '50 550w

Current Hist 19:289 N '50 40w

Kirkus 18:649 O 15 '50 190w

"Although Mr. Green's book does not fulfill the serious need for a good one-volume history of Korea, the first fifty pages dealing with the country's long history before 1945 are a reminder that to understand Korea requires more perspective than is to be had from a preoccupation with the past five years. However, Mr. Green is his cogent best when writing with dry irony of the 1945-48 occupation of South Korea." A. L. Grey
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:15 N 25 '50 490w

GREEN, MRS CONSTANCE WINSOR (MCLAUGHLIN). History of Naugatuck, Connecticut. 283p il maps $4 Yale univ. press
974.67 Naugatuck, Connecticut

"History of a New England industrial community from its founding to 1944." Am Soc R

"Mrs. Green proved to be a penetrating and sympathetic interpreter. In her hands the book became something more than the usual chronicle of local families and events. It is a fascinating study of the evolution of a New England town, and as such a valuable contribution to economic history." G. B. Hotchkiss
+ Am Hist R 54:947 Jl '49 360w

"The author presents a picture of twentieth century Naugatuck which, except for economics and technology, is incomplete and rather lifeless. By contrast Colonial Naugatuck emerges as vivid and vibrant, though even here the sociologist will note a predilection for such subjects as land purchase, genealogies, and the location of fulling mills." C. W. King
Am Soc R 15:155 F '50 210w

Reviewed by W. C. McKain
Ann Am Acad 268:218 Mr '50 300w

"The book was written at the request and under the sponsorship of the Naugatuck Chamber of Commerce. That the result is such a discerning and honest treatment is a tribute to the courage and public-spiritedness of the sponsors as well as to the historical breadth and insight of the author." L. W. Labaree
+ New Eng Q 23:256 Je '50 700w

" 'History of Naugatuck' should be read by every local historian who hopes his own chronicle will become a valid part of the story of America. In this history a dull New England city becomes typical and more exciting than the self-consciously heroic. . . This is a candid, not a candied history. It is New England, America and a good story." R. D. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 27 '49 420w

GREEN, DAVID EZRA, and KNOX, WALTER EUGENE, eds. Research in medical science. 492p $6.50 Macmillan
610.72 Medical research 50-6597

"Contains 26 essays on different aspects of current medical research, each written by an investigator who has made significant studies in the special fields. The essays survey the methods and problems of the particular fields with the view of enlightening and inspiring the nonspecialist reader." Chem & Eng N

"The reviewer has read the book with much interest and profit. Some of the chapters have the thrill of a serial adventure story, especially the section on rheumatic fever. A careful reading of this volume will broaden one's horizon and also offer many suggestions for possible lines of research in his own field." J. C. Thomson
+ Am J Pub Health 40:1327 O '50 380w

"This volume is a valuable and stimulating contribution to medical literature." C. R. Treadwell
+ Chem & Eng N 28:2379 Jl 10 '50 240w

"This type of book is extremely valuable, since it fulfills at least a three-fold need. The individual articles go further than the ordinary scientific paper in expressing the authors' feeling about their work. . . Secondly, many of the papers may serve as an introduction for scientists to fields outside of their own. Finally, 'Research in Medical Science' will bring to the general reader the character of medical investigation, and of the men that put questions to nature." T. H. Maren
+ N Y Times p6 Ap 30 '50 500w

"The treatments of subjects are uncluttered, factual, and concise. . . The book is not merely a series of review articles; it presents what the scientific research men need to know in order to achieve further advances, and it should be on the shelves of medical students, biologists, biochemists, and practitioners who wish to be more effective in understanding the future."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:226 Je '50 230w

GREEN, FREDERICK CHARLES. Mind of Proust. 546p $4.50 Cambridge 843 Proust, Marcel—A la Recherche du Temps Perdu [50-5052]

"A detailed interpretation of A la recherche du temps perdu." (Subtitle) The author is Fellow of Magdalene college, and Drapers professor of French at the University of Cambridge.

"The reader of Proust will be grateful to Prof. Green for giving him a mine of information, subtle observation, and interpretation. All the light that the parts of Proust's work can throw on one another and on the whole illuminates this book." Milton Crane
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 My 28 '50 550w

GREEN, F. C.—Continued
Reviewed by Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 10 '50 270w

"It is a serious and highly intelligent work."
+ Kirkus 17:642 N 15 '49 110w
Manchester Guardian p4 F 7 '50 360w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 122:28 Ap 24 '50 550w

"If Professor Green had dealt only with those parts of Proust which appealed to him, giving us a more penetrating analysis of such psychological difficulties as intuitive foreknowledge, The Mind of Proust would, one feels, have been a shorter, less disappointing, less faintly-absurd book." Angus Wilson
New Statesman & Nation 38:760 D 24 '49 950w

"The inadequacies of 'The Mind of Proust' are, to some extent, compensated by Mr. Green's enlightening discussion of Proust's technique, his psychological theories, his fictional innovations and the philosophical implications of 'Remembrance of Things Past.' To these matters Mr. Green brings penetrating insight and wide scholarship. . . Readers who are primarily interested in the technical aspects of Proust's novel, its intellectual and philosophical content, and its significance in French fiction will find 'The Mind of Proust' consistently informative." Lloyd Morris
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Mr 26 '50 850w

Reviewed by Harold March
+ N Y Times p29 Mr 19 '50 800w

"Whether Mr. Green is afield or at his last, he makes excellent, possibly even definitive, reading."
+ New Yorker 26:118 Mr 25 '50 120w

"This is a superb study of one of the greatest books of the century." R. H.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:56 My 6 '50 130w

Reviewed by D. W. Brogan
Spec 183:892 D 23 '49 480w
Times [London] Lit Sup p122 F 24 '50 800w

GREEN, HENRY, pseud. of HENRY VINCENT YORKE. Back. 247p $3 Viking
50-9638

The story of Charley Summers, an English ex-soldier, back at his job in London after years in a German prison camp. At first he cannot forget Rose, whom he had loved, and who had died while he was in camp. Everything reminded him of Rose. But gradually he emerged from his fog of suffering, after he met a girl who was very like Rose. When she promises to marry him Charley begins to live again.

"The most satisfying novel I have come across so far this year is Back. . . Henry Green has, I believe, solved in his work three of the most challenging problems that confront the modern novelist. He has forged a refreshingly distinctive style which retains the concreteness of naturalism while banishing its flatness with a strong infusion of poetry. He has restored to the novel enchantment. . . And further, he gives an accounting of contemporary life that is ruthlessly clear-eyed, totally free from sentimentality and cant, and yet admits of solutions of the problem of happiness." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 186:84 O '50 850w
Booklist 47:96 N 1 '50
Bookmark 10:7 O '50 40w

"Unlike most Henry Green finales, this one holds promise of future happiness. An overly stylized story, but one with moments of understanding and beauty." Mary Sandrock
+ Cath World 172:232 D '50 200w

"By every standard, 'Back' is a superior novel, one which has few peers by other hands, one which is completely realized, completely satisfactory within the boundaries its author has imposed upon it." August Derleth
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 O 1 '50 350w

"A highly enjoyable work, full of the well-bred, gently incisive and penetrating humor that even the author's countrymen will admit is 'typically British.' As Charley Summers would say, it's wizard. Smashing, really. Quite." P. V. Farrell
+ Commonweal 53:76 O 27 '50 600w
+ Kirkus 18:429 Ag 1 '50 220w

"This is a good book about man's return from war and besides has all of Henry Green's best character analysis. Many readers who care little for HG will read this story with ease and enjoyment." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 75:1407 S 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by H. P. Lazarus
Nation 171:416 N 4 '50 1200w

Reviewed by Jean Garrigue
New Repub 123:20 N 6 '50 400w

Reviewed by James Hilton
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 O 1 '50 850w

"In the Henry Green chronology 'Back' is the successor to 'Loving'—to my mind his high water mark. . . There is the same realism in 'Back,' but not an equal springiness, not the same starriness and range of character; all the same it is a rich, touching story and flecked all over by Mr. Green's intuition of the concealed originality of ordinary human beings. He seems to scent them where other novelists labor in observation." V. S. Pritchett
+ N Y Times p4 O 1 '50 1050w

"If you like Mr. Green, you will find 'Back' a touching and often beautiful story; if you don't like him, you will wonder where the story is."
New Yorker 26:142 O 14 '50 160w

"Mr. Green's earlier novels, 'Loving' and 'Nothing' have caused much dancing in the critics' streets—to the tune of such mellifluous words as 'dazzling' 'entrancing' 'effortless' and 'magnificent.' This reviewer is new to the works of Green, and on the basis of 'Back' he can not join the claque that sings his praises. The novel is contrived, sordidly sexual, devoid almost entirely of warmth or of feeling." W. R. White
— San Francisco Chronicle p12 O 8 '50 800w

"The latest of Mr. Green's novels to be published in this country . . . bears little resemblance to the earlier ones—'Loving' and 'Nothing.' It is more commonplace, less brittle and amusing, more taken up with conventional emotions and relationships. Yet it shows the same hand at work. . . These people are not impressed or impressive, but in their wary and persistent way they are alive. You can't really care about them, but for some elusive reason you won't stop reading till their story is told." Walter Havighurst
+ Sat R of Lit 33:30 S 30 '50 550w
Time 56:104 O 30 '50 350w

GREEN, HENRY, pseud. of HENRY VINCENT YORKE. Nothing. 250p $3 Viking 50-6495

A satirical novel about life in West End London in 1948. A very moral young couple are engaged, when it becomes whispered about that they may be brother and sister, since there was talk about an affair between the father of one and the mother of the other years before. The older people take the present affair lightly, and after considerable talking and "sweetness and light" the older members of the caste change partners again and go off.

"It seems to me an unqualified success, an entrancing performance that should win Henry Green new readers. . . The plot is one that might well have been devised by Noel Coward, but Green's handling of it is further proof that here is an authentic artist with an altogether distinctive touch." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 185:87 Ap '50 1050w
Bookmark 9:186 My '50 40w

"The book is sternly held at a superficial level. The distracted conversation might make an amusing short piece for the New Yorker.

But an entire book of it is a bit too much of nothingness; or are you very interested in fads?"

— Cath World 171:154 My '50 250w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun p5 Mr 28 '50 200w

"'Nothing' is a satire, of course, but like the best of satire, touched with compassion for the young who have, in these days, so little of the security which their elders enjoyed—and squandered. 'Nothing' may be well named for some, but to this reader it is technically [and brilliantly] something!'" Fanny Butcher

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 2 '50 500w

"All is innocent surface, but when the hand is about to fall upon it, the world of 'Nothing' can do a flip and swim out of focus, while the people will bulge and elongate like fish in a convex bowl. The sane English and their sensible London drawing rooms have not often hung so delicately askew between reality and fantasy." M. M.

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Ap 5 '50 480w

Reviewed by George Miles

Commonweal 52:203 Je 2 '50 460w

"Very light fingers are at work here creating a comedy of manners of high order, and the result is at once humorous, delicate, flippant, ordered and demoniacally wise."

+ Kirkus 18:68 F 1 '50 300w

"Highly recommended."

+ Library J 75:318 F 15 '50 170w

"Nothing seems as suitable a title as any for Mr. Henry Green's new novel. It is far too long for its substance, and would have made a morbidly entertaining short story." Elizabeth Jenkins

Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 28 '50 190w

"A subtle and careful and disappointing book." Ernest Jones

— + Nation 170:328 Ap 8 '50 800w

"Nothing is a bare, mannered affair, told largely in dialogue, making few demands on the reader and offering for the space of an entire book the literary equivalent of a heaped plate of party sandwiches—dainty, delicious, but, despite their concealed substance, hardly suitable fare for a full-course meal. Noticeably absent, too, is Green's much-praised 'hallucinated' effect and 'sensuous rendering of experience.' Even his dialogue . . . in Nothing comes perilously close to glibness. This, however, is partly due to the demands of his subject." Alexander Klein

— + New Repub 123:18 Jl 10 '50 950w

Reviewed by John Richardson

New Statesman & Nation 39:584 My 20 '50 750w

"'Nothing' has that air of effortlessness that conceals the polish of the art that has gone to its making, and like all new art it has its own convention to which the reader may have to be converted. It is not, at the outset, easy to read." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Mr 26 '50 700w

"Beneath the pleasant surface of Mr. Green's 'light' fiction there is, in fact, a strikingly bold intelligence—a quite unconscious intelligence, it seems to be; certainly it is not intellect, as we commonly define that word—and an acute knowledge of this wayward world. The clue to Mr. Green's quality is his style." Diana Trilling

+ N Y Times p1 Mr 26 '50 900w

Reviewed by Brendan Gill

New Yorker 26:111 Mr 25 '50 1200w

"The style has a fascination which the material does not warrant, or which it would not warrant if the style were not already there. 'Nothing' is a novel like a dry and sparkling wine, a wine with no body at all. The wonder is that without body it can maintain all that animation." Walter Havighurst

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:13 Mr 25 '50 650w

Reviewed by Marghanita Laski

Spec 184:624 My '50 500w

"Nothing is a pointed poke at solemn youth, but the poke is so obviously accompanied by so many friendly winks that even its victims will enjoy it."

+ Time 55:106 Mr 27 '50 390w

Times [London] Lit Sup p273 My 5 '50 420w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel

Yale R n s 39:765 summer '50 750w

GREEN, IVAH. Partners with nature. 112p il pa $1.25 Int. textbook

574 Nature study 50-3958

"An introduction to the idea of conservation, beginning with plants and animals, and working up to such ideas as 'Plants Help Balance the Scale,' and 'Help Balance by Saving Soil and Water.' The last chapter, 'What Will You Do?' is followed by a few pages on 'How Grownups May Help.'" N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

"Recommended for schools, all rural libraries, the home." J. F. Kennedy

+ Library J 75:987 Je 1 '50 100w

"An unusually good elementary reader. . . The style is dignified, but adapted to easy reading by those of ten to twelve." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 9 '50 190w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 Jl '50

GREENBERG, MARTIN, ed. Men against the stars [by Isaac Asimov, and others] introduced by Willy Ley. 351p $2.95 Gnome press

Short stories—Collections 50-6637

An anthology of science-fiction stories. Contents: Trends, by Isaac Asimov; Men against the stars, by M. W. Wellman; Red death of Mars, by R. M. Williams; Locked out, by H. B. Fyfe; Iron standard, by Lewis Padgett; Schedule, by Harry Walton; Far Centaurus, by A. E. Van Vogt; Cold front, by Hal Clement; The plants, by Murray Leinster; Competition, by E. M. Hull; Bridle and saddle, by Isaac Asimov; When shadows fall, by L. R. Hubbard.

Booklist 46:276 My 1 '50

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

Chicago Sun p5 Ap 3 '50 70w

"Of the dozen stories in this volume, three—by A. E. Van Vogt, Murray Leinster, and L. Ron Hubbard—are good stories; the rest are mediocre, average stories of space travel." August Derleth

— + Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 2 '50 370w

"Editor Martin Greenberg has done an extremely good job of choosing his entries." Fletcher Pratt

+ N Y Times p12 Jl 2 '50 200w

"The selection of stories is excellent." Don Fabun

+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 Ap 16 '50 220w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt

Sat R of Lit 33:32 Je 17 '50 90w

GREENE, GRAHAM. Third man. 157p $2 Viking 50-6976

Mystery thriller of Vienna during the Allied occupation. Tells the same story as the moving picture with some alterations, set forth by the author in his preface.

Booklist 46:304 Je 1 '50

Bookmark 9:186 My '50 40w

"Slight but effective." James Sandoe

+ Chicago Sun p6 Ap 7 '50 230w

"In its book form, it is disappointing, and will add nothing to the reputation of the author. Its chief fault is its lack of the build-up of character which legitimate fiction demands. The soul of a movie is movement, and in this book form, much seems irrelevant." John Cournos

Commonweal 52:182 My 26 '50 130w

GREENE, GRAHAM—Continued

"The ease here, the use of occasional characterization, the unrelieved and undeviating tension demonstrate again a mystery of this medium."
+ Kirkus 18:218 Ap 1 '50 150w

Reviewed by Gavin Lambert
New Statesman & Nation 40:280 S 16 '50 1050w

"The story of the hack writer who explored the rubble of Vienna for his dead friend Harry Lime is a good one, and there is real suspense to his quest. But in story form it lacks a visual quality which made the movie superior. And it also lacks the introspective quality which has made Mr. Greene's other novels and short stories superior. In other words, it is neither fish nor fowl."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 My 21 '50 140w

New Yorker 26:119 Ap 8 '50 60w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 23 '50 110w

GREENER, LESLIE. No time to look back. 281p $3 Viking

50-7821

A novel of life in a Japanese prison camp in Malaya. The "pivotal character is an Anglican Padre, a man who dared to fight for his fellow prisoners' rights, who held camp morale in his grasp, whose faith was a conventional but powerful factor in his character. Two youths came to mean more to him than any of the others, Pendle, an intense and turbulent painter, whose bitterness was intensified by his love for an exquisite Chinese girl who had saved his life. Before the story ends, he has married her, risking a few hours escape before he is moved to another camp. The tragic denouement comes on his return, with his revenge for her abduction as a toy of the Japanese general. The other youth is Andros, supposedly a Greek, suffering from amnesia, but exerting a growing spiritual power over the entire camp." (Kirkus)

Booklist 46:316 Je 15 '50

"The action bogs down with highfalutin but vacuous sermonizing about war and peace, life and death. The sermonizers are mainly Padre Choyce and Andros, a prisoner suffering from amnesia and an overflow of pointless mysticism. The effective vital action is pretty thoroughly diluted by the philosophizing." Mary Sandrock
Cath World 171:475 S '50 170w

"'No Time to Look Back' is a well constructed story with powerful situations that sometimes lose effectiveness by understatement. But the story never gets out of control. The author, who has been an artist, a soldier, and an educator, sees men in terms of both good and evil. The Japanese are not wholly bad nor are the British wholly good; and life, too, is a composite of good and evil, beauty and ugliness, intelligence and stupidity. Thus his book is a mature, well-rounded story of men wrapped in the threads of fate." Ney MacMinn
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 11 '50 450w

"A story of mounting intensity and rare beauty. There's a maturity here that is rare in a first novel."
+ Kirkus 18:182 Mr 15 '50 250w

"A graphically told, gripping tale, reverent and inspiring in its religious aspects, a plea for a humanity common to friend and foe, a stimulating presentation of the world's most urgent problem: peace." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:694 Ap 15 '50 110w

"When Mr. Greener is painting dramatic scenes of prison-camp life, such as that in which three escapees are caught and executed, he is extremely good. When (as too often happens) he lets his characters indulge in schoolboyish theological speculations, he is much less than effective. Despite all this, Mr. Greener's novel packs the unmistakable wallop of authenticity. He was there. And the reader knows it." J. J. Maloney
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Je 18 '50 550w

Reviewed by Alan Abelson
N Y Times p27 Je 4 '50 190w

New Yorker 26:109 My 27 '50 100w

Reviewed by Harold Gillian
San Francisco Chronicle p8 My 20 '50 950w

"This is Mr. Greener's first appearance in this country as a writer. He has done more than well, and if he missed his main target it is because he was trying to hit two bull's-eyes with one book." Thomas Sugrue
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:15 Je 10 '50 700w

"No Time to Look Back has some faults as a novel. Andros' story is told with an oracular vagueness, the desperate prisoner's story with an intensity bordering on hysteria. But when he is dealing with Padre Choyce's effort to mediate between the prisoner's frenetic impatience and Andros' more-than-human charity, Author Greener, onetime professional soldier, deck hand, journalist and hobo, reaches the moral profundity of a topflight novelist. Despite its faults, No Time to Look Back, the first of his books published in the U.S., is good enough to make readers eager to see the others."
+ — Time 55:110 My 22 '50 600w

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:28 Je '50

GREENWAY, JOHN DEE. Fish, fowl and foreign lands. 176p il $3.50 Scribner

799.1 Fishing. Diplomatic memoirs

[50-4851]

A British diplomat describes his fishing and hunting experiences on his world-wide travels. The book is a blend of diplomacy, travel, and sport, written with a humorous touch.

"An unusually delightful book." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:1907 N 1 '50 30w

"He tells good stories, both piscatorial and diplomatic." J. W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 17 '50 150w

"Mr. Greenway thinks that there are fewer bores among fishermen than in any other fraternity, and he provides excellent evidence in himself. In fact the only thing to be said against his really very amusing stories is that he is almost too breathlessly sparkling."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p424 Jl 7 '50 550w

GREGG, DAVIS WEINERT. Analysis of group life insurance. 268p $3.75 Univ. of Pa. press

368.3 Insurance, Group 50-5944

"This study deals with a kind of life insurance of great importance in the United States. From its inception in 1910, group life insurance grew rapidly; by the end of 1948 the amount of this insurance in force aggregated nearly $40 billion, and there were 54,000 master policies and 21,400,000 individual certificate holders. After tracing briefly the history of group life insurance in this country, the text presents the most comprehensive description now available of this kind of insurance." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 S 10 '50 70w

"The book will be of interest primarily to advanced students of insurance, to employers considering the introduction of group insurance for their employees, and to labor leaders who may want group insurance for their members. . . The book will be of limited interest to general readers and to students of social security because it deals but little with the place of group life insurance in an overall security program."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:180 Je '50 220w

GREIG, JOHN YOUNG THOMSON. Thackeray: a reconsideration. 216p $3 Oxford

B or 92 Thackeray, William Makepeace

"Using all available sources of information, including the recently published letters and private papers of Thackeray, Mr. Greig depicts his subject as a man lacking in decision of character and easily enfeebled in will by an emotional dependence on women which affected his fiction both directly and indirectly, and usually for the worst. It is the author's contention that for the whole of his life, and it had its tragedies, Thackeray was constantly 'veering on religion, morals, politics and art, and, indeed, on the men and women that he met in the actual world or invented in his fiction.' He lacked a stable and undeviating mind." N Y Times

"Though we have something to learn from Professor Greig, a proper estimate of Thackeray's grand achievement is not part of it, nor is a right imaginative understanding of his emotional relations with his near and dear ones." Paul Bloomfield

— Manchester Guardian p4 Je 27 '50 500w

Reviewed by Walter Allen

New Statesman & Nation 40:73 Jl 15 '50 1300w

"This book, written by a scholar living in South Africa, is the most objective, intelligent and devastating study of Thackeray in recent years. . . While this is an excellent and stimulating book, it is not likely to please Thackeray's devotees, or to encourage a re-reading of Thackeray's two or three best novels—which would be a pity, as the author of this book would be the first, I think, to admit." H. F. West

+ N Y Times p16 O 29 '50 380w

"The book is unsympathetic. I feel this everywhere; nowhere more than in the chapter recording Thackeray's unhappy relations with Jane Brookfield. 'A reconsideration,' Mr. Greig calls his book. It is, in truth, an indictment; adroit, instructed, well-arranged, telling. Throughout, Thackeray is in the dock. I think it is all a little overdone. Some show of loving-kindness this fallen Victorian merited. But Mr. Greig neither loves him nor likes him." H. W. Garrod

— + Spec 184:24 Jl 7 '50 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p484 Ag 4 '50 3400w

GRENFELL, RUSSELL. Nelson, the sailor. 235p il maps $3 Macmillan

B or 92 Nelson, Horatio Nelson, viscount 50-7050

A short biography of Lord Nelson which stresses the characteristics which made him such a great figure in English naval history. The author is a retired English naval officer. Index.

"The beauty of this book is its understanding of the man within the seaman. It brings out Nelson's singleminded aggressiveness. . . It shows where his intuition failed him and where his originality was most profound. It shows why the men of the fleet loved him, why the ships like the old Agamemnon were happy ships; it shows how he trusted as no British Admiral before him the individual initiative of his picked Captains; in short, it tells what Nelson meant by that phrase of his, 'The Nelson touch.'" Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 185:78 My '50 550w

Booklist 46:273 My 1 '50

"'Nelson the Sailor' is only 229 pages, but it is so highly concentrated it reads like a longer book. The great actions are lucidly explained and any landlubber can understand the diagrams. The magnetism of Nelson's personality, the magical way a mutinous personnel was transformed, when he came on board, into a happy ship, these things are told in a manner that will appeal to the public at large." William McFee

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Ap 14 '50 410w

"An excellent short biography abreast of recent research and stimulating younger readers to wider study." H. W. M.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 13 '50 150w

"Doubtless many readers of Captain Grenfell's superb recital of 'The Bismarck Story,' hoped for a description of the Trafalgar campaign by the same author. . . The taut narrative style of Captain Grenfell, his shrewd judgment of naval men and events, promised a distinctive treatment of the old theme. And now it is to be found in 'Nelson the Sailor,' not as a separate subject, but as the climax of a remarkably concise and lively account of Nelson's whole career." Harry Baehr

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 11 '50 400w

"Lucid, objective history of Nelson and his campaigns." George McMillan

+ N Y Times p12 Ap 16 '50 330w

"The materials here are the familiar ones and the book is too brief to have permitted any elaborate re-examination of records to go into its making. What is new about it, what constitutes Captain Grenfell's special contribution, is his examination of the influence of personal relationships on high command." Fletcher Pratt

+ Sat R of Lit 33:31 Ap 29 '50 550w

"This latest short study of the national hero is both valuable and stimulating."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p803 D 9 '49 600w

GREY, ZANE. Maverick queen. 246p $2.50 Harper

50-8030

Western story.

"This year's posthumous western by Zane Grey stacks up with its many predecessors in action, romance, and colorful background." Al Chase

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 4 '50 90w

Kirkus 18:150 Mr 1 '50 90w

Time 55:104 Je 19 '50 280w

GRIERSON, JOHN. Air whaler. 243p il maps $4 Macdonald & co.

639.2 Whales. Antarctic regions. Balaena (ship). Aeronautics, Commercial [50-1369]

"In this season 1946-47 Mr. Grierson was in charge of two seaplanes on the factory ship Balaena that were used to hunt whales and do general reconnaissance work in the Antarctic." (N Y Times) "The Walrus, an obsolete amphibian aircraft, was catapulted from the factory's deck and hauled home again by crane after alighting on the water. Mr. Grierson was in charge of this experiment of setting a Walrus to catch a whale. Air Whaler recounts his experience, for the most part in diary form, with many photographs." (Times [London] Lit Sup)

Reviewed by Russell Owen

N Y Times p14 N 27 '49 130w

"The book is welcome for two reasons. It is an expert pilot's account of the technical possibilities of air operation in a novel field, and it also gives an up-to-date glimpse of what goes on in the Antarctic when a mammoth butcher's shop puts out with its fleet, employing a thousand men at a capital cost of about £2m., and returns with a catch of about the same value."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p650 O 7 '49 750w

GRIFFITH, PAUL. Mare's nest. 369p $3.50 Macmillan

50-9699

"In this curiously titled first novel, Paul Griffith tells a strange story of life and death in the badlands of Arizona. Because he has given his tale some of the proportions of myth, as well as a dimension or two of existence, his men and women move like living legends of themselves through boarding house and tavern and glistening desert. . . 'The little town of St. Andrews' is dominated by Mollie Shaver. . . . Old, hard, competent, a user and not a lover of people, she is the ruthlessly alive center around which, in a kind of grotesque dance, move the members of her family and the citizens of her town." N Y Times

GRIFFITH, PAUL—Continued

Kirkus 18:434 Ag 1 '50 250w

"The story is an entertaining one, told with considerable skill." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 75:1407 S 1 '50 130w

"The major fault here is not a lack of talent—Mr. Griffith tells some good stories and creates several robust Dickensian scenes—but the lack of a sense of balanced proportions and control." Kate Simon
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 O 29 '50 480w

"In this bizzare account of painful, pathetic passions, Mr. Griffith (who can write so well one wishes he did not overwrite so often) gives vivid, sustained proof of his creative ability." M. H. Ley
+ — N Y Times p35 O 22 '50 310w

"The story is made up of a series of anecdotes of frustation. The style is highly subjective, and the author gives free play to passing moods and whimsies. There are many flashbacks and asides which, exactly as in 'Tristram Shandy,' are introduced as the spirit moves. One word spawns another, with results sometimes laborious, sometimes truly beautiful." E. B. Garside
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:64 D 2 '50 310w

GROB, FRITZ. Relativity of war and peace; a study in law, history, and politics; foreword by Roscoe Pound. (Bur. of int. research, Harvard univ. and Radcliffe college. Publications) 402p $5 Yale univ. press
341.3 War. Peace. Jurisprudence 49-11618

"A study of war and peace from the point of view of the law. Dr. Grob (Olivet College) discusses a number of conflicts in the past, giving briefly the historical facts and endeavoring to guide the reader into consideration of the exactness of the time of 'legal' warfare—that is, declared and observed war, with comments on the practical and theoretical aspects." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Indexes.

"Perhaps sturdy common sense would have enabled one to avoid the pitfalls of conceptualism that Dr. Grob has been at pains to expose. Even so, it is useful to have so elaborate a documentation of the proposition that 'what has to be looked for is not one over-all legal definition of war, but a variety of legal definitions, each made in the light of and in relation to the particular intent and purpose of the rule which happens to be under consideration.' The reason and purpose of the rule is surely the touchstone of legal interpretation. Let it be added that the argument has been cast in excellent English, and that the typography is engaging." Charles Fairman
+ Am Pol Sci R 44:497 Je '50 550w

Reviewed by Johannes Mattern
Ann Am Acad 269:150 My '50 600w

Reviewed Marshall Knappen
Christian Century 67:143 F 1 '50 500w
Current Hist 17:355 D '49 80w
Foreign Affairs 29:143 O '50 30w
Harvard Law R 63:1487 Je '50 200w

"For scholars in international law Fritz Grob has produced an important contribution. . . The greatest impression that remains after having finished the book is that the historical examples were given with clarity, exactness and interest." Herbert Maza
+ Pol Sci Q 65:478 S '50 450w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:79 Mr '50 240w

GRODZINS, MORTON MELVIN. Americans betrayed: politics and the Japanese evacuation. 445p $5 Univ. of Chicago press
940.547273 Japanese in the U.S. World war, 1939-1945—Evacuation of civilians 49-9724
For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"This is an able and, in certain respects, novel study of American political behavior. It illuminates two of the most vital of current political issues, namely, the civil rights of minority groups and the relation between region and federal government. The focus of the study is on an instance of policy-making in government." E. H. Spicer
+ Am J Soc 55:603 My '50 1250w

"Unfortunately the necessity for carefully documenting every statement cuts down the readability of a book which does a masterly job of critical analysis." N. S. Hayner
+ Ann Am Acad 267:241 Ja '50 420w

"Two criticisms can be entered against the book: First, the organization makes a certain amount of repetition inevitable. . . Second, the major omission in the work is the almost complete failure to mention the part, if any, played by the president. . . Americans Betrayed presents a startling, and in some respects appalling, picture of the pressures, irresponsibility, and abdication of duty which went into the formulation of a national policy in which Americans may hardly take pride."
+ — Columbia Law R 50:130 Ja '50 450w
Foreign Affairs 28:333 Ja '50 40w

Reviewed by F. E. LaViolette
Pacific Affairs 22:442 D '49 450w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:506 D '49 320w

GRONEMAN, CHRIS HAROLD. Leather tooling and carving. 111p il $2.75 Int. textbook
745.53 Leather work. Handicraft 50-7707

"The purpose of this book on leather tooling and carving, is to provide (1) the basic information about leathers and tools, (2) detailed and profusely illustrated processes, and (3) complete instructions for each of the projects." (Pref) Some of the projects included are: key cases, coin purses, bill folds, belts, photographic albums, handbags, a loose-leaf notebook with zipper, a brief case, holsters, and a bridle. Index.

Booklist 47:10 S 1 '50
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '50

"Leatherwork remains one of the most popular handicrafts for organized classes in schools and camps. It is pursued by a fair number of basement hobbyists also. This new addition to the literature of the craft is well organized and illustrated. Basic operations are explained clearly."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:56 Jl '50
School Arts 50:adv N '50 120w

"The leatherworking projects are in good taste with drawings and designs for each. Highly recommended."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:21 S '50

GROSS, ALFRED, and HOUGHTON, DALE. Sales promotion. 434p $5 Ronald 658.8 Sales management. Advertising 50-9552

"Intensification of competitive selling in a buyers' market has brought about a strong rise in recognition of sales promotion, frequently as a separate department. It is here treated under three main heads: Working with the marketing division; With the dealer; With the consumer: Additional phases treated: Aid of trade associations; Foreign marketing; Sales promotion research; and typical sales promotion programs as practised by some leading firms." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"The subject is thoroughly treated and effectively presented." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:1666 O 1 '50 100w

"The book should prove suitable as a text for courses in sales promotion and as supplementary reading for courses in marketing campaigns, salesmanship, sales management and advertising."
+ Special Libraries 41:330 N '50 70w

GROSSMAN, JAMES. James Fenimore Cooper. (American men of letters ser) 286p $3.50 Sloane

B or 92 Cooper, James Fenimore 49-50106

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"The latest account of Cooper's life and writings, the work of a New York lawyer, has the virtues of clarity, terseness, and considerable insight into the novelist's economic doctrines; it does not provide the comprehensive study of Cooper which is so obviously needed. James Grossman's book is intelligent and informative. The author is neither lost in the maze of Cooper bibliography nor inextricably enmeshed in the unpleasant litigation which embroiled the novelist during many of his later years." J. T. Flanagan

+ Am Hist R 55:690 Ap '50 320w

"Astute, well-written."

+ Bookmark 9:104 F '50 50w

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 1 '50 450w

Manchester Guardian p4 O 20 '50 150w

Reviewed by Sterling Lanier

New Eng Q 23:274 Je '50 420w

"James Grossman's study is the latest volume in The American Men of Letters Series. It fulfills its purpose with wit, grace and an intelligence critical of Cooper's work and of the time when he was perhaps the foremost literary figure in the country."

+ New Repub 122:28 F 13 '50 270w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:40 Mr '50 280w

Wis Lib Bul 46:15 Ja '50

GROSSMAN, RICHARD. New leash on life; pictures by Carl Rose. 40p $2 Random house

817 Dogs—Legends and stories 50-5378

Brief text and cartoons tell the story of Herman Boxer, dog of war, who wanted an education along with the other GI's, and got his wish. When a Russian wolfhound tried to stop his advance to the top, she almost succeeded. But after his crack-up, Herman won the dog he loved, and all was well.

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

Chicago Sun p6 Je 4 '50 30w

"The story is highly entertaining; there's a laugh on every page, and the caricatures are magnificent." R. L. Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 12 '50 150w

Reviewed by M. D. Read

Library J 75:1057 Je 15 '50 50w

Reviewed by David Button

N Y Times p29 F 12 '50 170w

GROVE, VICTOR. The language bar. 160p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

420.7 English language. English language—Study and teaching 50-9241

This book by an English scholar "shows how the multiple derivation of the English vocabulary—Teutonic, Greek, Latin and French—erects a barrier more effective than wealth and status between the cultured minority and the uninstructed majority, and suggests how the barrier could be broken down by reforms in the teaching of English." Publisher's note

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 29 '50 950w

Times [London] Lit Sup p139 Mr 3 '50 450w

GRUBER, RUTH. Israel without tears; with photographs by the author. 240p $3 Wyn

915.69 Palestine—Description and travel 50-10924

The story of the New Israel: its humor; the revival of the Hebrew language; its culture; the "ingathering" of exiles; and the people themselves, with their love of music, art, and literature. The author is a newspaper correspondent, writer, and lecturer.

"With love and understanding, she tells the moving tale of a people reunited, of a land reborn. All friends of the new Israel—both Christian and Jewish—should read this book, for it will bring great enjoyment." C. H. Voss

+ Churchman 164:16 D 1 '50 240w

Kirkus 18:651 O 15 '50 150w

"Recommended. Good for pay collection of large public library." C. J. Roth

+ Library J 75:2000 N 15 '50 100w

"A gay, warm book, written all in a glow, with both delightful and moving characterizations of life in Israel." Gerold Frank

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 17 '50 750w

"Except for a passage where Tel Aviv's Coney Island-style beach is made to look suspiciously like the Riviera, Miss Gruber's report generally avoids the groove of uncritical praise. . . A detailed appendix—on how to travel, what to pack, what to see, where to live, and don't forget the sulfaguanadin—is a rich mine of information for foreigners. She promises visitors a robust welcome from the people of Israel, who ask only that 'you come with your eyes and your heart open.'" Hal Lehrman

+ N Y Times p11 D 31 '50 650w

GRUVER, HAROLD B. Guide to profitable investment. 118p $2 Dutton

332.67 Investments. Stocks 50-8761

"Twelve concise rules, which are also warnings, on how to increase your savings by intelligent investment in common stocks. Chief warnings—do not trade; buy for investment only; avoid mechanical Barometers; be conservative." Library J

Booklist 47:5 S 1 '50

Bookmark 10:4 O '50 20w

Reviewed by Winifred Baum

Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 S 17 '50 60w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '50

Kirkus 18:324 Je 1 '50 170w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 75:1413 S 1 '50 20w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 10 '50 120w

"While much of the information would seem elementary to anyone who follows Wall Street comment, it is obvious from the experiences of friends and relatives that much basic knowledge of investments is either ignored or misunderstood. Mr. Gruver's advice, which is well organized and avoids professional jargon, may not make you a million, but should keep you from losing your shirt." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 6 '50 240w

GSOVSKI, VLADIMIR. Soviet civil law; private rights and their background under the Soviet regime; comparative survey and translation of the Civil code, Code of domestic relations, Judiciary act, Code of civil procedure; laws on nationality, corporations, patents, copyright, collective farms, labor, and other related laws; foreword by Hessel E. Yntema; 2v; v 1, Comparative survey; v2, Translation. 909;907p each vol $10; both vols $15 Univ. of Mich. Law school, Hutchins hall, Ann Arbor, Mich.

349.47 Civil law—Russia. Civil procedure—Russia

"Volume 1 is divided into two general parts. Part I is a general survey of the political development of the Soviet Union and of its political, economic, and social legislation. Economists will be most interested in Chapter 3 which discusses the general characteristics of the Soviet economy. Chapters 5 and 6 provide a helpful general background regarding the Soviet concept of law and its differences from our own. Part II of this volume contains a series of discussions of particular topics in the total area of Soviet civil law, most of which deals with the legal governance of economic conduct. . . Volume II is devoted almost entirely to the translation of the major pieces of Soviet law together with brief annotations regarding this legislation." Am Econ R

GSOVSKI, VLADIMIR—Continued

"An adequate criticism of Dr. Gsovski's work in detail would require a competence in the area of Soviet law which no economist can claim. Within the limits of this writer's knowledge, it seems clear that the quality, scope, and balanced tone of this monumental work place all students of Soviet society—not least among them the students of the Soviet economy—in great debt to its author." Harry Schwartz + Am Econ R 40:189 Mr '50 900w

Foreign Affairs 28:512 Ap '50 30w

"It is safe to predict that this work will be for years an indispensable tool for all those students of Soviet law who are unable to read Russian and are not content with secondhand material. . . This is the most comprehensive and the most useful book which has been published in English on the subject of Soviet law." E. S. Rashba
+ Harvard Law R 63:921 Mr '50 1950w

"It is factual and objective, despite the fact that in the Soviet Union today law is little more than an instrument of politics, and no one can write about politics in a completely detached manner. These books, in lucid, readable, large print, are written primarily for lawyers. No diligent student or analyst of Soviet affairs, however, should overlook them." P. N. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 D 18 '49 550w

GUARESCHI, GIOVANNI. Little world of Don Camillo; tr. from the Italian by Una Vincenzo Troubridge. 205p il $2.75 Pellegrini & Cudahy
50-8975

A collection of humorous short stories translated from the Italian. They recount the dealings of the village priest, Don Camillo, and his arch-enemy the village mayor, the Communist Peppone. When in doubt Don Camillo retreats to the altar and talks things over with Christ, who often has to restrain His militant priest.

"Guareschi strikes me as being an Italian approximation to Saroyan (with the advantage of novelty). His people, clearly, are heavily sentimentalized and his plot-twists are often on the 'cute' side. Even so, The Little World is an engaging collection with a great deal of charm." C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 186:84 Ag '50 600w

Booklist 47:96 N 1 '50

"A delicious satire with serious overtones."
+ Bookmark 10:7 O '50 40w

"Fun to read about in an occasional magazine piece but, encompassed by book covers, the limitations of the characterization become apparent. The translation is such that one never adverts to the fact that this is one." Mary Sandrock
+ — Cath World 171:472 S '50 270w

Reviewed by Jack Griffin
Chicago Sun p5 Ag 13 '50 260w

"Nothing that has come our way of late has more perfectly lived up to the idea of 'summer reading.' . . It is written with an apparently childlike simplicity. One uses that word apparently with justification, for under its deceiving simplicity there is roistering satire. . . Giovanni Guareschi is a true comic. He possesses the rarest of gifts, the gift of laughter with his fellow humans." Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 20 '50 550w

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 19 '50 240w

Reviewed by K. M. Chworowsky
Churchman 164:17 N 1 '50 210w

"The book was understandably popular in Italy. In spite of not being an exceptionally funny work, a humorous tale of a priest and a Communist, both fundamentally good and warm-hearted, could not fail to be popular in a land where memories of civil strife are still very much alive. . . The people are lovable and confused, they are very natural and excitable, and the piety of the priest is very different from that to which we are accustomed. In Milan, in Genoa, in the cities, people have read with delight this happy story. It is reassuring to them to read that people are fundamentally good and to see virtue always triumphing amicably with a rather charming Machiavellian flourish." Serge Hughes
+ Commonweal 52:540 S 8 '50 400w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 26:501 N '50 120w

"An utterly delightful and diverting collection of incidents about a village priest, Don Camillo, and his satanic friend-enemy, the Communist Mayor Peppone."
+ Kirkus 18:360 Jl 1 '50 210w

"Wonderful fresh translation from an Italian best-seller. Told with infinite wit, whimsy, humor and in a mildly satirical vein the sketches portray the endless attempts of both parties to serve the people best. . . Delightfully illustrated by the author; should be welcome in most libraries." H. L. Roth
+ Library J 75:1407 S 1 '50 100w

"Completely charming story." M. D. Read
+ Library J 75:2161 D '50 40w

"In chronicling, with humor, what is hardly a humorous struggle for power in our world, big or little, Mr. Guareschi inclines toward Don Camillo; he has invested his priest with an irresistible charm so that the fact that Don Camillo has a dozen tommy guns and an 81 mortar buried somewhere on church property emerges as an amusing peccadillo, an eccentricity, and leaves one with the idea that a society without Don Camillo would be unthinkable. But Don Camillo, kneeling at the foot of his altar, has an unanswerable explanation for his own conduct. 'You, Lord,' he says to the figure on the cross, displeased temporarily with His priest's behavior, 'may understand humanity. But I understand Italians.'" Alfred Hayes
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 20 '50 650w

"Giovanni Guareschi has performed a rather remarkable feat. He has managed to write a delightfully humorous book with a warm, human and tolerant pen, about some of the main issues in the struggle that confronts the world today—Christian principles as opposed to Communist-totalitarian dogmas." Robert Knittel
+ N Y Times p4 Ag 20 '50 470w

New Yorker 26:84 Ag 19 '50 70w

"It is somewhat early to submit nominations for the year's best book in this or that or some other category, particularly since the fall lists have yet to be flushed. In the case of 'The Little World of Don Camillo,' however, there is, beyond the demands of politeness, no need to wait. Nothing will turn up between now and Christmas to surpass this little gem in the field of clarity-amid-confusion." Thomas Sugrue
+ Sat R of Lit 33:10 Ag 19 '50 900w

Time 56:88 Ag 21 '50 420w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 40:192 autumn '50 50w

GUENTHER, ERNEST, and others. Essential oils; v2, The constituents of essential oils, co-author, Darrell Althausen; v3, Individual essential oils of the plant families, rutaceae and labiatae. 853;777p ea $10 Van Nostrand
668.5 Essences and essential oils (48-5788)

The second and third volumes of a treatise on the industry and science of essential oils, of which volume one was published in 1948 (Book Review Digest 1948). "This series of volumes under the general title The Essential Oils is designed to present a modern and comprehensive treatment of its subject." (U S Quarterly Bkl) "Volume II discusses the chemical nature of the several compounds that make up the essential oils and the physical constants and chemical formulas of these compounds so far as known. Volume III starts the coverage of the more important individual essential oils appearing in the various systematic groups. The volume discusses the essential oils of only two families of plants, Rutaceae and Labiateae." (Chem & Eng N) Bibliographies. Indexes.

Reviewed by William Crocker
Chem & Eng N 27:1547 My 23 '49 280w
(Review of v2)

Reviewed by William Crocker
Chem & Eng N 28:350 Ja 30 '50 320w
(Review of v3)

Reviewed by Edward Sagarin
Chem Eng 56:289 Jl '49 260w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:55 Jl '50

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:123 Mr '50 290w

GUERARD, ALBERT JOSEPH. Night journey. 357p $3 Knopf
50-7013

A story of a future war in an unnamed country, a war between a Dictatorship and the forces of democracy. A young soldier, believing that his commanding officer has acted treacherously, deserts him and becomes an underground agent behind the enemy lines. The principal theme of the story is built around the protagonist's mental distress and inner conflicts.

" 'Night Journey' is not a pleasant book to read. But insofar as it extends actual present-day aspects of European life into a conceivable future, it should be read: to show what need not happen if we stay awake." R. A. C.
Christian Science Monitor p8 Je 10 '50 480w

"An exciting adventure story which has both momentum and depth."
+ Kirkus 18:74 F 1 '50 180w

"More than an adventure story of a future war, this is a deeply philosophical probing of man's dilemma. The implications are as much for today as for the morrow. Highly recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 75:560 Ap 1 '50 80w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
Nation 170:580 Je 10 '50 850w

"A comparatively young man of thirty-six, Guerard has three critical studies and two other novels, 'Maquisard' and 'The Hunted,' to his credit. His new work marks an impressive advance over his earlier fiction, and, by reason of its moral complexity, as real as every man's experiences, it strikes a note of special relevance to contemporary society. Its formal excellence, moreover, is a sign of genuine distinction." Stephen Stepanchev
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 9 '50 600w

Reviewed by Richard Plant
N Y Times p30 Ap 23 '50 450w

New Yorker 26:106 Ap 29 '50 140w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 26 '50 850w

"Too little happens in 'Night Journey'; what is worse, one seldom feels much anguish for the fate of the characters. . . The technique and the style contribute to one's sense of disappointment. The garrulous confession of Halden is often tedious." H. M. Peyre
— Sat R of Lit 33:20 Ap 8 '50 800w

GUERRANT, EDWARD OWINGS. Roosevelt's good neighbor policy. 235p $3.50 Univ. of N.Mex. press

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations—Latin America. Roosevelt, Franklin Delano. Latin America—Foreign relations—U.S. 50-5678

"Scope of this study of U.S. Latin American policy is suggested by sections entitled: Abandonment of Intervention; Recognition of New Governments; Quest for Law; Cultural and Scientific Relations; The Americas at War. The author, Associate Professor of International Relations at Davidson, is well acquainted with his subject through government service. Information on the Truman Administration's policies has been added. Index and bibliography." Library J

"Professor Guerrant's book is interesting and important, but in some ways disappointing. . . The omissions seem numerous, particularly if the author's major purpose was to write an informational book, not an interpretative one. . . Since Professor Guerrant obviously knows a great deal more than he has told, and has some interesting ideas, it is to be hoped that he will overcome his reticence and give us a revised and enlarged edition of this book with a much more generous portion of both fact and opinion than he has offered us in this one." A. P. Whitaker
Am Pol Sci R 44:1037 D '50 500w

Bookmark 9:156 Ap '50 30w

Current Hist 18:229 Ap '50 30w

Foreign Affairs 28:681 Jl '50 20w

"Recommended." Scott Adams
+ Library J 75:399 Mr 1 '50 80w

"A first-rate text-book." Duncan Aikman
+ N Y Times p14 F 5 '50 850w

"The book is a very thorough study. It discusses the numerous treaties and conferences which built good will. For the Latin American scholar it is a valuable source book. But like all source books, it makes rather dull reading for the layman." L. D. B.
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 23 '50 320w

"A former political analyst in the State Department, Professor Guerrant tells the story not only with authority but compactly."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 Ap 8 '50 240w

"This survey is complete and objective. It covers every phase of the relations of the United States with the Latin American countries: political, legal, economic, cultural, and strategic. A weakness in the volume comes from an attempt to use first the topical and then the chronological plan of organization, thus scattering the material."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:191 Je '50 160w

GUEVREMONT, GERMAINE. Outlander; tr. by Eric Sutton. (Whittlesey house publication) 290p $3 McGraw 50-6105

This story of life in a small isolated French-Canadian village, centers in the story of the Beauchemins and the Stranger who came into their lives for one winter and then disappeared.

Booklist 46:194; 219 F 15 '50; Mr 1 '50

"Quietly compelling story."
+ Bookmark 9:160 Ap '50 50w

"An unexciting novel appealing in its simplicity." Mary Sandrock
+ Cath World 171:232 Je '50 200w

"The first 142 pages of this book are as interesting, vital and moving as anything I have read this winter. But from Page 142 to the end on Page 290 'The Outlander' is a bore." V. P. Hass
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 12 '50 550w

Christian Science Monitor p4 Ap 15 '50 190w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '50

Reviewed by Mason Wade
Commonweal 51:659 Mr 31 '50 260w

Kirkus 18:31 Ja 15 '50 180w

"For a relatively short novel, Mrs. Guevremont's volume contains a surprising number of fully developed characters. None among them is fully good or fully bad. With the exception of the Acadian, none enlists the sympathy of the reader—the petty bickering, the meanness, the intolerance of the inhabitants of the Inlet repel even while their stability and fierce pride invite admiration; yet each character has an integrity of his own and is worthy of a certain respect. Mrs. Guevremont's writing is slow in pace, earthy, but extremely readable." Wenzell Brown
+ — Nation 170:602 Je 17 '50 650w

GUEVREMONT, GERMAINE—Continued

"The novel is unusual in combining a quality of universality with its quiet, individual appeal. It received a prize from the French-Canadian Academy and has also been published in France." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Mr 5 '50 550w

"'The Outlander' is a novel of outstanding merits, and its French-Canadian author, Germaine Guevremont, is one of the most gifted of women writers now alive. It is doubtful whether many, if any, women novelists in France are her equals in talent and promise. The book is surprisingly and refreshingly unsophisticated. . . The names of Ellen Glasgow, and especially of Willa Cather, who had conjured up in one of her novels beautiful visions of primitive and heroic life in Canada during the early years of French rule, come to the mind of the reader as he peruses this quiet yet tragic tale." Henri Peyre

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 5 '50 800w

New Yorker 26:121 Mr 18 '50 100w

"'The Outlander' is a vital and rewarding novel, authentic in background and rich in character. The women in the story, even more than the men, are warmly real in every way. . . Published in Canada under the title 'Le Survenant,' the first half of 'The Outlander' received the Prix Duvernay in 1945. In its entirety as well, the novel represents a good piece of work and deserves considerable recognition here." M. L. M.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ap 30 '50 390w

"Occasionally a Canadian novel invades our bookstores to remind us that we do not hold the copyright to North American literary talent. Germaine Guevremont's 'The Outlander,' now translated from the French, reveals a mature novelist of exceptional merit who has for years known and loved the sturdy people whose ancestors settled along the banks of the St. Lawrence River near Quebec." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 Mr 18 '50 550w

Reviewed by R. F. Henchey

Springf'd Republican p5C My 28 '50 230w

"The Outlander makes no pretense to literary importance. But Madame Guevremont, 53, mother of four children, writes about her paysans and their river farms with calm, Gallic simplicity. Although her awkwardly woven novel has many literary holes, they let in a great deal of the human light that better craftsmen often block out."

+ — Time 55:101 Mr 13 '50 330w

GUGGENHEIMER, RICHARD HENRY. Creative vision in artist and audience. 173p $2.50 Harper

701 Esthetics. Art—Philosophy 50-9522

"Ever since the publication of Sight and Insight [Book Review Digest, 1945], I have felt the need for a sequel to it. In that work I attempted to define plastic form in its most contemporary significance, and to evaluate the emotions connected with the experiencing of such form. Subsequent inquiries from readers have encouraged me to make further elaborations as to ways of achieving more and sounder expressions of such form and more and sounder appreciations. The present volume extends the recognition of fine arts as a way of apprehending life's higher meanings." (Pref) Index.

"Of appeal largely to artists and intellectuals, this is not a very powerful or very clear book, but it may at least be suggestive."

Kirkus 18:91 F 1 '50 140w

"Mr. Guggenheimer performs a real service for artists, students, and for us, the people, who look at pictures. His discussion of time and attention, of our feeling for form is most fascinating." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 75:1665 O 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by Frances Blanshard

Sat R of Lit 33:76 D 2 '50 310w

GULICK, BILL. Bend of the Snake. 274p $2.50 Houghton

50-8818

Western story.

"If you like action you'll enjoy this well written, entertaining novel of a bygone era. The title refers to the Snake river, a tributary of the Columbia." Al Chase

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 S 17 '50 100w

"More than the usual substance here, and some non-standard situations give this a fresh interest in this field."

+ Kirkus 18:269 My 1 '50 90w

"The Snake River deserves a more original book. . . Mr. Gulick should look again at the material lurking on its shores." R. L. Neuberger

N Y Times p23 Ag 27 '50 200w

"Mr. Gulick has given us a fine assortment of characters, good and bad, in what promised to be a western epic, and wound up—probably because a western story must have them—with too many of the familiar ingredients." A. R. B.

San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ag 27 '50 210w

Springf'd Republican p5D S 10 '50 110w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 N '50

GUNTHER, JOHN. Roosevelt in retrospect; a profile in history. 410p $3.75 Harper

B or 92 Roosevelt, Franklin Delano 50-8078

In his foreword the author states: "This book is an attempt at analysis as well as a mere narrative; a gathering of sources and an interpretation rather than a reminiscence or revelation, though it contains a great amount of new and fresh material. But it does not pretend to be a full-dress history of the Roosevelt years nor a biography in the orthodox manner; for these we shall have to await the slow sifting of years of scholarship. What I have written, sizable as it may seem, is little more than a preliminary sketch, an estimate, a survey, an appraisal—moreover an appraisal from a personal as well as a political point of view." Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by E. S. Wengert

Am Pol Sci R 44:1039 D '50 380w

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 186:83 Jl '50 900w

Booklist 46:315 Je 15 '50

Bookmark 9:240 Jl '50 40w

"'Roosevelt in Retrospect' adds little if anything to the record, but through Gunther's skill it enables one to reminisce pleasantly about a man of whom there is much greatness to remember." Emmett Dedmon

+ Chicago Sun p3 My 30 '50 500w

"'Roosevelt in Retrospect' is good Gunther. But it proves conclusively that Gunther, whether good or bad, is not the man to write about Roosevelt. Not at this stage of history, at any rate. Like all of John Gunther's books, this new one is a gigantic dredging operation. But to anyone who is already acquainted with the memoiristic work of Frances Perkins, Jim Farley, Henry Morgenthau, Eleanor Roosevelt, Elliott Roosevelt, Henry Stimson, and Robert Sherwood, the dredging operation seems like a second turning and churning of old earth." John Chamberlain

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 18 '50 950w

"Mr. Gunther says in the foreword that he thought of this assignment 'as a reporter's job.' Within this definition he succeeds. But should not a biography be something more than journalism? In comparison to the rich documentary foundation of Sherwood's 'Roosevelt and Hopkins,' Gunther's profile is, by the very definition of that word, a flat outline. The third dimension, analysis, is sacrificed to sweeping statements and a bewildering accumulation of interesting but not really conclusive anecdotes." Roland Sawyer

Christian Science Monitor p18 Je 8 '50 900w

Reviewed by James van Zandt
Churchman 164:17 N 1 '50 160w

"The Roosevelt story inherently has fascination for both political friends and foes. It is therefore hardly surprising that Mr. Gunther has again produced a book that is hard to lay aside. There are times when you hover about the Roosevelt family and the small official circle. In the end you have not so much been inside Roosevelt as back at your own radio, or arguing with your friends, or back with the morning papers of a fearful decade." E. S. Skillin
+ Commonweal 52:228 Je 9 '50 350w
Current Hist 19:105 Ag '50 50w
Foreign Affairs 29:149 O '50 70w
Kirkus 18:271 My 1 '50 260w

"This is a finely delineated portrait of Roosevelt as a highly individualistic person, and is an exceptionally interesting volume. . . Recommended." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 75:981 Je 1 '50 130w

"A book that is informative, entertaining, and in this case also important, and because Mr. Gunther is an indefatigable gatherer of detail, a book that is fresh even in the familiar field of Rooseveltiana. Mr. Gunther has not departed from his established formula. He writes about F. D. R. as he writes about a continent. But since F. D. R. was not a continent, it is clear that Mr. Gunther does not write about him because he understands him and feels compelled to share his understanding. He is searching, and we share his search." Raymond Swing
+ Nation 170:552 Je 3 '50 1100w

"His book has the vitality and pressure of the weekly-magazine 'estimates' that appeared for twelve years whenever a Roosevelt inauguration or birthday or nothing special gave an excuse. It is immensely pleasant to read because it strings on a generally unobtrusive frame a fabulous collection of anecdotes. But it is 'A Profile in History' only by the formal circumstance that the great man is gone now. . . At the end of his book, Gunther admits that 'this whole book is in the nature of a summary.' So it is—a summary of the journalism and personal literature on Roosevelt: great enjoyment and not too much harm done." Basil Rauch
New Repub 122:19 Je 12 '50 1150w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 40:357 O 14 '50 550w

"It is a pleasure to welcome Gunther back from the cavernous interiors where he has spent so many years, and to see him do a job of reporting from the outside—a very good one, too. Having met Roosevelt only casually a few times, he boldly tries to do what Gamaliel Bradford would have called a psychograph of him. What he has produced is not the verdict of history, which gives no final verdicts (people are still re-evaluating Caesar and Alexander); but it will do; for a while at least. . . A generally sound book, which brings together more of the Roosevelt story than any one else has done so far. And give Gunther credit for one more virtue, small but rare—he knows the difference between a novitiate and a novice." Elmer Davis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Je 4 '50 2100w

"It is fortunate that John Gunther, perhaps the best-known reporter of our generation, has patiently collected and impartially chronicled a great body of intimate but fugitive fact material of Roosevelt's life, which otherwise could easily have been lost. He has done an extensive, rich and authentic job. Of outstanding interest is the careful record of comment, anecdote, conversation and explanation from Roosevelt's own lips borne in the memory of living men; this, save for some such record, would have vanished in a few years." A. A. Berle
+ N Y Times p1 Je 4 '50 1550w

"Mr. Gunther, in his 'Inside' books, has already demonstrated his ability to accumulate masses of material, and he has also shown that he knows how to put a story together, but he is weak in the area of analysis and interpretation. . . And so it is with this book about Franklin D. Roosevelt. As a fact finder, a gossip gatherer, and an anecdote collector, Mr. Gunther is excellent; as an interpreter, he leaves a great deal to be desired." Hamilton Basso
+ — New Yorker 26:97 Je 3 '50 1300w

"In spite of Gunther's ostensible balancing-off of 'good' and 'bad' Roosevelt traits, this is not what you could call an objective job of writing. The climate of the book is pretty well that of uncritical admiration, reflecting on occasion the author's actual bedazzlement with his subject's more glittering aspects. It will please its thousands; it will also irritate as a matter of course other thousands who do not share Gunther's views and who will find his judgments often emotionally rather than logically arrived at." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 5 '50 1000w

"With his customary acute eye for engaging detail, pertinent anecdote, and illuminating sidelight, John Gunther has put together a fascinating picture and appraisal of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Of the many who have written on this subject, Gunther is one of the few who did not know the late President well at first hand—he had met him only four or five times. The advantage inherent in this circumstance is objectivity. The inherent handicap for one who is attempting an intimate portrait is lack of a sure touch. Gunther has retained the advantage while surmounting the handicap." E. K. Lindley
+ Sat R of Lit 33:9 Je 3 '50 1150w

"History in the final sense 'Roosevelt in Retrospect' is not nor could it be. But it is reporting at its liveliest, its most intelligent, and most questing best. This means that quite aside from the light it sheds and the immediate pleasures it gives, historians will find it invaluable." J. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 33:27 Jl 1 '50 1700w

"There are some points of detail that can be questioned—and surely the reason why Mr. Churchill never took the liberties in nomenclature with F.D.R. that the President took with him was that his sense of hierarchy reminded him that Roosevelt was a head of the State and he was not? But this is a most readable and very useful book." D. W. Brogan
Spec 184:402 O 20 '50 1200w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p8C Jl 9 '50 400w
Time 55:94 Je 5 '50 700w

"Mr. Gunther's book is a faithful picture of the man, an artist's study of one who was 'all mankind's epitome': of rich and poor, of boss and under-dog, of the feminine and masculine in human kind, of realist and idealist. It is the best picture, so far, of F.D.R. as he appeared in all his guises to all sorts and conditions of men. It is a most informative book (with an admirably useful index). But it is not—and its author would not claim it to be—the book whereof we all stand so much in need: the analysis and explanation of the character of one of the greatest and most baffling personalities of all time."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p614 S 29 '50 2750w

"Interestingly written, and not slanted by any prejudice or partisanship. Recommended."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:26 Je '50

GURDJIEFF, GEORGES IVANOVITCH. All and everything; 3 ser; 1st ser, An objectively impartial criticism of the life of man; or, Beelzebub's tales to his grandson. 1238p $5 Harcourt
197 (50-5848)

"Author's system of knowledge, derived from research into the whole being and individuality of man, assumes that obvious reality is false and illusory. He would 'destroy, mercilessly, in the mind and feelings of the reader, the beliefs and views, by centuries rooted in him, about everything existing in the world.' Only then can the true reality of the world be perceived. Beelzebub's tales of human beings are original, often satiric but kind, with flashes of humor." Library J

"Present reviewer does not pretend to understand this system but recommends book highly

GURDJIEFF, G. I.—Continued
to readers of Ouspensky, Gurdjieff's pupil and expositor of his system." G. O. Kelley
Library J 75:400 Mr 1 '50 140w

Reviewed by H. I'A. F.
Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 25 '50 130w

Reviewed by Kathleen Raine
New Statesman & Nation 39:664 Je 10 '50 420w

"Gurdjieff's legend has been done an irreparable injury by this all but unreadable book. His work had already been labeled as one more outdated enthusiasm of the overexuberant Twenties, but his death—in October, 1949—might well have meant the rebirth of his legend, if it had not been followed by this volume." Gerald Sykes
— N Y Times p43 Mr 19 '50 280w

"I must report that in my opinion it consists of a few seeds of truth and wisdom buried in a vast midden of nonsense. . . There is much playful humor in these tales but most of it is of the kind that is commonly called elephantine and most of the writing, even apart from the jargon, is turbid to a degree that makes it nearly insufferable. . . But that Gurdjieff's ideas can be expressed clearly is proved by the lecture which is included in the author's postscript: a half-dozen pages of this . . . is worth as much as the previous 1,200." B. R. Redman
— + Sat of Lit 33:20 Je 24 '50 850w

"This is not to say that there is nothing in Gurdjieff's ideas, some of which are very suggestive. It may be that the system is only a gigantic fabrication of the intellect; but there is at least a possibility that it reflects in a somewhat debased form what was once, somewhere, some time, a genuine gnosis. But Gurdjieff's claim that 'this is esoteric Christianity' must be firmly disallowed." D. S. Savage
— + Spec 184:586 Ap 28 '50 650w

GUTENBERG, BENO, and RICHTER, CHARLES FRANCIS. Seismicity of the earth and associated phenomena. 274p il maps $10 Princeton univ. press
551.22 Earthquakes 49-11473

"A comprehensive study of the various zones and areas of the earth which are subject to earthquake shocks and related disturbances. For each zone the earthquake record is given insofar as it has been recorded. Earthquake observation stations and other sources of data are described, and there is a certain amount of description of geological structures. The text is supplemented by an extensive bibliography, and by a series of tables of earthquake and volcanic observations." Library J

"This book occupies a unique place in the literature of seismology. It supplies the only uniform and systematic analysis now available of the great volume of instrumental observations accumulated since the turn of the century." L. D. Leet
+ Geog R 40:346 Ap '50 480w

"The book is primarily of interest to professional seismologists and secondarily to librarians as a reference book of a highly technical nature." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1758 N 15 '49 100w

"The material is almost entirely factual, admitting of no question except as to its completeness and accuracy. A very satisfactory selection is evident, providing comprehensiveness and uniformity of treatment. The accuracy is high, the data being derived from precision instruments. The only obvious fault in this definitive and authoritative reference work is the slight inaccuracy and poor illumination of the maps."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:101 Mr '50 260w

GUTHRIE, ALFRED BERTRAM. Big sky; an edition for younger readers; il. by Jacob Landau. rev ed 340p $2.75 Sloane

An adaptation for young readers of the author's adult novel which was published in 1947 (Book Review Digest 1947) "None of the beautiful descriptions of the mountains and rivers have been lost in the changes made by the author. Only that which seemed questionable has been omitted." (Booklist)

Booklist 46:220 Mr 1 '50

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p5 Jl 25 '50 90w

"The author passes no judgments on his men but shows them as they were—rough, ready, almost like animals in some respects, but with a love of freedom and of the vast game-filled land they roved. This is an amazingly good edition of the longer novel, so good that I regret the label 'for younger readers' which may frighten away many who would enjoy the book. And it's no milk for babes, in spite of its label." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 26:397 S '50 150w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:641 Ap 15 '50 100w

"A compelling story, vividly told, sparing little of the brutality of the period and place. It is not the author's realistic treatment but the character of Boone Caudill that makes it seem more suitable for high school than the grades." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 75:786 My 1 '50 110w

GUTHRIE, ANDREW, and WAKERLING, RAYMOND KORNELIOUS, eds. Characteristics of electrical discharges in magnetic fields. 376p $3.50 McGraw 537.53 Electric discharges thru gases. Magnetic field 49-49704

"Project reports not originally intended for publication are compiled here with a minimum of editorial changes. They deal with researches on electrical discharges under conditions comparable with those used for the ion source for the electromagnetic separation of uranium isotopes. Except for two brief chapters, the book does not, however, deal with uranium compounds. More than half of the book reports research by members of a British scientific mission under the direction of H. S. W. Massey." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"The complexity of the phenomenon in the arc is made very obvious in this volume. The experimental conditions are described in great detail and the necessary simplifying assumptions made in the mathematical treatment are always carefully stated. There is some repetition which is probably unavoidable in a volume produced by several authors. The detailed knowledge of the behavior of discharges in a magnetic field has certainly been advanced by the research described in this book." George Glockler
Am Chem Soc J 72:3326 Jl '50 390w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:241 Je '50 280w

GUTHRIE, ANDREW, and WAKERLING, RAYMOND KORNELIOUS, eds. Vacuum equipment and techniques. 264p il $2.50 McGraw 533 Vacuum 50-5276

"This book is concerned with the development and study of high vacuum equipment made by the personnel of the University of California Radiation Laboratory. The volume is a compilation of observations made in the course of developing high vacuum equiqment for use in electromagnetic separation plants." (Publisher's note) Chapter references. Index.

Booklist 46:257 Ap 15 '50

"This volume is no substitute for the larger classics on vacuum, but it is unique in its low price, convenience of use, and its treatment of industrial size apparatus. The vacuum engineer who designs the individual items of the increasingly wide variety of high-vacuum equipment will need this volume for only occasional reference; however, it is likely to become a handbook on the desk of every chemist, process engineer, and physicist who has to use modern high-vacuum apparatus in laboratory or plant." Norris Embree
Chem & Eng N 28:887 Mr 13 '50 220w

Reviewed by E. W. Flosdorf
Chem Eng 57:308 Ap '50 600w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:324 F 15 '50 80w

"Since the book presents a store of information acquired by experience, it should prove a very valuable aid to anyone confronted with troublesome problems in the design and operation of vacuum systems."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:246 Je '50 180w

GUTHRIE, WILLIAM KEITH CHAMBERS. Greek philosophers from Thales to Aristotle. 168p $2.75 Philosophical lib.

182 Philosophy, Ancient 50-9523

"A little 'Home Study Book' on Greek philosophy, from the now conventionally accepted first beginning, with Thales' abrupt statement that everything is water, to the fully elaborated system of Aristotle, which was to give employment to academics and schoolmen for thousands of years." Spec

"The value of the book for American readers would be increased if the 'Suggestions for Further Reading' were Americanized."
+ Christian Century 67:1077 S 13 '50 130w

School & Society 72:159 S 2 '50 30w

Reviewed by Stuart Hampshire
Spec 184:691 My 19 '50 750w

GUYON, RENE. Sexual freedom; tr. from the French by Eden and Cedar Paul; with an introd. by Norman Haire. (Studies in sexual ethics) 344p $4.50 Knopf

176 Sex. Sexual ethics 49-50416

"The first volume of my Studies of Sexual Ethics was devoted to the consideration of the legitimacy of sexual acts. This second volume adds, as an essential corollary, an account of the principles of sexual freedom. The two taken together form what, in the following pages, I shall frequently term 'the doctrine of sexual legitimacy and sexual freedom.'" (Author's pref) Index.

Kirkus 18:14 Ja 1 '50 160w

"Mr. Guyon is innocent of even the most elementary knowledge of anthropology, sociology, or psychology. He quotes Freud rather extensively but has evidently completely failed to understand him. . . We need to know more about the functions and disfunctions of sexual prohibitions and sexual freedom, but Mr. Guyon is of little aid here. He is essentially a French philistine run wild—but while vegetarian apostles and other cranks rather seldom reach a wide audience, 'Sexual Freedom' will probably have a steady sale." L. A. Coser
— Nation 171:18 Jl 1 '50 1000w

"Although it is probably not easy, it seems one can write a dull book about sex. The author is a French judge practicing in Bangkok. Evidently guided by the best intentions, he wants to help in the removal of unnecessary sexual taboos, frustrations and inhibitions. But he overstates and misstates his case." Frederic Wertham
— N Y Times p12 Ja 29 '50 450w

"It goes without saying (but is being said here anyhow) that if you want to behave like Casanova or Don Juan, you won't need a book to justify your inclinations. No one will disagree that too often our attitudes toward sex are irrational to the point of providing case history notes, and when M. Guyon is on this practical middle ground he has some sensible things to say." J. W. H.
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ap 9 '50 180w

GWYNN, JOHN MINOR. Curriculum principles and social trends. rev ed 768p il $5 Macmillan

375 Education—Curricula 50-7606

"This revised edition discusses the evolution of the curriculum in the elementary and secondary schools of the United States, giving special emphasis to current curricula developments." (School & Society) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1943.

"The addition of over a hundred pages of new material in this revision brings up to date the trends discussed in the first edition. Here the teacher and the principal concerned with everyday curriculum problems will find a useful source book. The student of the curriculum will find the book a provocative treatment of frequently neglected areas." S. M. Holton
+ El School J 51:49 S '50 950w

School & Society 71:286 My 6 '50 30w

"The up-to-date content, the plentiful photographs, the chapter problems, and the long bibliographies make this book a logical choice for use with curriculum classes. Special note should be taken of Dr. Gwynn's fairminded approach to the Progressive-Essentialist controversy, a topic usually omitted in works of this kind, and his many valuable footnotes." W. W. Brickman
+ School & Society 72:88 Ag 5 '50 220w

GWYNNE-JONES, ALLAN. Portrait painters; European portraits to the end of the nineteenth century and English twentieth century portraits. 39p 163pl $7.50 British bk. centre

757 Portrait painters

"Mr. Gwynne-Jones' book consists of reproductions of great portraits—not all that he would have wished to include, since the difficulties resulting from the war extend even to photographs of pictures—and of notes either on the individual picture or on its painter, to show why the plate has been included in the collection." Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by Dorothy Adlow
Christian Science Monitor p7 D 16 '50 50w

Reviewed by Clive Bell
New Statesman & Nation 40:102 Jl 22 '50 1150w

"The selection on the whole is wise and authoritative. There is also a running commentary on the artists that is both succinct and informative."
+ New Yorker 26:143 O 21 '50 160w

"'The aim of a portrait is to express the character in terms of paint; it can only succeed in this if all the resources of art are used.' . . The notes make fascinating reading, whatever the approach to the subject. Almost always they state a clear issue for sympathy or disagreement; almost always the author remains true to his first sentence, which has been quoted."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p432 Jl 14 '50 650w

H

H bomb; introd. by Albert Einstein; commentary by George Fielding Eliot; contributors: Stewart Alsop [and others]. 175p $2.50 Didier pubs.

623.45 Hydrogen bomb 50-12362

Collection of thirteen articles which have previously appeared in the press, in periodicals, or on the radio, with connecting commentary by George Fielding Eliot. The book focuses attention on the scientific, military, and political aspects of the H bomb. No index.

Booklist 47:111 N 15 '50

Reviewed by R. E. Lapp
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p38 N 12 '50 650w

"Here in one handy volume, written in language the layman can understand, is just about all the available non-technical information on the hydrogen bomb. . . This book is no 'quickie' but a compendium of solid fact and informed opinion by men who have been working and thinking in this field for years. It is well arranged and authoritative and deserves the wide audience it will probably have." Michael Amrine

H bomb—Continued
+ N Y Times p39 O 22 '50 600w

HAAS, KENNETH BROOKS, and PACKER, HARRY Q. Preparation and use of audio-visual aids. 327p il $4.65; to schools $3.50 Prentice-Hall
371.335 Visual instruction 50-7298

"A revised and enlarged edition of the authors' Preparation and Use of Visual Aids, first published in 1946 [Book Review Digest 1947]. Although much material has been added in this edition, the purpose of the book has not been changed. It now covers not only the major aids such as lantern slides, motion pictures, radio, television and recording equipment, but also the less spectacular but equally useful maps, charts, posters, bulletin boards and photographs. No phase of the subject is covered exhaustively, but there is enough discussion to guide teachers and lecturers in practical preparation of audio-visual materials and in operating audio-visual equipment. An appendix, 'Sources of Audio-Visual Aids,' is a 35-page directory of suppliers." Library J

Booklist 46:355 Jl 15 '50
Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1193 Jl '50 130w
Management R 39:505 Ag '50 90w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:49 Jl '50
School & Society 72:31 Jl 8 '50 40w

HAAS, ROSAMOND. This time, this tide. 62p $2.75 Dutton
811 50-7083

A second volume of verse by an American writer. "A Roman Catholic convert, she strives for metaphysical distinction in her religious poems. In these, as in her secular pieces, a sensitive introspection towards her personal world is always present." (Sat R of Lit)

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 S 24 '50 160w

"That she has a lyric gift is undeniable: at her best she writes smoothly, with a deft regard to the rhythmic and sonal proprieties. Occasionally a perception rises above the conventionally correct. . . Miss Haas clearly has a right to adopt the tiresome Grapsey cinquain form—that portentous sighing deflation—if she wishes. Still, the odds are against her from the beginning." D. F.
+ — N Y Times p20 S 10 '50 180w

"'This Time This Tide' is at best a weak, rather than a provocative, answer to the incorrigible moderns who startle by extravagance. Where they confound by eruptive metaphor, Miss Haas doesn't even please by old-fashioned trope. . . Her talent comes to life after the middle of the book, where half of the lyrics, if lacking in fire, are well conceived. The greater number of them read as if they were contrived. . . A few pieces like 'The Beach at Ludington,' 'Moment in Babylon,' 'In the Park' have a shy restraint and grace and show a craftsmanship that is merely an approach towards the poet's art." I. L. Salomon
— + Sat R of Lit 33:33 Jl 1 '50 340w

HACKETT, WALTER ANTHONY. Radio plays for young people: fifteen great stories adapted for royalty-free performance; with an introd. by Norman Corwin. 277p $2.75 Plays
792 Radio plays 50-7726

"Stories taken from high school reading lists dramatized for radio broadcasting or school public address [system production] but suitable for performing on the school stage; previously published in Plays, the Drama Magazine for Young People. Partial contents: The man without a country; A tale of two cities; Rip Van Winkle; The spy." Booklist

Booklist 46:320 Je 15 '50
Reviewed by Millicent Taylor
Christian Science Monitor p6 S 30 '50 130w

"The author has chosen incidents and situations well-suited to this concise, and condensed form. To radio-conditioned children, this presentation of great literary material should have a natural appeal, and lure the child wary of exhibitionism involving appearance, toward dramatic expression. Tight, balanced construction, authentic radio phraseology, and the non-royalty policy make this a 'must' for school and camp."
+ Kirkus 18:281 My 15 '50 130w

"Recommended for high school libraries." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:869 My 15 '50 50w

"Norman Corwin writes a powerful little introduction, every word of which should be read by every producer of plays on radio and television. . . The plays are presented in the pattern followed by C. B. S. but they could also be used by amateur groups in homes and in schools." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Jl 2 '50 230w

"Walter Hackett has adhered to the spirit of the originals, dramatizing significant incidents and using the language of the authors wherever possible. Music and some sound effects have ben suggested, though inexperienced directors will wish for more specific help with this phase. They will wish, too, that Mr. Hackett had given for each script the cast of characters, production time, and other suggestions needed to make this a more practical tool." Elizabeth Hodges
N Y Times p20 Ag 6 '50 180w

"Walter Hackett is too well known in the radio world to need comment here. It is good to have in book form fifteen of his radio plays dramatized from books by outstanding writers. . . It is a joy to read Norman Corwin's introduction, not only because we agree with every word of it but also because it is so well expressed."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:33 Ag 12 '50 90w

HADAS, MOSES. History of Greek literature. 327p $4.25 Columbia univ. press
880.9 Greek literature—History and criticism 50-7015

"Professor Hadas draws upon modern scholarship and recent findings as well as the newer techniques of literary analysis and appreciation to provide interpretations of Greek literature from the beginnings to the fifth century A.D. Both the less familiar works of the Roman Empire and the universally acknowledged 'classics' are here treated in terms of intellectual, spiritual, and artistic development as well as in terms of political and social conditions of the times." (Publisher's note) Author is Associate professor of Greek and Latin at Columbia university. Bibliographical notes. Index.

"Highly recommended." R. P. Breaden
+ Library J 75:776 My 1 '50 140w
Reviewed by L. V. Updegraff
N Y Times p31 My 7 '50 270w

"Professor Hadas's book is notably successful in two features: its scope and its liveliness. He sketches the long history of the literary works and ideas, and with such copiousness and familiarity that his book is an astonishing performance for that reason alone." R. H.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 S 2 '50 200w

"Although it is a work of clarity and may well be used as a reference tool, the book does not convey a very lively sense of the beauty and intellectual excitement to be found in reading the Greek poets and dramatists. Professor Hadas has compiled an admirable bibliography of older standard and contemporary works of history and criticism, and adds to it most useful evaluative comments of his own."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:273 S '50 260w

HADER, MRS BERTA (HOERNER), and HADER, ELMER. Squirrely of Willow Hill [il. by the authors]. [47p] $2 Macmillan

Squirrels—Legends and stories 50-9289

Tells the story of an orphaned baby squirrel, rescued by the authors and brought to live in their house until he was old enough to care for himself. Illustrations in color and in black and white.

Booklist 47:65 O 1 '50

"Younger readers will read every word of Squirrely's story and look at the delightful pictures over and over again. It is without question one of the year's most appealing picture-story books and a fine introduction to the world of little wild friends." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 S 17 '50 200w

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 20w

"One of the Haders' best, full of autumn and spring colors and winter sunshine. . . The delightful story will have to be read aloud to the youngest children, but third graders can easily read it themselves."

+ Horn Bk 26:369 S '50 80w

Kirkus 18:512 S 1 '50 100w

"Well-made and attractive book for reading aloud to 6-8-year-olds, or for 9-10-year-olds to read themselves." M. A. Herr

+ Library J 75:1835 O 15 '50 70w

"The pictures in black and white and color, showing the famous Hader house, inside and out, and the Haders themselves, disguised here as 'old Mr. and Mrs. McGinty,' all are charming. The slight story, all true, tells of their adopting a baby squirrel, just how they cared for him, and all his adventures with them, amusing or exciting by turn. It is delightful." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 12 '50 100w

"Children will love this warm and friendly story. The black and white pictures on every page are as soft as Squirrely's fur, and occasional pictures are as full of color as autumn. It is the loveliest of the Haders' many books, both in story and picture." Phyllis Fenner

+ N Y Times p34 O 29 '50 140w

New Yorker 26:178 D 2 '50 50w

HAECKER, THEODOR. Journal in the night; tr. from the German by Alexander Dru. 222p $3.50 Pantheon bks.

193.9 Philosophy 50-8079

A volume of "pensées" by a German-Catholic philosopher, written in secret and hidden away during the years of Hitler's ascendancy and the war years. A lengthy introduction places Haecker in the existentialist philosophy, showing his relationship particularly to Péguy and Jacob Burckhardt.

"Mr. Dru gives a very fine and illuminating introduction to this most interesting book."

+ Cath World 172:79 O '50 150w

Reviewed by W. K. Wright

Crozer Q 27:354 O '50 850w

Reviewed by G. S. Spinks

Hibbert J 48:407 Jl '50 700w

"These are the reflections of a deeply spiritual philosopher and they are important because of the message they bring and because of the added insight they give to the messages of Kierkegaard, Pascal, Peguy and the existentialists."

+ Kirkus 18:312 Je 1 '50 130w

"These war-time jottings were hidden in a friend's house outside Munich, as they were written. Read now in a solid volume, they have a curiously insubstantial air. Most of them record some painfully discovered fact about the Nazis, which had long been journalistic currency here. Haecker's discoveries are, to be sure, enveloped in theology, but nothing in them justifies Alexander Dru's attempt, in a long Introduction, to treat them as constituting a body of important contemporary thought." Rayner Heppenstall

New Statesman & Nation 39:466 Ap 22 '50 900w

"Reminiscent of Pascal's 'Pensées,' 'Journal in the Night' is not a systematic work. It consists of brief aphorisms and maxims, and meditations of varying length, rarely longer than a printed page, all reflecting the unshakable faith of the author. A recurrent theme of the diary is Haecker's unequivocal abhorrence of Nazism, his detestation of a materialistic movement which ruthlessly eliminated faith and reason, religion and culture. Few twentieth-century Germans were as outspoken in their condemnation of their compatriots as this noble-minded recluse. . . It is a stirring book." Alfred Werner

N Y Times p21 Ag 6 '50 700w

New Yorker 26:75 S 2 '50 120w

Sat R of Lit 33:34 Ag 19 '50 270w

"It is not 'difficult' reading in the sense of a learned treatise, nor is it merely the record of a refugee from the Nazis. To serious readers it will introduce a man of integrity and sincere faith who has intelligently expressed the doubts, the longings and the beliefs common to all who must live in the world of today." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p7D Je 25 '50 250w

"The Journal in the Night is short with a simple and prophetic scorn—not primarily for the reigning criminals who are scarcely worth his contempt but for the 'German Herrgott religion,' for Wagner, for Nietzsche, for the 'sentimental divinity,' the 'infantilism,' the 'stupidity! stupidity!' which 'betray absolutely everything.' "

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p472 Jl 28 '50 1600w

HAECKER, THEODOR. Kierkegaard, the cripple; tr. by C. van O. Bruyn; with an introd. by A. Dru. 53p il $2.75 Philosophical lib.

198.9 Kierkegaard, Søren Aabye 50-9524

"Beginning as a critique of the Dane Rikard Magnussen's two volumes on Kierkegaard, this little book is a study of the interplay of the physical and the spiritual in the philosopher's development. Magnussen . . . proved that Kierkegaard was a congenital hunchback and interpreted his thought as largely springing from, and even warped by, his physical deformity. As an enthusiastic admirer of Kierkegaard, Haecker is opposed to this view." Christian Century

---

"[This] is an item no student of Kierkegaard can afford to miss. Alexander Dru has done an excellent job of translating it from the original German, and the ten reproductions of portraits and caricatures of Kierkegaard made by his contemporaries add to the value of the book."

+ Christian Century 67:1137 S 27 '50 280w

"Maybe only some of Kierkegaard's readers will care for Haecker's metaphysical speculations, but all will look at the drawings and the caricatures of Kierkegaard with a new interest that will make them consider once more the work and the life of the dialectical hunchback of Denmark." Edward Dahlberg

N Y Times p26 N 19 '50 450w

School & Society 72:159 S 2 '50 30w

HAHN, EMILY (MRS CHARLES BOXER). A degree of prudery; a biography of Fanny Burney. 340p il $3.50 Doubleday

B or 92 Arblay, Mme Frances (Burney) d' 50-6638

"In the first half of the 20th century there have been many biographies of the famous Burney family and this newest one adds nothing but gaiety, and a pleasant devotion to the author of Evelina. Miss Hahn. . . has written [the] story of Fanny's life before her marriage and has made no attempt to appraise the novels." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

HAHN, EMILY—Continued

Booklist 46:149; 245 Ja 1 '50; Ap 1 '50

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 9 '50 500w

"Open to controversy with its opinionated attitude, it nevertheless manages a healthy, lively portrait of the author of Evelina, the first of the family novels which captured the fancy of 18th century readers. . . An outspoken, loving if critical study, this has vigor and perception and recreates not only a literary light but also her period."
+ Kirkus 17:669 D 1 '49 150w

"For popular collections and those readers who follow Miss Hahn." K. T. Willis
Library J 75:170 F 1 '50 130w

"On the whole, Miss Hahn's book is so entertaining and so fresh that no derogation or unfriendliness is implied in indicating a mistake or two of the sort from which most far more pretentious books are not exempt. James Clifford's 'Hester Lynch Piozzi' contains much new information not in the earlier work she cites. The mechanics of the publishing and bookselling trade in the eighteenth century were more complicated than she indicates. Perhaps the reference to Dr. Johnson as a Whig is a mere slip of the pen." J. W. Krutch
+ — Nation 170:408 Ap 29 '50 850w

"Into a world dominated by social rigidities came Charles Burney and his daughter equipped only with native talent, and without the advantages of birth or wealth both made their way to eminence. The narrative of their progress to success makes what their contemporaries would have called a 'pretty story,' and Miss Hahn has skillfully abstracted the best of it and wittily retold it for readers of today." G. F. Whicher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 2 '50 1200w

"Miss Hahn does exactly the right thing. She never leaves Fanny alone on the stage, but constantly surrounds her with friends whose conversation and accomplishments and eccentricities are more amusing than her own. . . I gained from the biography a new respect and affection for Fanny herself." Phyllis McGinley
+ N Y Times p4 Ap 2 '50 650w
New Yorker 26:110 Ap 1 '50 90w

"There are those who may regard the mid-Eighteenth Century as too sacrosanct for Emily Hahn's modern brashness but even that part of the century is tough and can take it. Miss Hahn has not 'popularized' Fanny nor has she capitalized on the quaintnesses of the age. She has written the kind of biography which tells the general reader what he wants to know about Fanny Burney and her contemporaries in an amusing and, at the same time, professional manner." Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 26 '50 800w

"Fanny Burney ought to have been a heroine after Emily Hahn's own heart, and 'A Degree of Prudery' might have been a masterpiece if they could have clasped hands across the centuries. Miss Hahn can do an excellent job of characterization when she likes her subject. She likes Fanny's friend, Mrs. Thrale, and gives a lively portrait of that courageous, intelligent, delightful, ridiculous woman. If she could have felt the same sort of sympathy for Fanny Burney the book would have been an unqualified success. But Fanny Burney was a prude, and Miss Hahn, unfortunately, does not take to prudes. It is hard to see, under the circumstances, why she chose to write about one." Marchette Chute
— + Sat R of Lit 33:21 Ap 29 '50 650w

"Biographer Hahn rounds out Fanny's famous journal by adding to it the cream of many franker contemporary memoirs and of much modern research. She builds up a skillful portrait of a lady who lived with her back to life and learned nothing from it, of a good reporter who distilled her experiences into a series of saccharine novels, each sillier, more wordy and more sentimental than the last. In the end, realist Hahn's acid portrait of Sentimentalist Burney amounts to a manifesto for her own forthright approach to life and writing."
Time 55:106 Mr 27 '50 800w
Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Ap '50

HAHN, EMILY (MRS CHARLES BOXER). Purple passage; a novel about a lady both famous and fantastic. 267p $3 Doubleday

Behn, Mrs Aphra (Amis)—Fiction 50-9525

Novel based on the life of Aphra Behn, poet and playwright of Restoration England. Beginning with her childhood in Sussex, her career is traced thru the sojourn in Surinam, and back again to London and her career as a writer.

Booklist 47:96 N 1 '50

"Miss Hahn's heroine is neither a Puritan nor a scarlet woman, and 'Purple Passage' is a tale of an abandoned era written in such a way that it cannot possibly offend anyone. The novelist's imagination is very helpful when it fills in gaps in a life by no means fully recorded." Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 O 1 '50 400w
Kirkus 18:365 Jl 1 '50 190w

"Scads of fine fiction material wasted by Miss Hahn who hasn't bothered much about her heroine, or her own good writing gift. Not recommended." F. A. Boyle
— Library J 75:1291 Ag '50 70w

Reviewed by George Freedley
Library J 75:2013 N 15 '50 30w

"Miss Hahn clearly had a wonderful time taking the few established facts and building this novel around them. . . Her Aphra is a vigorous, dynamic and determined character, unconventional as all get-out, contemporary as American girls of the twenties who were still talking about women's rights, and as heartily extroverted as survival in the London of Cromwell and Charles II required." Lorine Pruette
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 S 24 '50 1100w

"The life [in Surinam], gaudy and gory, is so told that it can be tasted and smelled: the shivers of fear felt by the few whites when the Negroes revolt or the Indians stampede are admirably rendered. Yet never does the spotlight move from Aphra. Her sympathy, practical and courageous, for Caesar, the Negro slave, and his terrible fate highlights the story. After Aphra returns to England the tale droops a bit, perhaps because even so intensely personal a creature as Aphra is at her best when most fully involved in society. . . Miss Hahn has bound bones and flesh, spirit and sensitivity upon Aphra, who emerges as no mere curiosity of literature but as a living woman." Anne Fremantle
+ — N Y Times p29 S 10 '50 400w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 22 '50 750w

"The only fault to find with 'Purple Passage' is that Emily Hahn's pithy wit is a little at sea and hampered by the flowery extravagances of Aphra Behn's times. There is not enough scope for it." Evelyn Eaton
Sat R of Lit 33:44 N 25 '50 330w
Springf'd Republican p19A O 15 '50 240w

HAHN, MILTON EDWIN, and MACLEAN, MALCOLM SHAW. General clinical counseling in educational institutions. 375p $3.50 McGraw

371.422 Personnel service in education 50-8534

"This text for upper-division and graduate students organizes into teachable form the basic theories and concepts of clinical counseling and describes the knowledge and skills essential to sound clinical practice." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

School & Society 71:399 Je 24 '50 30w
School R 58:363 S '50 90w

HAIG-BROWN, RODERICK LANGMERE HAIG. Measure of the year. 260p $3 Morrow

630.1 Country life 50-10227

"Rambling comments on country doings. The writer, an Englishman by birth, lives beside a river on Vancouver Island. He tells of the weather, birds, flowers, and other aspects of nature, which distinguished each of the months; of fishing and shooting, of cows, children, conservation, the public school system, the local board of trade, etc." Library J

Booklist 47:90 N 1 '50

+ Kirkus 18:501 Ag 15 '50 180w

"His experiences as a country magistrate are interesting. Recommended for readers who enjoy Donald Peattie." J. L. Ross

+ Library J 75:1504 S 15 '50 80w

"Mere mention of the name of Roderick L. Haig-Brown makes the pulse of a salmon fisherman beat faster. . . Now Mr. Haig-Brown, writing an autobiographical book about himself and his family, shows that he knows something of the human species, too." R. L. Neuberger

+ N Y Times p16 D 3 '50 460w

Reviewed by L. D. Otis

Springf'd Republican p12D D 3 '50 190w

HAILE, PENNINGTON. The eagle and the bear; a primer of political philosophy. 194p $2.50 Washburn

320.9 Political science 50-8155

The purpose of this work is "to develop the major philosophic influences which have shaped the forms of government of the United States and the Soviet Union, and the attitudes and prejudices of their peoples." (Foreword) Reading list. Index.

"Mr. Haile's hypothesis looks attractive indeed. How wonderful to have the antagonism of the two most powerful countries of our world reduced to a philosophical debate. Since the author presents his case in a lucid and pleasant manner, even the finest points of the two opposing philosophical systems appear simple and easy to grasp. The only trouble with his hypothesis is that it collapses upon closer examination. . . Yet while the book fails in one of its aims—to help Americans understand the Russians—it is highly successful in bringing into sharp focus the main facets of the American heritage of thought. In this, the major part of his book, the author achieves a happy combination of philosophical insight, practical wisdom and critical outlook. As a result, his portrait of the eagle is well drawn, natural and lifelike, and worth studying." E. S. P.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 Jl 8 '50 1050w

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '50

Foreign Affairs 29:144 O '50 30w

"A highly readable and stimulating analysis of the Russo-American situation in terms of historical philosophy. . . Students should be warned that this book is for popular consumption—the family trees have too few branches, the outlines are simplified. Also the author's conclusion is a confusing appendage—arms and propaganda for doubtful countries, based on the assumption that the twain shall never meet. However, as a breaking down of nebulous emotional prejudices, this is a fine achievement."

+ — Kirkus 18:272 My 1 '50 270w

"As a compendium of political philosophy, 'The Eagle and the Bear' shows both gaps and inaccuracies of statement." H. S. Hughes

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 2 '50 850w

"The book is written with exemplary clarity. Its shortcomings are due to its being too brief. . . Mr. Haile—a lecturer on international relations—has oversimplified German idealist philosophy, especially that of Kant. . . The most conspicuous omission in Mr. Haile's book is his failure to analyze European values." Rene Fueloep-Miller

+ — N Y Times p10 Ag 6 '50 1000w

School & Society 71:399 Je 24 '50 20w

Springf'd Republican p5C My 28 '50 500w

HAILEY, FOSTER BOWMAN. Half of one world. 207p $3 Macmillan

950 Asia—Politics 50-7368

During two years of the war the author was a New York Times correspondent in the Pacific, later, in 1946-47, he visited the Far East Asiatic countries. In his Introduction he says: "The impressions and information I gathered during the war years, and on my trip two years ago, buttressed by information I have gathered since on Asia and conclusions based on those impressions and that information, provide the core of this book. This is not intended as a book of reference. . . I have tried instead to make a complex and vast problem understandable to the average American." Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:797 S '50 60w

Reviewed by H. M. Vinacke

Ann Am Acad 272:293 N '50 410w

Booklist 46:300 Je 1 '50

Bookmark 9:240 Jl '50 30w

"Unfortunately, Mr. Hailey's aim of arousing interest in Asia is doomed to failure because of the obtuse and tortured prose in which his sentiments are couched. The author's heart is usually in the right place; not so his clauses and commas. Indeed, the book has the appearance of a hurried first draft. Foreign words and names are often misspelled, and sentences are clumsy when short, interminable when not. Even more jarring is the vain striving for color and effect." M. B. Jansen

Christian Science Monitor p20 My 3 '50 650w

Reviewed by T. F. Opie

Churchman 164:17 Ag '50 180w

Current Hist 19:104 Ag '50 30w

Foreign Affairs 29:161 O '50 10w

"A valuable contribution to better understanding of that half of the world we are only too apt to shrug off as not our business—Asia."

+ Kirkus 18:192 Mr 15 '50 430w

"This is not a scholarly book, but it is a worthwhile discussion of the problems to be encountered in the Far East." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 75:776 My 1 '50 140w

Reviewed by W. L. Briggs

New Repub 123:19 Ag 7 '50 230w

"Hailey's more detailed judgments are not always as good as some of his instinctive reactions. Some of his conclusions on Indo-China, for example, completely fail to square with his own facts. But in facing as a whole that vast complexity of Asia and the Pacific, he advises us to take as our text the memorable statement of the black slave Terence: 'I am a man: nothing human is alien to me.' This piece of advice hits right to the heart of the problem of our future relations with Asia." Harold Isaacs

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 My 14 '50 650w

Reviewed by Stuart Lillico

N Y Times p7 Ap 30 '50 900w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 11 '50 400w

"In spite of shocking errors, Mr. Hailey has written a good book. The chapters on Korea and the East Indies are particularly fine and his expose of the inglorious career of France's Rear Admiral Thierry D'Argenlieu is admirable. Indeed the whole French policy of stupidity and bungling in East Asia is so well set forth that the long continued chaos in Indo-China seems inevitable." Hallett Abend

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:15 My 27 '50 850w

Wis Lib Bul 46:27 Je '50

Reviewed by Rupert Emerson

Yale R n s 40:162 autumn '50 290w

HAINES, HELEN ELIZABETH. Living with books; the art of book selection. (Studies in lib. service) 2d ed 610p $5 Columbia univ. press

028 Bibliography—Best books. Books and reading. Book selection (library science) 50-4478

Second edition of a guidebook for librarians and book lovers which has been much in demand since its first appearance fifteen years ago (Book Review Digest 1935). Besides the revision this book contains a biographical sketch of the author by Althea Warren. Bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 46:355 Jl 15 '50

"As a book about books, a help in the selection of books and a guidebook to other sources of information about books, this volume has top ratings." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 67:845 Jl 12 '50 210w

School & Society 72:31 Jl 8 '50 30w

Special Libraries 41:261 S '50 70w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 S '50

HALE, GARTH, pseud. See Cunningham, A. B.

HALE, NANCY. Sign of Jonah. 413p $3.50 Scribner

50-9783

"Here are two incredibly beautiful sisters, the ruthless Hope and placid Felicity, their photogenic and phlegmatic mother, the effeminate artist brother, an alcoholic Yankee cousin, assorted husbands and lovers, the Negro problem, psychoanalysis, careers, lusts and true love. Sophisticated New York, a luxury yacht and the Deep South form backdrops." Library J

"Emotionally, the story and the characterizations seem unreal and derivative. The trappings of the novel are tinsel. The impact is bogus. For me, the story left me unmoved, save a sense of active distaste. Definitely not for conservatives."

— Kirkus 18:528 S 1 '50 340w

Reviewed by H. S. Taylor
Library J 75:1660 O 1 '50 110w

"Curiously enough, detailed and realistic as are the ingredients of 'The Sign of Jonah,' one closes the novel with a feeling that, fundamentally, it does not ring true. But for all its essential atmosphere of brittle spuriousness, 'The Sign of Jonah' provides an encyclopedic and consistently amusing report on many interesting phases of the dizzy Twenties and the dazzling Thirties." F. H. Bullock

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 22 '50 1000w

"To one who remembers 'The Prodigal Women' with pleasure, Miss Hale's new novel comes as a sad shock, for it is confused to the point of incoherence. . . The book has the disadvantages of a roman à clef, for the reader is distracted from the characters to wonder about their possible prototypes in real life. . . Certain satiric scenes, certain characters, are well handled." Elizabeth Janeway

— + N Y Times p26 O 15 '50 380w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 N 26 '50 600w

"This exhaustive study of human destinies . . . adds up to an overly long book written with such expertness and intelligence that it seems illogical to protest because it leaves the reader so unmoved. Nevertheless, the conviction persists that cold curiosity is an artificial response to disintegration and decay. And, granted that the civilized, objective, sophisticated approach is the indication of a disciplined talent, why not acknowledge that a little warmth, a little pity, become the artist, too?" Josephine Lawrence

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:14 O 14 '50 800w

HALE, WILLIAM HARLAN. Horace Greeley: voice of the people. 377p $4 Harper

B or 92 Greeley, Horace 50-9784

A long, detailed biography of the American newspaper editor who was one of the outstanding figures in American political life during the Civil war period. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:74 O 15 '50

Bookmark 10:30 N '50 30w

"William Hale tells the story interestingly, in a style without adornment and with admirable objectivity." Ralph Korngold

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 8 '50 650w

"An excellently written biography of the famous editor."

+ Kirkus 18:447 Ag 1 '50 150w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay
Library J 75:1504 S 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by David Donald
Nation 171:442 N 11 '50 1150w

Reviewed by Richard Hofstadter
New Repub 123:19 N 13 '50 800w

"As a careful, detailed analysis of a complex and unusual—unusual? nay, fabulous—personality Mr. Hale's study of Horace Greeley deserves high praise; but as an explanation of what made Greeley a great editor it is less satisfactory." G. W. Johnson

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 O 1 '50 900w

"If Mr. Hale's biography has a fault, it is that it relies too much on narrative and description and not sufficiently on analysis and interpretation. The total picture is, to some extent, blurred. The Greeley whom Parrington celebrated in one of his most eloquent chapters never quite emerges." H. S. Commager

N Y Times p31 O 8 '50 850w

"Greeley had opinions on everything and was generous with them; he was eccentric and brash and often ridiculous, but he was uncompromising in his pursuit of the liberal ideal. Mr. Hale sees the man whole and has succeeded in portraying him so."

+ New Yorker 26:106 S 30 '50 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 22 '50 950w

"This may safely be pronounced the best of the existing lives of Greeley: a work which throws new light not only upon the man but his time, and a delightfully readable biography to boot." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 O 7 '50 1000w

Springf'd Republican p23A N 5 '50 420w

Reviewed by Irving Dilliard
Survey 86:510 N '50 400w

HALECKI, OSKAR. Limits and divisions of European history. 242p $2.50 Sheed

940 Europe—History 50-2807

"The author approaches the two problems: (1) the limits—when does European history begin and where does it end? (2) the divisions—what are the epochs, how far do such divisions as the Dark Ages, the Middle Ages, Renaissance, and modern and contemporary history correspond to historical reality?" (School & Society) Index.

Reviewed by S. N. Fisher
Am Hist R 56:166 O '50 320w

"In this little book by Dr. Halecki many questions of interest to the student of European history are discussed in a stimulating fashion." J. E. Gillespie

+ Ann Am Acad 270:192 Jl '50 480w

"The author, by penetrating and deep analysis, presents the concept of European history and the European Age. The book itself may be defined as the most concise formulation of the philosophy of European history available. It is almost indispensable for the understanding of new trends in the domain of international relations." Constantine Rachkauskas

+ Cath World 171:314 Jl '50 550w

Current Hist 19:229 O '50 70w

School & Society 71:205 Ap 1 '50 50w

"Besides Professor Halecki the dispassionate scholar there is also Professor Halecki the Polish patriot in exile, the grinding of whose axe strikes the ear more and more insistently as the work proceeds. The note never becomes strident or aggressive; the discussion proceeds always on the plane of history; and the advocacy, while emphatic, remains urbane and good-tempered. Nevertheless, it is as plain in the case of Professor Halecki, as of some great historians of the past, that a political programme is being offered in the form of a historical interpretation."

Times [London] Lit Sup p135 Mr 3 '50 1850w

HALKIN, SIMON. Modern Hebrew literature; trends and values. 238p $3 Schocken

892.409 Hebrew literature 50-8457

"This work is not intended to be a history of modern Hebrew literature. While the material it investigates is exclusively literary, it is primarily a study of the socio-historical forces which have motivated Jewish life during the last two centuries. I have traced the development of modern Hebrew literature as a mirror reflecting those forces, and no other instrument could have suited my purposes more perfectly. . . This is the first attempt in any language to treat the whole history of modern Hebrew literature ideologically rather than from the standpoint of purely literary appreciation." (Pref) Brief biographical notes on authors studied. Index.

"An excellent guide to the Hebrew authors of the period it will prove a valuable reference for dates, authoritative spelling of names and pseudonyms and information on the contribution to Hebrew letters." H. L. Roth

+ Library J 75:1183 Jl '50 130w

"Because of the self-imposed limitations of his treatment, all of the authors except the recent ones seem to have been writers of tracts; it is hard to perceive that he is dealing with poets, novelists and belles-lettres. And because of the limitations of space, the majority of the authors remain little more than names attached to some ideal or formula. Fortunately, he has been generous in his quotations from the Palestinian writers of the last thirty years, who, after all, will have the greatest immediate appeal to the current reader. His final chapters could have well served him as a model for what the earlier ones should have been." Marvin Lowenthal

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 20 '50 850w

"The manifestations of the new Hebrew literature are rich and varied, and the samples given here of prose and poetry in translation are particularly valuable. More should have been given—perhaps in an appendix. But the author does add a useful bibliography, which includes works translated into English." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R of Lit 33:33 S 23 '50 230w

Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 6 '50 120w

HALL, ANDREW, pseud. See Hall, A.

HALL, ANNE (ANDREW HALL, pseud). Peeps Elliott and family. 248p $2.50 Dodd 50-6977

Continues the story begun in Like Father, Like Fun (Book Review Digest, 1948). This time Peeps is a high school sophomore and has his troubles trying to keep up his scholastic record so he can keep on with his athletics, and in living up to his father, who is a famous coach.

"Peeps' happy relationship with his famous coach-father and lively mother is well done. Though this may seem too slangy, too slight to be of permanent value, it is recommended for limited purchase for young people's collections. Useful for poorer readers and younger boy sports fans." Clara Adams

+ Library J 75:989 Je 1 '50 90w

"The school slang that prevails in both text and conversation is not for the too-literate reader though it sounds like good reporting." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 11 '50 110w

"All in all, the book presents a delightfully humorous and revealing account of family life in a home where emotions and values are all in healthy balance. Boys will particularly enjoy the author's competent sports coverage in this lively, good-humored yarn." H. B. Lent

+ N Y Times p26 Ap 16 '50 130w

HALL, DAVID. Records: 1950 edition. 524p $5 Knopf

789.9 Phonograph records 50-9155

"Contains a critical listing of all domestic recordings of serious music (at whatever speed) issued since December 31, 1947, with manufacturers' names and the record or album numbers. Also a large list of foreign recordings; a discussion of the qualities, advantages and disadvantages of new and old types of discs, of home phonographs and playing equipment." Wis Lib Bul

Booklist 47:57 O 1 '50

"Hall's book is no mere new edition; it is a completely new book. . . Among other valuable features of 'Records' are the author's comprehensive directions for the care and storage of the new long playing records; his extensive listing of foreign recordings, and his detailed advice for building a record collection." J. M. Flynn

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 S 3 '50 170w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '50

"A valuable reference work, and one that will be useful to any serious record collector."

+ Kirkus 18:293 My 15 '50 100w

"Hall's judgments are sound, his lists the most up-to-date cumulations at present available." P. L. Miller

+ Library J 75:1046 Je 15 '50 140w

New Repub 123:21 D 18 '50 50w

"Merely to hear all of this material is an imposing task. However, Mr. Hall has already proved his ability to absorb quantities of music by the issuance of two other record books. As with any critical writing, you may wish to temper his opinions with your own, but, on the whole, his discussions are fair and his attitude constructive." Carter Harman

+ N Y Times p20 Ag 27 '50 250w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 5 '50 50w

"The style of the notes on the recordings has mellowed pleasantly, and I am glad to note that the editorial 'we' has been dropped. Quite aside from its primary purpose, there is lots of good advice and helpful discussion in this book. Advantages and pitfalls are pointed out along with readable if sometimes mildly technical background information on equipment, publications, manufacturers, and even dealers. And to Mr. Hall's remarks on the necessity for a central, all-inclusive archive of recordings, I can only say Amen." P. L. Miller

+ Sat R of Lit 33:15 Ag 26 '50 500w

"Highly recommended."

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:21 S '50

HALL, FORD POULTON. Government and business. 3d ed 594p $5 McGraw

380.16 Industry and state—U.S. Government ownership—U.S. 49-49227

"Third edtion of a well-known text, bringing in the many developments of the past decade in this field." (Am Pol Sci R) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1940.

Am Pol Sci R 44:507 Je '50 20w

Booklist 46:202 F 15 '50

HALL, F. P.—Continued

"A broad, competent study which has proved its worth in previous editions, now revised to meet changing conditions and legislation." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 75:47 Ja 1 '50 100w

Social Studies 41:192 Ap '50 10w

HALL, JAMES, and STEINMANN, MARTIN, eds. Permanence of Yeats; selected criticism. 414p $5 Macmillan

821 Yeats, William Butler 50-5401

"Collection of over twenty critical essays on W. B. Yeats by Middleton Murry, Edmund Wilson, R. P. Blackmur, T. S. Eliot, Kenneth Burke, W. H. Auden, Allen Tate and other British and American critics. All have been printed before, a goodly number in the pages of the Kenyon Review and the Southern Review. Most of them were written after his death in 1939 as the editors wish to assay Yeats' permanent contribution as a major figure in poetry." (Library J) Bibliography.

Chicago Sun p3 My 30 '50 120w

Reviewed by J. M. Flynn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Mr 5 '50 360w

Christian Century 67:371 Mr 22 '50 200w

Reviewed by W. P. Sears
Churchman 164:18 Mr 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by Vivian Mercier
Commonweal 52:204 Je 2 '50 490w

Current Hist 18:355 Je '50 20w

"A volume for all interested in Yeats, and one which contains some outstanding examples of contemporary critical writing."

+ Kirkus 17:642 N 15 '49 190w

"This volume represents formalist criticism and is not at all a popular presentation. For college, university and large public libraries." G. D. McDonald

+ Library J 74:1817 D 1 '49 130w

"Yeats has now achieved 'permanence'; his critics, as yet, have not. Like all such anthologies (and this book represents the best critics now writing), the result may bewilder a reader who doesn't know the subject in advance. Hardly a statement escapes negation by some other critic. The attempt to give proper significance to Yeats' diverse interests . . . sounds like a debate at the foot of the Tower of Babel and leaves Yeats where he has always been, larger and taller than those who talk about him. His 'permanence' is best attested by the fact that the sympathetic essays in this book are the most profound, while the unfriendly and disciplinary criticism tends to show up the writers rather than Yeats." D. A. Stauffer

+ New Repub 122:20 Mr 20 '50 750w

"This is in more ways than one a tribute to Yeats. For one of the tests of a great artist is that, having been all but buried under a mountain of critical comment, he should shake the mountain and, rising out of it, somewhat creased and ruffled but more astonishingly alive than ever, continue to interest us and to delight." Babette Deutsch

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 F 5 '50 1200w

"Well balanced collection. . . None of these essays is without merit—even the Murry has its negative value—and some of them are contemporary criticism at its best. The most notable are Mr. Ransom's 'Yeats and His Symbols' and Mr. Blackmur's 'The Later Poetry of W. B. Yeats.'" Dudley Fitts

+ N Y Times p5 F 5 '50 550w

"The editors, who have written an introduction evaluating the criticism that follows, have tried to make their book hang together, but it remains something of a grab bag."

New Yorker 25:100 F 11 '50 130w

"None of these writers is irresponsible; almost all perform with skill and intelligence, most with good will. It is the over-all impression, no single example, that dismays. Nor can one quarrel with the editors, in spite of the inevitable personal favorites omitted. They have made a good choice, though a few essays sound dated, and some suffer by being taken out of original contexts. Nevertheless, if one asks what remains to be done, the only answer is: Almost everything." Isabel Gamble

Poetry 76:227 Jl '50 650w

San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ap 23 '50 420w

Reviewed by Richard Ellmann
Sat R of Lit 33:49 Ap 15 '50 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p525 Ag 25 '50 3550w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:152 Je '50 240w

HALL, JAMES NORMAN. Far lands. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 325p $3 Little

50-14871

The people who settled the South Sea islands before history was written have left a legend of their wanderings. Out of this legend the author has woven a novel of the love of a young chief and the daughter of his enemy. (Adapted from Publisher's note)

Booklist 47:54; 75 O 1 '50; O 15 '50

"Enchanting novel. I do not know when I have lived so completely in a bygone era as I lived in the pages of this book." V. P. Hass

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 12 '50 500w

"Out of an ancient Polynesian legend James Norman Hall has created a tender, dignified tale." W. K. Rugg

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 N 15 '50 270w

Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt
Commonweal 53:286 D 22 '50 650w

"A story based on the legends of the early Polynesian migrations has two strikes against it at the start, but manages, after a slow beginning, to overcome both in large part. Legendary material is per se appealing to a somewhat specialized, though not necessarily limited, market. Legendary material told as a story within a story provides a double frame of removal from reader attention. This in the case of The Far Lands accounts for the very slow getting under way of a tale that finally compels attention as first rate adventure and romance."

+ Kirkus 18:525 S 1 '50 230w

"A sympathetic study of primitive life with a sea background and wide human implications. Will appeal to the better reader." H. A. Wooster

+ Library J 75:1824 O 15 '50 90w

"The story has about it an epic quality and it observes most of the epic conventions. . . The magic of the South Seas, somewhat dimmed in these days, is restored here, and I for one am happy to find a tale in which a tabu broken for love does not lead to the inevitable destruction of the lovers." J. J. Espey

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 26 '50 650w

"Mr. Hall makes the story austerely conventional. It is difficult to avoid the suspicion that he has not only simplified the psychology but sentimentalized the legend. 'The Far Lands' lacks drama and pace; the dialogue seems to indicate that prehistoric Polynesians had not yet evolved a sense of humor." William McFee

N Y Times p29 N 19 '50 320w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ag 5 '50 310w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 9 '50 800w

"Mr. Hall has respected the essential conditions of an oceanic culture in the details of his narrative, which has a vivid fascination when it deals with the sights, sounds, and smells of a region that mingles an immense with an intricate beauty. His use of his primitive human symbols is less successful. . . Despite its lapses, his book is worth reading for many passages that are valid and right." Alexander Laing

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:14 N 11 '50 700w

Springf'd Republican p3D N 19 '50 340w

HALL, JAMES NORMAN. A word for his sponsor; a narrative poem. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 116p $3 Little 811 49-50111

"A young radio commentator, discouraged with the constantly unhappy news, walks out on his job. He subsequently watches as atomic destruction and a rain of ruin cover the earth, later with a poet friend sees hope, for a federation of men rise from the desolation." Booklist

Booklist 46:154 Ja 1 '50

Kirkus 17:590 O 15 '49 280w

"It turns out to be a dream, of course. But Mr. Hall makes it a vivid and credible dream, with all a dream's acceptable dramatic exaggeration. It isn't great poetry, by any means; it is occasionally obvious and a bit prosy, but it has tremendous sincerity and human sympathy, and one feels in it that quality of Consciousness which Ben Young (alias James Norman Hall) strives for and in several lovely lyric passages, makes eloquent and plain." S. H. Hay
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:29 F 11 '50 550w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 Mr '50

HALL, JEROME. Living law of democratic society. 146p $2.50 Bobbs
340.1 Law—Philosophy 49-49506

"Three lectures given at Pacific University, Forest Grove, Oregon, on the Isaac Hillman Memorial Lectureship. . . Professor Hall organizes his lectures chiefly around attacks on the inadequacies of legal positivism." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by Willard Hurst
Am Pol Sci R 44:803 S '50 380w

"The failure of the author to construct a better theory of the law than those of his predecessors does not mean that the book is deprived of value. On the contrary, his ideas are ably confronted with those of the leading legal philosophers, beginning with Plato, and in the course of the discussion he offers a large number of good insights into the working of the mechanism of law in modern society." N. S. Timasheff
+ Ann Am Acad 270:158 Jl '50 490w

"Professor Hall points up many of the defects in current theories of value, but from the inadequacy of these treatments it is not clear why the truth of an a priori concept of natural law follows. Nor does the persistence of natural law theories in the history of jurisprudence prove its truth, as Professor Hall seems to argue; it may only reveal a problem. Part of the difficulty in following Professor Hall's argument is due to the obscurity of his idea of natural law." E. N. Garlan
J Philos 47:708 N 23 '50 600w

Reviewed by J. D. Hyman
New Repub 123:19 S 18 '50 600w

HALL, OAKLEY M. So many doors. 302p $3 Random house
50-8503

"This tells of Jack Ward and his casual seduction of Vassilia Baird, young, awkward, vulnerable, who soon learned that Jack was easy to make, difficult to marry. Hardening herself, cheapening herself, Vassilia keeps her vantage with Jack as she hurts him, makes a fool of him, drives him—indirectly—to the murder of a friend. Losing Jack through the war years, Vassilia marries an older, richer man, while Jack returns from the Pacific and settles down with Gene, gentle and quite helpless when Vassilia comes back into his life. Finally determined to get a divorce from Gene to marry Vassilia, Jack goes home to find that Gene, mentally and physically broken after the abortion of the child they were to have, has killed Vassilia, and Jack assumes the responsibility of the crime." Kirkus

"Those who like tales of love and violence intermingled will find this first novel an outstanding example of its kind. It tells its story with the smashing impact of a pile-driver, in a tone of savagery and brutal directness. It is not for the squeamish or the reader who rates subtlety above crude strength. It is about some distinctly unpleasant people, most of whom have a morality [or should I say amorality] distinctly not of the Sunday school." Kelsey Guilfoil
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 16 '50 500w

"Rough, sexy, combustible, this is quite a handful, and not for all types of circulation."
Kirkus 18:267 My 1 '50 170w

"A small, strong, vital novel. . . Both narrative and setting are admirably handled, and the practical value of the novel is considerably fortified by the author's clear indication that even for a pair of willful and importunate young lovers like Jack and V there is a right door, too, which they might have chosen among 'So Many Doors.' " Margaret Evans
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Jl 16 '50 650w

New Yorker 26:72 Ag 12 '50 150w

"Such a novel could have been simply a local-color affair, for Mr. Hall knows remarkably well the world in which his characters move. . . Or it might have been merely a suspense story, for Mr Hall has a nice knack at that kind of thing, too, as the reader will discover. Instead, the author has made it in essence a serious piece of work as far as it goes, a novel in which forces dimly understood by the protagonists but too big for any of them to handle bring about the inescapable conclusion of violence and death." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 12 '50 850w

HALL, ROBERT ANDERSON. Leave your language alone! 254p maps $3 Linguistica, box 619, Ithaca, N.Y.
400 Language and languages 50-6247

The author, associate professor of linguistics at Cornell, has a new approach to language problems. He argues that "Bantu and Eskimo have exactly the standing of Greek, Latin and English. He recognizes scores of ways of speaking English, from Oxford English to Pidgin English, and every single one of them is right." (N Y Times) " 'It's me,' says Professor Hall, is just as correct as 'It is I.' 'Ain't' and 'don't' are perfectly good English; there is no authority whatever for the supposed distinction between 'shall' and 'will.' . . Such ill-advised rules arose from the attempts of the early grammarians to squeeze English into the forms of the Latin grammar because of the vogue of Latin in the Middle Ages. That speech is best which best conveys your meaning, so just talk naturally. The only taboos are social, not grammatical." (Sat R of Lit) No index.

"The author is opposed to all attempts by other teachers, and especially lay experts outside the schools, to impose their ideas of what is right and what is wrong in any department of language study. But in the end he is led to protest too much. He is so convinced of the soundness of his scientific views that he overlooks the real value of language study, which certainly exists quite apart from the study of linguistics." L. V. Updegraff
N Y Times p12 My 21 '50 270w

"A scholarly work, [which] is nevertheless lively and even exciting reading." E. E. Calkins
+ Sat R of Lit 33:15 Ag 12 '50 700w

School & Society 71:302 My 13 '50 10w

HALL, ROBERT KING. Education for a new Japan. 503p $6 Yale univ. press
370.952 Education—Japan 49-9201

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Foreign Affairs 28:342 Ja '50 60w

"This book is an elaborate study of the education system in Japan before the Occupation, together with a detailed account of what is being done to re-educate the Japanese. The first part is really a highly compressed summary of what had been previously available in English. On re-education Mr. Hall speaks with authority. He was responsible for the first basic plan, and the facts are presented with great care and accuracy. So far the book is a most valuable work of reference. But the author goes on to give his views on the root causes of Japanese militarism, and some of his assumptions are totally unproven." T. P. Leggett

HALL, R. K.—Continued
+ — Pacific Affairs 23:89 Mr '50 700w

Reviewed by T. A. Bisson
Survey 86:92 F '50 320p

"Because of the breadth of its scope and the vast amount of new material gathered on the ground, this book will be of interest to the general reader. It will be of primary interest, however, to educators and to those concerned with the problem of the future of Japan. Because of its emphasis on the controversial subject of language reform, it will also be of interest to general linguists and Japanese language specialists."
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:349 S '49 280w

HALL, WILLIAM NORMAN. The walking hat; with pictures by Kurt Wiese. [30p] $1.50 Knopf 50-6308

Philomena, the hen, wanted an Easter bonnet, but only her friend Bolitho, the goat, knew that. This picture-storybook for ages four to eight shows how Bolitho helped Philomena get her wish, and the results.

Bookmark 9:188 My '50 20w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Ap 2 '50 70w

Kirkus 18:95 F 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:626 Ap 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by E. T. Dobbins
Library J 75:880 My 15 '50 80w

"The funny names in this little piece of foolery, read aloud, successfully overturn the giggle box for 4 to 8's." S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p22 Mr 12 '50 180w

HALL-QUEST, MRS OLGA (WILBOURNE). Jamestown adventure; il. by James MacDonald. 185p $2.50 Dutton
975.5425 Jamestown, Virginia 50-9300

A history of the first twelve years in the colony at Jamestown, based on original records. The story is told graphically in a form to interest readers from twelve to fifteen.

Booklist 47:80 O 15 '50

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 20w

Kirkus 18:562 S 15 '50 150w

"The settlement of Jamestown . . . portrayed vividly and dramatically with suspense, excitement, and adventure sufficient to make this period come to life." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 75:1516 S 15 '50 80w

"The story is dramatic and appealing, recreating the most colorful episodes of the period in a style which will have both intellectual and emotional appeal for young people." Elizabeth Hodges
+ N Y Times p36 S 10 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 N '50

HALLE, LOUIS JOSEPH. On facing the world. 198p $2.75 Sloane
174 Conduct of life 50-7416

A letter of personal philosophy, written by the author to his son. "The author brings his appreciation of philosophy, psychology, sociology, literature, science, the arts, politics into a harmonious pattern for living. . . He raises the basic problems facing man in any age, and suggests his own tentative direction of thought. Closer to Stoicism than any other school, this guide serves well to stimulate thinking of the novice." (Library J)

Bookmark 9:209 Je '50 60w

"Mr. Halle professes no very clear understanding of the nature of God and the universe. But he writes, notwithstanding, with a humility and a clarity which indicate the spiritually perceptive man." Neil Martin
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 22 '50 480w

Kirkus 18:257 Ap 15 '50 120w

Reviewed by M. E. Monroe
Library J 75:490 Mr 15 '50 110w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 My 7 '50 850w

"The entire range of twentieth century culture is subjected to a delightfully piquant appraisal, conservative in standpoint but scintillating in style, and everywhere lending itself to quotation." P. W. W.
+ N Y Times p40 Je 11 '50 220w

"A lot of books are being written these days about the 'good life.' Most of them are piffle. . . This book is something else again. First of all, it has the saving grace of modesty. Like most things modest and unpretentious, it is simple and therefore clear and truly wise. It is a delight to read, to ponder over, and to enjoy, as much for the savor of its style as for its content. . . Mr. Halle is a civilized man in the best sense of the word, the way Emerson was; he is concerned but not despairing. Aware of the problems that beset mankind, he knows, too, the secret springs of strength which properly drawn from can make the human seem divine. Where the springs which he has found are located he shows his son, and showing him shows us, in phrasing and manner as clear and fresh as the springs themselves." W. S. Lynch
+ Sat R of Lit 33:19 Je 24 '50 750w

HALLEN, JULIENNE. 300 projects for hand decorating. 188p il $3 Homecrafts pubs, 799 Broadway, N.Y. 3; for sale by Crown
745 Decoration and ornament. Design, Decorative 50-8089

"How to paint and stencil and letter, how to do all this and more on plastics and china, glass and textiles. You can work in cork and leather, you can print with cookie cutters and potatoes. Miss Hallen, well versed in gift-shop craft, shows many of her own facile designs." Library J

Booklist 47:72 O 15 '50

"Admirable for occupational therapy and invaluable as the Christmas season approaches." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:1665 O 1 '50 60w

HALLENBECK, CLEVE, ed. and tr. Journey of Fray Marcos de Niza. See Marco da Nizza

HALLIDAY, BRETT, pseud. See Dresser, D.

HALLOWELL, JOHN HAMILTON. Main currents in modern political thought. 759p $6.75 Holt
320.9 Political science 50-8762

"A textbook or supplementary reading for students; in formal but readable style it analyzes and interprets main currents in political philosophy since the seventeenth century, with special attention to theological thought of individual philosophers or groups." (Booklist) Index.

"In an effort to cover a bewildering horde of theorists in the space, Professor Hallowell relies heavily on quotation rather than the skillful and compact paraphrase that is at least one justification for a textbook. The quotations beat down like hailstones on the reader. . . Unfortunately, unless one keeps his finger (and his attention) constantly on the notes at the end of the volume, one is not always sure whether it is the theorist who is speaking, or a friendly or hostile critic, or even Professor Hallowell himself." R. A. Dahl
Ann Am Acad 272:268 N '50 550w
Booklist 47:70 O 15 '50

"Here is a valuable philosophical-political work, nobly documented and bibliographed." Roger Shaw
+ Churchman 164:16 D 1 '50 230w

"Despite a few good chapters, of which the one on German Idealism is the best, this long-awaited book is signally disappointing to any reader who, critical of relativism, positivism and materialism, ardently desired a really profound analysis, from the viewpoint of contemporary needs, of significant developments in the political thinking of the last centuries as they live on into our own age." T. I. Cook
Pol Sci Q 65:618 D '50 1350w

HALMOS, PAUL RICHARD. Measure theory. 304p $5.90 Van Nostrand

513.83 Mensuration. Topology 50-5811

"This book deals with the mathematical theory of point sets, and functions which might be associated with them. The first half of the book develops the theory from fundamentals, and is so written that it can serve as a text for students whose only mathematical preparation is college algebra and analysis. The second half treats the application of measure theory to topology, to probability, to group theory, and includes some of the results of the author's own published researches." U S Quarterly Bkl

"It is an essential addition to any active collection on higher algebra."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:42 My '50
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:385 S '50 110w

HALMY, MARGARET. Parents must be flexible; a practical approach to the care of children; il. by Barsis. (Stephen Daye press bk) 127p $1.95 Ungar

649.1 Children—Care and hygiene 50-8029

Advice for parents on how to care for children without becoming too tense about it. Partial contents: Food and why children eat it; Sleep is a sometime thing; How to handle your doctor; The meaning of the bath; Speech—used and abused; Household rules to make and break; The truth about grandparents; Parties, mad or merry; Other children are somebody's child; The origin and species of sitters.

Booklist 46:348 Jl 15 '50
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 30 '50 60w

"Entertaining, thoroughly practical guide."
+ School & Society 72:399 D 16 '50 30w

HAMILTON, CHARLES EVERETT, ed. Cry of the thunderbird; the American Indian's own story. 283p $4 Macmillan

970.1 Indians of North America 50-10790

An anthology composed of about one hundred stories or speeches, written or dictated by North American Indians. The illustrations are all by native artists.

Booklist 47:133 D 1 '50
Kirkus 18:627 O 1 '50 70w

"Not a book one would wish to read through at one sitting, as it does not maintain a consecutive story. It is the kind of book to keep at hand to dip into, for entertainment and for interesting, often surprising, revelations of what the old Indians did, felt, and thought." Oliver La Farge
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 D 10 '50 750w

"Mr. Hamilton's anthology fails to include even one utterance or narrative of the contemporary Indian generation. Indian social development since the late Nineteen Twenties has been nothing less than tidal in its sweep. . . With only this reservation, I recommend this anthology." John Collier
+ — N Y Times p22 D 3 '50 750w

Reviewed by E. G. Eastman
Springf'd Republican p8D N 26 '50 260w

HAMILTON, DONALD. Murder twice told. 250p $2.50 Rinehart

50-6941

Two stories, one of counter-espionage, the other a detective story.

Bookmark 9:213 Je '50 30w

"A good many people have recommended a good many books as impossible to lay down once you've been so unwary as to pick them up. I don't much care for this adhesive definition of success but I'd be willing to let it stand for this pair." James Sandoe
+ Chicago Sun p5 My 5 '50 230w
Kirkus 18:117 F 15 '50 60w

"Both stories are written with Mr. Hamilton's flair for hair-on-end suspense and in his hard-hitting yet literate prose."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Ap 30 '50 200w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p20 Je 4 '50 180w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p25 My 21 '50 50w

HAMILTON, EDMOND. Star kings. 262p $2.50 Fell

49-11802

"This story is an adventure into future civilization—the adventure of a present-day man flung by the sorcery of science across time and space, and into a perilous whirl of intrigue and conflict between the great star-kingdoms of two thousand centuries from now." Publisher's note

Booklist 46:189 F 1 '50

Reviewed by Richard Gehman
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 Ap 16 '50 200w

"As a study in metempsychosis, 'The Star Kings' is less than convincing, but fantasy addicts won't regret the price of admission." Rex Lardner
N Y Times p16 D 18 '49 140w

HAMILTON, KENNETH W. Counseling the handicapped in the rehabilitation process. 296p il $3.50 Ronald

331.86 Counseling. Disabled—Rehabilitation, etc. 50-7696

"The professional worker who accepts responsibility for counseling the handicapped individual is, in the author's view, the essential link between the individual and the various agencies with which he may come in contact. Because of the central position of the counselor's function, this book attempts to survey the entire process of rehabilitation, from case finding to selective placement, in terms of its counseling requirements. . . The book should be useful to all who counsel the handicapped on their problems—social workers, psychologists, physicians, therapists, and employment counselors—as well as college students preparing for work in any part of the rehabilitation field." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"It is to be expected that whenever an author tries to cover so many topics in a book of about 300 pages some parts of the book will appear sketchy. . . However, it is likely that all who counsel the handicapped . . . will find some parts of the book useful to them as professional workers." Louis Long
+ — Am J Pub Health 40:1019 Ag '50 220w
Management R 39:506 Ag '50 100w
School & Society 71:302 My 13 '50 30w
School R 58:363 S '50 20w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:368 S '50 200w

HAMILTON, MRS LULU (SNYDER). Doorway to a happy home. 234p $2.50 Bobbs

392 Family. Happiness 50-5517

An inspirational book, written primarily for mothers. Its purpose is to show the ways in which happiness can be achieved in the home,

HAMILTON, L. S.—Continued
especially thru religion. Partial contents: Marriage is what you make it; Happy children; God and our children; Family patterns and traditions; Understanding and loving the adolescent; Family prayers; We are growing older; God with us.

"In her own distinguished career Mrs. Hamilton has combined Christian service to family and church. The genius of her fusion of the two roles, churchwoman and Christian mother, has not found its way into her book. This omission does not affect the values already mentioned. Many grateful readers will find in this book literally their own personal doorway to a happier home." R. E. Lentz

+ Christian Century 67:465 Ap 12 '50 850w

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Je 18 '50 250w

HAMMERSTEIN, OSCAR. Lyrics [pref. by Richard Rodgers]. 215p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

782.8 49-50316

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by M. D. Read

Library J 75:330 F 15 '50 40w

"[In] the valuable 50-page introduction to the present volume, [Mr. Hammerstein] generously provides numerous clues to his expert craftsmanship. This is required reading for anyone interested in the marriage of words and music. Embryo lyric writers should learn it by heart. It is full of helpful advice on the effective use of words, discusses rhyme, rhythm, phonetics, and even sincerity and inspiration. Always the suggestions are wise and practical, and usually accompanied by specific illustrations. Composers will do well to peruse these pages. Librettists and translators should also take notice." G. E. Chamberlain

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:295 Mr '50 600w

"It will give many a reader pleasure to own this book, even if all he does with it is to sit and read the words while playing the records of the songs or humming them to himself. That alone will sell the book to thousands. But there is a different and better reason. This is the fact that Mr. Hammerstein has included a 45-page essay on the subject of writing song-lyrics." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 6 '49 850w

Springf'd Republican p3D F 12 '50 360w

HAMMOND, RALPH, pseud. See Hammond-Innes, R.

HAMMOND-INNES, RALPH (RALPH HAMMOND, pseud). Cocos gold. 266p $2.50 Harper

50-7103

Cocos Island is an island off the coast of Costa Rica, where the fabulous gold of ancient Lima is supposed to be buried. This is the story of Johnny Keverne, a fifteen-year-old English boy, who went on a search for the treasure, and of the terrifying adventures he encountered. For older boys.

Booklist 46:320 Je 15 '50

"Some of the action and expletives are departures from the lukewarm juvenile variety, but since this tends to underplay these elements rather than obviously skirting them—a procedure favorable to comics and the pulps—this can hardly be a fault in good fiction Excellent fare for boys."

+ Kirkus 18:239 Ap 15 '50 190w

"Granted the first implausibilities such stories rest on, it swings along convincingly with much violence as the lust for gold spreads Although plot and characters are typical, it is above average, for the author is an expert writer of adult suspense novels. Recommended for junior and senior high school boys." Eleanor Kidder

+ — Library J 75:1198 Jl '50 80w

"It is the sort of adventure that makes the Grade B movies look tame, being well enough written to seem almost, but not wholly, believable." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 25 '50 150w

"Told with vitality and zest, this first-person story of Johnny Keverne's adventures has many elements that appeal to boys. . . Well written and absorbing, this story is a perfect addition to that special shelf of books reserved—if possible!—for boys who think they don't care for reading." Howard Pease

+ N Y Times p30 My 7 '50 180w

"Excellent characterization and a plot that has continuous action and suspense make this an exceptionally good adventure story."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:33 Ag 12 '50 100w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 Je '50

HAMMOND-INNES, RALPH (HAMMOND INNES, pseud). The survivors [Eng title: White south]. 276p $2.75 Harper

50-7448

This novel of shipwreck and hardship in the Antarctic is for most of its length, a first person narrative by the leader of the survivors, an ex-British naval officer who at the last moment had been added to the personnel of a whaling expedition made up chiefly of Norwegians. The solving of the problem of the mysterious death of one of the officers shares the interest with the account of the disaster caused by ice and storm.

Booklist 46:287 My 15 '50

Chicago Sun p5 Jl 4 '50 40w

"Good rousing adventure yarn of derring-do in the Antarctic." M. C. Scoggin

+ Horn Bk 26:397 S '50 50w

"A story of tense and violent action, almost impossible odds, and quite some bravery, this is absorbing."

+ Kirkus 18:186 Mr 15 '50 170w

Reviewed by M. D. Read

Library J 75:2161 D 15 '50 60w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins

+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 23 '49 130w

"Hammond Innes makes a thrilling story of this ill-fated expedition. His characters are wooden and there's not much conviction to the love story, but that doesn't matter since the important part of the book is the battle with the Antarctic itself."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 28 '50 250w

"Writing in a polished, deceptively leisurely style that carries the reader along at breakneck speed, [Innes] dishes up an unusually skillful blend of suspense and adventure." Hillis Mills

+ N Y Times p21 Jl 9 '50 180w

"This book has a tension and a mounting excitement that are very unusual, and it is highly recommended."

+ New Yorker 26:108 Ap 29 '50 130w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 7 '50 150w

"Upon a huge canvas Mr. Innes paints the frozen wasteland with startling realism. The staggering, tearing, crushing ice formations become living monsters intent solely upon the destruction of those who would dare invade their regions. Few writers have described this land of eternal whiteness with such beauty and dramatic intensity. . . Mr. Innes proves himself an able craftsman in deftly maintaining the love and mystery angles of the story at secondary levels while the struggle of man-against-nature takes place. The reader's interest is steadily held at a high level of suspense." J. M. Grant

+ Sat R of Lit 33:15 Je 3 '50 550w

"If, on reflection, we feel that the author has not gone very deeply into his characters, we realise that, with so much to pack in, he could not do everything. The White South is that rarity, an exciting story with real characters: and its occasional immaturities of phrase, plus an element of wish-fulfillment in the portrait of the modest and all-conquering narrator, will not make it any less popular." L. A. G. Strong

+ — Spec 184:28 Ja 6 '50 180w

Springf'd Republican p12C Je 4 '50 290w

"Mr. Innes proves, in the climactic scenes, his mastery of suspense; his first-person narrative is suitably matter-of-fact, but never dull; and we are given in quick succession a fascinating series of Antarctic perils: the blizzard, the sea-leopard, the killer-whale, the hell of ice."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p837 D 23 '49 310w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 My '50

HAMRIN, SHIRLEY AUSTIN, and PAULSON, BLANCHE BUHLIG. Counseling adolescents. 371p $3.50 Science res.

371.422 Counseling. Adolescence 50-7182

"Written especially for school counselors and for students who are training to become school counselors. . . The basic point of view of the authors is that counseling is a specialized, rather than an incidental, function of school personnel. Therefore, this service must be performed by competent school counselors as an integral part of the total school program. The qualifications, interests, skills, attitudes, personal relations, plans for continued growth, and philosophy of competent school counselors are set forth in the last chapter." School R

Booklist 47:127 D 1 '50

School & Society 71:335 My 27 '50 10w

"The style employed in Counseling Adolescents is direct, down-to-earth, and unencumbered by psychological jargon. Warmth and human interest are secured by personifying three typical counselors and describing how they help adolescents in solving specific problems." T. E. Christensen

+ School R 58:496 N '50 800w

HANAYAMA, SHINSHO. Way of deliverance; three years with the condemned Japanese war criminals; tr. by Hideo Suzuki [and others] tr. rev. by Harrison Collins. 297p $3 Scribner

940.547252 War crimes. Sugamo prison, Tokyo, Japan 50-7122

"The author became Buddhist chaplain to the Japanese men accused of carrying out the war, in 1946, and stayed with them through the trials and executions. He describes the services he conducted, his impressions of the men, including Tojo, and his ministrations to individuals; he also records the written reactions of some of the men. There is little defiance noted here; the chaplain emphasizes instead the repentance and a seeking for religion." (Booklist) Glossary.

Booklist 46:284 My 15 '50

Reviewed by J. Markowitz
Canadian Forum 30:162 O '50 350w

Reviewed by Tahashi Oka
Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 13 '50 650w

Kirkus 18:226 Ap 1 '50 110w

"The writing is undistinguished, perhaps due to the translation, and repetitious, a more fundamental fault. In spite of these defects, this work furnishes invaluable insights into the characters of prime movers of the Pacific conflict." A. J. Gaines

+ — Library J 75:557 Ap 1 '50 140w

Reviewed by J. H. Holmes
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Jl 16 '50 800w

"'The Way of Deliverance,' by Shinso Hanayama, is a poignantly sincere and a truly inspiring book. It looks into the human heart and speaks to the human heart. It is a cry from the depths of being where all men are one, where there is no more night and there are no more enemies." Pierre van Paassen

+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 Je 10 '50 750w

HANDEL, LEO A. Hollywood looks at its audience; a report of film audience research. 240p il $3.50 Univ. of Ill.

791.4 Moving picture audiences 50-9231

"This text concerns itself with the methods used by film companies to ascertain American audience reactions to their products. . . [It] reveals the mysteries of pre-testing by depth interviews to determine whether the public would attend a film dealing with atomic energy under the title, 'The Beginning of the End;' whether the public would support the elevation to stardom of Margaret O'Brien on the basis of the film, 'Journey for Margaret:' . . . and so on. . . In the main [however] Dr. Handel's book is an extremely depersonalized book, of more interest to the sociologist, perhaps also the psychologist, than to the general public, or even to students of the film medium." Chicago Sunday Tribune

"Since the author has been the audience research director for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, he is not only in a position to speak with authority, but to quote figures and show charts which illustrate and prove his points." Fitzroy Davis

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ag 20 '50 650w

"The author does a thorough and scholarly job. . . While this study is quite sophisticated and very well done, it does not presume to answer some of the questions of movie-goers." I. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 S 10 '50 300w

Reviewed by Hollis Alpert
Sat R of Lit 33:28 D 16 '50 270w

HANDEL, PAUL W. Outdoor chef; with a foreword by Arthur A. Schuck; il. by Victor Aures. 227p $3 Harper

641.5 Cookery, Outdoor 50-7484

This "guide to a campfire and fireplace cookery" contains material on fire making, fireplaces, utensils and fittings, cooking methods, and menus and recipes. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 46:329 Jl 1 '50

Bookmark 9:209 Je '50 20w

Reviewed by Russell MacFall
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 My 7 '50 170w

"While many of the ideas sound much too elaborate for one's usual conception of even de luxe outdoor cooking, there are some good hints to transfer to the kitchen. The section on 'foil cooking' is very up to the minute. The one lack—and this I felt through a good part of the book—is the matter of timing. Anyone who has amateurishly attacked outdoor cooking knows how difficult it is to gauge time and a timetable for the amateur, indicating, for instance, rare, medium, well-done, would be a good addition."

+ Kirkus 18:127 F 15 '50 300w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 My '50

HANEL, ALEXANDER V. Text in pattern-making. 314p il $2.96 Bruce pub.

621.72 Pattern making 49-49420

"An elementary textbook for use in courses in trade schools and vocational courses in high schools. It describes all of the basic operations in the making of wood patterns for metal founding. It is clearly written. There are about 450 illustrations and a glossary." Library J

Booklist 46:213 Mr 1 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1913 D 15 '49 60w

"A clearly written, well-illustrated text."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:25 Mr '50

HANKEY, MAURICE PASCAL ALERS HANKEY, 1st baron. Politics, trials and errors. 150p $2.50 Regnery

940.532 War crimes—Trials. World war, 1939-1945—Diplomatic history 50-7767

The author, a British statesman, examines the reasons for, and the consequences of, two Allied policies decided upon during the course of World war II: (1) the decision to demand "unconditional surrender"; (2) the decision to try "war criminals." Index.

Reviewed by Oliver Benson
Ann Am Acad 271:227 S '50 320w

"There is no space in a short review of Lord Hankey's book to deal in full with his 145 page text. Let's just say that 'Politics, Trials and Errors' was worth writing and is worth reading, even tho the style is pedestrian and the text dull in too many places. But, as another voice in the rising outcry against many phases of the war crimes trials, Lord Hankey's deserves to be heeded." Robert Cromie
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 13 '50 500w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith
Ethics 60:225 Ap '50 280w

Foreign Affairs 29:145 O '50 20w

"Lord Hankey was secretary to the Paris Peace Conference and secretary for twenty years to successive British Cabinets; it would be difficult to name a man better acquainted with the rules of international diplomacy. Part of his short book is a sharp criticism of the 'Unconditional Surrender' policy (that 'fatuous fight for a phrase') and part is an attempt to exonerate Mamoru Shigemitsu who was convicted by the Tokyo tribunal. But the major conclusions that Lord Hankey presents are more fundamental and more disquieting. . . It is impossible to present Lord Hankey's full argument in a brief review. No one who reads this book can feel that the issues he debates are unimportant or doubt that they will divide American and international opinion for years to come." Geoffrey Bruun
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 11 '50 1000w

"Lord Hankey must always be heard with respect on any international question, but it is to be feared that this volume will not increase the respect. His thesis . . is no doubt arguable, but it is certainly not to be sustained by the arguments adduced here. Lord Hankey, in his desire to be fair to the Germans, has leaned so far in their direction that he is in grave danger of overbalancing." Wilson Harris
Spec 183:924 D 30 '49 1000w

"Much of Lord Hankey's argument is presented in the form of speeches made by him in the House of Lords, with but brief allusion to the answers made in debate by the Lord Chancellor and others. This defect may be due to the other calls upon his time to which Lord Hankey refers, but it inevitably weakens his case. Throughout the book there is a tendency to summarize arguments on the other side in a single sentence and then to dismiss them with an exclamation mark—not a symbol appropriate to serious consideration of a serious theme."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p823 D 16 '49 1300w

HANNA, PAUL ROBERT, and KOHN, CLYDE FREDERICK. Cross-country; geography for children; il. by Walter Howard Knapp [and others]; maps by Edward A. Boehmer. 160p $2.20 Scott

917.3 U.S.—Description and travel

A geography for fourth-graders, presented as the story of a family's trip across the United States from Los Angeles to Washington, D.C.

Booklist 46:338 Jl 1 '50

"The plan seems excellent for nine-year-olds, not so much for the stories, which are good enough, but for the resting places between them, where each cross-section of our country is related to maps of the whole world. Beginning geographers need an introduction to maps and globes, and to the geographic concepts they represent, and that is the fine contribution of this easily readable, colorful book." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 9 '50 200w

"This book, written in third-grade vocabulary, cannot help but be extra easy for fourth-graders to read. The book itself has all the appeal of a favorite 'store-bought' juvenile."
+ School & Society 71:335 My 27 '50

HANSON, LAWRENCE, and HANSON, E. M. Four Brontës; the lives and works of Charlotte, Branwell, Emily, and Anne Brontë. 414p il $6 Oxford

928.2 Brontë family 50-6291

A composite biography of Charlotte Bronte, and her brother and sisters. "In the course of the narrative, all the most important poems of Emily are printed as she intended them, with her careful punctuation, use of capitals, etc., restored. These poems and all the major novels are re-examined at length, and the book is completed by illustrations, some of which have rarely or never before been published, a full bibliography, and notes." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 46:231 Mr 15 '50

"The authors' assessment of the Brontë achievement is both adequate and generous. That difficult and enthralling book, 'Wuthering Heights,' is justly praised—with full benefit of the keen insight which Lord David Cecil, C. P. Sanger and a few others have bequeathed to their successors—and it is good, too, to find Anne's novels appreciated as they deserve. All in all, no other general account of the Brontës has so much to offer the reader as this one." Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 12 '50 450w

Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 15 '50 240w

"The fine bibliography and index recommend the book to students, but the text remains a delightful addition to this ever interesting subject and may be recommended to the general reader." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 75:396 Mr 1 '50 100w

"The authors have produced a pedestrian but solid and valuable book, a book that thoroughly digests the vast amount of material on the Brontës which has been published since Mrs. Gaskell's life of Charlotte appeared in 1857." David Daiches
+ New Repub 123:26 S 25 '50 1200w

"This sane and comprehensive book ('a full and accurate one-volume life using all existing materials') is one which the present eventful state of Brontë criticism makes very acceptable." Naomi Lewis
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:763 D 24 '49 1000w

"It is always a great pleasure to read a first-class book with parts of which one can heartily disagree. . . One or two obvious slips should be corrected in the reprinting. . . As far as can be judged by random dipping, the index is as near faultless as possible and is an extremely important, I would almost say the most important, part of a work like this, which will certainly be the standard book of reference about the Brontës, their lives and work, for a great many years to come." Angela Thirkell
+ N Y Times p5 Mr 19 '50 900w

New Yorker 26:110 Ap 1 '50 160w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 19 '50 700w

"Against [a] background of abundant fact and speculation the Hansons have essayed something different, a four-sided design in literary biography. Insisting upon both unity and diversity in the lives and works of Charlotte, Branwell, Emily and Anne, the authors have kept the four stories always in touch and always distinct. For good or ill, their plan achieves that deep-focus effect sometimes used in camera characterization." Harry Ransom
+ Sat R of Lit 33:48 Ap 15 '50 650w

"This is a very fine book. It is doubly commendable, both as a piece of literary history and as a study of human relations in circumstances that were probably unique." C. E. Vulliamy

+ Spec 183:540 O 21 '49 900w

"Branwell's is the portrait that, surprisingly, emerges with the greatest clarity from Mr. and Mrs. Hanson's study of the four Brontës. His case history, of course, possesses an intrinsic psychological interest since Branwell Brontë is one of the more spectacular failures in literary history. The pursuit of this theme, however, is not the author's intention; Branwell's appearance as the most coherent character in their work is accidental. . . Mr. and Mrs. Hanson have, indeed, studied all the Brontës in detail; the striking circumstance, however, is that their subjects compel conviction in inverse proportion to the amount of detail introduced."

Times [London] Lit Sup p42 Ja 20 '50 1500w

HARAP, LOUIS. Social roots of the arts. 192p $2.50 Int. pubs.

701.1 Art and society 49-10955

"Mr. Harap's thesis is that creative activity (painting, writing, film-making, etc.) has always directly reflected the prevailing issues in the class struggle, and that modern artists must find and embrace their own creative roles in the present crisis. He offers for proof a much-abbreviated Marxian survey of civilized culture along with a passionate attack on American commercialism. The author argues that the artist's only remaining hope is to seek the blisses of Russian socialism." (N Y Times) Index.

"Not to beat about the bush, let me say that this book is not a reasoned or detailed explanation and appraisal of art in relation to its social context, but a piece of bald political propaganda for which the ostensible problem provides merely the pretext. Mr. Harap is not interested in the esthetic content of works of art; it is not clear, indeed, that he really knows what such a conception can mean. He is interested in furthering the cause of communism by whatever means are available to him." H. D. A.

— J Philos 47:306 My 11 '50 1000w

Reviewed by Charles Spielberger

N Y Times p47 N 13 '49 190w

HARBIN, ELVIN OSCAR. Gay parties for all occasions. 351p $2.95 Abingdon-Cokesbury

793 Entertaining 50-10111

"Emphasis has been placed on suggestions for family parties and family recreation, although there are games and parties for all age groups. These suggestions are so arranged that they can be used by a single family or by groups of families working together in the church, club, or community in big family night programs. More games are listed for the parties than will be needed ordinarily, and in some cases a still larger choice is offered by references to [the author's] The Fun Encyclopedia." Pref

Booklist 47:92 N 1 '50

"Lively suggestions and explicit directions for year-round parties."

+ Bookmark 10:30 N '50 20w

"Directions are clear and simple. Indexed and well bound. Recommended." Clara Adams

+ Library J 75:2019 N 15 '50 60w

HARDENBERGH, WILLIAM ANDREW. Sewerage and sewage treatment. 3d ed 467p il $6.50 Int. textbook

628.2 Sewerage 50-7016

"A standard engineering college textbook written by the author of Public Works magazine. It is shorter than some of the standard books on the subject, yet it covers most of the techniques which are of current interest. The first edition was published in 1936 [Book Review Digest 1937] and the second edition in 1942. The most extensive change in the present edition is in the chapter on industrial waste which has been expanded and completely rewritten. Lesser changes are found in several places, and additions have been made to most of the bibliographies appended to the chapters." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:1050 Je 15 '50 80w

"The treatment is compact, and much attention is given to such practical matters as basic engineering data and construction details of sewer systems. These features give the book a measure of reference value."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:63 Jl '50

HARDY, HENRY REGINALD. Mackenzie King of Canada. 390p il $4.50 Oxford

B or 92 King, William Lyon Mackenzie A50-7545

Biography of William Lyon Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada for twenty-two years, and for five years the leader of the opposition. From the book "emerges not indeed a portrait of this most remarkable man but a sketch substantial enough to whet the portrait-painter's appetite." (Manchester Guardian)

"Mr. Hardy is perhaps weakest in discussing world affairs since 1939 in which King played a major part, and affairs in the United States during King's early years here. . . But these are minor errors, not detracting from a well-done work. Its sources are chiefly newspaper dispatches and reminiscences of King's colleagues and old friends. Most space is rightly given to events of World War II." A. E. Hutcheson

+ — Am Hist R 56:184 O '50 320w

"This is a pleasant readable book . . . but it is not much more. To anyone who has been in the habit of following Canadian politics with some continuous attention for the past twenty-five years or so it throws much more light on the intellectual standards and on the powers of insight of the present Press Gallery at Ottawa than it does on Mr. King. Compare it with the kind of writing about his political contemporaries that a newspaper man like Willison did, when he sat down to write books, and you can't help feeling that there has been a sad falling-off in the standards of Canadian political journalism during the past generation." F. H. Underhill

— + Canadian Forum 29:211 D '49 900w

Reviewed by A. R. M. Lower

Canadian Hist R 31:309 S '50 270w

Foreign Affairs 29:159 O '50 20w

"Impartiality is not picturesque, nor is Mr. King, for all his private charm and public toughness. So Mr. Hardy, an able journalist agog for 'human interest,' has made the most of any colour he could find. He has overdone it. Admittedly, when he reproduces a Prime Minister's letters to a six-year-old girl who (in a photographer's presence) gave him a buttonhole, he reveals the sentimentality which is an integral part of Mr. King's make-up. His own musings are another matter. One can but advise readers not to be deterred by them, and especially by the first pages of this book. For it is worth reading." M. R. K. B.

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 4 '50 270w

"Mr. Hardy's biography is deliberately uncritical; his subject is his hero and he is at no pains to conceal his admiration. But he tells his story with zest and gusto and high factuality, including numerous pleasant scraps of minutiae." J. T. W.

+ Sat R of Lit 33:31 Ag 19 '50 270w

"Disappointment in finding what might have been an important study degenerating into a collection of anecdotes will be tempered by observing that the anecdotes are often good. Occasionally one of them impinges upon real history."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p248 Ap 21 '50 650w

HARDY, OSGOOD, and DUMKE, GLENN S. History of the Pacific area in modern times. 752p il maps $5 Houghton

950 East (Far East)—History. Pacific ocean 49-6930

"The chief concern of the authors is to help students understand the problems which confront us in Japan, China, Indonesia and the islands of the Western Pacific. About half the book deals with Japan and China alone. The authors have included much colorful and significant detail, and have also done readers and students a great favor by including some twenty-six maps." (N Y Times) Reading suggestions. Index.

Foreign Affairs 28:689 Jl '50 20w

"Useful and comprehensive handbook." Hiram Bingham
+ N Y Times p28 N 27 '49 450w

"This history will be welcomed as a pioneer effort at study of the Pacific area as an integral community. At the same time, it raises the fundamental question whether it is in fact possible so to treat an area whose sole congruity is its diversity and contrasts, its cultural combinations and conflicts, intensified by the impact of Western cultures." J. T. C. Liu
Pacific Affairs 23:111 Mr '50 500w

HARDY, ROBERT GATHORNE-. See Gathorne-Hardy, R.

HARE, CYRIL, pseud. See Clark, A. A. G.

HARKINS, PHILIP. Knockout. 242p $2.50 Holiday 50-7143

"In the New York City slum area where his family lived life was always a battle for young Ted Brett. Slender and short, he was no match for the rugged neighborhood gang led by Bud Sturm. . . While escaping from the gang one day Ted discovered a Department of Parks gym and met Al Mario, the boxing instructor. Most of the book is devoted to Ted's boxing career, terminating with an appropriate knockout victory in the Golden Gloves final." N Y Times

Booklist 46:306 Je 1 '50

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 14 '50 60w

"A fast-moving story with sound values."
+ Kirkus 18:207 Ap 1 '50 170w

"Ted is a bit wooden and the race prejudice angle has been forced into the story quite obviously in a few places. But the plot itself, boxing instructions, and street background are all good; and I know of no other recent boxing fiction for junior high age." Lillian Morrison
+ — Library J 75:990 Je 1 '50 80w

"The plot of this exciting story is realistic enough to satisfy boys. There is a dual theme: Ambition, determination and sound training pay well. Good sportsmanship includes respect for the other fellow." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p18 My 21 '50 150w
Wis Lib Bul 46:24 Jl '50

HARKINS, PHILIP. Son of the coach. 252p $2.50 Holiday 50-10228

"College football that is intermingled with a gripping problem in father-son relationship. Something is bound to happen when a boy who plays football for the joy of it becomes a player on the team coached by his father—who plays football only to win." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 47:99 N 1 '50

"Good football, but more important real characters and emotional impact."
+ Kirkus 18:475 Ag 15 '50 110w

"Aside from the fact that the father's reformation is a little too sudden, this is satisfactory fare for boys of 12-16." Lillian Morrison
+ — Library J 75:2084 D 1 '50 80w

"Philip Harkins has written another unusually fine story." R. A. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 33:61 N 11 '50 50w

HARKNESS, GEORGIA ELMA. The gospel and our world [based on three addresses prepared for the E. T. Earl lectureship, Pacific school of religion]. 126p $1.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

261 U.S.—Religion. Christianity 49-11676

"The thesis of this book is a fairly simple one. It is that the churches of America, though far from decadent, are doing much less effective work than they might be doing with their resources, and that the major cause of the difficulty lies in failure to present the meaning and claims of the Christian faith in terms that seem vital to the common man. In short, there is need of a much closer connection than we have had thus far between theology and evangelism." Introd

Booklist 46:195 F 15 '50

"For whom is the book intended? Despite the cover blurb, it is my feeling that it is not so much for the layman as for the preacher. The diagnosis and the suggestions for cure which it contains would, of course, be helpful to any Christian. For the lay reader, however, Miss Harkness' earlier volume, Understanding the Christian Faith, would be preferable. The greatest value of the present book will be in its stimulation of the preaching pastor to the reanalysis of the theological presuppositions of his preaching and to further reading in contemporary theology. That should prove a healthful corrective to the too common tendency to lose sight of fundamentals of the faith in the rather hectic rush of promotional and parish activities." H. E. Kolbe
+ Christian Century 67:559 My 3 '50 1400w

"Miss Harkness does not know the people outside her theological caste, people who think in different patterns. I know many of them as students and educators. They are not of her fold, but I am sure they are Christian in spirit and heart. She writes as if she knew (and so says) the campus mind. True, she knows the Epworth-league type of mind (bless them!) and they are on many campuses. But there are 'other sheep' of the fold whose conception of the Christian religion is not so constricted. They are brushed by in this book. I hope I am forgiven for this forthright testimony of reaction. But I am as honest as the author is sincere. Some of us are tired of the type of books which editors of denominational publishing houses are publishing as outreaches to the modern mind but which, after all, are inreaches of stale and safe viewpoints." Vergilius Ferm
— Crozer Q 27:76 Ja '50 500w

"While the book is down to earth and easily understandable in its simplicity, it lacks the dimension of depth the author reveals in dealing with such matters as prayer and suffering. Her Prayer and the Common Life and The Dark Night of the Soul came from a rich experience of devotional discipline. The present work reveals a scholarly acquaintance with her materials and a needed thesis presented ably though without exciting challenge. It will prove valuable to ministers, students, and to laymen seriously concerned with the message and task of the church." G. M. Gibson
+ — J Religion 30:150 Ap '50 250w

HARLOW, ALVIN FAY. Serene Cincinnatians. (Society in America ser) 442p il $4.50 Dutton

917.7178 Cincinnati—Social life and customs 50-10456

"[The book is] based on careful research and packed with anecdotes and human interest stories about colorful Cincinnatians. . . The chapter on Social Registerites is in the last quarter of the book, and such matters as music and art and industry, not to mention politics, all more vital to most Cincinnatians than Society with a capital S, receive prior billing and full treatment." Library J

Booklist 47:93 N 1 '50

"The research is unimpeachable; but the style lacks the verve of some of the others. Interest, inevitably, will be liveliest in the region of Cincinnati."

+ — Kirkus 18:500 Ag 15 '50 150w

"Informative and easy to read, it catches the atmosphere of the city admirably." M. H. McElfresh

+ Library J 75:1655 O 1 '50 130w

"A worthy companion piece to 'The Proper Bostonians' and 'The Spectacular San Franciscans.' Mr. Harlow has done a fine job in this biography of a city lacking the distinctive personality of San Francisco or Boston." R. H. D.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 D 17 '50 650w

"There is some indication that Mr. Harlow may have written his book too quickly after gathering his material. His prose style is frequently awkward and badly littered with clichés. . . Several years ago the WPA Writers Program published 'The Cincinnati Guide' as part of its national series. 'The Serene Cincinnatians' is little more than that book considerably expanded. What is needed is a penetrating evaluation of greater scope, possibly something in line with what Mr. Harlow's title suggests." J. A. Maxwell

Sat R of Lit 33:21 O 28 '50 700w

HARMAN, BOB, and MONROE, KEITH. Use your head in tennis. 212p il $2.95 Crowell

796.34 Tennis 50-5849

"An instructor of champions and a sports writer tell the average player how to master common mistakes and play intelligent, enjoyable tennis. Graphic illustrations. Index." Bookmark

Bookmark 9:183 My '50 30w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '50

"Jack Kramer's coach has written a fine book for amateur or professional. . . Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:779 My 1 '50 60w

Reviewed by Tom Meany

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 14 '50 80w

"'Use Your Head in Tennis' is, I think, the best book of tennis instruction yet." Rex Lardner

+ N Y Times p14 My 28 '50 330w

HARNDEN, RUTH PEABODY. I, a stranger. (Whittlesey house publication) 195p $2.75 McGraw

50-5362

Novel portraying the life of Christie Warren from childhood to early adolescence. Her father and mother were divorced and the girl felt she was not loved by either of them, and that she herself had no one to love. The viewpoint expressed is that of Christie herself.

Booklist 46:182; 200 F 1 '50; F 15 '50

Reviewed by Dorothy Sparks

Chicago Sun p7 Mr 12 '50 300w

Christian Science Monitor p4 Mr 11 '50 120w

"A shaded and catching portrayal of disillusion and disorientation, this for a more discriminating, feminine following."

+ Kirkus 18:30 Ja 15 '50 160w

"Well done, readable, but not for popular consumption." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 75:318 F 15 '50 80w

"Miss Harnden writes sensitively and imaginatively about the unhappy child and the self-preoccupied grownups otherwise good people, who let her down. . . The novel concerns itself with the statement of a problem, rather than its solution. . . The reader feels, with the perplexed woman to whom the child had been entrusted, where will it end?" Mary Ross

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 F 26 '50 450w

"Ruth Harnden's compassion and insight light up a familiar theme and transform it into a fresh poetic concept. . . She looks on her people and their surroundings with a poet's eye so that the pain, inherent in the story is permeated, not diluted, with beauty." Jane Martin

+ N Y Times p30 Mr 5 '50 320w

"Miss Harnden weights her scales considerably against the adults in her novel, and in particular against the Bostonians in it; the impact of the Beacon Hill mentality on a juvenile psyche, she implies, is fully as jarring as any amount of marital dissension."

New Yorker 26:101 Mr 4 '50 160w

"As it stands, 'I, a Stranger' has a great many of the good points of a short story—focus, compression and impact—but it also exhibits the faults of that form. Miss Harnden has simply not gone quite far enough, nor has she trod the path as carefully and as painstakingly as she might have." P. A. S.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 28 '50 400w

Sat R of Lit 33:33 Mr 25 '50 140w

"Miss Harden's handling of this delicate subject and her understanding of a girl's sensitive emotions are expert pieces of subtle writing." S. M. Neal

+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 5 '50 260w

HARNED, HERBERT SPENCER, and OWEN, BENTON BROOKS. Physical chemistry of electrolytic solutions. 2d ed rev & enl 645p $10 Reinhold

541.37 Solution (chemistry). Electrolytes 50-6464

"This is a second edition of a book originally published by the same authors in 1943 [Book Review Digest 1944]. The first 584 pages of the second edition are identical with the first edition except for corrections of various kinds and contain all of the first edition up to the author index. The second edition contains an added appendix of 58 pages with its own table of contents and author index. After the first edition was prepared, revised tables of fundamental constants were published, and revised values of those quantities affected by the change in fundamental constants are incorporated. It contains, also, extensions of certain tables and some of the recent experimental and theoretical material." Chem & Eng N

"The whole book is an excellent critical survey of the extensive work done between about 1925 and 1940 concerning the applications of the interionic attraction theory to all the physical properties of electrolytic solutions. The major attention is given to dilute and fairly dilute solutions of strong electrolytes. All of the important theories and the formulas based upon them, including the complex forms, the simplified forms, and their empirical extensions are critically considered." A. L. Ferguson

+ Chem & Eng N 28:2840 Ag 14 '50 410w

Reviewed by V. K. La Mer

Chem Eng 57:302 Je '50 300w

"The printing of important new data in an appendix rather than in the main text is obviously not the best way of revising an important treatise, but having the new data available within the same covers is better than not having it at all."

N Y New Tech Bks 35:38 My '50

HARNER, NEVIN COWGER. Religion's place in general education; including The relation of religion to public education: the basic principles, a committee report of the American council on education. 167p $2.50 Presbyterian com.

268 Church and education 49-2732

"This addition to the lively current discussion of the relationship between religion and American education is in two parts. There is, first, a discussion, from the Protestant point of view, of the numerous aspects of this complex question. This is followed by a reprinting of the report prepared by the Committee on Religion

HARNER, N. C.—Continued
and Education of the American Council on Education, titled 'The Relation of Religion to Public Education: The Basic Principles.'" N Y Times

"This little volume deals in a stimulating and provocative manner with a subject which in recent years has stirred public school leaders as well as religious leaders throughout the nation. . . The first of the author's four studies seeks to establish the point that religion and education are indivisible. . . This thesis is not convincingly made, nor will it likely be accepted by the great body of workers in our public schools. The second and third studies deal with the place of religion in present education, and review certain current proposals to overcome the almost complete lack of any religion in the schools. . . The real opportunity of finding a place for religion in the schools, vividly presented, lies in its natural inclusion in present curricula as an inherent part of studies of history, American life, or other subjects. . . For leaders of religious education, and public school leaders interested in projecting a program of religious teaching, this little volume is 'must' reading." F. R. Morey
+ — Crozer Q 27:276 Jl '50 800w

N Y Times p12 O 23 '49 180w

"In general, Dr. Harner's book is presented on an elementary, inspirational level and shows little evidence of contact with primary materials." W. W. Brickman
— School & Society 71:276 My 6 '50 200w

HARPER, MRS MARTHA REBECCA (BARNHART). Winter wedding. 266p $2.50 Longmans 50-9248

Historical novel for older girls. Belle Barnhart goes to teach in a country school near Davenport, Iowa, in an attempt to forget her lover, who was killed in the Civil war. In Iowa Belle meets two young men who love her, chooses the right one, and goes home to Pennsylvania for her winter wedding. The time is just after the Civil war. Companion volume to Bittersweet (Book Review Digest 1948).

Booklist 47:99 N 1 '50

"Girls who like period stories will enjoy this one."
+ Horn Bk 26:384 S '50 90w

Kirkus 18:358 Jl 1 '50 180w

"The romance is historically authentic, the author being a descendant of the beautiful Belle. Mrs. Harper gives careful attention to historical details constructing a sound family story worthy of young people." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 75:1824 O 15 '50 110w

"The pace with which Belle's experiences are described is leisurely, but the meticulous and detailed re-creation of the period will attract girls who like an 'old-fashioned' setting. Moreover, the heroine is charmingly real." M. C. S.
+ N Y Times p16 N 12 '50 170w

"It is commendable that Mrs. Harper has not sacrificed reality to superficial appeal. Her story will please the older boys and girls who are interested in other years and in the situations, emotions, and problems of other days." M. R. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 33:54 N 11 '50 220w

School & Society 72:303 N 4 '50 30w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 N '50

HARPER, ROBERT ALLAN. Marriage. 308p il $2.75 Appleton
392.5 Marriage 49-9760

"Textbook which includes what the author considers to be the major facts and ideas about marriage as needed by the elementary college student. . . An annotated bibliography is included. Each chapter is followed with study questions and selected reading references from other texts and current periodicals. It is a textbook planned for the 'practical preparation-for-marriage type of course.'" Social Forces

"Harper's book is serious, thorough, and respectful of the student's intelligence." W. L. Kolb + Am Soc R 15:153 S '50 310w

School & Society 70:15 Jl 2 '49 30w

"It is generally pointed and concise and avoids statements of opinion or moral judgment. . . In his effort to keep on the level of the elementary student the author includes numerous charts with no reference to them in the text; deals with a problem such as budgeting in too general a way to be helpful; and dismisses questions relating to interfaith marriage with a too-brief paragraph. Dr. Harper's book may find as much acceptance and use among the general out-of-high-school public as within college classrooms." W. M. Smith
+ — Social Forces 28:453 My '50 270w

"Based on his own experience in marriage counseling and in teaching, as well as on his familiarity with pertinent data, it purposely keeps out of sight the research and clinical material that have given it substance. Even the author's sociological background seldom affects his style. A student or other young adult who is not appalled by a moderate-sized book will find here useful information and interpretation on many of the principles and problems of marriage." G. H. Groves
+ Survey 86:337 Je '50 150w

HARPER, SAMUEL NORTHRUP. Government of the Soviet Union; 2d ed. [ed. by Ronald Thompson]. (Governments of Europe ser) 369p $5 Van Nostrand
342.47 Russia—Politics and government
49-11054

"A practical handbook on the Russian governmental organization with chapters on its operation and some Communistic theories. Based on the first edition [Book Review Digest 1938] by the late Professor Harper, this new and revised version is by Professor Thompson (George Washington University)." Current Hist

Reviewed by Vladimir Gsovski
Am Pol Sci R 44:783 S '50 600w

"If this text lacks the richly documented erudition and detailed dissection of Julian Towster's Political Power in the U.S.S.R. (Oxford University Press, 1948), it makes amends by virtue of readability, lucidity, and judicious evaluation. It is, it seems to me, the best available introductory text in the field. And if it were to be widely read by the American public generally, much of the current ignorance, confusion, and irrational hatred characteristic of American attitudes toward Russia would be dispelled." F. L. Schuman
+ Ann Am Acad 268:202 Mr '50 450w

Booklist 46:263 Ap 15 '50

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 N 20 '49 100w

Current Hist 17:354 D '49 40w

"Harper had opportunities for first-hand study of Soviet affairs which have been denied later students, but Mr. Thompson has brought the account up to date with valuable indications of the changes which have taken place in the Soviet government in the last decade."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 N 20 '49 90w

"Brought up to date, and including valuable appendices giving the Soviet Constitution and an annotated bibliography, this familiar book is valuable today because it treats the U. S. S. R. calmly and objectively." Frederick Reinstein
+ Springf'd Republican p10B D 25 '49 300w

"This is a valuable, comprehensive, and well-balanced textbook; and it is only to be regretted that the price at which American books now have to be sold in this country will inevitably keep it out of the hands of many students. It contains a long and rather too undiscriminating bibliography of books in English on the subject."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p303 My 19 '50 550w

HARPER, WILHELMINA, comp. Dog show; a selection of favorite dog stories; with portraits of real dogs by Marie C. Nichols. 182p $2.75 Houghton

Dogs—Legends and stories 50-5662

An anthology of dog stories for grades five to eight. Contents: Thoroughbred, by H. M. Brier; Ghost-town dog, by Hubert Evans; Tramp, the sheep dog, by Don Lang; The King and the Princess, by Jack O'Brien; The seventh pup, by Doris Gates; Wilderness champion, by J. W. Lippincott; Payday, by Genevieve Parkhurst; Gulliver the Great, by W. A. Dyer; Snip, the dog that became a coyote, by G. C. Franklin; Lassie come-home, by Eric Knight; A boy and a dog, by Elsie Singmaster: Jerry, by S. P. Meek; Montgomery the loyalest, by C. C. Coblentz; Rex of the coast patrol, by M. S. Johnson; Dignity, a springer spaniel, by S. P. Meek; Mickey, by Edward Weeks.

Booklist 46:221 Mr 1 '50

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p3 Mr 18 '50 120w

Kirkus 18:62 F 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by M. M. Smith
Library J 75:882 My 15 '50 70w

"All are good reading for ages of ten to twelve." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Mr 5 '50 90w

Sat R of Lit 33:47 Ap 8 '50 50w

HARRAL, STEWART. Patterns of publicity copy. 139p $2.75 Univ. of Okla. press

029.6 Publicity 50-6465

Practical advice on writing publicity stories which will be acceptable to both the newspaper editor and reader. The author is a lecturer and publicist who has written several books on publicity. Index.

Booklist 46:255 Ap 15 '50

Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 Ap 16 '50 30w

HARRELL, THOMAS WILLARD. Industrial psychology. 462p il $4.25 Rinehart

658.3 Psychology, Applied 49-9723

"The author's scientific method combined with factual data gives fresh material to help management benefit by employe coöperation. He discusses employe selection, adequate training, job standards, wage scales, and modern working conditions. This is a management tool and a study of broader social values of human relations." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sun p13 Ap 2 '50 50w

"Dr. Harrell's textbook, taken as a whole, is a worthy addition to the field, with an organizing theme which may be disputed but should not be ignored." C. A. Drake
+ Management R 39:175 Mr '50 950w

HARRINGTON, RUTH LEE. Your opportunities in television; introd. by Richard W. Hubbell. 199p il $3 McBride

791.4 Television 49-50232

"An over-all picture of television with a brief analysis of each job possibility in this expanding industry and its related fields. Stress is placed on personal attributes and experience rather than formal education in many jobs since television provides increasing opportunities for the talented." Booklist

Booklist 46:160 Ja 1 '50

Bookmark 9:104 F '50 30w

"Anyone seeking to get into television will find this book of great value and it should be useful, too, to vocational guidance counselors, job consultants and teachers." Larry Wolters
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 19 '50 260w

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '50

"This is the best analysis of television from a vocational point of view, that has yet been published. . . Recommended for reference desk in small libraries, readers' advisory services, and theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1910 D 15 '49 60w

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 12 '50 140w

HARRIS, CYRIL. Street of knives. 370p $3 Little

Burr, Aaron—Fiction 50-9023

Historical novel, based on a part of the life of Aaron Burr. It opens with Burr's trip West, in 1806, when he sailed down the Ohio, for an undisclosed purpose. It ends with his arrest for treason. The love interest is supplied by young Hugh Shadwell, Burr's natural son, and Chrissie Young, an innkeeper's daughter.

Booklist 47:75 O 15 '50

Reviewed by Henry Cavendish
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 6 '50 550w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p9 S 2 '50 270w

"A portrait of a forceful man, dedicated however wrongly, deep in love with deviousness and able to use his skill in words for 'gold and glory along of me' and bend circumstances to his will, which displays historical fiction at a more respectable level and in less garish light."
+ Kirkus 18:315 Je 1 '50 170w

"Well paced, compactly written. Burr's immoral, selfish, visionary character well drawn." Harold Lancour
+ Library J 75:1291 Ag '50 80w

"The author is a good craftsman in his chosen field of adventure, but one does not accomplish both rolling drama of events and the sharpest sense of reality in one novel even when backed by history. . . The book is smoothly written, however, and readers who look primarily for drama in their historical fiction will enjoy 'Street of Knives' with its smartness of speech and action." L. S. Doughty
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 N 19 '50 320w

"'Street of Knives' hardly justifies the sinister implications of its title. Its pace is far too leisurely. Burr never comes completely alive—he has his moments as an elderly amorist, but is seldom convincing as a statesman or military genius; and Shadwell's own courtship, at best, is a lumbering affair. Mr. Harris, like so many of our hard-working historical novelists, seems to mistake research for story-telling." William McFee
N Y Times p22 Ag 13 '50 400w

"It is a refreshing experience to come across a historical novel like this that does not attempt to substitute bulging bosoms and lush bedroom scenes for decent writing and adequate characterization. Mr. Harris's prose is lucid and pungent, and combines sound literary qualities with a flair for dialogue and the racy vernacular of the past. He also knows how to build up solid characters and clothe them in living, breathing flesh." Nathan Schachner
+ Sat R of Lit 33:37 S 16 '50 320w

HARRIS, JULIAN EARLE, ed. The humanities; an appraisal. 168p $2.75 Univ. of Wis. press

901 Humanities 50-8458

A collection of papers read at a symposium on literary criticism and the fine arts that was held at the University of Wisconsin last year. "In this survey a group of professors in the field of the humanities (as distinct from the natural and social sciences) are making serious inquiry as to what can be done to make their subjects—literature, languages, history, philosophy, art, music—more immediately useful in a troubled world. All of them agree that the true purpose of education is less to train the specialist than to encourage the development and directed use of the intellectual and moral faculties." Christian Science Monitor

HARRIS, J. E.—Continued
Reviewed by Edward Barry
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Ag 27 '50 200w

"While the symposium suffers somewhat from the very defects which some of its contributors deplore—the terminology of the specialist, its appeal to the scholar rather than the layman, and a slight odor of snobbishness—several of its contributors make arresting observations which the layman as well as the schoolman can appreciate." Neil Martin
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 16 '50 600w

"An illuminating and valuable little book."
+ New Yorker 26:75 Jl 8 '50 200w

School & Society 71:383 Je 17 '50 60w

HARRIS, KENNETH. Travelling tongues; debating across America; with a pref. by Arthur Bryant. 215p $2 Transatlantic

917.3 Debates and debating. National characteristics, American. U.S.—Description and travel [50-4563]

"Mr. Harris was a member of the Oxford debating team which visited the United States in the autumn of 1947. With his two colleagues he spent five months visiting colleges in 43 states and this is the story of his experiences and impressions. Avoiding statistics and facts about politics and economics, Mr. Harris has concentrated rather upon the attitudes and characteristics of the American people. He tells many anecdotes about their friendliness, their exuberance, their ignorance and prejudices." New Statesman & Nation

Kirkus 18:722 D 1 '50 180w

"In his effort to avoid dullness—in which he is successful—Mr. Harris has tended to mistake superficiality for a light touch. Second, the reader gets no picture of the size and complexity of the United States. . . Finally, and most important, in his attempt to show the similarities of behaviour between people as far apart as New York and San Francisco, he has failed to bring out the differences and complexities of American life."
New Statesman & Nation 38:764 D 24 '49 410w

"On the whole [the book is] both diverting and shrewdly observed, if not particularly breathtaking, since it appears that many of the national traits Mr. Harris considers noteworthy . . . are exactly the ones that have been providing English observers with material for comment for more than a century."
+ — New Yorker 26:122 Mr 25 '50 170w

"Written without any snap conclusions, fairly, earnestly, and with considerable charm, the book comes closer to getting at the inwardness of America and Americans than most of its kind. Better, it does the job specifically for England's younger generation, of which Mr. Harris is one." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 7 '50 950w

"Most of these conversations took place in colleges visited by the Oxford team and consequently, were rather undergraduate or, as the Americans say, sophomoric. But Mr. Harris is a plausible reporter, either a rapid notetaker or the possessor of a remarkable memory. It is, however, a rash thing to try to reproduce not only idiom but accent, and I, for one, don't believe that a Norwegian immigrant in New York says 'cain't,' but there are no ludicrous blunders." D. W. Brogan
+ — Spec 183:824 D 9 '49 450w

"An air of youth, confidence and enthusiasm pervades the book, but it is seldom ingenuous. Mr. Harris is an excellent reporter. He keeps his eyes and ears open. If he is good at talking he is good at listening, too. The consequence is that our imaginary picture of America and the Americans is altered and enlarged in all kinds of ways. Some of the additions are lively but trivial, some important."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p764 N 25 '49 600w

HARRIS, MRS LAURA B. Ring in the new. 312p $3 Morrow
50-9265

Life in an Ohio River town at the turn of the century provides the background for this novel of family life. Mama was the managing kind; she managed Papa, who was the town druggist and a dreamer; the church; her home; and her five daughters. The narrator is Susan, aged seven, the youngest of the Campbell girls.

Booklist 47:115 N 15 '50

"In the 'Ring in the New,' Mrs. Harris has given us an excellent first novel, authentic and alive." Edmund Fuller
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 S 17 '50 410w

Christian Science Monitor p6 S 23 '50 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

"An incredibly detailed story, apparently completely authentic on all counts, full of determinedly earthy dialogue and description that in general ring true. The style and plot, however, betray a certain immaturity."
+ — Kirkus 18:365 Jl 1 '50 130w

"Recommended." Katharine Shorey
+ Library J 75:1407 S 1 '50 70w

"There's a deal of sound sociological thinking incorporated in Mrs. Harris's delightful 'Ring in the New.' But above and beyond that it is packed with the quiet, deep, abiding joy of living. I cannot imagine any literate person of fifty-odd who could not read her story of the Campbells of Rivertown with nostalgic pleasure, nor the young sprout who could not read it with enjoyment and tender laughter over what must have been the quaint ways of the days when his own Dad and Mom were young." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 S 10 '50 900w

"Mrs. Harris writes with zest and with an appreciation of her women characters. More than that, the nostalgic quality has a vital exuberance that makes the incidents ring true." Andrea Parke
+ N Y Times p29 S 17 '50 130w

"As a nostalgic period piece 'Ring in the New' is excellent; as a family chronicle I cannot feel it particularly memorable." S. H. Hay
+ Sat R of Lit 33:30 N 18 '50 240w

HARRIS, SEALE, and BROWIN, FRANCES WILLIAMS. Woman's surgeon; the life story of J. Marion Sims. 432p il $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Sims, James Marion 50-7607

"Marion Sims (1813-1883) was the father of modern gynecology, the only man in the world, at one time, whose practice was devoted exclusively to diseases of women and the most famous surgeon in the history of New York City (he also founded the first woman's hospital there in 1855). Unaided genius catapulted him from a country practice in Alabama into advanced surgery—originating more operations and instruments for making them successful than any other American surgeon. . . An exhaustive bibliography appends this sincere portrayal of the life and times of a great man." Library J

Booklist 46:225;334 Mr 15 '50; Jl 1 '50

"In his book, Dr. Harris offers not only an authentic account of the great surgical work done by Sims, but also an unbiased portrait of a great medical leader. The dramatic character of Marion Sims' achievements as well as their place in medical history lift this volume far above the level of the conventional biografy." B. J. Anson
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 23 '50 550w

"A subdued, careful biography of a life of many achievements and reversals, the interest here is chiefly medical but has its human values."
+ Kirkus 18:125 F 15 '50 220w

"Average readers may find the style laborious in spots; otherwise the book is recommended." H. S. Taylor

Library J 75:490 Mr 15 '50 130w

"Dr. Harris's aim has been 'to discuss subjects which were formerly taboo in plain scientific language that may be understood by men and women not familiar with medical terminology'. In this he has succeeded remarkably well, avoiding both condescension and banal popularization. 'Woman's Surgeon' is a fine medical biography." Richard Match

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 S 17 '50 600w

"Obviously this intensely human biography was a labor of love for the author, Dr. Seale Harris of Birmingham. One of the country's leading experts in diseases of metabolism, Dr. Harris is also a very capable writer, as readers of this volume and his 'Banting's Miracle' will testify. This book reflects, as all good biography should, not only its subject, but the times as well." F. G. Slaughter

+ N Y Times p6 Ap 30 '50 470w

HARRISON, SAMUEL BERTRAM. White king. 335p $3 Doubleday

Judd, Gerrit Parmalee—Fiction 50-5301

A novel based on the life story of Gerrit Judd who went out to Hawaii in 1827 as a medical missionary and became an important figure in the political life of the Islands.

Bookmark 9:160 Ap '50 40w

"Somewhat toneless and often dull."

— Kirkus 17:656 D 1 '49 160w

"This story of empire in a teapot, so to speak, is the more fascinating because of the exotic and appealing backdrop of landscape, custom and adventure against which it is laid and the form of the novel that Samuel Harrison has drawn from the lives of Gerrit and Laura, their nine children, their fellow workers and their friends, brown and white and of many nationalities. Their story is often stranger than fiction, and it is at least equally engrossing." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 22 '50 700w

"If the author's honest story-telling does not evoke the full sound and fury of Hawaii's struggle toward integration, it certainly provides an excellent springboard for the imagination. Dr. Judd, by sheer integrity, stands out as a likely everyday saint. His story is a better guide to Hawaii than any brightly colored travel folder." Isabelle Mallet

+ N Y Times p26 Ja 22 '50 500w

"It may be argued that Mr. Harrison would have presented as vivid a picture of Gerrit Judd and his times if he had told his story as biography. Sometimes in the presentation of Judd's heroic qualities, Mr. Harrison's zeal seems to defeat its purpose. But, after all, this is a minor defect. It is a colorful and swift-moving story that he tells and one that holds the reader." J. V.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 26 '50 350w

"In his eagerness to give a thorough account of this formative period in Hawaiian history Mr. Harrison has written a book that reads like a history text rather than a novel. He has, however, creditably dramatized the story of a people and a nation who deserve the respect and admiration of freedom-loving men and women everywhere." J. M. Grant

+ Sat R of Lit 33:31 Ap 22 '50 270w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 Mr '50

HARSCH, JOSEPH CLOSE. The curtain isn't iron. 192p $2 Doubleday

940.55 Central Europe—Politics. Communism—Central Europe 50-7846

"A view of what is going on in the Eastern European countries, by a much travelled correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor. The author's central argument, implicit in his title, is that Western ideas still can and do penetrate their borders. Moreover, he believes that Russian domination of some of them is already wobbly. . . He ends by urging American statesmen to watch for and exploit every weakness in the satellite countries as a means of upsetting the Soviet system." New Yorker

---

Reviewed by J. S. Roucek

Ann Am Acad 270:154 Jl '50 360w

Booklist 46:300 Je 1 '50

Bookmark 9:240 Jl '50 40w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun p4 My 23 '50 900w

Reviewed by Gilbert Twiss

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Je 4 '50 450w

"The author combines the training of a judicious historian with the long-range view of a superior diplomat and the fact-sense of an alert journalist. As a result, the 192 pages of his handsomely printed book contain more essential facts and more material for thought than can usually be found in volumes two or three times its size." E. S. P.

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 My 20 '50 1050w

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '50

Reviewed by J. S. Roucek

Commonweal 52:276 Je 23 '50 330w

Foreign Affairs 29:157 O '50 30w

+ Kirkus 18:222 Ap 1 '50 350w

"Recommended."

+ Library J 75:860 My 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by W. H. Hale

Nation 170:553 Je 3 '50 800w

"The Curtain Isn't Iron is not the best book on the subject—there are many signs of haste—but it is informative." A. M. Brandel

New Repub 123:19 Jl 17 '50 1050w

"The ingredients for the type of book that foreign correspondents call a 'quickie' are (1) a trip abroad, (2) a hasty recording of familiar material and general impressions and (3) a 'message' at the end. All three went into the making of Joseph Harsch's 'The Curtain Isn't Iron.' " Walter Kerr

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 11 '50 450w

Reviewed by Samuel Lubell

N Y Times p14 Jl 9 '50 450w

New Yorker 26:110 My 27 '50 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 10 '50 320w

"Weaving together in an unpretentious little volume material much of which had previously appeared in the Monitor and other publications, Mr. Harsch gives a true-to-life picture of recent developments in Eastern Europe, which is all too often not clearly seen or deliberately distorted by American observers." V. M. Dean

+ Sat R of Lit 33:15 Je 24 '50 1150w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:339 S '50 240w

Wis Lib Bul 46:27 Je '50

Reviewed by Nathan Leites

Yale R n s 40:181 autumn '50 140w

HART, BASIL HENRY LIDDELL. See Liddell Hart, B. H.

HART, HAROLD H., pseud. See Horowitz, H. H.

HART, HENRY HERSCH. Sea road to the Indies; an account of the voyages and exploits of the Portuguese navigators, together with the life and times of Dom Vasco Da Gama, Capitão-Mór, viceroy of India and Count of Vidigueira. 296p $4.50 Macmillan

910.9469 Gama, Vasco da. Voyages and travels 50-9487

History of the Portuguese explorers and exploration in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. Bartholomeu Dias, Pedro Alvarez Cabral, and Vasco da Gama are the three main explorers treated. The author is an American historian, who has based his work on original research in the documents of the period. Bibliography. Index.

HART, H. H.—Continued

Booklist 47:93 N 1 '50

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 5 '50 350w

Christian Century 67:1239 O 18 '50 210w

Current Hist 19:230 O '50 100w

Kirkus 18:326 Je 1 '50 160w

"Lurid history, painted with strong colors; descriptive, imaginative writing, with plenteous footnotes and bibliography. Recommended as important history related to present East-West difficulties." H. A. Wooster
+ Library J 75:1044 Je 15 '50 80w

"Mr. Hart is at his best in describing with vivid and colorful detail both the Portuguese point of departure for these voyages and the Indian point of arrival. His picture of Calicut and the busy wharves where ships from the Spice Islands unloaded their nutmegs, cloves and cinnamon, and of other Indian market places with their traffic in sandalwood, palm oil and precious stones, effectively captures the exotic atmosphere of the ancient East." F. R. Dulles
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 S 17 '50 650w

"Will prove a gold mine of information, not to mention high adventure and romance." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 11 '50 900w

"Although not in the same class with Morison's 'Admiral of the Ocean Sea,' this story of Portuguese explorations at the time of Columbus is very well done in an interesting and authoritative manner. It might profitably be read as a companion piece to the Morison classic." R. G. Albion
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 S 23 '50 850w

Springf'd Republican p5C S 24 '50 600w

HART, JAMES DAVID. The popular book; a history of America's literary taste. 351p il $5 Oxford

028 Books and reading. U.S.—Intellectual life 50-9417

A study of the books Americans have bought and read, as opposed to the books studied in literature courses, from the days of the Bible reading Pilgrims to the 1930s and 40s and the popularity of Anthony Adverse, Forever Amber, Dale Carnegie and John Gunther. Bibliography of source material. Chronological index of books discussed. Index.

Booklist 47:55 O 1 '50

Bookmark 10:30 N '50 30w

"Aside from its great historical value, 'The Popular Book' is full of entertaining anecdotes, fascinating sales figures, and contemporary comments—both snide and saccharine—on scores of bygone favorites." J. A. Clark
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 1 '50 600w

"Scholarship is leavened with wit that makes reading the book a pleasant and profitable excursion into America's past. An essential for libraries, schools, and groups studying contemporary as well as writing of the past."
+ Kirkus 18:553 S 1 '50 120w

"Mr. Hart's style, as in his Oxford Companion to American Literature, is lively, readable and anecdotal. This reviewer can recall no 'Ruritanian romance illustrated by Maxfield Parrish,' Christy and Harrison Fisher, yes; and in the galleys sent him for review, Howard Haycraft's Murder for Pleasure is wrongly listed by its sub-title. There is an excellent discussion of the mystery story in America. Recommended for public, university, and personal libraries." E. F. Walbridge
+ — Library J 75:1286 Ag '50 150w

"The question 'What makes a book sell?' is not so important as the question 'What makes a book great?' but it has been asked as often and is as hard to answer. Wisely perhaps, 'The Popular Book' does not really attempt to answer it but instead confines itself principally to what is probably the most complete survey ever made of American best-sellers. . . Such subjects lend themselves easily to smart superficiality, but this is a thoroughly sober, carefully documented work, all the more amusing in spots because it never tries too hard to be amusing." J. W. Krutch
+ Nation 171:250 S 16 '50 1300w

"Mr. Hart has given us one of the most entrancing volumes of literary criticism of our time. He is a pioneer in the field; he is immensely learned in things that most scholars disdain; he writes with clarity and vivacity and humor. He has the good taste not to disparage his materials and the good sense not to overload them with interpretation. He has left gaps—juvenile literature, for example, or the vogue of Spencer; he has touched lightly on some important themes—advertising, for example, or the role of the book clubs or of 'required' reading. But this is all to the good. He has not tried to be encyclopaedic and he has not been magisterial. But he is unfailingly judicious and unfailingly interesting." H. S. Commager
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 S 17 '50 2800w

"A definitive study of 'America's literary taste' will have to include both the fashions of the moment and those works which, in spite of neglect or commercial failure, actually represent the true spirit of their time, and remain to celebrate the epoch which ignored them. Within its own range, though, as a history of vogues and manners, very often of social comedy, this volume is a useful and illuminating study. And one which has in it, incidentally, some of the elements of the popular book of our own period." Maxwell Geismar
+ — N Y Times p18 O 1 '50 750w

New Yorker 26:141 O 21 '50 90w

"A solid job of digging, presented seriously against a background of careful scholarship, the book is nevertheless a highly interesting one for the general reader whose tastes run to this kind of thing." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 15 '50 1050w

HART, SAMUEL L. Treatise on values. 165p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

121 Worth 49-11873

"Here are exposed the current fallacy of the chaos of valuation, the artificial distinction between reality and value, the wrong assumption of values as mere emotional ejaculations." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"The first chapter—what values are—is excellent. The second—what values are not—is completely unnecessary. The discussions of moral and religious values (areas in which the subject has its greatest implications) are not as amply done as one has a right to expect. If the student desires provocative opinions, this treatise will gratify him. The layman, however, will be left unmoved, indifferent, and even more firmly intrenched in his conviction that scholars need to walk the earth to see the heights." R. D. Hershey
+ — Crozer Q 27:179 Ap '50 470w

School & Society 70:319 N 12 '49 30w

HART, VIRGINIA (VAL HART). Story of American roads. 243p il maps $3 Sloane

388.1 Roads—U.S. 50-10476

An account of the high spots about roads and road building in North America, from the first white man's use of Indian trails to the newest super highway. No index.

Booklist 47:127 D 1 '50

"[This] is a vivid piece of history; a record of achievements that calls for recognition, a window flung wide on both the past and the present. It takes a long view, but a view that is heartening to all who perceive that the development of a nation is in the development of its people." E. Y.

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 23 '50 450w

"Well-written and informative."
+ Kirkus 18:543 S 1 '50 150w

"The book is well illustrated. It contains much that few of us know about a typical American phenomenon which we use every day and abuse just as often. It is a clear, direct book, just as good for youngsters as it is for adults." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 3 '50 430w

New Yorker 26:169 N 11 '50 320w

HARTER, EVELYN. Dr Katherine Bell. 274p $3 Doubleday
50-8001

The story of a determined young woman from Iowa showing the stages in her education as a doctor and as a human being. Her medical education was interrupted for a year by a mild case of tuberculosis, but she conquered it, finished her course, and opened her office in her own home town. For a few years she tried to be wife, mother, and doctor, but she disagreed with her lawyer husband on the subject of socialized medicine, and they separated. A recurrence of the old illness brought them together again.

Booklist 46:303 Je 1 '50

"This is more than a readable novel. It has something to say." Olive Carruthers
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Jl 16 '50 370w

"Even if the designation is chiefly rental, there's more than the usual substance and competence here."
Kirkus 18:214 Ap 1 '50 160w

"This story of doctors and others in an Iowa town is a sincere and interesting picture, in terms of persons, of ideas, situations and emotions that are entangled in this country's present nation-wide conflict between two kinds of good people." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 My 21 '50 600w

"The old argument about social betterment coming through slow evolution or by drastic action gets a thorough airing. Evelyn Harter's book is honestly planned, but a bit heavy on dialectic." J. P. Quehl
+ — N Y Times p12 Jl 2 '50 200w

"Mrs. Harter may have detailed medical information at her fingertips but she unfortunately does not possess the ability to create characters of flesh and blood. With the possible exception of Grandma, the people traveling this medical maelstrom are stereotypes, and Mrs. Harter's style, which consists of a chronological cataloguing of facts, does little to make them more effective. There are good ingredients here for a successful and challenging novel but the finished product hardly fulfills the promise given. The intellectual and emotional conflicts faced by Dr. Bell seem to lack validity. The conflict with her husband over socialized medicine, which could have become a profoundly absorbing climax, deteriorates into a tangle of words and confused thinking. Dr. Bell, herself, simply does not elicit the reader's sympathy." Stephanie Benét
— + Sat R of Lit 33:14 Jl 15 '50 320w

HARTLEY, LESLIE POLES. The boat. 540p $3.50 Doubleday
50-6428

An amiable middle-aged bachelor who had been living and writing in Italy, has to return to England because of the war. In the quiet country town where he rents a furnished house he finds himself in trouble, largely because he has bought a boat to use on the river. The neighboring fishermen object to boating on their river. The plot centers around the hero's attempts to avoid loneliness, use his boat, and get along with his neighbors. It does not work out this way.

Booklist 46:275 My 1 '50

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 2 '50 500w

Kirkus 18:71 F 1 '50 190w

"The Boat is difficult to appraise, but one thing can be said without any havering: the writing, in this kind, could not be excelled. It is a prose like nectar—a style delicious to savour. Subtle and yet perfectly explicit, only a craftsman born to this métier and patient in cultivating it, an artist, sensitive, worldly wise, ironical and yet sympathetic, could have been the contriver of it. Nothing trite, no cliché, nothing unconsidered has a place in the book. It is a work of the greatest brilliance and of a memorable humanistic cast." Paul Bloomfield
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 27 '50 310w

"Admirable as The Boat is, it is not a wholly satisfying or convincing novel. . . It contains comedy, tragedy, satire and fantasy, and they don't always mix. . . The Boat is, then, a book to be read for the best things in it, the portrait of Mrs. Purbright, the blending of the comic and the sinister, the sensibility and perception, and the mark which it bears deeply impressed at some points and less deeply at others, but almost always perceptible, of a fine novelist's talent." J. D. Scott
+ — New Statesman & Nation 39:108 Ja 28 '50 1000w

"Distinguished writing and an exceedingly dry, even poker-faced humor add luster to a highly individual novel. Conceivably 'The Boat' is a tract as well as a tale and (like Mr. T. S. Eliot's recent play) carries a message. There is something extremely odd about that politically tinctured blonde and her intention, all unsuspected by Timothy, to bring red ruin to rural England. Is Mr. Hartley laughing a little up his sleeve, is there a note of warning hidden within his serio-comic story, or could it be that beneath the shimmering surface itself is the real point?" Iris Barry
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Mr 26 '50 650w

"Exceptionally well written, almost as long as three average-sized novels, 'The Boat' should draw wide attention to an author who manages to write of the contemporary world in the great tradition." James Stern
+ N Y Times p6 Mr 26 '50 550w

New Yorker 26:108 Ap 1 '50 140w

"How well you'll like 'The Boat' depends, I think, upon how well accustomed you may be to the moderate English pace in fiction. Mr. Hartley, though you mightn't think so, gets a great deal of variety into his yarn; you'll swing from the broadest farce to studies of character that probe more deeply than you expect. . . But you, as reader, must contribute your patience and your attention. If you do this you'll find 'The Boat' much more of a novel than you may have thought in the beginning, very English yet universal too in its implication." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 30 '50 900w

"'The Boat,' the third novel of Mr. Hartley's to be published in this country, is certain to gain him that attention to which he has long been entitled. It is the kind of novel many of us have been waiting for; it can be read purely on an entertainment level as an immensely readable, neatly plotted tale of love and death and politics against the deceivingly placid background of rural England during the war, or it can be more closely examined for its penetrating, sardonic commentary on the heart's desperate enchantments and the loneliness of the human spirit wandering disconsolately in its modern waste land." Richard McLaughlin
+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 Ap 22 '50 900w

"The ingredients of The Boat would seem at first sight incompatible. Subtle humour, satire, amiable gentleness, anxiety of a peculiarly painful kind, farce, three sudden deaths, three escapes from sudden death, queer violence, lyrical benignity—no other writer could have blended such a mixture, let alone produced from it a harmonious and consistent story. Once again Mr. Hartley shows his alarming talent for making familiar things and circumstances strange." L. A. G. Strong
+ Spec 184:160 F 3 '50 390w

HARTLEY, L. P.—Continued

"Mr. Hartley's powers of expression, intelligence and quiet humour carry him through the many difficult situations he sets out to describe; but there are moments when it is hard not to feel that he has attempted too wide an assortment of aims. The novel is undoubtedly too long. Cut to the bone like The Sixth Heaven, it would have been easier to make its many points."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p53 Ja 27 '50 550w

HARTSUCH, BRUCE EDWIN. Introduction to textile chemistry. 413p $4.75 Wiley

677 Textile chemistry 50-9700

"Intended for a textbook for college use, the treatment assumes a background of theoretical and applied chemistry on the part of the reader although the first two of the 13 chapters review certain of the fundamentals of chemical calculations and of organic chemistry respectively. The emphasis throughout is on the fibers rather than on reagents." (Chem & Eng N) Glossary. Index.

"It is an easily readable, if perhaps at times, a sketchy treatment of a very broad subject and adds a needed volume to the American literature. It should find a real place, particularly in the educational field of home economics. The selection of the title is good; it is an introduction to textile chemistry." E. R. Schwarz

+ Chem & Eng N 28:4208 N 27 '50 350w

"The book is designed primarily for college students, but most parts of it can be understood by high school students and general readers as well." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:1830 O 15 '50 120w

HARTT, FREDERICK. Florentine art under fire. 147p il maps $5 Princeton univ. press

940.53187 Art—Florence. World war, 1939-1945—Art and the war. Italy—History 49-8953

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"This is a detailed, well-written history of what happened to the Tuscan treasures in the war, put together by a former monuments officer who feels deeply about his subject. So far as it goes it is a very good and pleasantly produced book, whose most fascinating side is the glimpses which it gives of great masterpieces in extraordinary situations. . . But the most noticeable feature of the book is its omissions. Someone, someday, must go through the Allied record of destruction in Italy and see just how much of it was really necessary." J. W.

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 4 '50 600w

Reviewed by Benedict Nicolson

New Statesman & Nation 39:490 Ap 29 '50 750w

"The story that Mr. Hartt tells, though as detailed and precise as a 'case' chart, has at the same time the excitement of adventure and the tragedy of crime." Derek Hill

+ Spec 184:442 Mr 31 '50 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p180 Mr 24 '50 1050w

"Lieutenant Hartt writes warmly of the monuments and works of art he knew and was helping to preserve, with an almost poetic appreciation of the Italian landscape, with sympathy and admiration for the hard pressed, selfless, and devoted Italian art historians who played an important part as much by holding their own in the face of German duplicity and brutality as by assisting the Allied forces. The fifty-five plates give evidence of destruction, damage, and the extent of repair or restoration. Valuable appendices list monuments both intact and damaged, in the latter instances noting briefly the extent of the damage. This stirring record is authoritative, detailed, and informative."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:303 S '49 320w

HARVEY, GEORGE ROWNTREE. Book of Scotland. 224p il $3.50 Macmillan

914.1 Scotland—Description and travel [49-51790]

"Mr. Harvey takes one on a journey through Scotland, speaking out of considerable knowledge and love of the country and its people. In his last chapter he makes a rapid tour of the arts in Scotland." (Canadian Forum) "To the people of the present and the heroes of the past Mr. Harvey pays equal homage. Robert Burns, Sir Walter Scott and Robert Louis Stevenson are his idols, but Sir James Barrie is in his black book—for making game of the Scots to amuse the English." (N Y Times)

"If one wearies of the guide book method and the rather sentimental manner, one turns with delight to the illustrations. These in numerous color plates and photographs, have been very wisely chosen, to show unique characteristics of the landscape and architecture." M. R.

+ Canadian Forum 29:288 Mr '50 80w

"Mr. Harvey is a Scot very much in love with everything in Scotland with Scottish history and Scottish ballads dripping from his penpoint. . . To the cities he sings psalms—even to Glasgow—and he is no less lyrical about the countryside and the mountains and the moors and each loch and glen. . . The reader can learn a deal about Scotland from reading this book." H. I. Brock

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 1 '50 250w

HARVEY, JOHN HOOPER. English cathedrals; photographed by Herbert Felton, and with a text by John Harvey. (British art and building ser) 99p $4 Batsford

726.6 Cathedrals 50-9434

"It is noted that Herbert Felton is the foremost English photographer of architecture and that John Harvey is a leading authority on Mediaeval art. In co-operation they have produced a volume showing in handsome photogravure reproduction the stunningly photographed details of nave and roof vault, carving and choir. Text and illustrations in chronological order; historical and descriptive notes on each cathedral; floor plans." (Library J) Index.

"If you have been searching for a learned work on the cathedrals of England, profusely illustrated, your quest is ended. The camera-typewriter team of Felton and Harvey, the former a specialist in architectural photografy and the latter an authority on medieval art, have collaborated to fine effect in this volume." Robert Cromie

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 S 17 '50 90w

"Written and pictured with taste and affection." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 75:2078 D 1 '50 80w

"Provides a wealth of pictures of well-chosen subjects, illuminated by an excellent essay which isolates and extols the mediaeval cathedral as an art-form." C. R. C.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 11 '50 180w

"Mr. John Harvey's essay on cathedrals in general is readable and informative."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p528 Ag 25 '50 450w

HARWELL, RICHARD BARKSDALE. Confederate music. 184p il $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

784.71975 Music—South 50-7226

A narrative account of Confederate songwriting and publishing, which includes a checklist of 648 titles of sheet music published in the Confederate states. The author is assistant librarian and lecturer in history at Emory university, Atlanta. Bibliography. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '50

"Of prime value as a work of reference, but by no means easy reading." C. K. Miller

+ Library J 75:1046 Je 15 '50 150w

"A most needed and important volume. Research material on Confederate music has existed mostly in specialized sheet music collections, and up to the present anyone interested in Confederate songs has had to consult the generally inaccessible source material for himself, and at considerable inconvenience. . . Particularly interesting are the pages devoted to the passage of songs from one section of the country to the other." J. T. Howard

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:468 Je '50 550w

Reviewed by H. S. Commager
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p48 D 3 '50 650w

Reviewed by H. I. Brock
N Y Times p31 My 14 '50 200w

"Students will find Mr. Harwell's definitive study of the Confederate music publishers and his painstaking checklist of Confederate sheet music both impressive and valuable." E. M. Butterfield
+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 Jl 15 '50 650w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:394 S '50 220w

HARWOOD, ALICE. Merchant of the Ruby. 447p $3.50 Bobbs

Warbeck, Perkin—Fiction 50-8853

An historical novel based upon the love story of Catharine Gordon, cousin of the king of Scotland, and Perkin Warbeck, Pretender to the English throne, believed by some to have been Richard of York.

Bookmark 10:7 O '50 50w

"One of the most distinguished jobs of historical romance writing to come from the presses in many a year." Henry Cavendish
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 13 '50 500w
Christian Science Monitor p6 Ag 12 '50 190w

"Told with sympathy and charm. Miss Harwood writes an excellent historical novel. Recommended." A. R. Eaton
+ Library J 75:1291 Ag '50 110w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ag 13 '50 500w

"Miss Harwood has a nice sense of fluid, emotional prose, and she creates a background against which her characters move with a natural rhythm." John Cournos
+ N Y Times p22 Ag 13 '50 410w

"There are too many plots in this book and too many characters, each one of whom could captain a novel. The book must be read in a more leisurely manner than most of the dashing historical romances to which we are accustomed. Nevertheless it is a fine achievement, a model of its kind, except in Miss Harwood's study of the young Pretender, where she is forced to invent a mystery instead of following the written record of the past." Harrison Smith
+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 Ag 19 '50 650w
Time 56:89 Ag 21 '50 390w

HASKELL, HENRY C. and FOWLER, RICHARD B. City of the future; a narrative history of Kansas City, 1850-1950; foreword by Roy A. Roberts; il. by Frank H. Miller. 193p $2.50 Frank Glenn pub. co, inc, 107 W 11th st, Kansas City 6, Mo.

977.8411 Kansas City, Missouri

"The story of Kansas City's lowly birth on the banks of the Missouri, its determined struggle to survive floods, tornadoes, and gangster politics, and its triumphant emergence as a magnificent metropolis of 400,000 pulses with the passion, patriotism, and determination that made the great middle west the economic heart of America." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Bibliography. Index.

"Written by two newspapermen with an intimate, proud knowledge of their city, the book is more than a history—it is a dramatic portrayal of a people, generation by generation, beset by adversity yet overcoming obstacles that would have caused a less hardy tribe to move on to greener fields." R. L. Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 My 21 '50 310w

Reviewed by Hal Borland
N Y Times p6 Jl 30 '50 180w

HATCH, ALDEN. George Patton, general in spurs. 184p $2.75 Messner

B or 92 Patton, George Smith 50-9641

A biography of World war II's controversial General Patton. The General's personal and military life are both considered and the book is suitable for young readers. Index.

Booklist 47:79 O 15 '50

"The author had access to unusual sources in writing about General Patton and the reader gets the benefit of this intimate knowledge in frequent touches of humor and anecdotes of family life. Although the book is sympathetic, no punches are pulled."
+ Kirkus 18:427 Ag 1 '50 190w

"Unpopular at West Point and a harsh commanding officer who found glory in war and a danger of vegetating in peace, Patton is not an idealistic subject for young people's reading, in spite of the author's attempt to reveal a religious nature and to explain his toughness. For a limited group." Virgina Haviland
Library J 75:1838 O 15 '50 80w

"Alden Hatch tells the story of his life in considerable detail and with much sympathy. . . Patton was such a controversial figure that not all will agree with Mr. Hatch's interpretation of his personality. Few, however, will deny that this is an extremely interesting account of the life and work of one of our great battle leaders. As such it will have a wide appeal to boys." R. A. Brown
+ — N Y Times p34 O 8 '50 180w

HATCH, DUANE SPENCER. Toward freedom from want from India to Mexico. 303p il $2.50 Oxford

323.354 Sociology, Rural. India—Social conditions. Mexico—Social conditions 50-1999

"Dr. Spencer Hatch is an American missionary who has worked for many years on a plan of rural reconstruction in India. . . The last chapter of the book describes Dr. Hatch's recent attempts to introduce his Indian methods into Mexico." Manchester Guardian

Manchester Guardian p4 S 12 '50 240w

"This is a book of the greatest interest and importance in these times. The author knows, perhaps better than any man, the problems of which he writes. I would certainly urge that some of our politicians and over-night reformers have a look at it." Louis Bromfield
+ N Y Times p6 S 3 '50 1150w

HATCH, ERIC. Beautiful bequest. 242p $2.75 Little

50-5161

Recounts the humorous doings of a young war veteran who inherits the talk, the boxing skill, and the girl of his former war buddy, O'Malley, who is supposedly dead.

Booklist 46:189 F 1 '50

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
Chicago Sun p5 Mr 6 '50 40w

"The happy folk who read for pleasure ought to have fun with this bit of fluff by the popular author of 'My Man Godfrey.' There isn't a word in it to excite the serious thinkers of the world, but possibly if the S.T. would spend some of their spare time relaxing with one of Eric Hatch's crazily humorous tales the world would be spared some of the consequences of their heavier thinking." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ja 29 '50 500w

HATCH, ERIC—Continued

"Light-handed, lightly handled popular reading with the Hatch brand of humor, which is not so strongly farcical as before."

+ Kirkus 17:611 N 1 '49 130w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Ap 9 '50 290w

Reviewed by Harry Gilroy

N Y Times p4 Ja 15 '50 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 5 '50 70w

"Absurd not to call this a darlin' book because that's exactly what it is."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 Mr 4 '50 130w

Springf'd Republican p3D F 26 '50 90w

Wis Lib Bul 46:28 F '50

HATCH, PREBLE D. K. Don't shoot the bill collector. 238p $3 Crowell

818 Maine—Social life and customs 50-9469

Stories, partly fictionized, of the author's experiences—some of them might be called adventures—as a bill collector traveling over the countryside around Bangor, Maine.

Booklist 46:297; 47:36 Je 1 '50; S 15 '50

"Never downright funny, this is still cheerful and carries, along with the eccentric, the erratic, a fair share of human interest."

+ Kirkus 18:409 Jl 15 '50 130w

"An amusing series of incidents, packed with human interest, sure-fire for Maine addicts, but lots of chuckles for the general reader. Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:1399 S 1 '50 120w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 N 5 '50 190w

"The stories are first-rate, even if to Maine people one or two are refurbished oldies well hung with moss on the north side. Mr. Hatch is not too good a reporter on down-east conversations, and overworks a bit to make characters sound like characters. Still, he's a bill collector, not a poet, and has become an author only because he lives in Maine and couldn't very well help it." John Gould

+ — N Y Times p45 S 24 '50 270w

Sat R of Lit 33:56 O 7 '50 150w

HATCHER, HARLAN HENTHORNE. Century of iron and men. 295p il map $3.50 Bobbs

338.2 Iron industry and trade. Iron mines and mining 50-8618

An account of the iron-mining industry in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, from the discovery of the ore in 1845 to the present. Bibliographical note.

Booklist 47:5 S 1 '50

"As a piece of regional history the book is useful because it concentrates so expertly on one activity alone. Putting it down, one feels that the book has enriched the Midwest." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 23 '50 400w

"Of special interest to Cleveland and the steel industry. Recommended. Straightforward and well-written." H. A. Wooster

+ Library J 75:876 Je 1 '50 100w

"Mr. Hatcher adds nothing new to the old story. . . There is no sign of critical appraisal in the book. But the author writes directly and clearly and he also brings us down to date so far as Cleveland-Cliffs is concerned, and happily tells of the remarkable job of reforestation the company has been doing these many years. There are excellent photographs, but no index." Stewart Holbrook

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Jl 2 '50 950w

"Mr. Hatcher is a literary craftsman as well as a historical scholar. He has taken a wonderfully complex subject and delineated it clearly. In the field of industrial history that is a rare achievement." Marquis James

+ N Y Times p6 Jl 30 '50 650w

HATTINGBERG, MAGDA VON GRAEDENER-. See Graedener-Hattingberg, M. von

HAUROWITZ, FELIX. Progress in biochemistry; a report on biochemical problems and on biochemical research since 1939. 405p $7.50 Interscience

612.015 Biological chemistry 50-6810

"The objective of this book is to inform students and teachers of science as well as workers in cognate, particularly medical, fields concerning the advances made during a decade in which biochemistry has experienced unprecedented development." Am Chem Soc J

"The author has made a notable contribution in covering so wide a field so concisely. . . Many will find in this concentrated digest of progress in biochemistry through one of its most prolific decades a very useful source of reference and an introduction to the salient facts over a very wide field of biochemical knowledge. The style is clear and concise, most of the chapters being well supported by references." F. C. Steward

+ Am Chem Soc J 72:4845 O '50 650w

Reviewed by Linus Pauling

Chem Eng 57:253 S '50 270w

HAUSER, BENGAMIN GAYELORD. Look younger, live longer. 383p $3 Farrar, Straus

613.2 Diet. Beauty, Personal. Hygiene 50-6325

"Pointers about 'the youthful you'. . . If your you is youthfully inclined, this is what should be done about your diet (yeast and yogurt); about your heart and certain other ailments which come with your age; your glands; overweight; fatigue; the care of eyes, teeth, hair, skin (it needs hormonizing); as well as balancing your personality and your activities." (Kirkus) Bibliography. Index.

"Sane and sound advice that should make the mature years of life a healthier and happier time." Morrison Wood

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 4 '50 280w

Kirkus 18:42 Ja 15 '50 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 28 '50 100w

HAWKES, JOHN. The cannibal. 223p $1.50 New directions

49-48130

A surrealist novel describing a ruined village, Spitzen-on-the-Dein, which represents postwar Germany in microcosm. "There is an interlocked story of Germany during the first world war and of Germany in '1945'—a mythical year of the allied occupation, when a single American soldier on a motorcycle is left to supervise a third of the country. In 1914 Stella, later Madame Snow, night club singer and daughter of a general, meets an English traitor Cromwell, and marries the feeble Ernst. In 1945 Stella Snow's boarding house in a ruined village harbors her sister Jutta, mistress of Zizendorf . . . new political Leader and 'narrator' of the story. Zizendorf successfully plots the death of the lone American overseer and the capture of his motorcycle; and the book ends with the rebirth of an independent Germany." (Introd)

"This is one of the most brilliant first books to be published in this country in a long time. In imaginativeness of phrasing, poised rhythm of prose, richness of detail, it surpasses any such book I can recall." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 19 '50 500w

Kirkus 18:38 Ja 15 '50 190w

"In The Cannibal, a new writer, John Hawkes, presents a 'surrealistic novel' which manages for long stretches to make dullness and surrealism appear practically synonymous. Actually the book is a series of related images

(some fresh and sharp) and fragmentary sketches (a few vividly effective), gimcracked together with a semblance of plot and allegory." Alexander Klein
— + New Repub 122:20 Mr 27 '50 600w

"Mr. Hawkes' writing is cold, brilliant, and cryptic; he writes like no one else at all."
New Yorker 25:85 Ja 28 '50 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 28 '50 200w

"This is an extraordinary work of fiction. . . As in a dream, everything seems to make sense for awhile and then changes abruptly into nonsense. The most precise realistic writing leads into scenes as wildly imaginative and baffling as those of the German expressionists at their wildest. . . Mr. Hawkes is a most interesting writer, but there is a line in 'The Cannibal' that may be paraphrased, not unfairly I think, to describe him at the present stage of his literary development. 'He ran to spend energy,' we read of Ernst in pursuit of Stella's carriage, 'tried to run his own smallness into something large, while far in the distance he thought he heard the carriage wheels.' " B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 33:16 Mr 11 '50 750w

"At first glance the story seems a freakish flight into simple lunacy, but once all expectations of a literal reading are abandoned, it has the troubling power of an undiscarded nightmare."
Time 55:90 F 6 '50 500w

"Although one may not share Mr. Guérard's conviction, expressed in his introduction to the book, that Mr. Hawkes is 'already a major talent,' one cannot fail to see that here is a young writer of extraordinary gifts."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:157 Je '50 300w

HAWKINS, LAURENCE ASHLEY. Adventure into the unknown; the first fifty years of the General electric research laboratory. 150p il $3.50 Morrow

621.3072 General electric research laboratory. Scientific research 50-10442

A series of sketches of some of the men and women and their achievements which have marked the history of the first fifty years of the General Electric Research Laboratory. Partial contents: Willis R. Whitney; Incandescent lamps and Coolidge; Incandescent lamps and Langmuir; Research in wartime; Women in the laboratory; Knolls atomic power laboratory; New progress in old fields; Artificial precipitation.

Booklist 47:152 D 15 '50

"The book will not have a wide appeal, but it should be of interest to persons interested in the advances of applied science and particularly in the part played by industrial laboratories in such advances. A number of photographs of historical interest are included, but there is no bibliography." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:2009 N 15 '50 90w

"No more competent historian of the company's scientific achievements could be wished for than Laurence A. Hawkins. Not only is he a scientist by training but, until his retirement, he was the laboratory's business manager, and an unfailing fountain of information for newspaper men eager to learn the importance of the remarkable discoveries made by the first director, Willis R. Whitney; W. D. Coolidge; Irving Langmuir, destined to win the Nobel Prize, and other brilliant lights." Waldemar Kaempffert
+ N Y Times p49 N 12 '50 650w

Springf'd Republican p8D N 12 '50 240w

HAWKINS, REGINALD ROBERT, and ABBE, CHARLES HOWSON. Home mechanic's outdoor handbook. 490p il $5.95 Van Nostrand

643.7 Carpentry. Concrete construction. Building 50-6942

Contents: Driveways; Walks, stepping stones, steps, curbs, edgings; Terraces; Walls, tree wells and boxes, window wells, compost enclosures; Outdoor fireplaces, grills, incinerators; Fences, gates, stiles; Breezeways, arbors, and trellises, foot bridges, and other small structures; Small buildings; Garden pools; Swimming pools; Sprinkling systems; Tennis courts; Other recreation areas; Outdoor lighting; Basic operations; Planning the grounds. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:10 S 1 '50

Reviewed by William Yates
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 30 '50 50w

"A very practical book, dealing with down to earth needs, not a gadgety kind of experimenting. . . It is the sort of book a librarian can recommend to an inquiring householder. . . Not the sort of book that makes it sound fun so that one is caught unaware by the author's enthusiasm. The format is pedantic, with numbered paragraphs for ready reference, linking in, presumably, with the index. Lavishly illustrated with half-tones, working diagrams and sketches."
+ Kirkus 18:152 Mr 1 '50 150w

"Unlike so many 'how-to-do-its' this is no cut-and paste job—this is sure-footed advice from men who have obviously done the work of which they write. Whether the problem concerns terracing, building a barbecue pit, erecting a fence or surfacing a driveway, this book has the answers. There is, of course, a good index." Daniel Melcher
+ Library J 75:874 My 15 '50 120w

"Much practical information is included which is not readily available elsewhere. The chapter on basic operations discusses such matters as stump removal, grading, concrete-making and masonry operations. Numerous sketches and working designs are included. Although practically all of the typical garden structures are covered, the book is essentially one for the average homeowner rather than the garden hobbyist."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:18 Mr '50

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 18 '50 50w

Wis Lib Bul 46:24 Je '50

HAWLEY, AMOS HENRY. Human ecology; a theory of community structure. 456p maps $5 Ronald

301 Ecology, Social 50-7591

"A study undertaken several years ago by the late Professor R. D. McKenzie and carried to completion by the listed author. An attempt is made to develop a full and coherent theory of human ecology, upon the assumption that there is continuity in the life patterns of all organic forms." (Am Pol Sci R) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:805 S '50 50w

"All in all, Hawley has done a commendable job of blending the ideas and materials he inherited into a disciplined, integrated work of theory bolstered by solid facts." A. B. Hollingshead
+ Am Soc R 15:684 O '50 700w

"Within its imposed limitations this is a ripe, carefully developed, original, and substantial analysis. It is well documented and has an adequate, usable index." J. O. Hertzler
+ Ann Am Acad 272:254 N '50 550w

"As a whole the book is readable and is not overly burdened with heavy terminology. In many cases, however, important points do not stand out clearly and the stream of thought is difficult to follow. While this book would normally be considered for use in advanced courses, the reviewer has been wondering if this might not be a better starting approach for the undergraduate student than the texts now in use in introductory sociology courses." Harlan Gilmore
+ Social Forces 29:98 O '50 900w

"Written always with clarity and sometimes with sprightliness, this is by all odds the most systematic textbook yet to appear in its field."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:358 S '50 240w

HAWLEY, PAUL RAMSEY. New discoveries in medicine; their effect on the public health. il $2.50 Columbia univ. press

610.4 Medicine. Public health 50-6786

The Bampton Lectures in America, delivered at Columbia University by the author in 1949 were the basis for this book. Contents: Our fabulous blood; Modern surgery of the heart and lungs; Modern prevention and treatment of mental disease; The socio-economic aspects of medical care. No index.

"The lectures were given largely in non-technical language and are of considerable popular interest but present very little actually new that has a direct bearing on the public health as generally understood. Recent work in immunization, in antibiotics, and the use of isotopes is given scanty attention." R. A. Bolt

Am J Pub Health 40:1020 Ag '50 230w

"In this volume, Dr. Hawley proves that medical progress can be presented as vivid, human history, without sensationalism. . . As one would expect, his discussion of the socio-economic aspects of medical care is authoritative, informative, and direct." F. G. Slaughter

+ N Y Times p31 My 14 '50 180w

HAWTON, HECTOR. Philosophy for pleasure [introd. by A. E. Heath]. 214p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

109 Philosophy—History 50-5162

"Hector Hawton's book is a popular account of Greek philosophy, the Renaissance, the French Encyclopedists, Kant, Hegel, and Marx, and the development of contemporary logical and analytic types of philosophy." (J Philos) Glossary. Table of dates. Index.

Reviewed by Walter Watson

Ethics 61:92 O '50 270w

"The style is no doubt crisp and rapid, and the quotations from many writers are often adroit, but the elimination of connections and nuances and the blunt unqualified summations do not really aid comprehension. . . The book would not do even for the most elementary students of philosophy, but might help the busy layman find out quickly 'what it's all about.'" V. J. McG.

J Philos 47:725 N 23 '50 150w

HAWTREY, RALPH GEORGE. Balance of payments and the standard of living. 158p $1.75 Royal inst. of int. affairs

382 Balance of trade. Great Britain—Commerce. Foreign exchange 50-8640

"A study of how far the adjustment of an adverse balance can be left to the free working of markets, and what kinds and extent of interference are justifiable and desirable. Based largely on the experience of Great Britain and of the European countries since the first World War." Library J

"Professor Hawtrey holds that cradle-to-grave expenditures for social services have contributed little to the United Kingdom's economic weakness (p. 50). Pointing to budget balances since 1947, he argues that these outlays come from revenue and hence do not increase expenditures. He allows as an afterthought that they do reduce savings, besides gnawing at the holdings of the managerial classes. He ignores entirely, though, that high taxes also stunt and blight current production, as well as the creative impulse behind new production—whether of exports or of things otherwise imported. Sophistry like this seems to thrive in the intellectual climate of rainmaker Keynes." R. O. Hall

Ann Am Acad 272:205 N '50 550w

Foreign Affairs 29:146 O '50 40w

"A careful and broadly developed study." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 75:1413 S 1 '50 60w

HAY, CLYDE LEMONT. Blind spot in American public education; with introd. by Herbert B. Mulford. 110p $2 Macmillan

377.1 Religious education. Education—U.S. Church and education 50-9702

A discussion of the question of whether religion should be taught in American public schools. Mr. Hay discusses the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Champaign (Ill.) case but maintains that a type of religious education, within the law, can be worked out which will harmonize with the beliefs of Protestants, Catholics and Jews and will better prepare children for adult living.

Kirkus 18:407 Jl 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by Nathaniel Stewart

Library J 75:1399 S 1 '50 210w

School & Society 72:175 S 9 '50 20w

Springf'd Republican p5C S 24 '50 160w

HAYCOX, ERNEST. Rough justice. 177p $2.50 Little 50-6199

Nine Western stories.

Booklist 46:304 Je 1 '50

"This hearty handful of short stories by one of the most practised and polished of western writers has an essential honesty and validity of theme and background which earmark it for the selective follower."

+ Kirkus 18:10 Ja 1 '50 140w

Springf'd Republican p8D Ap 2 '50 180w

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Ap '50

HAYCRAFT, HOWARD, ed. Fourteen great detective stories. rev ed 464p $1.25 Modern lib.

Short stories—Collections 49-6111

"Twenty years ago Vincent Starrett compiled an anthology of detective stories for the Modern Library. . . 'Fourteen Great Detective Stories' is a measure of what those 20 years have meant to the detective story. Haycraft retains sound stories by Poe, Doyle, Futrelle, Austin Freeman, Chesterton and Melville Davisson Post but to these names adds as harvest of two decades stories by Agatha Christie, Dorothy Sayers, E. C. Bentley, Carter Dickson, Ellery Queen, Rex Stout and Cornell Woolrich." Chicago Sun

"H. C. Bailey, inexplicably absent from Starrett's collection, is happily present here in one of his most telling cases 'The Yellow Slugs.' Haycraft's new collection is within its self-imposed limitations as sound and tasteful a small anthology as one could ask." James Sandoe

Chicago Sun p40 D 23 '49 220w

"An eminent scholar brings the history of the detective short story up to date in a small but tastefully definitive anthology." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p34 D 4 '49 20w

HAYDEN, ARTHUR GUNDERSON, and BARRON, MAURICE. Rigid-frame bridge. [3d ed] 240p il $5 Wiley

624.17 Bridges 50-6415

"The standard American treatise on rigid frame bridges, which is the type of bridge used so frequently nowadays in conjunction with express highways. It is written for advanced engineering students and practicing engineers, and its main purpose is to teach sound procedures in designing. Significant changes were made in preparing this edition. The most important are probably the simplified method of analysis for skewed arch and frame bridges and the addition of the method of design calculations by 'elastic weights.' The final chapter on the architecture of short-span bridges contains a number of illustrations of the notable bridges built in connection with the Westchester County, N.Y. parkway system." Library J

Eng N 144:46 My 18 '50 140w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:700 Ap 15 '50 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:34 My '50

HAYDN, HIRAM COLLINS. Counter-renaissance. 705p $7.50 Scribner
901 Renaissance 50-7225

"Summary and analysis of intellectual conflicts in the sixteenth century. Mr. Haydn edited The Portable Elizabethan Reader, is editor of the Phi Beta Kappa quarterly, The American Scholar. By 'counter-Renaissance' he means here the revolt against reason and moralism led by Montaigne, Machiavelli, others. Mr. Haydn's discussion of this ideological revolution, and of its influence on the Elizabethans, is based on recent scholarship, and illustrated by liberal quotations from the sources." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:351 Jl 15 '50

"This learned book, rather overstuffed with quotations and footnotes, offers a good analysis of many literary and philosophic works of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, especially those of Elizabethan England. But in spite of its valuable detail, it is a rather incomplete representation of the period and a very dogmatic one. . . While Haydn deals at great length with the Protestant revolt and its influence on English literature, he is completely disinterested in the Catholic Reform, the so-called Counter-Reformation. A Renaissance personality of the paramount influence of Ignatius of Loyola is only considered as he was distorted by the renegade Donne. For a reader protected against these arbitrary patterns, the book will prove a source of stimulating knowledge. The author has a considerable understanding of poetic values and his chapters on some of Shakespeare's plays are really enjoyable." Max Fischer
+ — Commonweal 52:493 Ag 25 '50 330w
Kirkus 18:190 Mr 15 '50 270w

"Though of interest principally to students of intellectual history, this survey is so comprehensive in its scope and so vigorous in its statement that it may attract the general reader as well." H. W. Hart
+ Library J 75:557 Ap 1 '50 110w

"Mr. Haydn has written a substantial, informative and intelligent survey of the ideological beginning of our not altogether happy world." Douglas Bush
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 My 21 '50 1000w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
N Y Times p18 Ap 23 '50 460w

"Mr. Haydn has thoroughly documented his book, but his writing, happily, has the light touch."
+ New Yorker 26:121 My 6 '50 200w
San Francisco Chronicle p24 O 22 '50 70w

"The most comprehensive study of the intellectual history of the Renaissance in English since Henry Osborn Taylor's 'Thought and Expression in the Sixteenth Century.' This volume will be the constant companion of all students of the literatures of the age." J. H. Randall
+ Sat R of Lit 33:21 Je 24 '50 1100w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:274 S '50 240w

HAYES, ALFRED. Welcome to the castle; poems. 83p $2.50 Harper
811 50-6812

A volume of poems by the author of The Girl on the Via Flaminia (Book Review Digest 1949). "The first half is based on war time experience. . . The second half, 'A Facsimile of Home,' is not less somber; the title poem welcomes us to 'this grim and comic castle of my middle age' from which one looks forth on a dismal present with storm clouds in the offing. The tone thruout is a prevailing sadness." (Chicago Sunday Tribune)

"This poetry is movingly readable, close [in a favorable sense] to well written, passionate prose." Frederick Nims
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 Ap 23 '50 290w

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle
Commonweal 52:370 Jl 21 '50 300w

"The verse report of a liberal, for that audience chiefly."
Kirkus 18:122 F 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 75:1189 Jl '50 90w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 171:91 Jl 22 '50 130w

"Hayes is not a 'natural' poet in the sense of Blake, Hopkins or Dylan Thomas; that is, there does not seem to be any compulsive music or verbal preoccupation through which poetic thought seeks expression. Rather one has the impression of a sensitive individual with a social conscience and a vivid historical sense who has chosen verse for his deepest reflections because of its succinctness and the opportunity it offers for dramatic contrast and suggestive paradox. In this genre, with his long, loose line and his violent mastery, he takes his place in the modern tradition that begins with Browning and includes among contemporaries such various figures as Jeffers, Fearing, Rukeyser and MacNeice." Selden Rodman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 16 '50 650w

"I much enjoyed 'Welcome to the Castle.' Perhaps this is, like all enjoyment, partly subjective: in Part I, his many poems about American soldiering in Italy evoked my own recollections and sounded authentic. But the book has a more objective, more universal appeal than that: I have read it aloud to friends who knew nothing of army life or Italy; they, too, were enthusiastic and felt it ring true. . . He has so many good and important things to say that he is hit-or-miss in his method of saying them. As a craftsman, he seems too much in a hurry: a perfect reporter, an imperfect poet." Peter Viereck
+ — N Y Times p6 Ap 16 '50 400w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
New Yorker 26:114 My 20 '50 80w

"In my humble opinion, 'Welcome to the Castle' places Alfred Hayes in the front ranks of young American authors, whether prosemen or poets. He is an artist of the first order, an order and understanding we need." Alfred Kreymborg
+ Sat R of Lit 33:19 My 20 '50 550w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:286 S '50 320w

HAYES, MRS FLORENCE (SOOY). Chee and his pony; the story of a Navajo boy; il. by William Moyers. 262p $2.50 Houghton
50-5663

"A story of a Navajo boy's homecoming after two years of schooling. Back at the hogan Chee found that much had changed. Hard times had come with grandfather's illness. Resolutely, Chee put aside his hope of going back to school and of getting the pony his grandfather had promised. Grandfather needed help, but it wasn't easy for Chee to slip back into the old ways of living and thinking. Yet at summer's end, after plenty of hard work and some adventures in the mountains, Chee proved that he was still a good Navajo." N Y Times

Booklist 46:205 F 15 '50

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p3 Ap 1 '50 160w

"Florence Hayes shows here an understanding of boys and a realistic approach to Navajo culture, which holds interest throughout." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:111 Mr '50 140w

"A fine, appealing story . . . invaluable as regional and Indian material for supplementary reading. This is also a superb, readable story."
+ Kirkus 18:60 F 1 '50 190w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:634 Ap 15 '50 130w

HAYES, F. S.—Continued

Reviewed by Lesley Newton
Library J 75:880 My 15 '50 100w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 7 '50 300w

"This story doesn't carry quite the punch that 'Hosh-ki the Navajo' did. The action is slow in getting under way, but Chee is a generous-spirited lad and his story interprets Navajo life with sympathy and quiet humor." E. L. B.
+ — N Y Times p36 Mr 19 '50 220w

'Here is a good story and an interesting picture of Navaho life. The people and their relationships are warm and alive. Even the conservative old grandmother is delightfully real and understandable. The illustrations have atmosphere. They interpret the spirit of the story." R. H. Viguers
+ Sat R of Lit 33:39 Je 10 '50 270w

Wis Lib Bul 46:26 My '50

HAYES, MARJORIE. Robin on the river; with il. by Adolph Treidler. 162p $2.50 Little 50-9907

A family story of a summer spent on the New England coast. A trained seal makes life both happy and exciting for a group of boys and girls. There is a mystery too.

Booklist 47:141 D 1 '50

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 18 '50 40w

"The story has enough action and suspense to interest young readers and a delightful atmosphere of sea and shore."
+ Christian Science Monitor p4 D 23 '50 80w

"Everyday adventures with a touch of mystery added make up this story."
+ Horn Bk 26:473 N '50 60w

Kirkus 18:609 O 1 '50 100w

"A lively and psychologically sound story. Unfortunately, however, pedestrian writing and a conspicuous lack of shading both in text and illustrations prevent this book from fulfilling its potentialities." H. K. Lippmann
+ — N Y Times p42 N 5 '50 150w

"There are a number of small mysterious happenings and a genuine robbery, which of course the children solve. The people are ordinary, and the adventures could easily befall young children, but, unhappily, the book lacks any touch of genuine humor or style, which would repay an adult who must read aloud." G. C. Castor
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 12 '50 100w

HAYWARD, CHARLES HAROLD. English period furniture; an account of the evolution of furniture from 1500 to 1800. 229p il $2.50 Lippincott

749.22 Furniture 49-11969

"The object of this book is to show the kind of furniture in common use in England from the earliest period from which specimens have survived to any extent (about 1500), up to the time when it began to decline from the dignity of antiquity into the merely second-hand, namely, about 1800 or soon after, and to trace the stages of evolution through which it passed during those years." (Introd) Includes a section of plates of measured drawings. Index.

"The amateur or experienced collector will enjoy it. The designer or craftsman will find it a treasure house of ideas." William Yates
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 D 11 '49 130w

"Neither comprehensive nor detailed, this short book is nevertheless a useful one for persons who want an outline of the main events and styles of English furniture during its great period." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:874 My 15 '50 80w

HAYWOOD, CAROLYN. Betsy's little Star; il. by [the author]. 157p $2 Morrow 50-8510

Story of what happened to Betsy's little sister, Star, during the months before she was five years old when all her little friends went to kindergarten and she had to stay at home.

Booklist 47:16 S 1 '50

Christian Science Monitor p7 N 11 '50 80w

Horn Bk 26:372 S '50 40w

Kirkus 18:384 Jl 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by N. L. Rathbun
Library J 75:1306 Ag '50 70w

"The author knows her small children inside out. She writes a modern, everyday story that has quality because of its underlying spirit, a kind of humor and clarity that are happy and healthy for first readers." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 13 '50 230w

N Y Times p20 Ag 6 '50 140w

"Though simple enough for second-graders to read themselves, it is written with a humorous understanding that makes the children described seem sufficiently well-rounded to step right out of the pages."
+ New Yorker 26:178 D 2 '50 60w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 Jl '50

HAZELTON, ROGER. Renewing the mind; an essay in Christian philosophy. 192p $2.50 Macmillan

201 Christianity—Philosophy 49-11395

"Trying to be intelligent and Christian at the same time is difficult. Previous answers have been to make Christianity intellectually respectable or to demand that Christian faith be held in spite of reason. Dr. Hazelton attempts a third avenue of approach; faith and reason must learn to live side by side in an organic whole, as friendly enemies. Actually faith is claimed as the supreme instrument, and reason thereby suffers partial eclipse." Churchman

Churchman 164:17 F 1 '50 60w

"It is a book which will be of primary interest to theologians and philosophers although liberal Protestant clergymen interested in theology will find it interesting and stimulating."
+ Kirkus 17:544 O 1 '49 70w

"Recommended for all libraries." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 74:1317 S 15 '49 130w

HEADLEY, ELIZABETH CAVANNA (BETTY CAVANNA, pseud). Spring comes riding [il. by Beth and Joe Krush]. 197p $2.50 Westminster press
50-12465

A novel for teen-aged girls. It concerns the five Sanderson sisters, all red-headed, and all horsewomen. The story is especially about the problems of Meg, the quiet one.

"Adolescent girls will associate themselves completely with this story and rightly so, for the whole narrative is quite convincing even to the adult reader." A. B. McGuire
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 N 12 '50 200w

"Good fun and a common sense attitude toward dating."
+ Kirkus 18:523 S 1 '50 150w

"Very satisfactory and highly recommended. Cavanna's best to date." R. M. McEvoy
+ Library J 75:1673 O 1 '50 80w

"To a lively story of family fun, of horses, dates, parties, and romance in the persons of two attractive young college men, Betty Cavanna has added her special ability to see into the heart of a teen-age girl." G. C. Castor
+ N Y Times p16 N 12 '50 140w

HEARD, GERALD. Is God in history? an inquiry into human and prehuman history in terms of the doctrine of creation, fall and redemption. 269p $3 Harper

210 Christianity and other religions. Religion—Philosophy. History—Philosophy 50-8535

A sequel to the author's earlier volume Is God Evident? (Book Review Digest 1948). In this Mr Heard argues that the Christian tradition of the Fall and Redemption, and the teachings of certain Eastern religions, reveal the way in which God has intervened in man's story in prehuman and human times. Index.

"Gerald Heard's latest book makes it plain why one encounters so many conflicting reactions to his thought. The imaginative daring with which he constructs a complete theory of life and the universe provokes one's admiration. He frequently reveals prophetic insight into the sickness of man's soul. Yet the supports of his argument are often so flimsy, and there is so much special pleading for particular theories such as vegetarianism, pacifism, and Heard's unusual psychological hypotheses, that the reader finds himself making a continuing effort to separate what is sound from what is highly problematical and fallacious." D. D. Williams

+ — Christian Century 67:1048 S 6 '50 1400w

"This is scarcely a book for the man in the street, but theologians, philosophers, students of history and those interested in finding a rational basis for the Christian faith will welcome this volume."

+ Kirkus 18:595 O 1 '50 170w

"In spite of its extremely provocative and stimulating ideas (are they the result of inspired genius or fantastic imaginings?), the book is extremely difficult to read and therefore, it seems to this reviewer at least, most unlikely to become popular." G. W. Wakefield

+ — Library J 75:1183 Jl '50 150w

Reviewed by Paul Hutchinson

N Y Times p6 Jl 16 '50 1050w

HEARD, GERALD, ed. Prayers and meditations. 153p $2 Harper

242 Prayers. Devotional exercises 49-11452

"Group worship, when repeated by the same person over a period of time, tends to formulate itself into a representative pattern. From such a group comes this book, the results of their corporate and coöperative experience. The materials are arranged in a monthly cycle of subjects moving from adherence, being, and awe, to time and eternity. For each day there is a series of prayers, the first one of which is always a composition based on the apostrophes of Dionysius the Areopagite, followed by a meditation and concluding with other prayers." Crozer Q

"Although truly enough in collect form, they often lack pithiness, or the pointed thought, the sharp need, which makes for fruitful retention. But a really 'good' book, either for personal use or discriminating gift." M. L. Eglinton

+ — Churchman 163:16 D 15 '49 170w

"Designed for use in the evening to assist the reader to reflect upon some aspect of the spiritual life during the following day, these 'offices' for either individual or corporate worship will prove very useful for those who wish to give validity and significance to their devotional experience." R. E. Keighton

+ Crozer Q 27:181 Ap '50 200w

HEATON, HUGH. Albert the camel's son; il. by H. E. M. Sellen. [39p] $1 Oxford

Story, in nonsense verse, about how a camel with an "active little mind" accidentally caught the robber of the king's jewels.

Kirkus 18:175 Mr 15 '50 100w

"The small volume will amuse the youngest of the family as well as the reading parent. Not too well bound in boards." E. T. Dobbins

Library J 75:783 My 1 '50 70w

"The verse is funny, and the pictures just as funny. This artist's animals make faces in a wonderful way." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 12 '50 200w

N Y Times p22 Mr 12 '50 130w

HEATTER, BASIL. Captain's Lady. 244p $2.50 Farrar, Straus
50-5300

A young veteran, with a boat, The Captain's Lady, tries to get a share of the tourist trade in a Florida river town. He has to meet the opposition of a closed association and rouses the hatred of its leader, at the same time that he is fighting an inner battle of his own.

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ap 16 '50 50w

"Crude thought and talk here, which will be distasteful to some; moments of graphic and powerful writing; and an ending in which death and fire and love are entangled."

— + Kirkus 17:656 D 1 '49 210w

"At the end of this consistently interesting, smoothly written tale the reader has a sense of frustration, for Mr. Heatter has never broken the surface of his easy writing. One almost knows Greg, one almost knows red-headed Billie and her drunken father. Almost—but not quite. Nor is it ever clear which conflict is the more important—that with the rival fisherman or that within Greg himself." E. L. Acken

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 F 12 '50 330w

"The author (he is the son of radio commentator Gabriel Heatter) ekes out his scenario with standard-brand war montages; with flashbacks within flashbacks, with a great deal of erotic wrestling and elbow-bending—all hemingwayed to the point of parody. None of it does much to illumine his alleged heroine—who is, after all, only a synonym for compliance. And his alleged hero remains a muddled bore to the end." James MacBride

— N Y Times p27 Ja 22 '50 200w

"Mr. Heatter's writing is fast and to the point, without being especially distinguished."

New Yorker 25:85 Ja 28 '50 100w

"This is a pointed fable, at once vigorous, concise, tough, humorous, and feeling. Mr. Heatter's honest plea for the achieved purpose of the conflict must find willing listeners." C. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 33:16 Mr 4 '50 320w

HEAVISIDE, OLIVER. Electromagnetic theory; complete and unabridged ed. of v1-3 with a critical and historical introd. by Ernst Weber. 386p $7.50 Dover

538.1 Electromagnetic theory 50-13398

"[Reprint of] the whole of the three volumes of Heaviside's Electromagnetic Theory, a classic in electromagnetics and applied physics. The marvel of reprinting has been accomplished by reproducing four of the original pages on each page of the present book. The print is now rather small, but it is legible and the mathematical formulae are all clearly reproduced. An introduction by Professor Ernst Weber, written especially for this edition, contains a long biographical sketch of Heaviside and an analysis of his contributions to applied mathematical and electrical theory." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:1301 Ag '50 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:55 Jl '50

HEBB, DONALD OLDING. Organization of behavior; a neuropsychological theory. 335p $4 Wiley

131 Psychology, Physiological 49-50182

"Underlying the central argument of this book is the proposition that contemporary psychological theory, whether of the behavioristic

HEBB, D. O.—Continued
or field variety, has failed to deal adequately with the problems of the higher mental processes—expectancy, attention, interest, and thought—processes which intervene between stimulus and response, and are especially crucial in understanding human behavior. The central argument itself is that stimulation results in the formation in the brain of 'cell-assemblies,' the sequential 'firing' of which is autonomous." (Ann Am Acad) The author is chairman of the department of psychology at McGill University. Bibliography. Index.

"This book will probably come to be regarded as a landmark in psychological theory." M. H. Kuhn
+ Ann Am Acad 271:217 S '50 480w

Reviewed by W. J. McKeachie
+ Christian Century 67:432 Ap 5 '50 1200w

HEBERDEN, MARY VIOLET (CHARLES L. LEONARD, pseud). Exit this way; pub. for the Crime club. 221p $2.50 Doubleday 50-14985

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:619 O 1 '50 70w

"A good puzzle with an intelligent problem behind it."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 N 19 '50 190w

"Good standard Shannon." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p37 O 29 '50 130w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 29 '50 70w

Sat R of Lit 33:55 O 28 '50 40w

HEBERDEN, MARY VIOLET (CHARLES L. LEONARD, pseud). Secrets for sale. 222p $2.50 Doubleday 50-9137

A combination spy and mystery story, with Paul Kilgerrin, sardonic private eye, as the detective.

Kirkus 18:371 Jl 1 '50 60w

"This particular case seems to be something of a tempest in a teapot, but the agents and counter-agents go through most of the customary gyrations."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ag 27 '50 200w

"The first (and as an old Kilgerrin fan, I pray the last) thoroughly dull Leonard novel." A. B.
— N Y Times p18 Ag 20 '50 100w

"Of interest only to readers with an ungovernable passion for standardized spy stories."
New Yorker 26:88 Ag 26 '50 100w

Sat R of Lit 33:36 Ag 12 '50 50w

HEBERDEN, MARY VIOLET (CHARLES L. LEONARD, pseud). That's the spirit. 221p $2.25 Doubleday 50-7831

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:188 Mr 15 '50 70w

"Not the most colorful of the Shannon stories, in spite of its supernatural flavor."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Je 18 '50 170w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p27 My 21 '50 170w

"Agreeable."
Sat R of Lit 33:36 My 27 '50 40w

HEDRICK, ULYSSES PRENTISS. History of horticulture in America to 1860. 551p pl $7.50 Oxford
634 Horticulture. Gardening 50-6898

"The history is concerned with gardening, fruit growing, and viticulture from its earliest beginnings in this country through 1860. . . Surveying the field chronologically and geographically, the book tells the story of the development of fruits, flowers, and vegetables throughout the United States. . . The author tells of fashions in foods and flowers, points out how landscape gardening developed according to the architecture of the periods and regions. He mentions herb gardens and Quaker gardens, orchards and truck farming, and has included chapters on plant explorers and botanic gardens and on plant breeding. . . The book includes personal vignettes of important nurserymen in the United States. Mr. Hedrick has gained his information from direct research, books of travel written by early European visitors, advertisements in early papers, and contemporary books and periodicals." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

+ Bookmark 9:183 My '50 30w

"This is a remarkable book since it is authoritative and at the same time fascinating to any reader with the faintest interest in agriculture, horticulture or gardening. I would even say that it would be interesting to almost any literate person, because it is not limited to the narrow, purely scientific field of its subject but goes into sociology, architecture, landscape gardening and indeed nearly all the cultural aspects of American life and history." Louis Bromfield
+ N Y Times p12 My 7 '50 460w

New Yorker 26:157 N 25 '50 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 28 '50 180w

"Mr. Hedrick's pages are a delightful blend of antiquarianism and practicality, with several clusters of good pictures." J. T. W.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:35 Je 10 '50 200w

"The materials have been carefully selected, sifted, and sometimes humorously appraised by the author, who has a keen eye for the significant and interesting. The result is a definitive history."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:366 S '50 260w

HEIDEGGER, MARTIN. Existence and being; with an introd. by Werner Brock [tr. by Douglas Scott, and others]. 399p $5 Regnery
111 Existentialism 50-1222

"What is the capacity of the human intellect to deal with the ultimate problems of human existence? It is with this question in mind that one must approach the first volume, in translation, of the much-discussed German contemporary philosopher of existence, Martin Heidegger. . . The present book contains a long introduction and review of Heidegger's main work, 'Being and Time,' which has not yet been published in its entirety." (Christian Science Monitor) No index.

Reviewed by H. W. Steiger
Christian Science Monitor p8 Ag 19 '50 900w

"The 140 pages of the text apparently needed 250 pages of introduction, which, written by W. Brock, is a most thorough piece of work, analysing for the first time Heidegger's second period from 1930 onwards." F. H. Heinemann
+ Hibbert J 48:395 Jl '50 230w

"This book contains a lengthy but admirably condensed and authoritatively accurate discussion-with-paraphase of the writings of Heidegger, particularly of 'Being and Time' and the four essays which alone represent the philosopher in this volume. Since only 150 of the 400 pages of the book are Heidegger's, the title page is slightly misleading, but only slightly, because Dr. Brock's discussions are the most faithful (and the most difficult to read) that I have seen." Ralph Harper
+ Yale R n s 39:758 summer '50 900w

HEINLEIN, ROBERT ANSON. Farmer in the sky; il. by Clifford Geary. 216p $2.50 Scribner 50-14133

This science-fiction novel for boys tells how Bill and his Dad, George, joined other emigrants going to Jupiter's moon, Ganymede, to raise food for Earth's diminishing supply.

Booklist 47:80 O 15 '50

"The book is first class entertainment." August Derleth
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 19 '50 160w
Horn Bk 26:480 N '50 120w

"Superior science fiction." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 26:502 N '50 70w
Kirkus 18:470 Ag 15 '50 160w

"Both humor and tragedy are present in this, one of Heinlein's 'Future History' series, a well-written and carefully thought out prophecy of possible developments in interstellar travel." Villiers Gerson
+ N Y Times p14 N 12 '50 140w

"As absorbing in its own way as the Swiss Family Robinson of an earlier day." Don Fabun
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 O 1 '50 170w

HEINLEIN, ROBERT ANSON. Man who sold the moon; Harriman and the escape from earth to the moon; introd. by John W. Campbell, jr. 288p $3 Shasta pubs. 50-6570

A volume of short stories, independent of each other but all related in the author's series, Future History, 1951-2600 A.D. Contents: Life-line; "Let there be light"; The roads must roll; Blowups happen; The man who sold the moon; Requiem.

Booklist 47:136 D 1 '50
Chicago Sun p6 S 5 '50 150w

"The 'Future History' was begun a decade ago, and it is still occupying Author Heinlein's time. The present book makes it seem an eminently worthwhile preoccupation. Indeed, 'The Man Who Sold the Moon' is quite good enough, as far as science-fiction goes, to stand by itself without the aid of a notably unliterary introduction by the editor of Astounding Science-Fiction Magazine." August Derleth
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 30 '50 390w

Reviewed by M. D. Reed
Library J 75:1841 O 15 '50 60w

Reviewed by Don Fabun
San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 14 '50 170w

"Each of the [six] stories in the current collection is a good story in itself—they have appeared in magazines all the way from the pulps to The Saturday Evening Post—but the interesting point is that they make up a case of the whole being greater than the sum of its parts." Fletcher Pratt
+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 Je 17 '50 140w

HEINLEIN, ROBERT ANSON. Waldo; and, Magic, inc. 219p $2.50 Doubleday 50-5838

Two short novels combining scientific-fiction and fantasy in their tales of witchcraft and demonology in a future world.

Booklist 46:233 Mr 15 '50

"'Magic, Inc.,' a fine hodge-podge of necromancy, racketeering, and California politics, is at once a less exciting but more satisfactorily executed story than 'Waldo.' Both would have benefited if Doubleday had seen fit to have each expanded into a full-length novel; but even in their present form they offer some of the most delightful and provocative imaginative writing (and thinking) of the season." Anthony Boucher
+ Chicago Sun p5 Mr 6 '50 250w

Reviewed by Fritz Leiber
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 5 '50 300w

"An expert technician in this field, Heinlein produces able, highly imaginative tall tales."
+ Kirkus 17:677 D 15 '49 70w

"Parts of both may be rather heavy going—especially if you're vague about such matters as turbo-jets, the time-and-space continuum, and the precise use made of ectoplasm by a poltergeist. But they are rewarding experiments in a field of writing that too often becomes both static and sterile." D. M. Mankiewicz
+ N Y Times p35 F 19 '50 300w
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 12 '50 210w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Sat R of Lit 33:32 Je 17 '50 80w

HELLER, SOLOMON, and SHULMAN, IRVING. Television servicing. 434p il $5.50 McGraw

621.388 Television receivers 50-7656

"The authors are, in order, an instructor on the staff of the American Radio Institute, and chief engineer of the Federal Television Corporation. The book is intended to aid in the training of television service men, and some familiarity with electronic terminology and symbols has been assumed." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 47:7 S 1 '50

"It is well organized, generously illustrated, and the authors' style is exceptionally clear." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:1050 Je 15 '50 110w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:47 My '50

HELM, RUTH H. The bear on the balcony; pictures by John Archer. 35p $2 Oxford 50-14823

A nonsense story about Jonathan, a little boy, who at first thought it was a fine idea to have his friend Humphrey, the bear, live on the balcony outside his playroom. But Humphrey was particular about his food, he wanted nothing but honey and cinnamon buns, and eventually his demands proved too much for poor Jonathan.

"There's a happy solution that will satisfy both parents and small children who are at the imaginary playmate stage." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun p5 S 19 '50 90w

"Good fun in story and pictures." A. S.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 N 12 '50 50w
Christian Science Monitor p7 N 11 '50 90w
Kirkus 18:509 S 1 '50 120w

"Had the story fulfilled the promise of the charming title, it would have been a find, but it lacks the zest one expects from nonsense." Elizabeth Sussdorff
— + Library J 75:1835 O 15 '50 70w

HELMES, WINIFRED GERTRUDE. John A. Johnson, the people's governor; a political biography. 324p il $5 Univ. of Minn.

B or 92 Johnson, John Albert 49-47259

Biography of the son of Swedish immigrants who ran for Governor of Minnesota three times on the Democratic ticket and won each time, altho the Republicans carried everything else. In 1908 he was mentioned for president, but Bryan won the nomination. He died at the height of his great popularity, in 1909. Bibliography. Index.

"This book is a good, straightforward reconstruction of the life of a really great American governor. . . Adequate as this biography is, it will leave many with a curiosity to know more about Governor Johnson. All that is related in this book does not wholly explain, by any quoted text or delineated tale, his remarkable hold upon his generation." J. R. Wiggins
+ Am Hist R 55:637 Ap '50 650w

"The story of his career is worth perpetuating, and Miss Helmes has done a thorough and straightforward job."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:31 Mr 18 '50 270w

"Dr. Helmes has produced a useful addition to American political history, though she is forced, for a good part of the time, to bury her hero in the general history of the age. Some more information about the finances of his newspaper would have been useful."

HELMES, W. G.—Continued
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p38 Ja 20 '50 250w

HEMINGWAY, ERNEST. Across the river and into the trees. 308p $3 Scribner 50-9370

Hemingway's first novel in years is the story of an American army officer's last visit to Italy, where he had fought in two wars. Altho he realized that he had not much longer to live he had a love affair with a beautiful young countess. Then, on one last hunting expedition, his death came as he had expected.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 186:80 O '50 600w

Booklist 46:345; 47:13 Jl 15 '50; S 1 '50

Bookmark 10:8 O '50 50w

"It would surely be unwise to believe or suggest, as some reviewers have done, that these are Hemingway's own opinions merely because he has put them into the mouth of this somewhat shoddy character. He is surely too wise and intelligent a human being, too great both as man and as writer, to believe such drivel. The point is that he could hardly have brought a present-day American colonel to life, could not have presented him (to use one of the book's favorite words) truly, without making him give tongue to a good deal of nonsense and a great deal of vulgarity. For all that, Across the River and Into the Trees is an interesting and moving book." Allan Sangster
Canadian Forum 30:190 N '50 600w

"Hemingway characters are toughly, ludicrously amoral. Uninteresting to read except as a clinical study of the failure of a behind-the-barn-door mentality to cope with maturity." Mary Sandrock
— Cath World 172:72 O '50 270w

"Putting the story on paper didn't add a thing to its importance. The Hemingway sentences are a delight to read and full of verve; but unfortunately they don't add up to very much." Emmett Dedmon
— + Chicago Sun p9 S 10 '50 600w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 17 '50 750w

"Hemingway has always been a perfectionist, and in 'Across the River and Into the Trees' only his superb verbal discipline arrests a case of incipient parody. For in his new novel Hemingway is repeating himself, and repetition is a form of parody. The familiar themes are recapitulated—time and love, war and death, virile sports and favorite cities—but in a muted minor way. In this sad, nostalgic, autumnal book, Hemingway is reciting the names of the things he has loved." Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 16 '50 1400w

"There is no new development in Hemingway's art, there are no unexpected twists. Yet something has changed, and the hand which in the past so deftly imparted form to this matter now shows signs of indecision. . . The juxtaposition of the sordid and the elegiac, which is the genius of Hemingway, is the guiding spirit of this work. Yet here he has created a central character whose complexity has gone past his reach. The novel merits respect, not enthusiasm." Serge Hughes
Commonweal 52:585 S 22 '50 550w

"I read the reviews before I read the book, and I was in the mood to make the best of it. Mr. Hemingway is one of the most original and powerful of living writers. Even if he had written a completely fatuous book, this was not the way to treat it. What, in fact, he has done is to write a story entirely characteristic of himself, not his best book, perhaps his worst, but still something very much better than most of the work to which the same critics give their tepid applause. . . Behind all the bluster and cursing and fisticuffs he has an elementary sense of chivalry—respect for women, pity for the weak, love of honor—which keeps breaking in. There is a form of high, supercilious caddishness which is all the rage nowadays in literary circles. That is what the critics seek in vain in this book, and that is why their complaints are so loud and confident." Evelyn Waugh
+ — Commonweal 53:97 N 3 '50 1500w

Kirkus 18:390 Jl 15 '50 230w

"Hemingway's admirers will have been prepared for the soldier preoccupied with achieving a graceful death, and for the truculent tone of his comments on civilization; but readers who have been waiting since 1940 for another For Whom the Bell Tolls may be disappointed by this brief narrative." H. W. Hart
Library J 75:1407 S 1 '50 100w

"This is a bad book. Most interesting but all wrong." Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 S 8 '50 240w

"The drama is almost static. The talk, retaining only a few of its old living accents, develops unbelievable prodigies of flatness, mawkishness, repetition, and dead wastes of words. . . 'Across the River and into the Trees' (the title badly mars the fine rhythm of Stonewall Jackson's last words) is an occasion for little but exasperated depression. But we are promised another novel soon. We must wait for it. And see." M. D. Zabel
— Nation 171:230 S 9 '50 1200w

"It is a slight, sad book, quieter and more muted than his others, a brooding twilight picture brushed by autumnal mists. . . It is quite possible that many readers will miss in this novel the bright color and the restless excitement of the earlier ones, but although the canvas is now smaller and painted in grayed tones, there is no less art. The mixture is, on a minor scale, as before and still magical; the Hemingway spell still holds." Kate Simon
+ — New Repub 123:20 S 18 '50 900w

"Hemingway appears to have been fighting his own private battle for so long that the war has only furnished him with an opportunity for false heroics." John Raymond
— New Statesman & Nation 40:343 O 7 '50 650w

"It is beautifully finished as a piece of writing; in that sense it is what we expect of Hemingway; but it is still below the level of his earlier novels, which we studied so eagerly and from which we learned so much. . . What one misses in 'Across the River' is the sense of adventure and exploration that marked his earlier novels. . . For all its skill and honesty, 'Across the River and Into the Trees' is a tired book compared with those others. To see what the new Hemingway can do we still have to wait for his big novel." Malcolm Cowley
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 S 10 '50 1600w

"The most important author living today, the outstanding author since the death of Shakespeare, has brought out a new novel. The title of the novel is 'Across the River and Into the Trees.' The author, of course, is Ernest Hemingway, the most important, the outstanding author out of the millions of writers who have lived since 1616." John O'Hara
+ N Y Times p1 S 10 '50 2700w

"The book was obviously written under great tension . . . and can only distress anyone who admires Hemingway. Considering the state of crisis in which it is supposed to have been written, it is hard to say what one feels most in reading this book—pity, embarrassment that so fine and honest a writer can make such a travesty of himself, or amazement that a man can render so marvellously the beauty of the natural world and yet be so vulgar. . . The Colonel is all the Hemingway prizefighters, hunters, drinkers, and soldiers in one. Yet this book is different, for it is held together by blind anger rather than the lyric emotion that gives Hemingway's best work its unforgettable poignance." Alfred Kazin
— + New Yorker 26:113 S 9 '50 1650w

"The test comes when you finish the book and ask yourself what its author had to say this time. The honest reader, with the best will in the world, will have to answer: 'Not much, if anything.' " J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 7 '50 950w

"This is an unfortunate novel and unpleasant to review for anyone who respects Hemingway's talent and achievement. It is not only Hemingway's worst novel; it is a synthesis of everything that is bad in his previous work and it throws a doubtful light on the future. It is so dreadful, in fact, that it begins to have its own morbid fascination and is almost impossible as they say, to put down." Maxwell Geismar

— Sat R of Lit 33:18 S 9 '50 1000w

Sat R of Lit 33:26 O 28 '50 600w

"Mr. Hemingway has not won his reputation for nothing, and his great gifts survive. The descriptive writing is assured, the dialogue, as always excellent. There is feeling in the story, and it has the kind of finish, the precision one would expect in a lyric or a serenade. Yet it is a set piece, theatrical, and, in essence, sentimental." L. A. G. Strong

+ — Spec 184:279 S 8 '50 550w

Springf'd Republican p19A O 15 '50 360w

"It is sad to think that a writer, who has, above all, the power to move his reader, should have been allowed by his own artistic conscience, by his advisers or his publishers, to make public a book that is without one line of genuine emotion. Self pity does not qualify and lack of self knowledge is no excuse." Ellen Violett

Theatre Arts 34:5 N '50 1200w

"In all this, Hemingway, at his best one the few great writers of his generation, gives his admirers almost nothing to cheer about. Occasionally, as when he describes a duck shoot, his writing has flashes of its old, matchless exactness. However thin his story, he keeps it in motion and even invests it with a sense of potential explosion, though the explosion never comes off. The famed Hemingway style, once a poetic blend of tension and despair, is hardly more than a parody of itself. The love scenes are rather embarrassing than beautiful, the language of love forced and artificial."

— + Time 56:110 S 11 '50 750w

"The drama is internal and implicit; the book is written, not in Mr. Hemingway's customary passion, but seemingly with all passion spent—and spent deliberately. . . It is almost as if Mr. Hemingway were writing his swan-song, for the mood is that of The Tempest or Oedipus Coloneus. But it is only 'as if,' for all passion is not spent, however it may seem. Rather, for the first time passion is under control. At last Mr. Hemingway knows his own strength, and at last he has learned that there is no need to waste it by using it all at once. Across the River and into the Trees is the first of his novels of which that could be said; but there is no reason why it should be the last."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p628 O 6 '50 3300w

"In spite of some good writing, it is an embarrassing book to read. The complete absence of any kind of detachment between Hemingway and the Colonel makes it impossible to separate the character from his creator." Paul Pickrel

— + Yale R n s 40:191 autumn '50 550w

HENDERSON, LE GRAND (LE GRAND, pseud). Why cowboys sing, in Texas. [40p] il $2 Abingdon-Cokesbury

50-8727

"There was once a time when cowboys did not sing, in Texas. . . This book tells how song came to Texas." The hero of the tale is Slim Jim Bean who sang Yippee yi, yippee yay, and then the cows quit stampeding.

Booklist 47:47 S 15 '50
Kirkus 18:383 Jl 15 '50 70w

"This tale of the origin of 'Yippee yi, yippee yay' will bring chuckles from all ages but will have special appeal for 8-10-year-olds. Wonderful answer to the eternal request from small boys for a cowboy story." M. E. Martignoni

+ Library J 75:1307 Ag '50 70w

"It is a slight book but lots of fun for the cowboy shelf." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 20 '50 120w

N Y Times p13 S 3 '50 140w

Sat R of Lit 33:59 N 11 '50 80w

Wis Lib Bul 46:26 S '50

HENDERSON, LUIS M. Outdoor guide. 351p il $4.50 Stackpole & Heck

796.54 Outdoor life 50-7169

Handbook on the details of camping out, intended for the novice. The author discusses animal tracks, clothing for camping trips, details of cooking, making camp, first aid, identifying animals, etc. Illustrated with diagrams. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:290 My 15 '50

"This volume is aimed at the outdoor fans who are going into the wilderness for the first time, and the author didn't miss his target. On the contrary he scores a bull's-eye with advice and suggestions that will smooth the outdoor fan's trail and make his camping trip more comfortable. While this is basically a handbook of instruction for the novice, it's also pleasant reading, because of the writer's informal style." Bob Becker

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 7 '50 470w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '50

"A very practical, clearly written and delightfully illustrated handbook on camping, and all that should be known to do it successfully and safely." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:780 My 1 '50 30w

Reviewed by Leo Marceau

Springf'd Republican p8C My 7 '50 240w

HENLE, MARY ELLEN. Fiddler crab and the sand dollar; drawings by Barbara Smith. [38p] $2 Vanguard

50-7227

"A sunny seaside tale in gay little verses and colorful pictures concerning a crab who fiddled so well that the waves paid him everything he could want, including sand dollars." Chicago Sun

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun p3 Ap 22 '50 90w

"An entertaining little story, and at the same time a lesson in penny saving which the small reader may not forget as readily as family advice." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 O 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Louise Davis

Library J 75:626 Ap 15 '50 60w

"Recommended." H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 75:880 My 15 '50 80w

"Delightful story teaching thrift through jingling rhymes. Barbara Smith's three-color illustrations are exactly right." M. R. Brown

+ N Y Times p18 My 21 '50 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 12 '50 100w

HENNESSEY, WILLIAM JAMES. Complete book of built-ins; technical drawings by Sigman-Ward; design sketches by the author. 182p $3.50 Harper

684 Furniture 50-10025

General chapters on the home workshop, basic carpentry and cabinetwork, and woods and their finishes are followed by suggestions and some directions for built-ins for specific rooms and specific uses.

Booklist 47:129 D 1 '50

HENNESSEY, W. J.—Continued

"Home craftsmen will revel in the many suggestions for efficient use of space at minimum expense offered in this inviting volume."

+ Bookmark 10:30 N '50 40w

"Though far from complete, this book can be used as a fruitful source of ideas for built-in furniture. Tools and basic operations are outlined in the first forty pages. These pages appear to be intended for beginners, but only very exceptional beginners would be able to get enough information from them on such techniques as nailing to be able to build many of the structures pictured in the rest of the book. A few dimensioned sketches are included but not enough." R. R. Hawkins

+ — Library J 75:2009 N 15 '50 130w

HENNEY, KEITH, ed. Radio engineering handbook. 4th ed 1197p $10 McGraw

621.384 Radio—Handbooks, manuals, etc. 50-8681

"A much needed, vastly improved, and enlarged edition of this invaluable reference work. Pressure to add additional information has required the elimination of mathematical and mechanical tables. The work remains a practical handbook of factual information supplied by various experts in radio engineering." (Booklist) For third edition see Book Review Digest 1941.

Booklist 47:42 S 15 '50

"Practicing radio engineers are the primary audience, but the book is useful also to advanced students and radio amateurs." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:1301 Ag '50 130w

"The book remains a reference book in which 'essay' type of information and engineering data are combined. It is suitable for advanced students of radio engineering, advanced radio amateurs, and of course, practicing radio engineers."

N Y New Tech Bks 35:61 Jl '50

HENREY, MADELEINE (MRS ROBERT HENREY). London; with 15 water-colours by Phyllis Ginger. 309p $5 Dutton

914.21 London—Description 50-5591

"It's historic London, contemporary London and the author's own pet London all rolled into one book. By no means all of London, for a single book could scarcely compass that, it is the London of some important streets and squares—Whitehall, Westminster, Buckingham Palace, Piccadilly Circus and Leicester Square, Regent street, St. James' and the Green Park, Berkeley Square, the Haymarket, and so on." San Francisco Chronicle

Booklist 46:314 Je 15 '50

"Thrust a hand into this London grab bag, and one is certain to pull out a prize package of some sort—for example, that description of what happened on the night when Eros was restored to his pedestal in Piccadilly Circus. The book is adorned with 15 water colors, gay and full of color, by Phyllis Ginger. And the drawings of the Future Piccadilly Circus and its Surroundings in 1658, which forms the book's endpapers, will keep any true Londoner happy for an entire winter evening." Margaret Williamson

+ Christian Science Monitor p2 Mr 4 '50 700w

Manchester Guardian p3 D 28 '48 110w

New Yorker 26:126 Ap 22 '50 130w

"The method is as good as any, and in Mrs. Henrey's hands it's better than most. She knows how to use it as a framework on which to hang just about anything that occurs to her on the subject of the city she knows and loves so well. . . Americans who know London and keep a special place in their hearts for it will want Mrs. Henrey's book. They will be delighted, too, with Miss Ginger's strong yet delicate illustrations, which catch all the color, gay yet with its brightness a little subdued as in misty sunlight, that is London's own." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 F 4 '50 750w

"There is much here about which American veterans of the Battle of Britain will enjoy reminiscing. Phyllis Ginger seems to establish the sprightly tenor of the text with bright water colors of London that—were it not for extracting them from their rightful place—would be perfect to frame." H. S.

+ Sat R of Lit 33:45 F 11 '50 160w

"The author has perception and a keen feminine eye for detail, and these are accompanied by a journalist's knack of stating facts compellingly and of gathering out-of-the-way pieces of information. . . This smoothly flowing narrative recalls the good (and bad) old days and the more recently departed era of blackout-bonhomie and the barrage-balloon, and has the apparent inconsequence of an agreeable conversation. The book is attractively illustrated with some airy, easily identifiable water-colours by Miss Phyllis Ginger."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p28 Ja 8 '49 300w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 Mr '50

HENREY, MRS ROBERT. See Henrey, M.

HENRI, MRS FLORETTE, Kings Mountain. 340p $3 Doubleday

50-9855

Historical novel about the American Revolution, especially about the time of the battle of Kings Mountain in 1780. The two main male characters are Reece MacDermott, captain of the Carolina patriots, and Colonel Ferguson, the English leader who has sworn to get him.

Booklist 47:136 D 1 '50

"This first novel is a good one." A. F. Otis

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 O 22 '50 360w

Kirkus 18:432 Ag 1 '50 100w

"A readable story." Richard Match

+ N Y Times p51 S 24 '50 310w

"Florette Henri proves in her first novel that it is possible to write an absorbing story outside the sex-sadism-duels-at-dawn tradition. Unfortunately, her hero, Reece MacDermott, is the story's weakest character but Sally, Tom Whittacre, Abe Franks, Billy Rover, and Colonel Ferguson make up for MacDermott's shortcomings and move through the story with sufficient credibility." J. M. Grant

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:32 N 4 '50 270w

HENRIQUES, ROBERT DAVID QUIXANO. Too little love [Eng title: Through the valley]. 562p $3.75 Viking

50-8217

"Novel of the fortunes and fates of the Meredith family, friends and servants. The time and place covers life on a large estate in England, Neapcaster Park, from 1926 through World War II. The reader is shown the effect of the Social Revolution on the British gentry, professional men, and servants." Library J

"It is a big novel and an absorbing one, a panorama of English character set against a countryside well known and beautifully described, and integrated with a social commentary penetrating and illuminating." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 186:82 Jl '50 850w

Booklist 46:254; 316 Ap 15 '50; Je 15 '50

Bookmark 9:244 Jl '50 40w

"Too Little Love may have been intended as a trenchant sociological treatise but as the reader plows through the multitudinous, shifting scenes, he gradually realizes that the philosophizing has a hollow ring. Henriques, with overtones of Michael Arlen and Noel Coward, is at his best in vivid picturings of an English aristocracy, whether reigning or deposed. At least 200 pages of padding should have been cut to make these stylized pictures enjoyable." Mary Sandrock

— + Cath World 171:393 Ag '50 220w

"How the years literally turned one English country community inside out is the story of 'Too Little Love,' a story which is as richly full of all of living sights and sounds as it is of people. It is a modern saga with the intricate detail of a mediaeval tapestry. But it has a dimension which mediaeval tapestries did not have—that subtle dimension of implication as well as of recording." Fanny Butcher

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 9 '50 600w

"The structure of 'Too Little Love' is full and varied, thickly peopled and rich in under- and over-meanings. In its occasional robust treatment of intimacies it recalls Fielding—while in the psychological implications of these intimacies it is wholly 20th century. Mr. Henriques has maintained a tone of passionate involvement in humanity, mixed with scrupulous artistic and political detachment: a clear-sighted love. As literature, the book may lack the final spark of the unquestionably first-rank; but it is a significant illumination of a whole facet of contemporary society." Ruth Chapin

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 24 '50 1100w

"In its understanding of human motives, which of course result in governments and in laws, the book has an almost photographic accuracy. However ponderous, the picture is truthful, and, if no real solution is reached perhaps that only adds to its truth." Joan Rice

Commonweal 52:349 Jl 14 '50 330w

"The finale leaves the reader with a sense of futility. . . The love story, between Geoff and the General's part-French daughter-in-law, is brought to some measure of solution by external factors rather than growing out of the characters themselves. Perhaps herein lies the basic structural weakness of the novel—that it deals with broad sweep of social change, and uses people as props rather than instruments. Uneven in the writing, it seems almost saga-like at times, and again is creakingly old-fashioned, while in the main it has the pace of writing in the tradition of the English family novel."

— + Kirkus 18:247 Ap 15 '50 420w

"A long, tedious, and confusing novel. . . The book has the elements that frequently make for best sellers, lust and love, loyalty and rascality, plus some superficial philosophical phrases." C. W. Roth

— Library J 75:979 Je 1 '50 80w

"The gloom is too sorry and the litany too long. Its conservative sentiments simplify the social picture too readily." Jean Garrigue

— New Repub 123:19 Jl 3 '50 550w

"A richly endowed but somewhat loose-jointed story in which several parts are much better than the whole." James Hilton

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Je 11 '50 1150w

"Twenty-two years of England's social history are correlated with national and personal drama to make a fascinating chronicle." Isabelle Mallet

+ N Y Times p8 Je 11 '50 400w

"The story is told in an endless series of chatty and often inconsequential episodes. After a while, we get the feeling that we're wading through the correspondence of some people who are strangers to us and who, for all we care, will always remain strangers, because it is difficult to feel inquisitive or even spiteful about them."

— New Yorker 26:95 Je 17 '50 120w

"Massive and at times quite complex as to construction—the events are not always related chronologically; certain motives and actions remain unexplained until long afterwards—'Too Little Love' is written without any particular distinction. It is most effective and eloquent when describing simple scenes and actions, the rural landscape, a wounded partridge. . . It is the very frank description of the way in which the world wags in England today which gives this novel its particular interest." Iris Barry

— + Sat R of Lit 33:19 Je 17 '50 900w

"It is the work, one would say, of a formidably robust and yet anxious writer, who seems to have brought out for inspection some of his private intellectual obsessions and in the result has taken most pains over what is least significant in the novel. This apparent uneasiness of his apart, the book gives the impression of having been fitted together from fragments widely separated in time and perhaps in imaginative mood also. Drawn-out and rather shapeless, it lacks, I think, something of ordinary concentration. . . Altogether a prodigal but somewhat heedless performance, in which Mr. Henriques has too few opportunities for the exercise of his most distinctive abilities." R. D. Charques

— + Spec 184:62 Jl 14 '50 370w

"Too Little Love is the sort of monsterpiece in which there are so many wheels to keep turning that only a Tolstoy or a Melville could do the job without putting the reader to sleep."

— Time 55:98 Je 19 '50 330w

"Both as a novel and as a commentary [this book] is inconclusive because Colonel Henriques has not fallen into the trap of a neat ending."

Times [London] Lit Sup p449 Jl 21 '50 60w

HENRY, B. A., pseud. See Abrahams, H. B.

HENRY, MARGUERITE. Born to trot; il. by Wesley Dennis. 219p $2.75 Rand McNally

Horses—Legends and stories 50-10271

"Actually this book is two stories in one. The main narrative concerns the boyhood of the trainer Gibson White. From the start, Gibson is highly interested in horses, and together he and his famous father train the bay mare Rosalind, world champion trotter. Gibson's devotion to horses is enhanced by reading an account of Tysdyk's 'Hambletonian,' an imaginary tale quoted chapter by chapter, to form the second story of the book. Both modern and early accounts of trotting horses are cleverly woven together into a complete picture of the sport." N Y Times

Booklist 47:120 N 15 '50

"Aside from the fun of reading it, this book should give children a valuable zeal for harness racing, and for a real horse, Rosalind, who trots her handsome way thru the text and the pictures." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 12 '50 150w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

Kirkus 18:643 O 15 '50 160w

"Informative, exciting; everyone from 10-90 will love it." E. E. Beatty

+ Library J 75:2084 D 1 '50 80w

"Perhaps Miss Henry's book should be classed as biography this time. For, more than any other of her mostly true horse stories, this one is based on facts, on the life of a champion trotting mare, the boy who owned her and the boy's father who trained her. Her achievement will be very satisfying to all who love that great American institution, harness racing. To youngsters who may not have seen such races, it will be both a fine horse story and a revealing introduction." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 12 '50 320w

"Horse stories with a strong basis of fact are especially appealing to horsemen. Marguerite Henry's new book is packed with information as well as vivid accounts of exciting races, and behind-the-scene glimpses of the tack room and the starting post." Frances Chrystie

+ N Y Times p24 N 12 '50 190w

HENRY, RALPH CHESTER (ERIC THANE, pseud). Majestic land. 347p il $4 Bobbs

917.95 Northwest. Rocky mountains 50-10330

"This book is sub-titled 'Peaks, Parks & Prevaricators of the Rockies & Highlands of the Northwest.' It deals with western Montana and Wyoming, with much of Idaho and eastern Washington, and with the mountainous portions of Alberta and British Columbia. This vast region contains comparatively few people and a large amount of rugged scenery. The author lives at Helena, right in the middle of it, and he seems to have ranged pretty well over the land from Canada's Jasper National Park to Jackson Hole and the Tetons in Idaho-Wyoming." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Index.

HENRY, R. C.—Continued

Booklist 47:155 D 15 '50

"Few of the illustrative photographs are much to brag about. But the text is a good running account of the past and present of the most spectacular region of Canada and the United States. Both natives and visitors are sure to learn something from its pages." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 N 12 '50 600w

Reviewed by R. L. Neuberger
N Y Times p45 N 26 '50 360w

HENRY, ROBERT SELPH. Story of the Mexican war. 424p il maps $4.50 Bobbs

973.62 U.S.—History—War with Mexico, 1845-1848 50-6538

An account of the causes, course, and consequences of the war between Mexico and the United States, told from the viewpoint of a North American. Synoptic table of events. Index.

"The reader who knows or remembers little about the war and would like to learn more without too much study, will find the story here set forth in a form easy to digest and told with freshness and good humor. For the military student the book provides a first-rate refresher course in a subject which never fails to stimulate his imagination and renew pride in his profession." C. W. Elliott
+ Am Hist R 56:136 O '50 750w

Booklist 46:272 My 1 '50

"The Mexican War has been for too long our unknown war. Mr. Henry's 'Story of the Mexican War' will serve to make it a more familiar chapter in our national history, giving it the place it properly deserves in our annals. It is a sound, well written, readable book." S. F. Horn
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ap 9 '50 1200w

"The merits of this book, apart from its narrative verve, are its comprehensiveness, its sound judgment in appraising situations and men, and its perception of what is truly significant in a mass of detail." Allen Nevins
+ N Y Times p5 Mr 26 '50 1000w

"Mr. Henry has delved deeply into most of the contemporary material available: Newspapers, diaries, articles, military reports, official records and archives, and all of the standard texts. He has fashioned this mass of data into a clearly told, always interesting narrative in which the casual student of American history and the general reader will find much to amaze and fascinate him. Indeed so little known is most of the Mexican War that for many 'The Story of the Mexican War' will seem like reading the history of a foreign country." C. W. Weinberger
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 23 '50 800w

Reviewed by T. R. Hay
Sat R of Lit 33:46 My 13 '50 850w

HENRY, ROBERT SELPH. Trains. mid-century ed 128p il $3 Bobbs

625 Railroads—Trains 49-49452

"This well-known book has in this edition a fair number of new photographs and a new chapter which deals with postwar developments. . . Both the pictures and the text portray the historical development of American railroads—and both are easy to absorb." Library J

Booklist 46:279 My 1 '50

Reviewed by Al Chase
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 15 '50 30w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1913 D 15 '49 70w

HENRY, WILL. No survivors. 344p maps $2.75 Random house

Custer, George Armstrong—Fiction 50-10477

A historical novel dealing with the Indian fighting climaxed at the Battle of Little Big Horn. "While the character of Colonel Clayton and his journal, which constitutes the book, are purely fictional, all references to historical characters, both white and Indian, battles, Indian campaigns, and other recorded incidents of the Indian warfare are true to the history of the period." (Author's note)

Booklist 47:115 N 15 '50

Kirkus 18:567 S 15 '50 150w

"The historical details of the battle of the Rosebud, Custer's last stand, Reno and Benteen's fight are excellent." Sylvester Vigilante
+ Library J 75:1660 O 1 '50 140w

"Inevitably the book's effectiveness as fiction suffers from the fact that Clayton, like Buffalo Bill, just got around too much to be credible. Yet Mr. Henry has done some meticulous research. Incidents are accurately and sometimes excitingly recorded." J. K. Howard
+ — N Y Times p36 N 26 '50 270w

"The blame for the story's shortcomings can be laid directly to the improbability of its narrator-hero. . . The reader must suffer Clayton-Cetan Mani's tale of his romance with North Star and endless daredevil antics in order to enjoy the exciting and colorful passages in the book. And if the interpretation of events herein presented is truly accurate, General Custer will go down in future history books as a very brave but stupid man, who sacrificed his soldiers to Indian vengeance for no valid purpose." J. M. G.
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:35 D 23 '50 270w

HEPBURN, ANDREW, and LOGAN, HARLAN. Florida; a complete guide to the State of Florida, telling you what to see, where to go, how to get there, what to do, how much to pay; with the assistance of the American Express travel service. 104p il maps $1 Simon & Schuster

917.59 Florida—Description and travel 49-50211

"The first of a new series of inexpensive, soft-cover, detailed vacation guides by the ex-travel editor and the ex-general manager of Look. As a typical vacation area, Florida is first cut up into squares, which are lettered. Subsequent information covers each square, first by towns and then by transportation, things to see, local products, and any other data which a tourist ought to bone up on before leaving home. A list of good restaurants goes with each geographical square, and there are all manner of maps . . . and a scattering of photos." Sat R of Lit

"Recommended as a must for the Florida tourist." Al Chase
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ja 15 '50 100w

Christian Science Monitor p5 Mr 3 '50 300w

"The text is somewhat easier to read than what you will find in the AAA's books and certainly better than the text on gas-station maps. The danger is that the pleasure-seeking tourist is going to get so tangled up in cross-references, two-color signals that take him from text to map, incidental facts, lists, and indices that he will become impaled on a statistic and never have any fun at all. If you've got a mind for details, and you like maps you'll probably find this one of the best guides yet."
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:50 Ja 28 '50 180w

HERRICK, CHARLES JUDSON. George Ellett Coghill, naturalist and philosopher. 280p $5 Univ. of Chicago press

B or 92 Coghill, George Ellett 49-8421

"In this biography of a scientist there is less than the usual minute detail concerning its subject's life and work, fewer than usual mentions of teachers, colleagues, and family. Dr. Herrick has devoted his attention to Coghill's (1872-1941) major achievements, to the events which principally influenced his life, and has attempted to analyze and evaluate Coghill's philosophy of living." U S Quarterly Bkl

J Philos 47:276 Ap 27 '50 800w

"As a friend and colleague of Coghill for many years, Dr. Herrick is admirably qualified for his task. . . The book as a whole is worthy of serious attention, digestion, and assimilation."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:466 D '49 240w

HERRICK, JAMES BRYAN. Memories of eighty years. 270p il $5 Univ. of Chicago press

B or 92 Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-6564

"James B. Herrick was three years and eight months old when Lincoln's funeral procession crossed Chicago. . . Dr. Herrick was graduated from Rush Medical College in 1888, interned at Cook County Hospital, entered general practice, took p.g. work in Vienna, served his city, state, and country during the First World War and subsequently in numerous capacities, and, in general, became part of the essential background (and considerable of the foreground) of the medical scene of Chicago and the nation. Dr. Herrick's reminiscences hew much more closely to the medical line than most medical memoirs do, but they are human rather than clinical." Sat R of Lit

Sat R of Lit 33:42 My 6 '50 270w

"Because, aided by his papers, he recalls so many things and so clearly, his memories make absorbing reading. . . Medical students, the author's colleagues and friends, especially, will enjoy this book. In it, Dr. Herrick speaks for himself and what he has to say is memorable."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:42 Mr '50 240w

HERRING, HARRIET LAURA. Passing of the mill village; revolution in a southern institution. 137p $3 Univ. of N.C. press

309.175 Villages—South. Cotton manufacture. South—Social conditions 50-5080

"The mill village, long an important feature in the physical and social landscape of the South, is beginning to disappear. . . By mid-1949 approximately 16 per cent of the 800 mills in the main Southern textile states had been sold. If the movement continues, as Miss Herring believes it will, its results will have social and economic significance for the entire piedmont region. The present volume . . . is a description of the movement itself: the extent of growth of sales; preparation for and procedures followed in sales; effects of sales upon workers and labor-management relations; the reaction of the union; and some changes in the mill village resulting from the sales." Am Soc R

"The book will probably be of more value to people in management who are planning future sales, and to persons interested in the South and its progress, than to sociologists for classroom use."

Am Soc R 15:324 Ap '50 200w

Reviewed by R. V. Shumate

+ Ann Am Acad 270:174 Jl '50 380w

"Interesting and valuable to the industry as a management problem, and to the social-minded reader." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 75:176 F 1 '50 140w

"Miss Herring's report is based on a first-hand study of 97 villages that have been sold, and on years of careful investigation of the Southern textile industry. It represents solid and highly competent research. By and large, this volume is a handbook for mill managers who may be considering whether to dispose of their villages; they will find here a valuable summary of the mistakes and successes of their colleagues and shrewd advice for their own guidance. . . The book is least satisfactory in regard to the wider social effects of the passing of the mill village." Liston Pope

+ — Social Forces 28:450 My '50 550w

HERRMANN, IRVIN A. Office methods, systems, and procedures. 539p $7 Ronald

651 Office management 50-7388

"A practical manual for those concerned with efficient operation, 'the approach . . . industrial engineering applied to the office.' How to analyze to determine what can be eliminated, combined, simplified or improved, how to ensure that all elements are fully understood and considered; detailed examination of forms, design and control." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:299 Je 1 '50

Reviewed by Winifred Baum

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 23 '50 40w

"An attractive, effectively illustrated volume." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 75:871 My 15 '50 60w

"Though primarily intended as a manual for the office methods profession, the book has been written from the viewpoint of management. In language that is notably simple and intelligible, the author covers the entire range of office methods work." L. P. Jennings

+ Management R 39:496 Ag '50 350w

HERRMANN, LAZAR (LEO LANIA, pseud). Nine lives of Europe. 278p $3.50 Funk

940.55 Europe—Civilization. World politics 50-5829

"Leo Lania made two tours of Europe recently and in this provocative volume combines impressions derived from talk with average people and a background of active experience on the continent to provide both 'a report on the present economic and political conditions of Europe and an analysis of its spiritual and intellectual development since the end of the war.' Index." Bookmark

Reviewed by F. M. Russell

Ann Am Acad 270:193 Jl '50 360w

"The Nine Lives of Europe is moderately interesting in places, but poorly put together throughout."

+ — Atlantic 185:90 Ap '50 170w

Booklist 46:217 Mr 1 '50

+ Bookmark 9:133 Mr '50 60w

"Mr. Lania writes with the speed of a journalist rushing to meet a deadline. As a result the points that he strives to make are often buried under a heap of facts and impressions. This is a pity, for what Mr. Lania has to say is very much worth saying." P. M.

+ — Canadian Forum 30:212 D '50 550w

"Though this book is largely one of personal impressions, Lania's sensitivity to the intellectual and moral atmosphere of Europe as well as to its politics sets his volume above others of its kind. One further contribution the book makes is to state clearly the dilemma facing the Communists in their relations with the peasants. . . Few people who read this book will come away from it without a greater knowledge of Europe and a more thoughtful consideration of the basic problems of our dissident world." Emmett Dedmon

+ Chicago Sun p7 Mr 12 '50 500w

"The author's generally leftist bias leads him into some very questionable judgments. . . Mr. Lania's book will fulfill a useful purpose if it is read with a good many question marks and dissents. It would be a rather dangerous guide to American foreign policy and European political trends if it were taken straight, without any diluting mixture of doubt or scepticism." W. H. Chamberlin

— + Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 26 '50 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '50

Foreign Affairs 28:676 Jl '50 20w

Kirkus 17:667 D 1 '49 170w

Reviewed by W. H. Hale

Nation 170:351 Ap 15 '50 800w

Reviewed by H. W. Baehr

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Mr 12 '50 700w

HERRMANN, LAZAR—Continued

"A breezy and sometimes superficial book that owes what merits it has to the author's intimate knowledge of the countries he writes about."
New Yorker 26:103 Mr 4 '50 160w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 20 '50 1050w

"This seems to me the most acute of the many studies of that continent made by American reporters since World War II. This is due to the fact that the author knows so thoroughly what he is talking about." E. A. Mowrer
+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 Mr 18 '50 650w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 Mr '50

HERSEY, JOHN RICHARD. The wall. 632p $4 Knopf
50-5697

The wall of the title refers to the enclosure which the Germans built to confine the Jews in the Warsaw ghetto. This long novel purports to be based on the work of a contemporary diarist, and on other buried records. It tells the story of the horrors endured by a few of these half million Jews, and ends with the rescue of forty of them who had escaped thru the sewers.

"The coarseness, the squirming torture, the degradation of finely attuned people from disease, filth, hunger, and no privacy, the savagery of the man hunts,—these are conveyed and strained through the compassion of the diarist. The words are not brutal or obscene in themselves: it is the feeling which tells the story. I feel as if I had been living for a long time in this book, although actually my reading of it consumed less than ten days. I find it a searching, heroic story, and so will others if they approach it as a story of humanity transcending horror." Edward Weeks
Atlantic 185:72 Mr '50 900w

Booklist 46:194; 219 F 15 '50; Mr 1 '50

Bookmark 9:160 Ap '50 80w

Reviewed by G. J. Wood
Canadian Forum 30:45 My '50 280w

"This complicated telling has its drawbacks; innumerable short excerpts, broken-off conversations, almost confusing rapid scene changes and, on nearly every page, cross references to other entries. Hersey might stand the charge of crowding in too many characters. Yet after subtracting all these minuses there does emerge a novel that is real and human. . . A ponderous novel, not to be taken up lightly."
+ — Cath World 171:71 Ap '50 250w

" 'The Wall' has all those qualities of timelessness and universality which distinguish the genuine work of art. Its publication assures Hersey a place on any list of great living writers." Emmett Dedmon
+ Chicago Sun p7 F 26 '50 550w

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 26 '50 600w

"A conscientious blend of close research, deft reporting, nimble mimetics, and compassionate understanding. It has its moving moments and exciting passages, and even a hint of a pungent and flavorful milieu. But the insights, the power, the dimensions, the self-contained vitality that enables a novel to outlive its salad days on the best-seller lists—these 'The Wall' does not have." Theodore Kalem
+ — Christian Science Monitor p5 Mr 11 '50 1450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '50

"The Wall is not without fault, but here surely is a case where charity can cover a multitude of sins. And The Wall abounds in charity while its literary shortcomings are minor. By succeeding brilliantly, even if not absolutely, at the technical level, John Hersey has shown conclusively that he is a first-rate novelist, a craftsman. And the reverence for human personality, the mark of genuine feeling and compassion on almost every page are themselves an unwitting tribute to a first-rate human being—the author. Here is a novel that arouses faith in faith itself, hope in hope and a real love for charity. That is the highest tribute I can pay it." John Cogley
+ — Commonweal 51:608 Mr 17 '50 1800w

"Hersey's restrained compassionate novel of the last days of the Warsaw Ghetto should be required reading for all. . . In spite of the cruelty, brutality and horror in these pages, the sum total is not choking hatred or despair, but, rather, a flaming tribute to the men and women who triumphed even though they perished." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 26:212 My '50 160w

"This is an extraordinary book, a book that grips the reader despite its length, its apparently fragmentary and episodic format. As one reads, the pattern of the story emerges, the pieces fall into place, the kaleidoscope resolves into an integrated unity."
+ Kirkus 18:1 Ja 1 '50 450w

"Well developed characters. Excellent reading. Highly recommended." H. L. Roth
+ Library J 75:398 Mr 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel
Manchester Guardian p4 O 20 '50 330w

Reviewed by Eliezer Greenberg
Nation 170:231 Mr 11 '50 1350w

"John Hersey is a discriminating and tireless reporter as well as a master showman, and his new book is a journalistic narrative that far outshines its predecessors in diligence, compassion and virtuosity." Robert Hatch
+ New Repub 122:18 Ap 3 '50 1700w

Reviewed by Kingsley Martin
New Statesman & Nation 40:600 D 9 '50 1150w

Reviewed by William Shirer
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 F 26 '50 1900w

"Only a true novelist could breathe warmth, compassion, humor, into what a historian would necessarily have pictured as a stark, hopeless, tragic series of events. Only a sensitive novelist could compel us to embark upon such a fearful adventure as this and remain until the end; you do not 'read' 'The Wall'—you live it—and if the experience is shattering it is infinitely rewarding." Quentin Reynolds
+ N Y Times p1 F 26 '50 1600w

"John Hersey's novel about some Jews in the Warsaw ghetto . . . does not go as deeply into their story as what some of the survivors have written . . . and it is easy to point out defects in his conception of the subject. But surely the great thing to note about this astonishing and very moving book is the quick and affectionate understanding, the superlative human sympathy, the wealth of love itself, with which Mr. Hersey has interested himself in a tradition so different from his own. . . The greatest fault of the book, and one that has been generally true of Mr. Hersey's writing, is his failure to realize the implications of his subject for twentieth-century politics, as an Arthur Koestler or George Orwell might have done." Alfred Kazin
+ — New Yorker 26:96 Mr 4 '50 2850w

"The book is the fiction it purports to be. Yet it is also history, and nearer to the pulse-beat of history than fact can be, which is often true of first-rate fiction. 'The Wall' is a long novel, yes. But you will go a long way before finding any recent fiction as rewarding, for the length and complexity of this book is the length and complexity of life itself." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 26 '50 1550w

" 'The Wall' is a novel based on the martyrdom of Polish Jewry during the Nazi occupation. It is the most complex and brilliant of John Hersey's books so far. It is the best novel I have read in 1950 and it may be the best novel of the year. First of all it is an achievement in scholarship and study in human understanding. . . Its tone is almost too rational, fluid, delicate, and tender. Nevertheless, it is an urgent and remarkable novel on a grand scale, and one which seizes upon our minds and hearts." Maxwell Geismar
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 Mr 4 '50 900w

Reviewed by Marghanita Laski
+ Spec 184:442 N 3 '50 500w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
Survey 86:154 Mr '50 650w

"Working over the cold ashes of Warsaw, on what is in the news sense a dead story, Author Hersey is venturing into the medium of another kind of writer altogether. He is not the first highly skilled reporter to stumble when he tries to create human characters on the correspondent's trusty typewriter."

Time 55:96 Mr 6 '50 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p705 N 10 '50 300w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:158 Je '50 200w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 Mr '50

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel

Yale R n s 39:573 spring '50 1850w

HERVEY, HARRY CLAY. Barracoon. 275p $3 Putnam

50-6899

The scene of this novel is Portuguese Guinea in the 1850s. The principal character is Maria da Castro, who coming to Africa as a bride, learns with horror and growing revulsion the secrets of her husband's trade, the traffic in slavery.

"This is an interesting and rapidly paced novel, full of precise information about the coast and slave buying, moving with more conviction than most stories which depend on such conventional devices." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 28 '50 400w

Kirkus 18:187 Mr 15 '50 190w

"Successful method adds much to good plot and characterization." K. A. Shorey

+ Library J 75:694 Ap 15 '50 90w

"Both the situation and the theme of the novel would have had a fascination for Joseph Conrad. Harry Hervey's telling of the story is both powerful and sensitive." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 30 '50 750w

Reviewed by Alan Abelson

N Y Times p21 My 7 '50 170w

"Mr. Hervey writes good, careful, tightly-knit prose, marred only by an excessive desire for realism which leads to what appears to be an overemphasis on the salivary glands and other anatomical details of his characters." C. W. W.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p17 Je 18 '50 260w

Reviewed by Robert Pick

Sat R of Lit 33:13 Jl 15 '50 280w

HESCHEL, ABRAHAM JOSHUA. The earth is the Lord's; the inner world of the Jew in east Europe; with wood engr. by Ilya Schor. 109p $2.50 Schuman

296 Jews in Europe 50-7183

"As the author says 'This is the story of the life of the Jews in eastern Europe which has come to an end.' For two thousand years the Jews have made their home in Europe. They helped create its civilization. They contributed to its economy, its science, its art, its culture. And now they have been wiped off the face of the earth. This is a memorial to the Jew that is gone—to his religion, to his spirit. In moving language, Dr. Heschel recreates the mind and character of a whole people and of an entire era." Kirkus

Reviewed by Melville Jacobs

Ann Am Acad 270:197 Jl '50 200w

"Dr. Heschel's book is less an historical or critical account than an act of devotion. The publisher's blurb on the dust wrapper is for once not an exaggeration when it describes the book as imbued with 'poetic passion.' Yet, even though seemingly idealized, it explains how it was possible for a tiny minority to survive for so long in the face of savage persecution, until annihilation was raised to the scientific plane." A. Andras

+ Canadian Forum 30:69 Je '50 350w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '50

"Not only Jews, but all who regard the culture of the inner life as important will find this book moving and meaningful."

+ Kirkus 18:57 F 1 '50 120w

"The reader should take as essentially though by no means literally true what Dr. Heschel writes of the vanished Jewry of Poland and its kindred communities, and dismiss the rest as nothing to the purpose. Then he will rise from the book a wiser man, and spiritually refreshed. Ilya Schor's delightful wood engravings in illustration of 'The Earth is the Lord's' derive from the same East European Jewish folk art that pervades the work of a generation of artists renowned through Chagall." Marvin Lowenthal

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Jl 2 '50 550w

Reviewed by Alfred Werner

N Y Times p19 Je 4 '50 420w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 27 '50 160w

"In this volume Dr. Heschel preserves for posterity a world which, after the extermination of six million Jews and the annihilation of the centers of activity, might otherwise be forgotten. One may regret that Dr. Heschel did not include in his book a consideration of the influence his simple folk exerted on the literature, folkways, and speech of those with whom they came in contact and by whom they were influenced in turn." Antoni Gronowicz

Sat R of Lit 33:25 Ag 5 '50 600w

"While Jews will find inspiration in this eloquent essay, Gentiles will find here the best concise account of the Jewish soul."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:293 S '50 260w

HESTON, EDWARD LOUIS. Holy See at work; with a pref. by Samuel, Cardinal Stritch. 188p il $2.50 Bruce pub.

262.13 Papacy 50-8570

"Father Heston's account of the operation of the Holy See is based on long experience. He has been for 14 years a resident of Rome and associated with the work of the Roman Curia through his position as Procurator General of the Congregation of the Holy Cross. He is also superior of the International College of the Holy Cross. His book is a simple description of the work of the various sacred congregations and of such activities as the canonization of a saint and the election of a Pope." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

Booklist 47:5 S 1 '50

Chicago Sun p5 Jl 23 '50 50w

"The language is nontechnical and the style lucid. Catholics are doubly assured of the book's reliability by the imprimatur of Archbishop Kiley of Milwaukee and a laudatory preface by Cardinal Stritch." L. T. Heron

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Jl 16 '50 90w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 20 '50 90w

"This is an extremely useful volume, with photographs and a good index." A. F. W.

+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 N 4 '50 270w

HETENYI, MIKLOS IMRE, ed. Handbook of experimental stress analysis. 1077p il $15 Wiley

624.171 Strains and stresses 50-13643

"The handbook represents an attempt by 31 outstanding stress analysts to provide a reference book covering all important experimental methods for measuring stresses and strains. Besides describing the various techniques, the authors present the mathematical background necessary to a full understanding of the methods." (Eng N) Index.

Booklist 47:56 O 1 '50

Eng N 145:44 O 5 '50 80w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:1511 S 15 '50 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:75 S '50

HEUMAN, WILLIAM. Fighting five. 189p $2.50 Morrow

50-13682

For disciplinary purposes Jay Blaisdell had to transfer from State University to Colville College. Jay bitterly resented the change but the discovery that Colville's basketball team was good and its coach brilliant compensated him and led to his own character development.

HEUMAN, WILLIAM—Continued

Kirkus 18:388 Jl 15 '50 100w

"Holds interest all the way, and although the story is rather improbable, the dialogue and characterization (especially of the coach) are excellent. Recommended for boys 12 to 16." Lillian Morrison
+ Library J 75:1838 O 15 '50 70w

"Although the story is really slight, the basketball is excellent, the characterizations of the coach and his men convincing, and the humor refreshing." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 22 '50 110w

Reviewed by Noel Andrews
N Y Times p26 D 10 '50 60w

Reviewed by W. R. White
San Francisco Chronicle p5 N 12 '50 50w

HEWES, MRS AGNES (DANFORTH). Hundred bridges to go. 275p $2.50 Dodd 50-10682

A novel for older boys based on the story of the building of the Alaska highway. The author's husband, Dr Laurence Hewes, "for almost thirty years directed Federal road construction in the eleven Western States, Alaska, and Hawaii. He was the direct representative of the Commissioner of Public Roads in the construction of the Canadian-Alaska Highway."

Booklist 47:159 D 15 '50

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 50w

"Boys interested in engineering should like it, but it may be too detailed for some casual readers. Of special interest to the Pacific Northwest. Grades 7-9." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 75:2019 N 15 '50 110w

'A gripping tale for boys." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 31 '50 50w

"Occasionally there seem to be too much detail and a confusing number of engineers but for the most part this is an absorbing chronicle with exciting episodes and much drama inherent in the gigantic task. The author . . . has skillfully conveyed the flavor of the raw camps, the raging rivers, the great empty land, and the spirit of the men who looked ahead one hundred bridges." F. C. Smith
+ N Y Times p26 D 10 '50 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 19 '50 120w

"One of the notable books for older boys and girls this year." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 D 3 '50 600w

HEYEL, CARL, ed. Foreman's handbook; 2d ed. completely revised. 463p il $4.50 McGraw 658.3124 Foremen. Factory management. Efficiency, Industrial 49-49062

"This edition of 'The foreman's handbook' is a completely revised version of the original work which appeared in 1943 [Book Review Digest 1943]. Statistical and topical references have been brought up to date; the chapter on economics has been largely recast; and the chapter on labor legislation, as would be natural in view of the march of events, has been completely rewritten. All the other chapters have been examined critically by their authors and the editor for necessary changes, and an entirely new section on Work simplification has been added." Pref

---

Booklist 46:202 F 15 '50

"Highly recommended." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:47 Ja 1 '50 100w

HEYER, GEORGETTE (MRS G. R. ROUGIER). Grand Sophy. 307p $3 Putnam
50-9908

A novel set in the Regency days in London. The Grand Sophy, educated on the Continent, is given a home with her conservative cousins in London. To their surprise and horror Sophy is almost six feet tall, and very forthright, managing, and beautiful. However, her managing turned out to be the best thing that had ever happened to several people.

Booklist 47:61 O 1 '50

"There is more to this than superb entertainment, for Miss Heyer's art is a facile and limber one. It is no small feat to make Regency London come to life, and to make its characters speak and act as did the people of that time and place, without too much quaintness or strangeness of manner. But what am I saying? It's a highly enjoyable story; that's enough." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 22 '50 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

"Amidst the fustian of the period Sophie's naturalness contrasts with the simpers and high flights, and the puckers and sad tangles are routed in a lighthearted manner. Effervescent."
+ Kirkus 18:482 Ag 15 '50 170w

"Highly entertaining in a madcap way." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p33 O 8 '50 160w

"A readable, if somewhat overstuffed, novel."
+ New Yorker 26:133 O 7 '50 60w

"The Regency period is peculiarly Miss Heyer's own, and 'The Grand Sophy' is one of her very best. No one is more adept at combining the amusing idiom of the time with an undated wit to make dialogue that crackles with life. No one creates characters so entirely without anachronisms yet so convincingly flesh and blood." Elswyth Thane
+ Sat R of Lit 33:15 D 16 '50 330w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p4D O 22 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 N '50

HEYERDAHL, THOR. Kon-Tiki; across the Pacific by raft; tr. by F. H. Lyon [Eng title: Kon-Tiki expedition: by raft across the South seas]. 304p il $4 Rand McNally
910.4 Voyages and travels. Pacific ocean. Ethnology—Polynesia 50-9489

Some years ago the author, an ethnologist, conceived the theory that Polynesia may have been originally settled by men who crossed the 4000 miles of ocean from Peru in rafts made of balsa logs. When this theory was not accepted by other scientists he set about to prove at least one part of it—that a balsa raft built as men of the stone age could build it, could make the trip. This book contains the story of how he and five others built the raft and traveled in it from Peru to a small island east of Tahiti. Index.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 186:80 O '50 600w

Booklist 47:2; 11 S 1 '50

Bookmark 10:4 O '50 40w

"No brief review can give any idea of the tremendous experience that this book allows the reader to share in. Technically, the writing is fine, part of the credit for which must go to F. H. Lyon, translator from the Norwegian. Rand McNally have also given us a beautiful piece of bookmaking." D. B. Theall
+ Cath World 172:236 D '50 360w

"The whole story—from its beginnings in Heyerdahl's theory, through the long voyage and in the experiences after he was ashore—is as great an adventure as it is possible to imagine. That means it's as good as 'Robinson Crusoe,' plus the fact that 'Kon-Tiki' is true." Emmett Dedmon
+ Chicago Sun p6 S 5 '50 750w

"This review can easily be written in four words: 'Wow! What a book!' It has spine chilling, nerve tingling, spirit lifting adventure on every page and in every one of its 80 action photografs. It is the fiction of a Conrad or a Melville brought to reality. It might be added that the writing is of itself worthy of either pen." W. M. Krogman
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 3 '50 500w

"Beware! Fair warning! If you pick up this book in the morning, your day will be ruined. If you open it in the evening, you'll get no sleep that night. Kon-Tiki will cling to you like a South sea jellyfish, pursue you like a school of dolphins, sweep you onward and away from your normal pursuits as irresistibly as the Humboldt current."
+ Christian Century 67:1138 S 27 '50 500w

"While this is not the first time that a log has been turned into literature, it has seldom been done so superbly. The book is cast in terms of men-against-the-sea, which gives it a general rather than particular appeal. Specialists in archaeology, ethnology, icthyology, and other fields will be among its avid readers." Roland Sawyer
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 S 7 '50 650w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 26:502 N '50 90w

"A completely unorthodox viewpoint finds convincing claims in a story that ranks with the best of the classics of adventure."
+ Kirkus 18:492 Ag 15 '50 220w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:1664 O 1 '50 150w

"Regarded merely as an adventure, this voyage of six hardy Norsemen challenges both wonder and admiration; and the story is nowhere spoilt in the telling." H. D. N.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 11 '50 240w

"Mr. Heyerdahl's account of the voyage, admirably translated by Mr. F. H. Lyon, is the most fascinating description of intelligent courage that I have read." R. C. Wright
+ New Statesman & Nation 39:380 Ap 1 '50 650w

"It is the deep connection with nature and a tremendous simplicity that makes this book great as few books of our time are great. . . Its pages reflect a minimum of philosophical overtones. But on every page there is a perceptiveness of the sea and the sky that has delicacy and sureness." Alfred Stanford
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 S 3 '50 1500w

"Between the author and his excellent translator, the lively thoughts and the living words have been provided to turn a madcap stunt into a venture of the civilized spirit. Hakluyt would certainly grant that these were the kind of men, and their voyage of the sort, 'which must bring us to the certain and full discovery of the world.'" Harry Gilroy
+ N Y Times p1 S 3 '50 1100w

"This is an enthralling book, and I don't think I can be very far off in calling it the most absorbing sea tale of our time." Hamilton Basso
+ New Yorker 26:117 S 16 '50 950w

"Escape reading? Well I suppose. But I shouldn't be troubled about that. That expression is not the term of opprobrium it used to be a few years ago when it was first invented. We need some 'escape,' all of us, in today's kind of world. And when you can find it in a true narrative, rather than in a cooked-up costume novel of the sword-and-bosom variety —well, you've found the best kind of all. One note: Though this is an adult book, written for adults, it's one that any older boy would read with enthusiasm." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 S 3 '50 1600w

"The first ninety-two pages of this book and the last ten are downright dull. But Heyerdahl's limitations as a writer are forgotten once the nine balsa logs, held together only by ropes, finally reach the timeless Humboldt Current. The book then becomes a vivid account of sea and raft and great arching sky. More than that, this is a book to make one proud that we still have in the world six young men who would venture upon the ocean on a raft, merely to prove an idea. It is good to know that such courage still exists." J. A. Michener
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:12 S 23 '50 1350w

"The voyage itself is a new honour for Norway, already rich in such exploits, and men of every nation will rejoice in Thor Heyerdahl's high-spirited, gallant and modest-minded book." Arthur Ransome
+ Spec 184:434 Mr 31 '50 1000w
Time 56:112 S 18 '50 550w

"Given the imaginative birth of this adventure, its brilliant audacity, its gambler's throw with death, its resource in peril and its success, any book about it would perhaps write itself. Mr. Heyerdahl has made it a superb adventure story which all the world may, and probably will, read. He has woven into many pages a particular enchantment which proves him a writer as well as a dreamer and man of action, and his translator a skilful interpreter."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p216 Ap 7 '50 1850w

HIBBEN, FRANK CUMMINGS. Hunting American bears; il. by Paul Bransom. 247p $5 Lippincott

799.2774446 Bears. Hunting Agr50-460

There are, the author says, over a hundred species and subspecies of American bears, "occasionally loveable, often exasperating, sometimes dangerous, but always interesting." In this volume he describes many bears he has hunted both as types and as individuals, interlarding his informational passages with anecdotes and hunting tales.

Booklist 47:57 O 1 '50

"Mr. Hibben, who thrilled hunters with his first hunting book about mountain lions, obviously has repeated his success with this well written 247 page work about such interesting characters as the giant brown bear of the north, a phantom silvertip, the black bear with the huge feet and other members of the tribe." Bob Becker
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 10 '50 220w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:1907 N 1 '50 70w

"Whoever finds his imagination ignited and his thirst for knowledge fed by narratives of big game shooting that monthly fill the slick pages of American outdoor magazines will be satisfied with Mr. Frank C. Hibben's 'Hunting American Bears.' . . For the truth about big bears one must still go back to William H. Wright, who with controlled sympathy and large knowledge wrote 'The Grizzly Bear.' Ernest Thompson Seton's 'The Biography of a Grizzly' is partly fiction, but it 'lies like truth.' 'Hunting American Bears' is to nature what soap opera is to humanity." J. F. Dobie
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 S 24 '50 600w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 12 '50 700w

"Professor Frank Hibben has put together a bear book as fresh and arresting as the hour-old print of a grizzly's paw. Some of the experiences are Professor Hunter Hibben's own: he has tracked the varmints through the Southwest and in Alaska. Others he gleaned secondhand from such fast-trailing U.S. hunters as Ben Lilly and Alaska's Allen Hasselborg."
+ Time 56:120 S 18 '50 700w

HIBBERT, ELEANOR (JEAN PLAIDY, pseud). Goldsmith's wife. 325p $3 Appleton

Shore, Jane—Fiction 50-213

Historical novel which relates the career of beautiful Jane Shore, a mercer's daughter and wife of the goldsmith Will Shore, who became the mistress of Edward the IV of England.

Kirkus 18:70 F 1 '50 250w

Reviewed by Arthur Leonard
N Y Times p29 Mr 12 '50 200w

HIBBERT, ELEANOR—Continued

"At about the time that Jane drops from favor at court, Miss Plaidy seems to lose interest in her, and the last few pages of the book limp awkwardly along to a finish that is moralistic without being edifying, touching, or even really necessary."
New Yorker 26:103 Mr 11 '50 80w

HIDY, RALPH WILLARD. House of Baring in American trade and finance; English merchant bankers at work, 1763-1861. 631p il $7.50 Harvard univ. press

332.1542 Baring brothers & company, limited, London 49-11255

"The firm of Baring Brothers & Company, founded in London in 1763, still carries on its traditional business of acceptance and investment banking, but from 1828 to 1861 it was notable for its dominant position in financing American trade and securities. This is a detailed study of the history, policies and methods of its first hundred years, in the period of transition from mercantile to industrial capitalism." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by C. W. Wright
Am Econ R 40:437 Je '50 600w

"For the reader who has the patience to follow deliberation and action as they unfold, the book is a rewarding picture of what it took to gain and retain the repute the Barings enjoyed, also of what an 'international banker' can really be like, and finally of how easily the best laid and most carefully considered plans of private (or public) entrepreneurs can be confounded by a 'multiplicity of variables.' At its best the book is an invaluable addition to our understanding of the unfolding of the modern Atlantic economy; for the rest it will be a very useful reference work on many aspects of the fluctuations of the mid-nineteenth century." Herbert Heaton
+ Am Hist R 55:631 Ap '50 750w

Reviewed by F. A. Shannon
Ann Am Acad 269:157 My '50 280w

"This is not only a good business history but it is the most detailed account that we have of investment banking activities in the important pre-Civil War period. It deserves a place on the historian's shelf beside the classic works of R. C. Catterall, Davis R. Dewey, Leland Jenks, Cleona Lewis, and Reginald McGrane, for it answers many financial questions that they had to leave unanswered." D. L. Kemmerer
+ Current Hist 18:97 F '50 1200w

"This book should stand as a landmark in business history and financial history, for it provides a more intimate picture of investment operations than we have heretofore had in the important pre-Civil War period." D. L. Kemmerer
+ J Pol Econ 58:271 Je '50 800w

"The members of the family, as partners, selected their associates from personal knowledge, and they always had direct knowledge of their customers. Story is intensely interesting from this standpoint, as well-known names appear at every turn. Furthermore, the author has a flair for American history and the combination is more than attractive." A. B. Lindsay
+ Library J 74:1088 Ag '49 180w

"It is valuable not only for the unique eminence of the firm, but more for the light it throws on the role of the English banking community in American economic development." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 74:1756 N 15 '49 100w

Manchester Guardian p4 My 9 '50 110w

"The wide variety of special groups to which the study will appeal is impressive. Students of banking, foreign exchange and trade, public finance, and business cycles and forecasting will all find points of interest and value. . . While a full understanding of some of the material requires technical knowledge, the general picture presented will interest the layman as well as the trained economist."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:57 Mr '50 240w

HIGDON, ARCHIE, and others. Engineering mechanics. 505p il $6.50; to schools $5 Prentice-Hall

620.1 Mechanics, Applied 50-5239

"In this text emphasis is placed on an understanding of the principles employed in the solution of problems rather than on a rote process of substitution in numerous formulas. The authors believe that every teacher of engineering mechanics needs constantly to keep in his consciousness the fact that mechanics is a prelude to engineering design in which innumerable complicating empirical considerations are superimposed upon the relatively simple situations encountered in mechanics." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 46:311 Je 15 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:700 Ap 15 '50 50w

HIGHET, GILBERT. Art of teaching. 291p $3.50 Knopf

371.3 Teaching 50-9306

"This is a book on the methods of teaching. It does not discuss the subjects which are taught (or should be taught) in schools, in colleges, and elsewhere. . . This is not a book of educational theory, but a book of suggestions drawn from practice. It is called The Art of Teaching because I believe that teaching is an art, not a science." (Pref) Index.

"Genial, eminently practical, and (in the best sense) inspirational manual on the difficult subject of pedagogy."
+ Atlantic 186:90 O '50 190w

Booklist 47:88 N 1 '50

"Gilbert Highet has now undertaken to explain the art of which he is a most distinguished professor. He brings to this task all the wit, elegance, and profound understanding that make his writing at once an illumination and a delight." Milton Crane
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 D 10 '50 500w

Reviewed by W. P. Tryon
Christian Science Monitor p16 O 13 '50 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '50

"Civilized, stimulating."
+ Kirkus 18:448 Ag 1 '50 160w

"Every so often we get a book on teaching that reawakens us to the essential qualities of the good teacher. These qualities have remained constant since Socrates' time. This book is a welcome relief from the clinical textbooks on methods of teaching. . . Should be on all teachers reading lists." C. J. Roth
+ Library J 75:1400 S 1 '50 140w

"Mr. Highet . . . has attempted to supply the want of a good book on the general principles of teaching. If there has been such a book it has been lost to sight among the prolix and jejune manuals compiled by what Paul Shorey used to call the talking delegates of educational science. . . His high-minded attitude toward the teacher's vocation is wholesome and needed, but unless it is tempered with a harder sense of actuality it will lack bite and cutting edge." George Genzmer
— + Nation 171:291 S 30 '50 900w

"Mr. Highet could not have a more hostile witness than this deponent, who nevertheless here publicly deposes that 'The Art of Teaching,' although strictly pedagogical, is studded with wit, wisdom and, marvelous to relate, gayety!" G. W. Johnson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 24 '50 1050w

"Books about teaching are to the general public a drug on the market, even a sleeping potion. Not this one. It is the work of a scholar, and a humanist. It is written by a man who has studied and taught in widely diverse places and institutions. . . What is not least important is that Mr. Highet has that perhaps special gift of British-trained scholars of explaining important things simply without being pompous or dull." Irwin Edman
+ N Y Times p6 O 1 '50 1450w

Reviewed by W. R. White
San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 15 '50 400w

School & Society 72:270 O 21 '50 30w

HIGHET, GILBERT. Classical tradition; Greek and Roman influences on Western literature. 763p $6 Oxford

809 Literature—History and criticism. Literature, Comparative 49-11655

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by Milton Crane
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 My 14 '50 400w

"Mr. Highet doesn't quite escape the dangers of comprehensiveness. Though his style is easy and buoyant, it isn't always clear whether he's writing history, criticism, or a textbook. He overwhelms with detail, some of it too obvious. . . Here and there we find emotional discrepancies, glib transitions, strained, plausible or dubious applications of great principles. Probably they occur because Mr. Highet tried to get too much in. They are minor flaws. The Classical Tradition is a more than considerable achievement." Giles Romilly
+ — New Statesman & Nation 39:171 F 11 '50 1500w

"Mr. Highet is a learned Scotsman who combines intellectual practicality with aesthetic and moral idealism. With a wide and varied knowledge of comparative literature from Homer to Mallarmé, he always knows how to make his point. As a writer, he is vigorous and direct, often eloquent, and sometimes witty." Edmund Wilson
+ New Yorker 26:97 Mr 11 '50 1150w

Reviewed by Horace Gregory
Poetry 76:220 Jl '50 400w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ja 22 '50 220w

Reviewed by C. A. Robinson
+ Sat R of Lit 33:21 Mr 4 '50 500w

"It is Professor Highet's appreciation of good literature in many countries which gives a special charm to his book. He has, as is his right, his prejudices. To some he may seem less than fair to Gibbon and even to Milton, and more than fair to some recent writers whose work has indeed a superficial brilliance but may be thought to lack a truly classical strength. But we cannot expect to agree on every point with a critic who sets out to say something about most of the great works of man."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p12 Ja 6 '50 2500w

HIGHSMITH, PATRICIA. Strangers on a train. 299p $2.75 Harper
50-6429

A novel of suspense and intrigue. Guy, a young architect, traveling to Texas to try to persuade his wife to give him a divorce, meets a wealthy psychopath with a deep hatred for his father. The young man offers to murder Guy's wife, if Guy in turn will murder the hated father, and the stage is set for tragedy.

"Miss Highsmith does as well as she can but her hero is too supine to engage one's sympathetic attention and the fairly improbable proceedings drag like an anchor." James Sandoe
— Chicago Sun p6 Mr 31 '50 90w

"Despite incredibility, this is a superbly revolting nerve shocker with relentless detecting its brightest quality." Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Ap 23 '50 60w

Kirkus 18:72 F 1 '50 130w

"As one reads it page by page throughout a full length novel, one is held by an evil kind of suspense. It becomes more believable than one would suppose—a rarely perceptive study in criminal psychology."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 Ap 16 '50 260w

"On its simplest terms, her book is a tense, well-written hare-and-hounds thriller. On a slightly higher level, it attempts to be a complex examination of character under stress and a sort of parable of good and evil warring for the human spirit. Although it overreaches itself a bit it is an exciting, readable first novel." Hillis Mills
+ — N Y Times p29 My 21 '50 180w

"A horrifying picture of an oddly engaging young man, who has all the complexes you ever heard of. Highly recommended."
+ New Yorker 26:126 Mr 18 '50 140w

Springf'd Republican p12C Ap 16 '50 60w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 My '50

HILDEBRAND, DIETRICH VON. Fundamental moral attitudes; tr. from the German by Alice M. Jourdain. 72p $1.75 Longmans

179.9 Ethics. Virtue 50-5647

"These lectures deal with the natural virtues of reverence, faithfulness, awareness of responsibility, truthfulness and goodness without any reference to the theological basis for such virtues. The book is simply written and so may be encompassed by the average reader who would become discouraged from following the intricate pattern laid down in many volumes on Christian ethics." Kirkus

---

"Short but wisdom packed treatise." J. T. Clune
+ Cath World 171:78 Ap '50 320w

"A series of gentle essays on true sanctity which manages to disengage the idea of sanctity from perverted notions of morality; one could only wish them less gentle, and more intellectually and critically active among the many problems which their intrinsic truths suggest." J. H. Johnston
+ Commonweal 51:635 Mr 24 '50 440w

"The author is a Catholic, a professor at Fordham University, but this treatise would be acceptable to those of any faith."
+ Kirkus 18:170 Mr 15 '50 80w

HILL, CHRISTOPHER. Lenin and the Russian revolution. (Teach yourself history lib) 245p $2 Macmillan

947.08 Lenin, Nikolai. Russia—History—Revolution, 1917- 50-7052

"The book is biographical history—an interpretation of the October Revolution in terms of the role of Lenin and the Bolsheviks. Lenin as an individual receives little space but Lenin as a theoretician, organizer, and leader pervades every page. The major contribution of Hill's little book is its thorough, simple presentation of the whys and wherefores of the Bolshevik program, tactics, and victory." (Ann Am Acad) Index.

Reviewed by O. H. Radkey
Am Hist R 56:204 O '50 240w

"Through his Lenin and the Russian Revolution Christopher Hill has made a valuable addition both to the literature on Russian history and to the rapidly growing 'Teach Yourself History' series. In keeping with the aim of this series, the author has presented in a scholarly yet popular manner an important period of history through the person of its most important figure." Sidney Harcave
+ Ann Am Acad 271:229 S '50 360w

Foreign Affairs 29:157 O '50 10w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 My 21 '50 40w

"Christopher Hill, Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford, presents with more courage than consistency a eulogy of Lenin that few Americans will read with patience. . . This brash volume is the least scholarly, least discriminating, least judicious and least documented of the five. But as Lenin was not the first to observe, 'Everyone acts according to his lights.'" Geoffrey Bruun
Sat R of Lit 33:19 Jl 15 '50 140w

HILL, MABEL BETSY. Enchanted playhouse; story and pictures. 63p $1.75 Lippincott 50-8480

An easy-reading story about the small twin sisters, Patty and Polly. The twins wanted a playhousé, but every time they fixed one up something happened to it. Then a hurricane brought them just the playhouse they longed for.

"This is an easy reading, simply told story with pictures which show just how the playhouses looked." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 S 10 '50 110w

Kirkus 18:465 Ag 15 '50 90w

"Recommended." F. M. Hensey
+ Library J 75:1416 S 1 '50 70w

"The gentle little tale, with most natural children and a fine country feeling, has a timeless quality of little girls everywhere playing with tea-sets and creating their own small homes for a happy pretend life. Proof of the wide appeal of this writer's themes is that all her books have recently been sold for English editions." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 10 '50 180w

Springf'd Republican p12C S 17 '50 120w

HILL, RALPH NADING. Contrary country; a chronicle of Vermont; il. by George Daly. 309p $3.75 Rinehart
974.3 Vermont—History 50-12397

Vermont is the contrary country of the title. In this chronicle of Vermont oddities the author of The Winooski (Book Review Digest 1949) pictures the characteristics of the inhabitants of this individualistic state. Index.

Booklist 47:133 D 1 '50

Reviewed by Edmund Fuller
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 19 '50 450w

Reviewed by Pearl Strachan
Christian Science Monitor p20 D 15 '50 360w

"An easy, highly-readable style lends considerable charm and interest to this colorful excursion into local American folkways and makes the book comparable to those of Carl Carmer who 'discovered' the author."
+ Kirkus 18:404 Jl 15 '50 200w

"All in all, Mr. Hill's is a rousing story, often exciting, occasionally heart-warming. Vermonters, who really like to read about themselves, ought to enjoy it. Adopted Vermonters, whose numbers increase yearly in season, will find it excellent entertainment and they will also learn a great deal about the rambunctious crew who made Vermont what it is." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 5 '50 900w

"Mr. Hill is at his best when he is working with individuals. His writing becomes strained only when he tries to weave in marginal material, such as the story of Long Pond or the Vershire Riot. He has produced a fascinating book, rich both in folklore and history." R. A. B.
+ N Y Times p45 N 12 '50 360w

"Despite a certain sledge-hammer cuteness of style, the book is a useful contribution to Americana, and it will reassure philologists interested in the survival of the strong verb ('het,' for 'heated,' is one) that Vermont is still holding on."
+ — New Yorker 26:191 N 18 '50 150w

HILL, REUBEN LORENZO. Families under stress; adjustment to the crises of war separation and reunion; with chapters in collaboration with Elise Boulding [and others]. 443p $4.50 Harper
392 Family. World war, 1939-1945—Psychological aspects 49-50114

"During the war many families were faced with temporary, sometimes permanent, disunion when husbands and fathers were called to war services. This latest socio-psychological study of 135 Iowa families attempts to evaluate the range and extent of adjustment undergone by families in meeting the crisis-situation provoked by wartime separation and reunion. . . The final section of the book is a useful contribution toward making explicit one prevailing viewpoint of the implications for national and local policy offered by 'the critical situation in family life today.' " (San Francisco Chronicle) Selected bibliography. Index.

"In something less than four hundred and fifty pages the author has put together a work which is stimulating and enlightening to the student of the family, challenging to those concerned with the techniques of social research, and goading to those who accept unquestioningly our unconcern about this basic unit in society. One can ask for little more." E. L. Koos
+ Am J Soc 56:90 Jl '50 650w

"Although basically a serious research study cutting through pathways on a number of frontiers of family research, the material is so fresh and vivid that it reads like a human interest story, as indeed it is." E. M. Duvall
+ Ann Am Acad 268:243 Mr '50 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 26 '50 340w

Reviewed by R. S. Cavan
Social Forces 29:102 O '50 950w

"This volume is technically sophisticated in method, but stylistically clear, although the reviewer confesses to a distaste for the use of contractions in non-idiosyncratic prose." M. M. Gordon
+ Social Studies 41:371 D '50 700w

HILL, WILLIAM RYLAND. Electronics in engineering. 274p $3.50 McGraw 621.38 Electronics 50-292

"A relatively short introduction to basic electronic principles and devices. It is intended for advanced engineering students who do not intend to specialize in the field but who wish a fundamental understanding of it. Despite the brevity of the book, the discussion of important points is adequately full, and the exposition is usually illustrated by worked examples. Besides its intended use, the book should be of value to graduate engineers who wish to acquire information about electronics in home study. The author is a member of the faculty of the Department of Electronic Engineering at the University of Washington." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:110 Ja 15 '50 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:21 Mr '50

HILLMAN, ARTHUR. Community organization and planning. 378p $4 Macmillan 323.35 Community life. City planning 50-5240

A digest of literature on community planning. "It does not attempt to measure with any degree of empirical accuracy the extent of planning or its actual accomplishments in comparable American communities. It does get into processes—how planning is carried out—in a general way, for the student of community." (Social Forces) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

School & Society 71:47 Ja 21 '50 40w

"At times Dr. Hillman goes beneath the glowing clichés of the annual reports and brochures of agencies devoted to planning, and when he does, he makes a real contribution to planning literature." Floyd Hunter
+ Social Forces 28:451 My '50 350w

"In general, the book should prove more useful to sociologists than to other social scientists." J. M. Ray
+ Social Studies 41:377 D '50 230w

HILLS, LEE, and SULLIVAN, TIMOTHY J. Facsimile. 319p il $3.50 McGraw

621.3842 Radio facsimile 49-11699

"The second book published on facsimile within recent months. Its appearance makes available more literature in book form on an industry that is still practically unknown to the public than is to be had on many well-established industries. The reason is probably that facsimile—which is short for radio transmission of printed and pictorial matter, especially miniature newspapers—shows signs of becoming a major industry comparable to radio and television. Some of the space in this book is given to the history of facsimile inventions and to the principles of facsimile transmitters and receivers, but most of it is taken up with descriptions of the writing, editing, and making-up of newspaper copy for facsimile transmission. The authors are associated with the Miami Herald, a newspaper which broadcast facsimile editions as early as 1947." (Library J) Glossary. Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:110 Ja 15 '50 140w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:103 N '49

HINDUS, MILTON. Crippled giant; a bizarre adventure in contemporary letters. 159p $2 Boars Head bks, 110 Lafayette st, N.Y. 13

B or 92 Destouches, Louis Ferdinand (Louis Ferdinand Céline, pseud)

"This collection of notes, journal entries and essays is described in its subtitle as 'a bizarre adventure in contemporary letters.' It is surely that, yet primarily the little book represents an adventure in anti-Semitism, an acute, painful, shocking encounter between a shy, sensitive Jew and a paranoid Jew-baiter." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) The author is professor of English at Brandeis university in Massachusetts.

"A raw, stinging document, one that slaps the mind as it kicks the stomach; yet the most dreadful fact it reveals is this—Celine still thinks he is right." Thomas Sugrue
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ap 9 '50 650w

Reviewed by Philip Burnham
N Y Times p26 F 26 '50 500w

HINE, CHARLES RAYMOND. Machine tools for engineers. 355p il $3.50 McGraw

621.9 Machine tools 50-5762

"This is the first of two volumes on manufacturing processes evolved from courses developed at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. The second volume, on casting and forming, is in preparation. The aim of [this text] is to introduce the student to the fundamentals of machine tools and production processes and thus to develop a background for all engineering students. . . It gives a descriptive and analytical treatment of all types of machine tools, how they are used, what they can do, and what their limitations are. Some of the ways in which machine tools affect design of any product are also discussed." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 46:257 Ap 15 '50
Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '50
N Y New Tech Bks 35:41 My '50

HINE, REGINALD LESLIE. Charles Lamb and his Hertfordshire. 374p il $3.75 Macmillan

B or 92 Lamb, Charles. Hertfordshire, England 50-7053

A study of the life of Charles Lamb, especially that part of it connected with Hertfordshire. The author lived in Hertfordshire and was an ardent student and admirer of Charles Lamb. He has based his work on original family archives, among them a household account book of Blakesware, a number of Lamb's unpublished letters, and one of Lamb's commonplace books. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. A. Clark
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 28 '50 400w

"Hine does not stop this side idolatry in presenting the gentle, bizarre little man whose impossible puns he praises as readily as a deathless observation from the Essays of Elia. But he has written a book, nevertheless, which serious scholars of Charles and Mary Lamb and of the Coleridge-Wordsworth circle will find indispensable." J. L. Davis
+ Christian Century 67:925 Ag 2 '50 900w

"No one but a scholar with a deeply appreciative understanding of his fellow men in general, as well as a love of this particular subject, could have written 'Charles Lamb and His Hertfordshire.' Truly is it an instance in which author and subject seem to mingle in a perfection of sympathy which sheds much new light on the character of England's greatest essayist." Leila Flower
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Jl 15 '50 800w

Reviewed by E. C. Dunn
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 My 14 '50 850w

Reviewed by Allan MacDonald
+ N Y Times p5 S 3 '50 600w

Reviewed by Ralph Abercrombie
Spec 184:22 Ja 6 '50 700w

"There are perhaps, in Charles Lamb and his Hertfordshire, small errors of fact and emphasis. . . But minor errors are minor matters and Mr. Hine has added major details to our knowledge of Charles Lamb. He has brought to light many documents and facts, [but] far more important and far more appropriate to the memory of Lamb than the scholarship, care and research that have gone into the book, Mr. Hine has handled his material with imagination and enthusiasm and has allowed his own cheerful and uncommon personality to 'plantigrade' with Elia."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p768 N 25 '49 1200w

HINKLE, THOMAS CLARK. Dapple Gray. 192p $2 Morrow

Horses—Legends and stories 50-7857

The long continued feud between a big grizzly bear and the cowboys on a western ranch, reaches its climax in a battle between the bear and the once-wild colt gentled by Charley Pratt, youngest of the cowboys. Dapple Gray's intelligence, swiftness and sheer strength save Charley's life and make him the victor over the bear.

Kirkus 18:304 Je 1 '50 90w

"In spite of the threadbare plot and author's limitations in style, there is a flavor of the old days in the West, and the feeling of suspense and danger is well sustained. For libraries where Hinkle is stocked." M. A. Herr
Library J 75:1310 Ag '50 80w

"It is Mr. Hinkle's twenty-sixth book about dogs or horses in the West of his own boyhood. Its authenticity and the theme of pursuit give it a wide age appeal." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 6 '50 150w

HINKLEY, LAURA LOIS. The Stevensons: Louis and Fanny. 360p $3.75 Hastings house

B or 92 Stevenson, Robert Louis. Stevenson, Fanny (Van de Grift) Osbourne 50-9588

The double biography of Robert Louis Stevenson and his American wife, Fanny. "This work covers Louis's childhood in Scotland and Fanny's very different upbringing in frontier Indianapolis; it describes their meeting in France, their marriage in San Francisco, after Fanny's divorce, and their peregrinations around the world until Stevenson's death, in Samoa, in 1894." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

HINKLEY, L. L.—Continued

Booklist 47:94 N 1 '50

Reviewed by J. A. Clark
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 5 '50 400w

Reviewed by DeLancey Ferguson
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 24 '50 800w

"Miss Hinkley's biography . . . has the breathless air of being barely able to keep up with the Stevensons' innumerable arrivals and departures. . . In concentrating on Stevenson, Miss Hinkley has never forgotten his wife. . . Readers who had supposed (with several earlier biographers) that Mrs. Stevenson was an indominitable busybody, with a flair for meddling, will find here the most sympathetic and spirited defense of the lady anywhere in print." Carlos Baker
+ N Y Times p5 S 3 '50 900w

"It is a moving story, for Miss Hinkley writes with an awareness of the real tragedy of Stevenson's life, which was not so much his unremitting illness as the fact that he died just as he realized he had reached his greatest period as a writer, and had started a program of work that might well have put him in the first rank of nineteenth-century novelists."
+ New Yorker 26:122 S 23 '50 200w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 17 '50 1150w

"[Miss Hinkley] has utilized the great mass of materials about her subjects and skilfully woven them together without intrusive documentation. . . She succeeds admirably in sketching the surface life and adventures of the Stevensons." R. H.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:62 D 2 '50 280w

Reviewed by J. W. Bogan
+ Springf'd Republican p3D N 19 '50 300w

HINSDALE, HARRIET. Be my love. 376p $3.50 Creative age
50-9856

"Boston just before the Revolutionary War from the viewpoint of the British Colonial officers in America is the background of this Cinderella story. The British and American siege of Louisburg—keystone of French power in the New World—is the main event, and a well-detailed presentation of the social life and customs of the time is hung on its development." Library J

Kirkus 18:528 S 1 '50 140w

"This is not another Oliver Wiswell but it will please historical novel fans." Katharine Shorey
Library J 75:1661 O 1 '50 80w

"We are told that the story . . . is 'nearly all true.' The more's the pity, for an actually romantic tale deserves a telling that would not reduce it to the pretentiousness of fancy dress." Mary Ross
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 N 19 '50 400w

"This historical novel, says the jacket, hedging craftily, is 'all—or nearly all—true.' The raw material is moderately interesting, but the authoress has submerged her American Pygmalion in a long and dull romance." Richard Match
— + N Y Times p11 D 24 '50 270w

"'Sprawling, brawling' history laced with technicolor love passages cannot miss." A. F. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 33:66 D 2 '50 270w

HINSHAW DAVID. Herbert Hoover: American Quaker. 469p il $5; ltd ed $15 Farrar, Straus
B or 92 Hoover, Herbert Clark. U.S.—Politics and government 50-7271

Not so much a biography as an interpretation of Mr Hoover's life and career, based on the fact of his being a Quaker. The author is also a Quaker as well as a life-long friend and admirer. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:273 My 1 '50
Bookmark 9:183 My '50 50w
Chicago Sun p5 My 9 '50 160w

"Hinshaw, like Hoover, has the defect of his merits. Tho the material is still live political dynamite, and tho the book is charged with earnest feeling, the pages can be often unexciting. In journalistic flair, Lyons is superior. But Hinshaw is closer to his subject, knows him at first hand, writes as an everfaithful associate rooted in the same soil." A. C. Ames
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 23 '50 500w

Current Hist 18:355 Je '50 30w

"The objectivity of this biography is somewhat marred by the unnecessarily defensive attitude of the author, and the bitterness he expresses toward the Democratic administration. Part of its value lies in the section devoted to a brief resume of the tenets of the Society of Friends, which make clear some of Mr. Hoover's outstanding qualities, as well as his less fortunate attributes in unbroken reserve and lack of public color."
+ — Kirkus 18:45 Ja 15 '50 230w

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald
Library J 75:776 My 1 '50 140w

"Mr. Hinshaw is to be congratulated on illuminating some facets of Mr. Hoover's personality, hitherto obscure to many of his friends and admirers." Wilbur Forrest
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 30 '50 900w

"Mr. Hinshaw has done an interesting and painstaking job of explaining the life and works of Herbert Hoover. Moreover, he includes in an appendix comments on Mr. Hoover by newspaper editors, together with several Hoover speeches. These make valuable adjuncts to the text. To those who may be inclined to disagree with Mr. Hinshaw's opinions about the estimates of our thirtieth President, he replies: 'That's the way he looks to me.'" G. D. Aiken
+ N Y Times p20 Ap 9 '50 1300w

"This is an attempt to refashion a public reputation that got kicked around in the political scuffle—a praiseworthy objective but one that misses fire because the author, in insisting on the paragon qualities of his man, robs him of all resemblance to a flesh-and-blood human being."
New Yorker 26:121 My 20 '50 180w

"It is his development of Mr. Hoover-as-Quaker that is by all odds the author's most useful achievement. It is his clarification of Quaker habits of mind and Quaker traits, and the careful application of these at point after point to the character of his subject that gives his book its chief value, so it seems to me." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 27 '50 900w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich
Sat R of Lit 33:27 S 16 '50 190w

HISCOCK, IRA VAUGHAN, ed. Community health organization. 4th ed 278p $2.75 Commonwealth fund
614 Public health 50-6043

"The preface states that changes in community health affairs, with consequent effects on health services and organization, have made necessary a revision to bring the text up to date." Booklist

"Those concerned with broad community-wide planning for public health will welcome the new revision of this most useful book. . . The very readable and concise method of presentation used before is retained, but extensive re-writing and much valuable new material, including an excellent chapter on Medical Care Administration in Relation to Public Health, focus the discussion sharply on problems of a modern public health program." H. R. Leavell
+ Am J Pub Health 40:624 My '50 500w

"Health officers, public health nurses, teachers of public health, and students of social welfare and community organization in general, will find the latest edition of this standard work extremely useful and worthwhile." C. G. Chakerian
+ Am Soc R 15:579 Ag '50 150w
Booklist 46:355 Jl 15 '50

HITCH, EARLE VANN. Rebuilding rural America; new designs for community life. 273p $3.50 Harper
323.354 Community life. Sociology, Rural 50-6379

This book faces the question of how the rural community in America can continue to exist in light of current economic changes and population shifts. It reveals how this problem is being investigated and remedied in dozens of community experiments in the United States and Canada.

"The book is a plea for, not an analysis of, community development. All the projects are lauded and associated with the author's point of view. He has performed a service by calling attention to a wide variety of community experiments that should be better known to social scientists. A book on the why and how of success and failure in community development projects still has to be written." R. A. Polson
Ann Am Acad 271:213 S '50 360w

"There is nothing dull about this book. Crisp sentences and apt adjectives compress long meanings into short sentences. It is written with an imaginative pen. It is realistic. . . But it is hopeful. It is composed in the positive and it paints the rainbow of promise over the rural horizon. It is an invaluable resource for those who desire easy reference to constructive rural experiments." Mark Rich
+ Christian Century 67:1051 S 6 '50 850w

"No one will argue that rural society itself should not be preserved, yet it appears to be going slowly down to defeat before our accelerating mechanistic civilization. This book, with its examples of proven and successful projects bringing vitality to the hard-pressed rural community, points one way to a reversal of the trend. But it is strongly to be doubted if anything except regional development such as that in the Tennessee Valley can have a national impact." R. R. Brunn
Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 27 '50 480w

Reviewed by S. H. Hobbs
Social Forces 29:221 D '50 350w
Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 190w

Reviewed by P. A. Waring
Survey 86:335 Je '50 550w

"The book is semi-popular in tone and method, and will be of interest especially to ministers, teachers, social workers, and farm officials working in rural areas."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:359 S '50 280w

HITCHENS, MRS DOLORES (BIRK). Death wears cat's eyes, by D. B. Olsen [pseud]. 219p $2.50 Doubleday 50-9527

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:402 Jl 15 '50 70w

"Light and entertaining, with some excellent characterizations."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 S 24 '50 210w

Reviewed by Hillis Mills
N Y Times p37 O 29 '50 270w

"Rather complex, especially in its final revelations, but probably fast and ingenious enough for most admirers of multiple homicide."
+ New Yorker 26:123 S 16 '50 90w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p16 O 1 '50 100w
Wis Lib Bul 46:18 N '50

HITCHENS, MRS DOLORES (BIRK). Something about midnight, by D. B. Olsen [pseud]. 233p $2.25 Doubleday 50-5164

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p4S Ja 27 '50 30w

"Motivations not too convincing, but a colorful story."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 F 5 '50 140w

"Its non-detective parts, in which the many small oddities of Southern California life and character are sketched with insight and pity, are good enough to suggest that Mrs. Olsen might well drop the detective story altogether for the straight human interest suspense novel which she apparently prefers." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p22 Ja 22 '50 100w
New Yorker 25:103 Ja 21 '50 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 5 '50 150w

HITTE, KATHRYN. Surprise for Susan; pictures by Pelagie Doane. [24p] $1 Abingdon-Cokesbury 50-9151

A simple story about Susan whose mother is to bring her a surprise. Susan guesses several things, but is much delighted when the surprise turns out to be a baby brother.

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 S 16 '50 90w
Kirkus 18:460 Ag 15 '50 100w

"Recommended where needed to satisfy a younger audience than The New Pet does." F. W. Butler
+ Library J 75:1514 S 15 '50 70w

"This is a simple, warm little book for the very, very small listener who has or expects a new sibling. Its only fault is a faintly patronizing air that the most sensitive small fry might catch and resent." Miriam James
+ — N Y Times p36 S 10 '50 100w

HOAR, ROGER SHERMAN (RALPH MILNE FARLEY, pseud). Omnibus of time. 315p $3.50 Fantasy publishing company, inc, 8318-8320 Avalon blvd, Los Angeles 3 50-7228

A collection of the author's writings on time travel: stories, extracts from novels, and an essay.

Booklist 46:276 My 1 '50

"A volume as rich in imagination as it is devoid of any literary graces or characterization." Anthony Boucher
— + Chicago Sun p6 Je 4 '50 60w

"Readers who enjoy mathematical paradoxes, as well as those who enjoy science fiction, will find this good entertainment." Basil Davenport
+ N Y Times p12 Jl 2 '50 80w

Reviewed by Don Fabun
San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 14 '50 60w

HOBART, DONALD M., ed. Marketing research practice; contributors, William C. Gordon, jr [and others] J. P. Wood, text editor. 471p $5 Ronald 658.8 Market research 50-5241

"Addressed primarily to present practitioners of marketing research throughout industry and to those students of the subject who soon will be its practitioners. It is mainly concerned with the application of those theories on which marketing research is based, and with the methods and techniques that have been developed and used as workable solutions to sales, distribution, marketing and advertising problems." (Special Libraries) Index.

HOBART, D. M.—Continued
Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 11 '50 50w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:402 Mr 1 '50 110w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 5 '50 110w

Special Libraries 41:146 Ap '50 90w

HOBSON, HAROLD. Theatre 2. 237p il $3.50 Longmans

792 Theater—London

An account of the theatrical events in Britain and the United States during 1948 and the first half of 1949, by the dramatic critic of The Sunday Times [London]. The book is in the form of a diary which includes backstage glimpses as well as the account of theatrical productions. Index.

"If he underestimates his readability as a critic, Mr. Hobson overestimates himself as a gossip-writer." G. H.
Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 18 '50 240w

"Apparently Harold Hobson is not exactly in love with Americans, which is strictly his business. However, that does not entitle him, as a critic, to operate exclusively upon the double standard. Not everything American is Grade D. . . Most of the important American and British plays staged from January, 1948, to July, 1949 are analyzed, occasionally with insight. Yet the sparks of enlightenment are dimmed beneath a style which is a mixture of Sampel Pepys, George Jean Nathan and the lately unlamented Colonel Blimp." Sugden Tilley
N Y Times p39 O 15 '50 180w

HOBSON, MRS LAURA KEANE (ZAMETKIN). The other father. 307p $3 Simon & Schuster

50-7123

The story of a father's problem. Andrew Dynes discovers that his daughter is in love with an older man, but thinks the affair is less excusable than his own interest in a younger woman. Further examination of his problem reveals several unpleasant truths about himself and he realizes that his daughter's marriage may work out, but his own affair must end.

Booklist 46:287 My 15 '50

"Love, truth and honor, about which father and daughter brood, are interpreted by Mrs. Hobson as having highly subjective meanings. Aside from being a moral error this is also a literary mishap. Andrew and Peg, to whom the virtues are subjective, are so boringly selfish and wordily unhappy that the result is a weary, inert novel." Mary Sandrock
— Cath World 171:393 Ag '50 170w

"The author never succeeds in breathing enough life into the characters to warrant the time spent on them. Not a word stylist, she adds to the difficulties by a series of flashbacks that almost makes it necessary for the reader to keep notes."
Chicago Sun p15 Je 13 '50 120w

"Despite all the admirable suavity of Mrs. Hobson's prose, despite a marked and almost urgent earnestness, it is difficult indeed to see in 'The Other Father' anything but a well done contrivance, in which every diversion plays its part in its relation to the whole. And this, unfortunately, is not quite the way life is. Nevertheless, many readers will enjoy this novel. There is enough of fundamental truth in it to disconcert many of them, there is an exploratory parallel between many of the scenes in this book and the experiences of countless men and women in all walks of life. That this is so does not make of 'The Other Father' any better book; but it does explain why its readers may find something to reward them in its pages." August Derleth
— + Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 My 14 '50 440w

"Under a veneer of family affection the behavior of the Dyneses appeared to this reader as superficial, selfish, and cheap. But Mrs. Hobson presents most of it as quite admirable. Conceivably, she has her tongue in her cheek. In any event, by not making her position clear —by establishing no base in even the most conventional standards of decent, fair behavior —she has sacrificed much of the dramatic potentiality and moral validity of her book."
— Christian Science Monitor p8 Je 10 '50 400w

"Somehow, while there is latent in the story a depth of understanding of entanglements that many people are involved in, the author never quite seems to come to grips with vital issues of fundamental character; she keeps her ramifications of plot and personality on a level of surface values, surface interpretations. Not as challenging a book as Gentleman's Agreement. But a book with certain contemporary challenges of its own."
+ — Kirkus 18:147 Mr 1 '50 320w

"The reader may question the validity of Andrew's reasoning but will be compelled to follow through to the book's end. It is a 'slice of life' rather then a well rounded narrative. Recommended for those who like their reading somber." H. R. Forbes
+ — Library J 75:694 Ap 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p4 N 10 '50 150w

"[The novel's] prosaic facility succeeds in giving a gloss to some of its general triteness, and the classical dilemma does not allow interest to flag. As a popularization of some of the psychologizing that has gone on for the last twenty years it is eminently in step, though what is told of the cut-and-dried depths of the father's soul is told with the primness of a textbook."
— + New Repub 122:20 My 29 '50 130w

"In this unusual study of a middle aged man's emotional life, Miss Hobson has done quite as effective and responsible a piece of work as she accomplished in the very different field of her 'Gentleman's Agreement.' [Book Review Digest 1947]." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 My 14 '50 750w

"There's more than psychoanalytical melodrama here. Miss Hobson may not have all the answers, but she raises the right questions about fatherhood. In a story shot through with melancholy and burdened by analysis, she has achieved a dramatic revelation of the complex meshing of human lives. 'The Other Father' deserves the attention of intelligent readers." Charles Lee
+ N Y Times p5 My 14 '50 500w

"Mrs. Hobson writes about these people and their problems with great care and respect but without ever doing more than make the reader feel genuinely depressed at having to hear so much of such unending and inglorious unhappiness."
— + New Yorker 26:119 My 20 '50 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 16 '50 420w

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst
Sat R of Lit 33:17 My 27 '50 750w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p12C Je 11 '50 300w

"The plot is not very new, and Author Hobson lacks the first-class novelist's art of creating full-sized characters. If there is a larger story in the spectacle of her decent, godless people trying to work out their salvation through self-analysis, she lets it pass. But The Other Father should have a rousing good sale for its father-daughter-other-woman theme and for its between-the-lines message: everybody can live a wiser family life."
Time 55:92 My 29 '50 330w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 39:767 summer '50 120w

HOCKING, ANNE (MRS M. N. A. MESSER). Best laid plans. 222p $2.50 Doubleday

50-10578

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:572 S 15 '50 40w

"A nicely written mystery which lays stress on characterization, though it lacks the suspense of a more intricate plot."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 D 24 '50 200w

"The plot is wildly coincidence-ridden and of short-story proportions, painfully padded." A. B.
N Y Times p38 N 19 '50 100w

"A story reminiscent of those of the late Mrs. Belloc Lowndes, with no attempt at mystery but plenty of suspense."
New Yorker 26:172 N 11 '50 80w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 17 '50 100w

"Author took gamble but won handily."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 N 25 '50 90w

HOCKING, ANNE (MRS M. N. A. MESSER). Death disturbs Mr Jefferson. 219p $2.25 Doubleday 50-8210

Detective story.

Booklist 47:40 S 15 '50

Kirkus 18:287 My 15 '50 70w

"This new English mystery starts out with promising wit and characterization but it's a disappointment as a puzzle. The straightforward form of Inspector Austen's search robs it of any genuine suspense."
— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Je 25 '50 140w

"It's pleasant, English, and slow." Hillis Mills
N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '50 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 4 '50 100w

"Excellent example of slick clue-chasing, clever-deduction, and slow-motion. Characters, conversation, and background credible, convincing, and intelligently handled."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 Jl 15 '50 40w

HODGINS, ERIC. Blandings' way. 314p $3 Simon & Schuster
50-12058

Mr and Mrs Blandings living in their dream house in the country, were not as happy as they might be. Mr. Blandings decided to get into community politics. That did it. Now they live in a Manhattan apartment. "Just think," said Mrs. Blandings happily, "out a side bedroom window you can catch a little glimpse of Central Park."

Booklist 47:76 O 15 '50

Bookmark 10:33 N '50 40w

Reviewed by A. F. Otis
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 22 '50 400w

Christian Science Monitor p18 N 25 '50 270w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

"This novel is certainly funny; it has some ruthless satire . . . of the pomposity and egocentricity of the advertising profession and of the New Yorker's world. But it is fundamentally an incisive and rather serious book, and I am sure that Mr. Hodgkins intends it seriously." William Pfaff
+ Commonweal 53:179 N 24 '50 390w

Kirkus 18:525 S 1 '50 270w

"There ought, certainly to be yet another book about [Mr Blandings]—a less impromptu book and a better balanced one, but one still as warmly funny and as much on the right side of things. One can't have everything, but there is no harm in wishing for it. What on earth will happen to the man next?" Richard Lockridge
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 15 '50 750w

"In spite of the earnestness of the central theme, Mr. Hodgins obviously had a good time writing the book. There are some nice burlesques of the advertising business, and one gentle dig at Life magazine, and his dialogue between two teen-age sisters is little short of superb." Nathaniel Benchley
+ N Y Times p32 O 8 '50 410w

New Yorker 26:132 O 7 '50 80w

"This is a wonderfully amusing book, as witty, as sly, as deflating in its principle as the 'Dream House' story ever was. But it's a sad-funny book, too; the irony is clearer and deeper. By this much, too, it is a better novel, an admirable, and in many ways, devastating satire on American life, the more effective because Mr. Hodgins isn't savage about it." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 5 '50 900w

Springf'd Republican p23A N 5 '50 300w

Time 56:102 O 16 '50 300w

HODGKIN, ELIOT, comp. Pictorial Gospel. 212p il $3.50 Macmillan
704.9485 Jesus Christ—Art. Bible. New Testament—Gospels—Pictorial illustrations 50-7054

"This 'life of Christ in the works of the old masters and the words of the Gospel' contains about 100 full-page reproductions of paintings, chiefly by great artists of the 15th and 16th centuries, but some earlier from medieval manuscripts and a few later by Blake and the Pre-Raphaelites. A page of pertinent text, from the King James Version, faces each picture." Christian Century

"It is a very rich collection, and the more effective, for a large format that permits good sized-pictures and generous topography."
+ Christian Century 67:648 My 24 '50 120w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 67:332 N 8 '50 200w

Reviewed by J. F. Davidson
Churchman 164:16 S 1 '50 60w

"Recommended." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:1295 Ag '50 70w

"Now that it has been done, it seems strange that it has never been done before. It is most moving to read the words of the Gospel and to look, at the same time, at the work of an artist who has felt the story and has worshipped it with his greatest possession. In avoiding the obvious, Mr. Hodgkin has occasionally fallen back on less interesting works, but he has also reproduced some that are both excellent and little known." Myfanwy Piper
+ New Statesman & Nation 38:662 D 3 '49 280w

HOFF, CAROL. Johnny Texas; il. by Bob Meyers. 150p $2.75 Wilcox & Follett 50-7823

Relates the experiences of Johnny who came from Germany to Texas in 1834. The new and startling experiences with hunting, Indians, and wild ponies, made Johnny grow up fast. When his father went off to the war to fight Santa Anna Johnny was ready for the responsibilities left to him.

Booklist 46:321 Je 15 '50

Bookmark 10:11 O '50 50w

"This first Charles W. Follett award book sets a high standard for those to follow." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 My 28 '50 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '50

"A warm and appealing family story set in the Texas of 1834-6, this first winner of the Charles W. Follett Award is a distinguished book."
+ Kirkus 18:278 My 15 '50 210w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:636 Ap 15 '50 80w

"Recommended." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 75:1196 Jl '50 50w

HOFF, CAROL—Continued

"The author is a teacher in Texas, who grew up there, and heard old tales of the early days, and later retold them to young nephews. Her book reflects all that, especially her experience in selecting historical material on the level of the small boy. . . Probably the many children who love the early Laura Ingalls Wilder books will like it." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 28 '50 350w

"The author, a native Texan, has written with understanding and affection. Johnny is no outsize hero for his age, just a human youngster with a father as young at heart as he." A. N. Fedder

+ N Y Times p16 Jl 30 '50 180w
New Yorker 26:181 D 2 '50 90w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:289 S '50 90w
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:21 Je '50

HOFFMAN, GAIL. Land and people of Israel. (Portraits of the nations ser) 119p il $2.50 Lippincott

915.69 Israel—Juvenile literature 50-5947

"Neither story nor biography, but a factual account of the modern nation taking form in a historic Bible setting. . . One of the Portraits of the Nations series, . . . it describes the new land of Israel, the efforts to build a new country, the problems, achievements, and something of the great history of the land. It is chiefly about the Jewish population." (Christian Science Monitor) Index.

Booklist 46:236 Mr 15 '50
Bookmark 9:165 Ap '50 40w
Christian Century 67:1393 N 22 '50 90w

Reviewed by Millicent Taylor
Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 25 '50 130w

"Will be a useful addition in libraries and schools." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:201 My '50 120w

Reviewed by Virginia Haviland
Library J 75:1198 Jl '50 80w

"This readable, brief, distinguished book is a welcome title in the useful series called, 'Portraits of the Nations.'" L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 30 '50 190w

Reviewed by A. N. Fedder
N Y Times p30 My 7 '50 180w
New Yorker 26:191 D 2 '50 60w

"Gail Hoffman has a dramatic story to tell in this latest Portraits of the Nations book. She tells it very well indeed."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:43 My 13 '50 180w
School & Society 71:125 F 25 '50 50w

HOFFMANN, ELEANOR. Tall stallion; il. by Paul Brown. 180p $2.50 Dodd

Horses—Legends and stories 50-13860

"California's Santa Barbara country is the setting for a story of Tom and Bess Barrie, worried about the changes to come when the ranch they live on is taken over by an Eastern buyer and its emphasis changed from cattle to thoroughbred horses. However, they learn that schooling fine horses and putting them over the jumps is fun, too." San Francisco Chronicle

Booklist 47:80 O 15 '50

"Recommended for large libraries to satisfy the never ending cry for horse stories." Anne Izard

Library J 75:2020 N 15 '50 70w

"One of those books that is neither very good nor very bad and is certainly not essential for any collection. Not recommended." Elizabeth Johnson

Library J 75:2020 N 15 '50 70w
San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 12 '50 100w

HOFFMANN, ELEANOR. White mare of the black tents. 214p $2.50 Dodd

49-48762

Omar, the fourteen-year-old son of a desert sheik, lost his beloved white mare in an enemy raid. A mysterious stranger offers to get the mare back if Omar's tribe will join the Germans against the English in the Christian war. This story for grades six to eight tells what happens when the tribe takes sides with the English instead.

Booklist 46:176 Ja 15 '50

"Miss Hoffmann writes absorbingly with personal knowledge of the Near East." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:35 Ja '50 120w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Burr
Library J 75:501 Mr 15 '50 70w

"By horseback and camelback and finally by airplane this entertaining story covers an Arabia that readers 10 to 14 will find interesting." F. C. Smith

+ N Y Times p28 N 13 '49 150w

HOFFSOMMER, HAROLD CHARLES, ed. Social and economic significance of land tenure in the southwestern states; a report of the Regional land tenure research project. 666p $6 Univ. of N.C. press

333.3 Land tenure—Southwest. Southwest—Economic conditions. Southwest—Social conditions 50-2355

"Study of the relation between the status of farm operators and their way of life, based on analysis of the conditions in Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, and Mississippi." Current Hist

"The importance of this study lies in its overall plan, which has not been achieved, but which none-the-less stands as a challenge in the field, and in its wealth of data—a vast body of sketchy detail that needs to be further rounded out and integrated." A. F. Raper

+ — Am Soc R 15:689 O '50 900w
Current Hist 18:356 Je '50 30w

HOGAN, INEZ (MRS RANDOLPH BOWERS). Read to me about Charlie; il. [by the author]. (Read-to-me bks) 45p $1.50 Dutton

Dogs—Legends and stories 50-6044

Picture-story book about a dog that picks out the boy he wants for his master, and the boy who picks out that same dog as the one he wants to be his pet. How they finally get together is also the story of why the dog is thenceforward known as Charlie.

Booklist 46:292 My 15 '50
Kirkus 18:95 F 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:627 Ap 15 '50 70w

"This latest 'read-to-me' for preschoolers with its simple sentences and theme-song end sheets has the added attraction of a plot that really thickens. . . Recommended. Must be prebound." F. W. Butler

+ Library J 75:1196 Jl '50 80w

"It is a slight story, but it holds reality for young children because of the author's understanding of the way of a small boy with his first dog. It is also easy to read, with songs on the end-papers and many pictures." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p20 Ap 23 '50 120w

"The story does not amount to very much, but the drawings are delightful."

Sat R of Lit 33:47 Ap 8 '50 50w
Wis Lib Bul 46:27 Ap '50

HOGEBOOM, AMY. Boats and how to draw them. 40p il $1.50 Vanguard

741 Boats and boating. Drawing—Instruction 50-7738

Simple text and a photograph precede line by line instructions for drawing each of nine different boats: the speed boat, the sloop, the schooner, the ocean liner, the aircraft carrier, etc. Glossary.

Booklist 46:321 Je 15 '50
Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 3 '50 70w
Christian Science Monitor p6 N 25 '50 60w

"As succinct and instructive as the others in the series. . . The book's chief asset is its attractive simplicity, behind which is packed solid information on boats and drawing. Recommended for fifth-sixth-graders." E. E. Beatty
+ Library J 75:1196 Jl '50 80w

"Very well illustrated with drawings and photographs. Young artist will find it easy to follow."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:33 Ag 12 '50 50w

HOGEBOOM, AMY. Cats, and how to draw them. 39p il $1.50 Vanguard

743.6 Cats—Pictures, illustrations, etc. Drawing 49-6510

Photographs, step-by-step line drawings and one-page factual stories of nine kinds of cats.

Booklist 46:145 D 15 '49

"The fifth of these clever books about drawing birds and animals is not meant only for children. It will fascinate every one who owns cats, it holds many suggestions for artists; and it will encourage young and old to try to draw their own pets." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 F 5 '50 110w

HOGNER, DOROTHY (CHILDS) (MRS NILS HOGNER). Dusty's return; il. by Nils Hogner. 190p $2.50 Oxford

50-9120

Dusty, a Mexican burro, was stolen and brought to the United States. She escaped from her first cruel master and joined a friendly prospector. When she lost track of Andy, Dusty lived for a time with a herd of wild burros. Later she returned to a happy life with Andy. For grades 5-6.

Booklist 47:80 O 15 '50
Kirkus 18:417 Ag 1 '50 130w

"At times Dusty seems endowed with human reasoning, but the story is absorbing and filled with desert lore." M. J. Meade
+ Library J 75:1671 O 1 '50 80w

"This fine animal story can be recommended with enthusiasm and without reservations. It could be called an American 'Black Beauty,' for it has all the emotion of that threadbare English work, plus really good writing and a scene already loved by children of all regions." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 27 '50 280w
Wis Lib Bul 46:27 S '50

HOKINSON, HELEN ELNA. The ladies, God bless 'em! with a memoir by James Reid Parker; and an appreciation by John Mason Brown. $2.75 Dutton

741.5 Caricatures and cartoons 50-10547

A collection of Helen Hokinson cartoons from the New Yorker. James Reid Parker, for many years a friend and collaborator, has written a memoir; and there is an appreciation by John Mason Brown, which first appeared in the Saturday Review of Literature shortly after Miss Hokinson's death.

Booklist 47:85; 113 N 1 '50; N 15 '50
Kirkus 18:673 N 1 '50 80w

"I hope this book I keep calling the last Hokinson book is not really that. Even if there are too few recent 'New Yorker' drawings for a collection, one of the earlier ones, 'So You're Going to Buy a Book!' should certainly be put back in print. . . But if it does prove to be the last book, that is its only fault. The Hokinson ladies, God bless 'em, are, as always, exactly right." E. H. Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 3 '50 490w

"You'll ask God's blessing for the artist when you re-meet your favorite Hokinson girls—they're all here, the clubwomen, the gardeners, the dog fanciers, the shoppers, the amateur actors and the book buyers. They're still meeting life head-on, slightly muddled, more than slightly overweight. There is a laugh on every page. . . The volume contains a fine appreciation by John Mason Brown and a splendid memoir by James Reid Parker." Allan Worth
+ San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 26 '50 200w

HOLBEIN, HANS, the younger. Paintings; first complete ed. by Paul Ganz [introd. tr. by R. H. Boothroyd; the catalogue by Marguerite Kay]. 297p pl $8.50 Phaidon

759.3 Paintings, German 50-12502

This study of Holbein's work consists of an introductory chapter; 220 reproductions and 60 supplementary illustrations and a scholarly descriptive catalog of the plates. Indexes.

Reviewed by Gary Sheahan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 D 24 '50 150w

"The 'Holbein,' most of whose plates were printed in Switzerland, is edited by the chief authority on the painter, Dr. Paul Ganz, and is the first full work of its kind." J. W.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 S 5 '50 120w

Reviewed by Howard Devree
N Y Times p34 N 26 '50 110w

"Without question, the book is very handsomely produced, and full of valuable information; and studied in conjunction with the publication of the Windsor drawings, it will provide English and American lovers of Holbein with a much more comprehensive material than was available to them before, in most convenient form."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p562 S 8 '50 2250w

HOLBERG, MRS RUTH (LANGLAND). Restless Johnny; the story of Johnny Appleseed; il. by Lloyd Coe. 210p $2.50 Crowell

B or 92 Chapman, John—Juvenile literature 50-5868

The life story of Johnny Appleseed written for ages ten and up.

Booklist 46:278 My 1 '50

"Good reading for the 4th or 5th grade boy or girl who likes to know about his country and the adventures of other days." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 Ap 23 '50 170w

"The story is beautifully told." Millicent Taylor
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 25 '50 180w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 26:201 My '50 80w
Kirkus 18:62 F 1 '50 100w

"Recommended for all who enjoy a good pioneer story, particularly ages 10-14." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 75:566 Ap 1 '50 70w

"The large type, many pictures, and simple style will be attractive to younger readers. Older ones will wish they knew how much is fact and how much fiction. The encyclopedia says Johnny was a Swedenborgian: this writer does touch on his deep religious feeling, but gives 'restless' as the keynote, rather than a religious urge." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 26 '50 270w

"One wishes that the author had drawn a stronger line between fact and legend. She has, however, bound the favorite anecdotes together in a narrative which moves smoothly, if sometimes slowly. She has drawn, too, a fine picture of the Midwestern wilderness and the excitement of the western migration of that time." E. L. B.

HOLBERG, RUTH—Continued

+ N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '50 140w

"The portrait of this strong, gentle, Bible-reading woodsman in tattered clothes, who never got lost, who was a friend to the Indians and the wild animals as well as to the pioneers, is told here in convincing terms. The writing is sensitive and gives the sound and feel of the story." C. E. Z.

+ Sat R of Lit 33:43 My 13 '50 200w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:289 S '50 60w

Wis Lib Bul 46:29 Ap '50

HOLBROOK, STEWART HALL. Yankee exodus; an account of migration from New England. 398p il maps $5 Macmillan

325.274 U.S.—History. Migration, Internal 50-7972

A popular history of the westward migrations of the Yankees from all the New England states. The movement began as early as the last years of the eighteenth century and continued into the twentieth. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:311 Je 15 '50

Reviewed by David Karno
Chicago Sun p4 Je 18 '50 180w

"This is history of an especially useful kind because it gets down to the level of the individual, who alone can give to the record of the past a living substance." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 2 '50 550w

"It is odd that we have had, as Mr. Holbrook says in his preface, no previous study of the migration of Yankees to the West. This, then, is a pioneering book on the subject of pioneering. . . Sometimes Mr. Holbrook drowns interest in detail: the reader can't see the influence for the individual Yankees. Fewer figures studied at more length would have made more interesting and revealing reading. But Mr. Holbrook has grace and gusto as well as prodigious industry. Few have touched more facets of the American scene and sketched them with such verity and liveliness." Horace Reynolds

+ — Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 29 '50 700w

"Mr. Holbrook has compiled a massive brief for the Yankee. Unfortunately he has reiterated his arguments, multiplied his illustrations unconscionably, and thus blurred the main lines of his case. . . Mr. Holbrook is no man to scant the picturesque or the curious, and sometimes his antiquarianism leads him into bypaths far from his main historical line. The writing may be too fine for some tastes, but it is indubitably richly human and moving. Somewhere in his wanderings in the hinterland Mr. Holbrook has acquired an un-Yankee luxuriance of speech and a tendency to lapse, at times into the high antique style. But much can be forgiven one who shuns the jargon which vitiates so much academic writing, and whose sympathetic intuition perceives historical truth." Mason Wade

+ — Commonweal 52:392 Jl 28 '50 1300w

Current Hist 19:166 S '50 40w

Kirkus 18:231 Ap 1 '50 350w

"Unfortunately marred by an attempt at popularization by a New Yorkerish dignity-destroying pseudo-sophistication scarcely suitable to the subject." R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:772 My 1 '50 140w

"Mr. Holbrook's book is not a success. The muse of minor Americana, that flourishing field in which he is one of our more eminent practitioners, is here confronted by History with a capital H and fumbles the task." Howard Doughty

— Nation 171:43 Jl 8 '50 480w

"Mr. Holbrook's sure sense of story and his delight in personality unify his book and triumphantly bring off what, without them, would have been an almost hopeless task of showing the enormous extent and variety of the New England emigrè contribution to our national experience. . . 'Yankee Exodus' tends to skimp New England in the South." Bernard De Voto

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Je 11 '50 1450w

"New Englanders and descendants thereof will read 'The Yankee Exodus' with the loving reverence reserved for the family Bible, while the less fortunately born will value it as a treasure trove of jaunty Americana." H. F. Graff

+ N Y Times p7 Je 18 '50 1000w

"The book has been distilled out of an enormous mash of source material and is written with the same headlong enthusiasm and in the same readable style that distinguish all Mr. Holbrook's excursions into Americana."
New Yorker 26:95 Je 17 '50 170w

"This [is an] unconventional history, a lively, full-blooded account of the great Yankee exodus and what it did to and for the rest of America. As always Holbrook writes as a lot of professional historians wish they could write—with a gusto and verve that make fascinating reading, and with honest and solid scholarship too. Here you'll see for yourself what took place when the Yankee decided to leave home." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 Je 7 '50 1050w

"A tremendous job of research lies behind this volume. As a reference work it is bound to be standard and if you can skip the interminable names of the lesser men you will find, in much fascinating detail, the story of the most important migration in American history. Maybe now that Mr. Holbrook has produced this basic, important documentation he can go on to write half a dozen exciting books about the men and women who turned up in the course of his inquiry." Bradford Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 33:10 Je 10 '50 650w

"The only flaw in the present volume is one of surplus pages of names reminiscent of the Book of Genesis but hardly a Yankee alive could look over the list without running across a relative or a familiar name. And if ever there was a book to revive New England's flagging spirit, this account of Yankeeland's spread from the Atlantic to the Pacific is the one to do it." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p8C Jl 9 '50 800w

"A searching, richly documented book."
+ Time 55:98 Je 12 '50 700w

"A highly readable work that should attract a wide audience among serious readers. Professional historians will find the book less useful, partly because the wide scope of the study allows the author only to skim the surface, partly because his lack of familiarity with recent monographs leads him into errors of statement or interpretation which scarcely do credit to the diligent research that went into the preparation of the book."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:332 S '50 260w

"A fascinating slant on America's development."
Wis Lib Bul 46:27 Je '50

HOLCOMBE, ARTHUR NORMAN. Our more perfect union; from eighteenth-century principles to twentieth-century practice. 460p $6; text ed $4.50 Harvard univ. press

342.73 U.S.—Constitutional history 50-9371

"Holcombe, professor of the science of government at Harvard, examines the development of the U.S. Constitution in the light of the principles of its founders and then relates these principles to contemporary politics. He rejects the thesis that political ideas are mere reflections of economic struggle, contending that they have their own validity. The book also includes a documented critique of Marxist theory." (Chicago Sun) Bibliographical notes. Index.

Chicago Sun p12 Ag 22 '50 70w

Current Hist 19:291 N '50 70w

"A scholarly work, hardly easy reading. For college and university libraries." Joseph Borome

+ Library J 75:1286 Ag '50 100w

Reviewed by Irving Brant
N Y Times p6 S 10 '50 800w

HOLDEN, HAROLD MILLER. Noses. 252p il $3.50 World pub.

138 Nose 50-8370

A Los Angeles plastic surgeon is the author of this survey of the nose in psychology, literature, art, folklore and anthropology. "Beginning with the statement that 'the nose is the gateway to life and death,' Dr. Holden treats his subject, first, from the view of anthropology. Then he proceeds to discuss the evocative part that odors play in life, the relation of the nose to the voice, the part of the nose in the study of physiognomy, the nose in art and literature, the nose and caricature, what plastic surgery has done for the nose and many other kindred topics." (San Francisco Chronicle) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by F. A. Levy
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Jl 16 '50 180w

Reviewed by Harry Gilroy
+ N Y Times p13 Jl 30 '50 360w

"A definitive job, rather divertingly written, and illustrated with photographs, sketches, and charts noting the changing fashions in noses."

+ New Yorker 26:72 Jl 1 '50 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 30 '50 170w

HOLLAND, LYNWOOD MATHIS. Direct primary in Georgia. 125p $3 Univ. of Ill.

324.237 Primaries. Elections—Georgia 49-45473

"An expanded doctoral dissertation, this is the first full-length study of the direct primary as it operates in a predominantly one-party state. The book, in method more historical and descriptive than analytical, draws much of its material from newspapers, since official records are lacking. After a brief description of the political situation in Georgia during Reconstruction days, the author traces the origin and development there of county and state-wide primaries. The Presidential primary is treated separately, and there is a short final chapter, Summary and Conclusions." U S Quarterly Bkl

"Because of the lack of official party records, the writer had great difficulty in assembling his materials for this study, but, even so, he seems to have done a thorough job." O. D. Weeks

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:219 Mr '50 230w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:507 D '49 320w

HOLLIS, FLORENCE. Women in marital conflict; a casework study. 236p $3.50 Family service

392.5 Marriage. Woman. Social work 49-9871

"This book is a supplement to the literature in the field of family case work and marriage counseling. Written by a broadly experienced student of social work and of the psychological and social sciences, it makes several unique contributions. The author attempts to apply the same criteria for evaluation of factual content and movement (progress or deterioration during case work contact) to one hundred cases selected equally from ten nearby member agencies of the Family Welfare Association. She concludes, on the basis of the case reviewers' estimates, that certain extrinsic factors—economic pressures, interfering relatives, cultural differences, and sexual problems—were of secondary importance in the marital conflict of the women whose records were studied." (Ann Am Acad) Bibliography. Indexes.

"This study was an ambitious project, first undertaken as a dissertation for the requirement of doctor of philosophy at Bryn Mawr College, and somewhat changed later in content and detail for publication. The fact that the findings and their interpretation are limited to the judgments of one reviewer inevitably raises questions concerning the reliability of the results—a limitation of which the author was well aware. The many readers whose curiosity is whetted and whose professional practice is stimulated by Miss Hollis' provocative book will be grateful to her for her courage in carrying to completion a difficult and challenging task." E. H. Mudd

+ Ann Am Acad 267:240 Ja '50 360w

Reviewed by Reuben Hill
Social Forces 28:452 My '50 280w

"For the 'marriage counselor,' whatever his professional affiliation, this book is a clear-eyed, sober, finely tempered presentation of what lies beneath the surface of marital conflict and of what discernment and skill are needed to deal with it. For the social caseworker, 'Women in Marital Conflict' is both an essential handbook to clearer diagnosis and more competent treatment and a guidebook to what yet lies ahead to be studied and mastered." H. H. Perlman

+ Survey 85:686 D '49 600w

HOLLOWELL, LILLIAN, ed. Book of children's literature. 2d ed 697p il $6.50 Rinehart

808.8 Children's literature—Bibliography 50-8913

"Miss Hollowell states that in revising the 1939 edition of her anthology she has not altered its original purpose: to serve as a textbook for students of children's literature and as a source book for parents and teachers. The 1950 edition has been expanded to include a chapter on the evaluation and selection of children's books; a section on illustrators and illustrating; a discussion of suitable literature for reading aloud, storytelling, puppetry, dramatization, and choral speaking; and a wealth of new material in the body of the book and in the bibliographies." (Library J) Brief biographical notes. Index.

Christian Science Monitor p6 N 18 '50 70w

"Of the several available anthologies of children's literature, this is perhaps the most useful for students in library schools." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 75:1676 O 1 '50 430w

School & Society 72:127 Ag 19 '50 20w

School & Society 72:366 D 2 '50 30w

HOLMES, JOHN. Little treasury of love poems. (Little treasury ser) 559p $2.50; de luxe ed $5 Scribner

821.08 Love poetry. English poetry—Collections. American poetry—Collections 50-14486

An anthology containing over four hundred love poems covering in time from Chaucer to E. E. Cummings. Indexes.

Booklist 47:132 D 1 '50

"This is likely to be even more successful than its predecessors since this form of poetry has an especial timelessness and universality."

+ Kirkus 18:449 Ag 1 '50 170w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 171:536 D 9 '50 220w

HOLT, JACK, and COGGINS, CAROLYN. Lance and Cowboy Billy; il. by Wesley Dennis. (Whittlesey house publication) 46p $2 McGraw

50-10272

Simply worded text and frequent black and white drawings tell the story of Lance's spring vacation on the Randolph ranch—a vacation so successful all around that Lance is invited to come back for a longer stay.

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 12 '50 90w

Kirkus 18:466 Ag 15 '50 130w

HOLT, JACK—Continued

"Boys of 6-9 will love this book, for it is just about the most readable and true-to-life cowboy story we have seen in a long time. . . Recommended for all libraries." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 75:2081 D 1 '50 70w

"It is a very nice first ranch story, easy-reading for younger boys, short, yet full of the adult explanations they like." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 12 '50 120w

"This sequel to 'Lance and His First Horse' will be greeted with enthusiasm by young readers who met Lance in that earlier book." Marjorie Burger
+ N Y Times p60 D 3 '50 110w

HOLTMAN, ROBERT B. Napoleonic propaganda. 272p $4 La. state univ. press

944.05 Napoleon I, emperor of the French. France—History—Consulate and empire, 1799-1815. Propaganda, French 50-9313

"Detailed analysis of the propaganda system of the Napoleonic empire. What is essentially modern in the contemporary totalitarian attack on freedom becomes clear after comparison of present aims and methods with those of an earlier century." N Y Times

"Napoleon was the first modern dictator, and in nothing more modern than in his use of propaganda. . . Professor Holtman, of Louisiana University, has written a competent, rather plodding account of this fascinating topic. No new sources are explored, but the best use is made of the existing printed texts. . . Though this is not a very interesting book, it deals with a very interesting subject." A. J. P. T.
Manchester Guardian p4 S 22 '50 240w

"Mr. Holtman's book has the merit of describing the Napoleonic propaganda themes, devices and controls with completeness, although it stops short of making explicit the insights into modern problems which result from sound historical research." G. A. Almond
+ N Y Times p26 N 26 '50 650w

HOMANS, GEORGE CASPER. Human group. 484p il $6; text ed $4.50 Harcourt

301.15 Groups (sociology). Social psychology 50-10140

"By studying small groups in different cultures, from a street-corner gang to a South Sea Island kin group, the author, an associate professor of sociology at Harvard, presents a general theory of social behavior." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

Booklist 47:151 D 15 '50

"The result is somewhat disappointing. Mr. Homans avowedly tries only to codify what we know, rather than give us new insights into human behavior. However, he has set down some general propositions that do not help us understand group life any better than the propositions of earlier sociologists whose work he finds inadequate. And his book, because of his very aims, lacks the flashes of understanding that brightened the earlier sociological treatises. . . His book at least has the virtues of its admitted limitations. If it is dull for the general reader, it is also patient and thoroughgoing in explaining every step it takes." Morroe Berger
+ — N Y Times p20 D 3 '50 450w
San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 26 '50 160w
School & Society 72:334 N 18 '50 30w

HOMER. Iliad; tr. by Alston Hurd Chase and William G. Perry, jr; with il. by Steele Savage. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 470p $5 Little

883.1 50-7229

"A prose translation in comparatively simple modern idiom but often in stilted, unmodern syntax retaining all the Homeric compound adjectives. Attractive format with large type and black-and-white chapter heading illustrations." Booklist

Booklist 46:312 Je 15 '50

"This rendition of the Iliad circumvents the paradox of surmounting the insurmountable by converting Greek poetry into English prose without violating the elegancies of either language." John Astley-Cock
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 28 '50 420w

"Good for school libraries—not as assigned reading but as classic adventure."
+ Kirkus 18:156 Mr 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by Eugene O'Neill, Jr.
New Repub 123:18 Jl 17 '50 850w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Je 18 '50 1000w

"Chase and Perry are aware that the 'Iliad' moves in bone and muscle and accordingly they have given us a translation that is 'colloquial', at least in the sense that they have shunned archaism. But they also know their Greek and have a deep feeling for it and rhythm, and with great wisdom and taste have contrived a prose translation of poetic beauty that captures the passionate, vital dignity of the original. Their success lies partly in the recognition that the greatest poetry rises from the sweep of many lines and thus they have striven to reproduce these longer cadences through the greater rapidity of Homer's peculiar simplicity of speech." C. A. Robinson
+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 Je 17 '50 600w
Wis Lib Bul 46:15 N '50

HOMER. Wrath of Achilles; The Iliad, shortened and in a new tr. by I. A. Richards. 208p $2.50 Norton

883.1 50-10413

"The translator has made a remarkably readable version of the Iliad by cutting many passages and omitting entirely Books 2, 10, 13, and 17 so that the strong continuing action of the epic stands out clearly. The diction and syntax are attuned to modern tastes but still retain a suitably archaic flavor." Booklist

Booklist 47:132 D 1 '50

"I. A. Richards has not always hit the target; and surprisingly often he still allows himself to write tushery. . . No. Mr. Richards has not met his own tests, and his version still contains some 'impediments to communication.' But much of it sounds smooth and modern, and it is a long step toward the kind of translation we need for the 'Iliad,' which will be both clear and rapid and noble." Gilbert Highet
+ — N Y Times p6 N 19 '50 1650w

HOOD, MARGARET PAGE. Tequila. 312p $3 Coward-McCann

50-9817

Novel of New Mexico at the turn of the century. The heroine, called "Tequila" by those who knew her influence on most men, was the cause of more than one violent death, in her search for a man who would live as dangerously as she did.

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 O 29 '50 150w

"The background is evidently entirely authentic—Mrs. Hood has an impressive scholastic background—and the prose, while purple, never becomes unreadable." Jane Cobb
N Y Times p33 O 8 '50 150w

"Mrs. Hood must have done a lot of research into New Mexican lore, for the scene she sets comes to vivid life. She might have achieved an entertaining novel had she not made so many demands on the reader's credulity." Ray Pierre
Sat R of Lit 33:30 N 18 '50 220w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p19A O 15 '50 200w

HOOD, STUART. Circle of the Minotaur. 157p $2.50 Viking

"The story of a man who has to live by a lie or not at all. Carlo, an Italian country boy, takes credit wrongfully for the assassination of an unpopular landowner, and becomes an outlaw and a hero. Years later, when he returns to his native town and tries to deny the lie, it turns against him and destroys him." New Yorker

Booklist 47:61 O 1 '50

"The Circle of the Minotaur achieves a complex relationship of atmosphere and event. Mr. Hood depicts mountains, the shadows in a village square, and the shapes of night with a knowing touch. But the whole does not add up or rather it adds up to nothing more than an imprecise parable in an existentialist hell." Riley Hughes

— + Commonweal 52:637 O 6 '50 550w

Kirkus 18:370 Jl 1 '50 150w

"The author is skilled in his ability to say little and express much, but an intricate style and abrupt transitions from present to past do not make for easy reading." J. E. Brown

+ — Library J 75:1508 S 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by Frank Hauser

New Statesman & Nation 40:602 D 9 '50 190w

"'The Circle of the Minotaur' is an interesting, and a perceptive, novel, but for its scale rather overloaded." Alfred Hayes

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 S 24 '50 550w

"The book, for all its considerable workmanship, suffers from stylistic excesses in other respects." Mary Ahern

+ — N Y Times p24 D 10 '50 310w

New Yorker 26:119 S 16 '50 80w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 19 '50 270w

HOOK, SIDNEY, ed. John Dewey, philosopher of science and freedom; a symposium. 383p $3.50 Dial press

191.9 Dewey, John 50-7272

This symposium was compiled to celebrate John Dewey's entrance to "the tenth decade of his life." Partial contents: John Dewey and the spirit of pragmatism, by H. M. Kallen; Dewey and art, by Irwin Edman; Dewey's theories of legal reasoning and valuation, by E. W. Patterson; Dewey's contribution to historical theory, by Sidney Ratner; John Dewey and education, by J. L. Childs; The desirable and emotive in Dewey's ethics, by Sidney Hook; John Dewey's theory of inquiry, by Felix Kaufmann; Dewey's theory of language and meaning, by P. D. Wienpahl. Bibliographies. No index.

Booklist 46:310 Je 15 '50

Reviewed by Alan Gewirth

Ethics 61:89 O '50 480w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith

N Y Times p6 Ap 23 '50 700w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 6 '50 120w

"The contributors are distinguished, the essays are excellent, and the book belongs in everybody's library." Robert Bierstedt

+ Sat R of Lit 33:35 Ag 19 '50 230w

HOOVER, GLENN EDWIN, ed. Twentieth century economic thought. 819p $12 Philosophical lib.

330.4 Economics 50-5880

"These twenty essays assembled by Glenn E. Hoover, written by professional economists in the modern spirit, present a representative sample . . . of current thinking on the basic problems of our times. . . [The writers] apply the new economies to such practical problems as labor relations, price control, farm subsidies, regulation of trade unions, competition and monopoly, immigration, and full employment." (N Y Times) Bibliographies. Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:805 S '50 50w

"Most of the articles are written by distinguished authorities, and many make interesting reading. Quite a number will appeal not only to the gneral reader but to advanced students as well. . . The book could greatly gain in usefulness if the editor would reconsider his decision against a systematic arrangement of the chapters facilitating the progressive study of the matters included in the book." H. W. Spiegel

+ — Ann Am Acad 270:167 Jl '50 440w

Reviewed by H. H. Bernt

Library J 75:562 Ap 1 '50 130w

Management R 39:497 Ag '50 80w

"The book is satisfying in at least two respects. It will succeed in making itself understood by the non-specialist reader; the writers also manage to keep in close contact with the facts of everyday life. . . One of the most useful essays in the book, by H. Gordon Hayes, is a capsule presentation of the thought of John Maynard Keynes. This will be a service to the great Englishman and to the countless people who intensely dislike him without ever having waded through the first chapter of Keynes' 'General Theory.'" Palmer Harmon

+ N Y Times p21 Mr 12 '50 410w

"As in all such symposia, the professional is at times liable to leave the amateur gasping, both for breath and in exasperation. . . Most of the essays, however, are informative, stimulating, and readable." P. R. Levin

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:25 Ap 22 '50 320w

"Designed for the more informed general reader."

School & Society 71:110 F 18 '50 20w

HOOVER, HERBERT CLARK. Addresses upon the American road, 1945-1948. 319p $4 Van Nostrand

973.918 U.S.—Foreign relations. U.S.—Economic policy. U.S.—Civilization. Food supply 49-3701

"This volume offers a fairly complete collection of Mr. Hoover's public addresses, letters to members of Congress, radio broadcasts, magazine articles, and press releases during the years 1945-48. The material, necessarily somewhat repetitious within the broader subjects, has been roughly classified into five main categories: Foreign Policies, Domestic Affairs and Economics, Reparations and Economic Support to the World, Education, Social and Scientific, World Famine, 1946-1947." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"The volume falls into three parts. . . Of these divisions, the first is the most attractive, and the third—which carries the fruit of Mr. Hoover's public appointments under President Truman—the most impressive. . . 'Our Unknown Ex-President,' ran the title of a recent book. Let us say rather that Mr. Hoover is well known, greatly admired, and for his services to the country and the world regarded with due gratitude." Allan Nevins

+ N Y Times p3 Je 5 '49 1600w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:203 Je '50 250w

HOPKINSON, HENRY THOMAS. Down the long slide. 128p $2.50 Morrow 50-7622

A satire about a totalitarian state. "Brusilov, Director of the State Publishing House, pitting his power against the Police of the Governing Committee of State Publications in an attempt to preserve the independence of his department from Police domination, discovers evidence which he believes means the end of Police tolerance. He plans an intricate and elaborate escape from the country which is successful, only to discover that, ironically, the State had watched and approved of every move he made to get him out of the country." (Kirkus)

Reviewed by E. Fowke

Canadian Forum 30:71 Je '50 110w

"The details of the escape are exciting enough, but the book is hardly satisfactory on any other level. The portrait of the State is old stuff, the imitation is obvious and the characters dim. The sound of an axe being ground blots out attempts at characterization and telling dialogue."

HOPKINSON, H. T.—Continued
— + Kirkus 18:244 Ap 15 '50 170w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge
Library J 75:862 My 15 '50 80w

"A whopping good tale. Mr. Hopkinson exploits all the fascinations of a manhunt. His taut, bland prose sheds nothing but smooth story interest; not until the last pages are we quite sure which of the two talented adversaries, the weirdly unpredictable police or the unpredictably resourceful Brusilov, will win out. Lovers of mystery are hereby invited to indulge in a delicious, thrill-thronged affair. But the man who likes to season his suspense with significance will find the novel an unsubstantial dish." Frederic Morton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 28 '50 600w

"If readers are to participate in a manhunt, they must be made to take interest in the hunted. It is too bad that the author has altogether disengaged himself and us from his pursued hero. As a thriller the book is much too lethargic." Richard Plant
N Y Times p23 Je 18 '50 180w

Sat R of Lit 33:32 Je 3 '50 300w

"Mr. Hopkinson ekes out rather slender resources with some ingenuity, but cannot avoid a too pale and unsubstantial effect." R. D. Charques
— + Spec 183:754 N 25 '49 40w

"Down the Long Slide is a fine piece of writing."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p821 D 16 '49 360w

HOPLEY, GEORGE, pseud. See Woolrich, C.

HORCHOW, REUBEN. Careers for young Americans in the army and after; foreword by Omar Bradley. 226p $3.25 Public affairs press
355 U.S. Army. Occupations 50-7610

"The knowledge and skills which may be acquired in the United States Army offer excellent career opportunities not only to those who remain in the military service but also to those who prefer to utilize their new abilities in the civilian economy. The complete story of these opportunities has never been adequately presented to the American public. This book is designed to tell that story to young people, parents, teachers and vocational advisers, so that they may realistically appraise the career advantages of service in the Army and after." Author's pref

"While the book does present a lot of useful information, especially for those who may somewhat unwittingly or in desperation find themselves in the Army, it fails in two important particulars as a text for vocational counseling. In the first place it is presented as an impartial guide in the selection of a career, whereas it is really a sales document for the purpose of recruiting. . . The second failure is in not presenting the real function of the Army." S. S. Board
— + Ann Am Acad 271:221 S '50 320w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '50

"It is probably not a completely satisfactory book for any one of its intended audiences and no single book is likely to be. As it stands, it seems most useful as a handbook for counselors. Recommended for that purpose. We still need a book for young people on this vocational subject." R. E. Kingery
Library J 75:981 Je 1 '50 170w

HORNBLOW, MRS LEONORA (SCHINASI). Memory and desire. 211p $2.75 Random house 50-6376

The story of a Hollywood love affair. A screen writer falls in love with a beautiful girl; but circumstances force him to return to his wife and the resumption of other love affairs.

Reviewed by Olive Carruthers
Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 My 14 '50 320w

Kirkus 18:36 Ja 15 '50 150w

"The minor characters are, it seems to me, better drawn than the major. Sue, the hostess (truly an enchanting creature), and Jean, the punctual nymphomaniac, come vividly alive. Mrs. Hornblow has a polished talent for describing sensitively landscape, light, the sky, flowers, or hotel furniture. Her taut, springy dialogue has charm. . . Like all first novels, this one has defects. Perhaps it is glib in spots and strains too much for effect. Mrs. Hornblow's next will, I imagine, be much better. Even so, 'Memory and Desire' is a remarkably spirited and competent performance." John Gunther
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Mr 26 '50 500w

Reviewed by Jane Cobb
N Y Times p17 Ap 9 '50 100w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 3 '50 800w

"Mrs. Hornblow is a strong and skilful writer, witty, perceptive, not banal. The style and texture of the book are reminiscent of Evelyn Waugh or Dawn Powell. Her characters do convince us that they live and that there are legion like them, more's the pity." Evelyn Eaton
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:18 Ap 1 '50 400w

HORNEY, KAREN. Neurosis and human growth; the struggle toward self-realization. 391p $3.75 Norton
616.8 Neuroses 50-9644

"Founder of a new school which holds that cultural conditions in the last analysis determine the particular form of the neuroses, [the author] now presents her fifth major book awaited by a popular following of professional disciples and educated laymen. The neurotic process is seen as a special form of human development under inner conflict; the different stages of this situation are analyzed; and, the forces that lead to true self-realization are stressed." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Atlantic 186:102 N '50 180w

Booklist 47:71 O 15 '50

Reviewed by J. M. Scherr
+ Library J 75:1655 O 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by Ashley Montagu
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 5 '50 950w

"The increasing chaos in the field of neurosis theory is no longer a private affair among dissident analytical schools; it concerns a vital attitude toward life, by which thousands of citizens are trained, which is spread by teaching and by treatment and affects our civilization as a whole. Karen Horney's book is an important and constructive document in the growing controversy." Martin Gumpert
+ N Y Times p18 O 29 '50 450w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Lancaster
Survey 86:572 D '50 700w

HOROWITZ, MRS CAROLINE. Legends children love; by Joanna Strong [pseud] with il. by Hubert Whatley. 96p $1.25 pa 50c Hart
Legends 50-6071

Contents: The Trojan horse; Jason and the Golden fleece; Daedalus and Icarus; The story of Theseus; Ulysses and the Cyclops; Pandora; Romulus and Remus; The story of Regulus; Camillus and the traitor; Thor and the giants; The apples of youth; Baldur the beautiful; Richard the lion hearted; King Arthur; Canute the wise.

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ag 27 '50 60w

"The author wisely concentrates on single incidents and each story has a vivid, dramatic quality although the vocabulary is simple and the style is easy and readable. Also the inclusion of some explanatory material concerning the locale of the stories and the dashing traditional illustrations in two colors by Hubert Whatley help project the flavor of the legend."
+ Kirkus 18:133 Mr 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by E. T. Dobbins
Library J 75:704 Ap 15 '50 70w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 7 '50 40w

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 26 '50 110w

HOROWITZ, MRS CAROLINE. Sixty swell playmate games for boys and girls. 96p col il pa 50c; bds $1.25 Hart

790 Games 50-6902

"If you are between the ages of six and twelve or have to do anything toward amusing children of these ages, you will welcome this latest game book for children. Directions and illustrations." Library J

Booklist 46:322 Je 15 '50

Kirkus 18:260 My 1 '50 110w

"Suitable for home and library. Recommended for all libraries." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 75:880 My 15 '50 60w

Springf'd Republican p8C My 7 '50 40w

HOROWITZ, MRS CAROLINE, and HOROWITZ, HAROLD HART. Treasury of hero stories by Joanna Strong [pseud] and Tom B. Leonard [pseud] with il. by Hubert Whatley. 191p $2 Hart

920 Heroes 49-11558

Collection of thirty-seven brief stories about heroes and heroines of many lands, from ancient times to World war II. They are divided into three groups: Ancient; American; and Many lands. Written for ages nine to twelve.

Bookmark 9:109 F '50 40w

"This is an extraordinarily excellent book, for home, school, and church." F. D. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p28 D 4 '49 110w

"A homely, rather old-fashioned collection. . . Useful for that difficult to locate character about which a school assignment has been given. Somewhat oversimplified style."
Kirkus 17:604 N 1 '49 120w

"Recommended for all children's libraries and for remedial reading groups." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 75:407 Mr 1 '50 70w

"The brief stories are excellent for those 'poor readers' in elementary grades who need informational material." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ja 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by Virginia Mahoney
+ San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 13 '49 110w

HOROWITZ, HAROLD HART, ed. Funny riddles and rhymes for boys and girls; by Frank Furness [pseud] il. by Frank Furio. 95p $1.25; pa 50c Hart

793.73 Riddles—Juvenile literature. Limericks 50-6217

"Scattered throughout this . . . melange of word play are limericks and rhymes that will tickle the silly-bone of the whole family. Surprise verses, nonsense and such wonderful word-nightmares as 'What the minister's fee be before Phoebe be Phoebe BeeBee.' " Kirkus

"Some of these riddles are venerable ('What did Adam do when he wanted sugar? Raised Cain); some are clever; some are silly, but most are sure to cause chuckles."
+ Kirkus 18:133 Mr 1 '50 90w

"Sick-a-beds, party planners, and just children caught between books will find it an answer to prayer." S. J. Johnson
Library J 75:783 My 1 '50 60w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 7 '50 40w

"It is rather 'corny' in spots but much of the reading matter is enlivened by modern illustrations by Frank Furio. The publisher says that contents of the book is what survived in a preview by a group of lively children to test their reactions." R. T.
+ — Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 5 '50 90w

HOROWITZ, HAROLD HART, and TOLLERIS, RALPH. Big-time baseball, by Harold H. Hart [pseud] & Ralph Tolleris; a panorama of the national sport as played in the major leagues; il. by Sydney Weiss. 192p $2.95; pa $1 Hart

796.357 Baseball 50-6897

"This is a panorama of the last 50 years of baseball, with an 'All-Star Baseball Team of all Time,' records, anecdotes, quizzes, humor, cartoons, yesterday's and today's stars, famous blunders and historic moments. The All-Star team, in case you'd like to match in with yours includes Bill Dickey, Walter Johnson, Lou Gehrig, Rogers Hornsby, Honus Wagner, 'Pie' Traynor, Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb and Joe DiMaggio. It was compiled by 76 'famous fans,' including Admiral Leahy, Sen. Lehman, Jimmy Durante, Maurice Tobin and Cole Porter, as well as 164 sportswriters, which show what you get if you send questionnaires to enough people." Springf'd Republican

Reviewed by Bob Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 28 '50 150w

Kirkus 18:237 Ap 15 '50 100w

"Very appealing and well-made book full of fine pictures and just crammed with the kinds of facts that baseball fans want." M. D. Read
+ Library J 75:882 My 15 '50 60w

Reviewed by John Lardner
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 14 '50 100w

"Though it can't hold a candle to Connie Mack's book, still this oversize 'panorama of the national sport as played in the major leagues,' has its fascination and includes different material." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 11 '50 130w

"It has items of appeal for every fan from 9 to 90. Nothing in it is too lengthy. It all moves at a brisk pace, illustrated with cartoons and pictures. Even the many anecdotes race along." Arthur Daley
+ N Y Times p20 Ap 23 '50 110w

Reviewed by John Lardner
New Yorker 26:110 My 20 '50 300w

"While most of the baseball information in this glamorous volume has been available in other forms for some time, 'Big-Time Baseball' is a lively and entertaining book and one sure to make a hit with fans, especially the younger ones. As a record book it can't compare, and isn't intended to, with more sedate publications, but it has considerable merit as a popular history and guide book to the best game in the world." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 23 '50 250w

HOTSON, JOHN LESLIE. Shakespeare's sonnets dated, and other essays. 244p il $4 Oxford

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation 50-2124

A collection of essays by a Shakespearean scholar. The title essay delves into the time of the writing of the sonnets, and seems to establish a much earlier date for their publication. The other essays deal with some Shakespearean discoveries, of interest, but, perhaps, of lesser importance.

HOTSON, J. L.—Continued

"It is hard to give up our accepted notions of Shakespeare's development as a poet, but by this brief and brilliant essay Mr. Hotson has assuredly forced on us such a re-assessment." R. S. Knox

+ Canadian Forum 30:72 Je '50 380w

"One may admire the author's bold ingenuity without being convinced by his arguments. Moreover, if 'Shakespeare's power had reached maturity by the time he was no more than twenty-five years old,' how do we explain the pretty poor plays he was just beginning to write?" Douglas Bush

New Repub 122:21 Ap 24 '50 450w

"Mr. Hotson's book, crammed with riches of which here is no account, is the most exciting work in Shakespeare studies to appear for a decade or more. But I doubt whether it will effect in those studies the almost Copernican revolution that would have to follow upon the acknowledgment that Shakespeare wrote most of his sonnets before he was twenty-five." J. I. M. Stewart

+ New Statesman & Nation 38:784 D 31 '49 650w

"Dr. Hotson is so entirely convinced of the validity of his arguments that a more cautious title such as 'On the Dating of Certain of Shakespeare's Sonnets' would not have conveyed his sense of triumph at having solved a problem which has exercised the learning and ingenuity of many minds. The sheer gusto and energy of his manner of presentation of the evidence almost carry conviction at first reading. . . I grant that a fine case has been made for an allusion to the Armada [in Sonnet 107]; I do not grant that the sonnet has been dated. . . I must particularly recommend the fascinating archivistic research which establishes Shakespeare's connection (hitherto a matter of celebrated tradition only) with the Mermaid Tavern and his close friendship with its proprietor." S. C. Chew

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 2 '50 1400w

"He pursues his search with a vast knowledge, a rigorous logic, and an enormous gusto. His essays, along with some smaller pieces in an appendix, show that as a scholar he is excellent. So are many others. What distinguishes him, though, is that he sets forth his discoveries with a verve that is infectious. He is an enthusiast as well as a detective, with a lively and humorous way of blowing the dust off old books and documents. His book is caviar for the general public." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 Ap 1 '50 230w

Reviewed by George Rylands

Spec 183:824 D 9 '49 900w

Reviewed by W. G. Rogers

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 26 '50 220w

"This book is a stimulating one, for Dr. Hotson's learning is wide and exact, and he writes of his discoveries so imaginatively that he could never be dull. . . But the gem of this collection, although it contains much else that is notable and deserving of particular mention, is the essay on the sonnets, and of this it is perhaps most laudatory to say soberly that it is well argued and convincing, and that it may prove to be the most significant contribution to Shakespearian studies of recent years."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p88 F 10 '50 3200w

Reviewed by Hallett Smith

Yale R n s 39:743 summer '50 210w

HOUGH, GRAHAM GOULDEN. Last romantics. 284p $3 Macmillan

820.9 Romanticism. English literature—History and criticism [50-28135]

"Mr. Hough was prisoner of the Japanese for three years. In prison he read Yeats' poems, 'which I was fortunate enough to have with me.' The circumstance, the background of the man, combined to send Hough's mind back over the influence and accents of religion and society, reflected in the arts, especially of English poetry and painting, canalized through Yeats. The book's span, covering roughly the past century, begins with Ruskin; follows with Rossetti and the pre-Raphaelites; shows Morris' combination of 'pugnacity and practical energy,' which ultimately failed. Continuing with Pater and the 'immoralism of the Nineties,' the book moves to Yeats. Then, through a close study of Yeats, come Hough's implications for the world of 1950 and after." N Y Times

---

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p4 N 29 '49 180w

"Mr. Hough's book is rich in content and especially in the essays on Ruskin, Yeats and Morris, suggestive and fertile in literary criticism, and closely observes its material. One's only regret is that it stops at Yeats." V. S. Pritchett

+ New Statesman & Nation 38:516 N 5 '49 2100w

"Hough's argument is brilliant. Furthermore, the new light on the way we have come in the arts through the last century is tremendously stimulating and based on sound, careful criticism. This is a book not to be missed." E. C. Dunn

+ N Y Times p28 O 15 '50 470w

New Yorker 26:122 S 23 '50 200w

"As a whole, Professor Hough's book shows a range of knowledge, a catholicity of sympathy, and an urbanity of style superior to the general run of literary studies appearing these days." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R of Lit 33:60 D 2 '50 240w

Reviewed by Ronald Lewin

Spec 183:750 N 25 '49 1000w

HOUGH, HENRY BEETLE. Once more the Thunderer. 316p $3.50 Washburn

B or 92 Vineyard gazette, Edgartown, Massachusetts. Journalists — Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Martha's Vineyard, Massachusetts 50-10792

An account of the author's rural paper, the Vineyard Gazette, which he and his wife have edited and owned for thirty years. He fills in where he left off in Country Editor [Book Review Digest 1940] and brings in stories of some of his friends living in Edgartown, Massachusetts.

Booklist 47:155 D 15 '50

"A casual country weekly chronicle which is recognizable and rewarding."

+ Kirkus 18:586 S 15 '50 130w

"A chatty, informative, exciting, commonsense and always human account. . . His storytelling gift moves leisurely among the simple things of daily living." H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 75:2001 N 15 '50 100w

"Like its predecessor, 'Once More the Thunderer' is far above the how-to-get-away-from-it-all, life-in-the-country class. For if there is something of the poet about Henry Hough, there is nothing of the escapist." A. W. Griswold

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 D 24 '50 1050w

"Between his accounts of his various reform projects, the author has sandwiched some pleasant and remarkably unvarnished sketches of permanent Edgartown residents."

+ New Yorker 26:155 N 25 '50 180w

Springf'd Republican p12D D 3 '50 850w

HOUGH, LYNN HAROLD. Dignity of man. 143p $1.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury

233 Christianity 50-14250

"Dr. Hough, for one year president of Northwestern university and for many years dean of Drew Theological seminary, appears in this volume not so much the veteran teacher as the popular preacher. 'The Dignity of Man' is in large part a polemic against neo-orthodoxy, current controversial issue among seminarians. Yet it is not formal theology; colorful with copious citations from classics, it is evangelical and sermonic." Chicago Sunday Tribune

---

Reviewed by Leon Harpole
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 15 '50 70w

"20 short chapters, each of which is an essay that could stand on its own feet but all of which together form a logically linked sequence of sound thinking. . . The author makes effective use of his wide knowledge of literature, biblical and secular, classical and modern, yet without overloading his pages and allusions or quotations."
+ Christian Century 67:951 Ag 9 '50 220w

HOUSEHOLD, GEOFFREY. High place. 245p $3 Little 50-7611

"Shortly after Eric Amberson arrives in Syria from England, he meets and falls in love with Elisa, leader of a group of international anarchists determined to stop any further encroachments by the state upon the freedom of the individual. Amberson helps to thwart the 3rd World War that the anarchists are fomenting, but in so doing is forced to sacrifice his love for Elisa." Library J

"The writing is compact and tense in spite of the difficult philosophic base."
Booklist 46:226; 287 Mr 15 '50; My 15 '50

Bookmark 9:213 Je '50 40w

Reviewed by Henry Cavendish
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 28 '50 550w

Kirkus 18:145 Mr 1 '50 190w

"A serious novel of ideas which never quite comes off." Roger McDonough
— Library J 75:775 My 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 My 26 '50 220w

New Repub 122:20 My 22 '50 300w

Reviewed by James Hilton
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 21 '50 900w

"'The High Place' is just another weirdie—one of those books that never make up their minds to be spy-hunt, exercise in dialectics, or a refuge for their authors' political frustrations." C. V. Terry
— N Y Times p21 My 7 '50 240w

New Yorker 26:124 My 20 '50 160w

"The trouble with all of this is that the characters do not really come to life and the improbabilities so far outweigh the probabilities that all touch with reality is soon lost. Mr. Household has done so much better with the truly intriguing 'Arabesque,' that one can only hope this lapse is temporary." G. G. S.
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 11 '50 250w

"'The High Place' is a masterpiece of intrigue and the Levantine runaround. It is to E. Phillips Oppenheim as the jet fighter is to the Stutz Bearcat. Furthermore, even in its most fantastic passages it has the ring of authenticity. The cold-blooded deception, espionage, and political planning practised by Household's characters could not spring full blown from imagination. . . As anyone who has read 'Rogue Male' knows, Household writes beautifully, and his occasional satire is like a controlled whip lash." Pat Frank
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 Je 24 '50 550w

"Mr. Household's concern is to entertain, and the narrative rattles along in a lively enough manner, so that it is perhaps ungrateful to take The High Place too seriously. At the same time it is hard to escape a feeling that the author's comparative sympathy for the visionaries he described tends to disregard the reality that, in the last resort, it is cranks like members of this community who are surely largely responsible for many of the things against which the author inveighs. However, this is perhaps to introduce an inappropriate note of gravity into a near-thriller."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p289 My 12 '50 260w

HOVSEPIAN, ARAMAIS AKOB. Your son and mine [foreword by Anna Roosevelt]. 205p $3 Murray & Gee; new ed $2.50 Duell
940.548173 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, American 50-6962

Letters written by a young Armenian-American from the battlefields and hospitals of World war II to his parents in Los Angeles. Excerpts from the father's letters are included.

"This is a heartwarming, human, and at times deeply sad book. Many readers who have not been soldiers themselves might well learn much about war from the reading of what is written here. And all readers, surely, could find much to admire in this family of three Armenian-Americans." Harry Ellis
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 S 30 '50 1700w

Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Jl 30 '50 900w

"The reader may wonder why a book of letters of the last war should be published in 1950. Yet he will not be able to dismiss it as old stuff; for, read against today's headlines, it has timeliness. Its meaning, indirectly conveyed, is simple. As Anna Roosevelt indicates in a moving foreword, there are less risky ways for a boy to reach manhood than being wounded in a war." Herbert Mitgang
+ N Y Times p15 Jl 30 '50 140w

"You'll go a long way before finding any reporting on World War II in Europe that has a more immediate, recognizable impact than this." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 3 '50 850w

HOWARD, ELIZABETH JANE. Beautiful visit. 343p $3 Random house
50-9038

"The theme is the exploration and growth of a young woman's mind. Beginning with a visit to relatives at the age of 17—a first formative experience away from the arid and constricting family circle—Miss Howard examines her relations with the people she meets, and their effect upon her, until gradually she makes of herself the person she would wish to be." Times [London] Lit Sup

"This exploration into a young girl's dreams and perplexities is delicately introspective and vividly photographic, but there is a certain lack of reality to all the people, even to Lavinia herself." W. K. R.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p15 O 14 '50 190w

"For a timeless, unbearable picture of late adolescence, this has its crystalline moments of hurting significance; for a montage of English life it has a period exquisiteness. Caviar—not codfish."
+ Kirkus 18:316 Je 1 '50 170w

"Inevitably reminds you of Rosamund Lehmann's Dusty Answer, shorn of that story's hopelessness. A lovely, memorable novel recommended for replacement lists." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 75:1045 Je 15 '50 80w

"An attractive first novel: a cool, quiet stream of a story that is well worth following, even though it goes on too long and ends on a note of quite unsuitable grandeur." Norman Shrapnel
+ Manchester Guardian p4 My 12 '50 70w

"Though she makes the mistake of falling in love with her young girl so that the 'I' of the story becomes more and more ravishingly lovely and more and more to be pitied as her long (far too long) narrative fills the girl's imaginary notebooks, Miss Howard is interesting and original. Often too acid or too luscious, occasionally priggish, she has true imagination and a kind of sensuous power." Antonia White
+ — New Statesman & Nation 39:552 My 13 '50 270w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 13 '50 500w

HOWARD, E. J.—Continued

"The book is sometimes a sensitive poetic search for truth, sometimes a bleak indictment of neurotic class-consciousness." Jane Martin

+ N Y Times p22 Ag 13 '50 360w

"Miss Howard tells the story with ease and good humor but takes up a great deal of space saying very little."

+ — New Yorker 26:72 Ag 12 '50 60w

"Miss Howard has drawn a compassionate and exquisitely observed picture of a young girl, difficult, tentative, self-centered as those in the process of growth must be, and has surrounded her with a variety of amusing characters, attractive or eccentric, who are less closely rendered since they are seen only through the eyes of the young girl." Pamela Taylor

+ Sat R of Lit 33:20 S 2 '50 650w

"Such a story of 'growing up' is difficult to present convincingly, but Miss Howard has succeeded in retracing her heroine's steps and writing of her, without falsity or sentimentality, at each stage, not from the outside, but as she was then."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p289 My 12 '50 130w

HOWARD, FRANCES MINTURN. All keys are glass. 64p $2.75 Dutton

811 50-10548

A small volume of lyric poems, conservative in type.

Booklist 47:132 D 1 '50

"This little volume of poems gives pleasure. A rare quality."

+ Kirkus 18:550 S 1 '50 80w

"A singular tranquillity pervades this slim book of verses. . . Mrs. Howard's lines are rarely more than competent. . . The best poems in the volume partake of an unaffected spareness, as in the first line of 'Sea House.'" Roger Shattuck

+ — N Y Times p51 N 12 '50 180w

HOWARD, JOAN. Uncle Sylvester; pictures by Garry MacKenzie. 48p $1.50 Oxford

50-6943

"Uncle Sylvester was a mole of distinction but it was his nephew who solved the problem of [escaping] from the home island, which was being eaten away by the river. . . Ages 6-10." Library J

"The book should be read aloud and the pictures studied at length to capture the sly satire, the subtle charm, the infinite variety of amusing and truly imaginative details." M. B. King

+ Chicago Sun p3 Mr 25 '50 200w

"It would be hard to imagine this enchanting nonsense story for 6 to 10 year olds without Garry MacKenzie's utterly fantastic and wonderful pictures. They belong together like two peas in a pod." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Ap 16 '50 140w

"Amusing line drawings freely spice this imaginative tale and add to its humor and ingenuity." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:194 My '50 80w

Kirkus 18:176 Mr 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by Louise Davis

Library J 75:629 Ap 15 '50 50w

"This story is a combination of humor and fantasy that is reminiscent of The Wind in the Willows. Black-and-white drawings by Gary MacKenzie are most suitable to the text. Recommended for ages 4-9" D. M. Blasco

+ Library J 75:987 Je 1 '50 70w

"The artist has a child's love of humorous detail, rare ideas about dressing up his moles, most artistic variety in his designs, and a fine sense of really assisting in the drama of the tale. Fortunately, the story that inspired these unusual drawings is good fun, too. . . This is obviously good for beginning readers, but it has been read aloud to some six and seven year olds with hilarious success."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 My 7 '50 260w

"The humor is occasionally forced, but the race against danger creates a great deal of suspense. Garry Mackenzie's illustrations are delightful." E. L. B.

+ — N Y Times p16 Je 18 '50 140w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor

San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 12 '50 120w

Wis Lib Bul p25 My '50

HOWARD, TONI (MRS JAMES O'DONNELL). Shriek with pleasure. 257p $2.75 Prentice-Hall

50-3308

"The annals of a female foreign correspondent and the beds she occupies in occupied Germany, this introduces Carla MacMurphy. . . Carla gets her stories, her men, and a car, deliberates over taking the veil of domesticity with Charles Poignon, a serious and luminously sentimental Frenchman, and then shacks up with Dave Hawks, a New York newspaperman. Dave, who outplays her most of the time, finally queers her affair with Charles, turns over her stolen car to the authorities, and walks out on her." Kirkus

— Kirkus 18:214 Ap 1 '50 120w

"Actually little is revealed except the details of a series of tasteless love affairs. What thoughts the novel does succeed in provoking are mostly questions about how such a simple siren can take in so many apparently intelligent men."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 O 22 '50 200w

"Somewhere very early in the book Miss Howard evidently abandoned any intention of giving the reader a sense of conditions in Germany today. There may be a great deal wrong with those who are representing us abroad, but this is not the book we need to open our eyes." Richard McLaughlin

— N Y Times p27 Je 4 '50 230w

"'This is, frankly, a sensational novel,' begins the jacket blurb of 'Shriek with Pleasure' and, there is no doubt about it, American readers are going to shriek with horror very soon after making the acquaintance of the heroine, Carla MacMurphy. . . Not much of a story but the author tells it with swinging strokes that hammer home her theme: corruption. Toni Howard was a correspondent herself from the Normandy invasion until after the Nuremberg trials. There is a wonderful ring of authenticity in her background and her characters, too. That is what makes her novel so disturbing." Patricia Highsmith

— + Sat R of Lit 33:31 Je 3 '50 420w

HOWE, ELVON L., ed. See Denver post. Rocky Mountain empire

HOWE, HELEN HUNTINGTON. Circle of the day. 265p $3 Simon & Schuster

50-6955

Story of Faith Millet's tenth wedding anniversary and what it brought her of bitterness and understanding, knowledge of herself and others, and finally hope for the future.

"Miss Howe is a skilled monologuist and her gift of satire and mimicry show to good effect in the descriptions of the women she does not like. But in this story she has made a genuine, and at times successful, effort to get inside those characters whom she wants you to like." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 186:81 Ag '50 420w

Booklist 46:166; 275 Ja 15 '50; My 1 '50

"A polished, meaningful satire; sophisticated New York setting."

Bookmark 9:244 Jl '50 50w

"Miss Howe occasionally gibes at Helen Hokinson types and magazine ad characters in a vain attempt to camouflage her own overly pat, synthetic concoction. But it doesn't work. Even the thin gloss of pseudo-urbanity which might make the novel fleetingly amusing is clumsily applied."

— Cath World 171:312 Jl '50 200w

Chicago Sun p15 Je 13 '50 110w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 21 '50 700w

"There is a tidiness about 'The Circle of the Day,' which preserves all three of the classical unities, in pleasing contrast to the formlessness to many similar contemporary novels. . . Within its neat compass, it is a satisfying novel." Ruth Chapin
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 My 26 '50 330w

"As the book progresses, it improves. The self-conscious mimicking of sophisticated twaddle is left behind, and Faith begins to take on a kind of reality, particularly when she looks back on her loneliness in New York. Here Miss Howe demonstrates her real talent, that of a keen insight into a woman's life, as she observes: 'any woman alone in the evening in New York carries her loneliness, her unwantedness about her like a great parcel, with nowhere to put it down, nowhere to conceal it.' " J. M. Rice
+ — Commonweal 52:254 Je 16 '50 330w

+ Kirkus 18:182 Mr 15 '50 280w

"Excellent dialogue, gay involvements and bright surprise make this a welcome addition to libraries searching for love's Old Sweet Song inoffensively rendered." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 75:694 Ap 15 '50 100w

New Repub 123:21 Ag 7 '50 90w

" 'The Circle of the Day' is a thoughtful, purposeful book whose deeper merits, quite transcending Miss Howe's always dependably keen observation and skilled craftsmanship, do not fully emerge until the whole pattern of this excellent novel is revealed." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 My 21 '50 750w

"Miss Howe has presented herself with a serious, provocative problem, the conflict between ego and love. And she explores it, to a point; unfortunately, she never goes deep enough. Somehow, her careful reporting of Faith's heartbreak does not touch the heart of the reader. The result is a novel that resembles a book of amateur snapshots—with the same verisimilitude here and there, the same occasional, sharp emotion." Leo Lerman
N Y Times p18 My 28 '50 600w

New Yorker 26:99 Je 3 '50 100w

"In her presentation of Faith Millet's problem, Miss Howe heightens, intensifies and releases emotion in the manner of an artist or a musician. Because she has done the major part of her novel so superbly, you feel let down when you find a few flaws and false notes. But these, fortunately, haven't to do with Faith, the central character, who is portrayed with expert skill and understanding." J. V.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 18 '50 500w

"Miss Howe has controlled her work too completely, she has allowed no give-and-take between creator and creature. As a result her book is sterile." Elizabeth Janeway
— + Sat R of Lit 33:20 Je 17 '50 800w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 39:767 summer '50 120w

HOWE, JANE MOORE. Amelia Earhart, Kansas girl; il. by Paul Laune. 196p $1.75 Bobbs
B or 92 Earhart, Amelia—Juvenile literature 50-6741

A juvenile biography of Amelia Earhart describing her childhood in Atchison, her first flying experiences in California, and her dream that came true: dinner at the White House. For ages 8 to 10.

Reviewed by Margaret Miller
Library J 75:987 Je 1 '50 80w

"It makes a pleasant story of a small girl and the growth of her unusual ambition, but on the whole we think that the fascinating life of this great woman flyer could wait till girls are old enough to read her whole story or as much of it as is in her own writings."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 My 7 '50 80w

HOWE, JANET ROGERS. Thunder and Jerry [il. by Harlyn Dickinson]. 212p $2.50 Lothrop 49-11121

A horse and boy story. Jerry's father had wanted a farm horse, but the new horse did not belong on a Massachusetts farm: he was a saddle horse and a jumper. The horse is sold to Jerry's grief, but he is made happy again by a job in a riding school for small boys.

"Young horse lovers will enjoy the sound information about training horses in New England surroundings, and perhaps fail to notice that the book is not very well written." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:36 Ja '50 120w

"First rate horse and boy story, with plenty of other qualities to recommend it."
+ Kirkus 17:587 O 15 '49 130w

"This is not just another horse story; it is a very good one. Recommended for ages 10-14." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 75:500 Mr 15 '50 70w

"This story can be recommended for realism. . . The book, written in a passable style, has many new angles for young horse-lovers, and to them Jerry's experiences will all be absorbing. The fine old groom Dan and the friend Pete are good characters too." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 13 '49 140w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:32 N 12 '49 20w

HOWE, MARK DE WOLFE, ed. Readings in American legal history. 528p $7.50 Harvard univ. press
340 Law—U.S. 49-10682

"The faculty of Harvard Law School recently approved a plan for the reorganization of its curriculum. One element in the plan calls for the offering of a two-hour elective course in American legal history in the first semester of the second year. The material collected here has been brought together with the immediate purpose of meeting the needs of that course." (School & Society) "Most of the materials deal with problems confronted in the reception and rejection of English law in this country." (Harvard Law R)

"On the whole, since Professor Howe has undertaken to pioneer in a comparatively unexplored field, the fact that sometimes he has left undone that which he ought to have done and done that which he ought not to have done is excusable. He is perhaps to be rather congratulated on having produced the book at all than criticized for not having done it well. It is regrettable that the book is not printed, but is reproduced in some sort of facsimile of typewriting. The text could hardly have been made more unreadable by printing it in sixteenth-century black letter. There is no index or table of cases, but the want is to some extent supplied by a detailed table of contents." S. F. Howard
Columbia Law R 50:720 My '50 1900w

"This collection offers students striking source materials on which to sharpen their insight. Measured by its immediate objective—to present materials on some early problems which have been 'persistent and possess a significance which outlives the first generations which sought to solve them'—the volume is a craftsman's job, put together solidly and yet with ample scope for the individuality of the instructor." Willard Hurst
+ Harvard Law R 63:553 Ja '50 1400w

School & Society 71:319 My 20 '50 60w

HOWELLS, WILLIAM DEAN. Selected writings; ed. with an introd. by Henry Steele Commager. 946p $5 Random house
818 50-9450

Contents: "'The Rise of Silas Lapham,' 'A Modern Instance,' 'A Boy's Town' and 'My Mark Twain.' For these, Mr. Commager has written his sensible and perceptive introductory note." San Francisco Chronicle

"For many readers here is undiscovered country that will richly repay exploration."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 S 24 '50 460w

Reviewed by Carlos Baker
N Y Times p5 S 10 '50 750w

"The reissue in one volume of four of [Howells'] chief works is a salutary event and might well stimulate a revival. The selections are good, if not completely representative (which is not surprising when you consider that the collected works of Howells would run to over a hundred volumes.)"
+ New Yorker 26:122 S 9 '50 200w

"The latter-day re-emergence of Henry James suggests that interest in Howells may be due for a like rebirth. If so, then this volume (it would have been pleasant if it had been possible to include some of Howells' criticism and travel writing) comes at the right moment. In any event, the four books here included, together with Mr. Commager's excellent essay, will provide an opportunity for reevaluation of the man himself and of his influence on his time." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 6 '50 900w

"Mr Commager's is an effort to cull from the one hundred volumes of Howell's writings the most charming and durable Howells, and to present him to the modern reader with a lively introduction that brushes off the dust of neglect and reveals the 'delight in life' that makes these writings vital today." R. E. Spiller
+ Sat R of Lit 33:10 S 2 '50 650w

HOWLEY, FRANK LEO. Berlin command. 276p $3.50 Putnam
940.5343 Germany—History—Allied occupation, 1945- . U.S.—Foreign relations—Russia. Russia—Foreign relations—U.S.
50-5296

An account of the author's four years spent in Germany as deputy and commander of the United States forces in Berlin. It is largely the story of his conflicts with the commissars who were carrying out the Soviet policy in Berlin.

Am Pol Sci R 44:512 Je '50 30w

"His tone, unfortunately, is disagreeably boastful and cocksure, and patronizingly critical of any colleague or superior who did not see eye to eye with him. In spite of this, I found myself admiring his toughness with the Russians, and frequently cheered him as he came back with a surprise punch when the opposition was congratulating itself on a knockout. . . The book's most important contribution is its close-up—the fullest and most intimate we have had—of the day-to-day enormities of Russian policy in action." C. J. Rolo
+ — Atlantic 185:83 F '50 650w

Booklist 46:165; 187 Ja 15 '50; F 1 '50

"This is history on a personal, immediate level which will make you proud of the patience and self-assurance shown by our troops in Berlin. They were not saints but they fairly deserve the term of hero." Emmett Dedmon
+ Chicago Sun p7 F 12 '50 320w

"In his own, free-swinging manner, Frank Howley tells the almost incredible story—incredible unless you were there, as I was for a year—of those times in a book that might well have been called 'Me and the Russians.' It's history, but it's as wild as any midnight thriller. . . 'Berlin Command' will give Americans a chance to decide, too, if Howley is the kind of man we need in our vital dealings with the Kremlin." J. H. Thompson
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 22 '50 550w

"All this may go big on the nation-wide lecture tour that General Howley is now making, so the jacket says, as a sideline to his vacation. As a contribution toward resolving the current crisis it is of doubtful value." Paul Farrell
Commonweal 51:469 F 3 '50 390w

Foreign Affairs 29:153 O '50 30w

"The story is told tersely, with no camouflage, but with occasional saving grace of humor, and a real sense of anecdote, human interest, and drama. . . This is first rate reading."
+ Kirkus 17:683 D 15 '49 260w

"Heartily recommended for libraries which can afford buying this book in addition to Clay's." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 75:173 F 1 '50 150w

"The cold war will not be won by tying down the handle of the steam whistle. General Howley's book's value, if any, is as a breathtaking demonstration of how not to conduct international affairs." Telford Taylor
— Nation 170:136 F 11 '50 800w

"A number of errors appear. . . General Howley had few dull moments in Berlin. There are few for the reader in 'Berlin Command.'" Walter Kerr
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ja 22 '50 1000w

"A highly personal, highly provocative account of the occupation of the German capital. . . Regardless of how the reader, and historians, may judge General Howley's interpretation of his assignment, it is unfortunate that on the factual side he has committed so many errors." Delbert Clark
N Y Times p5 Ja 22 '50 800w

"The book is high strung, to say the least, and it leaves the reader wondering uneasily whether it is safe to leave Berlin lying around, now the General is no longer there to keep an eye on it."
New Yorker 25:99 F 11 '50 180w

Reviewed by Gordon Pates
San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 5 '50 450w

"'Berlin Command' is a violent book. It is a story of the violent conflict of East and West for possession of Berlin, told in violent language by a man whose violent reactions are now legendary in Berlin. It will be enjoyable reading to those who like violence. It will be profitable reading to those who recognize the truth of Howley's claim that Berlin is the most important case study in the East-West conflict. But it will be annoying reading to those who prefer at least a minimum of objectivity." Edward Litchfield
Sat R of Lit 33:16 F 18 '50 800w

"First rate reading."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:27 F '50

HOYT, MURRAY. Does it always rain here, Mr Hoyt? with il. by Perry Barlow. 245p $3 Rinehart
818 50-7961

Episodes in the life of a summer resort owner. Mr Hoyt had an idea that it would be both dignified and profitable to run a summer resort. He and his wife opened a camp on the shore of Lake Champlain, in Vermont, but the dignity he hoped for completely eluded them. This is an account of what they found instead.

Booklist 46:331 Jl 1 '50

Reviewed by R. L. Blakesley
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 11 '50 200w

"This is an amusing enough (spottily at times) episodic account of the trial and error methods by which the Hoyt finances ran full circle from nothing to nothing. . . The style is uneven, and lacks the finish, the professional touch one could expect from a successful contributor to the S. E. P. and its ilk. Perhaps this adds the desired naivete."
— + Kirkus 18:231 Ap 1 '50 220w

"For innocent bystanders, the account is both interesting and pleasant." A. J. Gaines
+ Library J 75:976 Je 1 '50 120w

Reviewed by Lorine Pruette
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 11 '50 700w

"There must be good reason why guests go back to the Hoyts year after year and why children who came with their parents a dozen years ago now return with their children. Apparently they were treated as well as Mr. Hoyt treats them in his book. He describes only three or four stinkers, but even these pests are let off gently. What really got under Mr. Hoyt's skin was the monotonous question put to him every time the sun failed to shine—a question which is the title of his amusing book." S. T. Williamson
+ N Y Times p12 Je 11 '50 320w

San Francisco Chronicle p11 Jl 9 '50 80w

Springf'd Republican p9B Jl 2 '50 130w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Jl '50

HUBBARD, JOSHUA CLAPP. Creation of income by taxation. 239p $4 Harvard univ. press

336.2 Income. Taxation 50-7389

"A study, at a high level of abstraction, of the influence of higher taxation on consumption and investment, and of the spending of the receipts for social consumption or to expand private investment. The author studies the sources from which the higher taxes are paid, and how they should be spent, using the multiplier technique to calculate effects, and comes to the conclusion that in periods of underemployment government deficit spending should be an interim and temporary solution helping to establish income creation by taxation for the longer-run policy." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"Although the nonprofessional reader will find the first six chapters of Professor Hubbard's book hard reading, he will have much less difficulty in following the author's reasoning in the last three where he undertakes to evaluate various types of monetary and fiscal programs as well as certain generally accepted maxims of public finance. Nor is he likely to disagree with Professor Hubbard's policy conclusions." E. G. Keith
+ Ann Am Acad 272:246 N '50

Current Hist 19:106 Ag '50 30w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:984 Je 1 '50 80w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Je 18 '50 170w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:318 S '50 250w

HUBBARD, LAFAYETTE RONALD. Dianetics; the modern science of mental health; a handbook of dianetic therapy; introd. by J. A. Winter. 452p $4 Hermitage

616.8 Psychotherapy. Mental hygiene 50-8065

"It is alleged that this 'new science of the mind' is based on a system which regards the brain as a perfect calculating machine, and offers a means of curing—in 100 per cent of the cases—all psychoses, neuroses, and psychosomatic illnesses. It is further stated that dianetic therapy enables individuals to rid themselves of blocks that impair maximum functioning of the intellect. . . L. Ron Hubbard is a mathematician, theoretical philosopher, and writer. The volume includes circuit graphs by Donald H. Rogers of Western Electric, an outline of philosophic method by Will Durant, an outline of scientific method by John W. Campbell, nuclear physicist, and an introduction by Dr. J. A. Winter." Chicago Sun

"This may turn out to be one of the most important books of the year. Only careful experiments will be able to confirm or refute the startling claims it makes. . . What is important is the allegation that here at last is a therapy that works in the field of the mind with the invariability of physical science. The therapeutic techniques are completely outlined." Robert Hughes
Chicago Sun p7 My 28 '50 370w

"Ordinarily, a new book which offers a generalized cure for all the ills of mankind—guaranteed within twenty hours—would not be reviewed in these columns. This new book on 'Dianetics,' by L. Ron Hubbard, however, is in a class by itself. In the first place, the author seems honestly to believe what he has written. His own powerful conviction, in turn, seems to have convinced many others—apparently intelligent people who would be inclined to toss aside a book of this type. . . The real and, to me, inexcusable danger in dianetics lies in its conception of the amoral, detached, 100 per cent efficient mechanical man—superbly free-floating, unemotional, and unrelated to anything. This is the authoritarian dream, a population of zombies, free to be manipulated by the great brains of the founder, the leader of the inner manipulative clique. Fortunately for us this is an unattainable dream, on the rocks of which every great authoritarian leader has sooner or later met his fate." M. R. Sapirstein
Nation 171:131 Ag 5 '50 1200w

"Hubbard's concept of psychosomatic disease is definitely wrong. Psychosomatic ailments are not simply caused by emotional disturbances; they are diseases in which the emotional and the organic factor are closely involved and interdependent. . . The flicker of coronary trouble may be a serious occlusion, the psychosomatic ulcer may be a disguised cancer, and the cough a tumor of the lungs. While the patient is spending his hours in dianetic revery, precious time for saving his life may be lost: it may prove fatal to have put too much trust in the promises of this dangerous book." Martin Gumpert
New Repub 123:20 Ag 14 '50 1200w

"Perhaps the most unfortunate element in Dianetics is the way it is written. The mixture of some oversimplified truths, half truths and plain absurdities, the propagandistic technique of impressing the reader with the greatness, infallability and newness of the author's system, the promise of unheard of results attained by the simple means of following Dianetics is a technique which has had most unfortunate results in the fields of patent medicines and politics; applied to psychology and psychiatry it will not be less harmful." Erich Fromm
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 S 3 '50 1500w

"The importance of 'Dianetics,' in this reviewer's judgment, is that it so clearly illustrates the most common fallacy of our time in regard to psychological ills. This is the fallacy of trying to construct a simple science of human behavior based upon mathematics and using for its models the physical sciences and the machine. . . In this book Hubbard often inveighs against shock therapy and psychosurgery—and one can sympathize with his intent at these points. But he does not see that the excessive use of shock therapy and surgical mutilation of the brain are based on the same assumptions as his own theory—namely, the oversimplification of complex human ailments and the endeavor to heal these ailments by mechanical methods." Rollo May
N Y Times p9 Jl 2 '50 1250w

"It promises to be the most exciting book to come to the attention of science fiction readers (who are the only ones who seem to know about it) in a long time; even though it is not itself science fiction. It is the first book this reviewer can remember that has led strangers to call late at night and ask: 'Have you read it yet? What do you think? Have you tried it?' . . The excitement—and the caution—stem from the difficulty in evaluating the book. It is either one of the most important ever published, or a vast and inexcusable hoax. The test lies in applying the techniques for psychotherapy described in the book and seeing if they work." Don Fabun
San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 11 '50 850w

HUBBARD, MARGARET ANN. Murder takes the veil. 257p $3 Bruce pub.
50-9554

Detective story.

Booklist 47:100 N 1 '50

"A sufficiently thrilling murderer-hunting yarn which should find its biggest readership in the early teen-age group because the arch prose is not particularly adult. Though St. Aurelian's is identified as a college, it is guilelessly unacademic." Mary Sandrock
+ — Cath World 172:233 D '50 210w

Kirkus 18:489 Ag 15 '50 90w

"Miss Hubbard has chosen her setting well —a lovely and historical convent in the Louisiana bayou country; and she sketches several appealing nuns, from the wise Mother Superior to senile but lovable Sister Etienne. There the list of this book's virtues must stop. The mystery plot is an absurd mélange of implausible motivations, incompetent detection, and the conventional terrified-heroine idiocy of a girl named (but certainly never christened) Trillium." A. B.
N Y Times p39 S 10 '50 180w

"Miss Hubbard's plotting is intricate but fair, the happenings she records are sombre and violent, and her atmospheric effects are excellently contrived. Altogether, a very original and stimulating piece of work."
+ New Yorker 26:123 S 16 '50 120w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p16 O 1 '50 100w

HUBBELL, CATHERINE. Frances. 299p $3 Norton
49-11915

Character study of Frances Sheldon, daughter of a loveless marriage. Her mother was a beautiful woman, a member of New York society; her father a self-made lawyer. With her father's suicide when she was twelve, Frances, who was plain and chunky, found herself eternally pitted against her mother. The course of Frances' life is traced from childhood in the 20's to the close of World war II.

Booklist 46:134; 159; D 15 '49 Ja 1 '50

"The novel is interesting in that it touches upon many sores of modern society, such as divorce, amoralism, lack of direction, but no remedies are even suggested." Mary Sandrock
Cath World 170:394 F '50 200w

Reviewed by Dorothy Sparks
Chicago Sun p7 F 19 '50 150w

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ja 29 '50 400w

"Miss Hubbell, experienced in short fiction, new to the novel, is willing to take time to savor a situation and look long and steadily at her characters, though her Frances would be a more sympathetic protagonist if she had more common sense. Miss Hubbell recreates New York from the late 20's to the time of the war, writes intelligently, is sophisticated while she pictures Frances in revolt against sophistication."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 12 '50 190w

Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '50

"A real sophistication here for keen reading pleasure."
+ Kirkus 17:628 N 15 '49 160w

"A first novel; recommended especially for mothers and daughters." H. R. Forbes
Library J 74:1818 D 1 '49 100w

"Miss Hubbell's style is frequently pedestrian, and the New York background as it is described—New York of the 'twenties, 'thirties and 'forties—often seems to be more an accumulation of non-significant detail than an imaginative recreation of a living period. None the less Miss Hubbell's portrayal of Frances herself is a living one." Blythe Morley
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ja 1 '50 320w

"There are many things in the book, some good and some not so good. Miss Hubbell writes poignantly about the experiences of a lonely in-grown child. She can create dramatic and revealing scenes. Her style is often original and effective. The question is why, with such evident talent, Miss Hubbell has not written a really moving or memorable novel." Granville Hicks
+ — N Y Times p4 Ja 8 '50 360w

"Miss Hubbell starts out in great spirits, blocking in the scene with a sure hand, but after a while her infatuation with her heroine leads her into a series of interminable ramblings and explanations that are of no interest to anyone except, perhaps, Frances's relatives and her close girl friends."
New Yorker 25:80 Ja 7 '50 90w

"With everything retrogressing the way it is toward the Twenties, it is inevitable, I suppose, that we should get a 'Green Hat.' . . Miss Hubbell writes too well to put on that Green Hat. She is a competent craftsman; her backgrounds, her descriptions, her dialogue, her evocations of the sights and sounds of contemporary New York are credible and excellent. It is exasperating then that she should choose to devote her talent to the apotheosis of the spurious, to join the dreary devotees . . . of futility, frustration, golden girls, neurotic dooms, and what we used to call Rrrrrussian suffering." Evelyn Eaton
Sat R of Lit 33:14 Ja 7 '50 410w

Springf'd Republican p3D Ja 22 '50 60w

HUBERMAN, LEO. Truth about socialism. 256p $3 Lear
335 Socialism 50-7554

Popularly written analysis of socialism versus capitalism, by the author of We, the People, The Truth About Unions, etc. Bibliography. Index.

"Under the guise of an elementary exposition of socialism, Mr. Huberman has in effect written a propagandistic pamphlet which could be circulated by the Communist Party in lieu of those which bear its official imprint. As such it deserves close study as illustrating what may be a new genre in presumably nonparty Communist literature." Sidney Hook
Ann Am Acad 272:224 N '50 600w

"Huberman displays the virtues of socialism by delivering a transparently partisan exhortation on the vices of capitalism. After a while the sad performance becomes a kind of liturgy in which repetition, condescending simplicity, contrasts that shock, rhetorical questions and assorted non-sequiturs substitute for straight thinking. The pity of it is that Huberman once demonstrated qualities which impelled many to accept him as a popular social and economic writer of some repute. Those qualities are no longer evident in this book." B. B. Seligman
— New Repub 123:18 Jl 3 '50 650w

"This book tells the 'truth' about socialism in pretty much the same way that a book by the president of the National Association of Manufacturers or the American Bankers Association might tell the 'truth' about capitalism." A. H. Raskin
N Y Times p18 Jl 9 '50 270w

"Having designed his book to sell Socialism as a popular bread-and-butter ideology, Mr. Huberman (who in the past has successfully sold readers on labor unions and American economic history) comes forward with a breezy, readable sales talk but ruins his sale by putting the wrong—or left—foot through the door. . . When he cites Soviet Russia as Socialism's most satisfied customer, Mr. Huberman arouses anything but a keeping-up-with-the-Joneses spirit here. . . And when you bring up under the heading of 'freedom,' as this book does, those FBI dossiers and the unbalanced partisanship of our press as evidence of the capitalist terror, what about the Russian MVD's files and Soviet censorship of science and the arts and—aw, skip it. Just mark it 'No Sale.' "
— Sat R of Lit 33:32 Je 24 '50 320w

HUDSON, DEREK. Unrepentant Victorian: Martin Tupper [Eng title: Martin Tupper]. 342p il $3.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Tupper, Martin Farquhar [49-3535]

"A study of the nineteenth-century English poet, now almost forgotten, whose 'Proverbial Philosophy' was for over forty years a standard household item, on a par with the antimacassar, both in his own country and in America. Since Tupper had designs on the laureateship, his output also included poems in honor of almost every imaginable public occasion. In appraising this mass of work, Mr. Hudson manages to dig up bits of evidence indicating that his subject wasn't entirely the pedestrian, moralistic rhymester his detractors accused him of being but showed flashes of something that might be construed as real talent." New Yorker

---

Manchester Guardian p3 F 22 '49 300w

"Where is the line to be drawn between poetry and poetastry? By what yardstick is 'literature' to be measured? Tupper's story provides much material for this fascinating speculation. In Mr. Hudson's excellent book, moreover, the somewhat absurd name comes to life; it belongs to a man, in his biographer's own words, 'provocatively, extravagantly, yet endearingly alive'; a likeable man; one, as Charles Reade said, 'unreasonably pitched into.' Tupper's works may not be read again in the spirit in which they were written, but he certainly qualifies for a place in the Victorian gallery." Naomi Lewis

+ New Statesman & Nation 37:308 Mr 26 '49 1200w

N Y Times p12 Ag 20 '50 370w

"Personally, Tupper stood up remarkably well under the critical drubbing he had to endure for a large part of his life, quite possiply because of his inflated sense of self-importance. An excellent presentation of a mildly comic but appealing figure."

+ New Yorker 26:71 Jl 1 '50 170w

"The curious history of Tupper is well displayed in this most engaging and amusing book. It is in many respects an ideal biography; for Tupper trips and rattles on every page, while the author contents himself with a minimum of essential comment and explanation." C. E. Vulliamy

+ Spec 182:226 F 18 '49 800w

"Biographer Hudson skillfully knits the personal story of Martin Tupper with a fascinating study of the triumph, decline and fall of a literary mediocrity who held a position unique in the history of Anglo-American literature."

+ Time 55:92 Je 5 '50 600w

"Mr. Hudson has not had an easy task in a biography of this kind, but he has discharged it with skill and integrity—though here and there the pulpit moralizings of his subject seem to have proved infectious. He gives a clear and balanced survey of Tupper's literary work and achievement, and he has patiently collected and ingeniously put together the details of his private life. The background of the Victorian age is filled in unobtrusively and with great accuracy."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p122 F 19 '49 1800w

HUESTON, ETHEL (POWELSON) (MRS E. J. BEST). Family takes a wife. 287p $2.75 Bobbs

50-9301

Lofty social ideals plus hatred of conventional religion led young Captain Hastings Herkimer, on occupation duty in Germany, to try an experiment in marriage by taking unto himself a young German girl, an amnesiac without memory of family ties and no racial or other prejudices. He brings the girl to America, introduces her to his family, and proceeds to carry out his ideas. But then only the wise intervention of some members of the family save the marriage from catastrophe.

Booklist 47:39 S 15 '50

Chicago Sun p5 Ag 20 '50 30w

"The novelty of Athea's situation piques the reader's curiosity in the first half of the book, but since people and their emotions are only skin deep in these pages, interest inevitably peters out. While lively dialogue lightens the going, it cannot conceal a fundamental shallowness in the story's telling." C. B. Burnett

Christian Science Monitor p18 O 19 '50 360w

Reviewed by Andrea Parke

N Y Times p33 O 8 '50 150w

HUGHES, MRS DOROTHY BELLE (FLANAGAN). Candy kid. 218p $2.50 Duell

50-10026

Mystery story.

"Not her best, this is still a superior show of suspense in which the action is circuitous, the treatment unruffled."

+ Kirkus 18:490 Ag 15 '50 110w

"A good romantic yarn but lacking in Miss Hughes's usual emotional force."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 N 19 '50 180w

"Dorothy B. Hughes has a special skill at building up an atmosphere of terror. Her prose is often overwrought and it is sometimes hard to remember later what all the heavy breathing was about. While she is telling her story, however, Miss Hughes clutches the reader's throat with a firm hand." Hillis Mills

+ — N Y Times p30 N 5 '50 180w

New Yorker 26:136 O 28 '50 70w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 19 '50 90w

"Readable but not top Hughes."

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:47 O 21 '50 50w

HUGHES, FRANK L. Prejudice and the press; a restatement of the principle of freedom of the press with specific reference to the Hutchins-Luce commission. 642p $6 Devin-Adair

323.445 Liberty of the press. Commission on freedom of the press 50-13099

"That much of the material in this book already has appeared in the Chicago Tribune is no accident. It is the work of a Tribune reporter who was assigned to find out what the 'Commission on Freedom of the Press' was all about. Mr. Hughes toiled for three years with 'no other instructions' and came up with a heavy-going volume that reflects exactly what the Tribune and its publisher, Col. Robert R. McCormick, long have thought about the Commission, its chairman, Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, his fellow authors of the so-called Hutchins Report on the American press, and, in passing, a variety of other men, institutions, and political ideas on the American scene." Sat R of Lit

---

Booklist 47:88 N 1 '50

"One of the most important works of social scholarship of our times. . . I can think of no recent book which brings out so clearly, so learnedly and readably, what the crisis of our age is about. For the freedom of the word is at the center of this crisis." Benjamin Stolberg

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 11 '50 1150w

"This book by Mr. Hughes is not adequate nor fair analysis of the Hutchins report. It is an attack upon the character, integrity, and total works of Robert M. Hutchins, Chancellor of the University of Chicago, and his chief lieutenants. It carries argumentum ad personam to an extreme, and proudly uses the theory of guilt by association to convict all it opposes. A straightforward study and dissection of the case put forward in the Hutchins report would have been very much more effective." E. D. Canham

Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 20 '50 600w

"'Prejudice and the Press' cannot be shrugged off. It presents a considerable body of authentic material, with citations and some documentation, which goes to the heart of the issues discussed in 'A Free and Responsible Press' and which upsets many of the too facile generalizations of the group responsible for that 'report.' " F. L. Mott

HUGHES, F. L.—Continued
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Jl 2 '50 800w

"Unfortunately, the book does not achieve its aim. It is preponderantly a bitter attack upon the personal views and activities of the Hutchins Commission, upon the University of Chicago, upon various wealthy foundations—in short, upon almost everything to which The Chicago Tribune is so zealously opposed. This is lively and legitimate. Unfortunately, it does not inform or enlighten people very much about 'the principle of freedom of the press.' And people need such information. . . A disinterested and hard-hitting critique of the Hutchins report should be published. There have been recent excellent oblique replies to the report. But a job remains to be done. It is regrettable Mr. Hughes has not done it." E. D. Canham
— N Y Times p5 Je 25 '50 850w

"Despite the mass of appendices, notes, and other data in the book and despite the considerable vulnerability of the Hutchins Report, Hughes's book is mostly what the original assignment apparently called for: a hatchet job for a newspaper that has few, if any, equals at that art." G. Y. Wells
Sat R of Lit 33:15 Jl 1 '50 900w

HUGHES, HENRY STUART. Essay for our times. 196p $2.75 Knopf
901 Civilization. Communism 50-5192

"A discussion of the roots of the struggle between the United States and the Soviet Union. Examining this struggle in the light of the last fifty years, [Mr Hughes] finds the problem of Russia to be but part of a greater crisis we face—a crisis of Western culture. Toynbee and Spengler, Freud and Jung, Henry Adams and Thomas Mann, the author shows have all anticipated in one form or another the present crisis. He uses their viewpoints to reveal the dangerous misunderstandings and confusions on both sides of the cold war." (Publisher's note) The author, a grandson of the late Chief Justice Hughes, is at present assistant professor of history at Harvard.

"The author's honesty, courage, and general fair-mindedness more than outweigh a kind of Hamlet-like shadow of threatening doom, not encouraging to dwell upon, which pervades this book." W. P. Hall
+ — Ann Am Acad 270:151 Jl '50 360w

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 185:89 Ap '50 850w

Booklist 46:217 Mr 1 '50

Reviewed by R. M. Brace
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 12 '50 500w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p7 My 6 '50 1100w

"Mr. Hughes writes with clarity and succinctness, and with a steady recognition of the realities of our time. But although he comes up with some significant insights along the way, his cultural approach does not—perhaps no new approach could—shed any more light on the subject of Russo-American conflict. And the cultural generalization itself, with its inevitable simplifications, raises its own difficulties." C. H. Weiss
Commonweal 51:614 Mr 17 '50 700w

Foreign Affairs 29:144 O '50 80w

"Using comparative perspectives taken from Toynbee and Spengler, this is a quite brilliant, stimulating evaluation, not too easily accessible to the average reader."
+ Kirkus 17:669 D 1 '49 190w

"Smoothly written, argued and rubricated." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 75:170 F 1 '50 110w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr
Nation 170:232 Mr 11 '50 900w

Reviewed by Robert Hatch
New Repub 122:19 Mr 13 '50 2200w

"[Mr Hughes] writes well; and a disciplined and lucid intelligence gives a wide relevance to what is, at bottom, an individual's attempt to come to terms with reality." August Heckscher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 F 5 '50 950w

"To this reviewer [Mr Hughes] seems, in his effort to find a simple historical formula, to mistake for a fatal trend what may be merely a mood. And he seems in error when he puts the synthetic 'civilization' of the Soviets, created out of formulas, prejudices and bleak necessity, on equal competitive terms with the civilization born out of many centuries of slow growth. But he can be read with profit. His book is as good intellectual exercise as one could find." R. L. Duffus
+ — N Y Times p7 F 5 '50 750w

"The author of this short, but thought-provoking little book is a young historian who, while claiming to speak only for himself, is representative of the intellectually most searching and politically most conscious members of that generation which experienced the Great Depression in their early adolescence and reached manhood at the outbreak of the Second World War. . . For his essay, which is essentially a political one, Mr. Hughes uses a historical approach, in the broadest sense of the term, for the sake of detachment and in order to include in the discussion cultural as well as strictly political considerations." E. C. Kollman
+ Pol Sci Q 65:298 Je '50 950w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 18 '50 1050w

"The writer writing about 'our times' will have to know how to avoid manifold temptations and pitfalls. . . Mr. Hughes, a Harvard historian now in his early thirties, has performed this representative task for the men of his age with sensitiveness and circumspection. Unlike the Marxians, the Trotskyites, and Professor James Burnham, he does not undertake to tell us 'what is happening in the world.' . . Hughes is too modest, too sincere, and too well-bred for such attitudes. Yet what rich information and a vigorous intelligence at the service of a fine, generous mind can achieve, his book has done." Golo Mann
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 F 25 '50 700w

School & Society 72:15 Jl 1 '50 30w

"Brilliant and scholarly analysis of American thought today."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:148 Je '50 240w

HUGHES, LANGSTON. Simple speaks his mind. 231p $3; pa $1 Simon & Schuster 50-7299

Short stories which first appeared in the Chicago Defender, a Negro newspaper. "Simple," the central figure, is a Negro who expresses his views on many subjects, but always from the point of view of his own race. He dislikes whites, and makes no bones of it. Some of his favorite topics are women, landladies especially, parties, and beer.

Booklist 46:275 My 1 '50

"As always with Hughes the language he uses has a life and vitality seldom encountered. Among modern writers his ability to capture the real flavor of speech is rarely equalled."
+ Chicago Sun p22 Ap 23 '50 180w

"The American conscience is scourged by the somber story of a Richard Wright; it is wooed and given a healthy pricking by the gentle humor and the quiet ridicule of Jess B. Simple's creator." Youra Qualls
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 S 12 '50 650w

"The episodes are humorous in a sensitive, dignified way. They do not furnish any deep picture of the meaning of jim-crow living, but time after time they produce in the white reader the sensation of being hit; hit right for the part he unconsciously plays in maintaining a racist social structure." William Pfaff

Commonweal 52:181 My 26 '50 260w

Kirkus 18:109 F 15 '50 220w

Reviewed by W. G. Smith

New Repub 123:20 S 4 '50 500w

"One should space the reading of 'Simple Speaks His Mind' as if the pieces were each a weekly column (as indeed they were). Otherwise 'Simple's' speech may grow monotonous—and this in spite of its flashes of sheer brilliance, its wisdom and its humor." J. S. Redding

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Je 11 '50 500w

"Simple is completely frank in his opinions about white people: he dislikes them intensely. The race problem is never absent, but the flow of the book is light-hearted and easy. This is a sane approach to real insanity and I wouldn't be surprised if this book reaches more people and has wider influence than any volume on a similar subject since 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.'" Carl Van Vechten

+ N Y Times p10 My 7 '50 380w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Jl 23 '50 170w

Springf'd Republican p8C My 7 '50 70w

HUGHES, ROSEMARY. Haydn. (Master musicians; new ser) 244p il $2.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy

B or 92 Haydn, Franz Joseph 50-13620

A brief study of Joseph Haydn. Following the outline of his life story, there are analyses of selections from his works. Catalog of works. Personalia. Bibliography. Index.

"Miss Hughes has never strayed beyond facts into the all-too-popular region of 'fictional history.' Incidentally, in her description of Haydn's two visits to England she throws fresh light on to the curious social and musical conditions prevailing in London during the closing years of the eighteenth century. As always in this series of handy volumes, Eric Blom's appendices are of unique value." G. A. H.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 My 9 '50 160w

Reviewed by Andrew Porter

New Statesman & Nation 39:664 Je 10 '50 800w

"This is a handbook of competent and unassuming scholarship typical of the series which it truly adorns. The matter is understood and well organized; the writing is direct and literate. . . The yearly calendar is very valuable and so is the catalogue. The author's musical penetration is persuasively and sometimes eloquently conveyed." C. G. Burke

+ Sat R of Lit 33:26 S 30 '50 400w

"The account of Haydn's long life is fluently written and succeeds to a remarkable degree in conveying the sense of the passage of time, the personal identity persisting through the changes of the years yet changing with the years. . . This addition to Dent's 'Master Musicians' series, which takes the place of the one by Hadden now quite out of date, adds lustre to the series edited by Mr. Eric Blom and will be found useful alike to the general reader and to the student."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p212 Ap 7 '50 650w

HUGHES, RUPERT. Complete detective; being the life and strange and exciting cases of Raymond Schindler, master detective; with a foreword by Erle Stanley Gardner. 319p $3.50 Sheridan

351.74 Schindler, Raymond Campbell. Crime and criminals—Identification 50-14676

"Biography of a real detective: Raymond Schindler, who has handled 10,000 cases of human error; most famous, Sir Harry Oakes murder." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 47:128 D 1 '50

"This exciting collection of true law-breaking episodes has more shivers to the page than any fiction whodunit you ever read." Al Chase

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 15 '50 250w

"A full-scale study of his work is badly needed. This slipshod biography—crudely organized, largely lacking in names and dates, and written in a lurid and tasteless prose—serves to whet the appetite until that needed book comes along." Anthony Boucher

— N Y Times p37 N 5 '50 230w

"Mr. Hughes' prose style is rather primitive (there is probably no author with a greater weakness for exclamation points and for capitalizing common nouns), and his admiration for his subject may strike some as a little excessive, but the book is always lively and often fascinating."

+ — New Yorker 26:135 O 7 '50 160w

"Interesting stuff but writing of devoted Boswell Hughes creaks and fiction remains stranger than truth."

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:40 S 30 '50 40w

"The Schindler story has been told before, but as a personal friend and an established writer Mr. Hughes has an edge that enables him to attain new heights. No trumped-up fictions these; told as they actually happened, they are all the more engrossing." D. B. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p8D O 1 '50 330w

HUGHES, RUPERT. The giant wakes; a novel about Samuel Gompers. 294p $3 Borden pub.

Gompers, Samuel—Fiction 50-8854

Biographical novel about Samuel Gompers, founder of the American Federation of Labor, and its president for nearly forty years.

"Labor relations beclouded by just too much love. In a sloppy, over-heated style, Rupert Hughes gives us a novelized, romanticized version of the life of Samuel Gompers, first leader of the American Federation of Labor." Mary Sandrock

— Cath World 171:474 S '50 200w

"By telling this story as a novel, with several passages of pure fiction, Rupert Hughes has made it possible for the reader to be entertained while learning some basic facts about the growth of the organized labor movement in America." Philip Dodd

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 30 '50 410w

"Mr. Hughes has not been very happy in the undertaking. His handling of the facts is a mixture of the sentimental and the editorial, and the invented characters and conversations are just what the author calls them—padding."

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 17 '50 130w

"This reviewer finds himself very much in the position of Balaam, who came to curse and remained to bless. Allergic to biographical novels, he is only too soon aware that here is a story which violates almost every canon of good fiction. Yet so vast are the novelist's sympathies that one finds it hard to cavil at such transgressions of the fictional art as are here revealed. . . There is something in the story preponderantly ardent and just; the founder of the American Federation of Labor emerges as a living personality." John Cournos

+ N Y Times p19 Jl 23 '50 180w

"The manner in which the book is written will probably keep it from reaching the wide audience that the Gompers story deserves. Mr. Hughes frankly admits himself to be a sentimentalist; unfortunately the language he has employed is so maudlin that the reader at first suspects it is an effort to recapture the actual language of the period from 1870 to 1900. Another fault of the book is that it violates the first tenet of the biographical novel: that the author must stage his story as though it were happening right now." Irving Stone

— Sat R of Lit 33:34 S 9 '50 270w

HUHNER, MAX. Shakespeare's Hamlet. 163p $2.75 Farrar, Straus

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Hamlet 50-6380

An intensive study of the character of Hamlet based both on a study of the other characters in this play and on similar characters in other plays. It is the author's conclusion that "Hamlet was neither insane, a fool, nor a villain. Hamlet was a student, inexperienced in the ways of the world, very conscientious, very loath to shed blood, in fact almost a coward in that regard, and his insanity was feigned." (p. 1)

"Another examination of the character of the 'melancholy Dane' which has little new to offer, neither freshness of approach nor perception. . . It is regrettable that the author's well-taken points are so poorly presented."
— + Kirkus 18:81 F 1 '50 130w

"Only the largest Shakespearean collections would be interested." George Freedley
Library J 75:1048 Je 15 '50 30w

"In 'Shakespeare's Hamlet,' Dr. Max Huhner, though he was a distinguished scientist and physician, is not, in this reviewer's judgment, a competent critic." E. C. Dunn
— N Y Times p24 Ag 13 '50 400w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 13 '50 100w

"This book may be a tribute to its late author; it is certainly no addition to the overburdened shelves of Shakespeareana." Robert Halsband
— Sat R of Lit 33:17 Jl 8 '50 130w

HULL, HELEN ROSE, ed. Writer's book; presented by the Authors' guild. 355p $4 Harper

808 Authorship 50-5294

"[Compilation] of 40 pieces, 28 of which were written expressly for this volume, on various phases of the craft of writing, ranging from the novel, short story and poetry to writing for the radio, screen and television. Brief notes introduce the distinguished contributors." Bookmark

"A brilliant compilation."
+ Bookmark 9:131 Mr '50 50w

Reviewed by Edmund Fuller
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 12 '50 550w

"Anyone interested in getting his work published can learn from a book like this. Some of the jargon of professional writers and publishers may be added, for better or for worse, to his vocabulary. A variety of good contemporary styles is presented for his evaluation; and a variety of professional attitudes, for his consideration." Russell Lord
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 F 14 '50 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '50

"This is as helpful and constructive a book in its field as I have seen."
+ Kirkus 17:617 N 1 '49 160w

"Shows imagination in choice and an attempt to assemble fresh and readable material on the hackneyed theme of how to write. . . Recommended." Shirley Barker
+ Library J 75:170 F 1 '50 100w

"The book should meet with wide acceptance. Professional writers will find it a compilation of up-to-the-minute shop talk from which they may derive hints of immediate value. But the largest potential audience will undoubtedly be made up of the many who aspire to enter the field of writing but have never quite known how to begin." G. F. Whicher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 Ap 2 '50 900w

Reviewed by C. W. Weinberger
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Je 18 '50 110w

"'The Writer's Book' is an uneven collection of perfunctory writing, silly generalization, the highly theoretical, the fragmentary, the informative, the literary essay, and the intensely practical." Gorham Munson
Sat R of Lit 33:28 Ap 1 '50 600w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 Mr '50

HUME, EDWARD HICKS. Doctors courageous. 297p il $3.50 Harper

266 Physicians. Missions, Medical 50-6813

Summaries of the lives of some great Christian missionary doctors who labored in Africa, India, the Near and Middle East, and China. Among the best-known are Livingstone, Schweitzer, and Doctor Catharine Mabie. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:270 My 1 '50

Reviewed by B. J. Anson
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 30 '50 450w

Reviewed by F. E. Luchs
Christian Century 67:1047 S 6 '50 950w

"Livingstone and Schweitzer are here, but with them, too, are uncounted other men whose names will be far less familiar to the average reader, and the book will give most of those who use it a needed and invaluable appreciation of the scope and effectiveness of the medical missionary movement." R. M. Pearson
+ Churchman 164:17 Je 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by E. C. Herrick
+ Crozer Q 27:278 Jl '50 550w

"The charge often made in Communist circles that Americans are money-mad, and that in their relations to foreign countries they are imperialistic exploiters can find no more effective refutation than the story of the work of medical missionaries as told by one of the most eminent among them."
+ Kirkus 18:310 Je 1 '50 170w

Reviewed by A. N. Wilder
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Je 11 '50 600w

Reviewed by Marguerite Clark
+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 Ap 29 '50 700w

"Should interest mission study groups, those who love to read about doctors, and also young people. Recommended."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:23 Je '50

HUMPHREYS, RICHARD FRANKLIN, and BERINGER, ROBERT. First principles of atomic physics. 390p il $4.50 Harper

530 Physics 50-7555

"A new college textbook designed for students of the humanities or the social sciences who will probably not pursue the study of physics further. However, it is not primarily a descriptive work. The exposition abounds in equations and although the mathematics is simple in comparison with that of more rigorous texts, it is obvious that the reader is expected to think mathematically. Most of the emphasis is on electromagnetic laws and phenomena and on atomic and nuclear physics. Comparatively little space is given to classical mechanics." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 47:7 S 1 '50

N Y New Tech Bks 35:43 My '50

HUNGERFORD, EDWARD BUELL. Forbidden island; Robert Frankenberg, drawings. (Heroes of the sea ser) 256p $2.50 Wilcox & Follett

50-8400

Story for older boys based on Commodore Perry's expedition to Japan in 1853.

Booklist 47:16 S 1 '50

"In 'Forbidden Island' his story-telling skill expands brilliantly to capture every subtle part of the pageantry and tense drama of Commodore Perry's expedition." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun p15 Je 13 '50 80w

"Set against an authentically filled in background to which events of recent memory add special interest, this stirring tale has the suspenseful action, humor, and excellent writing to make it a favorite with boys—and their fathers, or I miss my guess." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Jl 2 '50 250w

"An improbable though absorbing yarn. . . The Perry expedition is unusually interesting in the light of the events of the last ten years, but this book is less an objective study of Japan at the time than a Gilbert and Sullivan concept in which the Japanese are known mainly for their conscientious use of bird cages into which they stuff their prisoners. Superficial but colorful."
+ — Kirkus 18:180 Mr 15 '50 180w

Reviewed by Eleanor Kidder
Library J 75:1310 Ag '50 70w

"The life on the Susquehanna and the incidents of the signing of that first treaty with Japan are well done. The book is well illustrated, well bound and well printed." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 30 '50 90w

"From the wrecking of Barney's whaler, on the first page, to the signing of the peace treaty by Commodore Perry, this story contains action, danger, humor and mystery, set in a sound historical background." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p20 Ag 13 '50 170w
Wis Lib Bul 46:24 Jl '50

HUNNICUTT, BENJAMIN HARRIS. Brazil, world frontier. 387p il $6 Van Nostrand
918.1 Brazil 49-49321

A survey of Brazil's economic conditions, cultural life and scenic beauties, by a North American who has lived in Brazil for many years.

Foreign Affairs 28:692 Jl '50 10w

"Although Mr. Hunnicutt's book contains some useful information, it suffers from a glib, almost romantic, optimism. To minimize Brazil's present shortcomings is to do Brazil a serious disservice, and Mr. Hunnicutt's performance along these lines is representative of a certain school of literature on Brazil." W. L. Grossman
N Y Times p16 Ja 29 '50 240w

HUNT, A. LOWELL. Florida today. 178p il $3.50 Scribner
917.59 Florida—Description and travel 50-5032

Informal guidebook information of where and how to live, work and play in Florida, whether as a transient visitor or a permanent resident. Illustrated with many photographs emphasizing human beings rather than scenic splendors. No index.

Booklist 46:198 F 15 '50

"If you've been to Florida, it's a delightful experience to revisit the state with this interesting author, and if you're traveling vicariously, it's an opportunity to see all of Florida with an experienced guide." Alice Musholt
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 22 '50 200w
Kirkus 18:20 Ja 1 '50 100w
Sat R of Lit 33:50 Ja 28 '50 90w

HUNT, CECIL. Dictionary of word makers; pen pictures of the people behind our language; with il. by John Nicolson. 176p $3.75 Philosophical lib.
803 Biography—Dictionaries. Literature—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. Allusions. English language—Etymology 50-5166

A dictionary of some 700 real and fictional characters whose names have become literary allusions. Index.

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 5 '50 130w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 S 17 '50 290w

Reviewed by W. G. Rogers
Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 12 '50 550w

HUNT, LEIGH. Dramatic criticism, 1808-1831; ed. by Lawrence Huston Houtchens and Carolyn Washburn Houtchens. 347p $4.50 Columbia univ. press
792 Theater—Great Britain 49-49448

"This collection of newspaper reviews and pieces by Hunt is actually theatrical journalism. . . On one side [we see] Mrs. Siddons's farewell, Kean's Othello, Taglioni's dancing, the costuming, the technique of acting, the wonders of gaslight, the opera and concert, the preposterous melodramas, pantomimes, and extravaganzas, and the 'legitimate' plays. And on the other side: the audience (who rioted one season because of the rise in admission prices!), the decorations, and the perennial ladies who wear vision-blotting bonnets." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

Manchester Guardian p4 S 22 '50 240w

"This carefully edited volume contains a selection of the best of Hunt's uncollected essays on the drama. . . Hunt has a great deal to say about early nineteenth-century acting and dramatic literature in general, and he says it with the winning grace and sporadic profundity which distinguished his 'Autobiography' and such delightful trivia as 'The Town.' "
+ Nation 171:114 Jl 29 '50 90w

"Poor Leigh Hunt has remained a minor figure from an age of giants, but as not infrequently happens what he had to say as a journalist is often of as much historical interest today as the critical essays of his superiors." W. P. Eaton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 16 '50 400w

"It is far inferior, of course, to the dramatic criticism of Hazlitt, Lamb, or Coleridge. For the same reason its quality is uneven and often lapses into the doldrums of column writing. Yet its ephemeral interest is what is most valuable. Through these pieces we see—as we do not in the criticism of these other writers—what the theatre of the period looked like on both sides of the footlights. . . It is all a lively record of the London theatre of Hunt's day." Robert Halsband
+ Sat R of Lit 33:21 Je 3 '50 180w
Times [London] Lit Sup p660 O 20 '50 3300w

HUNT, MABEL LEIGH. Better known as Johnny Appleseed; decorations by James Daugherty. 212p $2.50 Lippincott
B or 92 Chapman, John—Juvenile literature 50-14382

A romanticized version of the life of John Chapman "better known as Johnny Appleseed." He was born in Leominster, Massachusetts, two years before the beginning of the Revolution. When he was eighteen he left for the West, planting apple orchards as he roamed thru the Ohio country. This story is chiefly for young readers.

Booklist 47:103 N 1 '50

"Of all the books about Johnny Appleseed, I believe that this one is the most beautiful thus far." A. B. McG.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 N 12 '50 200w
Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 26:457 N '50 50w

"A full-bodied, readable bit of Americana."
+ Kirkus 18:472 Ag 15 '50 160w

Reviewed by F. W. Butler
Library J 75:1913 N 1 '50 80w

"This richly detailed book is the most rewarding picture of Johnny that we have yet had for young people." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p12 D 24 '50 180w

HUNT, M. L.—Continued
"This reviewer hopes that Johnny's story will be enjoyed not only by American children, but that it will be made available to the boys and girls of Europe, revealing to them some of the less-known aspects of the rich American folklore. A stunning cover jacket, that shows Johnny striding along with free, bold steps, and many black and white drawings by a famous American artist add to the appeal of this absorbing story." B. W. Shaffer
+ Sat R of Lit 33:50 O 21 '50 300w

"The book is designed chiefly for young people, but is competently and pleasantly done and will prove rewarding to adults interested in the facts and legends about one of America's great folk heroes." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p19A O 15 '50 650w

HUNT, MABEL LEIGH. The wonderful baker; il. by Grace Paull. 47p $1.50 Lippincott 50-5869

Story telling what happened when the town baker's daughter decided that her family was eating too much. For ages 6 to 9.

Booklist 46:249 Ap 1 '50

"Boys and girls, both fat and thin, will have many a laugh over this delightfully humorous tale of a good baker and his troubles." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Mr 26 '50 200w

Reviewed by Juanita Walker
Library J 75:703 Ap 15 '50 80w

"The idea is unusual and the style really funny." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 26 '50 110w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p22 Mr 12 '50 180w

"This is an amusing story with delightful drawings of the Winklepeck family by Grace Paull." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 33:46 Mr 11 '50 210w
Wis Lib Bul 46:27 Ap '50

HUNT, ROBERT NIGEL CAREW. Theory and practice of communism; an introduction. 231p $2.75 Macmillan
335.4 Communism [50-1411]

"The book falls into three sections. The first deals with the basis of communist theory as laid down by Marx and Engels, which is still the official creed of the movement. The second covers the development of the European labour movement in the nineteenth century, with special reference to Marxist influence upon it and to the cross-currents of opinion which arose by way of reaction to his doctrines. . . The third brings us to the period when the revolutionary movement begins to be shaped by Russia, which has since directed it, and deals with the attempts by Lenin and Stalin to apply Marxist principles to the changed conditions of the present century." (Foreword) Bibliography. Index.

"What Hunt has accomplished is remarkable. From materialism and the dialectic to the successive Internationals, through all of the principal events and issues, to 'socialism in one country' and present day Stalinism he makes his way with brevity and economy, yet without elision. He attempts and fairly well succeeds in an often espoused but seldom seriously executed goal of political analysis, the simultaneous treatment of theory and institutions, of doctrine and events." G. S. Pettee
+ Am Pol Sci R 44:748 S '50 900w

"A fair and objective appraisement of the growth of communism." Leila Flower
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 6 '50 650w

Foreign Affairs 29:147 O '50 20w

"Mr. Carew Hunt's book and Mr. Deutscher's 'Stalin' are the two most important of recent books on present-day Communism. . . Mr. Hunt has crowded much into his two hundred pages. . . He is always clear and incisive, and the book can be commended to everybody who wishes to understand the roots of Communist fanaticism and the strange satisfaction Communism gives to its adherents."
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 11 '50 420w

"With a single demurrer, I recommend 'The Theory and Practice of Communism' as a book that every man of politics, and every one prone to get into political arguments, ought to carry in his pocket." Max Eastman
+ N Y Times p23 Je 4 '50 800w

"Mr. Carew Hunt has written the sort of book which, even when it is well done, is more likely to be found useful than greatly admired. His purpose is to help his readers think clearly about theories more or less familiar to most of them. His purpose is therefore modest and yet most difficult to achieve. If I say that he has not quite achieved it I don't mean to be harsh." John Plamenatz
+ — Spec 184:186 F 10 '50 270w

"Mr. Carew Hunt has no Marxist background. . . He is bound to regard Marxism as an alien ideology which, at any rate in its latest manifestations, threatens his own cherished traditions and ways of life. Yet the reader will rarely (except perhaps in the two concluding chapters) detect any overt bias."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p49 Ja 27 '50 2150w

HUNT, SARAH ETHRIDGE, and CAIN, ETHEL. Games the world around; four hundred folk games; il. by Maxine and Nathan House. rev ed 269p $3 Barnes, A.S.
371.74 Games 50-3000

This book is designed to " 'help develop a better understanding of human relations and appreciation of other peoples through participation in folk play and games.' Brief chapters on theory followed by clear description of games of various countries, attractively illustrated. Indexed to help selection by type, country, grade, etc. Considerable revision of 1941 edition." (Library J)

Booklist 46:317 Je 15 '50

"Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:1190 Jl '50 70w

"Essentially useful to camp and recreation leaders of children."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Jl '50

HUNT, TERRY. Guide to glamour; handbook of beauty, charm and poise; with a foreword by Betty Grable; il. by Bob Ritter. 87p $2.95 Prentice-Hall
646.7 Beauty, Personal 49-50252

Advice on exercises, diet, grooming, as a guide for the girl or woman who is interested in the impression she makes on other people. The author is a conditioner of Hollywood stars.

Booklist 46:196 F 15 '50

"All women may not become cover girls by following this guide, but all the factors which are essential will be found in this single volume." P. A. R.
+ Springf'd Republican p3D F 12 '50 160w

HUNTER, LOUIS CLARE, and HUNTER, BEATRICE JONES. Steamboats on the western rivers. 684p il $10 Harvard univ. press
386.3 Steamboats. Transportation—U.S. U.S.—Economic conditions. Inland navigation 50-5138

"An economic and technological history of this means of transport in the early years of our development, particularly along the Mississippi and its tributaries. Professor Hunter (American University, Washington), explores the building of ships, the mechanics of operation, improvements to the river area, and the whole story of steamboat life and its part in American history." (Current Hist) Index.

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst
Am Hist R 55:920 Jl '50 900w

Reviewed by D. L. Kemmerer
Ann Am Acad 270:160 Jl '50 650w

"Altho the scope of this study leaves almost nothing unwritten about steamboating, Prof. Hunter, of the American university at Washington, makes a virtue of his very comprehensiveness and is almost never dull, even to the footnotes." Russell MacFall
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 Ap 2 '50 350w

Current Hist 18:165 Mr '50 80w

Reviewed by Avery Craven
J Pol Econ 58:551 D '50 460w

"The book is an essential addition to collections on American history and economic development as well as to collections on transportation." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:498 Mr 15 '50 130w

"All of us who are devoted to the beautiful Western river steamboat can relax now, because that book we've been waiting for has been written. It has nearly 700 close-printed pages and more footnotes than the Mississippi has sand bars. But it's all red raw meat that we can get our teeth into. . . Mr. Hunter, author of 'Studies in Economic History of the Ohio Valley' and member of the history faculty at the American University in Washington, D. C., writes in a style that is both bright and smooth. A magnificent job of piloting." R. P. Bissell
+ N Y Times p29 Ja 29 '50 180w

"Any future writer who attempts an historical novel involving a steamboat trip on the Ohio or the Mississippi without consulting this book should be delicensed. In itself, it is engrossing reading, no less than a definitive treatment of its subject." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 Ap 8 '50 230w

"The appearance of this substantial, scholarly, and craftsmanlike work is especially welcome in a field so much given to romantic literature."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:65 Mr '50 280w

HUNTER, ROBBINS. Judge rode a sorrel horse. 268p $3 Dutton

B or 92 Hunter, Samuel McFadden 50-9302

A biography of the author's father, an outstanding figure in the life of a small Ohio community in the 1880s and '90s.

"A reflection of a period of stability, this has little sparkle to relieve its conscientious reporting."
Kirkus 18:346 Je 15 '50 190w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 75:1287 Ag '50 90w

"Written without artifice, the book has the flavor of fresh apple cider and the leathery smell of a small town lawyer's office."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 S 24 '50 100w

"The book has many elements of 'Life With Father,' for Judge Hunter had a temper with a low boiling point, though a quick recovery, and when he spoke, the family came a-running. What is lacking is the light touch of the practiced story teller. Mr. Robbins Hunter writes with a heavy and often anti-climactic hand. He has a keen memory of authentic detail, however, and if one exercises imagination and overlooks the rather numbing style, there emerges a lively picture of everyday life in a small Midwestern town during the virtuous era of gaslight, bustles, red plush and Sundays that really were Sundays." S. T. Williams
+ — N Y Times p10 O 1 '50 470w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p19A O 15 '50 300w

HUNTINGTON, RICHARD LEE. Natural gas and natural gasoline. 598p $8 McGraw

665.5 Gasoline. Gas, Natural 50-6944

"An engineering college textbook which offers a broad introduction to the natural gas industry but with emphasis on the phases which are primarily of interest to chemical engineers. The processes of removing natural gasoline from the raw gas are covered—as the title indicates—and so are the other aspects of natural gas processing. The chapters on storage and transportation and high-pressure pipe line research are together 125 pages long and present a fairly inclusive survey of basic engineering principles. Aside from its intended use in colleges, the book should be of interest to graduate engineers whose formal education did not include a course in natural gas but who now find themselves in need of information about the field." (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

"This book is a thorough and carefully organized text which covers all major as well as minor phases of today's natural gas and natural gasoline industries. While primarily written for engineering students, it will also be of value to graduates who lack special training in these fields. . . The book is well illustrated and charted and is essentially a modern and up-to-date treatment of a very live topic." Gustav Egloff
+ Chem & Eng N 28:2996 Ag 28 '50 350w

Reviewed by K. A. Kobe
Chem Eng 57:295 Je '50 650w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:874 My 15 '50 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:39 My '50

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:389 S '50 200w

HURD, EDITH (THACHER) (MRS CLEMENT HURD). Caboose; il. by Clement Hurd. [33p] $1.25 Lothrop

50-9704

Story of the impatient little caboose which hated to be on the end of a slow freight. A banana train suited it better; that went quite fast. Then it was called upon to help the big stream liner, and later was hitched onto a milk train. Then the little caboose was happy because a milk train is the "fastest freight in town."

Booklist 47:103 N 1 '50

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 5 '50 90w

Kirkus 18:555 S 15 '50 100w

"Recommended." Virginia Russell
+ Library J 75:1910 N 1 '50 80w

"Boys of six to ten will love this." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 12 '50 70w

"The story is interesting because it is filled with basic information, cleverly integrated, about various kinds of freight trains . . . and how they are run." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p30 S 17 '50 100w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 N '50

HURD, EDITH (THACHER) (MRS CLEMENT HURD). Willy's farm; il. by Clement Hurd. 64p $2 Lothrop

49-50223

A picture book for ages 6-9. Thru the eyes of "Wonderful Willy" the child is shown the activities of a farm from sugaring in spring to chopping down the Christmas tree.

Booklist 46:190 F 1 '50

"The author and artist have used their own farm home as a basis for this story, and the personal feeling and realism evident in the small details and moments of happy home living make it one of the most delightful farm stories we have." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 18 '50 160w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 10 '50 70w

"These little vignettes are excellent for reading aloud to small children, nine- and ten-year-olds might enjoy reading them for themselves. . . Recommended for limited purchase." M. E. Martignoni
+ Library J 75:112 Ja 15 '50 80w

HURD, E. T.—Continued

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Mr 5 '50 150w

"Some of the sketches are pretty slight, but altogether, and combined with Mr. Hurd's many pictures, they add up to a good picture of farming." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 8 '50 140w

"The theme and characters in this story are going to amuse and satisfy little boys and girls."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 Ja 21 '50 130w

HUREWITZ, JACOB COLEMAN. Struggle for Palestine. 404p maps $6 Norton

956.9 Palestine—Politics and government. Palestine—Jewish-Arab problem 50-9773

"J. C. Hurewitz, formerly of the Office of Strategic Services, State Department and United Nations secretariat, begins his detailed narrative with 1936: the year of the Arab revolt, early Axis meddling and the Royal commission inquiry which produced the first of numerous rejected plans for a Palestine settlement. His book stops short at Israel's emergence, with only a seventeen-page 'epilogue' on the Arab war and aftermath." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index. Also published as a thesis—Columbia university, with title: The Road to Partition.

Booklist 47:154 D 15 '50

"Essentially a source book rather than a critical appraisal of the contending forces, it should prove of value to the student. At the same time Dr. Hurewitz's zeal for a dispassionate presentation occasionally obscures rather than clarifies the picture." Marie Syrkin
+ — Nation 171:415 N 4 '50 160w

"It would have been better, I feel, if Mr. Hurewitz had ended his book on that day when the Union Jack descended from Jerusalem's Hill of Evil Counsel for the last time and the ill-fated mandate had ended. Nevertheless, Mr. Hurewitz's work will find an important niche for itself in colleges, in schools of Oriental and Middle Eastern research and among all students of this volatile region. It is an excellent textbook, and it provides refreshing evidence that the subject of Palestine can be approached without bias." Kenneth Bilby
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 N 19 '50 800w

"There never was a more passionately partisan problem than Palestine. And there hasn't been a more urbane, even-tempered discussion of it than this patient chronicle." Hal Lehrman
+ N Y Times p7 O 1 '50 550w

HURFF, GEORGE B. Social aspects of enterprise in the large corporation. 137p $2 Univ. of Pa. press

338.7 Corporations 50-8460

"A study of the place and character of enterprise functions in the large corporation, considered as a social institution influencing the lives and human relations of its members." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:1296 Ag '50 70w

"Mr. Hurff is not bent upon originality. . . He comes to no blueprinted conclusions, but only a hopeful, if somewhat nebulous, advocacy of a 'public trusteeship' attitude on the part of corporate executives. Yet Mr. Hurff has performed a valuable service. . . A good, though exacting, book for beginners." P. R. Levin
+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 S 30 '50 270w

HURLBUT, GLADYS. Next week East Lynne! introd. by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse; postscript by Dorothy Stickney. 254p $3 Dutton

B or 92 Actors and actresses—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 50-5792

Reminiscences of a stock company leading lady. It takes her from the days of her debut as an extra in Rebecca of Sunnybrook farm, clad in a gingham pinafore and a barrel, to her Broadway success as Bessie in Life With Mother.

Booklist 46:209; 218 Mr 1 '50

"Here is a gay, wholesome romp thru the stock company days of yesteryear, woven into a book that should perfectly suit the swarm of women readers who ask the lending librarian for 'something light and amusing and interesting.' " Fitzroy Davis
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 12 '50 490w

"Most of the incidents Miss Hurlbut recalls seem funny now, even to her; though her occasional humorous treatment of the vulgarities of 'the road' makes for some tasteless passages. Sometimes, however, she lets her pen reveal the lump in her throat. Her book would have been more than the merely entertaining chronicle it is if she could have communicated the urgency that made her remain an actress in the face of many heartbreaks." Rod Nordell
Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 22 '50 400w

Reviewed by James van Zant
Churchman 164:15 My 15 '50 120w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 26:214 My '50 50w

Kirkus 18:45 Ja 15 '50 180w

"An entertaining though somewhat risque series of anecdotes. . . Told with a sparkling flourish, they minimize the precarious hardship of a struggling actress. For the young person who enjoys the theater or is looking forward to acting as a career." M. D. Read
+ Library J 75:1057 Je 15 '50 50w

"There are many living moments in the book, but my own favorite is the picture of a small, very plump, very sincere child earnestly explaining to a group of bewildered, suddenly tired actors, the detailed background she had invented for a part which consisted of one line and an exit concealed in a barrel." Patricia Collinge
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Mr 12 '50 1050w

"A stout fellow, Gladys Hurlbut, and she has scars to prove it. Her book is a frank, amusing and highly readable recital of life in the swamps, miasma ridden, fever wracked." Tallulah Bankhead
+ N Y Times p6 Mr 12 '50 700w

New Yorker 26:111 Ap 1 '50 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p23 My 21 '50 360w

"Miss Hurlbut's story is on the chatty side, liberally sprinkled with wisecracks in the modern vernacular. She knows how to use them. The reader realizes without her reminder, in her final chapter, that she is an experienced writer, that she has an observant eye for colorful details and in addition, a good reporter's memory. She can tell a story with full appreciation of suspense and dramatic climax." Sarah Truax
+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 Mr 18 '50 800w

Springf'd Republican p19a O 15 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:15 Ap '50

HURLEY, LOIS J., and GROETZINGER, ISABELLE J. State fair blue ribbon cook book; il. by H. Lawrence Hoffman. 256p $2.95 Fell

641.5 Cookery 50-8785

Collection of recipes all of which have won prizes at state fairs. Contains dishes and recipes from every region in the United States. List of names and addresses of all prize winners whose recipes are included. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '50

"This has reading interest as well as cook book appeal."
+ Kirkus 18:345 Je 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 75:2152 D 15 '50 30w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p10 Jl 22 '50 120w

"An excellent book for every public library."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:20 S '50

HURST, FANNIE (MRS J. S. DANIELSON). Anywoman. 309p $3 Harper
50-6917

Rose Cologne, in her pursuit of a handsome swimming instructor, turned down two suitors, an up-and-coming physician and a business executive. Altho Caesar was no good and would not marry her till he needed her care, Rose never regretted that she married for love.

"A cheap and trite work that might hypnotize you by its smoothness." Mary Sandrock
— Cath World 171:230 Je '50 170w

"The reader's emotional response may not be so much sympathy for Rose in her blind devotion to Frank Caesar (who very decently tried to escape her) as exasperated incredulity."
Christian Science Monitor p6 My 6 '50 180w

"To this reader, an utterly unconvincing development of a theme with which many writers have played."
— Kirkus 18:112 F 15 '50 280w

"A completely credible story. Readers who approach 'Anywoman' casually with intent to scoff may remain to enjoy it; and devotees who confidently seek once again the shrine of their unfailingly fertile literary goddess will most certainly not go away from Miss Hurst's 'Anywoman' disappointed." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 16 '50 490w

"As is always the case with this novelist, a wealth of absorbing detail enriches every page. Miss Hurst's city streets are vivid as ever—the pulse of life is always there, under the drabness. . . Girl-gets-Mr. Wrong is always a difficult theme in English, especially in the field where Miss Hurst has labored so long, and so profitably. It is a tribute to her honesty as an observer of human inconsistency that she should attempt it at all; it is a tribute to her skill that she has brought off so much of it so successfully." Wilbur Watson
+ N Y Times p32 Ap 30 '50 380w

Sat R of Lit 33:15 Jl 15 '50 290w

Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 100w

— Times [London] Lit Sup p385 Je 23 '50 190w

HURST, JAMES WILLARD. See Hurst, W.

HURST, WILLARD. Growth of American law; the law makers. 502p $5.50 Little

340 Law—U.S. 50-6788

"These essays outline the growth of the principal agencies of law in the United States. They cover the period 1790-1940, with occasional excursions beyond these points. The emphasis is on the functions performed by legal agencies, rather than on their formal structure." (Prefactory note) Bibliographical notes. Index.

Reviewed by A. S. Abel
Am Pol Sci R 44:1022 D '50 1000w

Reviewed by R. C. Sorensen
Ann Am Acad 271:198 S '50 480w

"This history of American law, legislation, legal institutions is an excellent assembling of material for the serious student of law, research, libraries, college law courses, and any and all those interested in legal history and problems."
+ Kirkus 18:257 Ap 15 '50 130w

"Grateful as we must be for what Mr. Hurst has done, there are none the less disappointments which will trouble many of his readers. These disappointments, I suggest, will result from two of Mr. Hurst's basic convictions. First in importance, perhaps, is the belief that the legal historian's principal task must be to conduct a search for data measurable in statistical tables. . . The second conviction of Mr. Hurst which seems to me to weaken his achievement is, perhaps, but a reflection of this pervasive faith in statistics. Whatever its source may be, this second conviction seems to amount to the belief that it is only the relatively recent past which should interest the historian of American law." M. D. Howe
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Jl 2 '50 1350w

"Mr. Hurst's judgments and even his surmises are suggestive and persuasive. His recital, even if possibly somewhat selective, is objective in tone and temper—though there are intimations from time to time of what the sympathetic will call insight and the less favorably disposed might think of as bias. . . Nevertheless, both in conception and execution, Mr. Hurst has made a notable contribution. He has roamed widely to gather a wealth of material, which he weaves into an integrated pattern." T. R. Powell
+ — N Y Times p19 Je 25 '50 450w

Reviewed by A. J. Rockwell
San Francisco Chronicle p17 My 7 '50 900w

HUSSEY, CHRISTOPHER. Clarence house; the home of her royal highness the Princess Elizabeth, duchess of Edinburgh, and of his royal highness the Duke of Edinburgh. 136p pl $6 Scribner

728.3 Clarence house, London. Elizabeth, princess of Great Britain [50-6838]

History of the London mansion which is now the home of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. Contains many photographs showing both exterior and interior views.

Booklist 46:243 Ap 1 '50

"The book should appeal to those interested in the story behind a famous house, in the long history of its background, building, and the people who lent it its particular aura and distinction."
+ Kirkus 18:164 Mr 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 75:983 Je 1 '50 130w

"Mr. Hussey . . . has successfully imparted to his book much of the charm and dignity of a home that should be very pleasant to live in."
+ Spec 184:160 F 3 '50 360w

HUSTED, HELEN MCLANAHAN, ed. Love poems of six centuries; introd. by William Rose Benét; decorations by Lee Maril. lib ed 287p $4; gift ed $3.50 Coward-McCann

821.08 Love poetry. English poetry—Collections. American poetry—Collections
50-7402

More than 200 love poems, written by English and American authors. They are arranged under six headings: Innocence; Desire; Fulfillment; Pain and parting; Maturity; Love's immortality. Index of first lines.

Booklist 46:284 My 15 '50

Chicago Sun p3 My 30 '50 120w

"To reprint such poetry attractively is the justification of any volume. But the critic, who exists not to compliment but to yearn for yet higher standards, may wish some things had been done otherwise. The classification into 'Innocence,' 'Desire,' etc., presents conundrums. . . Pay no attention to the headings. And pay no attention to some of the poems: there is too much of the arch, the cute, the weakly literary, some by unknowns and some by the great in their off moments. . . But there is something here for everyone." J. F. Nims
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 My 14 '50 400w

"The present collection, while less interesting than De La Mare's Love, has been made with taste, discrimination and originality. It can be highly recommended to libraries." Gerald McDonald
+ Library J 75:1189 Jl '50 80w

HUSTED, H. M.—Continued

"The poems with which Mrs. Husted has filled her categories bespeak the soundness and catholicity of her taste. However, her book never assumes that independent life without which any anthology is doomed to remain a collection of flowers from other men's gardens. It lacks the vigorous and original conception that makes Walter de la Mare's curious anthology, 'Love,' a pleasing and startling mirror of its editor's mind." Milton Crane

+ — N Y Times p31 My 7 '50 150w

"Few will quarrel with what is included though one may wonder why Wordsworth's 'Speak,' for example, was given preference over his more celebrated 'Lucy,' or why Poe's 'To One in Paradise' shut out his more widely admired 'To Helen.' . . One wishes that Wordsworth and Whitman, Housman and Millay, MacLeish and Speyer were here with additional selections, more exemplary of their lyric gifts. . . But all this may be straining at a gnat. The anthology on the whole is excellent and representative, and William Rose Benét's brief but vastly entertaining introduction on octogenarian poets who sang of love wisely and well is alone worth the price." Gustav Davidson

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:18 Jl '50 750w

HUTCHINS, PATRICIA, ed. James Joyce's Dublin. 125p pl $3.50 British bk. centre

B or 92 Joyce, James. Dublin

"Almost half of this latest addition to the books about James Joyce is devoted to photographs of Dublin. . . Miss Hutchins confines herself to Joyce's early years—the Stephen Dedalus period of his life as it appears in 'A Portrait of the Artist,' in 'Stephen Hero' and in the opening pages of 'Ulysses.' " N Y Times

"Students will enjoy themselves over tiny details, but really nothing could be less important than the colour of Joyce's eyes compared with the colour of his prose. Miss Hutchins writes well when she is not tempted to follow Joyce's adjectival methods, and the book will be a useful one to those who are not satisfied with the works but want to know also about the man." G. F.

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 O 6 '50 110w

"A very interesting feature is the recreation, through school publications, of the student milieu in which Joyce moved while he was at University College. The seldom seen article on James Mangan, an essay of his undergraduate days, is reproduced in its entirety and should be of great interest to Joyce enthusiasts." Jacob Korg

+ Nation 171:463 N 18 '50 500w

"Although Miss Hutchins makes the common mistake of considering both 'A Portrait' and 'Stephen Hero' fully autobiographical, she uses them skillfully to describe the places Joyce frequented and the people he knew." J. J. Slocum

+ — N Y Times p7 N 5 '50 200w

New Yorker 26:75 D 23 '50 80w

"This is a first-class picture-book with a very intelligent text."

+ Spec 184:524 N 17 '50 270w

"Miss Hutchins has done much more than merely to chart the movement of the young Joyce; She has discovered his surviving acquaintances, whose recollections, though somewhat nebulous, provide collectively a convincing picture of the marvellous boy. . . Her chapter on his student years at the old Royal University is the most valuable part of her book."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p640 O 13 '50 420w

HUTCHINS, ROBERT MAYNARD. St. Thomas and the world state; under the auspices of the Aristotelian society of Marquette university. 53p $1.50 Marquette univ. press

321.04 Thomas Aquinas, Saint. International cooperation 49-11752

In his introduction to the 1949 Marquette University's Aquinas lecture the author states: "I propose to show how St. Thomas, beginning with the remark of Aristotle that the state is the perfect community, transmuted that remark into a political theory relevant in every age; and how this theory, together with the teachings of St. Thomas in the Treatise on Law, leads irresistibly in our day to world law, world government, and a world state." Bibliographical references in Notes.

Am Pol Sci R 44:514 Je '50 30w

Commonweal 51:245 D 2 '49 130w

"Hutchins says the Treatise on Law by Aquinas was 'the greatest of all books on the philosophy of law.' It could be, but the proof of this would make a better book than the present." H. T. C.

J Philos 47:535 Ag 31 '50 60w

HUTCHISON, BRUCE. The Fraser; il. by Richard Bennett. (Rivers of America ser) 368p $4 Rinehart

917.11 Fraser river. British Columbia—History 50-10549

"The story of this wild, raging river, hardly tamed even today, is a successful combination of history, description, and narration. The taste of adventurous British Columbia history given here will stimulate most readers to seek more details in other books. Descriptions provide enlightenment and atmosphere—chapters on salmon and the Cariboo Road are highlights. The human element is not neglected." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:134 D 1 '50

Reviewed by A. C. Ames

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 17 '50 360w

Kirkus 18:551 S 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by Clarence Gorchels

Library J 75:1901 N 1 '50 130w

"A final and thoughtful chapter considers the future of this stream. The one map is inadequate to the text. Otherwise, this is a fine book, surely one of the best in the Rivers of America series; and one, moreover, for which there has long been a great need." Stewart Holbrook

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 19 '50 1150w

"An atmosphere of humility pervades the writing; an awareness of man's futility in the face of great natural forces. Hutchison insists that the grandeur of the river and the adjoining hinterland is beyond definitive description, but his keen reporter's eye and capacity for prose which in vagrant passages, approaches poetry give the lie to this assertion." Stuart Keate

+ N Y Times p18 N 19 '50 470w

HUTCHISON, COLLISTER. Toward daybreak; pref. by Jules Romains; drawings by Marc Chagall. 88p $3 Harper

811 50-14820

"This is the first book of a poet whose work has already found an audience in such periodicals as Poetry, Atlantic Monthly, American Scholar and Voices. It is marked by profundities of thought and experiences that continue to enlarge upon themselves." Library J

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '50

"Jules Romains, in his introduction, writes of this poetry as the 'product of a very rare and slow distillation.' He rightly speaks of their density, yet simplicity is to be found in them too, and I know of no more beautiful poems on the birth of Christ than those Miss Hutchison has written. The format of the book, with its four drawings by Marc Chagall, should also have its due praise." George MacDonald

+ Library J 75:1669 O 1 '50 100w

"Miss Hutchison has sensitivities, feelings, even now and then, call it that, a thought. But her verse is marked by two bad amateurish habits—apostrophizing and asking herself questions in the course of a poem; and this gives an effect of an almost narcissistic self-consciousness, pulling the attention of the reader from object to subject, from the trees or the old men in the square to the gifted observer." Rolfe Humphries

Nation 171:293 S 30 '50 90w

"Although this book contains poems on many themes, all pointing one way—the way of loneliness toward peace—there is not much variety of tone, even though the verse forms are diverse enough. The tone is one of high seriousness into which neither humor nor irony intrudes. This high seriousness compels the reader either to give himself to the poems entirely or to pass them by." J. S. Untermeyer
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 N 18 '50 1100w

HUTCHISON, KEITH. Decline and fall of British capitalism. 301p $3.50 Scribner
330.942 Great Britain—Economic conditions 50-6524

"Keith Hutchison, himself British by origin and an experienced interpreter of Britain to Americans through 'The Nation,' has explained in his latest book what British Socialism is not rather than what it is. He has written the story of British politics since 1880 and of the very real transfer of political power from one class to another. But it is the story of a handing-over rather than of a seizure of power." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:282 My 15 '50
Current Hist 18:296 My '50 30w
Foreign Affairs 29:158 O '50 20w

"A liberal, learned review of recent English history, for the serious reader."
+ Kirkus 18:83 F 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay
Library J 75:315 F 15 '50 120w

"Since Mr. Hutchison has a good eye for apt illustrative evidence in actions, words, and statistics, and a good wit for summary epigram, his essentially sober and rather dispassionate commentary is almost never dull. One result of his being forced by his materials into a double structure of topical and chronological chapters is a little awkwardness in allocating—and sometimes repeating—the historical elements at work." J. B. Brebner
+ Nation 170:254 Mr 18 '50 1200w

"Keith Hutchison's book is brightly written, marshals well the familiar facts, but contains nothing new for anyone who has more than a nodding acquaintance with British socialist writing over the last 15 years." Norman MacKenzie
+ — New Repub 122:26 Ap 17 '50 1150w

"This book is clearly argued and written, with a large but unobtrusive scholarship to support the author's conclusions." Joseph Barnes
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Mr 12 '50 1200w

"Compact and well-written history of the rise of the British Labor party." J. K. Galbraith
+ N Y Times p3 Mr 12 '50 1050w
New Yorker 26:120 Ap 8 '50 160w

"Mr. Hutchison's study of the rise of collectivism in Britain is an exceptionally useful book—indeed, a book that has been crying to be written and one whose usefulness is by no means limited to a single category of reader." David Owen
+ Pol Sci Q 65:602 D '50 900w

Reviewed by W. H. Stevenson
Sat R of Lit 33:17 Ap 8 '50 1000w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:181 Je '50 240w

HUTHEESING, KRISHNA (NEHRU) (MRS GUNOTTAM HUTHEESING). Story of Gandhi; il. by Howard Simon. 64p $2.50 Didier pubs.
B or 92 Gandhi, Mohandas Karamchand—Juvenile literature 50-12181

The author of this biography for young people is the sister of India's Prime minister.

"The Nehru book has many interesting touches of intimate detail and understanding. It is worthy of attention indeed but not as good an overall story for children under twelve as the Masani title." L. S. Bechtel
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 12 '50 150w

"'Gandhi's Story' [by Shakuntala Masani] and 'The Story of Gandhi' are both aimed at the younger reader, but the first of these is moralistic and stilted and the second frankly talks down. However, as each progresses, the faults are tempered somewhat by the greatness of the subject matter, though neither approaches the power and the strength, the spiritual quality, of the two books for older readers." Eleanor Brent
N Y Times p42 N 19 '50 150w

Reviewed by M. P. Allen
Sat R of Lit 33:62 N 11 '50 190w

"While this book is designed primarily for younger readers, it is so well written and so interesting that it will appeal to many adults also." H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p6D O 8 '50 180w

HUTTON, JOHN ALEXANDER. Best of John A. Hutton; ed. with an introd. by Edgar DeWitt Jones. 176p $2 Harper
252 Sermons 50-5295

Thirty-one sermons selected from the works of this Scottish preacher who died in 1947. Dr Hutton succeeded John Henry Jowett at Westminster Chapel, London, in 1923. He was long the editor of The British Weekly.

Reviewed by F. E. Luchs
+ Christian Century 67:431 Ap 5 '50 350w

"Edgar DeWitt Jones has put us deep in his debt by editing this book of inspiration and challenge. If, after reading these sermons, a minister never even tries to preach one like them, he still could not help preaching better than he did before." R. E. Keighton
+ Crozer Q 27:188 Ap '50 200w

"These sermons have a solid quality about them, they plumb the depths of Christian experience. Every preacher would benefit from a reading of them."
+ Kirkus 18:54 F 1 '50 180w

HUXLEY, ALDOUS LEONARD. Themes and variations. 272p $3.50 Harper
824 50-7500

"The contrapuntal themes of this collection of essays are the twin dangers, demographic and ecological, that threaten civilization because of man's lack of understanding and foresight. More than half the book is devoted to the early 19th-century French philosopher, Maine de Biran, one of the group for whom Napoleon invented the term 'ideologue'. Other essays are on art, religion, El Greco, Goya and soil erosion." Library J

"A good part of Themes and Variations concerns itself with probings into the nature of soul and spirit, which carry over into extrasensory perception and the phenomena of trance—a region in which I am a rather bemused alien. The essays on art bring fully into play Huxley's unrivaled erudition and intellectual virtuosity, but not, to any marked extent, his wit." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 185:84 Je '50 700w
Bookmark 9:209 Je '50 20w
Chicago Sun p3 My 30 '50 160w

"Amid the fluctuations of popular taste, critical standards, and enigmatic reputations of the past three decades, Aldous Huxley continues to stand. . . Despite his vague Hollywood activities, whatever they might be, he remains a gratifying proof that a career of belles lettres, in the fine, elder sense, is still a possibility in the world, at least, if one has the genius, the wit, the vast learning, of Thomas Huxley's gifted grandson." B. R. Crisler
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Jl 29 '50 850w

HUXLEY, A. L.—Continued

"The reader will find that Huxley's thought-conjuring has a vibrant fascination, while in style, these essays have the same brilliance of phrase and virtuosity of wit that have always characterised his writings. His attempts to clarify a world economic problem seem rather stumbling, but in the main this latest Huxley deserves consideration for its facile prose and scholarship."
+ — Kirkus 18:126 F 15 '50 220w

"Eclectic scholarship informs the sparkling prose, but subject matter will limit its appeal." B. B. Libaire
+ — Library J 75:777 My 1 '50 110w

Reviewed by A. G. Lehmann
Manchester Guardian p3 My 30 '50 480w

Reviewed by Charles Spielberger
New Repub 122:19 Je 26 '50 750w

Reviewed by C. E. M. Joad
New Statesman & Nation 39:609 My 27 '50 1100w

"This is a singular miscellany to be all in one book, but there is enough of the best of Huxley in it to have justified its publication. That best, I think, is to be found in the essay 'Variations on a Philosopher,' which might more simply have been called 'Maine de Biran.' " Irwin Edman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 My 14 '50 1400w

"This is an exquisitely skillful, intelligent and delightful performance, both gay and serious." Stephen Spender
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 30 '50 950w

New Yorker 26:84 Ag 19 '50 170w

"It is always a pleasure to visit the mind of Aldous Huxley; in the world of ideas his intelligence is a charming and well-provisioned host. In the present volume of essays this intelligence is like a man out for a walk in the woods—relaxed and observant for a while, suddenly concentrated and observant, critical in flashes, stimulated to comparisons and comments by what he sees." Thomas Sugrue
+ Sat R of Lit 33:18 Je 24 '50 800w

"The shorter pieces, On a Baroque Tomb, On El Greco and On Goya, are the most subtle of interpretative essays. Huxley's aesthetic intuitions are never at fault, and his field of reference in all the arts preserves its old, miraculous breadth. No one after reading his few pages will look at an El Greco or a Goya in quite the same way again. His concluding essay, however, on the problem of increasing population and diminishing food supplies, presents an analysis with which we have grown familiar in the past few years. His solution is, no doubt, no more chimerical than any other." J. M. Cohen
+ — Spec 184:730 My 26 '50 650w

"Mr. Huxley's new book consists of an important essay on Maine de Biran and a collection of essays on the Baroque, on Goya and Greco, and some notes on 'The Double Crisis' of our time—over-population and soil erosion—the too great fertility of man and the falling fertility of the soil. From every point of view the essay on Biran is the making of the book. There is little or nothing about Biran in English and the subject offers Mr. Huxley admirable scope for all his gifts and foibles."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p377 Je 16 '50 2400w

HUXLEY, JULIAN SORELL. Heredity, East and West; Lysenko and world science. 246p $3 Schuman

575.1 Heredity. Lysenko, Trofim Denisovich. Genetics 49-50254

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"The whole book makes exceptionally interesting reading. It is, in the opinion of the reviewer, the best book for the general reader that has appeared on this unlooked for descent into irrationality by a large sector of the modern world. It is well documented, the results are skillfully presented and, above all, it is exceptionally clear and readable throughout." A. H. Hersh
+ Am Soc R 15:453 Je '50 600w

Reviewed by A. G. Mazour
Ann Am Acad 269:195 My '50 600w

"The book was written in haste; much material was added when it was already in proof; it is, in fact, a highly topical magazine article in expanded form. This does not detract from its value, however; it just makes us wonder how a man can write so lucidly at such speed." R. I. Wolfe
+ Canadian Forum 30:43 My '50 1400w

Current Hist 18:99 F '50 40w

Foreign Affairs 28:686 Jl '50 20w

Reviewed by L. C. Dunn
Sat R of Lit 33:14 Ja 21 '50 650w

School & Society 71:399 Je 24 '50 30w

"This is a sobering book. It is a paradox that Russia, the nation which more than any other has given science a high place in its culture, should fail to recognize the essential qualities and necessities of this discipline. Surely, no one can for long play fast and loose with the truth, as the leaders of this great nation are now doing." E. W. Sinnott
+ Yale R n s 39:536 spring '50 1050w

HYDE, DOUGLAS. I believed. 312p $3.50 Putnam

B or 92 Communism 50-10575

Autobiographical account of how the author became a Communist, worked hard for many years in the British Communist Party, and then two years ago left the Party and became a convert to Catholicism.

"This book is one of the most interesting and revealing of the score or so of confessions by ex-Communists." Freda Utley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 26 '50 650w

Reviewed by E. S. Skillin
Commonweal 53:100 N 3 '50 330w

"Mr. Hyde's account of what has become, in the last couple of years, an extremely familiar sequence of events is a good deal more literate and unemotional than some of the others have been. Several of the theological confusions that plagued Mr. Hyde as a result of his early Methodist upbringing seem, however, to have carried over into his writing, making the latter portion of his book far more difficult for the uninformed layman than are the chapters dealing with the office routine that he gradually found intolerable."
+ — New Yorker 26:168 N 11 '50 130w

HYLANDER, CLARENCE JOHN. Sea and shore. 242p il $3 Macmillan

574.92 Marine biology 50-7485

An introduction to marine life for the young naturalist. Index.

Booklist 46:306 Je 1 '50

Reviewed by A. L. Shea
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 3 '50 100w

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 30w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '50

"This book will prove a treasure in families who spend the summers at the seashore. . . Accurate drawings are to be found on many pages of this nontechnical book, which is an admirable introduction to sea life, rather than a full manual." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 26:291 Jl '50 110w

"Vacationers from twelve up, who fall for the fascination of collecting shells, seaweeds and starfish and all their relatives, will find this informative, sound and fairly comprehensive, whatever their happy hunting ground, though the information is more extensive for the eastern seaboard than the Pacific. . . There is sound scientific data here, and scientific terminology (clarified for the layman by popular 'beach names') gives this a note of authority. The style is somewhat pedestrian, but this need be no deterrent if what is wanted is information. Forty photographs, numerous drawings and diagrams, will make this a practical guidebook, while instructions on preservation of specimens gives it added value for collectors. Excellent supplementary reading for High School biology."

+ Kirkus 18:135 Mr 1 '50 270w

Reviewed by J. F. Kennedy

Library J 75:882 My 15 '50 80w

"Many years ago this author wrote an excellent book with this same title, now long out of print. The new book far excels the old. Its material is wonderfully expanded, its illustrations beautifully redone, the new type and printing very handsome. It makes a fine reference book for the amateur naturalist, well indexed, also an attractive gift book. . . The style is excellent."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 My 7 '50 260w

"Plant and animal life of beach and tidal pool is described in clear, straightforward language and shown in excellent photographs and diagrams. Suggestions for making collections, guides for identifying specimens, and a good index make this one of the most useful of Mr. Hylander's many fine nature books for young people." Elizabeth Hodges

+ N Y Times p16 Je 18 '50 120w

New Yorker 26:188 D 2 '50 40w

"It is not often that a book of this sort, intended for the younger reading public, passes the critical eye of a zoologist as well as this one does. The seashore life of both Atlantic and Pacific coasts is adequately treated, with interesting illustrations and a clear text which has avoided the easy error of 'writing down.'" J. W. H.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 11 '50 110w

+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 Jl 8 '50 130w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:289 S '50 80w

HYNEMAN, CHARLES SHANG. Bureaucracy in a democracy. 586p $6 Harper

351.1 U.S.—Executive departments. Civil service—U.S. 50-6789

" 'What can we do to increase our assurance that the officials and employes who do the day to day work of Government will actually provide the kind of government the American people want?' To this question Charles Hyneman, Professor of Political Science at Northwestern, suggests a number of answers which he has thought out, not only in ivory towers at several universities, but also in practice during five years of wartime service in the War Department, the Bureau of the Budget and the Federal Communications Commission." (N Y Times) Index.

Reviewed by C. I. Barnard

Am Pol Sci R 44:990 D '50 9000w

"This is an extremely well-written book. In an age when academic literature is urging an increase of executive power, it is refreshing because it brings the relationships between the executive and the legislature into better focus." Benjamin Baker

+ Ann Am Acad 271:201 S '50 360w

Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers

N Y Times p7 Ag 27 '50 470w

"In this timely book, Mr. Hyneman presents a comprehensive, critical consideration of the place of bureaucracy in our national life." H. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p10C My 14 '50 210w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:342 S '50 280w

I

IAMS, JACK. Shot of murder. 274p $2.50 Morrow

50-10231

International intrigue behind Poland's iron curtain, set forth with humor and some mystification.

Kirkus 18:491 Ag 15 '50 70w

"Good background and some of Mr. Iams's best humor, wrapped up in an exciting yarn."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 D 10 '50 180w

"Amusing treatment of fairly routine material."

New Yorker 26:144 O 21 '50 100w

"This is as lively and as full of amazing people as you'd expect from its gifted comedy-author, but battleaxes are Mr. Iams' true forte. For all its action, the story sags a bit when Mrs. Pickett is offstage." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 19 '50 90w

Sat R of Lit 33:52 N 18 '50 90w

IAMS, JACK. What rhymes with murder? 256p $2.50 Morrow

50-7624

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:149 Mr 1 '50 90w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Je 25 '50 200w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

N Y Times p26 My 14 '50 90w

"Plenty of action, and Mr. Iams has fortunately kept his humor more subdued than usual."

+ New Yorker 26:100 Je 24 '50 80w

"It's a smart mixup that pleased us no end. We recommend it to your attention." E. D. Doyle

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 7 '50 250w

"Lively and pungent affair, with warring newspapers, frantic clubwomen and numerous suspects supplying plentiful puzzlement and action."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 My 27 '50 40w

"Worthwhile."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 Jl 15 '50 40w

Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 30 '50 70w

IKE, NOBUTAKA. Beginnings of political democracy in Japan. 246p $3.50 Johns Hopkins press

342.52 Japan—Politics and government 50-14240

"History of the rise and decline of a great democratic movement that swept Japan in the period between 1875 and 1890. Mr. Ike, Curator of the Japanese collection at the Hoover Institute and Library, shows how the democratic movement fell before those who set up the Emperor as an absolute monarch in an effort to weld Japan into a modern nation in a short period of time." Current Hist

"Scholarly treatise." Takashi Oka

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 N 2 '50 600w

"A valuable history."

+ Current Hist 19:230 O '50 110w

"Mr. Ike's book is the product of careful and thorough scholarship; at the same time it is an extremely readable and in places even exciting account of the tumultuous demand for representative government in early Meiji Japan. It offers valuable material for a comparative study of the spread of democracy in the world and should contribute materially to a better understanding of modern Japan." E. O. Reischauer

+ N Y Times p19 S 17 '50 450w

IMMER, JOHN R. Layout planning techniques. 430p il $5 McGraw

658 Efficiency, Industrial. Industrial management 50-5632

Deals with the principles and applications of planning officers, factories, warehouses, assembly lines, etc. for more efficient functioning. Bibliography. List of visual aids. Index.

Booklist 46:257 Ap 15 '50

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 26 '50 40w

IMMER, J. R.—Continued
"The book is addressed primarily to advanced students in engineering and is intended as a first book on the subject for such readers. It should be of interest also to manufacturers and industrial engineers out of college, especially those who have had no college courses in the subject." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:498 Mr 15 '50 100w

IMMERMAN, IRENE (HENRI DUMONT, ANDRE LECLERC, pseuds). Flemish drawings, XV-XVI centuries [ed. by Tana de Gámez Losada]. 100p $2.50 Macmillan
741.9 Drawings 50-13158
"Composed of some eighty full-page reproductions of the master drawings of [Flanders], together with a general introduction and short biographical notes on each artist. The general idea is to show the preliminary steps to the final painting." Current Hist

Reviewed by Sydney Key
Canadian Forum 29:286 Mr '50 90w
Chicago Sunday Tribune p34 D 4 '49 50w
Current Hist 18:166 Mr '50 10w
Kirkus 17:643 N 15 '49 70w
Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 74:1822 D 1 '49 80w
"So abominable are the two-tone facsimiles that, in many cases, the reader has little idea what is being reproduced. The most elementary scholarly apparatus is lacking." Stuart Preston
— N Y Times p7 D 25 '49 50w
Reviewed by L. R. Sander
Sat R of Lit 33:39 Ja 7 '50 50w
School Arts 49:6a Ja '50 50w

INFELD, LEOPOLD. Albert Einstein; his work and its influence on our world. (Twentieth century lib) 132p $2; college ed $1.50 Scribner
B or 92 Einstein, Albert 50-5314
A condensed explanation of Einstein's quantum theory and theory of relativity and his contributions to physics. Altho the book purports to be nontechnical, a knowledge of mathematics and physics is required for its understanding. Bibliography. Index.

"Dr. Infeld avoids with conspicuous success the two opposite pitfalls that confront the popularizer of highly abstract scientific theory. He does not 'translate' the ideas he is dealing with into homely phrases and glib analogies which give the illusion of comprehension while concealing the core of the problem. At the same time his exposition, judging from my own experience, can be followed without much difficulty even by a reader with a high resistance to scientific ideas." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 185:78 Mr '50 480w
Booklist 46:181; 198 F 1 '50; F 15 '50
Bookmark 9:156 Ap '50 40w
Reviewed by J. A. Dewar
Canadian Forum 30:70 Je '50 170w
Christian Century 67:303 Mr 8 '50 420w
Current Hist 18:228 Ap '50 10w
Kirkus 18:17 Ja 1 '50 30w
"An important addition to the comparatively few books which explain successfully the basic ideas of relativity theory in terms intelligible to the layman. . . Although the use of higher mathematics and physics has been avoided, the book does not make easy reading for those lacking a knowledge of these subjects and requires a real interest and concentrated study." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 75:106 Ja 15 '50 140w
Reviewed by Philip Morrison
New Repub 123:27 O 9 '50 500w
"It is not a biography of Einstein, though it draws an excellent portrait of genius at work. Neither is it an adequate exposition of relativity. No book so brief and without a single mathematical equation could do that. But the philosophy is there, lucid and complete. Dr. Infeld's book is at the very least an essential textbook for philosophers who want to base their thought on the truth, however incredible, and are willing to think hard." Gerald Wendt
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 F 19 '50 700w
"Dr. Infeld's present book presents the basic ideas with unusual skill and luminous simplicity. And he makes abundantly clear that, far from supporting the philosophical doctrine of the relativity of knowledge (what is true for one man or social class is not true for another), the physical theory of relativity requires a law of nature to be invariably true for all observers." Ernest Nagel
+ N Y Times p6 F 26 '50 180w
"All in all, the book is sympathetic. Each of Einstein's major theoretical contributions is expounded with love and care, and only a paucity of biographical information and some clumsy translations from the German keep this volume from being a triumph."
+ — New Yorker 26:123 Mr 18 '50 130w
San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ap 16 '50 150w
"Professor Infeld's book on Albert Einstein is an exercise in exposition, and one marvels at the ingenuity and effectiveness of his presentation." P. H. Oehser
+ Sat R of Lit 33:24 F 25 '50 550w
Reviewed by R. F. Henchey
Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 5 '50 150w

INGE, WILLIAM MOTTER. Come back, little Sheba. 119p $2.50 Random house
812 50-8371
A play about a middle-aged chiropractor and his wife who have lost most of their illusions. A young college girl who boards with them, unknowingly, brings matters to a climax. Doc goes back on his Alcoholics Anonymous friends, gets very drunk, and tries to murder his wife. A session in the City Hospital for Doc clears things up, and Doc and his wife attempt to make a new start.

Kirkus 18:272 My 1 '50 40w
"Highly recommended for community theatres and the libraries which serve them." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:1048 Je 15 '50 40w
Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p40 D 3 '50 190w
"Two admirable features of the play are its utter realism and its simplicity. With Doc, you take the spiritless thralldom of an unromantic marriage, the frustrations of middle age in love with youth, and his other problems straight. There's none of the usual sentimental soda water about alcoholics here, either." Luther Nichols
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 25 '50 420w

INGE, WILLIAM RALPH. Diary of a dean; St Paul's, 1911-1934. 228p il $3.50 Macmillan
B or 92 50-7369
"The Diary, which Dr. Inge publishes not indeed as a substitute for an autobiography, but in the hope of staving off a biography, covers the years—1911 to 1934—of his occupancy of the Deanery of St. Paul's. . . The extracts as a whole are obviously selective." Spec

"All a reviewer has any right to say of another man's book is 'Read it' unless his verdict is 'Don't read it,' in which case he should give his reasons. But in the Dean's case, the word is emphatically 'You must read it.'" G. B. Shaw
+ Atlantic 185:70 My '50 2550w
Christian Century 67:845 Jl 12 '50 490w
"Any mature mind will find the book delightful." John Wilberforce
+ Churchman 164:17 N '50 250w
"The value of the book before us lies less in the new light it throws on the writer's opinions and philosophy as we otherwise know them, though it does throw some, than in the human figure that emerges when all we are told is pieced together and contemplated as a whole. Covering less than a third of his lifetime, the Diary does not tell us all we might reasonably wish to know about the Dean, but it tells us all we have need to know, and surely we need to know something, and more than a little, about one who has done so much for our instruction and reproof, and left so deep a mark on the cultural history of his time." L. P. Jacks

+ Hibbert J 48:298 Ap '50 1350w

"This is not one of the great diaries. Yet, by reason of its time and the unique vantage point of its author, it is not an insignificant one." Naomi Lewis

New Repub 123:19 Ag 7 '50 700w

"Considering how vivid a personality is the Dean's, how original his mind, how rich his social life, how exciting the times (1911-1934) covered, it is surprising how small is the interest of these jottings. For jottings is the category to which most of the entries belong." C. E. M. Joad

New Statesman & Nation 39:135 F 4 '50 1050w

"The Dean's 'Diary' is marred by the same one-sided, undialectical view that afflicts his leftist foes. At his romantic worst, he incarnates the irrelevant and somehow too easy loyalties of old school tie. . . At his witty and classical best, the Very Reverend Dean displays that very dry, very deadpan, conservative preciseness with which he wrote back when asked to praise a book on 'world revolution': 'I wrote very civilly, but suggested that the English-speaking nations and the Northwestern European group are not at present in a state of revolution.'" Peter Viereck

+ — N Y Times p14 My 14 '50 800w

"These notes on a closed chapter, often pungent, often caustic, but on balance charitable, are valuable and welcome." H. W. H.

+ Spec 183:862 D 16 '49 800w

"Though there is little or nothing that a historian would consider sensational, the book abounds in the vivid touches that light up a personality, and the reader obtains amusing glimpses of King George V, Archbishop Lang, Dr. Winnington-Ingram and Lady Asquith, besides a masterly cameo of Lord Fisher, relaxed and reminiscent on a sofa."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p22 Ja 13 '50 800w

INKELES, ALEX. Public opinion in Soviet Russia; a study in mass persuasion. 379p $5 Harvard univ. press

947.084 Propaganda, Russian. Public opinion —Russia 50-8157

"Thirty years ago Lenin created a department of propaganda and agitation within the framework of the Central Committee of his party. Today that department completely controls the means of forming public opinion in Russia: public meetings, party schools and 'circles,' the Soviet press and literature, the radio, and the film industry and theatre. . . Alex Inkeles of the Russian Research Center of Harvard University has done a thorough job of studying and describing this peculiar and important Soviet institution." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

"The purpose of this book is to describe and analyze sociologically the apparatus created in the Soviet Union to achieve uniformity in political and related attitudes among citizens of the USSR. The content of the opinions imposed on the citizenry receives only incidental discussion; major emphasis is given to procedures. Based on a thorough study of Soviet sources, the work is a valuable contribution to the understanding of the major social force now opposing the United States." N. S. Timasheff

+ — Am Soc R 15:573 Ag '50 1000w

"The principal criticism to be made of this study is its lack of style. It is a difficult book. But its merits far outweigh its demerits. Students of Communism and of Russia will find in it many things of great interest." H. C. Peterson

+ Ann Am Acad 272:283 N '50 400w

"How will the Soviet State, and the Communist Party which runs it, manage to harness the Russian people to their cause. This question for the first time has been treated systematically and with depth by Alex Inkeles in 'Public Opinion in Soviet Russia—A Study in Mass Persuasion.' . . His book gives a thoroughly documented description of the methods used by the Russian Bolsheviks, their evolution, the ideas behind them and the differences between Soviet and western propaganda. It is indispensable to anyone who wishes to understand the inner strength and resilience of the Soviet regime and its amazing impact upon the hearts and minds of millions of people throughout the world. At the same time, in spite of the painstaking research, the author's conclusions must be taken with a grain of salt. Like Sidney and Beatrice Webb in their famous analysis of Soviet civilization, he, too, seems to have succumbed somewhat to the intellectual temptation inherent in Moscow's ideologically consistent system." Paul Wohl

+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 Jl 8 '50 1100w

"This is a highly technical book, and still is very much worth reading. It gives insight into one of the most repellent peculiarities of the Soviet order, the ideological monopoly established in its own favor by the ruling party." N. S. Timasheff

+ Commonweal 52:323 Jl 7 '50 400w

Current Hist 19:105 Ag '50 30w

Foreign Affairs 29:156 O '50 50w

"Recommended for all serious readers trying to understand Soviet Russia." H. H. Bernt

+ Library J 75:861 My 15 '50 140w

"The book is not without a number of shortcomings. . . [It] is over-sophisticated and too wordy in places. . . For all that, Alex Inkeles has written a conscientious and informative book. Serious students of the USSR will read it with profit." Julian Towster

+ — New Repub 123:18 S 11 '50 1500w

"One of the important books of 1950." C. R. Miller

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 3 '50 1200w

Reviewed by D. J. Dallin

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 2 '50 700w

"A very interesting, well-documented book."

+ New Yorker 26:86 Ag 26 '50 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 27 '50 150w

"Dr. Inkeles has sought, with the aid of an academic telescope which stands in the Harvard Yard, to penetrate the darkness that pervades the Soviet planet. Considering the difficulties, he has done a brilliant job. It is surprising how much a meticulous observer can learn from official publications. But it is a mistake to assume that what is on Soviet paper represents actuality." Louis Fischer

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:26 Ag 12 '50 900w

School & Society 72:399 D 16 '50 40w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:359 S '50 260w

"An important addition to the literature on the Soviet Union; it will, no doubt, be carefully studied by specialists on that area as well as by those interested in social theory and in the cultural trends of the age." Nathan Leites

+ Yale R n s 40:180 autumn '50 800w

INNES, HAMMOND, pseud. See Hammond-Innes, R.

INSTITUTE FOR RELIGIOUS AND SOCIAL STUDIES. Great expressions of human rights. See MacIver, R. M., ed.

INTERNATIONAL GOETHE BICENTENNIAL CONVOCATION AND MUSIC FESTIVAL, Aspen, Colo. Goethe and the modern age. See Bergsträsser, A., ed.

INVERARITY, ROBERT BRUCE. Art of the Northwest coast Indians. 243p 279il $10 Univ. of Calif.

970.67 Indians of North America—Art 50-62872

"The Northwest Coast of North America, beginning near the Columbia River in Oregon and extending north more than a thousand miles through western Canada and into Alaska, and from the seacoast to the mountains, embraces an area of islands, beaches, inlets, and mountains in which lived several Indian tribes—Tlingit, Haida, Kwakiutl, Tsimshian, Nootka, Salish—which had essentially one basic culture. . . The richness of the country and the ample leisure time which resulted made possible the development of a complex culture and its expression in works of art. . . In this book [the author has] gathered illustrations of a large and well-rounded selection of Northwest Coast art, most of which have never before been published." (Pref) Bibliography.

Reviewed by Dorothy Adlow
Christian Science Monitor p7 D 16 '50 180w

Kirkus 18:674 N 1 '50 90w

"The author approaches his material both as art critic and as anthropologist, and brings to it a background and sophistication rare among students of primitive art. In his presentation the various objects are not torn from their cultural context and exhibited as exotic curiosities or as primitive precocities foreshadowing modern trends. Instead Northwest Coast art is shown to be an integral part of Northwest Coast Indian culture." Harry Tschopik
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 17 '50 850w

"This handsome book will remain for some time the definitive study and presentation of that art." Oliver La Farge
+ N Y Times p7 N 19 '50 240w

"The style, unfortunately, is almost painfully pedestrian, but the amount of information the book contains is immense, and the illustrations, around two hundred and eighty in number, offer about as complete and exciting a survey of the extraordinary art of these Indians as could be assembled."
+ — New Yorker 26:158 N 25 '50 120w

"Mr. Inverarity's text is clear, understandable by the general reader, free from the scholarly jargon that so often characterizes books by men who know their field as workers in it. Mr. Inverarity seems eager to speak to the layman, to interest him in the Indian arts about which he is so widely informed, and if this is his purpose he succeeds perfectly. The volume should be a natural for anyone with a primary interest in the Northwest Coast Indian, and it will find its way to the shelves of libraries, museums, art schools and to many individual readers who have felt the curious and fresh emotional and intellectual pull of primitive art of any kind." Macalister Jones
+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 N 19 '50 1050w

Reviewed by John Collier
+ Sat R of Lit 33:9 D 9 '50 650w

IPCAR, MRS DAHLOV (ZORACH). One horse farm [il. by the author]. [32p] $2 Doubleday 50-9242

Picture storybook for ages three to six. It describes the life on a small farm where Big Betty, the horse, and the farmer's son, were born on the same day. Each farm activity is shown in pictures and described in simple text.

Booklist 47:47 S 15 '50

Christian Science Monitor p6 N 25 '50 30w

Kirkus 18:461 Ag 15 '50 130w

"Every duty of farmer and helpers is pictured in clear, posterlike lithographs, but the colors are not those of nature. Recommended with this reservation for 3-6-year-olds." A. M. Wetherell
+ — Library J 75:1671 O 1 '50 70w

"The happy ending, when a tractor is bought and old Betty is not sold, but retired, is very satisfying." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 N 12 '50 90w

"Mrs. Ipcar's illustrations are a little static in comparison to her earlier work, but they are strong and clear, with lots of interesting details." E. L. B.
N Y Times p42 O 22 '50 140w

"An unusual and beautiful picture book."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:53 O 21 '50 100w

IRION, FREDERICK CLARENCE. Public opinion and propaganda. 782p $5 Crowell

301.154 Public opinion—U.S. Propaganda 50-6646

"As a college textbook, [this] will probably find most use in introductory courses placing emphasis upon the general content and functioning of public opinion in the United States. Unlike some other books with similar titles, this one is primarily a description of the ways in which public opinion in the United States reflects the dominant themes of the culture of which it is a part; not much attention is given to presenting the concepts and methodologies which have become associated with public opinion polling and propaganda analysis." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"Professor Irion's work is a welcome addition to the limited alternative available to those who must depend on a text for the course in public opinion and propaganda. . . The book suffers, however, from the inevitable diffuseness of any work that seeks to cover such a vast terrain. Further, while one may applaud the attempt to integrate 'the culture concept' into political science, there is room for a doubt that this has been accomplished except at the expense of abandoning the limited field appropriate to the science of politics." N. E. Long
+ — Am Pol Sci R 44:772 S '50 300w

School & Society 71:173 Mr 18 '50 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Lee
Social Forces 29:211 D '50 900w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:360 S '50 250w

IRISH, WILLIAM, pseud. See Woolrich, C.

IRWIN, FRANK L. Theory of camping; an introduction to camping in education. 178p $2.50 Barnes, A.S.

796.54 Camping 50-13590

"The purpose of this book is to provide a comprehensive view of the educational aspects of organized camping, an understanding of the part camping can play in achieving the goals or aims of American education, and an acquaintance with the specific methods by which camping can be utilized to achieve these goals or aims." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by S. P. Phelps
El School J 51:171 N '50 850w

School & Society 72:31 Jl 8 '50 50w

IRWIN, WILLIAM ROBERT, ed. Challenge; an anthology of the literature of mountaineering. 444p $4.75 Columbia univ. press

796.52 Mountaineering 50-7322

"General anthology of mountain writing, compiled and edited by William Robert Irwin, Assistant Professor of English at [the State University of Iowa]. 'Challenge' covers a lot of ground—and not only vertically. It ranges, in time, from the Eighteen Forties to the Nineteen Thirties, in space, from West Virginia to Tibet, and, in content, from step-by-step accounts of specific ascents to essays on the meaning and philosophy of the mountain way. . . Included in the roster are many of the great names of mountaineering history: Sir Leslie Stephens; Edward Whymper; A. F. Mummery and Geoffrey Winthrop Young." (N Y Times) Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

"This unusual collection shows that mountaineering can be almost as fascinating to read about as murder—even to the reader whose only climbing has been done in an elevator."
+ Atlantic 186:88 Jl '50 210w

Kirkus 18:252 Ap 15 '50 140w

"Recommended for all libraries." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:780 My 1 '50 60w

"Most of the selections offer not only exciting subject-matter but excellent writing, and all aim higher than a mere inducing of vertigo or gooseflesh. To my mind the book is lacking in two respects: (1) there is no essay on Mount Everest, and (2) there are no photographs. Nevertheless, 'Challenge' offers an ample feast both of high adventure and deep, meaningful experience." J. R. Ullman
+ — N Y Times p3 My 14 '50 600w

ITALIAN TOURING CLUB. Italy in one volume. (Les guides bleus) 515p maps $5 Crown

914.5 Italy—Description and travel

"The Italian Touring Club's book (printed in Italy) falls into the old Baedecker class, with numerous maps of regions and cities, and fine type." Commonweal

Booklist 46:231 Mr 15 '50

"It is a good buy for those who mean to stay a long time in an ancient and lovely land." Ernestine Evans
+ Commonweal 51:588 Mr 10 '50 50w

Reviewed by Beach Conger
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 My 28 '50 30w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 19 '50 50w

"The text is up to date, the damage of the recent fracas having been recorded as dutifully as the ruins of the Punic wars. I can't say as much for the accuracy of the hotel listings in the back of the book. Neither the Castello e Mare in Taormina nor the famous Hotel dei Templi in Agrigento, both in the directory, have opened their doors since the war." H. S.
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:41 F 25 '50 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p329 My 26 '50 350w

J

JACKSON, CAARY PAUL (COLIN LOCHLONS, pseud). Rookie first baseman. 266p $2.50 Crowell

50-8512

"Johnny Parr's climb from a good high school first baseman to the same job with the Detroit Tigers is complicated by several items, including trouble with his father and a line drive that hits him in the jaw as he's rushing in to field an unexpected bunt. But eventually he makes the grade." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 12 '50 80w

"The main interest in the story lies in its picture of professional baseball and detailed accounts of the games. For all baseball fans." S. M. A.
Horn Bk 26:384 S '50 80w

Kirkus 18:333 Je 15 '50 160w

"The theme is familiar and the writing creaks a bit, but there is suspense. This will do for junior high school boys who want new baseball fiction." Lillian Morrison
Library J 75:1674 O 1 '50 60w

JACKSON, CAARY PAUL (COLIN LOCHLONS, pseud). Shorty makes first team; line drawings by Kevin Royt. 160p $2 Wilcox & Follett

50-8019

With a chip on his shoulder, due partly to his lack of height, Danny Cleary makes tough going of his first months in a new school, but finally wins his place on the team and in the estimation of his classmates and teachers. For grades 4-8.

Booklist 46:321 Je 15 '50

"A wide representation of races and creeds in the city school and a projected seventh grade earnestness and enthusiasm give a sense of reality. However, the amazingly precocious vocabulary of the youngsters and the teachers, who grind out sentiments like linked sausages, are distinctly unreal."
+ — Kirkus 18:278 My 15 '50 160w

"The school scene is accurate, the basketball good, and the characters reasonable. Most boys under twelve will enjoy this. Recommended for most children's collections." M. D. Read
+ Library J 75:1197 Jl '50 50w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 Jl '50

JACKSON, CAARY PAUL (COLIN LOCHLONS, pseud). Squeeze play. 207p $2.25 Crowell

50-6178

Another tale of Lincoln Junior High athletics, with Stretch Smith again in the cast, but a new boy from Detroit the chief protagonist and finally the hero, as he develops in character and in the final scene sacrifices his own ambitions for the good of the team.

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 14 '50 50w

"There are many admirable elements in this book—for one thing the extensive representation of various linguistic groups in the school with the emphasis on teamwork. But the precocious monologues of Ron weighted with psychiatric terminology, and the sententious wisdom of coach and teacher pull the story to a standstill that even descriptions of the baseball games and some playing hints cannot remedy."
— + Kirkus 18:100 F 15 '50 120w

"Recommended for fifth-eighth-grade boys." Lillian Morrison
+ Library J 75:567 Ap 1 '50 70w

"With its big type and the real boy talk it is the sort of book to lure the non-bookish or the slow reader. The coach is a fine character." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 11 '50 50w

"The author demonstrates genuine understanding of boys; the baseball is tops." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '50 90w

"Both Mike and Ron are unusually good characterizations."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:28 Jl 8 '50 110w

JACKSON, CHARLES REGINALD. Sunnier side; twelve Arcadian tales. 311p $2.75 Farrar, Straus

50-6626

"In these twelve stories set in the village of Arcadia in upstate New York, Mr. Jackson backtracks from The Lost Weekend and shows us the boyhood and adolescence of Don Birnam during the years 1912 to 1918. The title piece is something of a stunt. Cast as a reply to a letter asking why he neglects the sunnier side of life, it interweaves reflections on the craft of fiction with the life stories of the three girlhood companions of Jackson's correspondent, who grew up in Arcadia. . . Most of the other eleven tales in the book hinge on the sexual tensions of the teens, dramatized against a background of small-town mores." Atlantic

"Mr. Jackson again displays marked narrative ability, but even so he is unequal to making his subject matter seem other than trivial and unpleasant in the majority of these pieces."

JACKSON, C. R.—Continued
— + Atlantic 185:88 My '50 210w

"It is impossible in a review of this length, to speak of every story in the book, but nearly every one of them deserves special mention. They range from gravity to gaiety, from the tragic to the comic, but the most remarkable thing about them is the sense they convey to the reader of actually being present in these happenings of a small town, of sharing its jollities, its cruelties, its meanness. And the great point they make is that small town life—any life, for that matter—is a mixture of beauty and ugliness, but that we are always grasping for the stars." Kelsey Guilfoil
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 16 '50 500w

Kirkus 18:111 F 15 '50 190w

"If you liked Jackson's novels, you'll probably enjoy these short stories. The writing is certainly up to his usual adept standard." Anne Whitmore
Library J 75:560 Ap 1 '50 80w

"It is not possible to squeeze Mr. Jackson's technique into any one school. First and foremost he is a creator of his own world. In his best stories he catches the tune of all our existence and hums it for us with the casual, colloquially relaxed precision characteristic of his style." Frederic Morton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ap 16 '50 850w

Reviewed by Alice Morris
N Y Times p5 Ap 16 '50 650w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 20 '50 800w

"Perhaps the most noticeable fact about these stories is how very neatly they manage to relate to one another, to form parts of a distinct whole, while in themselves being separate and satisfying works. You would have to think back to 'Winesburg, Ohio' to find a book which achieved something similar. . . These stories represent Mr. Jackson's best work since 'The Lost Weekend' and give every indication that he is a writer of lasting inventiveness and power." Hollis Alpert
+ Sat R of Lit 33:23 Ap 15 '50 650w

Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 30w

Times [London] Lit Sup p705 N 10 '50 250w

JACKSON, HOLBROOK. Dreamers of dreams; the rise and fall of 19th century idealism. 283p $3.50 Farrar, Straus

928 Authors. Idealism. Nineteenth century
49-50396

Six essays in which three Englishmen and three Americans, all nineteenth century writers, are reconsidered, with an introductory essay which explains why the six are put together. They are: Carlyle, Ruskin, William Morris, Emerson, Thoreau, Whitman. Index.

Booklist 46:199 F 15 '50

"The late Holbrook Jackson, prolific English man of letters, wrote in 'Dreamers of Dreams' one of the most inspiriting books about literature one will find." A. C. Ames
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ja 29 '50 390w

"With the leading characters lacking their rightful place and perspective in the thought world of the day, the author's exposition of his main theme is superficial and inconclusive. There is much good research and a genuinely literary mood, but the full story of the 'rise and fall of the 19th Century idealism' remains to be written." Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 26 '50 1350w

"Coming by chance from the earnest and prophetic words of Ruskin to Dreamers of Dreams, a reader cannot fail to detect in Mr. Jackson an unfortunate quality of literary aloofness or remoteness—that false dispensation of the critical mind which permits the employment of a spurious freedom and the establishment of a wholly unreal point of view—and which in Dreamers of Dreams takes the comparatively harmless form of a leisurely and gratuitous exploration, complete with pipe, armchair and bookcase." J. H. Johnston
Commonweal 51:515 F 17 '50 450w

"It makes provocative reading and offers a pattern of trends, in its picture of the development of progressive thought and human writing. For the student, not only of literature, but of social studies."
+ Kirkus 17:666 D 1 '49 100w

"Not a must but entertaining for the well-informed reader. Recommended." Shirley Barker
+ Library J 75:103 Ja 15 '50 80w

"Mr. Jackson has composed six portraits as well as a lucid digest of nineteenth-century idealism." H. I'A. F.
+ Manchester Guardian p8 Ap 20 '48 150w

Reviewed by Howard Doughty
Nation 170:236 Mr 11 '50 230w

"Mr. Holbrook Jackson's volume of Victorian sages made, in one sense, a strong impression on me; but it was, particularly for a reviewer, of a distressing kind. To be frank, I have never read through any book, on a general and unalarming subject, with such frustration, so continuous a failure to make out what it was driving at. . . The fact is, we are not so well adjusted ourselves that we can afford to look down on Victorian gospellers—even on Carlyle, who is by far the most vulnerable. The real attraction of this book is as a reminder, a kind of lucky-bag. All kinds of multicoloured scraps come to light, and prompt another look at the complete article." K. John
— + New Statesman & Nation 35:465 Je 5 '48 750w

"When all allowances are made, Mr. Jackson has written some moderately perceptive essays on the writers under his scrutiny. His habit of putting everything in the present tense grates on this reviewer, but the book might be a good deal less vigorous than it is. . . We close the book with the feeling of having passed some time in pleasant conversation." G. F. Whicher
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Mr 19 '50 700w

"Anyone in possession of a half-dozen such high-ranking face cards as Carlyle, Ruskin, Morris, Emerson, Thoreau and Whitman should be able to effect some kind of transatlantic cross-ruff, and to lay hands on a sufficient number of the tricks of nineteenth-century English and American individualism to make his game. In these well-played biographical essays that is just about what the late Holbrook Jackson, British man-of letters, succeeds in doing. . . As anything much more profound than a gallery of rather eccentric individualists, however, Mr. Jackson's book must stand vulnerable on the score pad. . . His book is too biographical to be historical: his interest in people is invariably stronger than his grasp of social cause and effect. Despite his effort to pull his subjects together, they tend always to pull him apart." Carlos Baker
N Y Times p6 Ja 22 '50 650w

New Yorker 25:102 Ja 21 '50 160w

"To see how Holbrook Jackson develops his theme—the relationship between these six dreamers and the rise and fall of their more-or-less common dream—you need to follow his argument in full. His book will provide good nourishment for the general reader who takes pains to chew it well." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ja 25 '50 850w

"An Englishman, Jackson seems to have been less aware of the extent of the influence of Emerson, Thoreau, and Whitman on their countrymen, to have believed, in fact, that they had none. But if he had known better, probably he would not have cared. His delight was to gather from books the shining or curious phrase, the unconscious personal revelation, the wry or touching anecdote, and to range these treasures with cunning casualness on the shelves of his essays. The rest is just scaffolding. Those who know how to share his pleasures will be sensible enough to accept the arrangement." Garrett Mattingly

Sat R of Lit 33:17 Ja 28 '50 1500w

"This book is wholly enjoyable. If Mr. Jackson chooses nails with an eye to his own particular hammer, he certainly hits them on the head with an accomplished and resounding beauty of style." C. E. Vulliamy
+ Spec 180:502 Ap 23 '48 700w

"This is a pleasant, a warm and an intelligent book. It is not, and perhaps it is not intended to be, a work of startling originality. Here and there a fresh and revealing emphasis is laid on some neglected aspect of the man or his message, but in general Mr. Holbrook Jackson is content to accept the current estimate."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p255 My 8 '48 1100w

Reviewed by A. D. Culler
Yale R n s 39:553 spring '50 210w

JACKSON, MRS KATHRYN. Animals' merry Christmas; pictures by Richard Scarry. 96p $1.50 Simon & Schuster
50-10262

New stories, verses, and songs, about the Christmases of all sorts of animals. For ages five to eight.

"From the first tale of a baby deer's singing Christmas tree to the last poem about a famous night in Bethlehem . . . stories and verses celebrate all sorts of Christmases. These, together with the jolly pictures in full color including shining gold, will rejoice any small child's heart." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p40 D 3 '50 100w

Kirkus 18:640 O 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Sussdorff
+ Library J 75:2081 D 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 19 '50 50w

"As is usually the case in such collections, some of the stories are thin, but most of them are enlivened by amusing and sometimes touching quirks of fancy." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p60 D 3 '50 90w

JACKSON, MRS KATHRYN. Golden circus; pictures by Alice and Martin Provensen. [28p] $1 Simon & Schuster 50-12199

Many colorful pictures (some of the animals have "fabric" bodies) and simple text describe Mr Roly-Poly's circus, the lion tamer, the clowns, the bareback riders, the lions, elephants, and horses.

Kirkus 18:607 O 1 '50 80w

"Recommended for ages 3-6." S. J. Robinson
+ Library J 75:1671 O 1 '50 50w

N Y Times p35 N 12 '50 110w

Springf'd Republican p6D O 8 '50 70w

JACKSON, LYDIA, and TODD, KATHLEEN MARY. Child treatment and the therapy of play; with forewords by Helen Ross [and] Emanuel Miller. 2d ed 159p $2.50 Ronald

618.92 Child study. Play 50-6525

This second edition of a book published in England in 1946 is a discussion of the nature of play, which demonstrates its use in the therapy of emotionally disturbed children. Bibliography. Indexes.

"The word choice and sentence structure are admirable. One frequently wants to quote verbatim when ideas are so clearly expressed. . . This is a book that any intelligent parent or pediatric worker would want to read and wish it contained more, many more than eight chapters." P. B. Hirsch
+ Am J Pub Health 40:1018 Ag '50 360w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 72:346 N 25 '50 270w

JACOB, ERNEST FRASER. Henry V and the invasion of France. (Teach yourself history lib) 207p maps $2 Macmillan

942.04 Great Britain—History—Henry V, 1413-1422. Henry V, king of England 50-7173

An account of the relations between England and France during the later fourteenth and early fifteenth centuries, particularly as they influenced the career of Henry V of England, whose life story is interwoven into this account.

Reviewed by R. A. Newhall
Am Hist R 56:177 O '50 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 My 21 '50 40w

"Shakespeare—and Sir Laurence Olivier—have perpetuated such a romantic concept of Henry's character that the public would be alienated by a documented destruction of it. Dr. Jacob acclaims the stage and screen version as a fine thing in the realm of the theatrical, then deftly transmutes it into a reasoned historical synthesis. . . The judgment rendered is still too gentle; Henry's foolhardy march that was redeemed by the archers at Agincourt and his greed for continental territory that brought such woe to France and no permanent gain to England are not adequately censured. Nor is the reader reminded that the aftermath of his policy was the burning of Joan of Arc and the expulsion of the English from France." Geoffrey Bruun
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:18 Jl 15 '50 470w

JACOB, HEINRICH EDUARD. Joseph Haydn; his art, times, and glory [tr. by Richard and Clara Winston]. 368p $5 Rinehart

B or 92 Haydn, Joseph 49-49600

A popular biography of the composer covering his personal life, his works and his relations with other musicians and musical history of his own times and later. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:199 F 15 '50

"To consider matters squarely, 'Joseph Haydn' is not so much a study in biography as it is one in social history. It is an experiment in relating the art of music to late eighteenth-century manners. As a translation it is hardly the smoothest accomplishment imaginable, but it hurries along through material gathered by modern methods of mass research and is perhaps the better for freedom from meticulous editing, condensation, and organization. The book has charm enough, besides." W. P. Tryon
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Je 17 '50 380w

"I believe it is high time that we should have a completely scholarly work on so fascinating a subject, including what I missed most in the present volume—a chronological list (so far as possible) of Haydn's compositions." T. V. Enslin
+ — Crozer Q 27:373 O '50 300w

"A biography for the student of music as well as the intelligent follower, this should have a place, in a field not too overcrowded."
+ Kirkus 17:640 N 15 '49 160w

"The many good qualities of this work—readability, suitable anecdotes, circumstantial background, drawing of characters—are unfortunately negated by major defects. Supposition plays a large part in the narrative, often a very unconvincing part. The romantic approach sometimes lapses into sentimentalism." George Hanson
— + Library J 75:107 Ja 15 '50 70w

"Mr. Jacob has a reasonably sound command of the facts of Haydn's life, but he has virtually buried them in a torrent of sentimental gush entirely the product of his imagination. The net result is a wildly distorted cariacature of Haydn's personality and of the milieu in which he lived." C. B. F.
— + Nation 170:287 Mr 25 '50 270w

"The book is marred by innumerable hoary inexactnesses. Mr. Jacob's 'Haydn' may be read with considerable pleasure almost as a documented historical novel. For criticism and understanding of Haydn's real glory the reader must go elsewhere." Herbert Weinstock

JACOB, H. E.—Continued
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 Mr 26 '50 600w

"When all is said that can be said against some features of his biographical technique, the fact remains that Mr. Jacob has produced the fullest, most reliable and in every way most readable of Haydn lives. As for the musical discussions in the book, while they leave unplumbed the deeper depths of the operations of the musical faculty in general and of that of Haydn in particular, they are always to the point and calculated to make the general reader wish to pursue the matter further." Ernest Newman
+ — N Y Times p7 Ja 29 '50 900w

Reviewed by C. G. Burke
Sat R of Lit 33:26 S 30 '50 400w

JACOBS, CHARLES R., ed. Official gun book. 178p il pa $1.50 Crown

623.4 Firearms 50-6363

"First edition of an attempt to make a 'reference encyclopedia of modern sporting arms and ammunition.' Complete information on all types of ammunition, handguns, rifles and shotguns, sights, scopes, etc., by authorities. Profusely illustrated." (Library J) Manufacturers' directory.

Booklist 46:311 Je 15 '50

Reviewed by Dick Joiner
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 My 7 '50 50w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:780 My 1 '50 50w

"If you shoot, whether rifle, shotgun or hand gun, this is a mighty handy book to have around. Even if you are only an armchair shooter, you will enjoy the countless pictures of firearms ranging from the most inexpensive .22 to the most elaborate examples of the gunsmith's art. Especially interesting are the illustrations of the hand-built match rifles which look like something the flying-saucer boys from Mars might carry." C. H. F.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 9 '50 150w

JACOBS, HELEN HULL. Center court. 239p $2.50 Barnes, A.S.

50-6110

A sports novel for teen-aged girls. Kathy Webb, an American tennis player, is the heroine. The story follows her from Forest Hills, to Paris, and then to Wimbledon.

"Ideal hammock reading for the highschooler who is tired out from a session on the courts. Not literature, not art; but a perfect thesaurus of richly sounding technical tennis terms." Mary Sandrock
+ Cath World 171:394 Ag '50 100w

"Excellent for tennis lovers."
+ Kirkus 18:66 F 1 '50 80w

"This is for tennis enthusiasts, teen-age and adult." Lillian Morrison
Library J 75:705 Ap 15 '50 80w

"As a novel 'Center Court' is not first-rate, but its descriptions of tennis are absolutely thrilling." L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 16 '50 180w

"Kathy is two-dimensional, but the tennis is real, fast and hard." E. L. B.
+ — N Y Times p28 Ap 2 '50 180w

JACOBY, OSWALD. Complete canasta. 160p $1.75 Doubleday

795.41 Canasta (game) 50-5467

Comprehensive guide to the rules of the game of canasta. The author is chairman of the National canasta laws commission. Index.

Booklist 46:186 F 1 '50
Kirkus 18:20 Ja 1 '50 70w
Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 23 '50 60w

JAEGER, ELLSWORTH. Nature crafts. 128p il $2.49 Macmillan

680 Handicraft 50-6111

Instructions for fashioning a wide variety of objects from materials found in woods, fields and swamps, and with simple tools—pocket knife, saw, axe, bit and brace, gouge and scissors. Partial contents: The craft hut; Craft hut furnishings; Rush mats; The flint knife; A stone tomahawk; Shell spoon and fork; Nature cordage; Bark crafts; Bow drill fire sets; Katchina dolls; Indian cradle; Indian sleds; Clay animals and birds; Berry juice and plant dyes.

Booklist 46:213 Mr 1 '50
Kirkus 18:16 Ja 1 '50 70w

"Very valuable book for young people and all workers with them who are interested in the out-of-doors by the well-known curator of education at the Buffalo Museum of Science." J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 75:785 My 1 '50 80w

"A splendid book, an excellent practical approach to nature study."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 My 7 '50 80w

School Arts 49:10a Ap '50 140w

"A book which will be of use in any nature crafts program, and of real value to camp instructors in this field."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:14 Ap '50

JAKOB, MAX, and HAWKINS, GEORGE ANDREW. Elements of heat transfer and insulation. 2d ed 230p $4 Wiley

536.2 Heat—Transmission 50-8031

"An introductory textbook designed for use in undergraduate courses in engineering colleges. . . Typical additions are discussions of the numerical solution of unsteady state conduction problems, heat transfer from fins, the numerical solution of combined conduction and convection problems and heat exchange by radiation between parallel surfaces. Many of the problems are new." (N Y New Tech Bks) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1942.

"This is a compact and worth-while book for the student or engineer who desires a condensed and relatively simple text on heat transfer and insulation." E. N. Sieder
+ Chem & Eng N 28:4208 N 27 '50 220w

"It is written for students who have studied basic thermodynamics and whose mathematical education includes differential equations. It is useful also as a refresher for engineers." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:1050 Je 15 '50 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:70 S '50

JAMES, FREDERICK, pseud. See Eckrich, J. F.

JAMES, GLENN, and JAMES, ROBERT CLARKE, eds. Mathematics dictionary, by Armen A. Alchian [and others]. rev & enl ed 432p $7.50 Van Nostrand

510.3 Mathematics—Dictionaries 49-48433

"An enlarged edition, which has added among others, basic terms in metric differential geometry, advanced calculus, theory of groups, point-set topology, and analytic mechanics." (Booklist) For previous edition see Book Review Digest 1942.

Booklist 46:202 F 15 '50

"A major portion of the definitions are rendered in the terminology of advanced mathematics, and are, therefore, unintelligible to the average reader. However, the book is a valuable aid for advanced and graduate students of mathematics and for graduates engaged in the scientific and engineering professions." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 74:1913 D 15 '49 80w

"The coverage provided by the dictionary is very comprehensive. It should prove to be a useful addition to the libraries of mathematicians and all others using mathematics in their professions."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:257 Je '50 210w

JAMES, HENRY. Eight uncollected tales; ed. with an introd. by Edna Kenton. 314p $4.25 Rutgers univ. press

50-9190

"From 1865 through 1876 James published twenty-eight tales of which he reprinted only thirteen. . . The remaining fifteen have come to be loosely known as the 'uncollected stories.' Except for stray references to them in old Letters and Memoirs of the '60's and '70's, till LeRoy Phillips listed their titles and dates in his first Bibliography of the Writings of Henry James (1906), they lay unknown in old files of the Atlantic, the Galaxy and Scribner's Monthly. . . In 1919 Albert Mordell reprinted seven of this group of tales in Travelling Companions. . . The other eight tales are in this volume, five of them reprinted here for the first time. At the end of this volume is a chronological list of the twenty-eight stories of this period, with serial and first book publication dates and with some later more accessible reprintings noted." Introd

Kirkus 18:480 Ag 15 '50 110w

"For admirers of James, and students of the art of fiction, a valuable collection of work not readily available elsewhere." H. W. Hart

+ Library J 75:1407 S 1 '50 130w

"This is a volume not only for initiated Jamesians; it is a first-rate guide to the beginnings of our subtlest and most civilized practitioner of fiction." Leon Edel

+ N Y Times p5 S 10 '50 700w

"It is easy to see why James did not himself reprint them; none of them is very good. But they do have a certain interest in connection with the rest of his work." Edmund Wilson

New Yorker 26:165 D 9 '50 600w

"Miss Kenton's introduction shows the expert hand of an admirer of James who knows and understands all facets of his work. She considers the reprinting of the early tales worth while principally because they reveal some of the ways in which during his apprentice years he prepared himself for his later triumphs. . . His benevolent asides to the reader in the early stories are annoyingly intrusive but they are almost worth enduring as a reminder of how important and how difficult must have been his struggle for the fully realistic objectivity in which he later excelled." K. B. Murdock

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:16 S 30 '50 800w

JAMES, HENRY. A little tour in France; with an introd. by Michael Swan. [new ed] 241p pl $4 Farrar, Straus

914.4 France—Description and travel

50-4213

A reprint of a series of essays which first appeared in the United States in the form of magazine articles in 1883 to 1884. In 1885 it appeared in book form. The last reprint was issued fifty years ago. It is a series of impressions of the author's journey thru Touraine, Languedoc, and Provence, in the autumn of 1882.

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby

Christian Science Monitor p8 Ag 19 '50 900w

Kirkus 18:321 Je 1 '50 270w

"The names of the streets and hotels may have changed since that time, a few buildings may have become victims of World War II, but otherwise Mr. James's description of the castles and cathedrals of the Loire, Languedoc and Provence are as interesting and fascinating as they were sixty-five years ago." Beach Conger

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Jl 30 '50 100w

"I was 14 years old when I first came upon 'A Little Tour in France.' . . Here, by Henry James, was a book of urbane perceptivity written in a very personal style. And it was the thumb-print of personality which would not allow me to close it until I had reached its last page. A rereading of this 'travel book,' seventeen years after, has in no way disillusioned me. The names of the places described still ring with James' particular magic. . . I would suggest that, if you plan a trip to France, you first read this book; if you do not have such a trip in mind then it is even more important that you absorb the tour made by James, for it was made by a great stylist and thinker. It is one of those journeys which are easily and pleasurably shared even when you, the fellow-passenger, remain within the physical limits of an armchair." William Archibald

+ N Y Times p6 Jl 9 '50 650w

"A lively, charming, and occasionally fussy account of a tour James took in the fall of 1882. . . As a tourist, James is a far more vivid and companionable figure than the aloof analyst of the novels."

+ New Yorker 26:107 S 30 '50 120w

Sat R of Lit 33:33 Ag 5 '50 220w

JAMES, THELMA G., and others, eds. World neighbors; a book of readings of many countries. 520p il $3.20 Harper

808.82 Literature—Collections 50-5327

A collection of short stories, descriptive pieces, poetry, drama, and expository essays, for high school readers, chosen from the literatures of many nations and designed to promote international friendship thru understanding. Bibliographies. Author and title index.

"Excellent discussion questions follow each selection. It is a volume well worth looking into for possible use in English or social studies groups." Millicent Taylor

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 N 4 '50 110w

"It is a big, heavy school book, printed in two columns a page, with topics for discussion, reading lists, introductions on ways of writing. Still it is a collection on such a high level, so generous in its use of modern material, so stimulating in its introduction of modern writers, that it could well be a gift to intelligent youngsters about fourteen, many of whom may not meet it too soon in their schools. Teachers and librarians should meet it as soon as possible." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 F 26 '50 220w

School & Society 71:63 Ja 28 '50 40w

"Much useful and interesting material here, and the author and title index will make possible reference use."

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:16 Ap '50

JAMESON, STORM (MRS GUY CHAPMAN). Writer's situation, and other essays. 200p $2.50 Macmillan

824 Authorship

"Miss Storm Jameson is a novelist whose interest in her craft really brings fiction farther on its course. In this book of 12 essays we have the problems facing the writer to-day presented in many aspects, and they are integrated with descriptions of travel in war-scarred Europe and with discussions of the menace to all humanity as the world rattles into increasingly savage armaments and soul-destructive ideologies." Times [London] Lit Sup

"Miss Jameson's contribution is personal and unsystematic. The fact that her essays were written at intervals over a decade has something to do with it. But what is probably more relevant in creating a fragmentary impression is that she sees rather than analyses, diagnoses convincingly where she cannot always give convincing reasons for her diagnosis, and is cool and clear-sighted without asserting herself as a thinker." L. F. D.

JAMESON, STORM—Continued

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 25 '50 230w

New Statesman & Nation 40:524 N 25 '50 250w

"One of the most intelligent, sensitive, and learned critics in England today is a woman with the unfeminine name of Storm Jameson. . . In the England of our day, where, comparatively speaking at least, there is 'no ferment of ideas, no excitement,' she is content to write modest little essays, which appear from time to time in the few remaining journals. It is only when we read them in a collected and related sequence as in the present volume that we glimpse her real critical stature." Nona Balakian

+ Sat R of Lit 33:23 D 2 '50 700w

"Miss Jameson is not warned off the subject of the form of the novel and the position of the novelist to-day by Henry James's gibe at the periodical prattle about the future of fiction. Not being a prattler, she has things to say about her art worth saying, none the less so for being, some of them, disputable. But most are welcome."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p518 Ag 18 '50 480w

JAMIESON, JOHN. Books for the army; the Army library service in the second World war. 335p $4.50 Columbia univ. press

027.652 U.S. Army library service 50-8066

"The history of the Library Service from its origins to its latest developments. The author discusses the expansion and re-classification that led to the creation of Service Command library systems, new post and hospital libraries, Air Forces Libraries, and all the other organizations which helped meet the soldiers' need for reading material." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:327 Jl 1 '50

"To bookmen and librarians alike, it should be an absorbing story, not only because of its content, but because of the interesting non-academic and non-military style of John Jamieson. . . Readers interested in people will be impressed by Jamieson's stories, gleaned from every theater of the war, of amateur and professional army librarians going beyond the call of duty to provide books and a comfortable place to read to men who needed books, whether they realized it or not. . . While it could very well serve as a blueprint for doing it again—failures as well as successes are reported—it achieves a greater importance in the inspiration it can give to improved public library service." L. C. Merritt

+ Library J 75:1493 S 15 '50 420w

"An interesting and carefully documented assessment both of the work that was done and of the problems that arose."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p619 S 29 '50 150w

"A well-written descriptive history and analysis of the Army Library Service, 1940-46. . . Although Mr. Jamieson believes that on the whole the ALS did a fairly good job, he does not hesitate to point out a number of mistakes and weaknesses in its work; he draws, also, some pertinent conclusions about its significance to the public library movement in the United States."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:394 S '50 280w

JANEWAY, CAROL. Ceramics and pottery making for everyone; with drawings by the author; pref. by Hensleigh Wedgwood. 126p il $3; pa $1 Tudor

738.3 Pottery 50-8591

An instruction book for beginners, describing materials, methods, and techniques used by the author in her ceramics and pottery making studio. Copiously illustrated. Index.

Booklist 46:349 Jl 15 '50

Reviewed by Leon Harpole

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 27 '50 50w

JANNOPOULO, MRS HELEN (PHIAMBOLIS). And across big seas; il. by William Howard French. 353p $5 Caxton ptrs.

B or 92 49-10446

Reminiscences of the author's childhood in various towns in Roumania and in Greece, where her father was a priest in the Orthodox Church. The narrative closes with the arrival of the family in New York in the summer of 1892. Glossary.

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '50

Kirkus 17:315 Je 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by M. A. Johnson

Library J 74:1021 Jl '49 110w

"To read this book is to unpack the luggage that the family of Helen Jannopoulo brought with them when the steamer landed in America—she was eighteen then and now she is in the remembering seventies. For what she remembers has more value than anything else they brought, more than the demijohn of cognac or the five gallon tin of olive oil, or the birdcage with Kossifos, who sang so sweetly on board, more even than the brass bed Father had sent for, because 'the beds of Chicago are uncomfortable.'" M. L. Becker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Mr 26 '50 410w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich

Sat R of Lit 33:26 My 27 '50 180w

JAPAN. Ministry of education. Kokutai no hongi (Cardinal principles of the national entity of Japan) tr. by John Owen Gauntlett; and ed. with an introd. by Robert King Hall. 200p $4 Harvard univ. press

370.952 Japan—Nationality. National characteristics, Japanese

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by J. A. Dewar

Canadian Forum 30:47 My '50 80w

Foreign Affairs 28:517 Ap '50 80w

"Both editor and translator have performed their difficult tasks with distinction. . . Though aware that, in view of the tremendous language difficulties and the wide cultural gulf confronting the non-Japanese reader, full explanatory footnotes might be helpful, Messrs. Hall and Gauntlett have restricted such glosses to a bare minimum lest they 'make the basic text unwieldy and less readable'. This procedure may make the translation more readable in the sense that there is less printed material to work through, but it certainly does not make the finished product more intelligible. On almost every page the translation fairly cries aloud for explanation." D. C. Holtom

+ — Pacific Affairs 22:426 D '49 900w

Reviewed by T. A. Bisson

Survey 86:92 F '50 320w

"In the present volume, a very readable translation of Kokutai no Hongi is accompanied by a long informative introduction, which is essential for a full understanding of the vague and mystical ideas expressed in the document itself."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:326 S '49 230w

JARRELL, HAMPTON MCNEELY. Wade Hampton and the Negro; the road not taken. 209p il $3.50 Univ. of S.C. press

B or 92 Hampton, Wade. Negroes—South Carolina. South Carolina—Politics and government 50-5796

"Wade Hampton was a South Carolina planter and slave-owner who opposed secession; when it came, he raised and equipped a legion at his own expense and fought brilliantly from First Manassas to the war's end. Excoriated at the North during Grant's Administration as an unreconstructed Rebel, he was the dominant political figure in South Carolina politics to 1890. . . The author, who teaches at Winthrop College, South Carolina, untangles the jumbled threads of regional, racial, social and economic conflict that make up the fabric of a South at once solid and inchoate." N Y Times

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 185:82 Ja '50 180w

"Fully to understand Wade Hampton is to understand much of Southern life and politics—a feat that has long baffled carpetbaggers, Republicans, and foreigners generally. Jarrell's study of Hampton makes this understanding pleasant and relatively uncomplicated." N. K. Burger
+ N Y Times p22 My 7 '50 240w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:191 Je '50 240w

JASNY, NAUM. Socialized agriculture of the USSR; plans and performance. 837p il maps $7.50 Stanford univ. press

338.1 Agriculture—Russia. Agricultural administration—Russia 49-6913

"The purpose of this work is to provide a careful analysis of socialized agriculture in the U.S.S.R., covering its background, conditions of emergence, organization, functioning, and achievements. . . The book is divided into five major parts. The first is a 'summary survey' which perhaps should have formed a conclusion. The second offers an excellent survey of natural resources, population, the prerevolutionary structure of Russian agriculture, and of the changes effected by the Communist revolution prior to the beginning of the experiment in socialized agriculture (1929). Part Three is devoted to the organization and control of socialized agriculture. . . Part Four deals with socialized production. . . The concluding part (Five) discusses over-all production and income." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"The publication of Naum Jasny's long-awaited volume on Soviet agriculture is an event of major importance both for those interested in the economics of the Soviet Union and for those whose interests encompass the general theory of economic development. His is the first such study in a decade, and it is the most thorough and comprehensive ever published on the subject. It deserves a great deal of attention. . . I do feel that the results that Jasny describes, and which appear at first glance to signify weakness, need to be interpreted with care. I have the feeling that the Soviet agrarian problems were by no means near solution by 1938, and that the road ahead would have been long and painful even without the wartime interruptions. But some at least of the problems were being got in hand, and a number of the important adverse factors—the great cattle slaughter, the process of learning to use machinery, and so on—were nonrecurring. I suggest that it is plausible to infer that the release of labor to industry, had it not been for the war, might well have continued at a high and perhaps increasing rate." J. A. Kershaw
+ — Am Econ R 40:182 Mr '50 3150w

Reviewed by C. E. Black
Ann Am Acad 269:194 My '50 550w

"In the present reviewer's opinion, two topics have not received adequate treatment. First, Mr. Jasny has not sufficiently emphasized the significance of the shift from complete to mitigated collectivization (1935), the latter allowing the plots and individual cattle just mentioned. . . Second, he does not bring together information about the post war development. . . Despite these shortcomings, in this reviewer's opinion, Mr. Jasny's work is final as to the history of the experiment in socialized agriculture before the great disturbance caused by the war. Somewhat different interpretations and evaluations can and probably will be offered by other authors. But nobody will ever be able to add anything of importance to the masterful picture offered by Mr. Jasny." N. S. Timasheff
+ — Current Hist 18:38 Ja '50 1150w
Foreign Affairs 29:155 O '50 160w

"The whole of the work is necessarily conditioned by the severe limitation of reliable data from Russian and other sources—a problem irritatingly familiar to workers in the Russion field. It is well to keep in mind an apparent intellectual bent in judging the reliability of interpretations and methods used in arriving at 'probable' conclusions. However, this is not to deny Mr. Jasny a heavy vote of appreciation for his prodigious labor in canvassing the pertinent literature and his attempt to relate Russian statistics and information to the facts." A. E. Burke
Geog R 40:689 O '50 1150w

"At best, the statistics are inadequate, and in many instances must be rejected as incomparable or misleading. The materials are, however, fully presented, and the reader may draw his own conclusions where he is not in agreement with the author."
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:478 D '49 460w

JASPERS, KARL. Perennial scope of philosophy; tr. by Ralph Manheim. 188p $3 Philosophical lib.

193.9 Philosophy 49-50283

"This volume consists of a series of six lectures, all but one of which were delivered by Karl Jaspers at the University of Basel in July, 1947. In these lectures, Jaspers redefines the position of philosophy in the world today, particularly in relation to science and theology, and outlines his own philosophy." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by V. M. Ames
Christian Century 67:271 Mr 1 '50 2200w

Reviewed by H. W. Steiger
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 19 '50 1250w

"To read this volume is an exercise in penetration, first to grasp the enormity of the problem, then to follow the author's relentless probing of both faith and unfaith. And this penetration may well expose to the thoughtful reader the shallowness of much of his own bland philosophizing. I therefore commend it especially to those whose philosophy of life is now well organized, wrapped in pleasing verbiage, and tied with string twenty-five or fifty years old." E. E. Aubrey
Crozer Q 27:263 Jl '50 550w

Reviewed by W. A. Earle
Ethics 60:302 Jl '50 550w

"After Heidegger, Karl Jaspers is the most distinguished representative of philosophical existentialism in Germany. In these lectures . . . we have perhaps the simplest exposition of some existentialist themes in print. 'Simplest' is a relative term. The non-professional reader will find many pages of the book hard going. Few even among professional Anglo-American philosophers, irrespective of their persuasion, will have patience with its crabbed obscurities, oracular and non-analytic in character. None the less it is an interesting volume for a variety of reasons." Sidney Hook
+ — N Y Times p6 Ja 15 '50 850w
Times [London] Lit Sup p732 N 17 '50 1000w

JAVITS, BENJAMIN ABRAHAM. Peace by investment [pub.] in association with United nations world [introd. by Charles E. Wilson]. 242p $3.50 Funk

338.91 Investments, Foreign. Economic conditions 50-6326

Mr Javits' plan for world peace, founded on discussions with Charles E. Wilson of the General Electric company, is that the United States during the next fifty to one hundred years, should advance huge sums of credit to all other nations, thus raising not only our own economic status but also that of the whole world and proving to other countries that what has made the United States strong—credit—can make the whole world peaceful. Index.

"To the student of international affairs, Peace by Investment leaves many questions unanswered. . . Despite these limitations, the author has performed a useful service. He has lifted Point Four out of the realm of confused verbiage and academic programing and has placed it on the level of practical business and investment—the level on which it must be administered if the program is to promote real economic advancement in the world's underdeveloped areas." A. E. Taylor

JAVITS, B. A.—Continued

+ — Ann Am Acad 270:153 Jl '50 550w

Bookmark 9:156 Ap '50 40w

Reviewed by J. F. Rippy
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 26 '50 650w

Current Hist 18:356 Je '50 30w

Reviewed by H. E. Dickhuth
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 Ap 16 '50 360w

"Mr. Javits—attorney, business man and author of 'Industry's New Goal'—has done a masterful job of making his bold plan for peace seem highly practical. He has confined his study of the problem to hard economic facts, and has made convincing argument as to why a philosophy which has worked economic wonders in the United States would work equal wonders in the world." Guy Shipler

+ N Y Times p26 Mr 12 '50 360w

Reviewed by C. E. Ayres
Sat R of Lit 33:12 O 14 '50 700w

Springf'd Republican p17A Ja 8 '50 60w

"One of the most vital problems of current international relations and one of the most likely lines of solution are presented by Mr. Javits in his book, 'Peace by Investment.' It is a timely statement, urging convincingly that the best way to secure world harmony is by an investment program of wide scope and perspective, involving billions of dollars of capital exports." E. L. Dulles

+ Survey 86:278 My '50 650w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:182 Je '50 200w

Reviewed by Herbert Feis
Yale R n s 40:164 autumn '50 430w

JAWORSKI, IRENE D. Becoming American; the problems of immigrants and their children. 113p $1.50 Harper

325.73 U.S.—Foreign population. U.S.—Emigration and immigration 50-13530

"This book deals mainly with the problems arising from the variety of national backgrounds to be found among Americans. It presents the story of immigration in terms of human experience as an aid to understanding the attitudes and relationships of our present population." (Pref) The author is a member of the English department of the Forest Hills, New York, High school.

Booklist 47:45 S 15 '50

+ Kirkus 18:322 Je 1 '50 130w

"Extremely well written. . . Heartily recommended for public and school libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 75:1177 Jl '50 100w

School & Society 72:47 Jl 15 '50 40w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 S '50

JEFFERSON, HERBERT ALFRED LEWIS. Hymns in Christian worship. 282p il $3.50 Macmillan

245.2 Hymns 50-33740

An outline of the history and development of hymns as used in Christian churches. Contains a chapter on hymns for children. The author is an English Anglican rector. Bibliography. Index of hymn and tune titles. Index of subjects.

"Altho written from the standpoint of an English churchman, the book is almost equally valuable for Americans." F. D. Heron

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 17 '50 300w

"The story Mr. Jefferson tells is a fascinating one." A. G.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 24 '50 600w

Time 56:56 S 11 '50 700w

JEFFERSON, JOSEPH. Rip Van Winkle; the autobiography [foreword by Eleanor Farjeon]. new rev ed 375p il $5 Appleton

B or 92 Actors and actresses—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. [50-31466]

A reprinting of the Autobiography of Joseph Jefferson, first published in 1890. This edition has a foreword by the author's granddaughter, Eleanor Farjeon. Index.

Booklist 46:289 My 15 '50

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 23 '50 50w

"Still makes excellent reading, not only of the theatre of Jefferson's day but of an active, full, interesting life.

+ Kirkus 18:250 Ap 15 '50 180w

"Recommended highly for any library lacking an edition as well as to all large theatre collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 75:869 My 15 '50 80w

JEFFERSON, THOMAS. Papers; Julian P. Boyd, editor; Lyman H. Butterfield and Mina R. Bryan, associate editors. v 1:1760-1776. 679p il maps $10 Princeton univ. press

308.1 U.S.—History (50-7486)

"This tome is the first from the press of a set that is expected to run to fifty volumes [and] to be a dozen years in production. . . The object of this mighty endeavor is to make accessible in accurate and legible form every line written by or to Thomas Jefferson barring only completely trivial memoranda and purely formal documents, such as passports issued by him as Secretary of State and commissions issued in his name as President. But the first volume shows that the work is far more than a mere transcription. Headnotes and footnotes accompanying each document explain the circumstances under which it was written, identify, whenever possible, every person mentioned in it, cite its purpose when that is known and mention its effect. Finally, the present location of the original is recorded. The purpose is not merely to present what Jefferson wrote but also to make plain, as far as is humanly possible, why he wrote it and what he meant by it." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) The present volume ends in 1776 after Jefferson had written the Declaration of Independence.

Reviewed by St G. L. Sioussat
+ Am Hist R 56:118 O '50 2050w

"This first volume of the Papers of Thomas Jefferson marks the beginning of a tremendous enterprise, but one well worth the cost in time and money. From every point of view the work is well and soundly done." C. M. Wiltse

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:753 S '50 1150w

Booklist 47:5 S 1 '50

Chicago Sun p4 Je 11 '50 40w

Reviewed by R. J. Graf
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 11 '50 550w

"The editing of this huge storehouse of material is a model of careful scholarship. Young authors who propose to do serious work involving the use of documentary sources might well study the 40 pages of 'front matter' in which the scope of the work and the editorial method are explained." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 67:733 Je 14 '50 1200w

Current Hist 18:354 Je '50 40w

"The high scholarship and sound judgment which distinguish the initial volume should be gratifying to members of the Thomas Jefferson Bicentennial Commission who first inspired the undertaking." G. D. McDonald

+ Library J 75:777 My 1 '50 360w

Manchester Guardian p4 N 21 '50 300w

"The first volume gives evidence of the astonishing breadth and exacting scholarship that will characterize the entire work." Adrienne Koch

+ New Repub 122:18 Je 26 '50 1100w

"The early letters afford a wonderful picture of the development of a genius, and of course all the documents dealing with the beginning of the great controversy that exploded on July 4, 1776, are of limitless historical interest, while some are curious in themselves." G. W. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 My 21 '50 2250w

"The work has been attractively designed; a new typeface, called Monticello, was cut for it; the paper was specially made for the series; and in this first volume there are fourteen illustrations. Both publishers and editors will be readily forgiven if they do somewhat less in later volumes, but unquestionably they are off to an impressive start." Dumas Malone

+ N Y Times p1 My 21 '50 1700w

New Yorker 26:107 Je 10 '50 200w

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull

San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 28 '50 1250w

"Just as it exceeds in comparable content the four earlier editions of Mr. Jefferson's writings, so the Boyd-Butterfield-Bryan redaction surpasses them in textual perfection. Likewise the scholarly apparatus is altogether admirable. There is no clutter, no distraction, no annoyance of footnotes; instead, the documentation, typographically differentiated, which follows each communication, is definitive, succinct, and so organized as ordinarily to consist of two and sometimes three complementary parts: a physical description, an explanation, and a commentary on the text. By being stylized its usefulness is conspicuously enhanced." D. C. Mearns

+ Sat R of Lit 33:11 My 27 '50 1100w

Reviewed by W. G. Rogers

Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 600w

Time 55:110 My 22 '50 700w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:302 S '50 550w

"This is the most monumental editorial task ever undertaken in this country, and one eminently deserving the commendation not only of Americans but of the world, for free people everywhere owe more to Jefferson's fertile brain and active hand than they may realize." L. B. Wright

+ Yale R n s 40:156 autumn '50 1700w

JENKINS, DOROTHY HELEN. Weekend gardener. 280p $2.75 Rinehart

635.9 Gardening Agr50-418

Practical advice on gardens and gardening for the weekend gardener or others with limited time. Includes advice on shade trees, shrubs, bulbs, annuals, roses, rock gardens, herbs, vegetables, small fruits, evergreens, vines, diseases, and pests, etc. Index.

Booklist 46:229 Mr 15 '50

Bookmark 9:157 Ap '50 40w

" 'The Weekend Gardener' should be one of the most widely used and enjoyed books on the horticultural shelf and not the less because it has an easy informality uncommon in its kind." Russell MacFall

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Ap 23 '50 250w

"A misleading title for an excellent book. For the weekend gardener who took at face value Miss Jenkins' recommendations would rise with the sun, work by moonlight, and go back to town Monday morning a complete wreck. . . There are, scattered through the text, hints on shortcuts, but unfortunately they are more than counterbalanced by advice that tempts one down bypaths no weekend gardener can afford. Her first rate lists should be there for the checking when the winter's crop of seed catalogues offer their tempting wares."

+ — Kirkus 18:48 Ja 15 '50 260w

"Pleasant reading and exceedingly practical and exhaustive up-to-date information. . . Recommended." H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 75:315 F 15 '50 130w

"This garden manual is written out of hard-earned experience. It answers many questions that puzzle the novice and offers useful suggestions to the veteran, all without being technical and pontifical. . . 'The Weekend Gardener' is an excellent companion." W. B. Hayward

+ N Y Times p25 Ap 2 '50 400w

"Miss Jenkins' book for the week-end gardener has much sound advice and many workable suggestions for Bay Area readers who have enough patience to weed it out. The time charts covering planting and flowering are, of course, out of kilter for our climate." E. J.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Mr 19 '50 150w

Wis Lib Bul 46:14 Ap '50

JENKINS, EDWARD CORBIN. Philanthropy in America; an introduction to the practices and prospects of organizations supported by gifts and endowments, 1924-1948. 183p $3.75 Assn. press

360.973 Charities—U.S. Endowments 50-8722

"Aided by a grant from the Carnegie Corp., Dr. Jenkins of Palo Alto, who has had long experience in the YMCA and as a college president, analyzes the practices and prospects of the quarter-million organizations maintained largely by gifts and endowments—churches, social agencies, private universities, hospitals and museums. The emphasis is on the last 25 years." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

"A cool and perceptive appraisal." Gertrude Samuels

N Y Times p41 S 10 '50 300w

"A tremendous amount of fact-finding and careful research has gone into this useful study. While the study shows the many achievements of private organizations as in research and in pioneering practices, there seems to be inadequate weighing of the role of government in health, social security, education, recreation, housing, crime prevention, etc." I. B.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 20 '50 270w

"The greatest value of the book, perhaps lies in its well integrated approach, its spirit, and its challenge to the public to sustain more vigorously all philanthropic endeavor as part of a democratic society." L. W. Mayo

+ Survey 86:518 N '50 650w

JENKINS, GLENN LLEWELLYN, and HARTUNG, WALTER HENRY. Chemistry of organic medicinal products. 3d ed 745p $7.50 Wiley

615.3 Chemistry, Medical and pharmaceutical. Chemistry, Organic 49-50110

"The appearance of the third edition within 10 years of Jenkins and Hartung's valuable book serves as a potent reminder of the tremendous pace at which the field of medicinal chemistry is expanding. More than 100 additional pages have been required to present this new material. For the specialist this book provides a convenient means of becoming better acquainted with the varied developments associated with or resulting from World War II. For the student entering the field it serves as a guide in correlating biological data with his previous courses in organic chemistry." (Chem & Eng N) For second edition see Book Review Digest 1944.

"With the appearance of the third edition, this textbook becomes by far the best and most up-to-date single volume reference to a rapidly advancing subject. . . In spite of any deficiencies the volume may have as a textbook, every student of organic medicinal products, as well as the advanced worker in this and related fields, should have a copy in his possession. Its value as an authoritative reference work is out of all proportion to its size." R. O. Roblin

+ Am Chem Soc J 72:1870 Ap '50 340w

JENKINS, G. L.—Continued

"Very much worth while is the all too brief chapter on physiochemical properties of medicinal products and the extensive bibliography arranged by fields of interest. Certainly this new edition is a 'must' on the desk of every worker—chemist, pharmacist, pharmacologist, or medical man engaged in this field." D. L. Tabern

+ Chem & Eng N 28:1956 Je 5 '50 450w

"Well-known textbook which is used chiefly in courses offered to students of medicine and pharmacy. It is suitable also for libraries where it can be used as a source of reliable information about such topics as enzymes, sex hormones, and antimalarial drugs." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 74:1913 D 15 '49 90w

JENKINS, SARA. The lost lamp. 244p $3 Crowell

50-5992

The story of a Southern Methodist minister and his family. George Winfree had started out in a good parish, but in his fifteen years as a minister his lack of tact had brought him down in the scale until he reached the bottom. But there was no lack of tact in his relations with his family; they all loved him, especially his eight-year-old daughter. The move to the poorest parish began auspiciously, and a series of crises finally opened the eyes of the Reverend George Winfree.

Booklist 46:134; 261 D 15 '49; Ap 15 '50

"Miss Jenkins tells the story of the Winfrees with an engaging good humor and informality. The few occasional lapses are only superficial defects in a book that is, taken as a whole, a refreshing chronicle of a family whom it would be a pleasure—and a privilege—to meet in any community." M. W. Stoer

+ Christian Science Monitor p4 Ap 8 '50 480w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '50

"This is wholesome reading that owes its vitality to the non existence of saccharine in characterization, the lively humor and distinctive flavor of regional description without too much sectarianism. For the conservatives."

+ Kirkus 18:36 Ja 15 '50 160w

"Highly recommended." R. P. Tubby

+ Library J 75:492 Mr 15 '50 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Je 25 '50 140w

"This good-natured story is not nearly so funny as its dust jacket claims. But it should appeal to its particular audience." Marilyn Mercer

N Y Times p39 Je 11 '50 190w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 33:30 My 13 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 My '50

JENKINS, WILLIAM FITZGERALD (MURRAY LEINSTER, pseud). Last space ship. 239p $2.50 Fell

49-6995

Science fiction novel for older boys.

"More scientific than most, this requires a cognition and conditioning in this medium."

+ Kirkus 17:562 D 1 '49 100w

Reviewed by Richard Gehman

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 Ap 16 '50 200w

"Ingenious and amusing." E. D. Doyle

+ San Francisco Chronicle p29 D 11 '49 70w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 32:46 N 12 '49 30w

JENKINS, WILLIAM FITZGERALD (MURRAY LEINSTER, pseud). Sidewise in time, and other scientific adventures. 211p $3 Shasta pubs.

50-1899

Collection of science-fiction stories. Contents: Sidewise in time; Proxima centauri; A logic named Joe; De profundis; The fourth-dimensional demonstrator; The power.

Booklist 46:276 My 1 '50

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

Chicago Sun p5 Ap 3 '50 20w

Reviewed by Fritz Leiber

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Mr 26 '50 270w

"It's an entertaining collection, slightly on the wacky side for straight science-fiction readers." Don Fabun

+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 Ap 16 '50 110w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt

+ Sat R of Lit 33:33 Je 17 '50 180w

"A good collection of science fiction short stories of the type which stresses the fiction and more or less lets science fend for itself. While this is sometimes irritating to addicts who want their time and/or space gadgets meticulously diagrammed, Mr. Leinster's atomic age fables are invariably entertaining." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p12C Ap 16 '50 120w

JENKS, WILLIAM ALEXANDER. Austrian electoral reform of 1907. 227p $3.25 Columbia univ. press

324.436 Austria—Politics and government. Austria—Nationality 50-1870

"The introductory chapter of this doctoral dissertation traces the development of representative government in Austria from 1860 to 1896. The following chapter presents chronologically the electoral reform movement of 1907, which introduced democratic manhood suffrage in the Austrian half of the Habsburg empire. The major problems and the machinery of the reform are analyzed, and the result of the elections of 1907, held on the basis of the reforms, is given. A final chapter examines the failure of the electoral reform to vitalize the parliamentary system in Austria." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:509 Je '50 20w

"Presenting the facts clearly and in orderly fashion, this book should be of interest to students of modern Central European history."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:204 Je '50 170w

JENNINGS, BURGESS HILL, and LEWIS, SAMUEL RICHARD. Air conditioning and refrigeration. 3d ed 606p il map $6.50 Int. textbook

628.8 Air conditioning. Refrigeration and refrigerating machinery 50-6742

"The greatest revision in this volume has been in the heating and ventilating portions of the text. Additional material added in the fields of radiant heating, heat pumps, psychrometric charts and data, and duct design." (Booklist) For second edition see Book Review Digest 1944. Index.

Booklist 46:318 Je 15 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:700 Ap 15 '50 80w

"A successful engineering college textbook, in which the presentations of theory and practice are well balanced. . . The authors' style is simple and direct enough to make the book suitable for reference and home study by practical men at work in the industry."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:33 My '50

JENNINGS, JOHN EDWARD. Sea eagles. 299p $3 Doubleday

50-5839

"A story of the American navy during the Revolution, of the men who fought and the ships they sailed and the women who stood behind them." Subtitle

Booklist 46:134; 219 D 15 '49; Mr 1 '50

"Such as it is, the book is diligently written. But it had best be skipped by all, except those who are uncomplaining addicts of the historical novel."

Cath World 171:74 Ap '50 250w

"The more immediate characters are standard historical-fiction people, and Mr. Jennings does not endow them with any unexpected complexity or any unanticipated motivation. But his portrayal of the pride, skill, and daring of the newly born United States navy is both fresh and impressive." Walter Havighurst
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 26 '50 400w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '50

"A lively, vigorous story."
+ Kirkus 17:677 D 15 '49 220w

Reviewed by E. B. Davis
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Mr 5 '50 950w

"The strength of this historical romance . . . is that it could have been the by-product of a dissertation for a graduate degree in any of America's institutions of higher learning. Its weakness, by the same sign, is that in style and handling it comes a little too close to the academic method to meet the dramatic requirements of the historical novel." Henry Cavendish
+ — N Y Times p35 F 19 '50 230w

"John Jennings is a relative newcomer to the ranks of romance writers about the American Revolution, but one of the best. . . Mr. Jennings's novel is at its best when ships are at sea or when he is able to keep one of his two principal characters at rest for a while. Its major fault as a coherent story is the result of trying to keep up with two heroes of equal importance to his plot." Harrison Smith
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:18 F 25 '50 650w

JENSEN, LLOYD BRYAN. Meat and meat foods; processing and preservation from meat plant to consumer. 218p $3.75 Ronald 664.9 Meat 49-50284

"For college students of home economics, animal husbandry, or veterinary science. This book will serve as an introduction to meat technology or microbiology of meats." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"Jensen has prepared an interesting volume which should be in the library of every individual who works in any way with foods and who desires to be informed. The fact that non-technical language has been used in no way detracts from the value of the book for technically minded and trained workers." F. W. Tanner
+ Am J Pub Health 40:619 My '50 230w

"Home economics teachers of food will find this book valuable for background and for reference; students working on special problems on meat processing and preservation will find it useful. The section on the care and handling of meat in the home and the chapter on bacterial food poisoning would be suitable for class assignment at the college level. This book gathers together much information not collected any other place. Every college library should have at least one copy." F. A. Johnston
+ J Home Econ 42:298 Ap '50 270w

"Book is designed for popular reading, but in the opinion of this reviewer the popularization has not been wholly accomplished. It is not easy to read, though most of the facts given are interesting. However, it should serve well as a popular reference book, and the very extensive bibliography will enhance its reference value." R. R. Hawkins
+ — Library J 75:324 F 15 '50 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:6 Ja '50

School & Society 70:383 D 10 '49 30w

JENSEN, MERRILL. New nation. 433p $5 Knopf
973.318 U.S.—History—Confederation, 1783-1789 50-9344

"A history of the United States during the confederation, 1781-1789." (Subtitle) Index.

Current Hist 19:231 O '50 70w

"For the historian and the student, there is fascinating material here. But the market will be largely limited to this audience."
+ Kirkus 18:380 Jl 1 '50 310w

"Highly recommended." Joseph Borome
+ Library J 75:1400 S 1 '50 130w

"Although Professor Jensen's book is valuable as a corrective upon Fiske and will lead us to take a fairer view of the so-called critical period, his main contentions are of doubtful validity. The issues he has raised will, however, be fought out in many seminars in American history; and we should be much the poorer if historians like Professor Jensen did not question our intrenched beliefs. It seems apparent that Professor Jensen exaggerates the prosperity and 'exuberant optimism' of the American people just as Fiske overdrew the darker aspects of the period." J. C. Miller
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 1 '50 1300w

"John Fiske called this the 'critical period,' and painted a picture of stagnation, ineptitude, bankruptcy, corruption, and disintegration. Mr. Jensen, Professor of History at the University of Wisconsin, properly regards this as grossly distorted. He has sought to correct it in this admirable account by telling the story of these years step by step, showing just what the problems of the new nation were, and what the leaders of the time actually did in their effort to solve them. He could not have described the framing and ratification of the Constitution of 1787 without writing another volume, but otherwise he has told a full story, and few people will read it without correcting misapprehensions and gaining fresh information." Dumas Malone
+ N Y Times p6 S 10 '50 650w

"The author writes clearly and without bias, except for the initial one against those he regards as misinterpreters of the lessons of the Confederation; he places the proponents of world union in that camp."
+ New Yorker 26:150 O 14 '50 260w

"We welcome Mr. Jensen's brilliant refutation of the classic picture of the years preceding 1787 as marking a period of stagnation, ineptitude, and corruption. He has given us a needed revision of much earlier studies based on less intensive scholarship." R. B. Morris
+ Sat R of Lit 33:20 O 28 '50 900w

JENSEN, VERNON H. Heritage of conflict; labor relations in the nonferrous metals industry up to 1930. 495p $4.75 Cornell univ. press
331.88122 Industrial relations. Trade unions. Mining industry and finance 50-7018

"This is a monograph dealing with the history of labor conflicts in the copper, silver, and lead mining and smelting industries in the western states, notably Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Colorado, and Arizona, with one chapter reaching as far east as Michigan. It covers the time from the middle of the last century, when these industries originated, usually in the course of gold prospecting, down through the first World War, with a few minor developments followed into the 1920's." (J Pol Econ) Bibliography. Index.

"Historical perspective is needed for a clear understanding of the labor-management problem in America today. This book helps to supply that perspective." J. E. Kallenbach
+ Am Pol Sci R 44:773 S '50 230w

"The author's sympathies are decidedly—one wants to say 'naturally'—with the workers, although he is completely free of rancor or vindictiveness against management. . . If, in spite of his sympathetic, detailed, and authentic account of the events, the story somehow fails to come to life—as to the social and economic life of the mining communities, the personalities of even the more prominent leaders, and the absolute and relative extent of the movements and conflicts—this is perhaps inherent in the whole plan of presenting separate instances of open conflict in various places rather than more continuous space-time strands of developments." J. V. Spielmans
+ — J Pol Econ 58:455 O '50 800w

Management R 39:502 Ag '50 40w

"Will be of special interest to institutional historians and to students of the labor movement."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:216 Je '50 240w

JEPSEN, GLENN LOWELL, and others, eds. Genetics, paleontology, and evolution; ed. for the Committee on common problems of genetics, paleontology, and systematics, of the National research council. 474p il $6 Princeton univ. press

575 Evolution. Heredity. Paleontology 49-9873

"The twenty-three essays in this collection are grouped under eight topics: Geological Time, Viewpoints on Evolution, Evolutionary Trends, Evolutionary Rates, Speciation, Adaptation, Human Evolution, Summation. The essays bring together in a single volume the latest thoughts on the nature, pattern, and mechanism of the evolution of life through geologic time." U S Quarterly Bkl

"Genetics, Paleontology, and Evolution must find its place among the truly significant contributions to the study of evolution. The committee which has been responsible for the events leading to its publication deserves the gratitude of all who are interested in the furtherance of the study of organic evolution." E. C. O.

+ J Geol 58:283 My '50 750w

"The papers are addressed to trained scientists, but the volume is so fundamental that authors and college students who write henceforth on evolution will need to consult it." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 74:1330 S 15 '49 110w

"Prepared as they are by leading specialists from many countries, the essays constitute the best summary available on what modern biologists and paleontologists are thinking and writing about one of Nature's most challenging enigmas. To be sure, the essays are not the last word on the subject, nor do they achieve the synthesis of genetics and paleontology as these disciplines apply to evolution, but they do represent the first great stride in the proper direction."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:390 S '49 240w

JEPSON, SELWYN. Hungry spider. 222p $2.50 Doubleday

50-9122

Detective story.

"If you can accept the rather implausible motives of the characters, you'll find this a sprightly and highly readable mystery."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 3 '50 150w

"Mr. Jepson has a lively style and a neat gift for plot, and his book is a great deal better constructed than any attempt at synopsis would suggest. A nice choice for those who don't object to a little implausibility as long as things move briskly enough."

+ New Yorker 26:87 Ag 19 '50 150w

JERVIS, WILLIAM. General mechanical drawing; a psychological approach to a practical subject. 291p il $2.75 Int. textbook

744 Mechanical drawing 50-5850

"Instead of introducing the student first to the standard drawing instruments, then leading him from the simplest operations to the more complex, the author has in this book adopted what he terms a 'psychological approach.' Scale in drawing is taken up in the first lesson by considering the floor plan of a room, maps, pictorial representations of airplanes, etc. By the third chapter, the student is introduced to detailed plans, such as are used in the building of houses. Thus throughout the book, principles and techniques are learned in relation to everyday experiences of the student. The author says that the method is based upon ten years of experimenting in classes at the Central High School in Scranton, Pa." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"Those who must study mechanical drawing by themselves may find the book simpler to follow than more orthodox texts."

N Y New Tech Bks 35:20 Mr '50

"Manual arts teachers say that the material is up-to-date, and the book useful for class and shop work."

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:15 Ap '50

JESNESS, OSCAR BERNARD, ed. Readings on agricultural policy; assembled and published under the sponsorship of the American farm economic association. 470p $4.75 Blakiston

338.1 Agricultural administration—U.S.

"A collection of articles published elsewhere between the years 1935 to 1948, mostly 1944 and after, by leading authorities in the field of agricultural policy." Am Pol Sci R

Am Pol Sci R 44:507 Je '50 30w

"It is an interesting commentary that agricultural economists, who constitute a marked majority of the writers, should have produced in so short a period of time a volume of literature from which so many excellent contributions could be selected. . . Because of the large role which agricultural policy, generally called 'The Farm Program,' has played over the last thirty years in public discussion and legislation, and the part which it will probably play in the immediate future, a great many persons who desire to understand the issues at stake should read this book. It is uneven in the level of discussion, as of course any compilation must be, but for the average reader it is probably superior to any one book written by any one author in this important field." C. C. Taylor

+ Ann Am Acad 268:233 Mr '50 400w

"After decision had been reached to experiment with a book of readings in agricultural economics and when a choice of subjects was being made, I expressed skepticism about the suitability of agricultural policy as the subject matter for a volume of this kind. A number of my colleagues shared that view. Perusal of the volume under review has not altered that opinion. In fairness to the editor and to the publishers it should be pointed out, however, that the subject chosen was the one recommended by a majority of those questioned in regard to topics. This indicated the current widespread interest in the subject rather than a considered judgment as to how such a book could be assembled and organized." M. R. Benedict

J Pol Econ 58:176 Ap '50 800w

JESSUP, JOSEPHINE LURIE. Faith of our feminists. 128p $2.50 Smith, Richard R.

813.09 Wharton, Mrs Edith Newbold (Jones). Glasgow, Ellen Anderson Gholson. Cather, Willa Sibert. American fiction—History and criticism. Women in literature and art 50-6823

Studies of the works of three American women novelists, Edith Wharton, Ellen Glasgow, Willa Cather. It is the author's purpose to show how each of them, consciously or unconsciously, strove to magnify their feminine characters at the expense of the male characters. Three final chapters explore the meanings of this "feminist faith" for the student of American literature. Bibliographies.

Reviewed by W. P. Sears

Churchman 164:16 Jl '50 250w

Reviewed by H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 75:695 Ap 15 '50 110w

JOAD, CYRIL EDWIN MITCHINSON. Critique of logical positivism. 154p $2.75 Univ. of Chicago press

146 Logical positivism. Ayer, Alfred Jules —Language, truth and logic 50-10075

This essay contains a "detailed and critical examination of A. J. Ayer's Language, Truth and Logic, [Book Review Digest 1937] which has had a profound effect on the mind of the present generation. C. E. M. Joad examines its principles, its presuppositions, and its consequences and indicates some of its errors." (Publisher's note)

Reviewed by H. W. Steiger

Christian Science Monitor p6 D 16 '50 850w

Reviewed by R. F. Rattray

+ Hibbert J 49:90 O '50 1100w

"Dr. Joad takes no account of more recent developments in linguistic and empirical philosophy. . . He says he disregards these developments because no definitive statement of them has yet appeared. This is true; but the result is that his book should not be taken as giving a picture of the contemporary discussion in philosophy. Since, however, there are always people who catch an intellectual fashion after those who are really thinking about it have moved on, there will be readers to whom some of Dr. Joad's critique may be well directed." D. M. E.
Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 14 '50 330w

Reviewed by Marcus Dick
New Statesman & Nation 40:151 Ag 5 '50 1150w

"No one can deny the brilliance and acuteness of Dr. Joad's writing, and this is undoubtedly one of the best, if it is not one of the most convincing, of his many books." C. E. Vulliamy
+ — Spec 184:62 Jl 14 '50 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p553 S 1 '50 2450w

JOCZ, JAKOB. The Jewish people and Jesus Christ; a study in the relationship between the Jewish people and Jesus Christ. 446p $4.50 Macmillan

232 Jesus Christ. Jews—Religion [50-98]

"Dr. Jocz brings up to date the centuries-long discussion of why Christianity, being essentially a Jewish movement, should have detached itself so completely from its original source and assumed so un-Jewish a character; and what it was that really separated the Jews from Jesus and led to their complete estrangement. . . A large part of Dr. Jocz's book is taken up by his study of the Hebrew-Christian movement—i.e., the acceptance and practice by Jews of Christianity while yet remaining in all essentials loyal, recognizable and recognized members of the Jewish community." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Bibliography.

"This is certainly one of the best and most thorough books on the subject ever written. Both Christians and Jews will learn much from it without offense." W. F. Stinespring
+ Christian Century 67:922 Ag 2 '50 1050w

"This book, which is fully documented throughout, has a bibliography of twelve pages in which no book in English or German even remotely bearing on the author's theme seems to be omitted. Dr Jocz displays a sound and deep knowledge of both Christianity and Judaism from the inside, but he frankly supports the Christian point of view." A. H. Birch
+ Hibbert J 48:206 Ja '50 1200w

"This lucid and serenely written book [is] a welcome contrast to much other literature covering the same field." P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p12 Jl 9 '50 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p45 Ja 20 '50 650w

JOHANNSEN, ALBERT. House of Beadle and Adams, and its dime and nickel novels; the story of a vanished literature; with a foreword by John T. McIntyre. 2v 476;443p il $20 Univ. of Okla. press

655.4 Beadle and company, New York, publisher. Dime novels 50-8158

The house of Beadle and Adams, publishers of dime and nickel novels, was a New York city printing firm, whose first big success was Malaeska; the Indian Wife of the White Hunter, published in 1860. Volume I of this reference book contains a detailed history of the firm; and lists of Beadle books, including song books, handbooks, and periodicals. Volume II contains autobiographical sketches of all Beadle authors who could be identified. The appendix lists the principal publications in order of appearance; lists pseudonyms of Beadle authors; and discusses values of dime novels today. Bibliography Indexes.

"One of the most elaborate and unbelievably complicated bibliografical and biografical studies ever accomplished. . . It all adds up to a valuable contribution to Americana and a magnificent publishing achievement. . . It is to be hoped that this book will not be regarded primarily as a collector's tool. It holds endless hours of delight for all who love the American past. And tho it cost $20, it is still one of the cheapest books of the year for what you get." Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 4 '50 750w

"This great work does not seem to be a justifiable expenditure for all collections, but it is certainly needed in any large reference collection of Americana and in any college or university which attempts to teach the history of American thought and literature. We also wish that the very sensible section in the Appendix, 'Condition and Values,' might be made required reading for librarians, library school students, and antiquarian dealers for its fair statement on evaluating books, applicable not only to the dime novel." Donald Wasson
Library J 75:1184 Jl '50 1000w

Reviewed by Stewart Holbrook
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 My 28 '50 2250w

"No book for the ordinary reader, this is described as a volume by a collector for other collectors in the form which would have been most useful to him when he began his own collections. It is, none the less, a superb piece of Americana. No man with graying hair can arise from a reading of it without a feeling of warming melancholy for his lost youth, and the simple, artless America that he knew." D. L. Cohn
+ N Y Times p1 My 28 '50 1450w

"Mr. Johannsen is a professor of petrology, and dime novels are merely his hobby, but he has studied them with a thoroughness that might be impressive if it did not seem completely pointless. There might be something valuable to write about them if one analyzed and criticized their contents. Mr. Johannsen says he has no space for this. His work opens dreary vistas—for the age that will follow ours—of bibliographies of detective stories and of the thrillers and comics that small boys new read instead of 'Deadwood Dick.'" Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 26:63 Ag 5 '50 300w

"Professor Johannsen has accomplished a Herculean task, and done it superlatively well. . . To say that he is accurate is an understatement. Probably never before has a bibliography of this magnitude been compiled with such care. It is difficult to praise too highly his industry, his scholarship, and still better, his complete readability." David Magee
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Je 11 '50 1400w

"At times Mr. Johannsen is completely stumped, and manfully admits it, but oftener he comes through gloriously with the only life histories of his people that have ever seen print. . . Mr. Johannsen, too, gives splendid value. His thousand pages—and remember those double columns—contains about everything that the social historian, the literary student, the librarian, the collector, the anthropologist, the bibliographer, the nostalgic and the ordinary curious reader could ask for, and all of it is easy to find. The University of Oklahoma Press's admirable investiture reflects the spirit of the text delightfully and effectively. Excellent teamwork has gone into the compiling and fashioning of these two volumes." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat of Lit 33:9 Je 10 '50 1200w

"Johannsen, who has spent 20 years digging into this field, admits there still are some matters about which he cannot speak 'definitely.' But there is a load of information here, including lists of the novels and synopses, generous and exciting samples of writing, the names of authors, pseudonyms, and so on." W. G. Rogers
+ Springf'd Republican p5C My 28 '50 650w

Time 56:82 Jl 10 '50 700w

JOHANNSEN, ALBERT—Continued

"A glorious book. . . In theory Mr. Johannsen's 17 years of research might have been devoted with equally happy results to a more ponderously worthy cause. But in fact it is difficult to think of an almost entirely unexplored area in publishing history which has so deservedly attracted such an admirably enthusiastic, pertinacious and businesslike explorer."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p444 Jl 14 '50 650w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:395 S '50 280w

Reviewed by J. F. Dobie
Yale R n s 40:182 autumn '50 360w

JOHNSEN, JULIA EMILY, comp. British socialism today. (Reference shelf) 287p $1.75 Wilson, H.W.

342.42 Socialism in Great Britain. Great Britain—Politics and government 50-8989

"A compilation of speeches and articles giving background material and pro and con arguments on British socialism, the welfare state, nationalization, and the currency problem. Speeches by Harold J. Laski and Winston Churchill and articles by Barbara Ward and Norman Thomas are included. It contains a discussion of the issues in the last election." (Current Hist) Bibliography.

Booklist 47:41 S 15 '50

Current Hist 19:231 O '50 50w

JOHNSON, CLAUDIUS OSBORNE. State and local government. 289p $2.50 Crowell

353.9 State governments. Municipal government 50-5851

"An adaptation of state and local materials from the author's Government in the United States [Book Review Digest 1934, 1937], with substantial additions of text and charts and with an appendix containing the Model State Constitution." (Am Pol Sci R) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:506 Je '50 30w

School & Society 71:95 F 11 '50 30w

Social Studies 41:378 D '50 140w

JOHNSON, DAVID GALE. Trade and agriculture; a study of inconsistent policies. 198p $2.50 Wiley

338.14 Agricultural administration—U.S. U.S.—Commercial policy 50-8723

"A study of the conflicting policies of our trade and agricultural programs. Dr. Johnson shows that since 1934 we have been developing a foreign-trade program based on the merits of lifting restrictions and barriers to international trade. At the same time we have been supporting an agricultural program which requires restrictions on trade for the protection of the American farmer. He examines the various inconsistencies in the two programs and demonstrates what features we must abandon if we wish to continue our leadership in world affairs on the basis of private enterprise and freedom for the individual." (Current Hist) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:1045 D '50 30w

Reviewed by W. F. Stolper
Ann Am Acad 272:208 N '50 800w

Current Hist 19:231 O '50 80w

"Although the book deals with basic economic issues, it is written with a minimum of technical language, and can be followed by any series student of public affairs."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:318 S '50 250w

JOHNSON, ENID. Cowgirl Kate; decorations by Frank McCarthy. 182p $2.50 Messner 50-7340

When Kate Reed's father was thrown from his horse and killed, Kate refused to give up the ranch, or go to New York and to college under her stepmother's guardianship. Instead, by joining a rodeo outfit, Kate learned some new facts about life and developed a way to save the ranch. In the process of growing up Kate also learned to appreciate the gentle Easterner who was her stepmother.

"This is an excellent story for the teen-age girl, with a young heroine who leads a colorful and active life and is courageous enough to admit her mistakes." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 9 '50 180w

"Somehow the story limps at both ends, while the main substance is excellent."
+ — Kirkus 18:104 F 15 '50 160w

"Recommended for the young teens." R. M. McEvoy
+ Library J 75:1199 Jl '50 80w

JOHNSON, GERALD WHITE. Incredible tale; the odyssey of the average American in the last half century. 301p $3.50 Harper

973.91 U.S.—History—20th century. U.S.—Foreign relations 50-6416

"This survey of the U.S. scene since 1900 is not conventional history but an examination of the forces and leaders that have had the greatest influence on the status and outlook of the American citizen. In the author's opinion, Wilson, F. D. Roosevelt, Lenin, and Stalin have had the greatest impact; the conclusion on the ordinary citizen is that he is 'still relatively free, still the final authority in public affairs, still better fed, better clothed, and better housed than the common man in any other country." (Booklist) Index.

Reviewed by A. S. Link
Am Hist R 56:215 O '50 170w

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 185:80 Je '50 650w

Booklist 46:253; 272 Ap 15 '50; My 1 '50

+ Bookmark 9:240 Jl '50 30w

Reviewed by J. H. Fichter
Cath World 172:157 N '50 250w

Reviewed by Walter Johnson
Chicago Sun p4 Je 11 '50 400w

Reviewed by A. C. Ames
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 11 '50 400w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
Christian Science Monitor p9 My 27 '50 1050w

"Here is informal history at its best. . . It is Mr. Johnson's skill in putting some order in the confused picture of today that makes his book valuable and refreshing. And if the author is right, the average American has something to live up to." John Cournos
+ Commonweal 53:325 Jl 7 '50 450w

Kirkus 18:118 F 15 '50 170w

"Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:861 My 15 '50 130w

Nation 171:418 N 4 '50 230w

Reviewed by Alan Marshall
New Repub 123:21 S 4 '50 550w

"This is a proud and cheerful book, full of humor, as provocative as a buzz-saw. It quotes Toynbee and Aeschines and Crevecoeur and the Book of Job, but even the footnotes are witty. It is easy to disagree with it. . . But whoever reads it will feel more hopeful about the future, and more truculent towards those who would deny that future." Joseph Barnes
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 My 28 '50 1350w

"Sometimes the author understates the picturesque. . . Nevertheless the book is often wise, witty and pungent." Dixon Wecter
+ — N Y Times p4 My 28 '50 1550w

"Mr. Johnson backs up his contention with evidence drawn from a careful study of the various administrations of the past half-century, and ends with some long-range predictions that, although well hedged, are quite reassuring."
+ New Yorker 26:110 My 27 '50 160w

"All in all, this is a valuable book, partly because it brings into focus a long and difficult period and will help the reader to understand it, and partly because its fresh and always lively approach persuades the reader to think for himself. I know of no two better reasons for reading anything. And if Mr. Johnson opens some eyes to the fact of change, its sources and its inevitability—well, his book will have done what it was written to do." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 Mr 16 '50 900w

"'Incredible Tale' should prove an invaluable text for the generation of Americans now entering their thirties. It is an eloquent and powerful book, wise, often witty, but above all a work of penetrating insight. No higher praise could be given it than to say that it explains us to ourselves. And this it does." Lloyd Morris

+ Sat R of Lit 33:8 Je 3 '50 800w

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 23 '50 270w

Reviewed by George Britt

Survey 86:376 Jl '50 500w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:332 S '50 240w

Wis Lib Bul 46:27 Je '50

JOHNSON, HAROLD EARLE. Symphony hall, Boston; with a list of works performed by the Boston symphony orchestra; comp. by the staff of Symphony hall. 431p il $6 Little

785.06 Boston. Symphony hall 50-9646

A history of the fifty years of Symphony Hall, Boston. Appendices list: Works performed, 1881-1949; Conductors and guest conductors; Soloists with the orchestra; Symphony orchestras visiting Symphony Hall, 1900-1949; Selective list of concert artists appearing in Symphony Hall. No index.

Booklist 47:72 O 15 '50

"It is a most intimate and revealing biography that Mr. Johnson, a professor of music at Clark University, has given us. Yet more important even than the numberless anecdotes brimful with nostalgia is the beautifully handled procession of musical high lights and 'low lights' which have shone and flickered in that remarkable building, season after season, since the year 1900. With what admirable consistency the author remains 'objective'; as a true historian he almost invariably allows the praising or the damning to come from the pens of the critics of the day, or through the reaction of the audience." K. G. Roy

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 S 25 '50 800w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller

Library J 75:2015 N 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by Cecil Smith

New Repub 123:21 D 18 '50 30w

Reviewed by H. D. Aiken

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 D 3 '50 950w

"This is a book that will have special appeal to Bostonians and to people like Mr. Johnson who are 'Bostonians by conviction.' For the reader with no particular passion for Boston there is too much material in it that seems strictly for the record." Howard Taubman

+ — N Y Times p31 O 22 '50 400w

"This is an unsatisfactory book in many ways. Most bothersome is the lack of an index—shocking in a book of second-hand reminiscences including many hundreds of names. The loose, frequently obscure, often irrelevant Johnsonian prose makes matters harder. Particularly exasperating is Mr. Johnson's coy assumption that the scantest allusion to a Bostonian name will sufficiently identify it for all Christendom." Moses Smith

— Sat R of Lit 33:28 S 30 '50 500w

"Of especial value are the last 100 pages of the book which are devoted to a complete list of works performed by the Boston Symphony from 1881 to 1949 with the dates of their performances, the names of the soloists who have appeared with the orchestra as well as all of the recitalists who have appeared in Symphony Hall." V. P.

+ Springf'd Republican p6D O 8 '50 300w

JOHNSON, M. M. The hedgerows; with an introd. by Walter de la Mare. 71p $1.50 Macmillan

821 [50-27355]

A collection of poems about the sights and sounds of the English countryside, by an English poet.

"Miss Johnson in these vernal vignettes has boiled a thin brew, one part archaic diction to one part forced rhyme. Uneasy Elizabethan competes with the contemporary greeting card, and one wishes that she had just taken her walks and left it at that." Willard Maas

— N Y Times p42 Mr 19 '50 270w

"M. M. Johnson is a poet of considerable charm and grace; these delicate, pastoral lyrics combine accuracy of observation with felicity of phrase. They are not large in scope nor particularly profound except in the sense that 'infinity may be seen in a grain of sand' and that the minute carries implications of the great." S. H. Hay

+ Sat R of Lit 33:43 My 20 '50 330w

"Miss Johnson's talent is modest but most beautifully exercised. . . These carefully-wrought, economical poems have true poetic simplicity, which is an essence, evoking rich associations of thought and feeling although remaining in itself uncomplicated, and which can often be achieved all the better for some subtlety of form. Miss Johnson is at ease in many metres, her rhythms are a part of her observation, and it is at the beat of the verse, the fall of the phrase, as much as at the actual words, that the reader hears with sudden precision the song of a blackbird."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p119 F 24 '50 550w

JOHNSON, MALCOLM MALONE. Crime on the labor front. 243p $3.50 McGraw

331.88 Trade unions—U.S. Crime and criminals 50-10521

In his Preface the author, a Pulitzer prize winning journalist, says: "The information about labor gangsterism in this book is the product of several years of strenuous research in the field. Many of the cases I covered myself as a reporter for The New York Sun. In other instances my information comes from newspaper files, trial records, the District Attorney's office, sworn testimony before Congressional Committees, and Police Department records."

Booklist 47:85; 128 N 1 '50; D 1 '50

Reviewed by W. L. Mezger

Christian Science Monitor p20 D 14 '50 600w

Reviewed by G. G. Higgins

+ Commonweal 53:259 D 15 '50 1500w

"The text is written succinctly and confidently, and reads as thrillingly as a crime story."

+ Kirkus 18:549 S 1 '50 170w

"Conditions are certainly as bad in many places as Malcolm Johnson indicates, and an honest airing of the facts is surely needed; but such a 'headline-catching' (the author's own words) book, we believe, puts ammunition in the hands of the enemies rather than in those of the friends of labor." D. K. Oko

— Library J 75:2006 N 15 '50 210w

"A fascinating, horrifying and solidly documented account of how criminals and racketeers take over entire unions. As Malcolm Johnson points out, the crime and corruption in a few unions will be a great blow to the nation because these few jeopardize the people's confidence despite the fact that the great majority of unions in this country are run intelligently and honestly." E. M. Herrick

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 D 10 '50 900w

"One of the admirable things about this book is the quiet persistence with which the author manages to flog a number of the more egregious labor fakers and racketeers without beating the brains out of the entire labor movement." Gilbert Millstein

+ N Y Times p47 N 26 '50 380w

JOHNSON, MRS MARGARET SWEET. Red Joker; il. by [the author]. 95p $2 Morrow 50-5827

The story of the friendship between an Irish setter, named Joker, and a beautiful racehorse, whose ability to win a race seemed to depend on the presence of the dog. Grades three to six.

Booklist 46:266 Ap 15 '50

"Plausible and exciting."
+ Bookmark 9:162 Ap '50 60w

Kirkus 18:236 Ap 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:633 Ap 15 '50 50w

Reviewed by J. M. Smith
Library J 75:783 My 1 '50 70w

"Margaret S. Johnson never stretches probability in this latest of her many dog and horse stories, so the conclusion is all the more satisfying because the excitement and mishaps are real. Mrs. Johnson's well-observed and beautiful pencil drawings of the setter and horse, plus the large print, make 'Red Joker' irresistible to the novice reader choosing his own book." S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p30 My 7 '50 140w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 My '50

JOHNSON, RAYNOR CAREY. Introduction to molecular spectra. 296p il $7.50 Pitman 535.84 Molecules. Spectrum analysis
50-13805

"Most introductory books on spectroscopy are devoted to the spectra of atoms. By contrast this book is devoted to the spectra of molecules, a considerably more complex subject. It has been written for college graduates who have majored in physics or chemistry and who have also some knowledge of atomic spectroscopy. As might be expected in an introductory work, it is concerned chiefly with the simpler molecules, but the chapter on applications contains brief discussions, together with literature references, on the use of spectroscopy in the identification of complex molecules." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"Most of the author's footnote references refer to literature published before World War II. However, omission of the postwar literature is not a serious fault in an introductory work." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1913 D 15 '49 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:9 Ja '50

JOHNSON, THOMAS HERBERT, ed. In defense of democracy; introd. by Allan V. Heely. 148p $2.75 Putnam
901 Civilization. Twentieth century 49-48975

"Lawrenceville School in New Jersey each year invites leaders in various fields of action and thought to lecture to the students, not merely to talk about their work, but to throw light on the problems and responsibilities youth faces. The fourth volume in this series contains lectures by such outstanding men as John J. McCloy, Cord Meyer, Jr., Norman Cousins, Arthur Sylvester, Eduard C. Lindeman, Charles W. Cold, Detlev W. Bronk, Lewis Perry and Howard Thurman, pastor of San Francisco's Fellowship Church." San Francisco Chronicle

Booklist 46:217 Mr 1 '50

San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ja 8 '50 90w

School & Society 70:383 D 10 '49 40w

Social Studies 41:288 O '50 10w

JOHNSON, WENDELL, ed. Speech problems of children; a guide to care and correction. 265p il $3.75 Grune
618.92 Speech. Children—Language 50-8619

This volume was prepared for the National society for crippled children and adults by the American speech and hearing association. "Leading speech-correction workers and speech pathologists have collaborated in writing this book for the nonspecialist." (School & Society)

"An important book, this is the result of the collaboration of 11 of the nation's outstanding speech correction experts. Its commendable purpose is to help parents and others recognize speech disorders so that they may be handled in a way which will not cripple a child's personality growth."
+ Chicago Sun p5 Jl 4 '50 80w

"Recommended, because public enlightenment and localized, 'untrained' helpers can also do their share toward promoting well-adjusted, successful lives." J. M. Scherr
+ Library J 75:861 My 15 '50 140w

"The American Speech and Hearing Association prepared this excellent work for the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults. Those whose business it is to help children to learn to live useful, happy, well-adjusted lives will find in it a wealth of information presented in practical form." D. J. Mase
+ N Y Times p36 O 22 '50 450w

School & Society 72:64 Jl 22 '50 20w

"The book as a whole represents a very good contribution. It should be of most value to school teachers and others who work with children and wish to acquire enough general knowledge about speech problems to be able to give wise guidance to the child with a speech disorder and helpful advice to his parents." R. M. Clark
+ Survey 86:517 N '50 360w

JOHNSON, WILLIAM HERMAN ECKART. Russia's educational heritage. 351p $5 Rutgers univ. press
370.947 Education—Russia 50-7947

"A study of the major educational policies and programs during the last three centuries of Czarist Russia, discussing the training of teachers and reflecting the broad educational concepts of the era." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"The author, a Columbia university doctor of philosofy, is supervisor of teacher education in Carnegie Institute of Technology. The important scholarly support and advice that he had in gathering material and writing his book, plus his smooth style, especially commend the work." L. T. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 1 '50 90w

School & Society 72:270 O 21 '50 30w

JOHNSTON, GEORGE HENRY. Monsoon. 274p $3 Dodd
50-8786

"Michael Casey, the central figure, is an expatriate British painter, soured by too many years of lonely life in India. When Casey meets Kylie York, an emancipated American careergirl, he perks up. Together, they travel to Benares where Casey finds himself embroiled in murder, kidnapping, and desperate intrigue among Moslems, Hindus, and British. At the bloody climax, when Casey has become a symbol of national resistance, wanted by both British and Hindus, his Indian friends come to the rescue." N Y Times

Booklist 47:39 S 15 '50

"The characters of Casey and Miss York are marvelously well drawn. The British officials who figure in the story seem somewhat stereotyped, but they serve the story's purpose well enough, for they are hardly more than necessary props. One or two of the natives close to Casey are extremely appealing; in fact, it must be said that Mr. Johnston seems to come closer to reality in sketching the natives than with his fellow Anglo-Saxons. But what I am most pleased to recommend in this novel is that, disregarding the great and complex problems of Indian life that enter into it, it is a story to enjoy." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 30 '50 500w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p33 O 8 '50 130w

"Natives, British officialdom, renegade white men, and the flora and fauna of India are jumbled together in impressionistic style. It is a tribute to the author's prowess that the whole composes so well." James Kelly
+ N Y Times p18 Jl 23 '50 230w

"'Monsoon' is an exciting story which could be made into a movie with practically no trouble at all. And, although the author isn't too clear-eyed about his setting, he is sympathetic to the country, and his version is fun too." M. S.
San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 1 '50 220w

"Johnston's preposterous romance is rendered all the more meretricious by his having chosen India for background. . . All right, but why drag in the monsoon and the Indian problem? It could have happened on Third Avenue, N.Y., and would have looked better there."
— Sat R of Lit 33:18 Ag 5 '50 180w

JOHNSTONE, BURTON KENNETH, and JOERN, CHARLES E., eds. Business of home building; a manual for contractors. 289p $4 McGraw

692.4 Building 50-5764

"Twelve authors experienced in building construction contributed chapters on the Business Side of Housing. Topics treated include land development, financing, job organization, cost control, sales and law. The book is intended as a guide to the small builder." (Eng N) Index.

Booklist 46:229 Mr 15 '50

Eng N 144:42 Mr 16 '50 30w

"A useful contribution in a field in which there is a lack of comprehensive material. Would be improved by addition of annotated references for further reading."
+ — Library J 75:564 Ap 1 '50 80w

JOINT COMMITTEE OF THE AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION, NATIONAL COUNCIL OF TEACHERS OF ENGLISH AND NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION. Basic book collection for high schools. 5th ed 195p pa $2.75 A.L.A.

016 School libraries (high school). Bibliography—Best books

"Replaces the 1942 edition [Book Review Digest 1942], and in addition to books lists periodicals and selection aids for audiovisual materials. Gives classification, subject headings, annotations, L.C. card numbers, and indication of availability of Wilson cards." Booklist

Booklist 46:235 Mr 15 '50

"It is inevitable that some books that seem to this reviewer to be invaluable are omitted. But, in general, the selection seems to be a good one. It is heartening to know that all the books have been read or re-read by someone on the committee, and it is nice to see the old favorites survive this test. List is recommended for all high school libraries and all public libraries with teen-age readers." M. D. Read
+ Library J 75:502 Mr 15 '50 200w

"Recommended for Public Libraries as well as high schools."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:30 Ap '50

JONAS, CARL. Snowslide. 307p $3 Little

50-7740

"This story is about a skiing resort in Utah, a snowslide in which a well known movie actress was buried, and the effect this had on the lives of her husband, the hard business woman who owned the resort, a New England author, a newspaper man and the skiing instructors." Library J

Booklist 46:254; 304 Ap 15 '50; Je 1 '50

"'Snowslide' contains two notable characterizations in those of Stackpole and Eleanor Geiger; it contains a great deal of psychiatric flapdoodle that slows the story cruelly; there is unquestioned power in Mr. Jonas' grip on a given set of people. Its chief defect, I think, is that Mr. Jonas should have bothered with these people at all since, like most of the figures in the real life international set, they are so totally unimportant. I couldn't have cared less what happened to any of them." V. P. Hass
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Je 11 '50 420w

Christian Science Monitor p6 Je 3 '50 240w

"A certain superficial worldliness to all this, and some subsurface speculation, this is for popular tastes but lacks narrative drive."
Kirkus 18:146 Mr 1 '50 190w

"There is suspense here and interesting characterization, but in the main it is the author's ability to probe into the minds of the people concerned that makes this novel exceptional. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 75:775 My 1 '50 80w

"I suspect that readers of serious novels want to know the characters as real people first and symbols after that, if at all. Mr. Jonas has failed to deliver convincingly real people. Even Stackpole, his fictitious novelist, lacks ordinary verisimilitude." Richard Match
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 My 14 '50 600w

Reviewed by Sugden Tilley
N Y Times p21 My 14 '50 100w

New Yorker 26:118 My 20 '50 120w

"On the purely narrative level the lack of real depth in no way lessens the entertainment value of the work. There is suspense, stimulation of a sort, and an atmosphere of worldliness that makes for an enjoyable evening's reading. But don't expect another 'Magic Mountain.'" P. A. Sides
+ — San Franciso Chronicle p18 My 24 '50 800w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman
— Sat R of Lit 33:36 Jl 1 '50 230w

Springf'd Republican p6D Jl 16 '50 170w

JONES, ALLAN GWYNNE-. See Gwynne-Jones, A.

JONES, CHARLES REED. Facsimile. 422p il $6 Rinehart

621.3842 Radio facsimile 49-50185

"The transmission of photographs and printed material over wire and by radio is already a highly developed technique in commercial circles. Prophecies are being made that it will soon invade the home and make it possible for householders to receive newspapers by radio. This book is an unexpectedly comprehensive assembly of information on the present state of facsimile transmission. Theory is covered briefly, but most of the space is given to descriptions of apparatus and its use." (Library J) Glossary. Index.

Booklist 46:184 F 1 '50

"The book is of interest chiefly to men who use or maintain facsimile equipment, but it has a certain amount of interest for all persons who are interested in electronic developments." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1913 D 15 '49 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:8 Ja '50

"This fairly inclusive book on facsimile is welcome. . . Although technical terms are used freely and numerous wiring diagrams are included among the illustrations, the discussion can be understood by anyone who has a smattering of knowledge of the terminology of electronics."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:124 Mr '50 150w

JONES, CHARLES WILLIAMS, ed. Medieval literature in translation. 1004p maps $6 Longmans

808.8 Literature, Medieval 50-5084

"Over a thousand pages beginning with the Apocryphal New Testament and coming down to the fifteenth century play 'The Worthy

JONES, C. W.—Continued
Master Pierre Patelin.' . . The many notable translators include Cardinal Newman, J. A. Symonds, Kuno Meyer, Robin Flower, Lord Tennyson, C. K. Scott Moncrieff, Helen Waddell, Thomas Carlyle, Sir Walter Scott, Andrew Lang, Matthew Arnold, Dante Gabriel Rossetti, Henry W. Longfellow, A. C. Swinburne, Richard Crashaw." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Bibliography. Index.

"The trouble with every anthology is that any connoisseur in the same field would omit some pieces for others more to his own taste. But on the whole, no fair critic can deny that Professor Jones presents a well balanced and representative selection. . . Strangely enough the fairy tale poetry of Chrétien de Troyes, the author of the most graceful romantic epics, is missing. . . The value of the prose translations of the Chanson de Roland and the Nibelungenlied may be doubted. . . Such easy fault-finding could be continued. But as no better anthology exists, such criticisms would be pointless, unless they were to serve as suggestions for a second edition of this most valuable book." Max Fischer
+ — Commonweal 52:54 Ap 21 '50 420w

"I see no slightest reason why any serious lover of literature, of any kind or age, could not read or encourage others to read a volume which offers abundant selections, with some entire masterpieces, from the varied writings of a whole continent during more than a thousand years."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 F 12 '50 260w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 33:26 Mr 4 '50 120w

"This handy anthology of a thousand pages is probably intended for college classes but that is no reason why it should not delight and instruct the general (non-matriculated) reader. . . Mr. Jones has chosen the best available translations and provides neat introductions. Subsidiary material, including maps and bibliographies, add to the usefulness of the volume."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:37 Ap 29 '50 170w

JONES, DAVID CARADOG. Social surveys. 232p $2; text ed $1.60 Longmans
309.142 Social surveys 49-48272

The aim of this book is to "trace the growth of the application of scientific method in social surveying." It is in fact a "summary of the London Survey by Booth, the York Survey by Rowntree, and the New London, the Second York, and the Mersey Side surveys." (Ann Am Acad) Bibliography. Index.

"Social Surveys is interesting to read, and it gives a connected story of the development of social survey methods. In this country our community surveys deal as much with agencies giving services as with the problems to be solved. However, the book will be quite useful in courses on research methods, where the student is expected to know history as well as current methods." R. C. White
+ Am Soc R 15:692 O '50 700w

"One is inclined to feel that the author had at first prepared a large volume, or perhaps two volumes dealing with a comparison of community surveys, and a study of techniques and methods, but that publication difficulties made it expedient to reduce it to one small volume. As a result, the volume is not so logically developed as would have been the case if it had been twice its size. . . Social Surveys has been written in a simple, easily readable manner, which should cause little difficulty for persons who have not previously studied the subject. Its purpose seems to be to create an interest in the field. There is no question that the volume will meet this need and it thus becomes a real contribution to the subject. It is apparently written for a limited British clientele, but one wonders whether that limited reading public would not have been served better if some of the excellent examples from other parts of the world had been mentioned." M. C. Elmer
+ — Ann Am Acad 271:214 S '50 410w

JONES, ELI STANLEY. Way to power and poise. 365p $1.25 Abingdon-Cokesbury
242 Yearbooks (devotional, etc) 49-49012

"A useful little book conveniently arranged so that each page presents one day's reading; the fifty-two weeks provide material for private or group consideration. It can also be used to advantage in a less strict pattern for devotional reading." Churchman

Bookmark 9:79 Ja '50 60w

"The ideas offered are often fresh and provocative, and always directed toward reality in daily living problems. Young and old will find something pertinent to modern behavior. Psychological insight and religious instinct combine to make a sensible handbook." M. L. Eglinton
+ Churchman 164:19 Ap 15 '50 120w
Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '50

JONES, ERNEST. Hamlet and Oedipus. 166p $2.75 Norton
822.33 Shakespeare, William—Hamlet 50-7670

"Ernest Jones' thesis is that Hamlet had repressed incestuous desires which, having originated in childhood, were reactivated by the death of his father. Torn and tortured by the opposing forces of instinct and conscience, Hamlet is transfixed in an insoluble conflict, for 'the thought of incest and parricide combined is too intolerable to be borne.' Furthermore, Claudius incorporates 'the deepest and most buried part of his own personality so that he cannot kill him without killing himself.' Shakespeare, says Mr. Jones, the British psychiatrist and author, failed to solve his Oedipus complex early in life. Because of this, and subsequent events, he responded 'by creating Hamlet, who expressed for him what he could not express himself—his sense of horror and failure.'" N Y Times

"Bold and dissecting as this interpretation of Hamlet may appear to be, it does not remove that strange air of mystery which envelops the most beloved of all dramatic works. For this, as well as for the new light thrown on Hamlet, the reader will be grateful." Fritz Richter
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 13 '50 300w

"I surmise that Shakespearean scholars will have doubts concerning the adequacy of this interpretation of Hamlet." Patrick Mullahy
N Y Times p23 Ag 6 '50 230w

"Despite its involutions, the book sets forward an interpretation worth recording. . . If you can tolerate the bland premise that modern psychiatry snatched Europe out of darkness into an era of radiant vision, you will find Dr. Jones's book a rewarding purchase." John Whale
Spec 183:336 S 9 '49 210w

"Dr. Jones writes succinctly (although his parenthetic exclamation marks must be deprecated) and persuasively. He combines intuition and experience, and his sympathy is matched by humour."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p586 S 9 '49 600w

JONES, G. CURTIS. On being your best. 129p $2 Macmillan
252 Radio sermons 50-5993

A collection of religious talks, delivered over the radio by the minister of the Seventh Street Christian church of Richmond, Virginia.

"It is rich in quotations from sources both old and new. It is easy to read. It is hardly probable that the book will make any permanent contribution to religious thought. It would be helpful to those who are interested in popular addresses on religious topics." S. L. Blanton
+ Crozer Q 27:286 Jl '50 70w

"Easy and stimulating reading."
+ Kirkus 18:56 F 1 '50 90w
+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 26 '50 70w

JONES, HENRIETTA. Angelina Amelia, a doll; il. by the author. 89p $1.75 Crowell 50-13237

Angelina Amelia was an early nineteenth century doll. She possessed a rocking chair of her own; a trunkful of dresses; a hatbox; and even real leather shoes. This story of her vicissitudes carries her thru four ownerships, to the little modern girl who loved her most of all.

Booklist 47:81 O 15 '50

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p9 N 13 '50 50w

"For the little girls who have not yet left dolls for the call of the Wild West, this pretty, delicate story of a doll who lived with several generations of girls should be a treat."
+ Kirkus 18:511 S 1 '50 120w

"An appealing story for those little girls who love doll stories. They will enjoy the small quaint format of the book with its red-and-yellow ink drawings." N. L. Rathbun
+ Library J 75:1672 O 1 '50 80w

"A freshly written, unpretentious little tale of a doll's life through several generations in the same house." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 17 '50 200w

Reviewed by S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p36 S 10 '50 180w

"Angelina's story has great charm, and its outward appearance fits it perfectly. It would be hard to find a more satisfying Christmas present for little girls who like dolls."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:45 N 11 '50 120w
Wis Lib Bul 46:23 N '50

JONES, HOWARD MUMFORD, ed. Primer of intellectual freedom. 191p $2.75 Harvard univ. press

323.443 Liberty of speech 49-11931

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Am Pol Sci R 44:514 Je '50 20w

Reviewed by H. M. Kallen
Ann Am Acad 269:153 My '50 170w
Booklist 46:311 Je 15 '50

"A book of this sort has value in so far as it contains valuable material made more accessible and better known by the book's existence than it would otherwise be. By this test, this book is truly valuable." A. C. Ames
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 12 '50 350w

"Under the skillful editing of Dr. Jones, 15 documents are here assembled which expound and defend the principles of free thought, free speech and a free press. . . The editor of the volume takes hold of the question of academic and intellectual freedom by the hot end. That is to say, he begins with four 1949 cases. . . Thence he proceeds chronologically backward to an article by H. S. Commager, a series of dissenting opinions by Oliver Wendell Holmes, and so on back to John Morley, John Stuart Mill, Jefferson, Milton's Areopagitica and Francis Bacon. The liberal position on current aspects of the issue is thus undergirded by the long tradition of advocacy for intellectual freedom." W. E. G.
Christian Century 67:273 Mr 1 '50 500w
Current Hist 18:99 F '50 40w
Foreign Affairs 28:679 Jl '50 30w

"This anthology is organized to suggest a look backward along the stepping stones that have brought us to where we are today; the selections serve that purpose admirably. The most recent statement is from President Killian; the series goes back to Francis Bacon. It is in the selections that Professor Jones has shown his editorial usefulness. The introduction is good but brief; the notes on each author are guideposts. The important point made by the book is the evidence of the strength and continuity of our tradition of freedom." Lyman Bryson
+ Pol Sci Q 65:291 Je '50 750w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 71:184 Mr 25 '50 500w

JONES, MARSHALL ELMER ST EDWARD. Basic sociological principles; a textbook for the first course in sociology. 524p $4 Ginn

301 Sociology

"This volume is not intended to be a comprehensive 'system of sociology' or a final delineation of the field of sociology. . . It is intended primarily to be a teaching device, an instrument which will assist the teacher of beginning sociology classes in his task of introducing college students to sociology. In order to function as such an instrument, this book has been kept relatively simple and has been organized about a logical series of ideas, and developed in a systematic way. The book is intended both for those students who wish a foundation of elementary sociology as the basis for further concentration in the field and also for those students who will meet with sociology only in a general-education program." (Pref) The author is Associate professor of sociology at the University of Wyoming. Bibliographies. Index.

"Professor Marshall E. Jones's Basic Sociological Principles is noteworthy for methodical, lucid exposition of a not-very-abstruse theoretic and conceptual approach to the study of human society. . . I judge that many college instructors will feel that it is just about what Sophomores can handle. On the other hand, some will think that it sets forth a series of explicit generalizations much too dogmatically and categorically; it may seem too much inclined to 'answer all the questions' and leave little for the students to think about. Personally, I like it." F. N. House
+ Am J Soc 55:233 S '49 300w

"In spite of sins of omission and commission, some instructors will find this book to their liking—for its careful execution, its readability, its simplicity, its adaptability. They may regret the paucity of readings, citations, and the like, but they will be pleased with wisely-used schematic diagrams and the superb publishing job." C. H. Page
+ — Am Soc R 15:152 F '50 220w

"The over-all reaction of the reviewer to this volume is that it succeeds admirably in the main objective of getting across to the beginning student the essentials of sociological study. The author's style is especially to be commended, and the emphasis on 'principles' does serve, in the reviewer's opinion, to bring unity and integration to the material. . . The reviewer has, however, some reservations concerning the book." F. R. Allen
+ — Social Forces 28:448 My '50 550w
Social Studies 41:144 Mr '50 40w

JONES, MARY ALICE. His name was Jesus; il. by Rafaello Busoni. 208p $2.50 Rand McNally

232.9 Jesus Christ—Juvenile literature 50-10331

A retelling for grades four to eight of the story of Jesus. It begins with Jesus' visit to the Temple in Jerusalem, and ends after the crucifixion and the resurrection with His charge to Peter "Feed my sheep."

Booklist 47:103 N 1 '50

"Amid the shelves of books about Jesus for boys and girls, this 208 page addition has a freshness, a dramatic directness, and a real-lifeness that are certain to insure its popularity." F. D. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 N 12 '50 190w

"Feel out your customer or reader on this one before recommending; this treatment of the life of Christ will inspire and interest some, while embarrassing and antagonizing others."
Kirkus 18:644 O 15 '50 200w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 24 '50 100w

JONES, TIMOTHY ANGUS. The small hours of the night. 232p $2.75 Houghton 50-8608

A reconstruction of the fable of Tannhäuser in the Venusberg. The story is told by Barnaby,

JONES, T. A.—Continued
a young Englishman, who visits Paris in the year after the second World war. He meets a princess and her set of people intent on pursuing fun and glamour. For several months he plays with them, then finds a job and settles down to work.

"The reader wishes that Mr. Jones, who has obvious gifts at telling a story and sensing the sudden phrase that reveals, had been able to bring a new insight into this old material. But one can at least say that the book is amusing." Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Jl 16 '50 410w

"Mr. Jones writes only out of disillusion, though he is far too well-bred to be bitter. He never manages to re-create the glamour which, he assures us is exuded by his Balkan princess and her corrupt entourage. The understatement is so complete that the emotions attendant on such an experience are stifled, and all that emerges is the meticulous record of a dull round of mild debauchery which, as presented in the novel, could not possibly preoccupy so sensitive and intelligent a person as the hero for half an evening, let alone several hectic weeks." Ernest Jones
Nation 171:133 Ag 5 '50 280w

"By the end of the book, the dim, dummy 'I,' whom we met at the beginning has not for a moment existed, let alone lived. . . Mr. Jones has filled in an elaborate social background rather more convincingly. 'The Ritz Hotel in Paris': his first five words set the stage for a fancy band of Balkan royalties, millionaires even in exile, and their hangers-on. . . Mr. Jones throughout refers to these characters as 'they,' but nothing marks them out from any other party in the Ritz bar." John Richardson
— + New Statesman & Nation 39:226 F 25 '50 330w

" 'The Small Hours of the Night' is fluently, gracefully written, with a mastery of moods and rhythms that far outruns the significant content. It is a romantic young man's novel, 1950 version. And in its total effect vis-à-vis the real world, resembles nothing so much as a lovely ballet painstakingly photographed in color through lucent water." F. H. Bullock
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Jl 16 '50 500w

"There are some witty lines and lots of clean fun. Ideal for anyone's hammock in the weeks ahead, the novel might be subtitled 'the intoxications of fatigue as experienced in the Paris Ritz.' " Evelyn Eaton
N Y Times p18 Jl 16 '50 160w

"Mr. Jones' writing is as diffident and honest as his hero, and just about as tame."
New Yorker 26:74 Jl 8 '50 130w

"This is a curious tale, part fable certainly, part fantasy without doubt, part philosophical in a young way, part fairly good sense too. Its merit, aside from its quality as light entertainment, lies in the author's capacity to evoke the atmosphere he sets out to evoke. . . Young Mr. Jones has shown here that he can write." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 29 '50 750w

"It is only fair to say that Mr. Jones shows promise as a writer, especially in dialogue, and that if he can find a subject he may yet give us a good novel." R. E. Roberts
Sat R of Lit 33:13 Ag 19 '50 300w

"Young (26) Author Timothy Angus Jones is the son of Sir Roderick Jones, onetime chairman of Reuters news agency. His tightly written novel is smooth and credible. But his mother, Enid (National Velvet) Bagnold, could teach him a thing or two about storytelling."
Time 56:81 Jl 10 '50 230w

"In spite of his frequent discourses upon life and love, the author is not yet mature enough to make his book read like more than a record of experience noted down day by day: names, places, people who do not fully come to life. The effect is rather that of having inadvertently opened the diary of a stranger. Perhaps the cultivation of an objective attitude, more in keeping with the rapid-dialogue method which he has adopted as his stylistic vehicle, would have helped Mr. Jones to fulfil the promise of his opening pages: a promise which may yet be fulfilled with his next novel, the faults of the present work notwithstanding."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p101 F 17 '50 370w

JORDAN, ELIJAH. Good life. 453p $5 Univ. of Chicago press
170 Ethics 49-11893

A treatise on ethics in which the author "succeeds in giving a thoroughgoing analysis of moral action from three points of view: the metaphysical, the categories of the facts of action; the psychological, the components of the moral person; and the social, the organization of 'objectification' of the virtues." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

"Undoubtedly this is one of the most solid studies in ethical theory to come from an American philosopher in many years. Mr. Jordan's work is an unusual achievement in technical brilliance, speculative range and systematic coherence. . . Unfortunately for the somewhat mythical average reader, this book is not easy to understand, because it is written in exact and therefore exacting terms. But for those who do make its acquaintance, the book will bristle with metaphysical suggestiveness and abound in ethical wisdom." Roger Hazelton
+ — Christian Century 67:145 F 1 '50 750w

"A good life must ultimately feel good, and not merely be proved to be good. As an antidote to 'emotive' theories of morals Jordan's defense of a rational, objective order is more than welcome. But to be faced with two extreme types of ethics, though it may give us a balanced diet, still leaves us far from the good life both in theory and in action. Fortunately Professor Jordan's good sense so pervades his work that even those readers who do not hunger and thirst after objectivity will find life better for having read his book." H. W. Schneider
+ — J Philos 47:387 Je 22 '50 2750w

"It is a book to study rather than to read. It will almost certainly have an honorable and enduring place in the ethical theory of this century."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:11 Jl 29 '50 320w

"Masterly treatise on ethics."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:30 Mr '50 220w

JORDAN, MILDRED A. (MRS J. LEE BAUSHER). Miracle in Brittany. 242p $2.75 Knopf 50-12305

In a tiny Breton village where the old gods were still a power to be reckoned with the young priest attempts to lead his flock in the ways of Christianity. A comet almost causes havoc among the peasants; they think it brings calamity. Then the stranger in the village, working out a penance, is able to turn the tide when he wins his own salvation.

Booklist 47:137 D 1 '50

"It is a novel of 'mood' in the French manner, with the choice of the words made in a pattern of music as well as of meaning. It is in the tense of something either past or so far removed from most American readers' ken that it seems of the long ago. There will be many readers who will consider it pluperfect. To this reader, it is a feat of writing, of sustaining an atmosphere, of building up to a climax which the reader senses from the first page, a technical tour de force." Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 12 '50 650w

Kirkus 18:534 S 1 '50 200w

Reviewed by W. K. Harrison
Library J 75:1902 N 1 '50 90w

" 'Miracle in Brittany' has touches of human understanding and compassion; the trouble is that the picturesque always obscures any picture."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 N 26 '50 300w

Reviewed by Charles Spielberger
N Y Times p37 N 26 '50 300w

"Miss Jordan's soft, respectful prose adds neither depth nor character to her story, or fable."
New Yorker 26:165 N 11 '50 60w

JOSEPH, ALICE, and others. Desert people; a study of the Papago Indians [Roma K. McNickle, editor]. 287p il maps $6 Univ. of Chicago press

970.3 Papago Indians 49-6438

"The Papagos of southern Arizona are among the few Indian tribes in the United States still living on their original lands. This volume, fourth in the government's 'Indian Education Research Project Series,' reports on extended and thorough field study of the Papago Indian—his desert home, his behavior in work and play, his wants and beliefs, his fears and hopes." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"A well written, factual handbook, with some useful new material." R. M. Underhill + Am Anthropol 52:395 Jl '50 300w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook
Current Hist 18:41 Ja '50 30w

JOSEPH, RICHARD. Your trip abroad. 365p $2.95 Doubleday

910.2 Travel. Europe—Description and travel. Latin America—Description and travel 50-7273

This "handbook of pleasure travel" by the travel editor of Esquire, is in two parts. Part I contains general chapters on such subjects as Your money and how to keep it, How and what to pack, What to wear, Tipping, etc. Part II gives information about the individual countries Americans may want to visit, in western Europe, the West Indies, Central and South America, and Hawaii. Bibliographies.

"The author is inclined to write the ruthlessly folksy, tirelessly bouncy brand of prose that has become the professional patois of today's travel dopesters, but otherwise his book shows a pretty civilized point of view. . . Your Trip Abroad is the best of the comprehensive travel books which have been put out to date."
+ Atlantic 185:88 My '50 250w
Bookmark 9:183 My '50 40w
Kirkus 18:223 Ap 1 '50 160w

"It is definitely a useful book, not the kind you would sit down with for an evening's entertainment. Since the book was written after the recent devaluation, the prices given for hotels, restaurants and nightclubs should be accurate." Beach Conger
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 My 28 '50 190w

"This is a valuable book for the first-time traveler simply because Richard Joseph, who has traveled extensively as a private citizen, a soldier and as travel editor of Esquire Magazine, maintains a middle course in his writing. He doesn't, as so many travel writers do, treat the reader as a complete dope because the poor fellow has never been east of Ambrose Lightship. Nor does he get gay and kittenish." P. S. C. Friedlander
+ N Y Times p23 My 14 '50 380w
Sat R of Lit 33:38 Ap 22 '50 260w

JUDSON, CLARA (INGRAM) (MRS J. M. JUDSON). Abraham Lincoln, friend of the people. 206p il $3 Wilcox & Follett

B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham—Juvenile literature 50-10859

A new biography of Abraham Lincoln for grades five to nine. It is illustrated with kodachromes of the Chicago Historical society Lincoln dioramas and with marginal pen drawings.

Booklist 47:141 D 1 '50

"We all know his story, yet how fresh it seems in this excellent retelling for children. So clearly and simply that a child of 10 can understand it." P. G.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 N 12 '50 230w

"A readable and satisfying biography of the great President."
+ Kirkus 18:677 N 15 '50 170w

"The Judson story is written with deep feeling for Lincoln's various home countrysides based on travel in his footsteps over five states. . . It is also based on a thorough job of research in up-to-date Lincoln material." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 26 '50 310w

JUDSON, MARGARET ATWOOD. Crisis of the constitution; an essay in constitutional and political thought in England, 1603-1645. 444p $5 Rutgers univ. press

342.42 Great Britain—Constitutional history 50-5217

A specialized inquiry into the state of English political theory during the years 1603 to 1645, the years from the death of Queen Elizabeth to the advent of Cromwell as Lord Protector. The author is a professor of history at the New Jersey College for women. Annotated bibliography.

"In order as a historian of ideas to deal freshly with this theme Miss Judson has conducted a wide search for expressions of political conviction wherever they could be found—whether practical, theoretical, concrete, rhetorical, spontaneous, casual, or inadvertent. Making full use of the relevant contributions of other scholars, she has herself examined such sources as legal proceedings, sermons, pamphlets, and parliamentary diaries. She wastes no time in disparaging the work of other historians but demonstrates her conclusions with convincing force. She has made hers an indispensable book for students of the great controversy among Englishmen. . . Even among scholars as wise as Miss Judson there will no doubt be some who will take exception to her judgments on some points. But I venture to say they will find that the doubtful speculations, as well as the errors and misprints, are extraordinarily few and insignificant." W. H. Coates
+ Am Hist R 55:887 Jl '50 650w

Reviewed by F. D. Wormuth
Am Pol Sci R 44:802 S '50 390w

"In an essay on Henry Parker published more than a decade ago, Margaret Judson showed that she was finding her way around in the materials of seventeenth-century political thought. This book demonstrates how thoroughly she is at home there. And how satisfying it is, in an age much given to serving up hasty puddings, to come upon an author that has so thoroughly assimilated her materials." Mildred Campbell
+ Ann Am Acad 270:187 Jl '50 360w

"A scholarly and stimulating book which students of constitutional history will be using for a long time to come." Hartley Simpson
+ Pol Sci Q 65:467 S '50 800w
Sat R of Lit 33:50 My 6 '50 330w

JUDY, WILLIAM LEWIS. Don't call a man a dog. 158p il $2.50 Judy pub. co, Judy bldg, 3323 Michigan blvd, Chicago 16

636.7 Dogs Agr49-101

Miscellaneous collection of prose and poetry, information and sentiment concerning dogs. Author is editor of Dog World magazine, founder of National dog week, general chairman of Oldtimers of the kennel world, author of the Dog encyclopedia and several other works on dogs.

Reviewed by Bob Becker
Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 D 4 '49 30w
Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 12 '50 180w

JUSTUS, MAY. Luck for little Lihu; il. by Frederick T. Chapman. 112p $2 Aladdin 50-9647

Little Lihu was the thirteenth member of a Tennessee mountain family. The whole family was superstitious and tried to keep little Lihu out of trouble. Among his adventures were his capture of a bear; buying a mule; and going to school in order to learn to read the copy of Robinson Crusoe presented by his grandfather.

Booklist 47:142 D 1 '50

"A Tennessee Mountain woman herself, May Justus is able to write simply and sincerely this story of Little Lihu."
+ Horn Bk 26:469 N '50 70w

Kirkus 18:513 S 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by E. W. Turpin
Library J 75:1910 N 1 '50 70w

"Once again May Justus has written a simple, flavorsome tale of the mountain people. This one has more substance than a good deal of her recent work. The color of the regional speech is conveyed in words and rhythm, rather than in literal, hard-to-read dialect." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p34 O 29 '50 180w

K

KAGEN, SERGIUS. On studying singing. (Field of music) 119p $2 Rinehart
784.93 Singing and voice culture 50-13940

A non-technical book of advice to students of singing, by a singing teacher and coach. His advice is to develop the ear, the speaking voice, languages, and the appreciation of poetry as preparation for voice study. No index.

Kirkus 18:377 Jl 1 '50 200w

"The book will not make singers, but it will point one way." P. L. Miller
Library J 75:1297 Ag '50 100w

"A book full of courage and acute knowledge. . . Here are none of the pitfalls that earlier authors have fallen into when writing about this most difficult and complicated subject. Mr. Kagen doesn't think it so very complicated; perhaps he even minimizes the hurdles a bit too cavalierly. There are moments in this very excellent little book when it sounds, or reads, too easily—especially for the singer who has already been led astray. For the gifted student, however, I recommend the volume highly." Maggie Teyte
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:28 S 30 '50 650w

KAHN, ALBERT EUGENE. High treason; the plot against the people. 372p $3; pa $1 Lear 351.74 Fascism—U.S. U.S.—Politics and government—20th century 50-8194

"Mr. Kahn's thesis is that a large-scale plot, cooked up by such journalistically familiar villains as industrialists and bankers and aimed at depriving Americans of most, if not all, of their Constitutional rights, has been brewing ever since the close of the First World War, and his book is comprised of every conceivable bit of data that might tend to back his charge. This plot, in the author's opinion, has been conducted almost entirely under the guise of an anti-Communist crusade and has brought about not only the current agitation over civil liberties but widespread violence and discrimination." New Yorker

"It would be blindness not to see in Kahn's distorted painting much that is true and much that holds a warning for Americans who value freedom and social justice. But the social crimes of our era are sufficiently shocking to be judged on their own merits, without the embellishments of exaggeration and the arts of literary shock. . . To win the democratic struggle against the threats to freedom means to reach the hearts and minds of the American people, not to repel them by tiresome repetition of machined phrases." A. H. Uhl
New Repub 123:26 O 9 '50 950w

"Mr. Kahn's material on the hysteria prevalent in this country after both wars is ably presented, if not quite as flabbergastingly novel as he seems to believe. The inclusion, however, in the category of 'conspiracy' of such historical odds and ends as Harding's alleged meetings with Nan Britton and the more recent hoopla over flying saucers detracts considerably from the credibility of the book as a whole."
New Yorker 26:94 Je 24 '50 160w

"Although Mr. Kahn's language is charged with much feeling, and he makes frequent use of propagandist techniques to interpret and emphasize the full import of episodes, the book is an expose and as such is intended to jolt the reader into a realization that when 'agents,' or servants, of the people cease to serve, some changes through democratic process need to be made. And they can be made intelligently only when the unknown facts are in. Mr. Kahn's sources are government documents, diaries, legal transcriptions, and texts ranging the entire spectrum of political positions." C. E. M.
San Francisco Chronicle p11 Jl 9 '50 460w

KALASHNIKOFF, NICHOLAS. Toyon, a dog of the North and his people; il. by Arthur Marokvia. 246p $2.75 Harper
Dogs—Legends and stories 50-9470

Story of a Siberian hunting dog whose service and devotion to his master's family earned him an honored place in their home. By the author of Jumper (Book Review Digest 1944).

Booklist 47:45 S 15 '50

"The wild beauty of the northland, the excitement of the hunt, the warmth and companionship of the family as well as their domestic routine, and above all the quiet wisdom that is such a part of those who live close to nature is all within the story of Toyon." E. Y.
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 N 4 '50 750w

"Healthy, full of fresh air that makes for satisfying, good reading. Especially perfect for the 12 to 14 year old boy."
+ Kirkus 18:365 Jl 1 '50 210w

"A fascinating book, by no means limited to dog lovers. Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:1292 Ag '50 130w

"There is a rare combination of strength and quiet gentleness, and an unforgettable portrait of the man Guran and the brave, almost human dog. The distant Yakuts here become more real to us than many a book has made our own Eskimos. The title sounds like that of another dog story for the young, but this is a deeply felt adult novel. It is heartily recommended for any one over fourteen." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 17 '50 320w

"A book which adults and teen agers might enjoy equally." R. L. Neuberger
+ N Y Times p14 D 17 '50 280w

"Not even the pressure of dozens of books about dogs and horses waiting to be read and evaluated could keep this reviewer from lingering over every incident of this absorbing story. It was told by a native of Northern Siberia to a political exile, who is the author himself. It has the quality of a novel and will be as much appreciated by adults as by the older boys and girls."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:56 N 11 '50 230w

KALLEN, HORACE MEYER. Education of free men. 332p $5 Farrar, Straus
370.1 Education—Philosophy 49-49023

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by J. D. Lewis
Am Pol Sci R 44:1026 D '50 850w

Reviewed by Theodore Brameld
Ann Am Acad 272:274 N '50 360w

Bookmark 9:104 F '50 30w

Reviewed by A. C. Ames
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 5 '50 450w

"Dr. Kallen writes from long academic experience at Princeton, Harvard, Wisconsin and Ohio State. . . The Education of Free Men is not an easy book to read. It is, however, a book one dare not neglect. If the reader comes with seeking mind in the area of American education, careful perusal will reward him with new ideas and new light on old ideas—this and a new sense of urgency that the time calls for action." K. I. Brown
+ Christian Century 67:208 F 15 '50 1350w

Reviewed by Roger Shaw
Churchman 164:17 Ap 1 '50 270w

Reviewed by M. H. Thompson
Ethics 60:298 Jl '50 950w

Foreign Affairs 28:679 Jl '50 20w

Kirkus 17:569 O 1 '49 270w

Reviewed by McAlister Coleman
Nation 170:258 Mr 18 '50 1150w

"According to the publishers, Dr. Kallen's volume offers a 'revolutionary analysis of the role of education in a free society,' but revolution is as revolution does. Whatever dynamite there may be in this 'analysis' is present in the form of implications, but these implications were not originally discovered by Dr. Kallen nor are they made explicit in his presentation. His book, despite the admirable tangential observations it makes on the subject, is not what constitutes a genuinely democratic system of education." B. H. Bode
New Repub 122:20 Mr 27 '50 900w

"Kallen has written a challenging book and it is refreshing to read a courageous and explicit statement of a point of view that is often muffled in public print precisely because forces in the community are not always as tolerant of dissent as theoretical formulations of American and educational freedom would lead us to believe. This book may provoke sharp dissent from vested interests of one type or another but it needs special stress that informed readers without ecclesiastical affiliations of the type directly envisaged by Kallen will want a good deal more of reasoned and relevant argument and documentation before they can be lead to accept some of the author's most firmly held convictions." H. D. Gideonse
+ — Pol Sci Q 65:292 Je '50 1200w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 72:279 O 28 '50 450w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:61 Mr '50 250w

KALLEN, HORACE MEYER. Patterns of progress. 87p $1.75 Columbia univ. press 301.1535 Progress 50-5852

"Three lectures in popular style: The will to progress, Cultural lag, Of death and the future. The author defines progress as basically a personal thing, the overcoming and passing of barriers." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:228 Mr 15 '50

Reviewed by Arthur Child
Ethics 61:84 O '50 130w

"Kallen's analysis is written with clarity, beauty and subtle insights. His general attitude is naturalistic, humanistic, melioristic. He maintains in his own way James's emphasis on the supreme value of the individual, Dewey's insistence on the importance of means, and Holmes's stress on the centrality of function in living. The only limitation of this excellent discussion is that the sources of power for a progressive life are not fully exploited. Although after convincingly rejecting any help from supernaturalism and rightly emphasizing the fruitful power of science, Kallen almost completely ignores the help that might be expected to come from a coöperative civilization and from art." Y. H. Krikorian
+ — New Repub 123:23 Ag 21 '50 450w

"Against all failures of nerve and regressions into irrationalisms this little book is a large declaration of faith in modernism, in secularism, in science, and in individualism. It commands attention and it begets respect." T. V. Smith
+ N Y Times p18 F 26 '50 650w

Reviewed by P. R. Levin
Sat R of Lit 33:11 Jl 29 '50 270w

School & Society 72:175 S 9 '50 10w

KALTENBORN, HANS VON. Fifty fabulous years, 1900-1950; a personal review. 312p il $3.50 Putnam
B or 92 Twentieth century 50-10609

Autobiography of one of America's best known broadcasters, which combines his own life story, and a running commentary on American history for a period of fifty years. Index.

Booklist 47:135 D 1 '50

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:2076 D 1 '50 140w

"The first part of the book, in which he reminisces about his younger days, is charming. The second part of the book sounds like a lot of lectures rolled up in a ball. Instead of reminiscing about himself in this second part, he mulls over world history for the last quarter century." Marcus Duffield
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 N 19 '50 1200w

Reviewed by Karl Schriftgiesser
N Y Times p38 N 5 '50 900w

"Altogether, this memoir is, as its author suggests, a mirroring both of its subject and of the troubled times he reported so well, in print and via radio. Many a reader of middle age will feel as he turns the pages of Mr. Kaltenborn's book that he is looking back over the events of his own life—as he is." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 23 '50 800w

KAMAL, AHMAD. One-dog man. 210p $2.50 Random house
Dogs—Legends and stories 50-7055

"Some Penrodish adventures, lively, real boys, a dog named Randolph and puppies figure in this likeable story of a nine-year-old boy and his friends, the twins, Bob and James." Kirkus

Booklist 46:312 Je 15 '50

"Usually it is my wife from whom I must wrest review books in order to make deadlines. This time, however, it was my children, and the way Champ, 13, and Susan, 11, chuckled, hooted and howled over 'One-Dog Man' convinced me that they were putting on an act that no book could be that amusing. For the record: they weren't and it is." V. P. Hass
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 30 '50 410w

"Laughs and chuckles."
+ Kirkus 18:136 Mr 1 '50 100w

"Good reading for adults as well as teenagers even though the principal characters are children and dogs. . . Recommended for all libraries." Clarence Gorchels
+ Library J 75:560 Ap 1 '50 80w

"What it means to be a very normal kind of boy growing up in the America of the Nineteen Twenties is warmly and vividly described in Mr. Kamal's book. The warmest and most vivid part of the growing is Randolph—certainly one of the most appealing dogs in the history of Ohio." M. H. Ley
+ N Y Times p21 My 7 '50 220w

KANE, FRANK. Slay ride. 216p $2.50 Washburn
50-5350

Detective story.

— Kirkus 17:661 D 1 '49 70w

"A routine 'private eye' yarn—adequately plotted, but with neither character nor style to distinguish it."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 F 5 '50 140w

KANE, FRANK—Continued

"Straightforward in its telling and fast in tempo. If it offers no surprises (least of all in its obvious Least Suspected Person solution), its professional competence should provide a lively evening for the more avid fan of sex and sluggings." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p29 Ja 29 '50 170w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 22 '50 70w

KANE, HARNETT THOMAS. Pathway to the stars; a novel based on the life of John McDonogh of New Orleans and Baltimore. 312p $3 Doubleday

McDonogh, John—Fiction 50-10303

A novel based on the life of John McDonogh, who amassed a huge fortune in and around New Orleans, where he arrived from Baltimore in 1800, and in Florida. He never married, altho he is supposed to have had two romances. And when he died he left his enormous Louisiana estate to the schools of his native Baltimore.

Booklist 47:137 D 1 '50

Reviewed by E. F. Murphy

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 19 '50 600w

Mr. Kane has produced a book which is atmost successful when he poses the obstinate, somewhat bumptious American against Creole elegance and exclusiveness." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 N 18 '50 220w

Kirkus 18:567 S 15 '50 300w

"Starting with a subject who gave him considerably less help than Myra Clark Gaines, Mr. Kane has produced a book which is at least as good as 'New Orleans Woman,' and should make his wide audience very happy indeed." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 29 '50 480w

Reviewed by W. B. Hamilton

N Y Times p57 D 3 '50 280w

San Francisco Chronicle p23 D 3 '50 350w

"The novel is constantly interesting, whatever one's opinion of its hero. It is a fabulous success story of how a young American more than a century ago took nearly all of the land around a great city and port away from its original owners. And surely Mr. McDonogh's obstinate virtue in the most amorous and glamorous place in America is worthy of the tribute of our wonder." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 O 28 '50 950w

KANE, HENRY. Edge of panic. 215p $2.50 Simon & Schuster 50-7747

Detective story.

Kirkus 18:150 Mr 1 '50 100w

"A neat and tricky little mystery which works itself out in an eminently satisfactory way."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Je 11 '50 180w

"Told with vigorous pace, tight plotting and stern economy." A. B.

+ N Y Times p16 My 28 '50 110w

"This one is written in an annoyingly affected style, but it has definite shock value and an ingenious, if improbable plot."

+ — New Yorker 26:112 My 27 '50 130w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 28 '50 250w

KANE, JOSEPH NATHAN. Famous first facts; a record of first happenings, discoveries and inventions in the United States. rev & enl ed 888p $7 Wilson, H.W.

031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries. Inventions. U.S.—History—Dictionaries 50-5602

"This edition of a reference book containing a wealth of miscellaneous information is revised and expanded, and includes the material in the first edition and in More First Facts. Four indexes: geographical, chronological, day by day, and biographical." (Booklist) For earlier books see Book Review Digest 1933, 1935.

Booklist 46:289 My 15 '50

Bookmark 9:248 Jl '50 20w

"Recommended to all types of libraries." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 75:321 F 15 '50 110w

"An excellent reference tool."

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:23 Je '50

KANTOR, MACKINLAY. Lee and Grant at Appomattox; il. by Donald McKay. (Landmark bk) 175p $1.50 Random house 50-10561

The story of Lee's surrender to Grant at Appomattox told for young readers.

Booklist 47:142 D 1 '50

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 20w

"Living, dramatic history in a modern idiom."

+ Kirkus 18:422 Ag 1 '50 230w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 12 '50 120w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown

+ N Y Times p6 N 12 '50 40w

KANTOR, MACKINLAY. Signal thirty-two. 370p $3 Random house 50-9555

"Returning to the naturalism of his earlier novels, Kantor gives us an unflinching view of the policeman's job in one of the teeming precincts of New York City. In their police car, Patrolmen Joe Shetland and Dan Mallow patrol their confused world of plush penthouses and squalid tenements, of debonair sophisticates and immigrant Puerto Ricans and Negroes. Their 'front row seat . . . at the greatest show on earth . . . the strange and terrible and wonderful things that happen to human beings' is shared by the reader." Library J

Booklist 47:3; 40 S 1 '50; S 15 '50

Reviewed by Mary Sandrock

— Cath World 172:154 N '50 220w

"Hardly comparable with 'Long Remember' in the greatness of the latter book's achievement as a war classic, 'Signal Thirty-two' is nonetheless a deeply penetrating portrayal of life in the more restricted field in which it is fashioned. And it is an addition of distinction to the growing list of titles which are solidifying MacKinlay Kantor's position as one of the foremost fiction writers of the day." Henry Cavendish

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 O 1 '50 600w

Kirkus 18:367 Jl 1 '50 180w

"While it may offend some, and fascinate others, the novel conveys an impact of realism which cannot be ignored." A. J. Gaines

Library J 75:1292 Ag '50 110w

"As long as Joe and Dan and Blondie were engaged in the story's police work, I followed their doings with interest and belief. If the philosophizing of Joe and Dan seem a bit too subtle for cops, every once in a while we must remember that our Police Department contains a great many college graduates and war veterans with splendid records. . . However, as an old police buff, I couldn't help wincing at those passages where Mr. Kantor's style, from time to time, becomes scarcely distinguishable from the late Elinor Glynn's." Joel Sayre

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R O 29 '50 900w

"The story holds us from beginning to end." Gwendolyn Brooks

N Y Times p28 S 17 '50 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 15 '50 320w

"As a long-standing admirer of Mackinlay Kantor I'm sorry to say that in my opinion 'Signal Thirty-Two' is in the not-so-good category." W. R. Burnett
Sat R of Lit 33:52 O 7 '50 550w

KAPLAN, HAROLD J. Plenipotentiaries. 242p $3 Harper
50-7371

"A new generation of Americans in Paris is viewed with affection, but some dismay, by an older expatriate in this first novel. . . The book's mingling of narrative, character-study, comment and philosophy is communicated through Phineas Strauss, a literary journalist of pre-war vintage. He functions not only as narrator, but as confidant to the young folks whose goings-on are considered." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

"A rather odd, always amusing and sometimes tragic sojourn into a Bohemian Paris gone rather pastel in 1947."
Kirkus 18:9 Ja 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by David Davidson
New Repub 122:20 Je 12 '50 850w

"It might be suggested that the Americans who figure in the picture are, on the whole, almost too typical: they function perhaps almost too usefully as pegs on which to hook up the author's commentary. He is more concerned with intimating his thoughts and observations on the developing American spirit as displayed abroad, than with story-telling or individual portraiture. A nervous, closely-textured and eloquent style serves him well. He is provocative, dryly humorous and—like his young Americans—even sometimes baffling." Iris Barry
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ap 30 '50 600w

"Readers of H. J. Kaplan's Paris letters in the Partisan Review and of his better known long story, 'The Mohammedans,' will not be surprised that his first novel is a highly accomplished performance. A novel of ideas and implications, 'The Plenipotentiaries' has brilliance, wit and momentum. Sentence by sentence it emerges as a work of conspicuous literary talent and adroit craftsmanship." A. S. Morris
+ N Y Times p4 Ap 30 '50 700w

"In this witty, if discouraging, guidebook to the Paris frequented by present-day American intellectuals, Mr. Kaplan indicates that the city offers just as much intrigue and high-flown conversation as it did in the nineteen-twenties but possesses a lot less verve than it evidently had then. . . Mr. Kaplan's book implies that if there is a new Lost Generation, it is smaller but considerably more lost than the previous one."
New Yorker 26:105 Ap 29 '50 140w

"An amusing and witty book." Harrison Smith
+ Sat R of Lit 33:15 Je 10 '50 800w

KAPP, KARL WILHELM. Social costs of private enterprise. 287p $4.50 Harvard univ. press
338.016 Competition. Social conditions. Economics 50-7657

"An analysis of the direct and indirect losses suffered by third persons or the general public as a result of private economic activities, arguing for a fundamental revision of economic theory and public policy." (Publishers' Weekly) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:805 S '50 60w

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ag 6 '50 120w

Current Hist 19:107 Ag '50 30w

"Stimulating, controversial work recommended for educated reader." H. H. Bernt
+ Library J 75:693 Ap 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by David Fellman
New Repub 123:18 O 2 '50 1150w

"An important and provocative book."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:31 Je 24 '50 320w

School & Society 71:287 My 6 '50 30w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:319 S '50 200w

Reviewed by J. M. Clark
Yale R n s 40:173 autumn '50 500w

KAPPEL, PHILIP. Louisiana gallery; the river country and New Orleans [with a foreword by John P. Marquand]. 144p il $6 Putnam
767.2 Louisiana—Views. New Orleans—Views 50-6588

Collection of 73 etchings of scenes of Louisiana, with brief descriptive text for each one.

"Many of the landmarks and all of the charm are there, yes; but Mr. Kappel has pictured not only the delicate iron tracery of New Orleans' balconies, the imposing romantic plantation mansions, the lush, mysterious vegetation of the swamps, but also the humbler aspects: the junk dealer, lanky cattle grazing on the levees, a lumber mill, a cane-field 'thirst wagon,' ship-yards, a barber shop, a Canal Street theater marquee, Negro hovels, a street-repair crew, a ferry landing. . . The tone is informal, lightened with easy humor. Yet one gathers much specific information that corrects and enlarges one's mental picture of Louisiana." David Burnham
+ Commonweal 52:202 Je 2 '50 600w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 75:1186 Jl '50 60w

"Very distinguished [etchings]. Mr. Kappel, whose work has been widely and favorably known for a number of years, is always particularly interested in maritime subjects, and he has had a field day among the Louisiana swamps and bayous." E. H. Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 9 '50 170w

Reviewed by Hubert Creekmore
N Y Times p12 Ap 30 '50 100w

KARLGREN, BERNHARD. The Chinese language; an essay on its nature and history. 122p $3.50 Ronald 495.1 Chinese language 49-11524

"This is neither a manual for learning Chinese nor a history of the Chinese language; it portrays the more important features of this widespread and multifaceted Oriental tongue and explains the developmental processes that have made spoken Chinese what it is today." School & Society

"Since the reconstruction of Chinese pronunciations, roughly termed archaic or ancient, is of fundamental importance to an understanding of the development of the language, the modern student of Sinology is indebted to Professor Karlgren for his publications in this field. Though his reconstruction of archaic Chinese is based on the text of the Shih ching Odes of ca. 1000-700 B.C., and that of ancient Chinese on the Tsi yun Dictionary of 601 A.D., his achievement is not limited to any mere deciphering of these documents. Professor Karlgren's search for materials has taken him into remote linguistic by-paths which he describes in an intimate and fascinating manner in the present volume. . . In works of such general excellence it is perhaps ungenerous to call attention to minor errors. Yet one may hope that in succeeding editions [certain] incorrect exemplifications may be changed so as to remove what a Chinese would describe as 'blemishes in jade.'" S. H. Chen
+ — Pacific Affairs 23:97 Mr '50 1000w

"Chinese scholars will find much of interest in Dr. Karlgren's findings." E. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p30 N 20 '49 160w

School & Society 70:272 O 22 '49 40w

KARRER, PAUL. Organic chemistry; 4th English ed. rev. & enl. from the eleventh German edition by H. V. Simon and N. G. Bisset. 1000p $8.50 Elsevier
547 Chemistry, Organic

"The whole field of organic chemistry is covered, but there is considerable emphasis

KARRER, PAUL—Continued
on substances of importance in biochemistry and medicine. The book's exceptional inclusiveness and its abundance of structural diagrams make it very useful for reference. Substantial changes and additions have been made in this edition." (N Y Tech Bks) For second English edition see Book Review Digest 1947.

"Maintains the high standards set by its predecessors. . . The treatment of structures of naturally occurring compounds is especially valuable. There is too much material for the first year's organic course, but by proper selection and omissions, it furnishes a sound and comprehensive survey. The book is good for graduate students or research chemists who need a more complete treatment than is available in the small classroom texts." R. L. Shriner
+ Chem & Eng N 28:2203 Je 26 '50 200w

"Results of the latest investigations have been included throughout. . . The volume remains a manageable size while doing a comprehensive job of covering the field."
Chem Eng 57:294 Je '50 200w
+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:35 My '50

KARSAVINA, TAMARA (MRS HENRY JAMES BRUCE). Theatre street; reminiscences. new ed rev & enl 301p il $4 Dutton
B or 92 Ballet [49-13322]

"A new edition of an absorbing autobiography, first published in 1931 [Book Review Digest 1931] to which Mme. Karsavina has added some new material on the Russian ballet as well as a final chapter intended to dispel a few of the more horrific myths still lingering about the name of Diaghilev." New Yorker

"For all its importance as history, this excellently written book reads with the charm of a good novel. It is vivid, warm, gracious as the lovely lady who wrote it." Ann Barzel
+ Chicago Sun p7 Mr 12 '50 220w

Reviewed by W. P. Tryon
Christian Science Monitor p12 F 13 '50 500w
New Yorker 25:103 F 18 '50 50w

"A fascinating book, for it tells the story of a dedicated life, and such a tale is almost always fascinating in no matter what field of endeavor the life may have been lived." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 33:55 My 13 '50 330w

"The new chapter on Diaghileff which closes the book seems superfluous, as it adds nothing to the brilliant portrayal she has created of him in the original work. Neither does it add materially to the biographical story of his life, but rather tends to disorganize an otherwise perfect work of art." W. C. Smith
Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 12 '50 270w
Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Mr '50

KASE, TOSHIKAZU. Journey to the Missouri; ed. with a foreword by David Nelson Rowe. 282p $4 Yale univ. press
940.5352 World war, 1939-1945—Japan. Japan—Foreign relations 50-9471

An account of Japanese politics preceding Pearl Harbor, and of the events leading up to the signing of the Japanese surrender. The author is a former diplomat and Japanese government official. Index.

Reviewed by Dale Pontius
Am Pol Sci R 44:1055 D '50 200w
Booklist 47:59 O 1 '50

Reviewed by Kenneth Colegrove
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 10 '50 800w

Reviewed by Takashi Oka
Christian Science Monitor p16 O 26 '50 650w

"It belongs to the category of the volumes which have appeared after every recent war and have exhorted us to remember that not every German, Italian, Spaniard, and so on, was supporting the war steps, and hence, by implication, that the German, Italian, Spanish and other people cannot be held responsible for the aggression. From that point of view, the volume is quite boresome. In fact, the reviewer would like to state that the most valuable part of the publication are the seven pages provided as a 'foreword' by the editor, Professor David Nelson Rowe." J. S. Roucek
— + Commonweal 52:587 S 22 '50 270w
Current Hist 19:289 N '50 50w
Kirkus 18:379 Jl 1 '50 130w

"Coming from an authoritative source, this is an important book whether one agrees with some of its interpretations or not. With the situation now existing in the Far East, the events described, even though they took place in a now defeated nation, are important for us to study." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 75:1400 S 1 '50 100w

"It is an interesting narrative and bears the marks of truth. There may be errors here and there, and some partiality, unconscious rather than deliberate, in the presentation of facts and opinions; but as a piece of history it is of great value. It displays a commendable frankness rather rare in Japanese political chronicles, which in the past have usually carried discretion and reserve to the point of obscurity. Mr. Kase does not shrink from revealing faults and blunders in the conduct of his countrymen, and he is rewarded, for thereby he throws their good qualities into strong relief." George Sansom
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 S 10 '50 1950w

"Here is a book which deserves to be widely read and carefully pondered. There is not a dull page in it and, at least to us who know Japan, the story sweeps along like an exciting novel. . . It is true that Mr. Kase's observations are those of one individual. His views may not commend themselves to or be accepted by all. Nevertheless, the narrative as a whole is an objective presentation by an acknowledged authority, and as a contribution to history in a yet uncovered field his book is of outstanding importance." J. C. Grew
+ N Y Times p3 S 10 '50 1650w

Discussion by Arthur Behrstock and Harold Strauss
N Y Times p14 O 22 '50 340w

"The book is, of course, of considerable interest historically; it is written with profound emotion and reveals a way of thinking that, while in no sense democratic, is presumably representative of the most progressive Japanese liberalism."
New Yorker 26:120 S 9 '50 220w
San Francisco Chronicle p21 N 26 '50 500w

"A fascinating personal narrative." J. B. Cohen
+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 O 21 '50 270w
Time 56:117 S 18 '50 750w

KASIUS, CORA. Nancy Clark, social worker. 246p $2.50 Dodd
49-48772

A career book for older girls. Nancy Clark graduated from college without much idea about what she wanted to do. Finally she decided on social work, and entered a graduate school. The story is of her experiences in the school.

Booklist 46:127 D 1 '49

Reviewed by Mary Strang
Library J 75:330 F 15 '50 80w

"This novel slanted toward the high school and junior college reader, will interest young women in the profession of social work and answer many of their questions on what social workers do and what kind of people they are." Sue Spencer
+ Survey 86:97 F '50 400w

"A good career book, written by an outstanding social worker, with a well rounded perspective of Nancy's fun and romance."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:26 Ja '50

KATZ, ISRAEL. Principles of aircraft propulsion machinery. 477p il $6.50 Pitman

629.13435 Airplane engines 49-50273

"Presented in as nontechnical language as possible for wide appeal. Analytical and descriptive material of practical nature covering mainly piston and jet engines, with one chapter on rocket motors." (Booklist) Chapter references. Index.

Booklist 46:214 Mr 1 '50

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1914 D 15 '49 100w

"An exceptionally well-organized introduction to aircraft engines of all types. It is designed primarily as an introductory text for use in engineering colleges, but it reads so easily that it is suitable for certain groups of readers who are not in college. Theory is stressed, but it is well-leavened with descriptive material."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:2 Ja '50

KAUFMAN, LENARD. Jubel's children. 311p $3 Random house

50-9912

"After the death of his wife, Jubel Watson goes visiting among his children, all of whom are grown up and none of whom are very happy. In every household, his arrival accelerates a crisis, but whether the crisis merely seems a pleasant relief from the dreadful grayness of all the lives in question or whether things are really improved by the old man's visit is a matter each reader must decide for himself." New Yorker

Booklist 47:76 O 15 '50

"An interesting, smoothly written, facile novel, written with a constantly altering perspective, so that the story can be seen at one and the same time thru the eyes of the old man and those of his four children, one after another." August Derleth
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 O 22 '50 400w

"The gentle, unobtrusive and infinite understanding of Jubel, who only wants to know the children who have grown away from him gives this book its special quality, generates a power which is this time independent of the abnormal, the sensational."
+ Kirkus 18:435 Ag 1 '50 240w

"The distinction of this novel is two-fold: the construction is sound—well-knit and compact—and the writing seems effortless. . . A superior novel which, unfortunately, will have limited appeal." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 75:1661 O 1 '50 80w

"Lenard Kaufman is a novelist, not a writer of problem novels. He makes each character a living, breathing and suffering creature, and he makes each solution a matter for cheers and rejoicing." Lorine Pruette
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 5 '50 750w

"There are good things—many of them very good—in this engrossing story of a father and his children. Perhaps best of them all are the sharply drawn pictures of the walls which rise between—and among—two generations. Mr. Kaufman, an alert watcher of the contemporary scene, is expert in indicating some of the meanings behind the rising of these walls." M. H. Ley
+ N Y Times p30 O 29 '50 270w

"Jubel is an admirable old man, and Mr. Kaufman does better by him than by any of his children, who may be taken, one by one, as models of joyless, commonplace humanity, too petty for dignity and too dreary for laughs."
New Yorker 26:131 O 7 '50 200w

"Perhaps this is not quite the novel that 'Tender Mercy' was. But no novelist can be at his topmost every time he writes. And certainly this time Mr. Kaufman has touched shrewdly upon a theme in which almost every grown reader has had, has now, or will probably have, a personal interest. I should guess that 'Jubel's Children' will find a wide audience." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 20 '50 950w

"'Jubel's Children' is a very readable and very entertaining short novel." Robert Pick
+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 O 21 '50 500w

KAUFMAN, MILTON. Radio operator's license Q & A manual. 608p il $6 Rider, J.F.

621.384 Radio—Handbooks, manuals, etc.

"Composed of questions and answers of the type found in the latest F.C.C. study guide and other publications of the commission. In addition to direct answers to each question a short clarifying paragraph is added." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:257 Ap 15 '50

"The book's most obvious use is as a study or review text to be used in preparing for the F.C.C. radio operator's examinations, but it contains so much information that it should be useful as a desk reference book even after a commercial operator's license has been obtained." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:498 Mr 15 '50 110w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:27 Mr '50

KAUTZKY, THEODORE. Ways with watercolor. 106p il col pl $10 Reinhold

751.42 Water color painting 50-692

Outlines step-by-step the technique of making watercolors. The book also contains essential information on a watercolor artist's materials, and is illustrated with drawings and watercolors by the author-artist.

"Everything that the watercolorist needs—except the ability—will be found in its pages. . . With a thoughtful page by page study of this book and the execution of each of the practice subjects given, the student should find that painting a creditable watercolor is within his reach." Gary Sheahan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 F 26 '50 140w

"Mr. Kautzky has the rare ability of breaking into simple steps the beauty of a water color, thus giving the reader a deeper enjoyment of the completed effect through understanding the sequences of painting, the effect of light and shadow, and the skillful use of color. The conversational tone of this book puts the student at ease immediately, with a feeling of confidence instilled by the lucidity of the presentation."
+ School Arts 49:adv Mr '50 260w

KAVANAGH, PETER. Story of the Abbey theatre; from its origins in 1899 to the present. 243p il $4.50 Devin-Adair

792 Dublin. Abbey theater 50-8644

"This is by far the most comprehensive history of the Irish National Theatre yet published." (Library J) Mr Kavanagh has lectured on the drama at Trinity College, Dublin, and in the United States.

"[Mr. Kavanagh's] book reads a good bit like an MA thesis; it is sketchy, arbitrarily limited, and written as though the author were intent on completing the assignment rather than illuminating the subject." Walter Kerr
Commonweal 53:206 D 1 '50 800w

"Highly recommended for theatre, poetry, and Irish literature collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:1510 S 15 '50 40w

"A relatively brief but very clear account of Yeats's ideal in founding the theater. . . Perhaps Mr. Kavanagh's excellent book may start up a bit of controversy in Dublin, but it will be a controversy about ghosts. Time has run out on the Abbey Theatre." W. P. Eaton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p32 N 12 '50 550w

"This book on the Abbey is impartial history. In my opinion, it is the best that has yet been written around the achievements and failures of that theatre; simply but brightly written from beginning to end, showing us not only the great ones there, the tumult and pathos of the stage, but many a hidden nook and cranny of disillusionment, jealousy, and even spite, manifested by dramatist, actor, director, and audience." Sean O'Casey

KAVANAGH, PETER—Continued

+ N Y Times p6 O 15 '50 1450w

New Yorker 26:75 D 23 '50 150w

"Peter Kavanagh has given us our fullest and frankest history of Dublin's Abbey Theatre. Although 'The Story of the Abbey Theatre' is neither as full nor as frank as Harold Clurman's book about the American Group Theatre, it is still a very useful, newsy, gossipy record." Henry Popkin

+ Theatre Arts 34:5 D '50 440w

KAYE, PHILIP B., pseud. See Adams, A.

KECKLER, VIRGINIA W. Great Dane; a complete discussion of the history, breeding, care, training and exhibiting of this breed of dog. 139p il $3 Judy

636.75 Great Danes Agr49-104

"A general discussion of the history, breeding, care, training and exhibiting of this stately breed. The author is a well-known judge and breeder." Cleveland Open Shelf

"A famous Great Dane breeder of 51 champions gives fanciers of this noble and big breed sound information and advice." Bob Becker

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 D 4 '49 30w

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '50

Library J 74:1679 N 1 '49 10w

KEE, ROBERT. Impossible shore. 266p $3 McGraw

50-10373

"Upon liberation of a German POW camp by the Russians, an English and a Jugoslav officer escape and head for the Elbe. With the war still going on, they are forced to lay over in a German village where both men fall in love with a fraulein. The Englishman finally continues on to the Elbe while the Jugoslav remains with the girl." Library J

"As a simple account of the confusions, barbarities, and anomalies of Russian-overrun Germany in the last days of the war this book may hold some interest. . . But this is not enough to make a novel." W. H. Slavick

Commonweal 53:310 D 29 '50 460w

"As reportage, the story is exceptional, a pattern of events seen with perceptive and sensitive eyes; as a novel, it somehow just misses."

+ — Kirkus 18:529 S 1 '50 220w

"Book is compelling without resorting to the graphic description and language which heretofore have been the stock-in-trade of this type of fiction. Recommended." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 75:1661 O 1 '50 80w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield

Manchester Guardian p4 O 14 '49 120w

"It is a vivid picture, which reads like a first-class piece of reporting, but as a novel it suffers from the shadowiness of the main characters, who are types of British officer rather than people. They struck me also as being rather deliberately clueless about the Russians." J. D. Scott

+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:464 O 22 '49 180w

"Mr. Kee's idiom is relaxed, fluid, natural—a significant technical accomplishment for a book so deeply introspective. His minor characters come off very well. . . As for Johnny himself, he is incompletely personalized. . . Yet Mr. Kee's strokes are deft and precise. They bring home to us the fact that for the intelligent free freedom is an emotional challenge and a moral responsibility." Frederic Morton

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 5 '50 600w

"Mr. Kee, a young English writer, tells his story artlessly, directly, in a first-person narrative which often reads like a journal." John Brooks

+ N Y Times p56 D 3 '50 500w

New Yorker 26:185 N 18 '50 100w

"Without doubt Robert Kee, journalist, writer and RAF man during the war, has a muscular and compelling style which propels a superlative story; however, the elements of the story display to my mind rather intellectual fearsomeness, statements which not only are answerable but need answering and an insensitive illiberality on the part of Johnny Clay, the narrator of this novel." Siegfried Mandel

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:12 D 30 '50 750w

"If you can face life as it is here unemphatically shown, you have little to fear. To say that this is the best novel I have read for a long time is faint praise. Mr. Kee might become a great novelist; he has all the signs." L. A. G. Strong

+ Spec 183:516 O 14 '49 450w

"As a novel the book is not impressive; but as a picture of 'liberation' in its first days, seen by a quite exceptionally sensitive pair of eyes, it is of very great interest."

Times [London] Lit Sup p677 O 21 '49 420w

KEELEY, JOSEPH CHARLES. Making inventions pay; a practical guide to selling, protecting, manufacturing, and marketing your inventions. (Whittlesey house publication) 246p $2.95 McGraw

608 Inventions 50-6047

"Points out realistically the difficulties to be overcome in successful merchandising of ideas, using frequent examples. No index." Bookmark

Bookmark 9:157 Ap '50 30w

"An enormous amount of sound commonsense is highlighted by human interest and made good reading. There's a great deal here that would interest boys."

+ Kirkus 18:43 Ja 15 '50 180w

"Fascinating book. . . However, the text is so loaded with success stories that it will be difficult for the typical beginning inventor with a shiny new idea to understand the book's real import." R. R. Hawkins

+ — Library J 75:700 Ap 15 '50 110w

"A helpful and interesting book." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 75:871 My 15 '50 60w

"Intended to foster the spirit of invention, the human interest stories make it good reading as well."

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:14 Ap '50

KEENEY, BARNABY CONRAD. Judgment by peers. 191p $2.50 Harvard univ. press

340.4 Jury—History. Courts—Great Britain 49-11258

This scholarly treatise "opens with a chapter on the origin of peerage and of judgment by peers in continental Europe, then turns to England and traces the development of the privilege through the fifteenth century. A whole chapter is devoted to the thirty-ninth clause of Magna Carta, and two appendices deal with special problems." (Am Pol Sci R) Index.

Reviewed by C. R. Lovell

Am Hist R 55:586 Ap '50 400w

"The primary appeal of the volume will be to the specialist, to whom it offers competent judgments on controversial questions of interpretation." F. D. Wormuth

Am Pol Sci R 44:222 Mr '50 380w

"Professor Kenney's 67 pages of notes bear eloquent testimony to his meticulous scholarship and downright erudition. He has made a significant contribution to English history. If any criticism can be made of this book, it is that the style is heavy and demanding—a fault that stems from undue distillation of the subject. A more leisurely pace would have led to a broader and less technical treatment that would have more meaning for the non-specialist." G. P. Cuttino

+ — Ann Am Acad 268:220 Mr '50 480w

"Mr. Keeney's book bears all the marks of scholarship that might be looked for in a pupil of Professor McIlwain's—a comprehensive knowledge of the authorities, accurately and economically cited, and a conciseness in exposition which concentrates a vast amount of learning within less than two hundred pages. . . The minutiae do not affect the value of the book as a whole to the student of medieval English history. It is a good instance of the usefulness of putting a specific question to the past; not only are new facts brought to light, as in Mr. Keeney's treatment of the thirteenth century, but the familiar pattern of baron versus monarchy in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries is viewed from a fresh angle, and the relation of law and politics vividly illustrated." H. M. Cam
+ Harvard Law R 63:1094 Ap '50 1200w

"Mr. Keeney bases his work on a thorough knowledge and understanding of the sources and a careful consideration of the views of other scholars, earlier and contemporary, in the field of mediaeval institutions. His little book is a valuable contribution to the study of an institution which played an important part in the development of limited, constitutional monarchy in England." J. R. Bacher
+ Pol Sci Q 65:155 Mr '50 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p658 O 20 '50 550w

"A scholarly contribution to an obscure but significant segment of medieval constitutional history."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:204 Je '50 280w

KEETON, MORRIS T. Philosophy of Edmund Montgomery. 386p $5 Univ. press in Dallas
191.9 Montgomery, Edmund 50-8270

"Edmund Montgomery settled on a plantation in Texas in the latter half of the nineteenth century, became a local celebrity, a European oddity, and a contributor to philosophical magazines in America. Montgomery, probably an illegitimate child, was educated in the best universities of Europe, trained for medicine, practiced in London, instituted research on cell pathology, and then, partly at least for reasons of health, emigrated to the New World. His philosophical speculations set out from biological bases and anticipated by half a century what has come to be thought of as the 'organismic' interpretation of reality." (Ethics) Index.

Reviewed by T. V. Smith
Ethics 61:90 O '50 280w

"Mr. Keeton, who is a professional philosopher, and has here examined Montgomery with clarity and competence appears to accept his ideas with ingenuous welcome." Philip Burnham
+ N Y Times p14 N 5 '50 460w

"The author of this book, an assistant professor of philosophy at Antioch, has done an excellent job in rescuing his subject from oblivion."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:34 Ag 19 '50 270w

KEEZER, DEXTER MERRIAM, and others. Making capitalism work; a program for preserving freedom and stabilizing prosperity. 316p $3.50 McGraw
330.973 Capitalism. U.S.—Economic policy 50-8020

This volume is the joint product of certain members of the Department of economics of the McGraw-Hill publishing company, engaged in making economic studies for various publications and operating units of the company. "This book is written from a definite point of view and with a clear-cut purpose. The point of view is that capitalism is the best way to economic life for the United States of America. The purpose is to explain that point of view and present a series of steps which, in the view of the authors, must be taken to give capitalism the promise of a prosperous future in the United States." (p. 1) Index.

Bookmark 9:209 Je '50 80w

Reviewed by E. L. Klein
Chicago Sun p5 Je 25 '50 350w

Reviewed by H. R. Bowen
J Pol Econ 58:550 D '50 1000w

"A fair, competent, provocative presentation, deserving wide distribution." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:1188 Jl '50 130w

"The book is a storehouse of information as well as a guide for the perplexed." Louis Hacker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Jl 16 '50 800w

Reviewed by Asher Brynes
N Y Times p26 O 8 '50 650w

KEITH, MARIAN, pseud. See MacGregor, M. E. M.

KELLAND, CLARENCE BUDINGTON. Stolen goods. 240p $2.75 Harper
50-8725

Detective story.

Booklist 47:45 S 15 '50

"If you are looking for literature, pass up this one. If you want a few hours of light summer reading, by all means get it. Racy, and slightly dizzy, it will hold your interest until you finish it, even tho you know what the outcome will be from the first chapter." William Yates
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ag 6 '50 370w

Kirkus 18:285 My 15 '50 130w

"As usual, Clarence Budington Kelland is slick, but this time he is also acutely coy."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ag 6 '50 220w

"Clarence Budington Kelland, a seasoned professional at this sort of thing, has taken the trouble to do some careful research on the inside workings of a big department store. As adventure-romance the yarn is as smooth, frothy and easy to take as a master chef's meringue." H. M.
+ N Y Times p11 S 3 '50 170w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 24 '50 250w

"Slick and enjoyable."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:38 Ag 5 '50 40w

Wis Lib Bul 46:24 S '50

KELLEY, FRANK RAYMOND, and RYAN, CORNELIUS. MacArthur, man of action. 191p $2 Doubleday
B or 92 MacArthur, Douglas 50-10480

A brief biography of General MacArthur by the authors of The Star-spangled Mikado (Book Review Digest 1947). No illustrations. No index.

Booklist 47:94 N 1 '50

"The revised Ryan-Kelley estimate of MacArthur is a brief but comprehensive study of the general's career. Altho marred by a number of unnecessary errors, it is sympathetic and unbiased." Walter Simmons
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 5 '50 440w

"A biography which is not the complete story of General MacArthur, but is, nonetheless, an extremely readable account of his military growth."
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 D 2 '50 180w

Kirkus 18:649 O 15 '50 180w

"All of MacArthur's good qualities, and they are many, are pointed out and the result is the picture of a paragon, not a man. There are many facts of interest in the volume, especially those covering the general's early life, but this is not the book one hopes will someday be written about this man." Donald Wasson

KELLEY, F. R.—Continued
— + Library J 75:1904 N 1 '50 120w

"The perspective and materials for historical objectivity about MacArthur are not yet available, and the animosities are prevalent, for MacArthur is still alive and commanding. All that is possible now is a hasty recapitulation of some aspects of the General's career. There is need for a book by constructive experts on MacArthur's policies and tactics. Even as a human document this book falls short." M. R. Werner
Nation 171:439 N 11 '50 1800w

"This readable, informative little book is to be welcomed not only because of its timeliness, but because it tends to clarify the nebulous mass of mythology and demonology surrounding the name of Douglas MacArthur into a more credible picture of the man." W. L. White
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 12 '50 950w

"Though much of it is inaccurate, and all is undocumented, this book will be loved by those who already revere the General—and their name is legion." S. L. A. Marshall
N Y Times p3 O 29 '50 700w

Reviewed by William Hogan
San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 19 '50 600w

Springf'd Republican p10C D 10 '50 180w

KELLEY, PEARCE CLEMENT, and LAWYER, KENNETH. How to organize and operate a small business. 803p il $6.65; to schools $5 Prentice-Hall

658 Business 49-49253

"An attempt to simplify modern methods of business operation, as practised by large concerns, in order to adapt them to small business units. Showing the high place of the small business in the national picture, the authors proceed to develop all the considerations, from whether or not to where and how to start; financing and organizing; selecting location; employee relations; sales and advertising; taxes; credit; record-keeping." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:283 My 15 '50

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 Ap 2 '50 50w

"Thorough and clearly written." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:47 Ja 1 '50 80w

Management R 39:500 Ag '50 110w

KELLY, AMY RUTH. Eleanor of Aquitaine, and the four kings. 431p il $5 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Eleanor of Aquitaine, consort of Henry II, king of England 50-6545

This life story of Eleanor of Aquitaine, wife of two kings and mother of two others, is also a study of the twelfth century in which she lived. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by A. C. Krey
Am Hist R 56:84 O '50 750w

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 185:85 Je '50 420w

Booklist 46:274 My 1 '50

"It is a scholarly book equipped with notes, bibliography and a careful index; yet it has the sustained interest of a well written romance. It incorporates, as the author notes, much material that forms a part of history in the wide sense, which must yet be omitted by the 'historian of institutions.' Most readers would be pleased if more space had been given to the canonical issues involved in the queen's divorce from Louis and her later marriage to Henry. But at least there is in Miss Kelly's pages no exploiting of sensational possibilities."
+ Cath World 171:318 Jl '50 140w

Reviewed by Louis Zara
+ Chicago Sun p5 Ap 26 '50 410w

"Not the least attractive aspect of this work is the author's complete mastery of the medieval sources. The narrative of Eleanor's life and times abounds with the flavor of chivalry... Miss Kelly has threaded her passage carefully thru a mass of legend and fact eight centuries old to produce a charming and meaningful book which should delight both the intelligent layman and the scholar." R. M. Brace
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 16 '50 450w

"It is brilliantly told, maintaining interest in both the historical and romantic aspects."
+ Current Hist 18:296 My '50 40w

"A colorful, interesting period is given full due with the accent on the importance of the indivduals in leaving their stamp on the times adding to the overall effect. A book first of all for serious students of history but not too pedantic for its more casual followers."
+ Kirkus 18:91 F 1 '50 190w

"Here is a history with the Gothic touch and so readable that one forgets it is not a novel. For general purchase." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 75:490 Mr 15 '50 140w

"An excellent popular biography of one of the more fascinating characters of the twelfth century."
+ Nation 170:582 Je 10 '50 40w

"As general history, it is somewhat lopsided: too much Eleanor. As biography, the lay reader will be disappointed when, for hundreds of pages, the heroine is forgotten altogether. As history, 'Eleanor of Aquitaine' is of very high quality. But that history is frankly dynastic." Albert Guerard
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ap 16 '50 1050w

"Amy Kelly, formerly Associate Professor of History at Wellesley College, writes truth for truth. When she does not know, she says so. When she guesses, she says she is guessing. She makes no 'attempt to fictionize.' Yet her book reads like colorful romance." T. C. Chubb
+ N Y Times p3 Ap 30 '50 550w

"The book is based on sound scholarship and written with selective skill and with considerable style, and it makes even the best historical novel seem like pap."
+ New Yorker 26:133 Ap 15 '50 200w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 15 '50 500w

"When one has so much it is probably ungracious to ask for more. Eleanor, however, does not really come fully to life in this careful account so largely and so successfully devoted to her background and to her entourage, although it is clear that gossipy chronicles and contemporary literature have here been made to yield a full harvest." S. R. Packard
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:23 My 6 '50 1100w

"Amy Kelly's Eleanor of Aquitaine and the Four Kings is the finest attempt, in English, to tell the queen's full story. It is a tale that the queen herself might have gasped at if some trouvère had sung it to her court; and Historian Kelly, while never forsaking her facts, tells it with a poet's warmth."
+ Time 55:102 Je 12 '50 950w

"A well-balanced, documented, and highly literate saga of a remarkable woman and of her times. A useful bibliography and index are appended."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:303 S '50 260w

Reviewed by T. G. Bergin
Yale R n s 40:178 autumn '50 290w

KELLY, MRS ELEANOR (MERCEIN). Richard Walden's wife. 391p $3 Bobbs

50-6113

A tale of pioneer days in Wisconsin, before and during the Civil war. The heroine is a beautiful Southerner who leaves her Tidewater home to join her husband who had gone on to Wisconsin the year before. With her went their children and two Negro servants.

Aurora's charm conquers all men; but she remains loyal to her husband, even after his death.

Booklist 46:246 Ap 1 '50

"I found it disappointing. Warmth and charm are present, but they are smothered by the heavy-going narrative and some cloying, if not incredible, conversation." Mildred Walker

— + Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 12 '50 500w

"Notwithstanding an occasional anachronism or implausibility, the total effect is adventurous and sumptuous, breathless with parties and mysteries, Indians, wolves, a prairie fire—and never neglectful of racial mingling in that 'blue Ouisconsin,' of Germans, Norsk, Irish, Scotch, French, Indians, Africans, and Americans of Puritan and Cavalier stock."

+ Christian Science Monitor p4 Mr 11 '50 260w

"The story of Aurora and her family and friends and admirers has, like its heroine, warmth, liveliness and color. You will learn of the hardships and dangers of early days in Wisconsin, and also of pioneer satisfactions and fun, sometimes through episodes borrowed from Mrs. Kelly's own family history. Even more, however, you will enjoy the spirited Aurora." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 Ap 16 '50 550w

Reviewed by Mary Johnston

N Y Times p35 F 26 '50 110w

Sat R of Lit 33:28 Mr 18 '50 110w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 My '50

KELLY, JOHN NORMAN DAVIDSON. Early Christian creeds. 446p $5.75 Longmans

238 Creeds. Church history—Primitive and early church

A study of the rise, development and use of credal formularies during the creative centuries of the church's history. The author is vice-principal of St Edmund Hall, Oxford. Index.

"The author has succeeded in making what is often a rather dull and dry subject come to life. He has given us one of the clearest and most interesting accounts of the early history of the creeds. . . This is a serious book for serious students and very rewarding to anyone who will read it with something like the care and attention that must have gone in to its composition." T. W. M.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 7 '50 120w

"A handbook to the creeds for the use of English students has been badly needed for a long time. Research has far outstripped the standard works on the subject; but its results, concealed in foreign tongues or scattered in technical periodicals, have been available only to the specialist. . . Prebendary Kelly's excellent book arrives in the nick of time and bears every promise of itself occupying the position of a standard work for a long time to come. He has read widely and digested what he has read."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p521 Ag 18 '50 1000w

KEMBERTON, HARRY PHILIP. Now that summer's come. 232p $2.75 Macmillan

50-9014

Life in a Connecticut summer colony is the basis of this first novel. It is a pleasant story of one summer, when a visiting siren from Houston, Texas, tried to vamp Freddie Ferris, but did not succeed. It was also the summer when Freddie's sister, Jess (who was afraid she would never marry because she was so tall) found herself engaged to Rich. Even the trouble about the struggle between natives and New Yorkers came out peaceably, when the difficulty about a library was settled.

Booklist 47:13 S 1 '50

Kirkus 18:341 Je 15 '50 160w

"A pleasant short novel." H. G. Kelley

+ Library J 75:1292 Ag '50 70w

"A more delightful practice piece—i.e., first novel—is not likely to come your way during the hot months." F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 6 '50 800w

"H. Philip Kemberton's dialogue is witty and he has a nice if unspectacular knack for characterization. One might complain that he is living above his readers' income when he has the simple, unspoiled Jess long only for a house in the country, an apartment in New York, and six children. However, Mr. Kemberton's objective was not a treatise on modern economics. He was trying to write an entertaining lending-library novel—and in this he has succeeded." Jane Cobb

+ N Y Times p17 Ag 6 '50 140w

New Yorker 26:86 Ag 26 '50 80w

"Here at last is a cheerful, charming, and clever novel. . . It takes some courage in these days for a writer, who is obviously capable of turning on tears and misery if he cared to do so, to produce so blatantly happy an ending. Readers who are not frightened by so unlikely an event in well-written contemporary fiction may come to the end of 'Now That Summer's Come' with a sigh of contentment; they will be none the worse for the experience of meeting a few agreeable and amusing people who know how to come to terms with life." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 Ag 5 '50 800w

KEMLER, EDGAR. The irreverent Mr Mencken. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 317p il $3.50 Little

B or 92 Mencken, Henry Louis 50-7313

A biography of H. L. Mencken, which emphasizes his public career as editor, whose "war was with ideas." Illustrated with photographs. Chronology of Mencken's books. Index.

Booklist 46:302 Je 1 '50

Bookmark 9:183 My '50 40w

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 14 '50 550w

"Edgar Kemler was closely associated with his subject when he wrote this book, so the facts are straight. It is tidily written, the material is intelligently ordered, and all the main outlines of Mencken's battles are well drawn, but I got the impression of a faint distaste through it all, sometimes a little scorn." John Hay

+ — Commonweal 52:180 My 26 '50 600w

Current Hist 19:39 Jl '50 40w

Kirkus 17:686 D 15 '49 280w

"Primarily an account of Mencken's forty years' war with American public opinion, this is also an informed record of his personal life, and a contribution to our intellectual history." H. W. Hart

+ Library J 75:490 Mr 15 '50 140w

"Admirable biography. . . Because Mr. Kemler's method is so strictly biographical and he has so little to say about Mencken's voluminous writing, Mencken is presented on the whole at his worst, as the practical rather than the literary connoisseur of idiocy." James Grossman

+ Nation 170:451 My 13 '50 1400w

Reviewed by H. F. Pringle

New Repub 123:17 Jl 3 '50 1150w

"Mr. Kemler seems to prefer stressing weakness rather than strength; folly rather than wisdom. Within limits, there may be rough justice in this; for so Mencken treated many of his victims. Mr. Kemler, however, exceeds all permissible limits when he suggests, in his closing paragraphs, that but for the grace of God Mencken might have shared Ezra Pound's padded cell. . . To suggest that Mencken was therefore a traitor and a lunatic removes the book from the realm of legitimate satire into that of mere libel. Nor does Mr. Kemler offset his libel by any real discussion of Mencken's greatest achievements." Delancey Ferguson

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 My 14 '50 900w

The San Francisco Theological Seminary

KEMLER, EDGAR—Continued

"From the plethora of material Edgar Kemler has drawn a face that seems real, told a tale fresh on every page, and on some pages a tale packed with staggering surprises. One suspects that Kemler, a new product of Hopkins, Harvard, and Baltimore, has done a standing broad jump into the front rank of American biographers." J. M. Cain

+ N Y Times p1 Ap 16 '50 1050w

"A workmanlike and readable biography, which has been checked for accuracy by Mencken himself." Edmund Wilson

+ New Yorker 26:111 My 6 '50 1900w

"An assessment of Mencken that is balanced, understanding, just, and not likely to be displaced. It is a first-rate biography of a first-rate subject." Templeton Peck

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 5 '50 700w

"That such a definitive and critically balanced biography could be written of a man who will not be seventy until September is an evidence of how completely dead is the era in which Mr. Mencken pontificated. That Mr. Mencken should actually have assisted, at least until his serious illness of 1948, in assembling the material for so critical a work is evidence of his huge gusto in genuine freedom, whatever his mystical faith in a Germany that never was." Duncan Aikman

+ Sat R of Lit 33:24 My 27 '50 1100w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:304 S '50 310w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Jl '50

KEMLER, EMORY NEUDECK, and OGLESBY, SABERT. Heat pump applications. 300p $6 McGraw

621.5 Heat pumps 50-1465

"Discussion and illustration of many industrial, commercial, and residential installations in the U.S. and Europe. Continues with the technical aspects of heat pumps, heat sources, exchangers, and other parts. A chapter on patents granted for heat pumps and allied equipment." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:257 Ap 15 '50

"Purchase by libraries would seem to be necessary only in instances where there is a strong local demand for engineering information on the subject." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:700 Ap 15 '50 80w

KENNEDY, GERALD HAMILTON, bp. The lion and the lamb; paradoxes of the Christian faith. 233p $2.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

248 Christianity 50-7627

An analysis of twenty-one paradoxes of the Christian faith. Partial contents: Way and power; Sin and grace; Foolishness and wisdom; Judgment and forgiveness; Sorrow and joy; Gentleness and austerity; Prudence and carelessness; Humility and assurance; Despair and hope; Rest and spur; Spiritual and material. The author is bishop of the Portland (Oregon) area of the Methodist church. No index.

"It was a good idea, and it has been carried out in a lively style and with a great abundance of illustrations, as well as with a text for each member of each couple. The chapters read like short addresses. If one calls them 'popular' addresses, it is with the meaning that the hearers would probably like them and find them easy to follow."

+ Christian Century 67:707 Je 7 '50 230w

"An excellent study. . . The author's short, pungent sentences often are suggestive of the writer of the Book of Proverbs. . . The book is wholesome and delightfully humbling reading for those of us who are too much inclined to feel that we have the truth and the whole truth." H. J. Simpson

+ Churchman 164:17 Jl '50 120w

"The chapters of this book are good preaching, just as their original form must have been interesting and convincing as the Peyton Lectures on Preaching at the Perkins School of Theology in 1949. Their real value is not in any questions they may actually answer, but in the principles of personal living they make attractive and available for further experiment." R. E. Keighton

+ Crozer Q 27:367 O '50 400w

"Gerald Kennedy is up-to-date, his messages deal with the real issues of modern life. Furthermore they are couched in a style that is fresh and arresting with illustrations and turns of phraseology which stay by the reader. More important still, Gerald Kennedy's message deals with a vital religious faith."

+ Kirkus 18:309 Je 1 '50 150w

KENNEDY, JOHN HOPKINS. Jesuit and savage in New France. 206p $3.75 Yale univ. press

971.01 Jesuits in North America. Canada—History—To 1763 (New France). Indians of North America—Missions 50-3409

A scholarly study of Jesuit missionaries in early America and their work with the North American Indians. Bibliographical note. Index.

"Though written simply, [this] is not a simple book. It is intended for the student of ideas; and for such, within the field it covers, it will be indispensable. Its author quotes lavishly and pertinently from a wide range of appropriate original sources. He gives no evidence of bias, but writes objectively, though with sympathy. The chief faults of the work are an occasional lack of clarity and a certain failure in proportion between subject-matter and aim." G. C. Osborn

+ — Ann Am Acad 272:222 N '50 320w

Reviewed by Fritz Richter

Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 S 10 '50 390w

"The present work is not a record but is a careful and scholarly study."

+ Christian Century 67:764 Je 21 '50 140w

"Both title and text tend somewhat to overemphasize the Jesuit contribution to the French concept of the savage, great as it was; but in general Mr. Kennedy displays an admirable fair-mindedness and objectivity in a field of history that conflicting parties have tended to make a battleground." Mason Wade

+ — N Y Times p34 D 3 '50 450w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich

Sat R of Lit 33:40 O 14 '50 230w

School & Society 72:366 D 2 '50 60w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:333 S '50 240w

KENNEDY, LUCY. Sunlit field. 333p $3 Crown 50-8067

The story of a girl from Ireland and a boy from New England who found an exciting life following the game of baseball in Brooklyn in the late eighteen-fifties.

Booklist 47:40 S 15 '50

"Po O'Reilly is a character you'll not soon forget. She is as original as her name, and as charming as the green hills of her native land. Larry is a less successful characterization, but rugged and appealing. For the rest, you have a story of what life was like in brawling boisterous New York of the early 1800s, with Walt Whitman thrown in as an added attraction. Only the melodrama pumped into the plot keeps it from complete success." Kelsey Guilfoil

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 11 '50 450w

"Roaring, wistful and comic novel."

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Jl 1 '50 300w

Kirkus 18:264 My 1 '50 220w

"A fascinating story, convincingly recreating a most interesting period in N.Y.C. history. Wide appeal. Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:980 Je 1 '50 130w

"A fresh and very pleasant tale of a time when living seems to have been gayer and more spontaneous if not actually simpler than at present and if Po's womanly wisdom in dealing with her boy friend is preternatural, perhaps that is to be expected of a descendant of Irish kings and the daughter of a minstrel." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 11 '50 750w

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Times p38 Je 11 '50 550w

"In the interest of being Irish, Miss Kennedy is guilty of ferocious mistreatment of the English language, but in spite of this her story is lively and human, with a good deal of interesting talk about games, taverns, and other amusements in Brooklyn nearly a century ago."
+ — New Yorker 26:106 Je 10 '50 100w
San Francisco Chronicle p23 N 12 '50 350w
Wis Lib Bul 46:20 Jl '50

KENNEDY, MARGARET (MRS DAVID DAVIES). The feast. 308p $3 Rinehart
50-5698

A novel describing the activities in the last six days of a Cornish seaside hotel, which is built on a cove sheltered by cliffs. A maid decided to give a picnic ("the feast") for three poor children who had narrowly escaped drowning. All the good-hearted hotel guests attended the outdoor fête and were thereby saved from destruction. Seven people, representing the seven deadly sins, remained inside and were killed when a mass of cliffside collapsed and destroyed the building.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 185:80 My '50 290w
Booklist 46:210; 232 Mr 1 '50; Mr 15 '50
Bookmark 9:161 Ap '50 80w

"An entertaining, brightly contrived tale that deftly points a moral, in fact, many morals. . . In reality sins are rarely as neatly packaged as they are in The Feast, but this is a charade and a witty one. A perhaps Anglican timidity keeps the vast depths of Christianity from being plumbed but the themes are based on Christian principles. The formalized pattern is developed in the British tradition of irony and bland humor."
+ Cath World 171:155 My '50 220w

Reviewed by M. J. Ward
Chicago Sun p6 Mr 21 '50 400w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 19 '50 1050w

"The novel is cleverly fashioned; it has its authentically entertaining passages, such as that wherein the social consciousness of some of the inn visitors is aired at length. But—better read it quickly. For it is never wise to examine too closely the technique of the magician who tosses all the little silver balls into the air and keeps them in motion." Margaret Williamson.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 4 '50 450w
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '50

Reviewed by C. H. Weiss
Commonweal 52:108 My 5 '50 230w
Kirkus 18:28 Ja 15 '50 300w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 75:318 F 15 '50 210w

"The Feast is aptly named from the reader's point of view, for it has Miss Kennedy's narrative skill, her distinction, her grace, above all her peculiar magic. . . The greater number of the characters are interesting, touching, normal human beings. Seven, however, are figures of appalling and terrifying evil—yet, and it is Miss Kennedy's triumph, they are scaled down to the dimensions of everyday life." Elizabeth Jenkins
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 3 '50 340w

"One feels that Miss Kennedy has chosen her characters too much out of her head and not enough (as it were) out of a hat. Apart from this, 'The Feast' is a thoroughly entertaining and competent piece of work, full of sharp insights into present-day English life, and especially notable for some children who really behave and talk like children." James Hilton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Mr 19 '50 500w

Reviewed by Leo Lerman
N Y Times p6 Mr 26 '50 850w

Reviewed by Hamilton Basso
New Yorker 26:107 Ap 1 '50 500w
San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ap 30 '50 500w

"Here is a charming, readable, and unusual book, written by Margaret Kennedy, who well knows how to write, with fine and whimsical humor, excellent character work, and a growing, sustained, and almost grim sense of suspense. Yes, and the descriptive backgrounds are beautifully done. . . This is not the novel that 'The Constant Nymph' was, or 'The Ladies of Lyndon,' but it has its own light, unusual, faintly strange charm." M. S. Douglas
+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 Mr 25 '50 600w

Reviewed by Marghanita Laski
+ Spec 184:288 Mr 3 '50 100w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p7D Je 25 '50 390w
— Time 55:108 Mr 27 '50 430w

"The symbolism of the feast, indeed, is not refined and the book is by no means free of a kind of polished sentimentality; nevertheless, for construction, readability, with and character-drawing it is a very long way above the average."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p149 Mr 10 '50 270w
Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Ap '50

KENNET, KATHLEEN (BRUCE) SCOTT YOUNG, baroness. Self-portrait of an artist; from [her] diaries and memoirs. 368p il $5 Transatlantic

B or 92 Artists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. [50-2437]

"The book is divided into two parts: an autobiography which begins at her childhood and terminates with the birth of her first son and the departure of her husband, Captain Scott, on the Antarctic expedition from which he never returned, and a series of extracts made by her second husband, Lord Kennet, from the diaries she kept from Captain Scott's departure until the close of her own life over thirty-five years later." Spec

Reviewed by Leila Flower
Christian Science Monitor p18 My 24 '50 480w

"The author did not succeed in reconstructing a believable central character to move through the adventures of her youth. When we leave the memoir, however, and come to the part of the book—much the largest part—which is taken from her diaries, we find a new and a simpler enjoyment: direct observation, immediate perception." Elizabeth Janeway
+ — N Y Times p4 Ap 2 '50 550w

"It is difficult to be certain, but it is at least possible to think that this book would have done her memory a greater service if it had been more outspoken, more complete. In its present form it is sometimes disturbing, puzzling, irritating, and the reader is left wishing he knew of Lady Kennet either more—or less."
Spec 184:288 Mr 3 '50 300w

"An original and fascinating picture of a character in which strength and poignancy were strangely mixed. In these pages the reader will find Lady Kennet's account of her own life, set out without reticence; Lord Kennet has expunged things which might embarrass people still alive, but he has wisely left in many intimate reflections on friends and family which enable those who did not know Lady Kennet to savour something of her charm and sensibility."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p86 F 10 '50 900w

KENT, LOUIS. Declensions of the air. 64p $2.75 Dutton
811 50-10374

"Nature is the subject of many of these lyrics. . . Other subjects are recollections of childhood and personal emotions. Many have appeared in periodicals." Booklist

Booklist 47:132 D 1 '50
Kirkus 18:411 Jl 15 '50 80w

"The book is truly a magic world in itself; or rather, the real world tilted at an angle to catch unprecedented lights and shadows. Add the fine music of the lines, and here is far and away the most engrossing and distinctive first book by an American poet since the appearance of Robinson's first volume. I doubt that any sensitive reader, of whatever poetic preference, would quarrel seriously with that opinion." Robert Hillyer
+ N Y Times p43 N 26 '50 410w

KENT, WILLIAM. Mechanical engineers' handbook; prepared by a staff of specialists. 12th ed 2v il ea $8.50 Wiley 621.02 Mechanical engineering—Handbooks, manuals, etc.

"The mechanical engineers' bible and recognized standard the world over. The two-volume format adopted with the eleventh edition still prevails. Designed for convenience and practicality with unusually complete indexes, large clear type, and an increased number of diagrams and illustrations. The final section gives a complete set of mathematical tables of importance to the mechanical engineer. Largely rewritten and revised to keep pace with rapid engineering developments." Booklist

Booklist 47:42 S 15 '50

"The handbook excels in its presentation of data on the strength and corrosion properties of materials of construction, especially metals and alloys. The information on steels is very complete and new data on nonferrous alloys is given. The information on the various features of machine design practice will be useful to those who plan experimental equipment as well as to engineers who design for mass production." R. L. Pigford
+ Chem & Eng N 28:3259 S 18 '50 360w
Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:1194 Jl '50 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:58 Jl '50

KENT, WILLIAM WINTHROP. Hooked rug design; foreword by Cordelia Sargent Pond. 190p il $7.50 Pond-Ekberg
746.74 Rugs 50-5420

"The third of the author's books on hooked rugs. . . The illustrations are again the important feature; there are 28 reproductions of the author's own designs, some in full color, and approximately 150 other examples of old and new rugs. Suggestive for the creative craftsman rather than a pattern book to be followed exactly." Booklist

Booklist 46:186 F 1 '50

"Will find a ready welcome among the devotees of rug hooking, an art that is now attaining such popularity and excellence that the finished product gives infinite satisfaction and commands a ready sale at high prices, some even running into four figures. . . So complete is his coverage of the subject that 'Hooked Rug Design' becomes a veritable textbook of design in the technique of rug hooking." Ethel Dexter
+ Springf'd Republican p8C F 5 '50 330w

KEOGH, MRS THEODORA. Meg. 242p $2.75 Creative age
50-5328

This story of twelve-year-old Meg, alternates between the two sides of her life—the child of well-to-do parents attending a select girls' school and the wild little girl who joins a gang of East Side slum boys in their hideout under the Queensboro bridge.

Reviewed by M. E. Monroe
Library J 75:398 Mr 1 '50 80w
Reviewed by Virgilia Peterson
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 Mr 26 '50 600w

"It is a tribute to Mrs. Keogh's skill that not once does she lapse into bad taste. Her style, like the character of her heroine, enables her to walk clean-footed through muck. If this seems an impossible tour de force, the reader is referred to the novel—and to Meg herself, who remains endearing to the end." Jane Cobb
+ N Y Times p30 Mr 5 '50 320w

"In a series of didactic asides that clutter up an otherwise simple narrative, Mrs. Keogh intimates that Meg's essential innocence will ultimately be responsible for her salvation. This thesis, however, doesn't square with the evidence of Meg's excessive precocity, a quality, incidentally, that makes her a thoroughly repellent child, unlikely to inspire pity in even the most sympathetically inclined reader."
New Yorker 26:101 Mr 11 '50 200w

"Many will be enraged by a book in which a 12-year-old is shown as Meg is shown here. Such readers, rubbed raw by the rough surfaces of Mrs. Keogh's novel, will resent it violently. Others, willing to grant that perhaps childhood is not all a matter of comedy and molasses candy, will see the truth, and respect the author's integrity, her understanding, and genuine talent as a writer." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 23 '50 600w

"Meg herself is a coruscating thing, a denizen of that buried land of childhood which, far from being a small place, claims the whole world for its precinct. . . Such an admirable personage is she with her banged-up knees, her dirty sweaters, her proud vision of the universe that, remembering one's own childhood, one wishes one had kept more of Meg intact." Patricia Highsmith
Sat R of Lit 33:19 Ap 1 '50 700w
Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 19 '50 220w

"Meg is the story of a little girl, but it is not for little girls. Nor is it for grownups whose memories of childhood have been identified with their memories of Little Men and Little Women. . . In her first novel [the author] has ventured into one of fiction's most difficult areas: the amoral, grotesquely furnished mind of childhood. Few writers have explored it successfully; Meg is not in the same class with Richard Hughes's Innocent Voyage or A. L. Barker's Innocents. Author Keogh knows Meg, all right, but mostly from the outside, and her startling little novel seems more like random notes for a better one."
Time 55:102 Mr 13 '50 350w

KEPLER, MRS HAZEL CLOUGHLEY, and HESSER, ELIZABETH OLSEN. Food for little people; sketches by Hazel Kepler. 276p $3.75 Funk
649.3 Children—Nutrition. Diet 50-7963

Advice on feeding children, giving much information in the form of things to do and not to do. Contains suggestions for children's parties, child hygiene, and how to entertain convalescent children. Index.

"The material is not too well organized but the variety of suggestions may prove helpful to mothers."
Booklist 46:348 Jl 15 '50

"It would be fine if every mother—or grandmother with young visitors—could have 'Food for Little People.' It answers all those questions about diet and is full of ideas to make meals interesting and of the scientific reasons behind the menu building." Mary Ross
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 16 '50 130w

KEPLER, THOMAS SAMUEL, comp. Contemporary thinking about Paul; an anthology. 442p $4 Abingdon-Cokesbury

227 Paul, Saint. Bible. New Testament—Epistles 50-5469

Fifty-five selections from interpretations of Paul. They are arranged in five sections: The religious atmosphere of Paul's world; Biographical data: the man and his experience; The letters of Paul; Insights into Pauline theology; Modern evaluations of Paul. Bibliography. Biographical index of authors. Index of titles.

"The volume will be a very useful tool for serious students of Paul." W. E. Garrison + Christian Century 67:81 Ja 18 '50 900w

"The book has all the values of an anthology, and the limitations. It will whet the student's appetite for more, and will introduce him to the great modern treatises on Paul and Paulinism. In the present appalling book-famine, when students simply cannot obtain copies of some of the most essential modern theological works, Professor Kepler's anthology may well serve as a substitute for the full treatises." F. C. Grant
Crozer Q 27:185 Ap '50 250w

KERBY-MILLER, CHARLES WILLIAM, ed. See Pope, A. Memoirs of the extraordinary life, works, and discoveries of Martinus Scriblerus

KERLAN, IRVIN. Newbery and Caldecott awards; a bibliography of first editions; with a foreword by Frederic G. Melcher. 51p $2 Univ. of Minn.

028.5 Children's literature—Bibliography. Bibliography—First editions 49-11986

Bibliographical descriptions of all the books which have received the Newbery and Caldecott awards from the first awards, thru 1949. For collectors.

Booklist 46:183 F 1 '50

"This descriptive bibliography will be of importance to collectors, and may stimulate many, young and old, to a new interest in collecting in this field." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 F 5 '50 130w

KEROUAC, JOHN. The town and the city. 499p $3.50 Harcourt

50-5679

Beginning in Galloway, Massachusetts, in 1910, this traces the fortunes of the Martin family, thru the war years when they moved to Brooklyn and the eight children drift from one thing to another, until the death of the father after the war brings them all together again for the funeral.

Booklist 46:182; 200 F 1 '50; F 15 '50

"An incoherent novel, adolescent in its philosophy, that could stand stern editing."
— Cath World 171:72 Ap '50 200w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p9 Mr 5 '50 550w

"Mr. Kerouac has talent of an enviable sort. He writes with clarity, compassion, and force. What is even more important, he has something to say. On the debit side there is this flood of rhetoric which dissipates the unquestioned power of the novel in useless incident and endless conversation which contributes nothing to the building of character thru action." V. P. Hass
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 5 '50 420w

"There is an unremitting emphasis in the following of each personal life, there is a lyrical rhythm to the writing, a certain control in the handling, that keeps alive the interest in what might have been an overlong novel whose reality is neither forced nor raw."
+ Kirkus 18:69 F 1 '50 180w

"A first novel of moral strength. Recommended, but not for the fainthearted." Scott Adams
+ Library J 75:318 F 15 '50 70w

"Mr. Kerouac tells his abundantly varied story with compelling gusto but, in general, without much artistry." F. H. Bullock
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Mr 5 '50 800w

"Like Wolfe, to whom he seems to owe much, Mr. Kerouac tends to overwrite. Admirably, however, he avoids imposing a false thematic framework on his material, pinning everything by force to 'lostness' or 'loneliness.' His is the kind of novel that lets life lead where it will. More often than not, the depth and breadth of his vision triumphs decisively over his technical weaknesses." John Brooks
+ — N Y Times p6 Mr 5 '50 470w

"Mr. Kerouac's boundless capacity for sincerity, unmixed with humor, grows very tiresome after a short time, and his habit of using ten words where one would do inclines the reader to put this book aside until some day when there is absolutely nothing else around to read."
New Yorker 26:115 Mr 25 '50 90w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 10 '50 1000w

"In the present amorphous state of book reviewing this will likely be hailed as a novel displaying great life, energy, and realism. Life, energy, and realism of a kind it certainly has. It belongs to the category of the 'big' novel—the lengthy book, in which a prodigious splashing about, general emotional appeals in the 'lost, lost, lost' cadence of Thomas Wolfe, and a rather simple notion of what constitutes fictional characters are supposed to compensate for radical deficiencies in structure and style. . . I suspect that if the unnecessary furniture of realism were removed, Mr. Kerouac would have seen what is wrong. . . I think Mr. Kerouac has many of the essential attributes of the practising novelist—fecundity, invention, a kind of abundance (yet unchanneled)—but they do not here fuse into unity." H. M. Jones
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:18 Mr 11 '50 650w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 19 '50 390w

Wis Lib Bul 46:26 Mr '50

"Though Kerouac sometimes overwrites and becomes sentimental, he has produced a warm and sympathetic novel." Paul Pickrel
+ — Yale R n s 39:576 spring '50 170w

KERR, SIR JOHN GRAHAM. Naturalist in the Gran Chaco. 235p il maps $4.50 Cambridge

918 Gran Chaco, South America

"Sir John Graham Kerr has extracted from his diaries this account of the two famous expeditions to the Gran Chaco which began his life's work. The Pilcomayo Expedition of 1889-91 started from Buenos Aires, navigated the rivers Paraná, Paraguay and Bermejo, and reached Fortin Page on the narrow and hazardous Pilcomayo. . . Part II describes in some fifty pages the Lepidosiren Expedition of 1896-7, when the author returned to South America with J. S. Budgett to do the field-work for his research on lungfish." (Publisher's note) Index.

"It is written in a style understandable by both the scientist and the layman and is just as full of thrills as the classical stories of exploration written by Wallace, Bates, and Belt. . . It is good to think that Sir John after long and valuable service to science, first as a professor of zoology and then as a most influential member of Parliament, has now found leisure to give us all this really excellent account of his earliest biological studies." H. G. Cannon
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 18 '50 260w

Times [London] Lit Sup p498 Ag 11 '50 1150w

KERR, SOPHIE (MRS UNDERWOOD). As tall as pride. 267p $2.75 Rinehart
49-48131

Rome Whitten was so small in stature that it was a reproach to him, but he ruled the small Southern city where he and his loyal Aunt Laura lived. He was poor but proud; he established a successful business; but when he lost the girl who had never questioned his smallness, he was desperate. He killed the man who took his girl, but nobody ever knew it, except his aunt.

Booklist 46:159 Ja 1 '50

"A plausible probe into the lives of decayed gentility, this is for a popular audience."
Kirkus 17:484 S 1 '49 150w

"Miss Kerr teases and teases a pathological case. The point is lost. What should be grotesquely tragic becomes pathetic. The forces of evil are no bigger than their dwarfed victim. The conflict is actually too evenly balanced."
Sat R of Lit 33:29 Ja 14 '50 130w

KERSH, GERALD. Thousand deaths of Mr Small. 377p $3.50 Doubleday
50-9372

A psychological novel. It pictures Mr Small in one of his moods, which his wife calls a pain. This time Mr Small's mood lasts thruout the book. During that time we learn thru his stream of consciousness just what made Mr Small what he was, as he thinks back on his own life and that of his parents. The scene is London, and the characters are largely Jewish.

"As in Philip Wylie's 'momism,' there is a disturbing quality in this muckraking of the venerated institution of the family. All of us can remember distressing incidents when we, like Charles, were secretly ashamed of ourselves and our parents. But the indictment here is too grimly savage. . . But nothing can gainsay Mr. Kersh's superb technical skill. He has exquisitely impaled the genteel horror of the Smalls. . . With brilliant descriptive power and an emetic vocabulary, he has produced a tormented and forceful work." C. H. Weiss
+ — Commonweal 52:608 S 29 '50 1000w

"It's a difficult book to read, episodic, erratic in pace. But bit by bit, it takes shape; the pieces fall together to make a whole—and 'Mr. Small' emerges as a shadow of a man he might have been, against a middle class English background as unprepossessing as is he himself."
Kirkus 18:363 Jl 1 '50 220w

"The action and language are realistic and best suited for the sophisticated tastes of the pay-duplicate collection borrowers." H. L. Roth
Library J 75:1292 Ag '50 80w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
Nation 171:273 S 23 '50 90w

"Mr. Kersh does indeed ride his horse into the ground long before the last page, but on the way he puts on a performance that is both intemperate and a little terrifying. It seesaws from side-splitting dialogue to such catalogues of loathing and revulsion as have rarely been seen in print, from outrageous farce to sudden compassion for the Smalls of this world, who find Hell enough in 'the eternal contemplation of themselves as they made themselves.'" Richard Match
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 3 '50 650w

"It is a grim book that Mr. Kersh has written but not a negligible one."
N Y Times p4 Ag 27 '50 600w

"A very long book, written in a gray, fizzy prose that is neither diverting nor beautiful."
— New Yorker 26:74 S 2 '50 60w

San Francisco Chronicle p35 D 10 '50 250w

"Gerald Kersh is a powerful but extremely uneven writer. He is capable of projecting scenes, both comic and tragic, of first-rate intensity and reality; and on the next page he will bore you to exasperation with the mooncalf maunderings of his hero. It takes patience to read this book to the end, but your patience will be rewarded. . . A writer who at this point in time is able to create a character capable of standing on its own feet beside Wilkins Micawber can be allowed a few faults." W. R. Burnett
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:17 S 16 '50 850w

Springf'd Republican p12C S 17 '50 90w

KERSHNER, HOWARD ELDRED. Quaker service in modern war; Spain and France, 1939-1940; introd. by Dorothy Canfield Fisher. 195p il $3 Prentice-Hall

946.08 International commission for the assistance of child refugees. Friends, Society of. Spain—History—Civil war, 1936-1939. World war, 1939-1945—Civilian relief 50-7300

"The director of the International Commission for Assistance of Child Refugees, which was founded during the Spanish Civil War, tells about the work he, his wife, and assistants did outside and inside Spain from January 1939 through April 1940. As a personal and not an official record it contains vivid recollections of the good work of citizens and officials in France, struggles with other officials in France and Spain, and the touching stories of individual refugees." Booklist

Booklist 46:285 My 15 '50

"Here is one sliver of current history a man can read with pride and joy—a record of resourceful good will and generous motives, not limited to relief workers, but embracing even fascist government personnel. Kershner is an effective, honest and high principled historian, a recorder of such mustard seeds of mercy and fair dealing as must be planted again and again if the Kingdom of God is ever to come on earth." A. C. Ames
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 28 '50 150w

Christian Century 67:1077 S 13 '50 210w

"This account tells how a relief system was built up. It has the pace of an adventure thriller plus the satisfaction of being true." T. M. Longstreth
+ Christian Science Monitor p20 May 18 '50 550w

Reviewed by A. W. Taylor
Churchman 164:17 Jl '50 250w

Commonweal 52:374 Jl 21 '50 60w

Current Hist 19:166 S '50 30w

"The author is at his best when he writes of the extraordinary physical work that went into the job of buying, shipping, trucking, hauling and distributing food and other help to the hungry and the needy. He is heartwarming when he describes the homes and educational institutions set up for Spanish Republican children, many of whom had lost their parents in the war. He is not so happy when he touches political matters. Kershner didn't like Franco's totalitarianism and said so. Yet throughout the book there is never the slightest indication that he really knew what the war was all about, the profoundly important social, economic and political issues that were in the background and were at stake." A. H. Uhl
+ — New Repub 123:20 Jl 17 '50 550w

"It is instructive and interesting to the reader to note how the author praises the French in general, but how the details he presents damn the authorities—but not the French people whose generosity and heart put their Government to shame. If Dr. Kershner errs on this point it is in a virtuous direction. He has written a heartwarming book, the first of three that we are promised on the great service of the Quakers in the fateful decade of 1939-1949." H. L. Matthews
+ N Y Times p21 My 21 '50 370w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:361 S '50 260w

KERSHNER, RICHARD BRANDON, and WILCOX, LEE ROY. Anatomy of mathematics. 416p il $6 Ronald 510 Mathematics—Philosophy. Logic, Symbolic and mathematical 50-7926

"Rigor of proof is the essence of modern abstract mathematics. Intuition, once moderately acceptable in mathematical arguments, has been cast out. Sound mathematical structures are based only on axioms, which are explicit statements of acceptable facts about mathematical entities such as points and numbers. The basing of mathematical arguments and proofs on axioms is known as the axiomatic method; and this book is a full-scale introduction to the method." Library J

"The authors truthfully state that no previous mathematical education is required to read it. Nevertheless, it is not easy going. Probably most of its readers will be college students who are majoring in mathematics, but there is a fair number of laymen who study mathematics by themselves for the joy of it. To these select folk, the book will be more absorbing that any contemporary novel." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:1194 Jl '50 160w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:58 Jl '50

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:385 S '50 200w

KETTELL, RUSSELL HAWES. Pine furniture of early New England. il $10 Dover

749.211 Furniture 49-50212

"Over two hundred pieces of furniture are shown—not just sharply lighted against white or formless backgrounds. They are often naturally grouped in appropriate period settings. All are so taken and exposed as to give the beholder both a visual and a well-nigh tactile impression of the individuality in construction, design, and patina of each item large or small. Its main divisions trace pictorially the development of Wall Boxes, Chests, Stools and Benches, Stands and Tables, Desks, Shelves and Cupboards, Signs and Weather Vanes, Mirrors, and Lights, which include cradles and some smaller household implements." New Eng Q

"One would hardly expect such a particularized study as this title suggests to evoke the whole spirit of a region. Yet through its seemingly casual yet persistently practical and logical development, its typical insistence on important details of design, construction and embellishment in their relation to period, and its quiet humor and good-natured commentary, this book presents as much of early New England as it does of its pine furniture. Even its qualities as a picture book contribute to this unusual wholeness." B. K. Little

+ New Eng Q 23:270 Je '50 500w

"[There are] two hundred intelligently chosen examples of early cabinetwork which should furnish pleasure to the layman and serve as an invaluable reference guide for the antiquarian."

+ New Yorker 26:99 Je 24 '50 60w

KEY, ALEXANDER. Island light. 326p $3 Bobbs

50-5853

A story of Florida in post-Civil war days. The hero of the tale is a sea captain who for his services to the Confederacy has been imprisoned on a lonely isle in the Tortugas. He escapes from prison and returns to his native land seeking vengeance.

Reviewed by Henry Cavendish

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 23 '50 600w

" 'Island Light' builds to a climax by a sort of chain reaction in which characters become so enmeshed in melodrama that you lose sight of their motives. But that is in the nature of the story, a spinal rather than a cerebral communication of menace and chills." Lisle Bell

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Mr 12 '50 320w

Reviewed by Richard Match

N Y Times p35 F 26 '50 240w

Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ap 29 '50 140w

KEY, VALDIMER ORLANDO, and HEARD, ALEXANDER. Southern politics in state and nation. 675p il maps $6 Knopf

975 South—Politics and government 49-10825

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"Even if exception can be taken to both the hypothesis of the black-belt skeleton and the two-party speculation, the book retains its value as a careful, scholarly, and extensive examination of the Southern political scene and of prevailing practices. Comparable studies for other regions are badly needed. They might, indeed, demonstrate that some Southern practices are not peculiar to the South, and they certainly could improve generalizations about national politics." W. B. Hesseltine

+ Am Hist R 55:939 Jl '50 950w

Reviewed by A. N. Holcombe

Am Pol Sci R 44:192 Mr '50 1200w

"Southern Politics is not only a solid, scholarly book, but it is also written with good humor and with a fine sense for the realities of politics." D. D. McKean

+ Ann Am Acad 267:218 Ja '50 480w

"A thoroughly readable yet scholarly dissection of the complex and generally anti-democratic forces operating behind the façade of politics in each of the southern states."

+ Foreign Affairs 28:509 Ap '50 30w

"The contribution Key has made in this book is so rich that it is probably ungenerous to criticize him for failing to address himself to solutions for the problems he has described." Helen Fuller

+ — New Repub 122:19 Mr 20 '50 900w

"Key's major conclusion is that 'in the final analysis the peculiarities of southern white politics come from the impact of the black race.' . . Key may have proved this thesis; much evidence is marshaled to support it. But whether one thinks that the conclusion is too absolute and that the book comes to its end at too single a point, there can be no denying that its breadth and depth of investigation, originality of interpretation, clarity, and wit of expression, and timely significance make it a book of major importance. No one should talk about southern politics who has not read it."

+ Pol Sci Q 65:136 Mr '50 750w

Reviewed by B. I. Wiley

Social Educ 14:233 My '50 800w

Reviewed by R. B. Vance

Social Forces 29:91 O '50 410w

"The book has unity of conception and composition because it was directed and written by one of the ablest scholars in its field. . . Dr. Key maintains the objectivity of the scientist, but like the laboratory bacteriologist, he is alert to the malignant capabilities of the organisms under his microscope."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:80 Mr '50 300w

KEYES, MRS FRANCES PARKINSON (WHEELER). All this is Louisiana; an illustrated story book; photography by Elemore Morgan. 317p $5 Harper

917.63 Louisiana—Description and travel 50-6980

Photographs and descriptive text showing the state of Louisiana: its agriculture, industry, recreations, customs, and the types of people who inhabit it.

Booklist 46:273 My 1 '50

"Mrs. Keyes is an excellent and enthusiastic guide. Not a native, she has lived long enough in Louisiana, studying it on behalf of several novels of Louisiana scene, to know it well, and her findings are generally distinguished for accuracy." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Ap 16 '50 700w

"Once divorced from her personal life she can produce sketches of interest, though in romantic journalese. . . The real value of 'All This Is Louisiana' lies in the camera illustrations of these non-tourist features by Elemore Morgan. Though these fall artistically below

KEYES, F. P. W.—Continued
those of Stuart Lynn's recent book, 'New Orleans,' they are honest and unpretentious." Hubert Creekmore
+ — N Y Times p12 Ap 30 '50 220w
San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 7 '50 350w
Sat R of Lit 33:47 Je 17 '50 170w

"The mixture is fine and provides one of the best word-picture descriptions ever done of any American region." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p10C My 14 '50 240w
Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Jl '50

KEYES, MRS FRANCES PARKINSON (WHEELER). Cost of a best seller; il. by Susanne Suba. 126p $2 Messner

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Authorship 50-9958

A short study, full of autobiographical details, in which the author of many successful books gives an account of the difficulties to be faced in her profession.

Booklist 47:94 N 1 '50
Bookmark 10:30 N '50 20w
Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 15 '50 330w

"Somewhat miffed in tone, restricted in interest, this is probably only for the most 'faithful reader.'"
Kirkus 18:451 Ag 1 '50 160w

"This is not a profound book, but it is a spritely and honest one, and will entertain a great many people." Shirley Barker
+ Library J 75:1400 S 1 '50 120w

"It is not till the last chapter that Mrs. Keyes tells why she goes on writing—but the chapter is well worth waiting for." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 O 15 '50 750w
Reviewed by David Dempsey
N Y Times p37 O 8 '50 180w

"If you'd like to know something of what the writing job is like, Mrs. Keyes tells you, and very clearly. It's a good thing, as a matter of fact, for the lay public to know about this background. Readers are likely to understand writers a lot better when they find out how it is. . . Every other writer, best-seller or otherwise, ought to thank her. For the home truths she tells in her personal narrative are truths that apply to everyone, more or less, who's ever had a book in print." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 6 '50 1050w
Reviewed by Evelyn Eaton
Sat R of Lit 33:33 O 21 '50 500w
Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p23A N 5 '50 190w

KEYES, MRS FRANCES PARKINSON (WHEELER). Joy street. 490p $3 Messner 50-10755

"The locale of this romantic novel of the present day is the aristocratic Beacon Hill section of Boston. Roger Field and his young wife Emily Thayer Field are both members of old Boston families and Emily has wealth as well as assured position. They hope to bring together in their home on Joy Street all the different social classes represented by the junior members of the law firm where Roger works—the Italians, Irish and Jews—and have them merge and enjoy each other in harmonious surroundings. Joy Street is concerned with what happened to the idealistic plan and to the people concerned." Library J

Booklist 47:109; 137 N 15 '50; D 1 '50
Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 10 '50 550w

"'Joy Street' presents a true picture. The details, conversations, situations are familiar. . . With native interest and appreciation, this reviewer has avidly explored Boston with William Dean Howells, Robert Grant, brilliant John Marquand, Letitia Osborne, Jean Stafford, and others, but has found most of them limited in scope and excessively satirical, increasing Boston's eccentric reputation. She prefers the broader horizons of 'Joy Street.'" Leslie Grinnell
+ Christian Science Monitor p22 N 28 '50 600w
Kirkus 18:615 O 1 '50 280w

"The interest of the reader is in the characters rather than in the city although its spirit has been captured by the author. The book should enjoy wide popularity. Recommended." H. P. Bolman
+ Library J 75:2001 N 15 '50 140w

"'Joy Street' does not have the quasi-detective-story quality of Mrs. Keyes's preceding success, 'Dinner at Antoine's,' but with like prodigality of appointments and a more general theme it is, to my mind, a more substantial and convincing novel and it is likely to attract an even wider circle of readers." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 3 '50 700w

"Mrs. Keyes' public does not need to be reminded that she knows how to tell a story. However, the state of mind that is Boston has eluded her throughout: the events depicted so briskly in 'Joy Street' could have happened anywhere." John Cournos
N Y Times p56 D 3 '50 290w
New Yorker 26:168 D 9 '50 120w

"It is a complicated tapestry that Mrs. Keyes weaves, cunningly and with an expert shuttle. She handles half a dozen stories in her lavish shadings, but there is no mistaking her firm control of the threads." Josephine Lawrence
+ Sat R of Lit 33:26 D 2 '50 850w
Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p7B D 24 '50 350w
Time 56:104 D 11 '50 500w

KEYES, MRS FRANCES PARKINSON (WHEELER). Therese: saint of a little way. 186p il $3 Messner

B or 92 Therese de l'Enfant Jésus, Saint 50-6572

New edition of a work first published under the title Written in Heaven (Book Review Digest 1937). "The terrible disasters which befell Lisieux during the Invasion of Normandy bringing about such a tragic change there, and the discovery of certain private letters and other documents, seemed to indicate a new Prologue, additional illustrations, a different form of dedication and a few slight changes in the body of the book. . . The elevation of Therese to the position of secondary patroness of France . . . was an additional reason for preparing this revised version of her story." (Publisher's note)

Booklist 46:264 Ap 15 '50
Reviewed by E. F. Murphy
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 19 '50 600w

"To many who would ordinarily pull away from a religious biography, this highly sentimentalized version of the life of Saint Therese of Lisieux will appeal for its dramatic incident and detailed description. Possibly a deeper spiritual quality might have resulted from more use of the Saint's own work."
+ — Kirkus 18:46 Ja 15 '50 150w

"The lengthy introduction has much new material and is as interesting as the body of the book. Young people in particular should find this biography inspiring." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 75:315 F 15 '50 100w
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 18 '50 300w
Reviewed by A. F. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 33:54 Ap 15 '50 320w
Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Ap '50

KIELY, BENEDICT. In a harbour green. 256p $3 Dutton
50-9315

Tale of life in a community in northern Ireland, not far from Belfast. The time is just before the beginning of World war II.

Booklist 47:97 N 1 '50

"Understanding, pleasantly readable novel of Irish small town life." J. M. Flynn
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 S 17 '50 350w

+ Kirkus 18:366 Jl 1 '50 220w

"An exceedingly well-written and entertaining novel." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 75:1407 S 1 '50 70w

"A quiet but (for its class) unusually confident novel, carrying off its skill with grace. There is a certain formalism about it which some readers may consider quaintly archaic: seduction, for instance, is followed by a sort of retribution. If they can accept this as pastoral convention or Irish whim, there is much to admire in this well-written and well-mannered book." Norman Shrapnel
+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 4 '49 170w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
Nation 171:273 S 23 '50 50w

"It is passably written and evenly told, and it avoids several of the faults common to contemporary Irish fiction, a virtue which may have resulted from its author's previous book, a critical study of Eire's modern techniques of tale telling. . . As an Irish novel, 'In a Harbour Green' has universal as well as local touches, and they are welcome gifts from individualistic Eire. Mr. Kiely is no great shakes as a stylist, and his poetic bursts are not very bright, but he knows people, Irish and otherwise, and he knows how to tell a story about them." Thomas Sugrue
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 10 '50 650w

"A simple, unaffected, altogether refreshing picture of contemporary Irish life." John Chase
+ N Y Times p34 O 22 '50 230w

"The story contains a good deal of rage and laughter; and a certain amount of rather foggy bitterness."
New Yorker 26:119 S 9 '50 80w

"In his mastery of irony and pity Mr. Kiely crosses the border of literary craftsmanship into the high realm of art. His irony has detachment without cynicism. There is no core of tenderness in his pity. He neither condemns nor judges, leaving each man alone with his secret. Though his plot involves a multitude of characters, what stands out in the end is the loneliness of the human soul. Your true Irish artist, in short, can only view life through the mysterious screen of eternity." A. F. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 33:37 O 28 '50 320w

"Written with distinction. . . . There are some quite vivid sketches of child life here and there, but the grown-up characters do not emerge clearly from the curious fog of vagueness that surrounds the town. Mr. Kiely can write well, but he is too apt to succumb to that sad, subdued manner, midway between whimsy and whining, to which so many Irish writers are prone."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p709 N 4 '49 300w

KIENZLE, GEORGE JACOB, and DARE, EDWARD H. Climbing the executive ladder. 247p $2.95 McGraw 658.3124 Success. Executives 50-7019

"A self-training course for people who want to succeed." (Subtitle) "This is straightforward advice on how to recognize, develop and use qualities necessary to success in business." (Wis Lib Bul)

Booklist 46:330 Jl 1 '50

"This book is a self-training course for all who want to reach executive level. It grew from a human relations program used by the New York Central system." Winifred Baum
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Jl 9 '50 50w

"The most important aspect of the book is the type of check lists and charts. Through these, the authors' procedure is made applicable to others, not only junior executives who are seeking advancement, but their seniors, who need occasional check-ups on themselves."
+ Kirkus 18:155 Mr 1 '50 110w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:1297 Ag '50 60w

"For any who are interested in this kind of life, the Kienzle-Dare book has many practical suggestions for self-development and checking on that development, and a host of very pat success and failure stories to make the text readable." M. S.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 Je 18 '50 130w

Wis Lib Bul 46:24 Je '50

KIERAN, JOHN. Introduction to birds; il. by Don Eckelberry. 77p $2 Garden City pub. co.
598.2 Birds—North America 50-6599

A guide to about one hundred of the more common birds of North America. The illustrations are in color, mainly of male birds.

Booklist 46:338 Jl 1 '50

"In all, this is an ideal spark to fire the interest of anyone of any age who does not know birds, but who is not hopelessly indifferent." A. C. Ames
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Ap 9 '50 170w

"Mr. Kieran chats a bit about each of his bird friends. He knows birds intimately, but he wears his learning lightly. His is a very modest book, and likely to prove a very useful one."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 14 '50 200w

"This isn't a children's book, but children will love it. It is for readers of all ages, for anyone who wants to know more about the birds he sees and would like to know them by name. The Kieran text is simple and direct. The Eckelberry illustrations are excellent, most of them taken from the same splendid plates used in the comprehensive 'Audubon Bird Guide,' published in 1946." H. B.
+ N Y Times p15 Ap 9 '50 150w

+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 26 '50 230w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 My '50

KIMBALL, ALICE H., comp. Bibliography of research on heavy hydrogen compounds; ed. by Harold C. Urey and Isidor Kirshenbaum. 350p $3 McGraw 546.11 Hydrogen—Isotopes—Bibliography. Deuterium compounds—Bibliography 49-10615

"Bibliography of scientific articles relating to research on the properties of heavy hydrogen and its compounds. . . A total of 2,191 articles is listed. The main section consists of a numbered, alphabetical listing, according to the name of the senior author. . . A second section lists the numbers of the entries dealing with selected topics such as abundance, analytical methods, electrochemical properties, separation and spectroscopic constants, to mention a few. A third section lists those entries, under appropriate headings, dealing with compounds of heavy hydrogen." U S Quarterly Bkl

"The bibliography is well done; the planning and execution of the book should be of interest and value to bibliographers in other fields of science. As far as the reviewer can tell the bibliography is complete." F. G. Brickwedde
+ Chem & Eng N 27:3590 N 28 '49 270w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:19 Mr '50

"There has been great interest in heavy hydrogen since its discovery in 1931, particularly as a stable isotopic tracer. This bibliography should be very useful both to the beginner in the use and study of heavy hydrogen and to those already engaged in some phase of this general subject."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:551 D '49 200w

KIMBALL, MARIE (GOEBEL) (MRS SIDNEY FISKE KIMBALL). Jefferson: the scene of Europe, 1784 to 1789. 357p il map $6 Coward-McCann

B or 92 Jefferson, Thomas 50-7085

The third volume of the author's scholarly and monumental work on Jefferson. This installment covers the five years Jefferson, as American Minister to France, spent in Europe. For earlier volumes see Book Review Digest 1943 and 1947. Index.

"To the present reviewer this is the best of the volumes of the series published to date. Based upon a vast amount of research, the work is yet clear and easily readable. Mrs. Kimball is to be congratulated for the standard of excellence she is maintaining in her biography of this great American." Christopher Crittenden

+ Am Hist R 56:122 O '50 480w

Booklist 46:209; 274 Mr 1 '50; My 1 '50

"Here is a book that can be enjoyed, for it has charm, personality, and a lyrical quality. It is T. Jefferson at his happiest and poetic best, which is high stature in American thought and speech." R. J. Graf

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 16 '50 550w

Christian Science Monitor p6 My 6 '50 350w

Current Hist 18:355 Je '50 40w

Reviewed by J. H. Berthel

Library J 75:557 Ap 1 '50 210w

"Mrs. Kimball's skilfully articulated, rigorously authentic, charmingly written, and felicitously illustrated account of Jefferson's five years in Europe lives fully up to its title—itself a borrowing of Jeffersonian phraseology—for Jefferson in his European setting is its controlling theme." George Genzmes

+ Nation 171:173 Ag 19 '50 300w

Reviewed by George Dangerfield

New Repub 123:18 S 4 '50 850w

"From the human interest standpoint the most interesting episode in Jefferson's life in France is the affair with Maria Cosway, but this Mrs. Kimball dismisses in a rather hoity-toity fashion. . . Equally astonishing is Mrs. Kimball's description of Jefferson's relation with Abigail Adams as 'a friendship that was to survive all vicissitudes and subsequently to bloom anew toward the close of their lives.' In view of the fact that when Jefferson—inadvertently, as he always claimed—fired John Quincy Adams, John's mother, Abigail, wrote the President a letter that took the hide off him and never again addressed him except for a note of condolence on the death of his daughter, this assertion is strange, to put it mildly. . . Such points as these impose a certain caution upon the reader in accepting the Kimball estimate of Jefferson, the statesman. But there is no question that she has supplied a more complete picture than any one else of the environment in which he moved. When it comes to background, she is as photographic as Bowers is impressionistic; both contribute to the picture." G. W. Johnson

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ap 16 '50 1600w

Reviewed by Douglass Adair

N Y Times p6 Jl 2 '50 700w

"Mrs. Kimball has described Jefferson's activities as Minister, his travels, his circle of friends, his single romance, his contact with the French Revolutionists, and his adventures among the arts and artists. The latter chapters are, indeed, the best in the book. The author, at home in the arts, writes about them with lively sympathy. But the book as a whole is most disappointing. There is no Jefferson in it, only an historic name." S. K. Padover

— + Sat R of Lit 33:13 Je 17 '50 1000w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:304 S '50 300w

KIMBROUGH, EMILY (MRS JOHN WRENCH). Innocents from Indiana; drawings by Alice Harvey. 229p $2.75 Harper

818 50-10305

Reminiscences of the author's childhood in Chicago. The family had lived in Muncie, Indiana, until Emily was eleven, so she had a difficult time readjusting to city ways. But eventually she lived down her reputation as a "hayseed from Indiana" and learned city ways.

Booklist 47:69; 92 O 15 '50; N 1 '50

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 29 '50 470w

Christian Science Monitor p13 D 9 '50 360w

"Somewhat quieter in general tone than the hilarious It Gives Me Great Pleasure, but still amusing as only Emily Kimbrough can be. . . Surely popular for pick-up reading, and should have a plus sale for older girls."

+ Kirkus 18:576 S 15 '50 220w

"Miss Kimbrough had fun writing this book, which is probably one reason it is fun to read. Anyway, in 'The Innocents from Indiana' she has done it again; again it is affectionate, warm, amusing and very young and gay." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 O 22 '50 1150w

"It is all very wholesome, trivial and nostalgic. The illustrations are by Alice Harvey, a lady too long absent from the publishing scene. Her sketches in black and white add a good deal of gay authority to the whole affair." Phyllis McGinley

+ N Y Times p18 O 22 '50 650w

New Yorker 26:133 O 28 '50 90w

Springf'd Republican p10C D 10 '50 240w

Wis Lib Bul 46:15 N '50

KIMMEL, LEWIS HENRY. Taxes and economic incentives. 217p $2.50 Brookings

336.295 Taxation—U.S. Income tax—U.S. 50-8388

"The effect of federal and state individual and corporate income taxes, excises, property and payroll taxes upon incentives to work and invest is analyzed here. The results of a questionnaire to businessmen are presented, showing what they consider to be the effects of many aspects of taxation. Recommendations based on the analysis are also made. The opening chapter discusses the nature of taxable capacity and reviews theories of tax incidence. The income taxes—to which three-fifths of the book is devoted—are found to be the principal encroacher on economic incentives." U S Quarterly Bkl

Am Pol Sci R 44:1045 D '50 20w

"Well organized dispassionate monograph." R. G. Blakey

+ Ann Am Acad 272:245 N '50 550w

Christian Century 67:791 Je 28 '50 200w

"I accept some of these recommendations as sound approaches to a tax system in accord with the public interest. And I regard the book in general as a considerable contribution in revealing what would happen if business were given a free hand in writing the tax system." H. M. Groves

+ — J Pol Econ 58:460 O '50 700w

Management R 39:636 O '50 80w

"Like most Brookings reports, this takes a generally conservative tack, but it is also somewhat iconoclastic and wholly undoctrinaire. Furthermore, it comes as close to being a readable, responsible, and practical handbook on overall tax policy for the ordinary voting taxpayer as anything this reviewer has seen."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 S 2 '50 310w

"The book pulls together in one convenient place many of the much-discussed and argued phases of current tax problems. In addition, by presenting the results of questionnaires, it indicates the thinking and attitudes of business. The text is not technical, and can be easily understood by those having some knowledge of the many problems considered."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:320 S '50 240w

KING, MARIAN. Coat of many colors; the story of Joseph; il. by Steele Savage. 165p $2.50 Lippincott

221.92 Joseph, the patriarch—Juvenile literature 50-14665

The story of Joseph, retold for young people. The author follows the biblical story closely giving direct quotation from the Book of Genesis for conversation, filling in the details of background and customs with knowledge gained by research and study. For readers of high school age.

Reviewed by F. D. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 N 12 '50 140w

"Miss King blends both the Judaic and the Christian tradition. Her research is painstaking and accurate, but not complicated and technical. She does not seek to penetrate psychologically into motives and events and character. Rather she re-tells a dramatic and significant story." E. D. Canham
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 N 17 '50 320w

"Although some of the scholarship may be questioned, the tone is serious, thoughtful, never ponderous, and the appealing, powerful story is allowed full play."
+ — Kirkus 18:472 Ag 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by M. M. Smith
Library J 75:1913 N 1 '50 90w

"Miss King's style is simple, dignified, and dramatic. For all its imagining of feelings, it is factual in effect rather than fictional." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 24 '50 170w

"Miss King has woven the story of Joseph, of his father, Jacob, and of the brothers into a connected narrative smoothly and skilfully. . . Perhaps the most impressive quality in the book is the vividness of the background."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:59 N 11 '50 190w

KING, WILLARD LEROY. Melville Weston Fuller, chief justice of the United States, 1888-1910. 394p il $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Fuller, Melville Weston. U. S. Supreme court 50-8032

"A biography of an eminent jurist who presided over the Supreme Court for 22 years, during which time important decisions were reached on such cases as the Income Tax Case of 1895, the 'original-package doctrine' and the Insular Cases." (Publishers' Weekly) Bibliography. Index.

"This is in every respect an admirable book." F. S. Philbrick
+ Am Hist R 56:151 O '50 650w

"The book has obviously been a labor of love. It reveals the most painstaking and intelligent research. Yet the mass of material collected is thoroly disciplined and is employed with skill and discrimination. The prose style, which is never ponderous, is frequently illuminated with flashes of humorous insight. Mr. King has written one of the outstanding judicial biografies." F. A. Allen
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 4 '50 410w

Current Hist 19:165 S '50 50w

"A biography not only for the legally minded but also for the general public to whom a man of many-sided personality appeals."
Kirkus 18:255 Ap 15 '50 150w

"An important contribution to constitutional history, though its appeal is limited." H. G. Kelley
Library J 75:1045 Je 15 '50 110w

"This is altogether a delightful book, full of good stories and of odds and ends of information culled from the Fuller papers and from personal recollections. It is by no means conclusive on Fuller himself: There is still room for one of those learned monographs on the Judicial Philosophy of Fuller. But it fills a niche all its own." H. S. Commager
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 D 3 '50 900w

"The author has distilled his documents and interviews into an attractive and scholarly narrative. His book is important not because it is the first biography of a bygone jurist or because it revives some obsolete legal controversies, but because it discloses an exceptional 'Chief' and a strangely winning human being. . . The sole significant defect of this book is that Mr. King undertakes to defend Fuller's less palatable decisions, for, when he does so, he generally becomes uncritical and fond. . . By portraying the qualities that made Fuller so successful a 'Chief,' this book becomes a rewarding text in the art of administration. Its chapter-and-verse documentation will satisfy the needs of a very wide audience." E. N. Cahn
+ — N Y Times p27 Je 11 '50 490w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 27 '50 450w

"Lawyers and historians should read this first gentle attempt to find the inner springs of action which led an unoutstanding man to attain to one of our outstandingly important posts." M. L. Ernst
Sat R of Lit 33:19 Ag 5 '50 1150w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:305 S '50 240w

KINGDON, FRANK, ed. As FDR said. See Roosevelt, F. D.

KINGMAN, LEE (MRS ROBERT H. NATTI). Philippe's hill; il. by Hildegard Woodward. 86p $2 Doubleday

50-10114

Story of a little French-Canadian boy who wanted skis more than anything. When Christmas did not bring them, he made some for himself out of barrel staves and eventually earned a real pair by a deed of bravery and courage.

Booklist 47:142 D 1 '50

"This story will be much enjoyed by small boys, but it does not have quite the warmth of the author's lovely Best Christmas of last year."
Horn Bk 26:469 N '50 50w

"Just the ticket for young skiing enthusiasts."
+ Kirkus 18:463 Ag 15 '50 90w

"Without stretching plausibility one bit, Lee Kingman has skillfully made a small boy be a Big Help." S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p12 D 24 '50 170w

KININMONTH, CHRISTOPHER. Children of Thetis; a study of islands and islanders in the Aegean. 224p il $3.05 Macdonald & co.

914.99 Islands of the Aegean [50-19599]

"Most people have what one might call 'Meccas' of the imagination—objectives they desire to fulfill at least once during their lifetime. To Christopher Kininmonth, a young Englishman and a confirmed Philhellene, a visit to Corfu and a passion for Homer made him fix his mind on the islands of the Aegean. . . The author describes his voyages from island to island, mostly by caïque, and the life of the 'Children of Thetis,' the present day islanders." N Y Times

"Mr. Kininmonth avoids sentimentality and whimsy, temptations to which so many literary Philhellenes succumb, but describes with an artist's eye the extraordinary beauty of the scenery and the rites and festivals that take place there, and he tells with understanding of the lore and the human stories of the friends that he made. . . There is one serious criticism to make. No travel book should lack a map." Steven Runciman
+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 3 '50 390w

"Mr. Kininmonth is very informative and civilised, but somehow a little pedestrian. [He] lacks, I think, the poet's eye: that is to say he cannot describe things in terms of other things with a feeling of unexpected exactness. His prose lulls but never arrests, and his generalisations, while usually sensible do not quite strike home. More precision, more atmosphere,

KININMONTH, CHRISTOPHER—Continued
a fixed point of narrative and a map would have made The Children of Thetis something more than the competent but rather unexciting book it is." Alan Ross

New Statesman & Nation 38:652 D 3 '49 650w

"Though at times the commentary is reminiscent of the sound-track of a travelogue, the book is for the most part fresh and lively. Excellent photographs add character and offset the absence of a map." Robert Knittel

+ N Y Times p24 Ap 30 '50 180w

"His best gift lies in the born traveller's ability to understand, to adjust himself to the spirit and the tempo of a saint's anniversary, a village drinking-bout, or any of the other social occasions of the peasant calendar. Mr. Kininmonth succeeds completely in recreating these scenes because he can accept the villager's sense of time, and yet is never afraid to admit when he is bored. . . The book is finely and generously illustrated."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p810 D 9 '49 800w

KINLEY, DAVID. Autobiography. 167p il $3 Univ. of Ill.

B or 92 Illinois. University 49-11659

"David Kinley devoted his great talents as scholar and as administrator to the University of Illinois and through it to the state and to the nation for a period of nearly forty years. He came to the university in 1893 as a young assistant professor of economics, and after only one year of service was named dean of the College of Literature and Arts. Fifteen years later, he relinquished the college deanship to become dean of the Graduate School and to direct the new courses in commerce. In 1920, he was made president of the University of Illinois and retired ten years later. These chapters reflect their author's keen interest in the many great economic and political issues of the first third of the twentieth century." U S Quarterly Bkl

"The introduction to this posthumous publication, by Professor Robert M. Haig, one of Kinley's few but most distinguished students, is a worthy and discriminating tribute. It will help the reader understand the man, both his strength and the limitations that made it hard for him to write a very vivid autobiography." G. S. F.

Am Hist R 55:1009 Jl '50 340w

"Mr. Kinley writes with a bare-boned objectivity. Of his personal life the reader will learn little. There is a good deal here, however, of what a man of distinction in the field thinks of American higher education. The volume should be of value to college and university administrators and to members of the governing boards of higher institutions of learning."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:43 Mr '50 300w

KINNEY, RALPH PARSONS. Complete book of furniture repair and refinishing; easy to follow guide with step-by-step methods. 240p il $3.50 Scribner

684 Furniture—Repairing 50-9191

"The primary aim is to furnish workers with information and practical suggestions, regarding the repair and refinishing of Antique and all other types of furniture. . . Part I refers to the selection and buying of Antique furniture, the four steps of restoration, the work and materials used, etc. Part II describes the tools used, the shop, shop practice and hints, etc." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 47:90 N 1 '50

Bookmark 10:4 O '50 40w

"This should prove a very useful handbook."

+ Kirkus 18:506 Ag 15 '50 170w

"Much information is given which would be hard to find in any other book and most operations are described in minute detail in step-by-step fashion. Nevertheless, the word 'complete' should have been omitted from the title. Several topics, such as the weaving of rush seats, have been omitted altogether, and a few others, for example, the refinishing of stencilled furniture, are treated much too sketchily. The book certainly deserves acquisition for any active library shelf of books on the subject, but don't throw away the books already there." R. R. Hawkins

+ — Library J 75:1302 Ag '50 110w

"This is a valuable guide for the beginner as well as the experienced workman." E. J.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 S 3 '50 50w

KINTNER, WILLIAM R. Front is everywhere; militant communism in action. 274p il $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press

335.4 Communism 50-12297

"Author, now at Fort Leavenworth, started research for this book while doing graduate work at Georgetown University. He believes that an overruling military purpose shapes every aspect of Communist organization. Kintner endeavors to prove his point by examining history of Marxist movement from origins to era of Lenin and Stalin. Volume contains some significant observations, based on wide acquaintance with Communist literature." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:128 D 1 '50

"The finest dispassionate study of communism to date." Walter Trohan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 17 '50 360w

"Recommended for larger public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 75:1823 O 15 '50 110w

Reviewed by A. H. Raskin

N Y Times p3 D 17 '50 1550w

"Within the limits imposed by Mr. Kintner's approach, 'The Front Is Everywhere' contains some shrewd observations and much useful information on the machinations of the Communist parties throughout the world." M. T. Florinsky

+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 N 11 '50 800w

KIPHUTH, ROBERT JOHN HERMAN, and BURKE, HARRY M. Basic swimming. 125p il $3 Yale univ. press

797.2 Swimming 50-7070

This is a self-teaching manual for swimmers which "attempts to show men, women, and children how to learn to swim or, if they can already swim, how to do the basic strokes properly." (Pref) The authors are two Yale coaches who use land drills and underwater photography in their teaching. No index.

Booklist 46:272 My 1 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '50

KIRK, PAUL LELAND. Quantitative ultramicroanalysis. 310p il $5 Wiley

545 Chemistry, Analytic—Quantitative. Microchemistry 50-5699

"Standard methods require samples of about one milligram in size. In this new book, a more refined technique is described, in which quantities as small as one microgram may be used. Such an ultra-refined technique is required in many analyses in biochemical research and radiochemistry where the quantities available are minute. Apparatus and practical laboratory procedures are both discussed in full detail. There are more than 100 illustrations, most of which pertain to apparatus. The book is intended for graduate students and advanced researchers who are familiar with standard methods." (N Y New Tech Bks) Chapter references. Index.

"The author in his preface states that this volume is primarily directed to biochemists, clinicians and biological investigators; however, the reviewer is of the opinion that a large number of other chemical investigators will stand to profit a great deal from the reading of this book. . . Professor Kirk's book satisfies a long felt problem of assembling a widely scattered literature in the field of ultramicro analysis." K. D. Fleischer

+ Chem Eng 57:238 Ag '50 450w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:498 Mr 15 '50 130w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:18 Mr '50
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:236 Je '50 150w

KIRKBRIDE, RONALD DE LEVINGTON. Still the heart sings. 262p $2.75 Fell 50-7671

Tale of a New Hampshire family, the Rossies. Zekel was a sculptor, whose unconventional statues shocked his Puritan neighbors. His family consisted of his faithful wife; his daughter, Leda, who roamed the forests with the wild animals she loved; and twin sons, who were being taught by a visiting cousin. The story ends when the enraged townspeople burn the farm buildings and Leda commits suicide.

Booklist 46:304 Je 1 '50

"An honest failure can be treated with respect. This book is synthetic, fancy, and pretentious. If I have ever read a worse novel in the course of a long literary lifetime, I am mercifully unable to remember it." Edmund Fuller
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 28 '50 450w

"The value of this book depends on the reader, for it is sometimes elusive, and, when explicit, does violence to the grooves in which many people think and feel. . . In the style there is at times an American Gothic humor, and often a high degree of beauty." W. K. R.
Christian Science Monitor p6 Jl 29 '50 240w

"A sometimes lyric, sometimes near-plush style gives this an old-fashioned effect, reminiscent at times of Gene Stratton-Porter."
Kirkus 18:263 My 1 '50 180w

"It is a narrative of pure feeling, an exposition of emotions without sharp definition, lacking the exploratory completeness expected of the novel. . . 'Still the Heart Sings' takes us into a very small but nonetheless enchanting world where we may briefly watch the various elemental needs and desires of life in motion." J. M. Grant
Sat R of Lit 33:30 Je 10 '50 170w

KISCH, GUIDO. Jews in medieval Germany; a study of their legal and social status. 655p $10 Univ. of Chicago press
296 Jews—Legal status, laws, etc. Jews—Political and social conditions. Jews in Germany 49-10741

"Dr. Kisch is one of the greatest living authorities on the history of European law. He was professor of legal history successively at Leipzig, Königsberg, Prague and Halle until he had the honor of being dismissed by the Nazi government in 1933. He has been in the United States since 1935. A few years later he wrote Sachsenspiegel and Bible [Book Review Digest 1942] in which he demonstrated that German law in the 13th century was not purely Nordic and was only slightly Roman but was very vitally influenced by the Hebrew-Christian tradition. Now he narrows his field to the consideration of medieval law as it specifically affected the Jews and of those laws which were made to define and limit the rights of Jews, and at the same time widens it to include not only Saxony in the 13th century but all Germany throughout the Middle Ages." (Christian Century) Bibliography. Indexes.

"The publication of such a book as this, in times like these, raises the question of the social responsibility of the historical scholar. . . The serious American reader accordingly, who, with considerable anticipation, picks up a book of this general title, hopes to find therein help not only better to understand the barbaric and cruel aberration of the Nazis but also to improve the quality and extent of our own democracy. There can be no doubt of the author's competence to give his American audience this help. He is a learned representative of the German school of legal historians. . . And yet he chooses to ignore this paramount need of the moment and to indulge his professional privilege of restricting himself 'to a very limited field.' As if nothing had happened to the world in recent years, we are presented on a matter of such critical import with another typical product of rather contentious German scholarship." E. N. Johnson
Am Hist R 56:88 O '50 1000w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 67:303 Mr 8 '50 1250w

"Dr. Kisch is grounded in many languages, including Hebrew; trained to grapple with original material, finicky in conclusion, sublimely indifferent to literary style and often inclined to be furious with those whose views chance to diverge from his own. Those unaccustomed to the typical German combination of minute preparation and ferocious press in intellectual attack will find Dr. Kisch a most formidable novelty. When he is done with them they may be prostrated, but never again will they be ignorant of Jewry-law in the Middle Ages." E. B. Garside
+ N Y Times p24 D 4 '49 800w
Times [London] Lit Sup p733 N 17 '50 1150w
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:508 D '49 280w

KISER, MRS MARTHA GWINN. Roses for Bonny-Belle; il. by Becky. 137p $2 Random house 50-7174

A story of small town life in Indiana in 1908. The Puggsteins wanted to adopt their niece, Bonny-Belle, but were too poor to provide for her properly. Uncle Pugg spent most of his time reading the newspapers pasted on the kitchen wall, so Aunt Puggy had to leave home with Bonny to take a store job in Bloomfield in order to obtain funds. Before she left she repapered the kitchen, pasting the newspapers upside down. This gave Uncle time to think about his sin of indolence and soon the family was reunited in Bloomfield with jobs for all and plans for Bonny's immediate adoption. For ages 8 to 12.

Booklist 46:306 Je 1 '50

"The author of 'Rainbow for Me' and 'Sunshine for Merrily' has written another of her old-fashioned stories about an appealing little girl, which little girls of today and their mothers, too, should take to their hearts." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 14 '50 200w

"A vigorous and entertaining story."
+ Kirkus 18:61 F 1 '50 120w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:636 Ap 15 '50 70w

"Character is honestly portrayed, particularly in the cases of Aunt and Uncle Pugg and of Bonny; there is a sense of humor, of the ridiculous, and the heroic. The hopes and disappointments of a recalled childhood are presented without sentimentality, and an era when imagination was more necessary for enjoyment than toys is delightfully portrayed." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 75:703 Ap 15 '50 80w

"Though sentimental and contrived too patly, the story has deep values in its picture of people at the point of sheer poverty finding joy in so much that does not cost money. Plenty of children without financial security will find both laughter and comfort in its pages. The pictures are delightful. They really explain the characters."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 7 '50 260w

"The basic ingredients of this story are the good old-fashioned virtues. Happily, these include a good deal of real humor, but too often the basic goodness of this story is smothered in a breathless, sentimental style." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p18 Je 4 '50 180w

KISER, M. G.—Continued

"This is a slight but pleasant little story for girls of twelve or thirteen. . . Readers will feel, by the time the story is finished, a real affection for the characters and a satisfaction in the happy ending." M. C. D.

+ Sat R of Lit 33:43 S 16 '50 180w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 My '50

KJELGAARD, JAMES ARTHUR. Chip, the dam builder; il. by Ralph Ray. 233p $2.50 Holiday

Beavers—Legends and stories 50-10186

The life story of a beaver, for ages eleven to fifteen.

Booklist 47:103 N 1 '50

"This is an exciting story, and a true one. Nature lovers, young and old, will marvel again at the author's amazing knowledge of wilderness life and his ability to re-create it so vividly." P. G.

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 N 12 '50 200w

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 60w

"In Chip, the beaver, [the author] has created a character with real personality."

+ Horn Bk 26:376 S '50 360w

Kirkus 18:355 Jl 1 '50 160w

"Recommended." Margaret Miller

+ Library J 75:2017 N 15 '50 80w

"Without any animal talk, [the author] does a fine piece of nature study." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 12 '50 130w

"Jim Kjelgaard is always able to bring plot and action to his stories of wild animals. The beaver, who is the hero of this one, is one of the most convincing of his animal characters."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:57 N 11 '50 140w

KJELGAARD, JAMES ARTHUR. Wild trek. 253p $2.50 Holiday

Dogs—Legends and stories 50-7341

An adventure story, a sequel to Snow Dog (Book Review Digest 1948). Here Chiri, the snow dog, accompanies his master on a journey to the Caribous to rescue a naturalist whose plane has conked out over that unknown Canadian mountain range.

Booklist 46:321 Je 15 '50

Bookmark 10:12 O '50 30w

"A stirring tale of high adventure, a high point in the author's growing list of fine books for teen-agers. Young people will find inspiration in the example of courage and endurance set by the two men and, especially, in their concern for each other's welfare." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 My 28 '50 230w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 26:286 Jl '50 90w

"Excellent fast-paced action yarn reminiscent of the works of Jack London."

+ Kirkus 18:207 Ap 1 '50 170w

Reviewed by M. A. Herr

Library J 75:1055 Je 15 '50 80w

"The style is excellent, with a factual, serious quality that carries conviction." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 21 '50 210w

"The book has a number of elements that will make it a sure-fire hit with boys—an exciting manhunt, a Crusoe-like struggle for survival, and a fine partnership between a man and his dog." Howard Boston

+ N Y Times p16 Je 18 '50 140w

"A sequel to 'Snow Dog.' It is more dramatic but not any better than that tale. . . In the challenge of the wilderness both men, and Chiri, emerge as definite characters—admirable in their courage and self-control. There are some vivid word pictures of the Caribou country and its wild denizens. This is a fine story."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:27 Jl 8 '50 230w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 Je '50

KLEIN, ERNEST L. How to stay rich; the story of democratic American capitalism. 196p $2.75 Farrar, Strauss

338.973 Capitalism. U.S.—Economic policy 50-6905

"A fervent plea for democracy, private capitalism, and full production, linked in an indissoluble trinity. The author, a world traveler and industrial consultant, dedicates his study to the independent American voter. . . Democratic capitalism, he argues, has proved its flexibility, its capacity for reform and progress. Every proposal of a 'welfare' measure should be made to show whether it impairs democracy, or capitalism, or full production." (N Y Times) No index.

Reviewed by Thomas Furlong

Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 Ap 16 '50 300w

Management R 39:497 Ag '50 100w

Reviewed by Palmer Harman

N Y Times p30 Ap 30 '50 230w

KLEINBERG, JACOB. Unfamiliar oxidation states and their stabilization. 131p $3 Univ. of Kan.

541.39 Oxidation 50-7192

"A short monograph of considerable interest to inorganic chemists engaged in research. The author has combed a wide range of literature for information on uncommon or little investigated oxidation states of the halogens and selected metals and has presented the theories and the reported experimental results critically." (Library J) References. Index.

"The author succeeds very well in accomplishing his objectives. The material is interesting and clearly presented. The book is well illustrated and shows good craftsmanship on the part of the press. This volume will be a welcome addition to the rapidly growing modern literature on inorganic chemistry." W. C. Fernelius

+ Chem & Eng N 28:2296 Jl 3 '50 300w

"Valid conclusions are carefully distinguished from those which need further research and substantiation. Although the book deals with a very specialized aspect of chemistry, it deserves to be added to active chemical collections, especially those used by graduate students and research chemists." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:1050 Je 15 '50 110w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:51 Jl '50

KLEPPNER, OTTO. Advertising procedure. 4th ed 775p il $6.65; to schools $5 Prentice-Hall

659.1 Advertising 50-5828

"A new edition of a standard authority, first published in 1925 [Book Review Digest 1926] now as up-to-date as television. Part I: Purposes of Advertising; Part 2: Preparation of Advertisements, (procedures and methods of copy preparation and production); Part 3: Delivering the Advertisement, (selection of media, how and why); Part 4: The Machinery in Motion, (market research, copy testing, campaigns, organization of the advertising business); Part 5: The Place of Advertising, (economic and social aspects). Appendixes: Federal Laws Relating to Advertising; Reading Suggestions (classified list); Glossary of Procedure." Library J

Booklist 46:264 Ap 15 '50

Library J 75:565 Ap 1 '50 100w

KLINEBERG, OTTO. Tensions affecting international understanding; a survey of research. 227p $2.25; pa $1.75 Social science res. council

301.15 Research. International relations. Social psychology 50-8389

"Written to aid the UNESCO program to study the tensions which affect international understanding, this study is arranged in four parts: Personality in Relation to Nationality; National Stereotypes; Attitudes and Their Modification; and Influences Making for Aggression. A final chapter contains a summary and conclusion." (Library J) Index.

"In all cases in which the present reviewer is familiar with the original reports, he finds Klineberg's restatement of the author's position to be extremely fair. His criticisms reflect a sure grasp of the disciplines concerned and a catholic willingness to see some contribution in nearly every discovery. At the same time many of the numerous shortcomings in the fields surveyed are clearly pointed out. Nevertheless this study cannot be considered a rounded appraisal of social science knowledge concerning international affairs. It is not intended as such, as the author explicitly leaves out of account most of the factors that fall in the domain of traditional political science. Although it is unfair to criticize an author for failing to accomplish what he did not set out to do, it is necessary to evaluate his objectives." Barrington Moore
+ — Am Soc R 15:686 O '50 800w

Reviewed by F. L. Schuman
Ann Am Acad 272:209 N '50 360w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 75:1183 Jl '50 110w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:361 S '50 250w

KLINGMAN, LAWRENCE, and GREEN, GERALD. His majesty O'Keefe. 356p $3.50 Scribner

B or 92 O'Keefe, David Dean. South Sea islands 50-9859

Though partially fictionized this is a true story about David O'Keefe who fled from Savannah in 1870, because he thought he had killed a man, and eventually landed on the Pacific island of Yap. There he built up a fortune and an empire, and was revered by the natives, who called him their king. When the Germans took over years later O'Keefe fled with two of his half-native sons, and was never heard from again.

Booklist 47:62 O 1 '50

"If you want to read fiction-become-truth, of American audacity plus Irish daring, of native customs now covered by the white man's veneer of civilization, of exotic splendor and wealth, read this well told story—so well told, in fact, that I venture it will tell itself right into a screenplay." W. M. Krogman
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 22 '50 430w

Kirkus 18:449 Ag 1 '50 210w

"Recommended." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 75:1292 Ag '50 90w

"This is a book to quicken the pulse of even the most narrow-gutted landsman and a book to set those of strong back and free swinging right arm a-dreaming for fair. . . As a fast, stirring narrative the book is a joy and the well handled details of Micronesian folkways and customs gives it a satisfying and memorable depth." Alfred Stanford
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 22 '50 850w

"The charm of this interesting book is that its style exactly suits the story. When historical background is needed, the authors provide it in solid passages that could have been lifted right out of The Pacific Pilot. When anthropological data are necessary they are given. The dialogue is stilted and pleasantly archaic." J. A. M.
+ N Y Times p27 O 22 '50 700w

"Part of it is obviously fictive—O'Keefe's emotional passages with women, for example—part is obviously historical record. But the authors have succeeded in the almost incredible feat of welding fiction and fact together so closely that it is impossible to detect the joint in any given instance, and at the same time they have produced a book that is both fascinating narrative and a footnote to history. This one should last a long time." Fletcher Pratt
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:29 N 18 '50 600w

KLOSE, NELSON. America's crop heritage; the history of foreign plant introduction by the Federal government. 156p il $3.50 Iowa state college press

631.524 Plant introduction. Agriculture—U.S. Agr50-590

"An outline of the introduction into the U.S.A. by the Federal Government of agricultural plants from foreign countries. The names of the men who took part in the importations are mentioned and their activities are sketched. The emphasis, though, is on the Federal Government's part in the search for the plants and their introduction." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 46:283 My 15 '50

"Should be useful for reference, especially in libraries where there is some emphasis on agriculture." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:874 My 15 '50 100w

"There is good browsing here for any student of American history. And the book stands as a 'must' for the agricultural historian, amateur or professional." R. W. H.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 My 6 '50 330w

Reviewed by H. T. Pinkett
Social Studies 41:330 N '50 800w

KNEALE, NIGEL. Tomato Cain, and other stories; with a foreword by Elizabeth Bowen. 300p $3 Knopf

50-12595

Contents: Tomato Cain; Enderby and the sleeping beauty; "Minuke"; Clog dance for a dead farce; Essence of strawberry; Lotus for Jamie; "Oh, mirror, mirror"; God and Daphne; Jeremy in the wind; The excursion; Flo; The putting away of Uncle Quaggin; The photograph; Chains; The tarroo-ushtey; Mrs. Mancini; Curphey's follower; Quiet Mr. Evans; Tootie and the cat licences; Peg; Zachary Crebbin's angel; Bini and Bettine; The stocking; Who—me, Signor?; The pond; They're scared, Mr. Bradlaugh; The calculation of N'Bambwe; Nature study; The patter of tiny feet.

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 26 '50 380w

"As a whole, well above the general level of today's writing."
+ Kirkus 18:535 S 1 '50 160w

"Some of the emotions and events in the stories are familiar and logical, others deal with the unfathomable and the uncanny, but all are enhanced by a neat and compact style. Recommended." C. J. Roth
+ Library J 75:1902 N 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Angus Wilson
New Statesman & Nation 38:656 D 3 '49 270w

"Whether they are mere fragments expending themselves with a sometimes shattering force upon a single sharp incident or grim situation, or are told with a deceptively leisurely air of quiet amiability, they have one salient trait in common: the stark neatness and completeness of their conception and execution. Nigel Kneale brings to the short story craftsmanship of a compelling sort." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 N 12 '50 550w

"The stories are crawling with the technical virtues of precision, economy and objectivity, but there is precious little to bite on. What is wrong with this kind of work has been summed up once and for all in the question put by the South African poet Campbell to a colleague who wrote hardly any poetry but

KNEALE, NIGEL—Continued
a great deal of criticism invoking the desirability of precision, economy and, above all, restraint: 'I see the snaffle and the curb all right, but where's the bloody horse?' " Anthony West
— + N Y Times p6 N 5 '50 360w

"His work is unpleasantly superficial and the neat little twist with which he finishes off each sketch inevitably appears more bland than ironic."
New Yorker 26:165 N 11 '50 80w

"Mr. Nigel Kneale writes with certainty: he is original without being clever; he makes his points without the beating of any worn-out literary drum. Enderby and the Sleeping Beauty, Curphey's Follower and The Photograph—this last as good and as haunting as Graham Greene's The Innocent—are stories that I shall remember." Bryan Forbes
+ Spec 184:738 My 26 '50 180w

Reviewed by Sylva Norman
Spec 184:56 Ja 13 '50 100w

KNIGHT, BRIGID, pseud. See Sinclair, K. H. N.-W.

KNIGHT, CLAYTON, and DURHAM, ROBERT C. Hitch your wagon; the story of Bernt Balchen; decorations by Clayton Knight. 332p $3.50 Bell pub. co, box 71, Drexel Hill, Pa.

B or 92 Balchen, Bernt 50-5788

Biography of Bernt Balchen, Norwegian-American hero of Polar exploration and commander of the 10th Rescue squadron in Alaska.

"The authors of 'Hitch Your Wagon' have done an excellent job of fact-gathering and story-telling, and the saga of Bernt Balchen, from his birth in Norway in 1899 to the present, will thrill every adventure-minded reader. The book is well written, and as its hero wends his way through a welter of details, experiences, and people, one catches the feeling of a man who kept his eye on his individual star and never lost his technicianship during the fabulous, frenzied, inflated, publicity-ridden years that saw aviators and planes hurling themselves at all the dramatic objectives that anybody could think of." E. P. Hanson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 1 '50 1100w

Reviewed by Eric Sevareid
N Y Times p5 D 18 '49 470w

"This is essentially the story of a simple, good-hearted man and of his single-minded devotion to his first love, aviation. It is a well-told, vastly interesting and exciting story, in which the reader is given a rounded picture of Balchen's real character and personality." C. W. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ap 23 '50 450w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich
Sat R of Lit 33:18 Jl 29 '50 220w
Springf'd Republican p17A Ja 8 '50 130w

KNIGHT, CLIFFORD. Yellow cat. 222p $2.50 Dutton

50-5915

Detective story.

"High interest sustained in stark chronicle of a young woman's merciless pursuit of money just beyond her reach."
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Ap 2 '50 70w

"A familiar pattern in a neat, smart retake."
Kirkus 17:663 D 1 '49 70w

"The crime story with the ironic ending seems to be popular this year. Here's another one where you follow the murderer rather than the detective and the mystery lies in how or by what means he will be caught. . . Mr. Knight does a good job in portraying Amy's blandly amoral personality, but he uses a rather forced device to wind up the story."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 19 '50 170w

"The best book that this reviewer has yet seen with a Knight by-line." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p35 Ap 30 '50 170w
New Yorker 26:107 Mr 11 '50 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 9 '50 150w
Sat R of Lit 33:36 Mr 18 '50 50w

KNIGHT, JOHN, pseud. Story of my psychoanalysis. 225p $2.95 McGraw

131.34 Psychoanalysis 50-10447

Written under a pseudonym, this purports to be the full and candid narrative of a man's experience of psychoanalysis.

Booklist 47:150 D 15 '50
Kirkus 18:451 Ag 1 '50 110w

"For mature lay readers, and essential for psychiatric collections. The highly erotic introspection may force this book to the closed shelves of public and college libraries." J. M. Scherr
Library J 75:1655 O 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by Patrick Mullahy
N Y Times p20 D 17 '50 330w
San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 26 '50 270w
Springf'd Republican p30A D 17 '50 240w

KNIPSCHEER, JAMES M. W. (JAMES M. FOX, pseud). Gentle hangman. 216p $2.50 Little 50-8348

Detective story.

Booklist 47:40 S 15 '50
Kirkus 18:268 My 1 '50 70w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Jl 9 '50 220w

"Combines factors as various as radio giveaways, labor racketeering and a touch or two of sexual aberration into a plot of tremendous intricacy." A. B.
N Y Times p21 Jl 9 '50 140w

"Tough and torrid."
Sat R of Lit 33:37 Jl 8 '50 50w
Wis Lib Bul 46:24 S '50

KNOOP, MRS FAITH YINGLING. Lars and the luck stone; il. by John Moment. 182p $2.50 Harcourt

Children in Lapland 50-9394

A story of the Lapps, built around the adventures of Lars Turi during the winter migration when he is searching for the stolen reindeer.

Booklist 47:81 O 15 '50

"One of the few books about the Laplanders, and good one too!"
+ Kirkus 18:513 S 1 '50 130w

"Although the beginning is not convincing and one does not feel that the author has had direct, personal contact with the people, as the story proceeds one gets a good picture of the migrations of the mountain Lapps, their daily life of hunting and meeting the menace of storms and wolves, and interesting bits of folklore and customs." Inger Boye
+ — Library J 75:1913 N 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Siri Andrews
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 12 '50 190w

"The life of the Lapps is portrayed in fascinating detail—the old customs and the older legends—in a vigorous story." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p30 S 17 '50 180w

"It is unusual to find a story of a little-known country so detailed and so convincing in background and action. The folktales that Lars's father tells while the family is resting, the fight with the wolf packs, the great gathering of the Lapps at the annual fair in Norway —all these have warmth and reality."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:56 N 11 '50 150w

KNOPF, MILDRED O. (MRS EDWIN H. KNOPF). Perfect hostess cook book; introd. by June Platt [design and decorations by Warren Chappell and Fritz Kredel]. 499p $3.50 Knopf

641.5 Cookery 50-9591

Contains more than 650 recipes, many of them collected by the author from hotels and restaurants thruout the world. Some of the recipes came from her mother's Austrian cook, who as a young girl had worked in Franz Josef's palace at Schoenbrunn. Index.

Booklist 47:90 N 1 '50

"Mildred O. Knopf has been characterized as 'a perfect hostess as well as a perfect cook,' and her cook book leaves no room for doubt on both scores. . . I like Mildred Knopf's careful listing of ingredients, and the way she takes a cook by the hand and leads her [or him] very clearly and carefully thru the preparation of each recipe, in which she has inserted as many details as seem necessary to make things simple." Morrison Wood

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 15 '50 360w

Kirkus 18:500 Ag 15 '50 130w

"The author's intent was to write her recipes clearly and simply, so that anyone could succeed in making these delicious dishes without fear or hesitation. She has succeeded." Charlotte Turgeon

+ N Y Times p16 O 15 '50 400w

New Yorker 26:171 N 11 '50 160w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 O 14 '50 650w

KNOWLES, MALCOLM S. Informal adult education; a guide for administrators, leaders, and teachers; with a foreword by Harry A. Overstreet. 272p il $4 Assn. press

374 Education of adults 50-8886

"Informal adult education means clubs, forums, reading circles, discussion groups, church classes, and all sorts of cooperative efforts to gain enlightenment in which mutual aid and participation are the key words. These need expert advice even if they do not have—and all the more if they do not have—professional leadership. The author's purpose is to give such advice as to both the organization and the operation of such enterprises." (Christian Century) Bibliography. Index.

+ Christian Century 67:974 Ag 16 '50 300w

Current Hist 19:107 Ag '50 20w

School & Society 72:15 Jl 1 '50 20w

KNOX, JOHN, 1505-1572. History of the reformation in Scotland; ed. by William C. Dickinson. 2v $15 Philosophical lib

274.1 Reformation—Scotland [50-12368]

"The first edition of this work appeared in 1586-87, and there have been many since, the best of which is that prepared by David Laing just over a century ago. Two attempts to attract the general reader have been made in recent years. Yet the work remains largely unknown. In the present History Mr. Dickinson has produced an admirable edition which lies midway between the popular works, tending as they do to water Knox down, and the austere pages of Laing, repelling all but the most studious readers by an abundance of footnotes and a meticulous adherence to Knox's 'wild and erratic' orthography. Laing's transcript, occasionally corrected from the manuscript, has been used." Am Hist R

Reviewed by W. L. Sachse

Am Hist R 55:969 Jl '50 280w

"John Knox's History of the Reformation in Scotland is a unique work. No other history of the Reformation was written by an active participant. . . But had there been many others, this work would still deserve a high position for its inherent quality. It is written in majestic English prose, occasionally enlivened but not marred by an expression from the Scottish dialect. The narrative is lively and frequently spiced by direct conversation. The reliability of the history is open to some qualification, for impartiality could scarcely be expected in one of such intense passions and appalling convictions as John Knox. But he was not devoid of a sense of critical history. He knew the value of sources, often gave citations and gave them accurately." R. H. Bainton

+ Christian Century 67:924 Ag 2 '50 500w

"The labour and skill involved in the analysis of the manuscript are remarkable and put scholars under much obligation to Professor Dickinson, for apart from its intrinsic bibliographical and paleographical interest, this analysis enables us to see the reformer at work over a long period of years, and at work with his secretaries. . . Our debt to Professor Dickinson is indeed great. He has rightly and modestly not attempted to supersede entirely Laing's splendid work, though all students and certainly all general readers will now read the History in his new edition. He has revised the text with an admirable economy of annotation, sufficient to keep his reader aware of Knox's inaccuracies of fact and chronology, to warn him of unfairnesses, and to direct his way to the other contemporary material and the considerable critical literature which has grown, and is still growing up around the story of the events which Knox describes. His introduction to the life and times of the reformer is a competent and well-written essay." F. M. Powicke

+ Hibbert J 48:296 Ap '50 1750w

"Dr. Dickinson has not only cleaned the text; he has improved it by removing to appendices the pièces justificatives which often interrupt it. His notes are short and good; his bibliographical introduction excellent. The whole is a splendid instance of the service which Messrs. Nelson are now performing for scholars in the presentation of historical texts." H. R. Trevor-Roper

+ Spec 183:864 D 16 '49 850w

"The History of the Reformation in Scotland, by Knox, is, in this study, a document of the greatest importance. Furthermore, it takes high rank in the small group of chronicles of great events written by their main architects. It has the added interest for us of being cut, so to speak, out of the matrix of Elizabethan English. Its language has not the suppleness nor the scope of the tongue which the Elizabethans brought to such perfection. But the main lines are all there, and one can see the tremendous and harmonious proportions of the Authorized Version taking shape behind the scaffolding which here both supports and obscures its construction."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p301 My 19 '50 4750w

KNOX, JOHN, 1900- . Chapters in a life of Paul. 168p $2.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

225.92 Paul, Saint 50-5882

"This book contains two almost unrelated studies—a discussion of the chronology of Paul's life and an interpretation of his Christianity. In treating the chronology, Knox is mainly interested in demonstrating that the 'Apostolic Council' of Acts, chapter 15, is the visit of Galatians, chapter 2, and that this visit took place after and not before Paul's evangelistic ministry in Asia, Macedonia, and Greece." (J Religion) Index.

"This book goes a good way toward proving that, as in the case of Jesus, a 'life of Paul' cannot be written. Even so, the title is too modest, for neither title nor preface would lead one to expect the scope of the contents. In less than 140 actual pages of text the career, the personality and the thought of the apostle all are touched on. . . An acute reader of this reconstruction might find places where even Dr. Knox himself makes unconscious assumptions due to unconfirmed data in Acts. . . After this major and somewhat technical part of the book, the human personality of Paul is the subject of one short but very welcome chapter." H. J. Cadbury

KNOX, JOHN—Continued

+ Christian Century 67:560 My 3 '50 600w

"The suggested sequence of events is plausible. Nobody will, I think oppose the major premises of the discussion, but we may question whether these principles or any others should be applied with the extreme rigor of this book. . . The second part of the book is an admirably brief, lucid, and comprehensive summary of Paul's character and his conception of Christianity. It should be pondered by all who may still conceive of Paul as one who turned the simple gospel of Jesus into a harsh, cruelly logical system of doctrine." J. W. Beardslee

+ — J Religion 30:275 O '50 600w

KNOX, JOHN BALLENGER. People of Tennessee; a study of population trends; prepared for the Bureau of sociological research; with the assistance of Jerry W. Combs, jr. [and others] with an introd. by William E. Cole. 191p il maps $3 Univ. of Tenn. press

312 Tennessee—Population 49-48571

"This study of population trends in the State of Tennessee was carried out under the auspices of the Bureau of Sociological Research by a professor of sociology at the state university. . . Relying largely upon data derived from the United States census the author tells the story of population changes in Tennessee from pioneer days to the present. . . There are chapters on national origin, population increase, racial composition, age structure, sex distribution, urban growth, family and marital condition, and a host of other population topics. Sixty-five charts add to the general value of the work." Social Forces

"Prepared for the interested layman, it nevertheless is done with the accuracy which the specialist would approve. . . This work should prove especially helpful for those interested in Tennessee's population and in the development and implementation of policies concerning it."

+ Am Soc R 15:323 Ap '50 130w

Reviewed by Allan Taylor

N Y Times p13 D 25 '49 60w

"In his approach to the subject the author has written admittedly for non-specialists, but there is considerable formal technical presentation which will appeal to population authorities. . . In view of the general adequacy of the book it might seem ungenerous to mention certain imperfections. However, the reviewer feels that the value of the study would have been enhanced considerably by the addition of a chapter on anticipated future population trends in Tennessee and some speculations on their implications. Also, several of the pictures that were used did not fit in well with the text material." T. P. Yeatman

+ — Social Forces 28:450 My '50 270w

KNOX, RONALD ARBUTHNOTT. Enthusiasm; a chapter in the history of religion; with special reference to the 17th and 18th centuries. 622p $6 Oxford

270.6 Protestantism. Church history 50-10375

This study of the seventeenth and eighteenth century religions stresses the various types of enthusiasts: the montanists; donatists; anabaptists; Quakers; Jansenism; quietism; methodism; and other movements. Bibliography. Index.

"His story is concerned with personalities rather than movements. As such it should have a wide appeal, though for the average reader the appeal will be somewhat blunted by Msgr. Knox's annoying habit—which rather suggests intellectual snobbery—of leaving the point of most of his revealing anecdotes untranslated: especially annoying in a work that makes no pretensions to original scholarship." Alban Baer

+ — Commonweal 53:209 D 1 '50 1200w

"The whole sad story is written here, with the details woven together into good narrative history. As for the style—well, Father Knox wrote it, and it is his own, and inimitable. The remarkable feature is the charity he brings to all his judgments. The chapter on Wesley might have been written by a candid but deeply admiring follower, and that on the Jansenists is a really beautiful piece of work." Roger Lloyd

+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 21 '50 360w

KNUDSEN, VERN OLIVER, and HARRIS, CYRIL MANTON. Acoustical designing in architecture. 457p il $7.50 Wiley

729.21 Architectural acoustics 50-6152

"Although much has been written on architectural acoustics, not a great deal of it is available to the average practicing architect whose training in physics and mathematics is at best elementary. Mathematics is employed occasionally in this book, but most of the material is non-mathematical and practical. Theory and other general topics are covered in the three preliminary chapters. Eleven of the remaining chapters are devoted to adequately full discussions of acoustical phenomena, acoustical properties of architectural materials, special problems in sound control and typical calculations made in designing for good acoustical properties. The six final chapters illustrate design procedures for special types of buildings and rooms. The book should be of interest to every architect who has not already become a specialist in architectural acoustics." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:700 Ap 15 '50 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:17 Mr '50

"The present state of knowledge of the behavior of sound in rooms, and methods for correction of acoustic defects in rooms is presented in sufficient detail for all except perhaps research physicists working in the field. . . The treatment is nonmathematical and the book is addressed to architects and students."

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:247 Je '50 180w

KNUDSON, ALBERT CORNELIUS. Basic issues in Christian thought. 220p $2.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury

230 Christianity 50-8538

"Introduction to some basic problems of the Christian faith with constructive suggestions for their solution. Index." Bookmark

Bookmark 9:240 Jl '50 10w

"It is refreshing to read a theologian who can discuss with such simple clarity the profoundest problems of religious thought and who faces them all with the conviction that truth must be reasonable. . . There are several points at which the present reviewer would take a somewhat different position from the author. In particular, he would side with Brightman, as against Knudson, in recognizing some limitation of the power of God over the physical causes of human suffering." A. C. Garnett

+ — Christian Century 67:923 Ag 2 '50 900w

"It is a book which will buttress the faith of Protestant theologians of liberal tendencies. A book for theologians and ministers who are trying to think through the theological issues of the day."

+ Kirkus 18:591 O 1 '50 110w

"Recommended for all libraries with a theology reading public." E. H. Weeks

+ Library J 75:1287 Ag '50 130w

KOBLER, JOHN. Afternoon in the attic; pictures by Chas Addams. 135p $3.75 Dodd

818 Eccentrics and eccentricities 50-10169

A collection of prose sketches from Cosmopolitan, Life, The Saturday Evening Post, Holiday, True, and The New Yorker. Illustrated by Charles Addams, about whom the author has written a biographical sketch. "Mr. Kobler [also] investigates and pays macabre tribute to Mme. Tussaud, the wax-works wizard, her heirs and assigns; the astrologer Myra Kingsley; to a fat medium and her control on the upper West Side; to a chess-playing robot; [to] . . . Kate and Margaret Fox who back in the 1850s almost unhinged Thomas Carlyle, [and] William Cullen Bryant and Horace Greeley with their psychic rappings and spooky paraphernalia." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R)

"The impact of Kobler's writings and Addams' drawings, placed in juxtaposition, is as solid as ham and eggs and just as palatable. . . Obviously this is a splendid and worthwhile volume which even a normal human being, if such there be, would love to have." Robert Cromie

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 O 22 '50 290w

"In addition to writing deftly and wittily about his collection of daredevils, dissenters and oracles of the illegitimate, Mr. Kobler prefaces his tribute with an appraisal of his collaborator, 'About Charles Addams, or How to Improve Your Nightmares.' There are some twenty full-page specimens of Mr. Addams's devotion to villainy and violence, all giving off the essence of the witches in 'Macbeth' ". Richard Maney

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 19 '50 700w

Reviewed by Charles Poore

N Y Times p7 O 15 '50 390w

New Yorker 26:169 N 11 '50 130w

"All this is excellently done. Mr. Kobler is an old hand with eccentrics and a first-rate writer-reporter. And equally of course Mr. Addams' illustrations are made to order for a book about such affairs." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 N 22 '50 350w

Reviewed by J. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 33:25 N 11 '50 850w

Reviewed by Howard Cushman

Sat R of Lit 33:32 D 2 '50 140w

Time 56:110 O 23 '50 300w

KOCH, ADRIENNE. Jefferson and Madison; the great collaboration. 294p $4 Knopf

973.46 Jefferson, Thomas. Madison, James 50-6417

A study of the friendship between Jefferson and Madison which lasted for fifty years until Jefferson's death in 1826. "This book explores the political theory that Jefferson and Madison jointly professed, and indicates their characteristic differences as well as their basic agreement about political values. Their massive writings have often been consulted separately to throw light on one or the other man. Now the correspondence has been studied for the interplay of ideas between the two greatest philosopher statesmen of the American Enlightenment. The spotlight is on ideas and the interrelations of two minds. The inescapable conclusion of this investigation is that the political philosophy known simply as 'Jeffersonian' is actually an amalgam of ideas, which owes very much to James Madison." (Pref) Index

Reviewed by T. P. Abernethy

Am Hist R 56:123 O '50 480w

Booklist 46:244 Ap 1 '50

Reviewed by R. J. Graf

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 26 '50 650w

Christian Science Monitor p6 My 6 '50 350w

"This is a brilliant study in the history of ideas. . . Miss Koch's book is an able digest and interpretation of an immense mass of published and manuscript material." Mason Wade

+ Commonweal 52:442 Ag 11 '50 500w

Kirkus 18:90 F 1 '50 250w

"A scholarly, carefully documented, yet eminently readable study. . . Strongly recommended not only for the historical student, but especially for the general reader in that it amply demonstrates a philosophy of democracy, a firm faith in human intelligence, and a progressive view of the American 'workshop of liberty.' " R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:563 Ap 1 '50 190w

Reviewed by George Genzmer

Nation 171:173 Ag 19 '50 280w

Reviewed by George Dangerfield

New Repub 123:18 S 4 '50 1500w

"Miss Koch has achieved the impressive feat of adding to the formidable mass of Jeffersonian literature a book that is fresh and illuminating." G. W. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ap 2 '50 1400w

"Miss Koch has wisely concentrated on illuminating instances of the great collaboration; she has perhaps unwisely neglected the Presidential years when the collaboration was open and official. She traces the interchange of ideas, books, instruments, and even friends, while Jefferson was abroad. She throws new light on what was the joint break with Hamilton and the emerging Federalists. The most interesting contributions are the analyses of the Kentucky and Virginia Resolutions and of the doctrine that the 'earth belongs to the living.' " H. S. Commager

+ N Y Times p5 Mr 26 '50 700w

New Yorker 26:109 Ap 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 26 '50 550w

Reviewed by Marie Kimball

Sat R of Lit 33:47 My 13 '50 600w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:192 Je '50 280w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 My '50

"Miss Koch has written a restrained and intelligent book. She does not claim too much for Madison, but she does prove that he had a more significant influence in shaping some of Jefferson's plans and policies than historians have generally recognized." L. B. Wright

+ Yale R n s 40:159 autumn '50 280w

KOCH, THOMAS. Tournament trail. 185p $2 Lothrop

50-6392

"Story of a small school [basketball] team which managed to reach the finals with a big city high school and of one of the star players. Dave Walters, son of the coach of the big city team, finds himself handicapped because of his father's position and finally decides to go back to his former small town school where he can be just a player." Chicago Sunday Tribune

"A rattling good sports story for the middle grade boy." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 Ap 23 '50 140w

Kirkus 18:179 Mr 15 '50 110w

Reviewed by Lillian Morrison

Library J 75:705 Ap 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by Nate Aleskovsky

N Y Times p36 Mr 19 '50 160w

"Any boy who has played or is interested in basketball will lose himself in this book. It is well written although the conversation seems a bit stilted and, while it covers several games in exciting detail, it is not too technical to be hard to follow." M. P. A.

+ Sat R of Lit 33:37 My 13 '50 170w

KOCH, VIVIENNE. William Carlos Williams. (Makers of modern lit) 278p $2 New directions

811 Williams, William Carlos 50-697

Critical survey of the works of this American writer, taking up in turn his poetry, plays, novels and short stories, and his prose other than fiction. Bibliography. Index.

KOCH, VIVIENNE—Continued
Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun p5 Mr 20 '50 40w

Reviewed by J. F. Nims
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 26 '50 370w

"The book strikes me as painstaking, but not specially illuminating. It did, however, make me feel that I ought to read some of the novels and short stories. Some of the analysis of the first two books of 'Paterson' was helpful too." Vivian Mercier
+ — Commonweal 51:565 Mr 3 '50 130w

"This earnest, thorough study of the works of a deeply American artist leaves nothing to be desired in assiduity but remains for all its good will a little less than illuminating."
+ — Kirkus 18:92 F 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 75:566 Ap 1 '50 40w

"Miss Vivienne Koch lights her candle on the Williams altar with a learned but rather unimaginative study that is earnest about details and scanty of outline." L. F. D.
Manchester Guardian p4 Je 27 '50 30w

"As a résumé of Williams's career so far, the book is capable and fairly thorough. It can best be read with the 'Complete Collected Poems' at one's elbow, in which case it becomes a series of notes to the text such as any proficient editor might affix to elucidate the poem and tell something about its background. There are a serviceable bibliography, an index, and a very fine photograph of the poet." Hayden Carruth
+ Nation 171:64 Jl 15 '50 650w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 122:19 My 15 '50 390w

"Dr. Williams is fortunate to have found at last in Vivienne Koch an interpreter whose intellect, perceptiveness and style are adequate to the task of establishing his position. Working from the files of forgotten magazines, the pages of books decades out of print, and a mass of untabulated manuscripts and variant readings (much of it on prescription slips) in the Lockwood Memorial Library of the University of Buffalo, Miss Koch has achieved the near miracle of reconstructing out of seeming chaos the order that was always there." Selden Rodman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Mr 5 '50 750w

"The method is principally that of running commentary or paraphrase, with more facts than evaluation. It is a popularizing sort of book. It does not pretend to finalities of criticism and is refreshing in that it doesn't use learned critical jargon. It whets the appetite for a severe critical estimation of every poem, play, novel and short story displayed here." Richard Eberhart
+ N Y Times p5 F 12 '50 400w
New Yorker 26:123 S 9 '50 160w

Reviewed by Louis Zukofsky
Poetry 76:177 Je '50 1000w

"The first full-length study of Williams' verse, drama, and prose, Miss Koch's book gives the impression of being as painstakingly thorough as it is sensitively inductive in its critical method. . . The book is invaluable for its basic grasp of Williams' materialism and its relation to his conception of form, beauty, and the poet's intention, as well as for more prosaic reasons of bibliography and literary history."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:153 Je '50 300w

Reviewed by L. L. Martz
Yale R n s 40:152 autumn '50 240w

KOFFLER, CAMILLA (YLLA, pseud), il. See Tucci, N. Tico-Tico

KOGON, EUGEN. Theory and practice of hell; the German concentration camps and the system behind them; tr. by Heinz Norden. 307p $3.75 Farrar, Straus

943.086 Concentration camps. World war, 1939-1945—Atrocities 50-10716

"Kogon, now editor of Germany's foremost monthly journal Frankfurter Hefte, summed up his six years' experience in the concentration camp Buchenwald in this book which sold 135,000 copies in his home country, and opened the eyes of many ignorant Germans to the full measure of the Nazi horrors. Kogon, a true Christian, is not given to vengeance or exaggeration; his description of the brutal tyranny of Himmler's Special Guards can be fully trusted." (Library J) Index.

"An objective, orderly and precise study, amazingly and admirably free of personal feeling."
+ Kirkus 18:406 Jl 15 '50 180w

"Exceptionally well written volume, ably translated by Heinz Norden, urgently recommended for public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 75:1287 Ag '50 150w

"It will certainly hold its place as an historical document and brilliant study of horror in practice, but, in the main, it leaves one now less with detestation of the system than with the uncomfortable impression that it turns out to be an indictment not of the Nazis but of man." R. T. C.
Manchester Guardian p4 N 17 '50 300w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 D 31 '50 1200w

"'The theory and Practice of Hell' should not be read solely by sociologists, crminologists and psychiatrists for whom it is a 'must.' It should be perused by everyone who would not like to see this generation witness another upsurge of S. S. type of tyranny." Alfred Werner
+ N Y Times p18 D 10 '50 460w

"The author—a Catholic, a sociologist, and a publisher who was in hot water with the Nazis from the first—was sent to Buchenwald in 1939 and, though specifically marked for death by the Gestapo, managed to stay alive; he was liberated by the Americans in 1945. In a detached unsensational fashion, he describes the hell of the camps."
New Yorker 26:154 N 25 '50 200w

KOHN, HANS. Twentieth century; a mid-way account of the western world. 242p $2.50; college ed $2 Macmillan

901 Twentieth century 49-10687

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"Professor Kohn offers fourteen essays to strike a balance sheet of the twentieth century at its midpoint. His concluding note of optimism is largely dispelled by his earlier arguments. This reviewer so often agrees with the earlier arguments that critical evaluation is difficult. But the book is not 'all of a piece,' being constructed of new as well as previously published material. The first half of the book will interest historians while the last, retracing well-known liberal views of the 1940's, seems pointed toward the non-specialist." B. C. Shafer
Am Hist R 55:570 Ap '50 480w
Christian Century 67:176 F 8 '50 300w
Foreign Affairs 28:50 Ap '50 40w

"If there is any flaw in Dr. Kohn's reasoning, it appears in his closing pages. Most of his book stresses the importance of beliefs, religions, cultures, ideologies. Finally he shows that in the mid-twentieth century two rival civilizations confront each other. Without dissenting from Dr. Kohn's conclusions and recommendations, this reviewer cannot resist expressing regret that Dr. Kohn ended his book so abruptly. In another twenty-five or fifty pages at most he might have drawn up a more detailed balance sheet of the spiritual resources of West and East and attempted a somewhat more detailed appraisal of the assets and liabilities on both sides of the iron curtain." Quincy Howe
+ — Pol Sci Q 65:457 S '50 900w
Social Studies 41:142 Mr '50 10w

"While the European reader will find little that is new in Mr. Kohn's pages and not a little that seems superficial . . . the merits of the book from the standpoint of an American audience are very great. Mr. Kohn has the courage, which Europeans can no longer afford, to warn his present compatriots of the danger of exchanging a past policy of withdrawal for 'the opposite one of imposition.' . . On the other hand, Mr. Kohn has his shortcomings as an interpreter of Europe to the thinking American public. His own links and sympathies lie patently with a Europe that is already in the past. . . Mr. Kohn constantly harks back, explicitly or implicitly, to the halcyon days of the nineteenth century. . . That something of the past is still alive in the United States does not mean that it can be restored over the greater part of Europe. This is an American illusion; and Mr. Kohn, with his emphasis on the European past rather than on the European present, has unwittingly helped to encourage it. The right morals can be drawn from his book. But it is to be feared that some American readers may draw the wrong ones."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p287 My 12 '50 950w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:67 Mr '50 480w

KOLLER, LAWRENCE R. Taking larger trout [drawings by Samuel Bryant]. 273p il $5 Little 799.1755 Trout fishing Agr50-436

"Down to earth tips on how to catch those 'lunker' trout—the kind that usually refuse to bite or else get away. The author discusses techniques in fly, bait and spin fishing." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Illustrated.

Bookmark 9:240 Jl '50 20w

Reviewed by Bob Becker
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 7 '50 60w

"This for the fisherman who has had all the simpler books."
Kirkus 18:124 F 15 '50 170w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 75:1191 Jl '50 60w

Reviewed by Ferris Greenslet
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 14 '50 850w

"Here is a really intelligent, as well as most readable book written by a man with an appreciative eye and ear for woods and big, fast water. . . [Koller] is a good story teller, but his account of the large trout that took his line into one muskrat hole and out another 30 feet up the bank may pop your eyes somewhat." C. H. F.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 Jl 2 '50 250w

"The book is exciting reading whether or not you expect ever to tie into a four pounder."
+ Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 30 '50 110w

Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Jl '50

KOLODIN, IRVING. New guide to recorded music. int ed 524p $4 Doubleday

789.9 Phonograph records. Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation 50-7403

"Irving Kolodin, music critic of The Saturday Review of Literature, has compiled an exhaustive and comprehensive guide. He covers thousands of recordings, old and new, domestic and foreign-made. He comments on each briefly, giving his judgment of performance, technical quality and the material recorded. Although this is a third edition of his 'Guide to Recorded Music,' it is completely revised and deserves consideration as a new book." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 46:318 Je 15 '50

"The author has his likes and dislikes, but does not pose as the last authority; his criticisms are reasoned, generally fair and always honest. The style is informal and often pungent; may be read at length or consulted for quick reference." P. L. Miller
+ Library J 75:867 My 15 '50 140w

"The book would be improved, I think, by the addition of composers' dates, by giving Einstein's revised Köchel numbers for Mozart, and by listing folk music and Gregorian Chant. . . Other errata: the Schumann-Heink recording of Humperdinck's Weihnachten (p. 216) is V-6723 not V-5723, and under Haydn, Quartets for strings (p. 207), Mr. Kolodin must mean that Vols. III to VII of the Society sets are to be purchased (not published) in American shops. But these are minor imperfections in a book that is unquestionably the best in its field. No one, of course, will agree with all of Mr. Kolodin's evaluations; but his comments, sometimes biting, bitter, amusing, or witty, are invariably candid, practical, and to the point. They make good reading." M. C. Bartlett
+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 7:477 Je '50 480w

New Repub 123:21 D 18 '50 30w

"It is a formidable achievement. As one who spends more hours than he can count listening to recordings and who appreciates the time and concentration required for the job, I am amazed that Mr. Kolodin ever got this much music listened to." Howard Taubman
+ N Y Times p10 Ap 30 '50 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 11 '50 60w

"Kolodin never pontificates, rarely dismisses a composition or a composer with a curt and uncompromising adjective. If he tells you he doesn't like something he generally makes his reason clear enough. His amazing achievement is that in writing so many brief paragraphs he has succeeded so well in avoiding repetition and stylistic monotony. You can read the book from A to Z or you can skip around in it indefinitely without getting tired, because of the easy, informal style and the touches of humor and drollery he manages to inject." P. L. Miller
+ Sat R of Lit 33:24 Ap 29 '50 500w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 My '50

KOOS, EARL LOMON. Sociology of the patient; a textbook for nurses [with a foreword by Lucile Petry]. 264p $3 McGraw

301 Sick, The. Nurses and nursing 50-6176

"As medicine has moved from the intuitive to the scientific, it has inevitably placed more responsibility upon the nurse as educator and interpreter. . . To meet the new demands made upon nursing, sociology and psychology must take their places in the nursing curriculum along with anatomy and other accepted subjects if the members of the profession are to comprehend adequately its new functions. This text is an attempt to provide some of this needed knowledge in a way best fitted to the requirements of the beginning student nurse." (Pref) Index.

"With a few changes and corrections, this will be an excellent textbook for those who are not among the fortunate ones who can attend Dr. Koos's sociology lectures." P. B. Hirsch
+ Am J Pub Health 40:888 Jl '50 310w

"Because it has been necessary to present something relatively brief which can be adapted to an already crowded curriculum, the book skims lightly over many complex factors. However, the materials used have been appropriately selected and are well presented." R. Straus
+ Am Soc R 15:457 Je '50 250w

KORN, MRS TERRY, and KORN, MRS ELIZABETH P. (FRIEDLAENDER). Trailblazer to television; the story of Arthur Korn; il. by Elizabeth P. Korn. 144p $2.50 Scribner

B or 92 Radio facsimile. Korn, Arthur 50-10142

"This is the story of Dr. Arthur Korn, the scientist who transmitted the first picture by wireless across the Atlantic—an important step on the road to television. His invention was known as phototelegraphy in Europe, facsimile in America." Publisher's note

Booklist 47:142 D 1 '50

"This book should be of great interest to all who are baffled by the television 'phenomenon' and for young people planning to work in this medium."
+ Kirkus 18:522 S 1 '50 130w

KORN, TERRY—Continued

"Boys, especially those from ten to fourteen, will appreciate the non-technical description of Dr. Korn's step-by-step perfection of his process; they will take in their stride the catalog of his travels. A welcome addition to stories of inventors and their inventions." M. C. Scoggin

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 12 '50 180w

"It is a stimulating biography of a man who was a pioneer in what is now one of the great modern industries—television."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:63 N 11 '50 180w

KORNER, ANNELIESE FRIEDSAM. Some aspects of hostility in young children. 194p $3.50 Grune

136.7 Child study 49-8366

"A comparison of the ways in which a group of children of preschool age dealt with hostility in play and fantasy and in real life situations." Survey

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman

School & Society 72:346 N 25 '50 180w

"The carefully worked out method and procedure provide for establishing experimental play situations for observation and for instigating the children's aggression as well as for gathering opinions of parents and teachers about the children's hostile reactions. The statistical results and the author's interpretation are presented, as is the whole study, with care, wide knowledge and understanding of the subject, and with many references to allied literature." Ruth Gilpin

+ Social Forces 28:472 My '50 220w

Survey 85:287 My '49 30w

KORNFELD, JOSEPH ALTON. Natural gas economics. 261p maps $5 Transportation press, box 381, Dallas 1

338.2728 Gas, Natural—U.S. 49-49577

"An impressive collection of information on natural gas resources, marketing and utilization. Information is included also on the chemistry and technology of the industry. The book contains much material which is not readily available elsewhere. However, it is addressed primarily to persons in the industry, rather than to the public at large. It should be useful as a reference book in libraries where there is a marked interest in petroleum and natural gas." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:110 Ja 15 '50 70w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:248 Je '50 200w

KORNGOLD, RALPH. Two friends of man. 425p il $5 Little

923.673 Garrison, William Lloyd. Phillips, Wendell. Lincoln, Abraham 49-49461

"The story of William Lloyd Garrison and Wendell Phillips and their relationship with Abraham Lincoln." (Subtitle) Bibliography. Index.

"If Mr. Korngold accomplishes nothing more with his new book, he will have stirred fresh interest in a subject which merits recurrent investigation. Two Friends of Man has been written to be read, as it will be. The present writer has found lay reactions to the book interesting, particularly in their willingness to reconsider the contributions to antislavery of Garrison and Phillips, as well as Lincoln." Louis Filler

+ Am Hist R 55:928 Jl '50 650w

Reviewed by A. B. Miller

Ann Am Acad 270:159 Jl '50 500w

Booklist 46:199 F 15 '50

Bookmark 9:133 Mr '50 60w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun p7X Ja 29 '50 500w

"Tho it is not likely to change accepted historical verdicts, Mr. Korngold's book deserves a good audience. He handles a difficult form—the dual biografy—with skill, writes a clear prose that bears no mark of his nativity and early training [he was born in Warsaw and brought up in Amsterdam], and makes his appeal to the general reader without condescending to him." P. M. Angle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 5 '50 600w

"Mr. Korngold's work merits high commendation." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 67:147 F 1 '50 420w

"Mr. Korngold's book is vivid and provocative. There will be protests from the South and West over what may be considered too New England a slant to it, and undoubtedly Mr. Korngold accepts the Garrison-Phillips wing of antislavery a little too uncritically at its own estimate. Yet the general reader, who will not cavil over details of interpretation, can profit from so basically honest a portrait of these two great reformers." Robert Peel

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 26 '50 1150w

Current Hist 18:228 Ap '50 60w

"Thrilling, conscientiously written, of interest to students of the period, to those who enjoy psychological biography. Well documented."

+ Kirkus 17:530 S 15 '49 190w

"Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:103 Ja 15 '50 140w

"If Mr. Korngold's volume comes to a younger generation of Americans as a corrective to the somewhat contemptuous attitude of some of our older historians, it will have served its purpose." McAlister Coleman

+ Nation 170:601 Je 17 '50 800w

"In our time, a book like this is both fascinating and depressing to read. It is depressing because it makes the contemporaries of Garrison, Phillips, Lincoln, John Brown, Thoreau, Emerson and Theodore Parker seem to have been cut on a bolder pattern than are their counterparts today. The men who freed America from slavery were willing to speak out fearlessly, to face a hostile mob, to go to jail for their beliefs, to risk everything they owned when they helped a fugitive slave. With such a firm grounding in belief, it is no wonder that the words they wrote still blaze with fire." P. V. Stern

+ New Repub 122:18 Je 19 '50 1150w

"Mr. Korngold pleads effectively; and he writes with skill and sympathy. His plea for Garrison and Phillips is witty and well organized; it is vivid and anecdotal; it is an eloquent plea for free speech and civil rights. But Mr. Korngold does not prove his case; he does not present evidence. . . One should not conclude that 'Two Friends of Man' is without merit. On the contrary, it is perhaps the best study of these two abolitionist leaders now in print. But that fact is a sorry commentary on our historical scholarship rather than high praise for Mr. Korngold. For, based on inadequate research and relying on outdated historical background, his book has the flavor of the 1890's. This is old wine in a new bottle." David Donald

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ja 22 '50 1550w

"With all its virtues, this book has, too, many inadequacies and defects. It fails to place Garrison and Phillips against the social or the philosophical background of their day. Mr. Korngold tends to take as history what Garrison and Phillips submitted as propaganda. He repeats all the atrocity stories about slavery and about Southerners of the post-war years. . . Yet what remains is valuable. It is well to be reminded, in our own time, of the importance that moral considerations played in our history. It is important to remember that great moral questions cannot be ignored or evaded or in the end, confounded." H. S. Commager

+ — N Y Times p6 Ja 22 '50 800w

"First-rate material, handled in rather pedestrian style."

New Yorker 25:85 Ja 28 '50 190w

"There are many debatable points in the book, brought about mainly by the author's intense admiration for his subjects. The result is a Lincoln who was weak and undecided, while Phillips and Garrison were always strong and direct. Yet it is a viewpoint backed up with considerable data and should be put in the record of those years of war and peace." Keith Kent

San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 25 '49 420w

"As history, the contents of this narrowly planned volume leave much to be desired; as a biographical study of two commanding personages, the vividly-narrated account of their commingled careers has many merits." Allan Nevins

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:9 Ja 21 '50 1050w

Springf'd Republican p6D F 19 '50 420w

Time 55:94 Ja 30 '50 800w

"The book manages to catch something of the white-hot fanaticism of the men and their crusade. Mr. Korngold's sympathy toward his subjects leads him into a somewhat less sympathetic interpretation of Lincoln's handling of the emancipation issue, but otherwise his study is a balanced, well-documented, and highly readable book."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:170 Je '50 190w

Wis Lib Bul 46:27 F '50

KOZMETSKY, GEORGE. Financial reports of labor unions. 280p $3.50 Harvard univ. Division of res.

331.88 Trade unions 50-8874

"There have been many and varying opinions as to the amount and quality of the stewardship and reporting made of union financial resources by union officers to the members or to the public. This study attempts to determine what unions have been actually doing about financial reporting as well as the nature and content of the reports. This research has been based largely on the study of union financial reports themselves as well as on personal interviews by the author with over a hundred union officials." (Pref) Index.

"Mr. Kozmetsky describes the guideposts from financial reporting towards better labor relations, and this he does in an excellent manner. But surely the other direction is more important—namely, that the only way to reach sound, voluntary financial reporting is through better labor relations, and not through badly drawn-up labor legislation." A. A. Blum

+ — Ann Am Acad 272:242 N '50 380w

"In view of the present emphasis on labor's responsibility to the public, and its increasing importance in the economic world, an understanding of this aspect of union administration is important. To this understanding, Mr. Kozmetsky makes a valuable contribution." D. K. Oko

+ Library J 75:2007 N 15 '50 150w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 75:1413 S 1 '50 90w

KRANZBERG, MELVIN. Siege of Paris, 1870-1871; a political and social history. 213p $2.75 Cornell univ. press

944.08 Franco-German war, 1870-1871. France—Social conditions 50-7999

"In this study of the siege of Paris the author shows how it caused a wide cleavage between the upper and lower classes. He demonstrates that this cleavage led to the establishment of the Commune and its subsequent effect on French political and social history." Current Hist

"Mr. Kranzberg has written an interesting, and entertaining, piece of social history. . . In an extensive bibliography the author shows that he is acquainted with the bulk of the primary material on his subject. He is particularly to be commended for his use of the contemporary press and much pamphlet literature." E. L. Katzenbach

+ Am Hist R 56:101 O '50 330w

Current Hist 19:228 O '50 40w

"The subject chosen by Dr. Kranzberg is a good one and his is a useful book. It has, of course, one basic and serious limitation; it is a 'political and social history' and the military side is almost skipped over."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p495 Ag 11 '50 850w

KRASILOVSKY, PHYLLIS. Man who didn't wash his dishes; il. by Barbara Cooney. [33p] $1.50 Doubleday

50-8726

Story for ages five to nine in which text and pictures tell about the little man who lived alone and hated to wash dishes. After he had used up every dish in the house, even soapdishes and flower pots, he was desperate, and then he had an excellent idea. But the experience cured him of his habit.

"Easy to read script and colorful pictures which will not seem too absurd to little readers make this an appealing and easy to understand book for the youngest ones." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 O 8 '50 120w

Kirkus 18:383 Jl 15 '50 80w

"The story is slight, but it holds the kind of everyday moral that little children love, and they will surely laugh at it. The pictures are enchanting." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 13 '50 160w

Reviewed by S. C. Gross

N Y Times p20 Ag 6 '50 120w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 S '50

KRASNER, WILLIAM. The gambler. 216p $2.50 Harper

50-9650

"The story of the attempted rise and the inevitable fall of a petty gambler, a young man named Ben Wulfson, who seems to sense from the start that all hands are against him, so that his fate does not surprise him." New Yorker

"An absorbing story which offsets the sordid with some softer touches."

Kirkus 18:402 Jl 15 '50 130w

"Properly analyzed, the life of Ben Wulfson would have a sad fascination. But Mr. Krasner relates it largely in terms of physical details. The workings of the man's mind in opposition to the bitter outside forces which caused his downfall are never clear."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 O 1 '50 280w

"A cut above the ordinary tough-guy novel." Herbert Mitgang

N Y Times p35 O 1 '50 140w

New Yorker 26:102 S 30 '50 80w

"Mr. Krasner is extremely successful at creating a somber mood and maintaining it throughout his book, but none of his characters is sufficiently strong or real enough to be convincing. They are forever cloaked in the darkness of the author's prose." J. M. Grant

Sat R of Lit 33:45 N 25 '50 290w

KRAUS, MICHAEL. Atlantic civilization: eighteenth-century origins. 334p $3.75 Cornell univ. press

901 Eighteenth century. U.S.—Relations (general) with Europe. Europe—Relations (general) with U.S. 49-50435

"Mr. Kraus has set himself the task of analyzing in detail the cultural interchange between America and the Old World—chiefly, of course, Britain." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Contents: Beginnings of an Atlantic civilization; Communications and social relations; Religious relations; On books and learning; Graphic arts, music, and architecture; The humanitarian spirit; Scientific relations between Europe and America; American and European medicine; America and the Utopian ideal; Nationalism and cosmopolitanism; Summary. Bibliography. Index.

KRAUS, MICHAEL—Continued
Reviewed by R. R. Palmer
Am Hist R 55:868 Jl '50 900w
Current Hist 18:165 Mr '50 50w
Reviewed by H. S. Commager
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ja 29 '50 450w

"Twenty years ago, Michael Kraus, now Associate Professor of History at City College broke new ground with his study of the inter-colonial aspects of American culture on the eve of the Revolution. He has been cultivating that theme ever since. Here we have the rich harvest of his research." J. A. Krout
+ N Y Times p10 F 5 '50 450w
Reviewed by Max Savelle
Pol Sci Q 65:626 D '50 1050w
Reviewed by L. B. Wright
Sat R of Lit 33:32 My 6 '50 750w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:67 Mr '50 240w
Reviewed by G. W. Pierson
Yale R n s 39:545 spring '50 1000w

KRAUS, RICHARD G. Square dances of today and how to teach and call them; il. by Carl Pfeufer; musical arrangements by Charles Leonhard. 130p $3 Barnes, A.S.
793.34 Dancing—Square dances 50-10717

"This practical book, suitable for use with various groups and ages, gives ideas for square dance programs in schools and community recreation centers. Included are explanations of calling techniques, step-by-step directions for the dance figures, and music for many of the dances. There are lists of square dance records, with and without calls, and square dance schools and camps." (Booklist) Bibliography.

Booklist 47:131 D 1 '50

"A useful, spirited, and complete guide."
+ School & Society 72:319 N 11 '50 30w

KRAUSS, RUTH (MRS DAVID JOHNSON LEISK). Backward day; pictures by Marc Simont. [31p] $1.50 Harper
50-9592

"Based on the familiar statement of reproach, 'I guess you got out of the wrong side of the bed this morning,' this funny little book shows off to children and parents, too, the shenanigans of a child about kindergarten age who decides to do everything backward for one day." Library J

Reviewed by Marcia Winn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 12 '50 60w
Christian Science Monitor p7 N 11 '50 70w

"This is the kind of nonsense little children love."
Horn Bk 26:370 S '50 70w
Kirkus 18:413 Ag 1 '50 110w
Reviewed by E. T. Dobbins
Library J 75:1910 N 1 '50 80w
Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 N 12 '50 70w

"Any child with a smidgen of humor will understand perfectly the game which the little boy plays in this picture book." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p36 S 10 '50 120w
New Yorker 26:174 D 2 '50 60w
Sat R of Lit 33:40 N 11 '50 110w

KRAVCHENKO, VICTOR ANDREEVICH. I chose justice. 458p 31 facsims $3.75 Scribner
947.084 Communism—Russia. Russia—Social conditions. Refugees, Russian 50-7938

A sequel to I Chose Freedom (Book Review Digest 1946). The author describes his successful libel suit against Les Letters Francaises, a Parisian Communist magazine which had called his book a fake. "The proceedings, however, are used by the author merely as background for presenting a picture of Russia and her people during the Nineteen Thirties and Forties. Along with the testimony given in court by Soviet 'nonreturners,' statements are included which for one reason or another were not made during the proceedings. A few chapters are not formally related to the trial. . . The last chapter deals with current ideological and political problems." (N Y Times)

Booklist 46:313 Je 15 '50
Reviewed by Percy Easser
Canadian Forum 30:140 S '50 370w

"Even had Kravchenko lost the case, his book would possess unique value because it reproduces the testimony given by former Soviet citizens unquestionably competent to bear witness, and also many of the official documents which were submitted to the court. The world is indebted to the author for material which should settle once for all every honest doubt as to the Kremlin's determination to destroy human liberties."
+ Cath World 171:319 Jl '50 170w
Chicago Sun p5 Jl 9 '50 70w
Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 4 '50 550w
Christian Science Monitor p7 My 20 '50 600w

"It is decidedly not a pleasant book to read. The cumulative stories of the witnesses test the reader's carrying capacity for brutality. The author's style and personal story and reflection beat out the political and moral lessons, but rather fail to create an atmosphere of humanity and sympathy." Philip Burnham
Commonweal 52:299 Je 30 '50 330w
Current Hist 19:166 S '50 30w

"There's lots of interesting and revealing material here, which takes some digging, because of the shifts in approach and presentation. Not as easy reading as I Chose Freedom, but an important corollary."
Kirkus 18:271 My 1 '50 420w

"First-hand documentation and apparently reliable." Donald Wasson
Library J 75:981 Je 1 '50 130w
Reviewed by Alexander Werth
New Repub 123:18 Jl 24 '50 1300w

"Kravchenko rightly points out that top American and European newspaper men covered his celebrated trial. If one of those newspaper men had written the book, it might have been. . . a better-balanced account." Marcus Duffield
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 21 '50 700w

"His attempt [in the last chapter] to discuss Greece, Chiang Kai-shek, nationalization, Point Four, the welfare state, the United Nations, and many other things—and to do it in twenty-four pages—has not been successful. In other chapters, too, unnecessary details and circumstantial reports could be cut. . . On the whole, this is an interesting, truthful and important book." D. J. Dallin
+ — N Y Times p4 My 21 '50 1050w

"The trial emerges as a kaleidoscope of human tragedies, pretensions, self-heroics, and just plain melodrama. Mr. Kravchenko, as both author and hero of this tale, comes out very well indeed. And then, tacked on to the whole thing, comes a Chapter XXI, in which Victor Kravchenko takes it upon himself to counsel the United States on its conduct of world affairs. . . With apparent inability for dispassionate evaluation, the author goes in for heavy-footed, superficial pamphleteering, which may give him the satisfaction of getting currently fermenting ideas off his chest. But it makes this reviewer wish that the fascinating book on the Paris trial had been just twenty-three pages shorter." Martin Ebon
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:16 Je 10 '50 700w
Time 55:98 Je 19 '50 130w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:306 S '50 240w

KREBS, RICHARD JULIUS HERMAN. See Valtin, J.

KREPPS, ROBERT W. Courts of the Lion. 340p $3 Rinehart

49-49741

Tale of a treasure hunt in Africa in the 1820's. The four participants set out from New York, were shipwrecked, and taken prisoner by Tchaka, known as The Lion, king of the Zulus. During an insurrection they made their escape, and after finding the treasure, returned to New York.

"Robert Krepps is no Sabatini, but he has a compelling way with the kind of story we book reviewers used to describe as 'cracking good' or 'corking' before we bludgeoned those words to death. He tells a tale with such gusto that you are inclined to let your critical fences down and just go along for the ride. I did and I can recommend the novel to those readers who are willing to accept Mr. Krepps on his own supercharged, implausible terms." V. P. Hass

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 29 '50 500w

Kirkus 17:632 N 15 '49 180w

"Feebly reminiscent of Sir Rider Haggard; 'thriller' plot; characters synthetic; dialogue ludicrous, and a silly, sexy romance." R. W. Henderson

— Library J 74:1818 D 1 '49 80w

"'The Courts of the Lion' is no more than a relaxation for an idle hour. Setting out to tell a tale of adventure, our author has whipped up a melange of Stevenson and Rider Haggard, topped off with a dash of Krepps seasoning." John Barkham

— N Y Times p30 Ja 29 '50 360w

New Yorker 25:93 F 4 '50 100w

"The style is lush, often flamboyant; but there is plenty of action; adventure, suspense, and dangerous situations. The author knows the lore of Africa, with which he peppers his narrative." John Cournos

Sat R of Lit 33:19 F 11 '50 320w

KROLL, HARRY HARRISON. Lost homecoming. 311p $3 Coward-McCann

50-10398

"Darie Darius, from a long line of sharecroppers, had escaped from Cottontown to write a novel about his youth. He came back to speak at the world premiere of the movie based on his life. As he lives through the week of his disappointing triumph, Darie also lives through all the wretched tumultuous days when he had been a growing, hungry boy on Mr. Pierce's plantation and Mr. Pierce's wife, Miss Luie-Ivey had seemed to him the most impressive and elegant lady in the world, and Mr. Pierce's niece, Clara Bell, the most bewitching of maidens." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

"The novel has a three-ply construction. Mr. Kroll handles his flashbacks with great skill. . . Darie's homecoming was lost, perhaps because there was something lost in him. . . But Darie's youth with the submerged sharecroppers is vivid and powerful, tumultuous and violent, and always absorbing." Lorine Pruette

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 26 '50 800w

"This is an uneven book, and sometimes its parts do not quite emerge; Mr. Kroll seems to write occasionally to get something off his chest. He seems more at home in his earnest passages than in lighter ones; the reader will remember longest those hours of want and frustration—and especially the walloping, cursing Mama." H. T. Kane

+ — N Y Times p26 O 15 '50 470w

"While some of his characters seem true to life others are almost incredible, but readers are indebted to Mr. Kroll for unglazed truths about a long overlooked section of the South." S. M. N.

+ — Springf'd Republican p10C D 10 '50 120w

KROMMINGA, JOHN H. Christian Reformed church; a study in orthodoxy. 241p $3.50 Baker bk. house, 1019 Wealthy st, SE, Grand Rapids 6, Mich.

285.7 Christian Reformed church 49-5109

"The author has traced from the time of the founding of the Christian Reformed church in America to the present day the struggle of this small religious group to maintain its sectarian purity in face of the disintegrating influences of the American social environment." Am J Soc

"For the student of religious sects Kromminga's study will provide much useful material. . . The broad implications of this struggle are scarcely appreciated by the author, who is a faithful member of the church of which he writes, and there is nothing in this study which adds appreciably to a theoretical understanding of religious phenomena in society." S. D. Clark

Am J Soc 56:98 Jl '50 120w

"The principal weakness of the book lies in its inadequate delineation of the background and of both the social and ecclesiastical environment; its strength consists in its well-rounded presentation of the denomination as an institution."

+ — Am Soc R 15:327 Ap '50 150w

KRUG, EDWARD AUGUST. Curriculum planning. 306p $3 Harper

375 Education—Curricula 50-6224

"The philosophy, techniques, and procedures of curriculum planning in a democratic society." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"For a comprehensive review of the jobs involved in curriculum building and for a realistic and concrete analysis of the practices going on in public school systems, Krug has given us one of the best books now available for educators concerned with curriculum planning." Ole Sand

+ El School J 50:541 My '50 800w

School & Society 71:143 Mr 4 '50 10w

"The book is well documented, and much of its value is found in the abundance of illustrative materials provided. The outstanding criticisms of the book, as seen by this reviewer, are: (1) The author apparently is expressing himself at one time to an elementary-school teacher, then to a professor of education, then to persons who are to become teachers, and later to someone else. (2) Too much space is devoted to material irrelevant to the general context of the book. (3) The book is rather repetitious. It should be said, however, that much of the repetition deals with the major points of fact contained in the book and that these points need stressing in order to give emphasis to the author's message." J. C. Moffitt

+ — School R 58:304 My '50 700w

Wis Lib Bul 46:15 Jl '50

KRUTCH, JOSEPH WOOD, ed. Great American nature writing; decorations by Rudolf Freund. 444p $5 Sloane

574.08 Natural history. Nature in literature

50-10806

An anthology composed of selections from the works of American writers on nature. Among the contributors are: Henry David Thoreau, John Muir, John Burroughs, Louis J. Halle, Edwin Way Teale, Lewis Gannett, Caroline Mytinger, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Richard E. Byrd, Ernest Thompson Seton, Gustav Eckstein, Charles D. Stewart, Henry Beston, Roy Bedichek, William Beebe, Donald Culross Peattie. Selections are arranged by subject.

Booklist 47:169 Ja 1 '51

"Most of the 30 selections in 'Great American Nature Writing' are from contemporary writing. They are prefaced by an essay which describes man's changing attitude towards nature, from Aristotle through Izaak Walton to Thoreau and the present day. This account takes up nearly a quarter of the generous volume but is worth it, for it is an historical unfoldment rarely considered, and contains enough quotations of great interest to constitute an anthology within an anthology." T. M. Longstreth

KRUTCH, J. W.—Continued
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 23 '50 550w

"Well-conceived and executed anthology."
+ Kirkus 18:546 S 1 '50 170w

"An important addition to all nature collections." Beatrice Libaire
+ Library J 75:1656 O 1 '50 130w

"After the epiphany of Thoreau which Mr. Krutch's introduction so excitingly prepares the way for, one must confess to a certain sense of anticlimax in the rest of the selections. It is a pleasure to find pieces like Mark Twain's on the coyote, or Levick's on the Adelie penguin. . . Yet after Thoreau, Muir and Burroughs seem rather minor figures, and excellent as they are, Edwin Way Teale, Lewis Gannett, Laura Davidson, Donald Culross Peattie, and others seem even more so; the 'great' of the anthology's title hangs somewhat ambiguously over its contents." Howard Doughty
+ — Nation 171:533 D 9 '50 850w

"In a thoughtful prologue, occupying nearly the first one-fourth of the book, he ranges over world literature, referring to the writings of more than half a hundred authors, ancient and modern, in tracing the development of man's relationship to Nature. . . The result is both scholarly and absorbing. And the selections which make up the bulk of the book have a breadth of interest attractive to readers of widely varied tastes." E. W. Teale
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 D 10 '50 1100w

"This is a book to own, to cherish, and frequently to consult. In so generally fine a collection, special citation is impossible, yet the reviewer finished Mr. Krutch's volume with the conviction that the world in time might become a perceptibly cleaner place if Alan Devoe's passionate 'The Brave Men of Brielle' were made obligatory reading. Nothing is more uplifting in an admirable book than the sane and valiant comments of the editor himself." F. F. Van de Water
+ N Y Times p4 N 26 '50 550w

"If all these thirty-one authors are represented by great nature writing, as the title implies, then I will eat Oliver Goldsmith's 'Natural History' page by page, bad as it will taste. . . The fact is that Mr. Krutch is not very much interested in the writings of great naturalists as such. Sometimes he seems positively to avoid them, or decry them. He is attracted by subjective writing about nature by literary men. . . The real purpose of any good anthology (and good this one certainly is) should be to whet your taste for more of the writers' works. I hope and believe that Mr. Krutch's selections will send any reader back to the complete works of these authors." D. C. Peattie
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:30 O 28 '50 1000w

KUHN, HELMUT. Encounter with nothingness; an essay on existentialism. (Humanist lib) 168p $3 Regnery

111 Existentialism 49-9116

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by Jean Wahl
Ethics 60:215 Ap '50 2000w

Reviewed by Robert Cumming
J Philos 46:857 D 22 '49 850w

"Professor Kuhn is sympathetic with the main insights of existentialism, which he wisely treats as a spirit or mood inspiring religion, literature, and philosophy of all ages. This little book is a good introduction to the universal mood." V. C. Aldrich
+ J Religion 30:152 Ap '50 250w

"The author is not himself an existentialist; yet as a German who knows the soil in which existentialism grew, he treats it with sympathy and imagination. It would be too much to say that Professor Kuhn makes the new philosophy intelligible, for it is a kind of thought, or rather of self-assertion, that has forsworn intelligibility. But he does throw much light upon the nature and causes of a cult of 'nothingness' which will surely appear in retrospect one of the strangest of recorded philosophies."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:326 S '49 240w

KUNCEWICZOWA, MARIA (SZCZEPANSKA). Conspiracy of the absent [tr. from the Polish by Maurice Michael and Harry Stevens]. 350p $3 Roy pubs.

"Deals with the experiences of the Polish community, in their own country and in England, during the war. In Poland the lives of two sisters, Kira and Susan, are slowly but remorselessly changed by the German occupation until at last both begin to work for the underground movement. . . The parts of the narrative which are set in England are concerned chiefly with the girls' aunt Sophie, and with Susan's fiancé, Carol." Times [London] Lit Sup

"A good translation, perhaps more English than American, this has a particular interest for Polish people and is more feminine in cast."
Kirkus 18:567 S 15 '50 180w

"Good writing, with detailed descriptions of places and people. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 75:1661 O 1 '50 80w

"The terrain is too wide for the novelist's powers. . . But the book is full of flashes of vivid, agonised perception." Elizabeth Jenkins
+ — Manchester Guardian p4 S 29 '50 180w

"It has beauty as well as violence, and its nightmare reality is tempered with fine dreams. . . Here then is a new and different viewpoint on the tragedy to which a world at war is consigned, told by a writer with an ear for poetry, a mind for irony, a stomach for terror and a spirit unwilling to relinquish essential truths." Virgilia Peterson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 17 '50 800w

"Throughout her story Mme. Kuncewicz contrasts skilfully the effect of life in Poland or England upon her characters; but the symbolism underlying this contrast remains somewhat obscure, and the narrative is weakened by the changes of the setting. The translation is not outstanding."
Times [London] Lit Sup p609 S 20 '50 230w

KURATH, HANS. Word geography of the Eastern United States. 88p 163 maps $4 Univ. of Mich.

427.9 Americanisms. English language—Provincialism 49-50233

"'A technical report of the distribution of regional and local expressions . . . handed down in the family and the neighborhood that schooling and reading and a familiarity with regional or national usage do not blot out.' The evidence was gathered by trained field-workers who in nearly every county of the Eastern States interviewed two speakers, one old-fashioned and unschooled and the other taught in the elementary or high school of the neighborhood. In addition, one or more 'cultured persons' of the larger cities was examined." N Y Times

"Authors and playwrights as well as the philologists for whom this scholarly work was intended will find it extremely useful if they are dealing with characters between the 83d meridian [Toledo] and the seacoast, and between Charleston, S.C., and Portland, Me. Supplementing the text are 163 pages of maps showing where each local or regional word or expression is used." L. T. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 F 19 '50 60w

Geog R 40:510 Jl '50 950w

"Like a good many technical books, this 'Word Geography' provides amusement and agreeable instruction for amateurs." Cabell Greet
+ N Y Times p22 Ja 22 '50 450w

"For the general reader, more interested in ethno-linguistics than linguistics proper, the maps will constitute the principal fascination of the book. Many readers have a lively, if unsatisfied, interest in the peculiarities of their own vocabulary; here they can find, presented in the clearest possible manner, the sources of their own regionalisms. . . Secondly, Kurath establishes a Midland speech area that lies between and is sharply set off from the traditional Northern and Southern areas. . . The chief disappointment of Kurath's book is the absence of maps on which the correlations of speech boundaries with details of relief, rock and soil are shown with some minuteness." Harold Whitehall

+ — Yale R n s 39:556 spring '50 950w

KURIHARA, KENNETH K. Monetary theory and public policy. 393p $4 Norton

332.4 Money. Economic policy 50-5514

"Sets forth contemporary monetary theory and its implications for public policy. One gets here the types of economic analysis, the concepts, the semantic flavor, of Keynesian economics and associated policies with respect to stable incomes, the promotion of investment, full employment, nationally managed money, and international monetary coöperation. The International Monetary Fund is pictured as providing for a mixed standard with some of the characteristics of both gold and paper standards, permitting internal monetary management but providing at the same time, for internationally-managed foreign exchange stability." (Yale R) Index.

"Though this volume contains little that is new and has a number of defects, teachers may find it useful for their classes. . . In the first place, the reader is likely to be left with an underestimate of both the quality and importance of the contributions to monetary theory by non-Keynesians. . . A second defect is the organization of the book. . . A third defect is that some subjects are treated so briefly that they may be clear only to those who already understand them. . . Though these various defects of the book seriously detract from its quality and usefulness, teachers may still find it of value if they will correct its inaccurate or questionable statements and compensate for its shortcomings in organization. Most of the materials in the book are valid and are presented in a clear and interesting style." L. V. Chandler

+ — Am Econ R 40:680 S '50 1300w

Reviewed by Lawrence Smith

Yale R ns 39:762 summer '50 270w

KYLE, ELISABETH, pseud. See Dunlop, A. M. R.

L

LABATUT, JEAN, and LANE, WHEATON JOSHUA, eds. Highways in our national life; a symposium. 506p il maps $7.50 Princeton univ. press

388.1 Roads—U.S. 50-7728

"An unusual volume in which highways are studied mainly from the viewpoint of their social functions. Altogether, there are 46 papers or chapters. Some of these are concerned with historical topics. Others deal with such topics as social and economic influences of highways, relations between highways and railroads, and the design of highways from several viewpoints, including maintenance and safety, highway lighting, traffic control and the adjudication of traffic violations." Library J

Reviewed by L. G. Harvey

Am Pol Sci R 44:1040 D '50 250w

"Discussion of the contents of the forty-five essays is impossible in a brief review. They are written in a style that will appeal to readers with a limited background in the field in which the author of each essay writes." Leonard Logan

Am Soc R 15:690 O '50 450w

"A personal and intimate acquaintanceship with Highways in our National Life is recommended to all that seek an intelligent concept of the meaning of highways and of their varied uses, aspects and problems. It should be particularly useful to those that have an economic, social, or administrative interest in their development." Thomas Buckley

+ Ann Am Acad 271:195 S '50 400w

Reviewed by Hal Foust

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Je 18 '50 400w

"Although many specialized matters are dealt with, the work is not a specialists' book. It is good background reading for public officials and other persons concerned with highway planning and interrelated problems, and is also suitable for general readers." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:1050 Je 15 '50 130w

"All in all, this is a first-rate compilation to be thumbed through by the intelligent layman and used as a text and reference book by the student, technician and practitioner." Robert Moses

+ N Y Times p7 Je 4 '50 1250w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Jl 23 '50 230w

"Each essay is complete in itself, providing handy reference at the inevitable cost of some unobjectionable duplication. The total collection, although it adds nothing previously unknown, does state facts in nontechnical terms for the layman and for framers of public policy, and provides an overall view of many specialized types of highway problems."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:389 S '50 300w

LACH, ALMA S. Child's first cook book; il. by Doris Stolberg. 96p $1.25 Hart

641.5 Cookery—Juvenile literature 50-10942

The first steps in cooking explained for children in simple text and pictures. Beginning with "things to do before cooking," the author goes on to recipes for soups; beverages; eggs; meats; vegetables; salads; desserts; breads; cakes; and candy. Contains a few menus.

Booklist 47:142 D 1 '50

"Some rather advanced material here which should require supervision for the younger children."

Kirkus 18:608 O 1 '50 80w

"Recommended for all ages." Juanita Walker

+ Library J 75:1910 N 1 '50 80w

LAFARGE, JOHN. No postponement; U.S. moral leadership and the problem of racial minorities. 246p $3 Longmans

323.173 U.S.—Race question. Minorities 50-7980

"A discussion of President Truman's Point Four Program and its application to U.S. moral leadership in the world. Specifically, the book handles the Catholic Interracial Movement, gives its history, traces its development, and shows well the goals achieved in recent years." (Library J) Index.

"Father John LaFarge has offered to the American reading public a slight volume that sets forth with exquisite clarity the fundamental problem involved in the civil rights controversy as it affects a society that is basically Christian in its structure but has only scratched the surface as regards the full power of religious faith." J. N. Propham

+ Commonweal 52:441 Ag 11 '50 750w

Current Hist 19:107 Ag '50 30w

"La Farge writes for Catholics and stresses the part played by the Catholic Church through its parishes, institutions and inter-racial councils. But the book is a ringing call for immediate action to be taken by all faiths. Predominantly for the religious book market."

+ Kirkus 18:272 My 1 '50 160w

LAFARGE, JOHN—Continued

"Highly recommended." R. P. Breaden
+ Library J 75:772 My 1 '50 130w

"A book to be read alike by Catholics and non-Catholics. One regrets, however, a certain repetitiousness and lack of proportion in the material, together with a tendency to argue ad hominem." Frances Witherspoon
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p30 D 3 '50 500w

LAIDMAN, HUGH. How to build your own house. 288p il $5 Harper

690 Building. Carpentry 50-7501

"In step-by-step illustrations, the average couple is given practical moneysaving directions for building a ranch, town or modern house with the right materials and architectural procedures." (Bookmark) No attempt is made to cover installation of electrical wiring, heating, or plumbing.

Booklist 47:57 O 1 '50
Bookmark 9:183 My '50 30w

"A real stand out amidst the welter of do-it-yourself books for beginners."
+ Kirkus 18:256 Ap 15 '50 150w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:874 My 15 '50 110w
Wis Lib Bul 46:24 Je '50

LAING, DILYS (BENNETT) (MRS ALEXANDER KINNAN LAING). Walk through two landscapes; poems. 64p $2 Twayne

811 50-2886

"The strength of these poems is to be found in their moral purpose and humane values. Some have religious themes but the greater part are inspired by the war that has passed and the war that may come. . . The two landscapes through which the poet walks are the vision of the abstract universe and the sight of the concrete details of life." Library J

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 75:565 Ap 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 170:234 Mr 11 '50 200w

"Dilys Bennett Laing continues her consideration of the natural world in terms of human values. She is initially aware that the individual ego can become a preoccupation blurring the larger view of universal experience and, as guard against it, would keep around her the 'safety's circle' of humankind. Her viewpoint is frankly feminine. Not abstract concepts, but physically warm and vital tangibles are her province. . . Her work, however, by no means lacks variety in subject or technique. It ranges from the very moving Clear Specter, an elegy on the death of a woman friend, to the gesture of nimble humor in a whaleboned portrait of Godey's Lady. The light touch carries over, with surprising impact, in Ballad of the Young Dog Fox." Ruth Lechlitner
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Ag 20 '50 350w

"Much of Mrs. Laing's work is inspired by the late war, the present fear of war, and the failure of the world to follow Christ. It is unfortunate that this poetry seems to shed its elegance and polish as the poet responds more deeply to her themes." Milton Crane
N Y Times p18 F 5 '50 90w

Reviewed by Julia Randall
Poetry 76:231 Jl '50 250w

"This is a careful gathering to make a living book. In the scope of half a hundred pages Dilys Laing can be profound, ironic, lyric; she can be terrifying and she can be tender; she can even afford to be brief. One appreciates that over-poem which is the composition of the book itself, that insight and control of one's thinking that see it whole and can represent it whole. A well-planned book is one of the marks of a good artist." John Holmes
+ Sat R of Lit 33:40 Ap 15 '50 600w

LAIRD, MRS HELENE. Nancy goes to college. 223p $2 World pub.

50-6309

A sequel to Nancy Keeps House (Book Review Digest 1947). Nancy becomes a college freshman after a summer of hard work in a department store. She learns how to study, becomes interested in journalism and radio work, and acquires a boy friend. The book contains much advice on how to get along at college.

"A good yarn, with sound values; never didactic, seldom banal, even when dealing with well-worn material, and told with a zest for those wonderful Freshman 'firsts.' "
+ Kirkus 17:654 D 1 '49 100w

"A good book for any high-school girl. Recommended." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 75:568 Ap 1 '50 70w

"A good many girls are going to be grateful for the valuable pointers on campus life contained in this book." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p22 Mr 12 '50 200w

LAIT, JACK, and MORTIMER, LEE. Chicago confidential. 303p $3 Crown

917.7311 Chicago—Social conditions 50-6201

Two newspapermen give the lowdown on the city of Chicago, and the manners and customs of its inhabitants.

"If there ever was a more inept, scurrilous, superficial and dull book written about Chicago, it hasn't been published, to my knowledge." Ray Brennan
— Chicago Sun p5 F 28 '50 700w

"Probably the book will some day serve as a parlor party pastime: a game called 'Check the Inaccuracies.' Par is eight to the page." J. R. Savage
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 5 '50 650w
— Kirkus 18:82 F 1 '50 100w

"The main objective of the book apparently is to bring up to date in flamboyant language all that has been written about the evils of Chicago's night life. This the book does, but many other books have done the job in a more orderly, more thorough and more substantial fashion." L. P. Carroll
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 30 '50 200w

Reviewed by David Dempsey
N Y Times p24 Mr 5 '50 230w

LAMKIN, SPEED. Tiger in the garden. 278p $3 Houghton

50-5403

A novel describing the fortunes of the Richardson family of Louisiana. Caroline, the head of the clan, had disgraced her parents by running away with Jim Conway, a former stave-mill boy. However it was Jim's oil field operations that kept the family prosperous as the Richardson brothers were both failures at business. Even so, Caroline was bothered all her life by the thought that her marriage had lowered her family's prestige. She was not satisfied until Jim too was a failure. The story, told by a poor Richardson cousin, covers the period 1910 to 1933.

"The book is notable for the absence of freaks, morons, and extremes of sensationalism which have been one of the Spécialités de la maison of Southern fiction. Mr. Lamkin shows a good deal of skill in creating atmosphere and a distinct ability to keep his story moving—and the reader with it."
+ Atlantic 185:82 Mr '50 130w

"What is more important than the fictional narrative is the fine yet jaded effusiveness with which the author has been able to portray with lifelike brilliance the fetid insubstantialness of characters in a novel of changing social conditions." Henry Cavendish
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 12 '50 450w
Kirkus 18:4 Ja 1 '50 230w

"Of disappointingly slight value." H. R. Forbes
— Library J 75:172 F 1 '50 80w

"In execution, the novel is somewhat uneven. Some parts of the design come out excellently, while others are not wholly clear. . . Despite the shortcomings, some of which are defects of the virtues in the breadth and intensity of the author's interest in his story, 'Tiger in the Garden' is a vigorous and substantial piece of work. It has freshness and an unusual range in subject and perception and need ask no indulgence as a first novel. I for one shall be very much interested to see where Mr. Lamkin goes from here." Mary Ross
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 12 '50 550w

"Mr. Lamkin has abundant material (apparently gotten from his own family) and he uses it to advantage in many separate scenes and pages. The mere recording of this material almost obscures his novel's defects. But his failure to integrate this dramatically in action and meaningfully in character robs the book of the impact of a sound piece of writing." Hubert Creekmore
— + N Y Times p26 F 12 '50 300w

"Mr. Lamkin disposes of [his characters] competently, crossing wires and uncrossing them with authority and dispatch, and expressing himself in a prose that suffers perceptibly from reheating and an injudicious use of artificial flavoring."
— New Yorker 25:94 F 11 '50 140w

"By and large, though it is easy to note the author's weaknesses, the truth is that he is good enough so that the least sensitive reader will recognize his fundamental ability. I have the feeling that his second novel may well be far better than the second novels of many whose first bids for attention have been smoother and smarter." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 14 '50 600w

Reviewed by Bucklin Moon
— Sat R of Lit 33:19 F 11 '50 460w

"It is true that Tiger in the Garden is made up of old ingredients: miscegenation, aristocratic drunks and flowerlike ladies, languid Southern talk and fiery Southern tempers. By now any writer, even Faulkner, can use them only at the risk of flirting with caricature. It is nonetheless to Author Lamkin's credit that he has almost succeeded in bringing an old story to life and already writes well enough to handle a new one."
— + Time 55:94 F 13 '50 470w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel
Yale R n s 39:576 spring '50 50w

LAMONT, CORLISS. Illusion of immortality [with an introd. by John Dewey]. 2d ed rev 316p $3.95 Philosophical lib.
237.2 Immortality 50-7748

In his Preface to the second edition of a work first published in 1935 (Book Review Digest 1935) the author says: "In thoroughly revising and extensively re-writing The Illusion of Immortality, I have omitted a good deal that seemed to me weak, irrelevant or overstated. . . I have also added a certain amount of new material in this second edition, both to strengthen my argument and to bring the book up to date." Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:318 Je 15 '50

"The book is much the best statement known to the reviewer of the case against immortality, which believers have to rebut if their belief in survival is to be intelligent and responsible. The task of rebuttal, though sizable and not to be accomplished by pious avowals passed off as evidence or as reasons, would not seem impossible. But it needs a better lawyer than any of those Dr. Lamont quotes." C. J. Ducasse
+ Crozer Q 27:353 O '50 950w

"Mr. Lamont maintains and this, no doubt, is his objective in writing his book, that belief in any form of immortality, hinders the achievement of an integrated philosophy of life and makes the individual less aware of the natural world and less responsible to society. He states his case well, putting it simply and clearly without the jargon we frequently find in books of this kind. Yet we believe that his book will strengthen the belief of those inclined to believe that immortality is an illusion, and leave entirely unconvinced those who are well entrenched in their own ideas of immortality." J. V.
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 30 '50 300w

"Mr. Lamont treats the subject with sobriety, with restraint, with good judgment, and with extensive scholarship."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:33 Ag 19 '50 230w

School & Society 71:319 My 20 '50 30w

Springf'd Republican p8C Jl 9 '50 130w

LAMPMAN, MRS EVELYN SIBLEY. Bounces of Cynthiann'; il. by Grace Paull. 260p $2.50 Doubleday
50-10028

A story of life in a pioneer settlement in Oregon in the 1870s. The four Bounce children ranging from Matt at fourteen to Johanna still little more than a baby, have been sent by their dying mother from their home in Rhode Island to an uncle in Oregon. They arrive in Cynthianna to find the uncle has been killed and they become temporary wards of the town. The story tells how each of them becomes so well liked by the townpeople that the temporary arrangement is made permanent.

Booklist 47:103 N 1 '50

"A lively, interesting story of likable boys and girls." A. T. Eaton
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 70w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

Kirkus 18:419 Ag 1 '50 180w

"The story revolves around the struggle of four orphaned children to remain together as a family and has all the warmth, humor and pathos inherent in such a plot. Characterizations and writing are excellent. Stylized drawings by Grace Paull do nothing to differentiate among the many characters but do add to the accurate picture of the times. For girls 9-11." E. E. Beatty
+ Library J 75:2017 N 15 '50 110w

"This is not so unusual a story as Mrs. Lampman's 'Crazy Creek' and 'Treasure Mountain' but it is a kindly one. Although the grown-ups are more sharply drawn than are the children, and the period details are described with a mite too much loving care, the general effect is very pleasing." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p12 D 24 '50 180w

"An old-fashioned and heart-warming story, full of entertaining incidents and characters, and more convincing than one might suppose."
+ New Yorker 26:181 D 2 '50 80w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 19 '50 220w

"The story of the Bounces is unusually well written, filled with homey, everyday people who are so real and so interesting that each one seems to live on in one's memory long after the book is read. There is humor in it and never a dull moment."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 N 11 '50 220w

LAMPORT, FELICIA. Mink on weekdays (ermine on Sunday). 309p $3.50 Houghton 818 50-7487

"Story of how the author and her sister, born in New York City to every 'advantage,' including a variety of governesses, schools and foreign travel, grew up during the '20s into attractive, unspoiled girls, thanks to a charming, energetic mother and a wise, fun-loving father." Bookmark

Booklist 46:284 My 15 '50

+ Bookmark 9:209 Je '50 50w

Chicago Sun p5 Jl 4 '50 50w

LAMPORT, FELICIA—Continued
"The book is a rollicking autobiografy, and Felicia's experiences are as amazing as Mother herself, and it is as good reading as you'll come on in a month of weekdays." Olive Carruthers
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 28 '50 420w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 26:503 N '50 60w

"A devastating often caricature-wise funny, picture of adolescence as lived by little rich girls and told with perceptive afterthought."
+ Kirkus 18:88 F 1 '50 210w

"Highly recommended for public libraries." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 75:772 My 1 '50 80w

Reviewed by Emily Kimbrough
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 My 21 '50 550w

Reviewed by Isabelle Mallet
N Y Times p10 Je 4 '50 470w

"Miss Lamport's account of mother and how she raised her daughters marches along gaily. The humor is expansive—satire without malice." Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p14 My 23 '50 850w

"Miss Lamport's book is an amusing and entertaining chronicle of an amusing and highly entertaining family, written with warm and sympathetic humor." S. H. Hay
+ Sat R of Lit 33:34 Jl 22 '50 550w
Wis Lib Bul 46:25 Je '50

LAMPRECHT, STERLING POWER. Nature and history. 155p $2.50 Columbia univ. press 120 Philosophy of nature. Metaphysics
50-5854

Five lectures delivered at Columbia university, 1949, under the Woodbridge foundation. "Writing in the realist and naturalist tradition, Professor Lamprecht continues here his previous work on history and metaphysics. His present point of view opposes contemporary tendencies to reduce philosophy to analysis, epistemology, or methodology; in contrast, he says philosophy is 'a means of estimating the function and ontological significance of the various arts and sciences.' He also rejects both idealist and reductive materialist metaphysics of nature." (U S Quarterly Bkl)

"The lectures are thoughtful; they are interesting as an exposition standing avowedly in the tradition of Woodbridge; and they are well written." Arthur Child
+ — Ethics 61:93 O '50 230w

"The general reader will find the essays intelligible and enjoyable; their brevity will probably prevent the essays from convincing professional philosophers."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:165 Je '50 240w

LAMPRECHT, STERLING POWER. Our religious traditions. 99p $2 Harvard univ. press
280 Jews—Religion. Roman Catholic church. Protestantism 50-5745

An interpretation of three religious traditions of the western world: Judaism, Catholicism, and Protestantism. Index.

Reviewed by C. H. Moehlman
Ann Am Acad 272:274 N '50 460w

Reviewed by Neil Martin
Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 18 '50 350w

+ — Kirkus 18:55 F 1 '50 90w

"Recommended for all libraries." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 74:1902 D 15 '49 130w

Reviewed by J. A. Pike
N Y Times p18 My 14 '50 470w

"Probably the adherents of each faith will find much that is lacking and points of disagreement, but for the general reader this is a helpful and enlightening book, well written and easily read." K. D. M.
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:43 F 18 '50 180w

"Professor Lamprecht writes with integrity and gives broad, informing historical surveys; his book is both provocative and controversial."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:166 Je '50 240w

LAMSON, PEGGY. Charmed circle. 224p $2.50 Lippincott
50-5421

A college story in which the chief characters are a wealthy girl and a young man who is finishing college under the G.I. bill of rights. In spite of the differences in their finances they fall in love and manage to make a go of it.

"Not profound but an attempt to probe a problem which manages at the same time to be entertaining." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 26:213 My '50 80w

"Mrs. Lamson has built an agreeable story around her two distressed and decent young people, and 'The Charmed Circle' should make good reading for high-school libraries."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Mr 5 '50 150w

Reviewed by J. P. Quehl
N Y Times p31 Mr 5 '50 180w

"The best sections of 'The Charmed Circle' are the ones dealing with the unresolved tensions between people and the varied manifestations of snobbery. Perhaps its weakest link lies in its characters. Jeff is so consistently the sensitive, tortured, belligerent young man and Carol the warm, sincere, candid young girl that the reader eventually gets rather tired of them." Stephanie Benét
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:31 Ap 8 '50 230w
Springf'd Republican p3D F 26 '50 120w

LA MURE, PIERRE. Moulin Rouge. 438p $3.50 Random house
Toulouse-Lautrec Monta, Henri Marie Raymond de—Fiction 50-10457

"Novelized biography of Toulouse-Lautrec. . . The account of childhood and crippling accident is on the sentimental side; love-life in detail. Disintegration developed together with the history of Toulouse-Lautrec's artistic development." Library J

Booklist 47:3; 97 S 1 '50; N 1 '50

"It would have been easy to have oversentimentalized Lautrec, to have depended too much on the reader's sympathy for a handicapped artist. The author has avoided that and has written a novel of wide interest." Paul Engle
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 12 '50 400w
Kirkus 18:533 S 1 '50 190w

"A good introduction to more serious estimates of life and work of the great lithographer by Joyant, Mack, etc." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:1824 O 15 '50 110w

"As a novel 'Moulin Rouge,' aside from its distortion of a well known story, lacks freshness and reveals a passion for changing the unusual into the usual and the astounding into the banal." Virginia Hersch
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 19 '50 650w

"The pages of 'Moulin Rouge' jump with color, drama and vitality. . . Among the book's more important accomplishments is that it shows what led Lautrec to each phase of his painting. If its tone sometimes seems frantic, and its unending talk about sex more on the leering than the loving side, there are nevertheless frequent flashes of insight and humor." Irving Stone
+ — N Y Times p6 N 5 '50 900w

"Although it will find some readers for the wrong reasons—because of Lautrec's manner of living and his problems, the novel is more than ordinarily occupied with the professional prostitutes of the Paris half-world—it is worth the attention of anyone who would like to understand more about the tortured painter and the motives behind his painting." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 15 '50 800w

LANCASTER, BRUCE. Phantom fortress. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 310p $3 Little 50-6072

A historical novel about the Revolutionary war in the South, beginning in 1780. The hero is Ross Pembroke, a cavalry captain from Rhode Island, who escaped from the British and joined Francis Marion's troops. There he met and fell in love with beautiful Dorande van Kortenaer, a refugee from a West Indian uprising. Dorande had pledged herself to the cause of the Colonies, and despite many obstructions she finally pledged herself to Ross, also.

Booklist 46:219 Mr 1 '50

Bookmark 9:161 Ap '50 50w

"Using his intimate knowledge of American history and his skill at weaving romantic plot into a historical framework, Bruce Lancaster has told a stirring story." Walter Havighurst
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 5 '50 300w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p12 Mr 13 '50 480w

"The account of the Swamp Fox's marches and tactics is really the best of the book, but there is also a romance, old-fashioned though refreshingly free from sensationalism, between Ross and a beautiful refugee girl who serves as a spy for the Rebels." M. C. Scoggin
+ Horn Bk 26:213 My '50 80w

"This makes extraordinarily good reading in a first rate, fast moving story, with no modern emotional complications: a clean yarn, with a good chance for a plus teen age sale."
+ Kirkus 18:1 Ja 1 '50 250w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 75:707 Ap 15 '50 60w

"In these days of pseudo-psychology, when novelists seldom put their considerable gifts at the service of their readers, it is a pleasure to come upon a book in which the author, instead of being preoccupied with his characters' convolutions and his own ingenuity in straightening them out, simply gives his readers a very good time. . . So admirable is the history itself that it seems a pity the author has thought it necessary to present it in fictional dress, for in romantic drama, and especially in dialogue Bruce Lancaster is not at his most felicitous. Yet it happens, by the magic of speed and verve, that the unexpected, inevitable adjectives and the considerately translated French phrases fit surprisingly well into the atmosphere of the story." Maristan Chapman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Mr 5 '50 450w

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Times p28 Mr 12 '50 380w

"Given this exciting theme, the competent craftsmanship of Lancaster is sufficient assurance that pace and suspense will be well sustained to the end despite stereotyped plot and often improbable dialogue." R. B. Morris
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:32 Mr 25 '50 700w

Wis Lib Bul 46:26 Mr '50

LANCASTER, OSBERT. There'll always be a Drayneflete; il. by the author [Eng title: Drayneflete revealed]. 70p $2.25 Houghton
827 50-8350

A parody of a local history of an English town. It describes progress in Drayneflete, from the bronze age to the present and lampoons the English national character.

Booklist 46:350 Jl 15 '50

"For pure, sofisticated, tongue-in-cheek subtlety, 'There'll Always Be a Drayneflete' is a joy to read. I hope there'll always be an Osbert Lancaster." R. L. Blakesley
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Je 18 '50 400w

Reviewed by Francis Russell
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Je 24 '50 800w

Kirkus 18:347 Je 15 '50 190w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
+ Library J 75:1046 Je 15 '50 100w

"Many marks are accurately and wittily hit in [Mr Lancaster's] new guide-book to our civilization. . . The charm of Mr. Lancaster's humour is its mixture of erudition and irresponsibility." J. W.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 18 '49 240w

"On the whole [Mr Lancaster's] text is unworthy of his plates. The truth is, he is too purposefully droll." Simon Harcourt-Smith
— + New Statesman & Nation 38:709 D 10 '49 120w

Reviewed by E. C. Dunn
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Jl 2 '50 500w

Reviewed by Leo Lerman
+ N Y Times p3 Jl 2 '50 1400w

New Yorker 26:98 Je 24 '50 150w

"A needle-sharp caricature of local antiquarianism at its very worst. And Mr. Lancaster succeeds in making it hilariously funny. Some of you will have seen the material as it appeared in The Atlantic. Even those who have read it in its magazine appearance, I should think, will be amused all over again, not least by the author's dead-pan drawings with which the publisher has embellished the book." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 21 '50 600w

Reviewed by John Cournos
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 Jl 22 '50 240w

"Mr. Lancaster has never done anything better than this book, in which his drawings aid and abet the text on every page." Derek Hudson
+ Spec 183:646 N 11 '49 180w

"Cartoonist Lancaster's sprightly, prattling text is as amusing as his drawings. As a whole it is a parody of the fly-blown local guide (revised edition, 1910), which is all that the tourist is sure to find in the average British town bookshop. It also unobtrusively manages to deliver a great deal of shrewd literary and social satire."
+ Time 55:98 Je 26 '50 550w

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p734 N 11 '49 950w

LANDAU, MARK ALEKSANDROVICH (M. A. ALDANOV, pseud). The escape. 389p $3.50 Scribner 50-9437

"Life in St. Petersburg during World War I and the beginning of the Russian revolution is the subject of this long novel. Centered around a small group of lesser government officials and middle class lawyers, the story portrays life in those circles and demonstrates the decay which set in during that period." Library J

Booklist 47:76 O 15 '50

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p5 S 19 '50 110w

Reviewed by Fitzroy Davis
Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 S 17 '50 600w

Christian Science Monitor p15 N 11 '50 300w

Kirkus 18:430 Ag 1 '50 170w

"Some of the characters are excellently drawn, and the whole story creates a mood of frustration in a period now long past." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 75:1289 Ag '50 80w

"'The Escape,' like 'Crime and Punishment,' might have become simply another extremely clever detective story were it not for the author's serious philosophical concern for the universal problems of revolution involved in the theme. Indeed, one may detect the influence of Dostoievsky in the novel, though Mr. Aldanov's mature and original art is in no real sense imitative." E. J. Simmons
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 10 '50 650w

LANDAU, M. A.—Continued

"Mr. Aldanov's book is not propaganda. He has presented his material dispassionately. . . 'The Escape' is not for the casual readers. It is serious, solid and intense. Yet it seems curiously old-fashioned and dated, despite the author's brilliant craftsmanship and insight. . . The novel is diffusely written and loosely edited; and most Americans will find the Russian names difficult. Still, the author's complete mastery of his subject and his sincerity is evident on every page." Oriana Atkinson

+ — N Y Times p50 S 24 '50 160w

Reviewed by Brendan Gill

New Yorker 26:98 S 30 '50 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p10 N 26 '50 550w

"The individual stories of Mr. Aldanov's numerous characters are not integrated enough to give to his novel continuous drive. And since, by its very design, it never ventures very far beyond or beneath its original social stratum, 'The Escape' offers no really great panorama of the most fateful months of twentieth-century history. But even so it is one of the most serious attempts I know of in fiction to do justice to them without hindsight." Robert Pick

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:15 S 16 '50 810w

LANDECK, BEATRICE, ed. Songs to grow on; a collection of American folk songs for children; with explanatory text and rhythm band arrangements; piano settings by Florence White; il. by David Stone Martin. 125p $2.95 Edward B. Marks Music Corporation, R.C.A. Bldg, 1250 6th Av, N.Y. 20; Sloane

784 Children's songs

"Offers American folk songs adapted to the child's understanding. Miss Landeck provides a note about each one and suggestions for rhythmic activity. Her selections include game songs and songs which can be accompanied by rhythm bands. There are also sample classroom programs." N Y Times

---

Booklist 47:103 N 1 '50

Chicago Sunday Tribune p41 D 3 '50 100w

"This is an outstanding collection of genuine folk songs straight from the heart of yesteryear. Most of them cannot be found except in comprehensive collections like Carl Sandburg's 'American Songbag,' or John and Alan Lomax's 'American Ballads and Folk Songs.' The arrangements are easy enough for a child to play."

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 O 7 '50 100w

Kirkus 18:350 Jl 1 '50 130w

"Our hope for this new book of American folk songs is that its striking pictures and gay subdivision titles, plus its descriptions of games or rhythm play based on many songs, will take it into many homes and schools." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 10 '50 230w

Reviewed by Lois Palmer

N Y Times p36 S 10 '50 90w

Springf'd Republican p12C S 17 '50 150w

LANDIS, BENSON YOUNG. Rural welfare services. 201p $3 Columbia univ. press

360.973 Charities—U.S. Public welfare—U.S. 49-9763

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"This book is, for the most part, a non-critical catalogue of agencies and services, and most of the information could be secured equally well from the Social Work Year Book. The book may supply rural ministers unfamiliar with social work a list of agencies, but it will not be helpful for welfare problems in specific communities." M. A. Elliott

Am J Soc 55:515 Mr '50 800w

"Rural Welfare Services is excellent reading for the social worker who wants to learn something of the 'rural aspects' of the profession." G. W. Hill

+ Ann Am Acad 267:237 Ja '50 340w

"In view of the significant changes which have occurred in rural areas since the close of World War II, it is unfortunate that Dr. Landis does not give data more recent than 1946, certainly on such readily available points as Congressional appropriations and annual reports of national agencies. It is also regrettable that he fails to mention the tremendous changes in rural life which are accompanying the upward trend in mechanization of agriculture. Both urban and rural communities can use Dr. Landis' book as a pattern for inventorying their social resources. The need for this is exceeded only by the need for coordinating services into a unified welfare program." D. G. Jones

Social Forces 28:454 My '50 390w

U S Quarterly Bkl 5:516 D '49 240w

LANE, CARL DANIEL. Treasure cave; il. by the author. 283p $2.75 Little 50-4967

A great deal of sailing and ship lore is interwoven into this story of three boys and their sloop Altair during a summer of cruising and odd jobs along the coast of Maine.

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 40w

"Diagrams of things pertaining to sea lore give authenticity and reference value to the book, though the story is slight. Recommended." H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 75:1310 Ag '50 70w

"Good information about sailing, navigating and fishing is embedded in Carl D. Lane's 'Treasure Cave'. . . All seagoing boys will be keen about it." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 31 '50 80w

"Boys of high-school age will probably find that the first couple of pages sail slowly; but what follows is worth their time because Mr. Lane knows his ships and blue salt water. The book contains many valuable sketches." Felix Riesenberg

+ N Y Times p20 Ag 6 '50 130w

LANE, FERDINAND COLE. Story of mountains. 488p pl $6.50 Doubleday

551.53 Mountains. Mountaineering 50-10494

"Mountaineering seems to be the thread upon which this miscellany of information about mountains is strung. Facts culled from geography, geology, meteorology and history are intermingled, but over and over the author returns to his theme of man versus mountains. Accounts of mountaineering accidents and other tragedies associated with mountains are found in several of the chapters." (Library J) Index.

"For any reader interested in arresting natural phenomena, but with little technical knowledge of the subject, this is good reading."

+ Kirkus 18:454 Ag 1 '50 160w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:2010 N 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by W. B. Hayward

N Y Times p12 N 5 '50 360w

LANGMUIR, IRVING. Phenomena, atoms, and molecules; an attempt to interpret phenomena in terms of mechanisms or atomic and molecular interactions. 436p $10 Philosophical lib.

504 Science 50-6273

"The papers in this book have been selected by Dr. Langmuir from his writings of the past forty years. Most of them have been previously published in scientific periodicals, and most are intended to be read by professional physicists and scientists familiar with advanced physical concepts. They represent the more important of Dr. Langmuir's contributions. In addition, the bibliography supplies a complete list of his published papers." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"Throughout this book the writer advances his arguments in a thorough, logical manner, even on those subjects which are treated lightly. This book should have wide appeal." E. J. Bethe
+ Chem & Eng N 28:1956 Je 5 '50 200w

Reviewed by H. C. Parmelee
Chem Eng 57:290 Je '50 330w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:26 Mr '50

"The book contains much that is interesting and provocative. Unfortunately, it will not appeal to a wide audience, because it consists mostly of articles reprinted as they originally appeared in chemical journals—complete with scientific terms and mathematical equations But scientists in general, and chemists in particular, will find this a valuable reference volume because of the lasting importance of Dr. Langmuir's research." J. E. Pfeiffer
+ — N Y Times p36 Ap 16 '50 600w

LANGTON, L. L. Radio-frequency heating equipment; with particular reference to the theory and design of self-excited power oscillators. 196p il $3.75 Pitman

621.396 Induction heating [50-1900]

"In this work by a British author, the emphasis is on theory and on fundamental calculations. Nevertheless, the book is designed for non-specialists. Author has assumed that his readers will have had previous work in electrical or radio engineering, but will be novices in this field." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1914 D 15 '49 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:7 Ja '50

LANIA, LEO, pseud. See Herrmann, L.

LAPE, FRED. Barnyard year; with drawings by Aldren Watson. 62p $2.50 Harper

811 50-8645

Forty-five short poems on farm subjects, from barns and stables, to sheep, cows, pigs, and one tough old rooster.

Booklist 47:132 D 1 '50

"Rather charmingly earthy poems. . . For an audience of farm and country lovers, not a large one at that."
Kirkus 18:411 Jl 15 '50 60w

Reviewed by George McDonald
Library J 75:1669 O 1 '50 80w

"Mr. Lape's verses . . . are simple, charming, deeply felt, and not without humor." Rolfe Humphries
+ Nation 171:152 Ag 12 '50 130w

"His approach is as simple as his subjects, and there is occasional wry humor. He wisely says: 'Poetry need not be esoteric to be good.' But at times he strains so hard for the obvious and the common-as-dirt that he weakens his basic argument." Hal Borland
+ N Y Times p17 Jl 23 '50 170w

"There is a commendable unity to the collection, a certainty of language, and a lack of literary pretense. On the minus side, the lack of rhyme invites lack of discipline. The line drawings by Aldren Watson add considerable charm to Mr. Lape's collection."
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:37 S 30 '50 230w

LARIAR, LAWRENCE. Careers in cartooning. 182p il $3.50 Dodd

741.5 Caricatures and cartoons 50-5167

"Practical advice of the most specific sort, much of it emphasized by the question and answer method of presentation. . . Mr. Lariar discusses schooling and techniques, then devotes the bulk of his book to markets and specialized fields of cartoon art: strips, books, magazine panels, movies, television, advertising, editorial cartoons, and others." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 46:175 Ja 15 '50

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 5 '50 50w

Reviewed by Mary Strang
Library J 75:568 Ap 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:644 Ap 15 '50 50w

"Recommended, especially because of present controversies about the effects of the comics." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:1186 Jl '50 80w

"It is a treasure too good to be missed."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:41 My 13 '50 130w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 Mr '50

LARISON, MRS RUTH HOOPER. How to get and hold the job you want. 264p $2.95 Longmans

331.115 Applications for positions 50-6647

Advice on seeking a job, for both beginners and for those who wish to change jobs. Discusses the unpleasant aspects of job hunting as well as methods of procedure. Contains specimen letters. Index to questions and answers.

Booklist 46:256 Ap 15 '50

"This is the kind of book always in demand in an acquisitive business civilization producing successive crops of young idealists who believe that merit, to achieve its due reward, needs only to be 'sold.' It is the official handbook of the Job-Finding Forum of the Advertising Club of New York; and it expounds in wearisome detail the technique of self-assertive cunning which, we are assured, must be cultivated if the executive aspirant wishes to land a job 'at his top level.' " Fergus Glenn
Canadian Forum 30:118 Ag '50 340w

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Jl 9 '50 60w

"Useful for vocational guidance, for personnel office reference, for college bureaus advising students on the right approach to the job hunting process, and so on."
+ Kirkus 18:118 F 15 '50 190w

"One of the best in the field."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:23 Je '50

LARRALDE, ELSA. Land and people of Mexico. (Portraits of the nations ser) 127p il $2.50 Lippincott

917.2 Mexico—Juvenile literature 50-14269

A combination of history and geography of Mexico for upper elementary and junior school age.

Booklist 47:81 O 15 '50

"A thorough and careful study of Mexico, a bit too tight-packed for casual reading, perhaps also too stationary, but generally fair-minded and reliable."
+ — Kirkus 18:472 Ag 15 '50 120w

"Much-needed book on our neighbor to the south. This whole series is a valuable one, and the Mexican volume should be indispensable." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 75:1913 N 1 '50 90w

"More factual and less entertaining than other books in this admirable series."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:65 N 11 '50 220w

LARRIMORE, LIDA, pseud. See Turner, L. L.

LARSON, AGNES MATHILDA. History of the white pine industry in Minnesota. 432p il $7.50 Univ. of Minn.

338.1749751 Lumbering. White pine 49-9226

"It is Miss Larson's purpose to give perspective to the white pine in Minnesota's

LARSON, A. M.—Continued
domination, successfully, by fur, lumber, and wheat. In 1839 the first commercial mill cut timber in Minnesota and by the early 1930's the saws of the last major mills had been stilled. The interval of nearly a century saw the production of 67,500,000,000 feet of lumber. In the process came stimulation from local sales, from consumers down the Mississippi and on the prairies, and from markets westward by rail and eastward over the Great Lakes. Finally, dwindling Minnesota supplies and competition from South and West led to the industry's decline. Each of these phases receives full treatment." Am Hist R

"Of particular value, and especially clear and cohesive, are the chapters dealing with the operation of national and state laws in the acquisition of timber lands and stumpage in the Minnesota area. The author searched the voluminous but little-used General Land Office records, available earlier in the Department of Interior and now deposited in the National Archives. . . Miss Larson has made a genuine contribution not only to regional and state history but also to business and conservation history." E. S. Meany
+ Am Hist R 55:706 Ap '50 440w

"An excellent contribution to the regional history and historical geography of the Upper Great Lakes area and the upper Mississippi Valley." Loyal Durand
+ Geog R 40:167 Ja '50 700w

"The author overlooks nothing germane to the subject. . . The volume is a genuine contribution to the history of a pioneer American industry." S. H. Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 S 11 '49 360w

LASERSON, MAX M. American impact on Russia; diplomatic and ideological, 1784-1917. 441p $5 Macmillan

327.73 Russia—Foreign relations—U.S. U.S. —Foreign relations—Russia 50-12185

"A pioneer study on diplomatic and ideological Russian-American relations during the 150 years of Russia's rapprochement to Western civilization. Though the American impact on Russia during that period has been, for obvious reasons, much slighter than the impact of Germany, France or England, nevertheless it was considerable enough to merit our attention at a time when Russian-American relations are, for the first time in history, in the foreground of world interest." (N Y Times) Dr Laserson lectures on legal and political philosophy, and on contemporary civilization at Columbia University. Index.

Booklist 47:128 D 1 '50
Current Hist 19:289 N '50 80w
Kirkus 18:380 Jl 1 '50 210w

"Encyclopedic in coverage of matters generally passed over in most American histories; filled with excellent documentation, but not so enlightening nor well synthesized as some earlier classical works. Useful for reference collections in history and foreign relations before World War I, and somewhat for the earliest years of the Bolshevist victory." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 75:1400 S 1 '50 140w

Reviewed by Alex Inkeles
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 26 '50 700w

"Mr. Laserson's book is replete with fascinating details and with sketches of the lives and thoughts of little known Russian liberals. It shows clearly how the doctrinaire socialism of the Russian intelligentsia after 1870 looked upon the United States as a country addicted entirely to money, and how some official Americans, without knowledge of Russian history or mentality, perhaps also without any real understanding of America, were unhelpful in creating better relations." Hans Kohn
+ N Y Times p22 O 22 '50 700w

"This is a book which not only depicts the American impact on Russia but gives an engrossing picture of nineteenth century America as seen through Russian eyes." F. R. Dulles
+ Sat R of Lit 33:19 N 11 '50 800w
School & Society 72:254 O 14 '50 40w
Springf'd Republican p6D O 8 '50 120w

LASKER, BRUNO. Democracy through discussion. 376p $3.50 Wilson, H.W.

374.24 Democracy. Discussion 49-48211

"Organization and operation of groups formed to discuss and influence the trends of American life. The author shows the need for leadership in this field and gives practical suggestions on methods and procedure." (Current Hist) Index.

Booklist 46:183 F 1 '50

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook
Current Hist 18:41 Ja '50 30w

"My only disappointment had nothing to do with Mr. Lasker's efforts but with the fact, quietly made evident in this book, that we social scientists have as yet done so little in the way of precise and meticulous investigation to plumb the processes of group discussion in order to provide more and more dependable generalizations. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say that Mr. Lasker demonstrates that we already know a great deal, but between the lines it is evident that we need to know a great deal more." M. H. Kuhn
Survey 85:612 N '49 750w
Wis Lib Bul 46:13 Ja '50

LASKER, BRUNO. Human bondage in southeast Asia; pub. under the auspices of the Inst. of Pacific relations. 406p $6 Univ. of N.C. press

331.5 Asia, Southeastern. Labor, Compulsory 50-7519

"This book is concerned with the background, both in actuality and in recent memory, of human bondage in its diverse forms, from which springs the motive power of the uprisings throughout Southeast Asia." (Introd) Index.

"In the opinion of the reviewer, this is the best of Mr. Lasker's several volumes on Southeast Asia. It gets below the surface and probes into causes and origins." Fay-Cooper Cole
+ Am Hist R 56:111 O '50 220w
Booklist 47:35 S 15 '50

Reviewed by M. B. Jansen
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 My 20 '50 650w
Current Hist 18:356 Je '50 50w
Foreign Affairs 29:160 O '50 20w

Reviewed by W. L. Briggs
New Repub 123:18 Ag 7 '50 400w

"In many respects this is the best book that Bruno Lasker has written, and he has written some good ones. It is a book for specialists, those who are interested in the problem of human bondage or in Southeast Asia, or both. It is long, detailed, meaty, closely documented and copiously annotated." R. A. Smith
+ N Y Times p12 Je 25 '50 360w

"This book is full of wisdom and understanding as well as facts, and should prove invaluable to anyone dealing with reconstruction problems in Asia." G. G. S.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 27 '50 420w

"An authoritative book." P. R. Levin
+ Sat R of Lit 33:48 S 16 '50 400w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:362 S '50 260w

LASKER, BRUNO, ed. New forces in Asia; pub. in assn. with the Am. inst. of Pacific relations. (Reference shelf) 237p maps $1.75 Wilson, H.W.

950 Asia—Politics. Asia—Social conditions 50-3828

"This 'Reference Shelf' book contains articles selected from many sources on present conditions in Asia. Two, by Stanley Jones and Kagawa, are taken from The Christian Century. K. S. Latourette and Paul B. Means contribute articles on religious aspects. From another point of view, Anna Louise Strong sings the praises of democracy and freedom as presently practiced in North Korea, where, according to her account, the Russians are doing practically nothing to control the course of events and where she found that a visitor had complete freedom of travel and inquiry." Christian Century

Booklist 46:354 Jl 15 '50
Christian Century 67:791 Je 28 '50 150w
Foreign Affairs 29:161 O '50
School & Society 71:350 Je 3 '50 40w

LASKI, HAROLD JOSEPH. Trade unions in the new society. 182p $3 Viking

331.88 Trade unions 49-11202

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by Joseph Shister
Am Econ R 40:226 Mr '50 1050w

"The pungent idealism of the Intellectual Left finds no abler exponent than Laski in analyzing the limitations of 'pure-and-simple' business unionism. But both on the level of diagnosis and of prescription Laski frankly prejudges in orthodox Marxian style the political decisions the labor leader is called upon to make." Avery Leiserson
Am Pol Sci R 44:230 Mr '50 500w

"Mr. Laski is too prone to attribute to the American worker his own belief that the Soviet Union more than anything else destroyed men's faith in laissez faire and gave men hope for economic betterment. Socialism and Soviet Communism are hardly to be equated, and Mr. Laski, in seeking to establish the validity of one in terms of the other, does little to advance his cause. The actual slavery that accompanies the hope for economic security in the USSR has led American labor not only to deny Mr. Laski's vision but to take a leading part in the repudiation of the Soviet ideal." David Spitz
Ann Am Acad 268:231 Mr '50 550w

"Despite weaknesses, there is much of interest in Laski's latest book. His discussion of communism inside the union is excellent, as is his criticism of many of the big dictatorial unions. He also adds his bit on the closed shop, the rights of property, and the dangers of the middle-of-the-road unions combining with the employers to defeat the left-wing groups. Like all Laski books, it gives one furiously to think, and that in itself should be sufficient recommendation." M. K. Hammond
+ — Current Hist 18:227 Ap '50 1050w
Harvard Law R 64:183 N '50 240w

"Though the late Professor Laski did important work in government and political theory, he never manifested a deep interest in or extensive knowledge of trade unionism. His lectures on the subject are therefore far from satisfactory. They lack the depth of understanding of the trade union movement that might have been brought to the task by such authorities in the field as England's G. D. H. Cole or R. H. Tawney, for example. For some strange reason, the Soviet Union continually intrudes into the author's discussion. An understanding of that country's policies is, of course, very necessary; they have little to do with trade unions, however, except to demonstrate that the kind that exist in England and in the United States are not possible there. . . There is little in this book except a rewarming of the author's prejudices." Philip Taft
— Management R 39:358 Je '50 440w

Reviewed by Herbert Tracey
Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 11 '50 400w

"Substantially this book is a short résumé of Harold Laski's political philosophy. But it is clearly expressed, provocative and a reminder that he was one of the few Socialists in this country who was prepared and equipped to think through the problems of our time in terms, not of empiricism, but of social theory." Norman MacKenzie
+ New Statesman & Nation 40:106 Jl 22 '50 850w

"Many may not agree with Professor Laski's view that American unions should—like British unions—play a direct part in political life, instead of being 'pressure groups . . . tangential to politics.' But his case for direct political action by trade unions in a democratic society is carefully thought out, and his book as a whole is a masterly analysis of the moral and political relations between trade unions, the public and the State. Seldom has a work of political analysis been of such topical importance." J. R. L. Anderson
+ Spec 184:896 Je 30 '50 800w

"This is not one of Laski's better products. Because it is primarily a collection of several lectures, there is much overlapping. More seriously, there are too many distracting digressions to remotely related fields—digressions which are much more acceptable from the platform (especially when articulated by such a charming and eloquent speaker as Laski) than they are in print. Nevertheless, the volume contains many cogent observations on current union problems." H. H. Bookbinder
+ — Survey 86:165 Mr '50 490w

"Laski's work will be welcomed both as a characteristic utterance by a justly respected thinker, whose premature death was a heavy blow to political science, and as a contribution to the knowledge of a subject still too much neglected by British writers."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p488 Ag 4 '50 1550w

LASS, ABRAHAM HAROLD, and HOROWITZ, ARNOLD, eds. Stories for youth. 374p $1.96 Harper

Short stories—Collections 50-5634

Stories for young people dealing with the problems of youth: growing up; facing reality; choosing a creed to live by; etc.

Booklist 46:204 F 15 '50
School & Society 71:95 F 11 '50 20w

LASSAIGNE, JACQUES. Eugène Delacroix. See Delacroix, E.

LASSER, JACOB KAY. Business tax handbook. 3d ed 792p $5 Simon & Schuster

336.243 Income tax—U.S. Corporations—Taxation

" 'A practical guide, a check list and stimulus for businessmen' and their tax advisors, tightly packed with suggestions and recommendations to guide them in their decisions on alternative methods of handling business transactions throughout the year to effect tax savings. A numerical list of Treasury Regulations is keyed to pages where they are discussed." Library J

Booklist 46:203 F 15 '50

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 5 '50 30w

"Arrangement and indexing combine to make it an effective ready reference business tool." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:402 Mr 1 '50 70w

" 'Lasser's Business Tax Handbook' is a valuable addition to the library of the professional tax advisor, who too often is overwhelmed by the mass of disorganized material he is required to work with. If the businessman will use it, too, he will gain from it a better understanding both of his tax problems and the course his pilot is trying to steer." Leslie Mills
+ Sat R of Lit 33:45 Ja 28 '50 700w

LASSER, JACOB KAY. How to run a small business. 350p $3.95 McGraw

658 Business 50-8915

"A record of notes made during many years of advising people, seeking to provide a practical guide and checklist for the small businessman. The emphasis and main body of material is on financial organization and management in all its phases, considered profit-wise, checking losses, assuring profits, and minimizing taxes by guided forethought. Organized similarly to author's Business Tax Handbook, crammed with concrete suggestions and checklists, drawing heavily on government sources. Bibliography." Library J

Booklist 47:7 S 1 '50

Bookmark 10:4 O '50 30w

Kirkus 18:443 Ag 1 '50 120w

"A valuable book for reading or reference." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 75:1413 S 1 '50 100w

Reviewed by Palmer Harman

N Y Times p10 S 3 '50 270w

"This meets a real need for countless thousands of operators of small businesses who have counted on what seemed like certain success only to find that some factors not taken fully into account are threatening collapse. The author gives a thorough analysis of the situations to be met in organizing and carrying on a small business. He omits no details in showing how such an establishment can be operated to a profit. The author aims to make available much of the expert assistance which is engaged by large corporations to keep them going on a profitable basis." J. W. C.

+ Springf'd Republican p5D S 10 '50 300w

LATOURETTE, KENNETH SCOTT. These sought a country. 156p $1.75 Harper

922 Missionaries 50-8788

Brief biographical sketches of five Protestant missionaries in the Orient: two English, William Carey and Hudson Taylor; one Welsh, Timothy Richard; one American, Samuel John Mills; and one Japanese convert to Christianity, Joseph Hardy Neesima. Bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 47:74 O 15 '50

"Useful for group study by young and old, and for reading by Protestants who want to be better acquainted with the men who made missions."

+ Kirkus 18:596 O 1 '50 160w

"Dr. Latourette's 'These Sought a Country' has an air of commonplaceness after Miss Chute's 'The Search for God.' But it has excellent, if simple, qualities of its own to attract and hold our attention." J. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Jl 30 '50 550w

"The book is written simply, almost flatly. Because of its extreme brevity, the author is unable to detail the picturesque and human-interest episodes which must have abounded in the perilous lives of the five men. At times the reader is almost overwhelmed by the mass of organizational details involved in missionary work, and is apt to forget the human elements involved." Chad Walsh

+ N Y Times p16 Ag 13 '50 450w

"One wishes that Professor Latourette could have given a more clear-cut answer. For with him thousands of good people are asking the question 'what good can an individual do?' . . But the author is objective and realistic. . . Books like this are a good antidote to the 'what's the use?' frame of mind. One wishes that the book were more incisive on this, its main point." K. D. Miller

+ Sat R of Lit 33:33 O 21 '50 500w

LATTIMORE, ELEANOR FRANCES (MRS ROBERT ARMSTRONG ANDREWS). Christopher and his turtle; il. by [the author]. 126p $2 Morrow

50-8513

Christopher, who lived in New Orleans, was five. His mother brought him a little turtle to play with while his older brother was in school. One morning Christopher started out to show the turtle to the little girl who lived across the street, but he got mixed up with a lot of school children and lost his way. The story of his adventures is for ages six to nine.

Booklist 47:16 S 1 '50

"A happy, fresh little book with piquant sketches by the author. Possible for second year reading."

+ Kirkus 18:351 Jl 1 '50 160w

"Second-third graders will find it pleasant reading. Recommended." K. H. McAlarney

+ Library J 75:1416 S 1 '50 80w

"This writer has a special charm in telling about small children, which is able to turn reality into the kind of magic they like and understand. Her own pictures are exactly right for her tale." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 5 '50 180w

"As always in Miss Lattimore's stories, the setting is important. The simply told misadventures of Christopher have the quality of real experience, easily recognized and completely appreciated by other young explorers." S. C. Gross

+ N Y Times p17 D 17 '50 130w

New Yorker 26:178 D 2 '50 70w

Wis Lib Bul 46:26 S '50

LATTIMORE, ELEANOR FRANCES (MRS ROBERT ARMSTRONG ANDREWS). Indigo Hill; il. by [the author]. 128p $2 Morrow

50-214

Story of Lydia, a little colored girl, who lived "away out in the country in South Carolina," and had gay times with her mischievous brothers, her friend Albertine, and Albertine's goat.

Booklist 46:222 Mr 1 '50

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 Ap 23 '50 160w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '50

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 26:190 My '50 90w

"A warmly human little story."

+ Kirkus 17:654 D 1 '49 160w

Reviewed by Louise Davis

Library J 75:630 Ap 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by N. L. Rathbun

+ Library J 75:784 My 1 '50 60w

"All entirely real and delightful." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Mr 5 '50 150w

"It is no wonder that children of 6 to 9 like Eleanor Lattimore's books. They may be classified as regional stories, but they are, first of all, affectionately drawn portraits of children who are universal in their thoughts and actions. A gentle humor and a perceptive use of detail give this story a down-to-earth sense of reality." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p22 Mr 5 '50 200w

"There are humor and friendliness in this story of the Negro children on Indigo Hill." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 33:47 Mr 11 '50 150w

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:28 Mr '50

LATTIMORE, OWEN. Ordeal by slander. 236p $2.75 Little

351.74 Libel and slander. McCarthy, Joseph, R. 50-8855

"This summation of the attack by Senator McCarthy on Owen Lattimore starts in March in Afghanistan where he was working with the other members of the United Nations Technical Aid Mission to that country. It tells of his shock and anger at the accusation, continues with his trip home, his wife's story of what had happened here until he arrived, gives his testimony before the Congressional Subcommittee headed by Millard Tydings, and tells with gratitude of the many friends who stepped forward to help." Library J

Am Pol Sci R 44:1045 D '50 20w

"Owen Lattimore's account of his all-in tussle with Senator McCarthy is a masterpiece of factual exposition, a social document of first-rate importance. Over and above that, it is a tremendously stirring human drama." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 186:75 S '50 950w

Booklist 46:325; 47:6 Jl 1 '50; S 1 '50

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p5 Jl 30 '50 600w

Reviewed by Willard Edwards
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 30 '50 550w

Christian Century 67:997 Ag 23 '50 220w

Kirkus 18:344 Je 15 '50 210w

"Of present interest and historical importance. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 75:1178 Jl '50 140w

Reviewed by Philip Mandel
Nation 171:170 Ag 19 '50 1400w

Reviewed by J. R. Newman
New Repub 123:19 Ag 28 '50 1800w

Reviewed by J. K. Fairbank
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Jl 30 '50 1900w

"Mr. Lattimore's own case for his own integrity, as stated here with supporting documentation, is a good one. . . This book has dull spots. That, in a way, is one of the tragedies of such situations. Mr. Lattimore couldn't skip anything or he would have been accused of evading issues. No doubt he was as much bored as anybody else—the more so because he was being compelled to divert energies that might better have been devoted to writing, study, travel and teaching." R. L. Duffus

N Y Times p1 Jl 30 '50 1600w

"Mr. Lattimore relates his story chronologically and, all things considered, with surprising calm and objectivity. . . A disturbing and illuminating book."

+ New Yorker 26:67 Ag 5 '50 180w

"Anyone who really wants to know the facts of the entire case can and should read 'Ordeal By Slander.' Indeed, Americans owe it to Lattimore—and even more to themselves—to get the story here in one connected narrative, with the falsities exposed and the methods laid bare." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 30 '50 2200w

Reviewed by Duncan Aikman
Sat R of Lit 33:14 S 30 '50 950w

LATTIMORE, OWEN. Pivot of Asia; Sinkiang and the inner Asian frontiers of China and Russia: with the assistance of Chang Chih-yi [and others]. 288p $3.50 Little

951.6 Sinkiang. Asia, Central—Politics 50-6506

Through this study of Sinkiang made by the author and his associates under a Carnegie grant, the book provides a comprehensive survey of the politics and power structure of today, seen against a background of little known peoples and the vast domain of deserts, oases, snow capped mountains and pasture lands in which they live. Index.

Booklist 46:244 Ap 1 '50

Reviewed by F. S. Marquardt
Chicago Sun p5 Ap 11 '50 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '50

Current Hist 19:104 Ag '50 70w

Foreign Affairs 29:162 O '50 30w

"While unlikely to reach the public of his earlier books, this makes signal contribution to better understanding of a vital factor in Asia—and in international politics—today. Don't overlook it."

+ Kirkus 18:46 Ja 15 '50 420w

Reviewed by H. P. Linton
Library J 75:490 Mr 15 '50 130w

"Pivot of Asia has two weaknesses. First, the title theme has been overplayed. . . Second, the fragmentary account of events in Sinkiang since Sheng Shih-tsai came to power seems highly inaccurate. . . The most valuable service this book provides is the understanding of how Russia looks from the back door." T. H. White

+ — New Repub 123:20 Jl 10 '50 1250w

"'Pivot of Asia' is one of the most successful, tangible products of Area Study, the postwar effort to combine the various disciplines of economics, politics, sociology, geography and the like in truly interdisciplinary research. It represents a very considerable synthesis of expert abilities. . . Mrs. Lattimore's careful editing has minimized, without entirely eliminating, the duplication inevitable in composite works, and Mr. Lattimore's easy grasp of the total picture sets a high standard for other Area Study research projects." J. K. Fairbank

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Mr 19 '50 1600w

Reviewed by Stuart Lillico
N Y Times p4 Mr 26 '50 900w

"The book is scholarly and temperate in tone, and the author's belief that this area is going to have a great deal of bearing on world politics is convincingly expounded."

+ New Yorker 26:101 Je 3 '50 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 23 '50 650w

"A scholarly closeup of a little known but increasingly strategic sector of that vast continent. . . With the incomparable breadth of knowledge which his long experience in the field has given him, Mr. Lattimore has woven together a fascinating short survey of Sinkiang's history, peoples, geography, economic status, and social structure. An indispensable addition to the library of all Orientalists, 'Pivot of Asia' is also highly recommended background reading for everyone deeply concerned with the future of Asia as it relates to this country's developing role in world affairs." R. E. Lauterbach

+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 Ap 8 '50 650w

Springf'd Republican p8D Ap 2 '50 360w

"This book can be read with ease and profit by the layman, and yet both its documentation and material are such that all further studies of Sinkiang must make it their point of departure." T. A. Bisson

+ Survey 86:467 O '50 650w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:343 S '50 340w

Wis Lib Bul 46:27 Je '50

LAU, MRS JOSEPHINE SANGER. Story of Joseph; il. by Edward and Stephani Godwin. 192p $2 Abingdon-Cokesbury

Joseph, the patriarch—Juvenile literature 50-6479

A retelling of the Bible story of Joseph for ages 9-12. There is one fictional character: Nun, an Assyrian tutor who teaches the boy to read and write the language of Egypt.

Booklist 46:249 Ap 1 '50

"One is usually cautious about rewritten Bible stories—so many seem mere makeshifts or counterfeits—but this is simply and reverently written, follows closely the Bible story, lighting it up with detail of the life of the times, plus a fictional teacher or scribe who teaches him writing, languages and figures. Joseph's growth in character, his experience with prayer, his growing conviction that God has a work for him to do, will all serve as wholesome spiritual influence on readers young and older." Millicent Taylor

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 25 '50 180w

Kirkus 18:98 F 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:640 Ap 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by Virginia Haviland
Library J 75:882 My 15 '50 110w

LAU, J. S.—Continued

"It is one of the world's best stories, best read in the Bible itself. For many, this should prove an introduction very different from that of Thomas Mann, and probably an aid in turning back to the Bible version." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 28 '50 210w

"Josephine Lau here retells one of the favorite Bible stories with simplicity and charm." Marjorie Burger

+ N Y Times p22 Mr 12 '50 140w

New Yorker 26:185 D 2 '50 80w

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 26 '50 70w

Wis Lib Bul 46:29 Ap '50

LAUGHLIN, CLARA ELIZABETH. So you're going to Italy! completely rewritten from [her] So you're going to Italy [and] So you're going to Rome. Holy year ed 502p il $4 Houghton

914.5 Italy—Description and travel. Rome (city)—Description 50-8021

"In revising this Guide we have respected, in the main, its original framework, in the belief that to attempt to crowd in detailed information, in summary form, about the parts of Italy which the traveller with limited time is hardly likely to visit, would have detracted from the original character of the book. The reader will therefore find nothing here about Italy south of Rome, except Naples and the surrounding district—and Sicily—nothing about the Abruzzi, the Marche, or the Northeastern corner of Italy, and little about the Romagna." (Pref) A chapter on festivals and one on places to eat are added. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:318 Je 15 '50

Reviewed by J. O. Supple

Chicago Sun p9 Ap 14 '50 60w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 9 '50 90w

"There is a good index, and the author's material is arranged in good geographical sequence, leading into Italy logically at Naples." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 12 '50 120w

LAUGHLIN, MYRON PENN. Money from ideas; a primer on inventions and patents. 142p il $2.50 Pop. mechanics

608 Inventions. Patents 50-5949

"This book is an attempt by an experienced inventor who is also a registered patent attorney to show the average person how to use a logical process in developing an invention; how to patent that invention; and most important, how to make money from that invention." (p.14) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Winifred Baum

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 5 '50 20w

"A good introduction for a beginning inventor." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 75:402 Mr 1 '50 80w

"The whole thing is made very simple and clear, and quite encouraging to anyone with a wish to invent. The book will be invaluable for the novice starting on the long road toward a patent." M. S.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ap 30 '50 200w

LAUTERPACHT, HERSH. International law and human rights. 472p $8.50 Frederick A. Praeger, inc, 105 W. 40th st, N.Y. 18

341 International law. Civil rights

"An analysis of the objects of international law and the problem of the human rights of man in jurisprudence. Professor Lauterpacht particularly deals with the question of the Bill of Rights in the light of recent developments since the establishment of the United Nations. He believes the organs of the United Nations are under a legal obligation to examine violations of human rights and to take appropriate action. A section of the book is devoted to a discussion of the attempts at a regional solution to the problem such as found in the proposed European Court of Human Rights." Current Hist

Current Hist 19:230 O '50 70w

"This book is an expert and realistic guide to the state of mankind's most important campaign." E. N. Cahn

+ N Y Times p6 O 8 '50 900w

"Professor Lauterpacht's erudition is matched by a clarity of thought and of exposition that brings this book within the range of the wide circle of readers which its subject-matter deserves."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p569 S 8 '50 1550w

LAVIN, MRS MARY (WALSH). Mary O'Grady. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 392p $3 Little 50-5260

The life story of a simple Irish woman from the time she leaves her beloved Tullamore to marry a Dublin man, until her death some forty years later.

"Setting and mores are described with an expert hand, and the reader's sympathies are engaged by Miss Lavin's devoted and courageous heroine. But the book is overweighted with inconsequential detail and activated by a succession of gratuitous disasters which, however possible in life, in fiction suggest that the author is dealing the cards unfairly."

+ — Atlantic 185:82 Mr '50 170w

"The simple, straightforward prose beguiles one at first into believing this is a better novel than it is. Perhaps the cold touch of Irish Jansenism curdles it. Too, as the story unfolds the melodrama of the plot becomes obvious. There is no depth or logic to the characters' reactions. A potentially good novel that does not quite make it."

— + Cath World 171:73 Ap '50 250w

"With the solitary exception of the central figure in Sean O'Casey's 'Juno and the Paycock,' it is impossible to recall a more convincingly real portrait of an Irish mother than 'Mary O'Grady.'" J. M. Flynn

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 29 '50 600w

"This gift of characterization, denied to so many writers, has been given in great abundance to Mary Lavin. Unfortunately, however, she has another gift, a typically feminine one, of words, far too many of them. As a result, the plot is loosely-jointed and long drawn out. Less verbal profuseness and a tightening up of the plot machinery would have added immeasurably to the effect of this book. But as it is, Mary O'Grady is an absorbing story." J. C. Lehane

+ — Commonweal 51:518 F 17 '50 200w

"Although overlong and occasionally dull, there is a basic simplicity of style and expression that makes this rewarding reading. This is not, however, essentially popular."

Kirkus 17:629 N 15 '49 190w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel

Manchester Guardian p4 S 22 '50 90w

"Miss Lavin, a talented Irish writer with a fine knowledge of the human heart, succeeds in making Mary O'Grady a character of depth and dimension, yet paradoxically she fails to make this somber chronicle of a mother come fully to life. Where Mary O'Grady's story should be moving it is often monotonous, where it should be simple it frequently seems contrived, and where it should ring with rich Irish laughter it is, alas, strangely lacking in humor." Richard Harrity

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 29 '50 600w

"The pages describing Patrick's homecoming, his abnormal behavior and his family's reactions to it, are tense with horror. They show Miss Lavin at her best, in dramatic action. Yet, like the novel itself, these scenes are not entirely satisfactory. . . Every page of 'Mary O'Grady' is warm with feeling. While some readers may complain that the dice are loaded too heavily against one unfortunate woman, others may answer that such is the price goodness sometimes has to pay." James Stern

+ N Y Times p5 Ja 15 '50 700w

New Yorker 25:85 Ja 28 '50 170w

Reviewed by J. W. Bogan
Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 5 '50 290w

Times [London] Lit Sup p609 S 29 '50 250w

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:28 F '50

LAWLER, JOHN. H. W. Wilson company; half a century of bibliographic publishing. 207p il $3 Univ. of Minn.

655.4747 Bibliography. Wilson, H.W., firm, publishers. Wilson, Halsey William 50-7593

"The origin and growth of the H. W. Wilson Company, from its very humble beginnings in Minneapolis to its position as outstanding publisher of indexes and other library tools, is presented in the first part of the book. In the second, the procedures of compiling the C.B.I. and the various periodical indexes published by Wilson, and the operation of the service basis system of pricing, are explained." (Booklist) Selected list of Wilson indexes and services. Chronological list of the Company's general publications. Note on sources. Index.

"The book is a tribute to Mr. Wilson's ability as a businessman and as a friend of the library profession, and it furnishes entertainingly instructive material on an important phase of library service."
+ Booklist 46:299 Je 1 '50

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Jl 23 '50 650w

"Anyone who has ever boned up for an examination, written for publication, or researched a 'paper' owes a debt of gratitude to H. W. Wilson, the 82-year-old founder and president of the bibliographic publishing company that bears his name. . . John Lawler's account of the origin and growth of this company, from a 'man and wife' business begun with capital of $200, to its present status as a beneficent 'monopoly,' is a history of modern bibliographic practice. It is also a convincing defense of the company's unique way of doing business." David Dempsey
+ N Y Times p26 Je 25 '50 370w

Publishers' Weekly p2098 My 13 '50 50w

"Of special interest to librarians, scholars and booksellers."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 17 '50 50w

"A lively, readable account. . . The usefulness and appreciation of the basic indexes, Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature, Cumulative Book Index and the Book Review Digest, which have contributed so much to librarianship, scholarship and book-selling, and which are taken so much for granted by thousands of librarians and their patrons, will be enhanced by a knowledge of how and why they have come to be what they are."
+ Special Libraries 41:260 S '50 70w

"The technical problems involved in specialist publishing of this character become more complex every year as the volume and variety of printed matter to be recorded and classified steadily increases. . . The cost of the company's index service to each of its 45,000 subscribers is calculated according to the use they make of it. The chapter describing this system could be read with profit by most government departments and municipal authorities."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup N 3 '50 180w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:333 S '50 220w

"A good book for the librarian's personal reading and to review before library groups."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:18 O '50

LAWRENCE, CARL ADAM. Surface-active quaternary ammonium germicides. 245p il $6 Academic press

615.778 Ammonium compounds as disinfectants 50-6393

"A comprehensive survey of the accumulated knowledge of a group of synthetic compounds which are effective germicides under a wide variety of conditions. It is based on the published literature, and references are carefully made throughout the work from statements in the text to the numbered entries in the bibliography. The author has organized and summarized the reported results, and he has also added a moderate number of critical comments of his own. . . A directory of trade-marked products is included." N Y New Tech Bks

---

"It is a good source of information on the composition and practical application of these complex germicides for the use of physicians, health officers, sanitarians, and others who must deal with them." W. D. Tiedeman
+ Am J Pub Health 40:1023 Ag '50 180w

"This monograph is the first and only comprehensive review of the literature covering the entire field of quaternary ammonium compounds, including their syntheses, chemical, physical, and biological properties, pharmacology and toxicology, and practical applications as antiseptics, disinfectants, and sanitizers. . . This monograph will find wide use as a standard reference work by anyone interested in bactericidal and fungicidal agents, regardless of their chemical nature. The time that may be saved by locating one pertinent reference will probably be more than worth the price of the book." A. F. Guiteras
+ Chem & Eng N 28:2379 Jl 10 '50 360w

"The book is of interest to persons concerned with disinfection in connection with medicine and surgery, public health, hotels, restaurants, dairies, laundries, etc. It is phrased in technical terminology."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 35:33 My '50

"This review will be a useful reference tool for those working in the field, but because the work is comprehensive rather than selective, it does not serve well as an introduction to the subject."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:237 Je '50 160w

LAWRENCE, JOSEPHINE (MRS ARTHUR PLATZ). The way things are. 315p $3 McGraw

50-8916

Satirical picture of a modern American household. The two daughters, their husbands and their widowed mother all go out to various jobs leaving the three children to the care and supervision of maids, schools and baby sitters. This picture is revealed thru the eyes of a niece of the grandmother's, a girl brought up in the Victorian manner, who comes to keep an eye on things while the head of the household is away.

Booklist 47:13 S 1 '50

Chicago Sun p5 Ag 29 '50 50w

"Miss Lawrence makes an entertaining novel out of the situation offered by the contrast between the old fashioned and the modern and spices it with gentle satire." Mildred Walker
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 27 '50 370w

Kirkus 18:342 Je 15 '50 130w

"'The Way Things Are' is a nougat of honest thinking wrapped up in a froth of delightful nonsense. Whether you agree with Miss Lawrence or are prepared to dispute her every word to the death, you will nevertheless enjoy the little Victorian home-keeping female in action vis-a-vis the ultra-modern Willowares." D. C. Tilden
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ag 27 '50 900w

"The book has humor and a kind of homespun vividness of detail, combined with stretches of improbability. The characters, though they have outline rather than depth, are recognizable types." Elsie Weil
+ N Y Times p4 S 3 '50 600w

LAWRENCE, JOSEPHINE—Continued

"Josephine Lawrence has a gift for milieu. In this, her fifteenth novel on the social problems of contemporary America, her backdrop and scenery are presented with a living, breathing reality. Unfortunately, the figures who move across this background are afflicted with varying degrees of woodenness. The effect of this is to throw Miss Lawrence's concern with the problems she selects into sharp focus, while leaving blurred and doubtful the relation of these problems to our own emotional lives." Elizabeth Janeway

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:21 S 2 '50 600w

LAWRENCE, MARJORIE. Interrupted melody; the story of my life. 307p il $3.50 Appleton

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 49-49314

Autobiography of Marjorie Lawrence, describing her life from her days on an Australian farm to her triumphs as an opera singer. At the height of her musical career she was stricken with infantile paralysis, and she devotes considerable space to her struggle to resume her singing career, and her successful comeback. Index.

Booklist 46:149; 171 Ja 1 '50; Ja 15 '50

Bookmark 9:133 Mr '50 50w

"The most disturbing thing in the book is Miss Lawrence's hint that certain persons tried to block the resumption of her career at the Metropolitan opera after her partial recovery from her illness. If one resolves beforehand not to be fastidious, and if one reads the book solely for its interest, the rewards are considerable. 'Interrupted Melody' is an engrossing account of the rise of a talented Australian from poverty to a commanding place in the musical world." Edward Barry

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Ja 29 '50 330w

Kirkus 17:641 N 15 '49 240w

"Written simply and with engaging directness. Recommended to school and public libraries especially." C. K. Miller

+ Library J 75:322 F 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by M. D. Read

Library J 75:1057 Je 15 '50 70w

"Miss Lawrence tells what could have been an impressive story in an undistinguished commercialized style, leaning heavily on tedious anecdote and quoted excerpts from reviews. With an eye to the best-seller market and perhaps Hollywood, she dwells on the flashier aspects of an operatic life. . . . With the description of her heroic struggle to resume her career after being crippled by polio, the book takes on interest; but—alas!—the writing is not equal to the material." D. J. Epstein

— + Music Lib Assn Notes 7:288 Mr '50 230w

"'Interrupted Melody' is a spirited, fighting story, and for that reason an inspiring autobiography. . . The memoirs of operatic stars are too often a display of temperamental billing and backstage cooing. Miss Lawrence's book had none of that; she writes as an artist with her eyes on the future. And she is certainly a trouper." Lisle Bell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 F 12 '50 650w

"Miss Lawrence tells her harrowing tale well—with insight and with as much objectivity as one may reasonably expect. Although she generally follows the success-story pattern, she is franker than most celebrities are in their memoirs, and therefore more convincing. She does not attempt to disguise the healthy egotism without which the life of a successful opera singer is scarcely plausible." Moses Smith

+ N Y Times p5 Ja 29 '50 320w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 My 21 '50 400w

Reviewed by Betsey Barton

+ Sat R of Lit 33:20 Mr 18 '50 650w

Wis Lib Bul 46:24 F '50

LAWRENCE, MRS MILDRED. Homemade year; with il. by Susanne Suba. 217p $2.25 Harcourt

50-9124

Victoria, an eleven-year-old city girl, had to spend a year on her aunt's Pennsylvania farm, while her own mother was ill. The austere life of her aunt and cousins did not suit Vicky at first. But when she decided to restore the 200-year-old deserted buildings of a German communal society, her cousin and the neighbors all helped. When the year was over Vicky was ready to stay where things were "homemade." Grades 4-7.

Booklist 47:47 S 15 '50

Bookmark 10:11 O '50 50w

"A story of humor, good sense and fine characterizations." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 O 22 '50 220w

Christian Science Monitor p7 N 11 '50 130w

Horn Bk 26:372 S '50 80w

Kirkus 18:466 Ag 15 '50 120w

"There are many books introducing girls under twelve to farms, and many in which a young girl saves an old place from a foreclosure. But this is one of the liveliest, for Vicky has spunk and imagination and the setting is most interesting." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 17 '50 140w

"Vicky's success seems rather extravagant, but the basic theme is a valuable one in this age of ready-made gadgets. Even though the characters are suggested rather than fully defined, they are an appealing group set against an attractive background." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p16 Ag 20 '50 170w

"This story of Vicky, who spent a year with her cousins in the Pennsylvania Dutch country, is by the author of 'Peachtree Island' and 'Sand in Her Shoes.' It has the same warmth and humor and the same happy characterization."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:51 O 21 '50 250w

Wis Lib Bul 46:27 S '50

LAWRENCE, WILLIAM WITHERLE. Chaucer and the Canterbury tales. 184p $2.50 Columbia univ. press

821 Chaucer, Geoffrey—Canterbury tales 50-8292

"Sums up the conclusions of an outstanding medievalist upon several vexing questions, such as the importance of the fabliaux (a kind of backstairs story of which Chaucer was fond), the sequence of the 'Tales' as a whole, the drama of the so-called 'Marriage Group,' and the genuineness and sincerity of Chaucer's 'Retraction.' The chief contribution of this book is its elaboration of Professor Kittredge's theory concerning the 'Marriage Group.' Dr. Lawrence establishes . . . that the dramatic debate about who should have supremacy in marriage, wife or husband, begins, not with the 'Wife of Bath's Tale,' as Professor Kittredge suggested, but with the 'Melibeus,' a dreary allegory which Chaucer assigns to himself as a pilgrim riding with the others to Canterbury." (Christian Science Monitor) Bibliography. Index.

"Here is an able piece of scholarship which will add much to one's understanding of one of the great English classics." C. T. Houpt

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 1 '50 270w

"Lucidly written and avoiding technical difficulties while not condescending to over-simplification, it is not only informative but entertaining. Something of the charm of Chaucer has been communicated to its style, and Professor Lawrence's persuasive approach will convince every reader that the subjects of his chapters are attractive and interesting not merely to the literary historian and critic but to any lover of our older poetry." S. C. Chew

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 13 '50 800w

"Although it is intended primarily for the general reader, even the reader unfamiliar with the Middle Ages, the book will be of interest to the specialist, also, since it sums up the views of a scholar."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:277 S '50 240w

LAWSON, MARIE (ABRAMS) (MRS ROBERT LAWSON). Pocahontas and Captain John Smith; the story of the Virginia colony; il. by William Sharp. (Landmark bk) 185p $1.50 Random house
50-11710

The story of the early years of the Virginia Colony, from the tragic Roanoke colony, thru the settlement of Jamestown, to the time of Bacon's Rebellion.

Booklist 47:142 D 1 '50
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 13 '50 30w

"A careful reconstruction in tight, sturdy prose."
+ Kirkus 18:423 Ag 1 '50 150w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 12 '50 120w

"The author has accepted, uncritically some of the legends of the Jamestown settlement—but, in general, her account is sound." R. A. Brown
N Y Times p6 N 12 '50 30w

LAWSON, ROBERT. Smeller Martin; il. by [the author]. 157p $2.50 Viking 50-10116

Davey Martin had a remarkable sense of smell. At school he could hang out the dormitory window and identify the various parts of the day's dinner, hence his title of Smeller Martin. The story is of Davey's particular talent and the way he was able to help the police one summer. For grades 5-8.

Booklist 47:104 N 1 '50

"Sensitive, well-written and, in parts, very amusing. Delightful illustrations." S. M. A.
+ Horn Bk 26:474 N '50 80w
Kirkus 18:470 Ag 15 '50 180w

"A wonderfully original, amusing story full of charming people. Book is beautifully made with the usual exquisite Lawson illustrations." Phyllis Fenner
+ Library J 75:2084 D 1 '50 70w

"It is full of rather satisfying sentiment and morality, and some thoughtful bits on why there are really bad boys in the world. How this will please the audience from ten to twelve remains to be seen, but it is all well worth the attention of readers older than those who love 'Rabbit Hill.'" L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 10 '50 230w

"There are abundantly varied human details here, seasoned with humor and knowledgeable sidelights. Fine drawings illustrate an absorbing story for readers a little older than Mr. Lawson has heretofore reached." I. S.
+ N Y Times p30 N 12 '50 150w

"Entertaining and skilfully written story."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 N 11 '50 290w

LAZO, HECTOR. Case histories of successful marketing; 55 problems—solutions—results [pub] in assn. with Printers' ink pub. company. 261p $4.75 Funk
658.83 Marketing 50-10400

"Reports of 55 actual specific case histories, presented uniformly: company, product, problem, solution, results; in the fields of pricing, packaging, dealer relations, branding and labeling, merchandising methods, salesmanship, consumer and sales research; topically indexed according to marketing functions—standardization, storing, transportation, and traffic control, risk bearing, financing, purchasing, assembling, demand creating." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 47:129 D 1 '50

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:2005 N 15 '50 80w

LEAF, MUNRO. History can be fun [il. by the author]. 63p $1.75 Lippincott
909 History—Juvenile literature 50-14598

The story of civilization from the early Egyptian times to the formation of the United Nations organization, told for grades four to seven.

Booklist 47:104 N 1 '50

"Just enough detail for a young child to take, with gay little scribblings to make history really fun."
+ Kirkus 18:557 S 15 '50 130w

"Older children and adults will enjoy the humor and the slow reader should gain some knowledge and inspiration for further study. Recommended." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 75:1910 N 1 '50 80w

"It is a most stimulating little essay on how to think about history. It is plenty serious in text; the familiar allure of the clever, funny Leaf pictures is all that ties it to the previous titles. It puts great eras, and some great ideas, into dynamic brief pages which should interest any child under twelve." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 12 '50 280w

Reviewed by Irene Smith
N Y Times p17 D 17 '50 150w

"The drawings are the best and the funniest the author has done, making this a fascinating picture story of the march of history."
+ School & Society 72:191 S 16 '50 20w

LEAHY, WILLIAM DANIEL. I was there; with a foreword by President Truman. (Whittlesey house publication) 527p il $5 McGraw 940.5373 Truman, Harry S. Roosevelt, Franklin Delano. World war, 1939-1945—Diplomatic history. World war, 1939-1945—U.S. 50-6546

"The personal story of the chief of staff to Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, based on his notes and diaries made at the time." (Subtitle) Index.

Reviewed by H. F. Pringle
Am Hist R 55:945 Jl '50 800w

"The book leaves us with a certain sense of mystery about Leahy—the mystery of why Roosevelt chose him for the post he occupied and made him the top ranking officer of our great wartime military establishment. Does Leahy have talents which do not appear in the book, or is it simply that Roosevelt preferred his Chief of Staff to be a man of character and especially of loyalty rather than of intellectual acumen?" Bernard Brodie
— + Am Pol Sci R 44:1035 D '50 1050w

"If any author ever left the seal of his own personality on his written words, Admiral Leahy has done so in I Was There. These pages are as salty as the sea, as direct as a gun barrel, terse with the economy of orders given or opinions uttered by a man who regards 'talkers' as a low breed outside the law. . . And it is a beautiful self-portrait. This good and faithful public servant shows himself without and above affectation or self-interest." R. E. Danielson
+ Atlantic 185:73 My '50 2800w
Booklist 46:225; 260 Mr 15 '50; Ap 15 '50
Bookmark 9:157 Ap '50 60w

"History will thank the author for his contribution to our knowledge, but will classify him as parsimonious about details and provokingly cautious in drawing conclusions."
+ — Cath World 171:320 Jl '50 150w

Reviewed by Thomas Reynolds
Chicago Sun p6 Mr 30 '50 750w

LEAHY, W. D.—Continued

"All in all this is important history, full of matter to meditate upon and not without matter to enjoy." Walter Trohan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 26 '50 600w

"This book is not a great book of history, as such books are judged. It is not indispensable to an understanding of the momentous decisions which went on behind-the-scenes in Washington. It does not measure up in importance to several other of the more recent books dealing with President Roosevelt and his conduct of the war. But it does make absorbing reading." J. G. Harrison

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 20 '50 700w

"Next to the three volumes which Winston Churchill has so far completed and the book which Robert E. Sherwood skillfully put together from the papers of Harry Hopkins, this book is the best inside account of World War II that has yet appeared. It is the plain, unadorned record of a man who shared with Hopkins the closest possible friendship and confidence of the President and who, like Hopkins, was truly on the inside." R. W. Van Alstyne

+ Current Hist 18:293 My '50 1750w

"Less readable than Stimson's or Sherwood's accounts, and less informative than Hull's memoirs, this volume nevertheless throws valuable new light on American military planning, organization of the armed forces, and relations with the Soviet Union. His comments on Vichy and DeGaulle are perhaps most useful for their clear expression of the Admiral's own attitude."

+ Foreign Affairs 29:148 O '50 100w

Kirkus 18:85 F 1 '50 230w

"Because it is crammed with important information it is a must for all libraries." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 75:563 Ap 1 '50 90w

"A personal story, salty with character and full of delicious titbits of history. It is a book worth reading twice, first for its factual information—especially about Vichy France and the first months of the Truman regime—and then again in order to savour the essential Americanism of the author's attitude to Britain." R. H. S. Crossman

+ New Statesman & Nation 40:18 Jl 7 '50 800w

"There are many valuable footnotes upon the great history which no student can neglect. But one fails to sense a strong, original or even very discerning mind behind the material, while there is little to indicate very clearly just what was the Admiral's contribution to the immense events at the center of which he sat." Walter Millis

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Mr 19 '50 1300w

"The Leahy narrative is drawn for the most part from daily notes kept by him in line of duty, as an aid in handling his work. Its accuracy can be counted on. It contains a wealth of new material. As a source of history it deserves a place on the same shelf with the products of Stimson, Eisenhower and Sherwood." R. P. Patterson

+ N Y Times p3 Mr 19 '50 1900w

"His frank comments on the men he worked and associated with, from Stalin and Molotov to Churchill and de Gaulle, are vivid and highly entertaining, and his book is a pleasure to read."

+ New Yorker 26:117 Mr 25 '50 200w

Reviewed by E. S. Furniss

Pol Sci Q 65:598 D '50 1050w

Reviewed by Gordon Pates

San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 23 '50 650w

"With all its limitations, it is a valuable addition to the mosaic of reminiscence out of which future historians will construct a picture of Franklin D. Roosevelt and of the Second World War." A. M. Schlesinger, Jr.

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:10 Mr 18 '50 1100w

"The sub-title describes this book admirably; it is 'the personal story of the Chief of Staff to Presidents Roosevelt and Truman based on his notes and diaries made at the time.' It is highly personal in that it preserves his own day-to-day views and his immediate reactions to the momentous events in the direction of which he was playing a part. It has all the documentary value, as well as all the transient interest, of this type of publication. . . There are revealing personal judgements, sometimes very shrewd and sometimes slightly biased, on his colleagues and his Allies. He is much less than just in his remarks about Lord Wavell, and his silences about Lord Montgomery are eloquent." David Thomson

+ — Spec 184:828 Je 16 '50 900w

Reviewed by Donald Derby

Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 23 '50 550w

"British readers will proceed through his pages with growing misgiving. They will get interesting flashes and sidelights on many events, conferences, and clashes of policy. But they will not get what the author's title suggests they will: an understanding of what went on, and how and why, as great instruments of victory were being forged and wielded."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p399 Je 30 '50 1200w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:334 S '50 280w

Wis Lib Bul 46:21 My '50

LEAR HEAP, WINIFRED. Shady cloister. 272p $2 Macmillan

[50-8594]

An English girl's school in London is the scene of this character study of Linnet, the youngest mistress at the school. Linnet's ideal was to love and be loved; but her path was strewn with difficulties. There was an egocentric writer, whom she had to break with; there was an understanding doctor, but he was too old; there was a naval officer. But Linnet was young and courageous. She had time to make her final decision.

"The book comes most alive in the staffroom scenes. There the teachers gather daily over their cups of tea and their piles of exercise books to argue, gossip or talk shop according to their individual natures. Winifred Lear has well caught the clash of personalities within a narrow orbit, a clash interminably repeated with but minor variation from day to day and week to week."

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 5 '50 170w

"If this book had a different heroine, perhaps it would serve the purpose of light summer reading. However, Linnet Reilly is distressingly present, and with her, what one of the characters calls 'that bouncing staffroom humor.' . . Midway in the story, Linnet is plunged into an unexplainable and unforeshadowed love affair with a stock Bohemian genius; and, as a finale to the action, a convenient fire breaks out which seems to solve all the difficulties. Even these contrivances might be forgivable if the book were not shot through with consistent coyness and heavy-handed whimsy. Since Linnet is the generating factor of this coyness, without her the book might have had a fighting chance." Joan Rice

— Commonweal 52:446 Ag 11 '50 200w

"Nothing earth-shaking here, but a discerning small novel, written with skill, good taste and perception. Miss Lear's economy of emotion saves her from passages which might be embarrassingly sentimental. Through sessions in the staffroom at Eastlands, she brings her characters into sharp and living focus." Charlotte Capers

+ N Y Times p18 Jl 23 '50 330w

"Miss Lear's teachers and pupils are richly realized human beings. It is deplorable that Linnet should waste her spiritual substance on so unendearing a megalomaniac as the pseudo-poet Arnold Cannon. But that is a touch consistent with the gentle realism of this Goodbye, Miss Chips type of idyl." A. F. Wolfe

+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 Ag 19 '50 360w

"It is refreshing to find the question of emotional relationships between women treated with cool common sense. With frustration and first love Miss Lear is less successful. Linnet's experiences with her bohemian friend are taken from stock, and Ethel Bonner's attempts to make a confidante of her sister, though keenly felt and horrifying at first, are too long-drawn-out to be more than shaming in their total effect."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p417 Jl 7 '50 250w

LEARNARD, RACHEL. Funny Bunny; pictures by Alice and Martin Provensen. [25p] $1 Simon & Schuster 50-3123

A picture-book story about how Funny Bunny made himself a fluffy tail. There is a pop-up of the animal characters inside the front cover. For ages 3-5.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p3 Mr 25 '50 20w

"The four-color, full page illustrations are a joy, with rich brilliant colors, handsome design and a parade of amusing and delightful animal characters."
+ Kirkus 18:95 F 15 '50 120w

"Recommended for very young children." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 75:703 Ap 15 '50 70w

"Although not highly original, this Big Golden Book story . . . is nicely scaled to the simple humor of 3- to 5-year-olds. The fully detailed pictures of friendly animals, birds and new-blown flowers printed on fresh blues, lavenders, pinks, yellows and green will give youngsters a special pleasure at this time of year, and they will have fun with the pop-up in the front of the book." E. L. B.
+ — N Y Times p18 F 12 '50 130w

"As gay as a May basket and as colorful as an Easter egg."
+ Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 5 '50 90w

LEATHERMAN, LEROY. Caged birds. 281p $3 Harcourt
50-9491

The caged birds were given to Jim on his eighth birthday. The story is told mainly as it seemed to three lonely people: Jim; his mother; and an elderly neighbor. The scene is a Southern oil-boom town in the 1930's.

"In a delicate way 'The Caged Birds' suggests quite a bit more than it actually says. . . Many little things happen, all of them narrated quietly, exactly, without stress. The writing is admirably controlled." Richard Sullivan
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 S 24 '50 450w

"This first-novel—bizarre as it may seem—is a first-rate piece of writing—in mood, metaphorical skill and psychological analysis of character." Joe Dever
+ Commonweal 53:158 N 17 '50 650w

"There's a feeling of The Glass Menagerie in theme as well as writing, there is a dissection of event in terms of effect that mark this for a discriminating audience."
+ Kirkus 18:526 S 1 '50 190w

"That the author manages to create a feeling of suspense from this meager fare speaks well for his talents, but the lack of action and a conclusion that leads only back to page one, probably means limited reader appeal." J. E. Brown
Library J 75:1292 Ag '50 90w

"The writing is almost flawless; subtle, polished, sparkling: a style which suggests gleaming surfaces. . . This pageant of a small boy's world is presented with great skill, and at the end it is dissolved in a clap of violence. Stringently restricted in its scope, 'The Caged Birds' is a modest work sensitively and excellently accomplished." Coleman Rosenberger
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 1 '50 750w

Reviewed by Charles Spielberger
N Y Times p35 O 1 '50 180w

"Mr. Leatherman writes with care and thought and a good deal of artistry, but he is so plainly striving for effect that in the long run any one of his paragraphs seems more important than any of his characters."
+ — New Yorker 26:132 O 7 '50 120w

"Mr. Leatherman has skilfully evoked an atmosphere that is at once somber and slightly ominous. But he has not quite managed to make his work come alive." E. J. F.
Sat R of Lit 33:39 N 18 '50 220w

LEAVITT, JOHN ANTON, and HANSON, CARL OSCAR. Personal finance. 374p $3.50 McGraw
332 Finance, Personal 50-14150

"A text for students with no previous knowledge of business. Twenty short chapters over a broad range of subjects concerned with personal finances: spending, borrowing, saving, investing, buying a home, insurance, taxation, going into business for yourself. There is even an outline of the banking and monetary system and the security markets." (Library J) Index.

"The treatment is sound, but brief." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:2005 N 15 '50 70w
School & Society 72:270 O 21 '50 40w

LEBESON, MRS ANITA (LIBMAN). Pilgrim people. 624p il $6 Harper
296 Jews in the U.S. 50-12859

Traces the history of the Jewish people in America from their Spanish and Portuguese beginnings in the time of Columbus, down to the migrations from Germany, Poland, and Russia. The author also gives an account of the part which the Jews have played in the development of America from its discovery to the present. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:126 D 1 '50

Reviewed by A. C. Ames
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 19 '50 450w

"An impressive piece of research, it gives stature to this minority group and is important as a documentary and for reference."
+ Kirkus 18:454 Ag 1 '50 190w

"The coverage of the book is excellent, but unfortunately, the initial extended work was cut down to one quarter of its original size for publication. As a result, the reader has the feeling of reading a rapid reportorial account tied together by innumerable biographical vignettes and rhetorical questions. This is not conducive to straight reading. However, as a reference work on the history of the Jews in America it does have good library value." H. L. Roth
+ — Library J 75:1401 S 1 '50 280w

"A monumental work, loaded—but never overloaded—with facts, quotations, and brief biographies, all of which the author has woven with remarkable skill into a readable narrative."
+ Nation 171:682 D 23 '50 40w

"Mrs. Lebeson (whose first book was 'Jewish Pioneers in America') frankly allies herself with the characters who throng the pages of this vivid book. Deliberately and successfully she sets out to fill the lacunae in the many general American historical works that fail to mention the part played by Jews in the development of the Western World. . . The carefully and richly documented story of 'Pilgrim People' is history that comes to life. Moreover, in view of the planned commemoration in 1954 of the three-hundredth anniversary of the settlement of Jews in the United States, the book is especially timely." D. D. Pool
+ N Y Times p26 O 22 '50 450w
San Francisco Chronicle p24 D 3 '50 600w

LE BOUTILLIER, MRS CORNELIA THROOP (GEER). American democracy and natural law. 204p $3 Columbia univ. press

323.4 Democracy. Natural law 50-5168

"An examination into 'the living roots which underlie healthy political and legal institutions' in America. Two views are contrasted: (1) The older concept of natural rights based on ethical absolutes, imbued and unified by idea, fashioned and bounded by mind, in which reliance is based primarily on reason. (2) A concept based on a more empirical foundation of human rights, having its roots and fruits in human experience of a verifiable kind." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"This book provides a provocative answer to such writers as Maritain and Hallowell. It is well written. The materials are presented incisively and clearly. An important issue is joined, one of great contemporary significance both to students of politics and to others who are concerned with the basis of our approach to the contemporary problems before us, and with the attempt to formulate an ideology." M. J. Dauer

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:482 Je '50 600w

"This book is not the final statement of the position Miss Le Boutillier adopts. It will have no effect whatsoever on fussy doctrinaires and ethical absolutists. But it is surely an admirable addition to one of the most ancient and meaningful of intellectual debates." C. L. Rossiter

+ — Ann Am Acad 269:154 My '50 500w

"Dr. Le Boutillier achieves a notable piece of research, peering into every corner of history, scrutinizing every reference. Finally, however, she has to conclude that the search is in vain; the desired document does not exist. . . In an age that is attuned to progress in natural science and susceptible to the demands of utility and expediency, Dr. Le Boutillier's arguments may appear attractive. Yet they are essentially negative. They fail to find the true boundary between democracy and tyranny." Henry Sowerby

Christian Science Monitor p8 Mr 18 '50 1050w

"The whole issue needs to be thoroughly aired. One is thankful for the energy and skill with which this book brings some of its implications out into the open." J. S. Bixler

+ Crozer Q 27:362 O '50 700w

Current Hist 18:356 Je '50 40w

Reviewed by R. W. Browning

Ethics 60:300 Jl '50 1300w

"A controversial subject ably presented." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:173 F 1 '50 130w

"Mrs. Le Boutillier's philosophy, it should be said, is less instructive than her history, since she is often amateurish in behalf of a doctrine that needs all the professional support it can muster. She is a partisan of democracy and empirical ethics and thinks that they are closely connected with each other. But she is enough of a logician to realize that many democrats have not been empiricists and that many empiricists have not been democrats (her 'empiricist' Aristotle will provide her with a good example of the second fact). Under these trying circumstances she can produce only the haziest account of the philosophical connection between democracy and empirical ethics, and the result is a view which runs from the obscurities of transcendentalism and absolutism into major difficulties of its own." Morton White

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 S 24 '50 550w

School & Society 71:15 Ja 7 '50 50w

LEBRETON, JULES, and ZEILLER, JACQUES. History of the primitive church; with a foreword by Augustin Fliche and Victor Martin; tr. from the French by Ernest C. Messenger. 4bks in 2v 585;595-1272p $16.50 Macmillan

270.1 Church history—Primitive and early church 49-8935

"These two large volumes represent the fruit of many years' study and teaching by two eminent French Catholic scholars in Paris. They are only the beginning of a series intended to cover the entire history of the Catholic church. In a foreword, the general editors of the series state their aim is the production of a 'scientific and synthetic' work 'in line with the progress of modern critical research.'" (Crozer Q) "The period covered by Lebreton and Zeiller is the crucial age of early Christianity from its beginnings to the end of the persecutions with the so-called Edict of Milan in 312." (N Y Times)

"What is the place of Lebreton and Zeiller among modern church historians? Obviously in regard to completeness and the correlation of great numbers of facts their rank is very high. Apart from the earliest period of Christianity, their story is clear and thorough. To combine these two characteristics is no slight achievement. On the other hand, their ability to interpret the story—to relate it to its environment and explain the obscure motivations which brought about the events—seems less satisfactory." R. M. Grant

+ — Crozer Q 27:62 Ja '50 1100w

"While scrupulous attention is given to detail, the broad canvas of the picture is most impressive. Every theological library, Catholic or Protestant, should find room for this significant work of scholarship."

+ Kirkus 17:142 Mr 15 '50 300w

"Lebreton and Zeiller write as Roman Catholic scholars, but with complete honesty in presenting both their own convictions and the evidence which others read differently. Non-Catholic writers like Harnack and his successors figure conspicuously in their references, and those to whom the position of the Papacy and the Episcopate seem less clear and the formulation of the orthodox Creed less inevitable are not ignored." E. R. Hardy

+ N Y Times p25 Ja 29 '50 450w

LECLERC, ANDRE, pseud. See Immerman, I.

LE CORBEILLER, PHILIPPE. Matrix analysis of electric networks. 112p $3 Harvard univ. press

621.313 Electric circuits. Matrices 50-5459

"In two books, Application of Tensors to the Analysis of Rotating Electrical Machinery, 1938, and Tensor Analysis of Networks, 1949, Gabriel Kron expounded a method of network analysis which is recognized as a great advance in the field. The method has not, however, been available to average engineers because of the abstruseness of the mathematics. The purpose of this book is to simplify the method as it applies to stationary networks so as to make it available to more engineers, especially those in communications engineering." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 75:498 Mr 15 '50 170w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:20 Mr '50

"The initial volume indicates that the new series, Harvard Monographs in Applied Science, will make available much-needed concise studies of fundamental subjects in the field. Fundamental applied research, using material and methods of investigation from many fields of knowledge, integrates development work in engineering technology, and such studies as the present one in book form will reach a diversified audience not reached through specialized channels of publication."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:248 Je '50 240w

LEDERER, WILLIAM JULIUS. All the ship's at sea. 292p $3 Sloane

B or 92 U.S. Navy—Sea life 50-5995

"A Commander in the regular Navy, author has written of his career as an enlisted man in the 1930's and his later experiences as an officer. Through a series of anecdotes about himself, his friends and the ships he has sailed in, Lederer gives a humorous, somewhat bawdy picture of life in the regular and war-time Navy." Library J

Reviewed by Jack Star
Chicago Sun p9 Mr 5 '50 150w

Reviewed by Lloyd Wendt
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 26 '50 250w

Reviewed by W. J. Myers
Churchman 164:19 Ap 15 '50 90w

"Old timers may question the slight emphasis on the 'officer and a gentleman' tradition, but a very heartening Old Salt story."
+ — Kirkus 18:13 Ja 1 '50 190w

"Some of the events he describes seem rather exaggerated, but they make good stories and the characters are very well portrayed." Donald Wasson
+ — Library J 75:315 F 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 75:1057 Je 15 '50 50w

"The stories on shipboard are bright and easy reading, but pretty tall even for a sailor, generally predictable and, unfortunately, superficial. . . If you want to be amused for an hour or two, you might enjoy 'All the Ship's at Sea,' get a few laughs, a few tiny tingles." Richard Pinkham
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 Mr 5 '50 650w

Reviewed by Harry Gilroy
N Y Times p3 Mr 5 '50 500w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 21 '50 700w

"A fast-paced, somewhat haphazard collection of yarns tending to prove that life among the Regulars can be mighty irregular if you lead sufficiently charmed a life, which Bill does with almost incredible consistency. Indeed, it is hard to tell in this engaging bull-session what is fiction and what is fact. . . On the other hand, the book has its serious chapters. The most exciting, and among the better written, describe the two gravest situations a Navy man can face: having his own ship shot from under him and standing as the defendant in a court martial." L. H. Conarroe
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:19 Mr 18 '50 500w

Reviewed by W. R. Manchester
Springf'd Republican p8C Ap 30 '50 130w

LEDERER, WILLIAM JULIUS. Last cruise; the story of the sinking of the submarine, U.S.S. Cochino. 110p $1.50 Sloane

359.32 Cochino (submarine) 50-8033

An account of the sinking of the U.S. submarine Cochino during an Arctic gale on August 25, 1949.

Bookmark 9:240 Jl '50 40w

"Author Lederer interviewed the survivors soon after their return to the United States. His recounting of their story is vivid and dynamic, terse as lines jotted in a log book. He captures the mood of the men, catches the full impact of their tremendous courage and resourcefulness, the awful crescendo of disaster in the storm." R. L. Hanson
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Je 4 '50 180w

+ Kirkus 18:224 Ap 1 '50 160w

"The terse, dispassionate manner of this first-rate tale makes it memorable. The book will grab you by the short hair and hold you until you are done with it." R. A. R. Pinkham
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 4 '50 350w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 8 '50 650w

"I think Commander Lederer might have dispensed with the bad habit borrowed from Ernie Pyle of giving each man's home town after his name—after all, this is not a column for a local newspaper, and it slows up the pace—but aside from this he has given an almost flawless performance in telling a brief heroic tale of victory snatched from almost irremediable disaster." Fletcher Pratt
+ Sat R of Lit 33:30 Ag 19 '50 700w

LEE, ASHER. Soviet air force. 207p il $2.75 Harper

358.4 Russia. Air forces. Aeronautics, Military. World war, 1939-1945—Aerial operations 50-8131

An attempt to give an account of Soviet air achievements during World war II, and to answer some of the questions about present and future capabilities of the Soviet air force. The author was a senior air ministry intelligence officer during the war. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '50

"The book measures up to the high standards of Asher Lee's earlier post-war study of 'the German Air Force' mostly because its author is an ardent factfinder with a rare ability to see the forest despite the spectacular and often diverting foliage of individual trees. Although he brings forth few startling facts about Soviet military and naval aviation that have not already been revealed, the balance and completeness of his work makes it worth-while reading for both intelligence students and members of the public interested in learning the strengths and weaknesses of the Red Air Force." A. E. Talbert
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 11 '50 850w

"Although he indulges in a considerable amount of light-spirited apology for Soviet ruthlessness he has written a useful review and summary of the Soviet Union's power in the air." J. I. Greene
+ N Y Times p6 Je 18 '50 410w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Jl 9 '50 350w

Reviewed by P. R. Levin
Sat R of Lit 33:14 O 14 '50 320w

"If Wing Commander Lee's account has its longeurs, that is due not so much to any absence of interest in the subject itself as to his slipshod style and his mistaken attempt to include a catalogue of aircraft in the text instead of relegating it to an appendix. As to his final chapter on the present strength of the Soviet Air Force, it is bound to be, like the museum skeletons of prehistoric monsters, something of an intelligent reconstruction from the big toe of the animal. But the reconstruction really is intelligent, and at times there is more to go on than the big toe."
Spec 184:552 Ap 21 '50 270w

"Like most things Russian, the Soviet Air Force is something of a mystery. . . Mr. Asher Lee has done a great deal to lift the veil. His qualification to write on the subject is that during the war he was a R.A.F. senior intelligence officer and an acknowledged authority on the Luftwaffe. He has clearly devoted much study to his newer subject."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p296 My 12 '50 550w

LEE, CHARLES, ed. Snow, ice and penguins; a cavalcade of Antarctic adventures [by Russell Owen and others]. 417p $4 Dodd

919.9 Antarctic regions 50-10171

"The story of Antarctic exploration, as told by the men who did the exploring, or by those close to them. Mr. Lee has drawn on many of the great books about adventure at the bottom of the world." New Yorker

---

"Mr. Lee has not omitted much of importance, but one might wish that he had used Sir James Clark Ross' account of his voyage through the pack ice into the sea that bears his name, and the sighting of the vast barrier. . . And I miss the singularly unexciting story of Amundsen's return from the South Pole, when he dawdled in his tent and threw food away, and at times rode comfortably padded north." Russell Owen
+ — N Y Times p7 O 29 '50 600w

"[The] selections are first-rate in that they constitute, in one volume, a pretty well-rounded account of what Antarctica is like and what anyone who goes there is up against."
+ New Yorker 26:140 O 21 '50 150w

Springf'd Republican p23A N 5 '50 300w

LEE, GEORGE HAMOR. Introduction to experimental stress analysis. 319p il $5.50 Wiley

620.1123 Strains and stresses 50-8683

"A survey of currently practical methods. . . It was developed from notes prepared by the author for use in the course at the United States Naval Postgraduate School, and it is intended for readers with education in engineering. The theory of elasticity is covered concisely in the first chapter. In the second chapter the mathematics of determining stresses from strain measurements is discussed. The third chapter is devoted to the relation of measurements on models to the design of full-scale structures. Most of the remaining chapters deal with specific techniques and instruments." (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

Eng N 145:44 O 5 '50 80w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:1302 Ag '50 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:75 S '50

LEE, OLIVER JUSTIN. Measuring our universe; from the inner atom to outer space. 170p il $3 Ronald

522.6 Astronomy. Physical measurements. Distances—Measurements 50-5244

"The complex task of measuring astronomical distances is explained in terms intelligible to amateur astronomers, scientists, or interested laymen. Introductory chapters on the origin of units of measurement and precision measuring machines are of more general interest." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:214 Mr 1 '50

Reviewed by Russell MacFall
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 19 '50 160w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 75:700 Ap 15 '50 80w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 26 '50 140w

LEEMING, JOSEPH. Fun with fabrics; il. by Jessie Robinson. 96p $2.50 Lippincott

680 Handicraft 50-5422

Simple directions for making "amusing, interesting, and useful things . . . of cloth and felt." For boys as well as girls.

Booklist 46:205 F 15 '50

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p5 Jl 25 '50 40w

"Welcome addition to the useful series showing boys and girls how to have 'fun with' paper, string, boxes, etc." M. E. Martignoni
+ Library J 75:705 Ap 15 '50 60w

"It is full of clever ideas with clear sketches and patterns. But it will appeal mostly to girls and women, teachers and club directors. And it has much competition from other 'how to' books on the same subject." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 F 26 '50 130w

Sat R of Lit 33:42 My 13 '50 70w

Springf'd Republican p3D F 26 '50 80w

LEEMING, JOSEPH. Holiday craft and fun; party-craft for holidays; il. by Jessie Robinson. 93p $2.50 Lippincott

680 Handicraft. Entertaining 50-14621

Directions, with diagrams, showing how to make invitations, place cards, and decorations, etc. for seventeen holidays. Contents: Christmas; New Year's day; Lincoln's birthday; St. Valentine's day; Washington's birthday; St. Patrick's day; Easter; April fool's day; Arbor day; May day; Mother's day; Flag day; Father's day; The Fourth of July; Columbus day; Halloween; Thanksgiving day.

Booklist 47:81 O 15 '50

Horn Bk 26:488 N '50 90w

"Some fancy work with eggshells and wax might make parents rather nervous, but this is a handy book for the home, school, and camp."

Kirkus 18:560 S 15 '50 70w

"Recommended for all libraries in which there is a demand for books for special days." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 75:1914 N 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by David Dempsey
N Y Times p6 N 12 '50 30w

LEET, LEWIS DON. Earth waves. 122p $3 Harvard univ. press

551.2 Seismometry 50-5441

"Although earthquake waves are discussed along with other types of waves, this is not primarily a book on earthquake phenomena. Instead it deals broadly with the subject of waves that are transmitted through the earth. Thus it has bearing on geology, geophysical prospecting, meteorology (for storms generate earth waves), and even the engineering of buildings. The book is intended not for lay readers, but for persons who have a fair knowledge of physics and college mathematics. For these it is an introductory work." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"Although addressed to persons who are not specialists in seismology, a considerable degree of mathematical maturity on the part of the reader has been assumed." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:325 F 15 '50 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:20 Mr '50

"The book should meet the needs of professional seismologists, vibration engineers, and exploration geophysicists who desire basic theoretical and empirical information on the science of earth waves without the superfluity of related detail."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:390 S '50 280w

LEGER, ALEXIS SAINT-LEGER (ST-JOHN PERSE, pseud). Anabasis; a poem; tr. by T. S. Eliot. rev & corr ed 109p $4 Harcourt

841 49-48962

"The new edition of 'Anabasis' is augmented by Eliot's note on his revisions and the prefaces of Valéry Larbaud, Hugo von Hofmannsthal and Giuseppe Ungaretti for the Russian, German and Italian editions. These essays are most helpful to the average reader's comprehension of Perse's elusive and allusive vision. [It] also contains a Perse bibliography, though it is incomplete." (N Y Times) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest 1938.

"'Anabasis' puzzles even those who, as translators, have been most intimately engaged with it. Yet with its commingling of concrete particulars and mysterious symbols, references to the meanest animal urgencies and the most exalted aspirations of the mind, the slow swing of its cadences, the sudden assaults of its metaphors, its violence and its grace, 'Anabasis' proposes far, strenuous journeys, the rewards of which are not to be calculated in a month or a year. Indeed, though the poem exercised an influence upon American poetry even before Eliot rendered it into English nearly twenty years ago, the full measure of its effect is probably still to be realized." Babette Deutsch
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 D 11 '49 1050w

"In spite of Perse's 'fierce hatred of literary exoticism,' he cannot always purge his writings of it, because the travels of Léger have unavoidably colored it. A residue—diminishing, it is true, in the later work—clings to his carefully stripped language, so that the tropics, the panoramic oriental desert, even the winter in Washington or the sand and storms of Long Island, have left their traces of 'scenery.' But in all the poems a freshness of form and language triumphs over merely arbitrary local color." Hubert Creekmore
+ N Y Times p4 D 25 '49 1350w

New Yorker 26:106 Mr 11 '50 100w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ja 8 '50 280w

LEGGETT, HARRY W. Bertrand Russell, O.M. 78p il $3.75 Philosophical lib.

B or 92 Russell, Bertrand Arthur William Russell, 3rd earl

Popularly written, comparatively brief biography illustrated with a number of photographs of Bertrand Russell and his family. Chronological list of Russell's principal works, briefly annotated.

"It is a curious book and at first glance seems to throw a rather exhibitionistic light on its subject, but it is also surprisingly interesting and, despite the author's close friendship for Russell, whom he ranks with Shaw and H. G. Wells as one of the most influential Englishmen of his generation, not at all uncritical."

New Yorker 26:75 S 2 '50 110w

School & Society 72:111 Ag 12 '50 30w

LEHMAN, MAXWELL, and YARMON, MORTON. Every woman's guide to spare-time income. 312p $2.95 Harcourt

396.5 Occupations. Woman—Employment 50-8977

Practical advice for the woman seeking part-time employment either at home or away from home. In addition to general chapters on ways and means, advice is given on training, equipment, selling and advertising for jobs as varied as baking pies and running children's parties to tutoring, ghost writing, and fashion modeling.

"It is not so much a how-to-do book as a what-to-do guide. It contains valuable suggestions about how to get started and where to find out about training in many fields. . . In some instances the case histories sound too good to be true. . . But the book does contain much valuable information about requirements and difficulties likely to be encountered in many enterprises suggested." N. L. Browning

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 S 17 '50 230w

Christian Science Monitor p12 S 22 '50 110w

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '50

Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 13 '50 90w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 S '50

LEHMANN, ARTHUR GEORGE. Symbolist aesthetic in France, 1885-1895. 328p $5 Macmillan

841.09 French poetry—History and criticism. Symbolism in literature

"The French Symbolists were not only poets; they were also keen theorists about poetry. In the high language which was habitual to them and with a wealth of metaphor and simile they explained what they thought poetry ought to be and what they intended to do with it. To translate and explain and criticize their views is no easy matter. What sounds impressive enough when read tends to dissolve into mist when an attempt is made to reduce it to plain, unvarnished prose. This task Mr. Lehmann has undertaken." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Index.

Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 28 '50 310w

"The Symbolist movement in poetry was one of the most productive that Europe has known. It spread over the whole continent and inspired many great poets. It is therefore important to know what it was at the start, what its first advocates tried to do. This Mr. Lehmann has shown with great wisdom and precision, and no student of poetry can afford to neglect a book which is not only wonderfully well informed on its immediate subject but contains many judicious judgments and moments of keen insight."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p496 Ag 11 '50 700w

LEHMANN-HAUPT, HELLMUT, ed. One hundred books about bookmaking; a guide to the study and appreciation of printing. [85p] $1.75 Columbia univ. press

016.655 Book industries and trade—Bibliography. Printing—Bibliography 49-11987

"The third edition of a book which first appeared as Fifty books about bookmaking. It is an annotated bibliography grouped under such headings as: General works and origin of the book, Printing history and modern trends, Printing types and decoration, Bookbinding and papermaking." (Booklist) Index. For second edition: Seventy Books about Bookmaking, see Book Review Digest 1941.

Booklist 46:235 Mr 15 '50

"Those who purchased the second edition, the Seventy Books, will be pleased to know that their possession is not made obsolete by the Hundred Books, for there are titles in the second edition which are not included in the present, third edition. This edition would be an excellent guide for student librarians in the study of the processes of bookmaking or for others desiring knowledge of the fascinating story of books. A valuable part of the work consists of the notes which the author appends to the titles selected. They not only make interesting reading but contain additional titles and suggestions for further exploration in the various phases of bookmaking." D. W. Davies

+ Library Q 20:228 Jl '50 390w

LEIBER, FRITZ. Gather, darkness! 240p $2.75 Pellegrini & Cudahy

50-6699

Science-fiction tale of witchcraft and psychological mass control in a Second Atomic age.

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

Chicago Sun p5 Ap 3 '50 100w

Reviewed by August Derleth

Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Ap 9 '50 400w

Kirkus 18:76 F 1 '50 120w

"Confused, pretentious, and overwritten.' E. F. Walbridge

— Library J 75:560 Ap 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt

N Y Times p19 Jl 16 '50 230w

Reviewed by Don Fabun

San Francisco Chronicle p28 Ap 16 '50 120w

— Sat R of Lit 33:38 Ap 1 '50 40w

LEIBOWITZ, RENE. Schoenberg and his school; the contemporary stage of the language of music; tr. from the French by Dika Newlin. 305p $4.75 Philosophical lib.

780.9 Schönberg, Arnold. Berg, Alban. Webern, Anton von. Music—History and criticism 49-48722

"Rene Leibowitz, Polish-born composer living in Paris, himself a student of Schoenberg and Webern, is the latest . . . champion [of] the Schoenberg school. . . It was Wagner who precipitated the suspension of tonality through continual chromatic modulation, and Schoenberg who first bravely dispensed with all feeling for tonal centers, thereby freeing polyphony from its harmonic fetters. It was then necessary to organize the new world of a-tonal sound, which Schoenberg proceeded to do with the creation of his compositions written in the twelve-tone system. The rest of the book is devoted to a brief analysis of each of the master's works and those of his followers, Berg and Webern." N Y Times

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '50

"An angel couldn't produce a readable text from Mr. Leibowitz' exuberant prose, but he has turned in a good, workmanlike job which cleans up some, if not all, of his worst locutions. She has also extended and corrected the citations he gave in the various bibliographies in the French edition, and presumably she is responsible for the index." R. S. Hill

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 7:474 Je '50 550w

LEIBOWITZ, RENE—Continued

"Handling complex ideas in a lucid, fluent prose, admirably translated by Dr. Newlin and bearing the implicit sanction of Schoenberg himself, Mr. Leibowitz presents his argument for the twelve-tone school with a clarity and fervor which should make his book the authoritative work on this subject. . . I doubt that American admirers of Schoenberg will take kindly to Mr. Leibowitz's high-flown metaphysics, but that need not affect their belief in Schoenberg's musical genius." Harold Brown

+ — Nation 170:284 Mr 25 '50 900w

"For this reader the chapters devoted to the music of Anton Webern were the most absorbing. Here one finds material nowhere else available in English. . . In spite of its fanatical tone and dense prose style this is an important book for all those professionals who want an authoritative analysis of the workings of the Schoenberg system. I doubt whether it can be of much use to the musical layman. It has been faithfully translated by Miss Dika Newlin, herself an American devotee of the master's school." Aaron Copland

+ — N Y Times p5 N 27 '49 1050w

"Cumbersome prose increases the opacity of an already difficult subject in [this book]. . . Untutored readers will only scratch their heads in dismay as Leibowitz insists on the logic and cohesion of music which has always impressed them as the ne plus ultra of amorphous incoherence." Roland Gelatt

— Sat R of Lit 32:25 D 31 '49 230w

LEIGH, ROBERT DEVORE. Public library in the United States [the general report of the Public library inquiry]. 272p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

027.473 Libraries—U.S. Library surveys 50-9138

"Dr. Robert D. Leigh, the author, brings together in this report a summary of the total findings of the Inquiry, an analytical interpretation of them and conclusions and recommendations for further development. Following a brief description of the purpose and methods of the Inquiry itself, this study presents the most complete discussion available of the many factors influencing public library service in the United States." Special Libraries

Booklist 47:4 S 1 '50

"The stimulating volume will interest any alert citizen as well as all concerned with libraries."

+ Bookmark 10:5 O '50 50w

"As an aid in understanding public library services and the library's role in this country's scheme of community development, this report is a worth-while achievement." H. L. Roth

+ N Y Times p23 Ag 20 '50 150w

Special Libraries 41:259 S '50 80w

Reviewed by Fern Long

Survey 86:519 N '50 500w

Wis Lib Bul 46:11 N '50

LEIGHTON, ALEXANDER HAMILTON. Human relations in a changing world; observations on the use of the social sciences. 354p $4.50 Dutton

301.8 Social psychology. Psychological warfare. World war, 1939-1945—Japan 49-8753

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by John Useem

Am Anthropol 52:100 Ja '50 450w

Foreign Affairs 28:330 Ja '50 50w

"This book contains appraisals of Japanese wartime mentality which, provided the handicaps under which the investigators worked are kept in mind, must be of highest value to students of Japan. The only doubt which concerns the reviewer is whether the case history of a people whose mentality is as baffling to foreigners as that of the Japanese provides the most satisfactory basis for an assessment of the purposes to which the social sciences might be applied in other countries." Paul Butler

Pacific Affairs 22:427 D '49 900w

"The author of this book is a learned doctor of medicine and psychiatry, who also has more than an amateur's knowledge and experience in social anthropology, and who at present earns his living as a professor of sociology. Leighton thus exemplifies in his own person some of that interdisciplinary sweep and competence which, on general grounds, is so much to be desired in modern social science." John Gillin

+ Social Forces 28:445 My '50 460w

"Throughout, the book combines skilfully the concepts and outlooks of the psychiatrist and social anthropologist. It should be useful to general readers as well as to social scientists and policy-makers in government."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:376 S '49 320w

LEINSTER, MURRAY, pseud. See Jenkins, W. F.

LEISY, ERNEST ERWIN. American historical novel. 280p $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press

813.09 Historical fiction 50-5331

Traces the development of the American historical novel from Colonial days thru the 1940's. The material is arranged by historical backgrounds, period by period. Each period is divided by topics under which the novels are analyzed and evaluated. The appendix lists other novels, arranged chronologically and briefly annotated. Index.

Reviewed by A. H. Quinn

Am Hist R 55:992 Jl '50 320w

Booklist 46:197 F 15 '50

"A valuable reference tool as well as an excellent piece of social history. . . Will be needed in all libraries in history and literature sections." K. A. Shorey

+ Library J 75:320 F 15 '50 100w

"If we want to know what the novelists have written about the Revolution or the Civil War this book is a helpful guide. But if we want to know why they have written as they have, what ideas and attitudes have obtained in particular periods or actions, Mr. Leisy is not a good guide. . . All this is not to deny that Mr. Leisy's book is a useful one. We have not had, hitherto, a satisfactory guide to the American historical novel. Within limits Mr. Leisy has not furnished us such a guide. The listings are reasonably complete; the comment is judicious if not profound; the organization is clear and usable. Perhaps at some future time Mr. Leisy can be persuaded to expand this initial study into one really comprehensive and critical." H. S. Commager

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 5 '50 1250w

"In the West, the sections on Edward Eggleston and Joseph Kirkland as precursors of modern realism are particularly interesting, and perhaps the best section of the book is concerned with the distinction between fact and fancy in Southern literature. . . Mr. Leisy's judgments in the modern field are more open to question. . . The weakness of the study is in the critical estimates; but its value as a source book for scholars and students in this field should be stressed." Maxwell Geismar

+ — N Y Times p16 F 5 '50 650w

"You may quarrel with many of Mr. Leisy's appraisals. Some of them will, no doubt, come in the nature of a surprise even to the uncritical reader. You may regret that Mr. Leisy has made no attempt at any interpretation of the historical novel. But that was not his purpose. His intention was 'to furnish an account of the materials and methods of American historical fiction' and having done this, his book fills a definite need." Jane Voiles

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 5 '50 750w

Reviewed by Robert Halsband

Sat R of Lit 33:21 Mr 4 '50 140w

Reviewed by W. G. Rogers

Springf'd Republican p3D F 26 '50 550w

LENN, LOTTIE HELEN, and REARDON, MARY A. Pope Pius XII, rock of peace; il. by Mary A. Reardon; foreword by Richard J. Cushing. 152p $2.50 Dutton

B or 92 Pius XII (Eugenio Pacelli) pope—Juvenile literature 50-5908

A full-length portrait of the present pope, chronicling the various offices which he held before his present position. For ages eleven to fifteen. Chronology. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:292 My 15 '50

Kirkus 18:103 F 15 '50 120w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:640 Ap 15 '50 100w

"The chapters on Rome and St. Peter's, together with the full description of the processions and ceremonies of the coronation, are well reported. Unfortunately, the authors fail to bring out the full-dimensional quality of His Holiness, but as a sketch of the Holy Father, it will be informative and interesting reading. Recommended." H. M. Brogan
+ — Library J 75:1199 Jl '50 90w

"A reverent and appreciative biography of the present Pope, which is, inevitably, more a description of the church offices he held and the religious ceremonies in which he took part than a revealing human document. Yet, in spite of the formidable dignity of his position, the Pope does emerge as a man of brilliance, immense self-discipline, great personal charm and fearless leadership in the cause of peace." Margaret Scoggin
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 My 7 '50 240w

"Adults will find 'Pope Pius XII' factually informative if not always satisfying. Not many youngsters outside the Roman Catholic Church in the 11-to-15 age group will turn to the book without outside stimulation. To get the most from the book, any reader will find that the pictures, curiously uneven in quality, need to be supplemented by one of the photographic studies of the Vatican." A. N. Fedder
N Y Times p24 Mr 26 '50 200w

LENS, SIDNEY. Left, right and center; conflicting forces in American labor. 445p $4 Regnery

331.88 Trade unions. Labor and laboring classes—U.S. 49-8858

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"There are trenchant observations on American labor in Sidney Lens' book Left, Right and Center. But after one has said this he must quickly add that Sidney Lens' book fails to cut through the principal problems in American labor, or do much more than record conflicting forces. . . It is part of Mr. Lens' intellectual method to deal with broad concepts like business unionism, socialism and capitalism. He has not learned yet that broad concepts are poor tools of communication, because they are likely to mean vastly different things to different persons and groups of persons." M. H. Hedges
Am Econ R 40:229 Mr '50 550w

"The book is a very handy and readable compendium of the labor story of our times written by one with whose full aims, though they are thoroughly anti-Stalinist, Catholic social actionists will not agree. They will recognize in him, however, one gifted with much radical wisdom who is closer to the right because he leans to what used to be the left." H. J. Browne
+ — Cath World 171:236 Je '50 300w

"The book might be most useful as a text for trade-union courses if—but only if—taught from the author's point of view. The disinterested student might find it of value because of some less well-known incidents and close-range observations of union procedures which it contains; or else he might be interested in the author's peculiar—although not exactly original—slant and his strongly felt and strongly expressed sympathies and antipathies." J. V. Spielmans
J Pol Econ 58:77 F '50 1050w

"Left, Right and Center is replete with important facts about American labor. The author is to be commended for his objective appraisal of past events and for the detachment he shows in writing about his fellow unionists. His views regarding political action are astute and provocative. But the assumptions and conclusions he advances as the burden of his treatise throw grave doubt upon the author's judgment." Martin Dodge
+ — Management R 39:361 Je '50 1450w

"The book is controversial, and many will disagree with Mr. Lens' thesis, but for all those interested in where the labor movement goes from here, the book is provocative reading."
U S Quarterly Bkl 5:381 S '49 320w

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY). I like winter. [46p] il $1 Oxford 50-9862

Pictures and rhymes show the reasons why a little child likes winter. Includes music for the rhymes.

Booklist 47:81 O 15 '50

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p40 D 3 '50 70w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 26:456 N '50 50w
+ Horn Bk 26:466 N '50 50w
Kirkus 18:606 O 1 '50 70w

"Recommended for preschool and first grade." Virginia Russell
+ Library J 75:1910 N 1 '50 70w

"Another endearing very little book, by the author-illustrator of the long-loved 'Mr. Small Books.'" L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune R p16 N 12 '50 110w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p17 D 17 '50 100w
Sat R of Lit 33:44 D 9 '50 60w

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY). Texas tomboy [il. by the author]. 180p $2.50 Lippincott 50-8022

Story of cattle ranching in western Texas, sometime before 1920. It was during a period of drought, and the struggle of the Carters to keep their ranch in the face of great privations is the central theme. The family's ten-year-old, Charlotte Clarissa, who preferred to be called Charlie Boy, is the heroine. Grades 4-7.

Booklist 47:16 S 1 '50

Horn Bk 26:374 S '50 90w

"Stunning regional story."
+ Kirkus 18:466 Ag 15 '50 160w

"Highly recommended." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 75:1514 S 15 '50 80w

"This is a grand book full of clear morals and rich human understanding." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 O 29 '50 340w

N Y Times p34 O 8 '50 200w

"End-papers show every detail of the ranch and will inform and interest the younger boys and girls who long for an experience with cows and horses."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:43 S 16 '50 140w

Springf'd Republican p12C S 17 '50 160w

LENSSEN, HEIDI. Hands in nature and art. 64p pl $2.85 Studio

704.942 Hand. Anatomy, Artistic 50-5855

Following a brief chapter of "technical notes" covering the bone and muscle structure of the hand, this book is composed entirely of plates showing the portrayal of the human hand in all ages thru the media of sculpture, painting, and photography.

LENSSEN, HEIDI—Continued
Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 75:1186 Jl '50 130w

"The book will be of special value as a manual for artists because of the rich variety of poses in which hands are shown. In addition to hands in repose and hands in prayer, it displays hands in movements of every description from woodcarving, dancing, watch-repairing, and writing to such casual actions as stirring a cup of coffee or lighting a cigar." R. H. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Je 4 '50 350w

School Arts 50:6a S '50 110w

LEONARD, BURGESS. Victory pass. 221p $2.50 Lippincott
50-14376

Melville college, somewhere in the South, is the scene of this football story for boys. A coach who tries to introduce professionals to play on the college team is the villain. The hero is a son of the college dean.

"A highly readable book, definitely in the upper brackets of sports juveniles." Robert Cromie
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 12 '50 180w

"Thrilling football in this one and plenty of action."
+ Kirkus 18:563 S 15 '50 90w

"This is a routine story of professionalism in college athletics. The football is fairly good, but the rest is only passing fair. Recommended only if you must have a new football title." M. D. Read
Library J 75:1914 N 1 '50 80w

"Lively and well written. . . Burgess Leonard is new in the field of sport stories. This one should establish him as a popular sports writer."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:61 N 11 '50 50w

LEONARD, CARROLL MENDENHALL, and MALEEV, VLADIMIR LEONIDAS. Heat power fundamentals. 596p il $5.75 Pitman
621.1 Heat engines 49-49218

"Designed as a basic textbook for students in heat-power engineering. Covers fundamentals of thermodynamics, the steam engine and turbine, condensing, heating and pumping equipment, steam and heat generation, internal combustion engines, gas-turbine and mechanical refrigeration." (Booklist) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 46:185 F 1 '50

"For reference use in libraries the book does not necessarily supersede earlier tests on the subject, but it is recommended for addition to collections which are being built up." R. R. Hawkins
+ Library J 74:1914 D 15 '49 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:6 Ja '50

LEONARD, CHARLES L., pseud. See Heberden, M. V.

LEONARD, NELLIE MABEL. The Graymouse family; il. by Barbara Cooney. 209p $2 Crowell 50-13512

Story of a family of mice, living in an attic. Their everyday experiences are described in detail, illustrated with many black and white drawings. For ages four to eight.

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p9 N 13 '50 50w

• Kirkus 18:330 Je 15 '50 120w

"Recommended." M. E. Martignoni
+ Library J 75:2162 D 15 '50 90w

"Illustrations by Barbara Cooney are engaging, but it seems a little unfair to make so appealing mice that live in the house of humans when all practcal children know they are such unwelcome tenants. Not recommended." N. L. Rathbun
— + Library J 75:2162 D 15 '50 90w

"Each adventure is only a few pages long, making good bed-time reading for five to seven year olds, for the doings are somewhat parallel to their own, enough so to seem funny to them. . . To an adult, the pictures are more appealing than the text." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 10 '50 250w

"Barbara Cooney has made fifty black-and-white drawings for this story that are a delight to everyone, young or old, who sees them. It is not a picture book but a small, compact volume that is well designed and well printed."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 N 11 '50 100w

LEOPOLD, ALDO. Sand County almanac; and, Sketches here and there; il. by Charles W. Schwartz. 226p $3.50 Oxford
574 Natural history—U.S. 49-11164

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by Ellen Rogers
Canadian Forum 30:23 Ap '50 150w

"Written by one who has long lived in and loved the country, 'A Sand County Almanac' is no sentimental journal but the sincerely experienced and keenly observed recordings of a skilled naturalist whose eye for beauty is matched by his response to it. . . To read this book is not only to acquire much useful information but to develop a keener eye and a sharper ear for the world of nature and a greater respect for the land." Elizabeth Yates
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 F 6 '50 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '50

"'A Sand County Almanac' is a rare addition to the library of any one who appreciates wise and beautiful writing about nature." E. W. Teale
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Mr 5 '50 800w

Reviewed by Hal Borland
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 16 '50 450w

"In the best tradition of nature writing, these posthumous essays form a sort of capstone to the life work of a great American forester, ecologist, and conservationist. Full of understanding and sympathy, they are very earnest in intent, although they are not without a certain wry humor and a gnomic quality that make them memorable."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:7 Mr '50 280w

LEPAWSKY, ALBERT, ed. Administration; the art and science of organization and management. 669p $6.50 Knopf
658 Public administration. Management 49-10902

"Book of readings, designed as a textbook on the senior and graduate level. . . Five categories suffice to embrace the observations and ideas of more than three hundred practitioners and students of administration, ranging in time from Aristotle and Socrates to Wilson and Stalin. The categories are: the significance of administration, the art of administration, the science of organization, the technique of management, the study of administration. Within these categories the editor-author has made selections from the writings of wisely chosen observers of administration." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Indexes.

"Professor Lepawsky has prepared a rich feast of scholarship for students and practitioners of administration. The three hundred selections represent many years of inquiry by a keen and diligent mind. Extensive footnote references to complementary and contrasting selections not only increase the value of the book but are a measure of the broad base of scholarship upon which the text is erected. Professor Lepawsky's commentary is not only intelligent observation; it is creative writing." Dwight Waldo
+ Am Pol Sci R 44:200 Mr '50 650w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 74:1462 O 1 '49 100w

"The volume is a convenient and usable collection of concepts and insights, and is in itself a miniature library of the literature of public administration."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:81 Mr '50 180w

LEPLEY, RAY, ed. Value: a cooperative inquiry [by H. D. Aiken, and others]. 487p $6 Columbia univ. press

121 Value. Dewey, John 49-50256

"In the Journal of Philosophy (1944), p.449-555, John Dewey propounded 'Some questions about value,' which, as one contributor to this volume states, was part of a new manifestation of the old 'quest for certainty.' Since this is one of the fundamental concerns of modern philosophy, fourteen leading philosophers agreed to conduct an 'inquiry' in an attempt to clarify the issues involved, for there was no agreement even on the definitions of the terms used. We have here a reprint of the Dewey article, and contributions by H. D. Aiken, C. E. Ayres, John Dewey, A. C. Garnett, G. R. Geiger and others, and then a series of criticisms and evaluations of one another's essays." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by F. H. Heinemann
Hibbert J 48:396 Jl '50 110w

"No general agreement was hoped for or achieved, but the symposium should serve to stimulate further study on the part of those advanced in philosophy—for whom this book is intended." R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:1902 D 15 '49 150w

"The plan of this excellent book is well worthy of emulation in other areas of inquiry." R. B.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:60 My 6 '50 320w
School & Society 70:416 D 17 '49 40w

"Lively though it is, however, this exchange of views is by no means exhaustive."
Times [London] Lit Sup p393 Je 23 '50 900w

"The discussion is too minute and controversial to make an appetizing morsel for the general reader. But considering the chaotic state of value theory today, this attempt by fourteen experts to state and compare their positions is nothing short of a windfall to serious students of the subject."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:31 Mr '50 200w

LERNER, DANIEL. Sykewar; psychological warfare against Germany, D-day to VE-day; with a foreword by Robert A. McClure and a supplementary essay by Richard H. S. Crossman. 463p il $6.50 Stewart

940.54886 Allied forces. Supreme headquarters. Psychological warfare division. World war, 1939-1945—Propaganda 50-232

"The complete story of psychological warfare against Germany, by a man who was a member of the psychological warfare division of SHAEF. The volume includes chapters on policy, personnel, media, operations and effectiveness, and makes a good case for this new weapon of war about which many have heard something but few have understood much." Library J

Reviewed by H. C. Peterson
Am Hist R 55:995 Jl '50 230w

"It is regrettable that so excellent a book has been given so inexcusable a title. One can only hope that persons allergic to such words as 'Sykewar' (meaning psychological warfare) will not be tempted to stay away from the book in the first place and that, if they do by any chance pick it up, they will not throw it away when they see that 'propanal' is used regularly for 'propaganda analysis'!" C. E. Hawley
+ — Am Pol Sci R 44:760 S '50 700w

"This is the best account of 'white' psychological warfare against Germany yet produced anywhere. Moreover, it is the only good account of the work of the Psychological Warfare Division of SHAEF and, in particular, of the Publicity and Psychological Warfare unit of Twelfth Army Group. It is heavily documented, replete with fine reproductions of leaflets and similar material, and contains all the important written military directives that were supposed to govern British and American propaganda operations." Howard Becker
+ Am Soc R 15:317 Ap '50 1300w
Foreign Affairs 28:681 Jl '50 20w

"As a part of the history of the war, this is a valuable addition, and it should be useful to those interested in communications and public opinion. The whole account would have been more effective if administrative details had been simplified." Donald Wasson
Library J 75:400 Mr 1 '50 100w
Nation 170:409 Ap 29 '50 50w

"Scholarly and dispassionate analysis of psychological warfare in the European theatre. . . This book will be rather heavy going for the average reader: for those who recognize the value of intelligent propaganda as an instrument of international policy in war or in peace, it is an excellent source book not only on what ought to be done but also on what ought not to be done." Delbert Clark
+ N Y Times p12 Ja 15 '50 650w
San Francisco Chronicle p25 Mr 19 '50 300w

LESLIE, DORIS (OPPENHEIM). Wreath for Arabella. 349p $3 Roy pubs.

Stuart, Lady Arabella—Fiction

"Fictional treatment of the Lady Arabella Stuart, near enough kin to both Queen Elizabeth and James I to threaten the security of the throne if sufficiently supported by conspirators. Since her high rank caused both rulers much uneasiness neither would allow a marriage alliance. . . After James I came to the throne [she] secretly married William Seymour. With this marriage strengthening Arabella's claims to the throne both bride and groom were imprisoned, Arabella to die in the Tower." Booklist

Booklist 47:100 N 1 '50
Kirkus 18:452 Ag 1 '50 160w

"For atmosphere and entertainment—and a spur to read purer history—this does very well. Not to be ignored for high school age." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 75:1401 S 1 '50 110w

"Miss Leslie has kept close to historical fact and record, but transforms them into lively romance, though never, particularly in her picture of the Court and the greater and lesser figures there, at the expense of realism." H. I'A. Fausset
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 30 '48 130w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 N 19 '50 100w

"The adventures of this lady are dealt with in a prose as impressively articulated as the hind-leg of a jumping spider." Sugden Tilley
— N Y Times p33 N 5 '50 110w

"Individual, completely of her period, but vivid and alive, Arabella emerges from the pages of this novel like one of those incomparable Elizabethan miniatures. 'Wreath for Arabella' is historical fiction at its best." Pamela Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 33:34 D 23 '50 400w

LESLY, PHILIP, ed. Public relations handbook; contributors: David O. Alber [and others]. 902p il $10; to schools $7.50 Prentice-Hall

301.154 Publicity. Advertising 50-5830

"A compendium on the phases, types, aspects and techniques of public relations. The editor and his battery of contributors are active practitioners, each an expert in handling public relations directed toward a particular group—as stockholders, employees, or the public, or on behalf of a distinctive clientele—as corporations, trade associations, or educational institutions; or in the use of a particular medium—as house magazines, stunts, the press; practice. Selected classified bibliography. Glossary." (Library J) Index.

LESLY, PHILIP—Continued

Booklist 46:298 Je 1 '50

Chicago Sun p5 My 9 '50 50w

"Philip Lesly designed this sturdy volume of 902 pages for years of usefulness with the comprehensive treatment of the subject and the enduring quality of its material. As a source-book it represents the creative thought and constructive achievement of 35 contributors whose names form a roster of public relations leadership. The chapters are proficiently coördinated by the editor into a masterpiece of business writing. The glossary and extensive bibliography broaden the scope of the text." Winifred Baum
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 26 '50 140w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:871 My 15 '50 80w

"There is little guidance on the public relations function of assisting management in the formulation of policies which will gain good will, or on understanding the sociological complexities in which these policies are rooted. To demand that one volume also encompass this as thoroughly as this book treats publicity would, however, be unfair. As it is, for those primarily interested in 'getting the story across,' this is an outstanding reference book." E. K. Moss
+ — Management R 39:491 Ag '50 600w

LESSING, MRS DORIS MAY. The grass is singing. 245p $3 Crowell
50-9419

The novel begins with the newspaper notice of the death of Mary Turner, wife of an unsuccessful South African farmer. There seems to be some reluctance among the other whites about discussing the case. The author then turns back to the story of Mary Turner's life, showing her gradual disintegration as a person, and ending with her murder by a Kaffir houseboy.

"The deadening atmosphere here, the external pressures which combine with inner weaknesses, all blend into a saddening and often compelling portrayal of deterioration."
Kirkus 18:366 Jl 1 '50 200w

"A drab but convincing story. . . This South African novel, in its plodding, cumulative detail reminds one of Henry Handel Richardson's Australian trilogy, The Fortunes of Richard Mahony." E. F. Walbridge
Library J 75:1408 S 1 '50 110w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel
Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 17 '50 130w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
Nation 171:273 S 23 '50 120w

"It would be easy to write pages about The Grass is Singing which besides being very well-written is an extremely mature psychological study. It is full of those terrifying touches of truth, seldom mentioned but instantly recognised. By any standards, this book shows remarkable powers and imagination. As a first novel by a woman barely turned thirty, it excites great interest in her future." Antonia White
+ New Statesman & Nation 39:378 Ap 1 '50 380w

"There is no note of hope in 'The Grass Is Singing.' It is a book of solitude and fear and hopelessness. Creating such quiet horror would be a feat for any novelist. For a new writer, the accomplishment is remarkable." Joanna Spencer
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 10 '50 550w

"There is a passion here, a piercing accuracy of progressive despair that is astonishing in so young a writer. Indeed, so preordained is Mary Turner's end that death, when it comes, is almost a blessed relief. It is seldom that a first novel at once so sensitive and so powerful comes to hand. One can only marvel that so small a country should have produced so rich a harvest and add that the present novel was rejected by South African publishers." John Barkham
+ N Y Times p4 S 10 '50 320w

"Miss Lessing's touch, which is remarkably sure as long as she is dealing with the unfortunate couple, wavers a bit when she turns her attention to the natives with the result that one of her major characters, a houseboy who is partly responsible for the heroine's ultimate moral collapse, remains an enigmatic and shadowy figure."
New Yorker 26:119 S 16 '50 110w

"The fate of these two people, stumbling and groping through life, has universal duplications, so that their story with slight variations is the story of stumbling, groping, pitiable people everywhere. What ennobles it is Miss Lessing's compassion, which lends it an air of tremendous dignity and tragedy. One feels that in an era less choked with literary cream it would have become a classic picture of man's struggle against ruthless fate." C. N. Govan
Sat R of Lit 33:44 O 21 '50 600w

"The best first novel for a long time. Miss Lessing has written, in a prose of exceptional strength and maturity." Marghanita Laski
+ Spec 184:444 Mr 31 '50 100w

Time 56:122 S 18 '50 300w

"A powerful and bitter book."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p225 Ap 14 '50 260w

LESTER, BERNARD. Sales engineering. 2d ed 226p $3 Wiley

658.89621 Salesmanship. Machinery 50-8161

"Outlines successful methods to be followed in selling machinery, equipment, and technical products. First published in 1940 [Book Review Digest 1941]; now rearranged and expanded." Booklist

Booklist 46:318 Je 15 '50

"Practically all aspects of sales engineering are covered in minute detail. . . Even the experienced sales engineer will profit from the great many illustrative examples and anecdotes to be found in almost every chapter and selected from actual case experiences. A critical reviewer can, however, point out some omissions. . . In this reviewer's judgment, the sequence of chapters could be improved upon and, lastly, the index is too sketchy." Howard Farkas
+ — Chem & Eng N 28:3070 S 4 '50 270w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:1188 Jl '50 70w

LES TINA, DOROTHY. The barrier. 244p $2.75 Rinehart
50-10333

A psychological study of a woman who is tempted to commit a mercy-killing.

Kirkus 18:484 Ag 15 '50 160w

"An unpleasant story about uninteresting people. Not recommended." H. R. Forbes
— Library J 75:1661 O 1 '50 70w

"In 'The Barrier,' Dorothy Les Tina picks an odd assemblage of people, combines them in unlikely combinations, makes them all reminiscent of Robert Nathan's characters, and turns their story into a not-very-believable but strangely engrossing book."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 O 15 '50 350w

"Miss Les Tina tells Harriet's story with a fine appreciation of the grimly oppressive, quietly nonviolent aspects of terror. She becomes less convincing when she explores definite action and positive emotion." Lily Von Ameringen
+ — N Y Times p11 D 24 '50 180w

"This novel would be better for concentrating on Harriet's inner conflict instead of diffusing itself over a number of characters whose verbosity reveals little. In itself the dialogue is excellent, but too much of it and too many trivial incidents give a feeling of thinness to an otherwise dramatic and thought-provoking crisis." Patricia Highsmith

Sat R of Lit 33:16 D 9 '50 320w

LE SUEUR, MERIDEL. Sparrow Hawk; il. by William Moyers. 174p $2.50 Knopf 50-9438

Story of a white boy and his Sauk Indian friend during President Jackson's administration. It tells of the attempt of the Sauk Indians under Black Hawk, the chieftain, to hold their lands against the whites, and their final surrender.

Booklist 47:121 N 15 '50

"Absorbing story." Walter Havighurst
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 12 '50 220w

"Tenuous as to plot thread and somewhat mannered in style, this is more likely to appeal to adults than to children. Not easy reading."
Kirkus 18:387 Jl 15 '50 160w

"Although the first two chapters are slow-moving and the book contains a definite bias, it is recommended for all libraries as good material for tolerance and understanding of minority groups." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 75:1674 O 1 '50 80w

"Good reading for twelve-year-olds and over, a fine, exciting story." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 12 '50 90w

"If you open this beautifully designed book you will at once expect something unusual. And you will not be disappointed. In lovely prose it tells a story based on a little known chapter in the history of our Indians. It is history not found in textbooks." H. P.
+ N Y Times p30 N 12 '50 230w
Wis Lib Bul 46:22 N '50

LETHABY, WILLIAM RICHARD. Medieval art; from the peace of the church to the eve of the renaissance, 312-1350; [3d ed] rev. by D Talbot Rice. 223p 80pl $7.50 Philosophical lib.
709.4 Art, Medieval 50-9270

A standard work first published in 1904. "In preparing this new edition of Lethaby's Medieval Art for the press, the Editor was confronted with two alternatives, either to make as few alterations as were compatible with bringing the book up to date, or to rewrite it almost entirely, in order to avoid its somewhat confused arrangement. The former alternative was chosen. . . In following the aim of bringing the book up to date all Lethaby's references to 'now' or 'recent' have been altered, and when such phrases occur in the present edition, they refer to the year 1946. Further, in order to take into account the large volume of new information that has become available since the beginning of this century, when Lethaby wrote, quite considerable changes in the text have at times been necessary. . . Apart from such alterations as these, the text was also changed to the extent of incorporating in it the appendices included by Lethaby at the end of the book." (Editor's pref)

"Today, the excellence and complexity of our best art criticism makes Lethaby's work, which is predominantly an architectural history of art, appear rather schematic. Nevertheless, the art history which he wrote—detailed, sober, suspicious in a British way of all generalities—is a classic of its type, and is infinitely preferable to some trashy literary-artistic incantations which are palmed off today as art criticism." Serge Hughes
+ Commonweal 53:100 N 3 '50 650w

"Lethaby was never fully a classic; his judgements, his ipsissima verba, are not sacred. Consequently, the editorial technique adopted by Professor Talbot Rice, that of printing a fairly integral text accompanied by dialectical or contrapuntal footnotes, appears too reverential. But the main criticism will be that the great lacunae remain." David Knowles
Spec 184:617 My 5 '50 500w

LEUBA, JAMES HENRY. Reformation of the churches [foreword by Clarence Leuba]. 219p $2.75 Beacon press
261 Church 50-6154

"The late Professor Leuba believed that religion and the churches can save civilization, but only after they have divested themselves of outworn superstitions, the most harmful of which are faith in a personal God and in immortality. He presents statistics to indicate the waning of these beliefs, especially among the better educated; he excoriates popular religion; and he condemns the Modernists who really do not believe the creeds they profess to accept." (Churchman) Index.

"Professor Leuba was doubtless a good psychologist, but as a philosopher he is a decided amateur." L. W. Norris
— Ann Am Acad 271:223 S '50 550w

Reviewed by Neil Martin
Christian Science Monitor p6 S 9 '50 250w

Reviewed by W. L. Caswell
Churchman 164:18 Ap 15 '50 200w

Reviewed by C. M. Bond
Crozer Q 27:346 O '50 1000w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith
Ethics 61:88 O '50 280w

Reviewed by E. L. Allen
Hibbert J 48:400 Jl '50 80w
Kirkus 17:646 D 1 '49 190w

"Highly recommended." G. O. Kelley
+ Library J 75:316 F 15 '50 140w

"It is plain from appendices in his volume that Dr. Leuba, in condemning customary religion, appreciates the necessity of providing an alternative. He discusses the progressive and constructive liberalism of Unitarians, of the Ethical Societies, of many Quakers. He presents a new and altruistic liturgy to cover baptisms, marriages and funerals. Even those who say with Chesterton that 'Christianity has not failed—it has not been tried,' will find in Dr. Leuba an exemplar of a much higher standard than the average of personal character, and a much deeper sense of social responsibility." P. W. W.
+ N Y Times p31 Je 11 '50 320w

LEVERENZ, HUMBOLDT WALTER. Introduction to luminescence of solids. 569p $12 Wiley
535.3 Radiation 50-5472

"The book itself is partially the result of OSRD and Naval Research contracts during the war. . . This is no encyclopedia of phosphors, but a readable description in terms of preparations, compositions, structures, and physical characteristics. Five chapters give a balanced treatment of the crystallography, chemistry, and physics involved in this youthful branch of science. Two chapters give practical information from direct experience on properties and limitations of important phosphors with brief descriptions of suitable procedures for their application and use." (Chem & Eng N) Bibliography. Indexes.

"Leverenz's book is a very valuable contribution to the ever growing literature on luminescence and its technical applications and those working in this field will find it exceedingly helpful." Peter Pringsheim
+ Am Chem Soc J 72:3832 Ag '50 420w

"Masterly presentation of a live subject by an eminently well-qualified authority. . . Anyone may pay the rather high cost of this book with the assurance that the returns from the investment certainly will justify the outlay." G. L. Clark
+ Chem & Eng N 28:1242 Ap 10 '50 320w

Reviewed by C. E. Barnett
+ Chem Eng 57:306 Je '50 320w

"The book is addressed primarily to science graduates already at work in the field or preparing for work in it, hence a moderately high level of knowledge in physics and chemistry has been assumed." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:325 F 15 '50 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:24 Mr '50

LEVERENZ, H. W.—Continued

"This volume is a carefully organized account of recent work in the field, drawn largely from the experience of the author. It offers a valuable guide to the uninitiated in becoming acquainted with various aspects of luminescence, and is a useful source of information for the specialist."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:242 Je '50 250w

LEVI, CARLO. Of fear and freedom; tr. from the Italian by Adolphe Gourevitch. 135p $2.75 Farrar, Straus

290 Liberty. Religion 50-5061

"The author of 'Christ Stopped at Eboli' wrote this book . . . during the first months of the war in Europe, when 'all the data of a civilization were dissolving in a mist.' Although it is divided into orderly chapters, headed 'Sacrifice,' 'Slavery,' 'Blood,' and so on, it is really a sustained metaphysical prose poem, sharply didactic and humming with thoughts, conceits, and twists in logic. . . Mr. Levi speculates on sacred and profane love and the sexual servitude of women, on the state and its need for slaves and victims, and on the myths, omens, taboos, and totems that men unconsciously fear and live by. For his images, he draws upon painting, literature, philosophy, and medicine, every one of which he practices." New Yorker

"Here is brilliant intuition supported by philosophical learning, the artist and the scholar in unusual collaboration. . . The book was written ten years ago and is (one can only think) superbly translated; but it does not date, and it is about everybody." Chester Duncan

+ Canadian Forum 30:93 Jl '50 340w

Reviewed by J. A. Clark

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ja 22 '50 400w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby

Christian Science Monitor p6 My 20 '50 190w

"That the author himself was aware of the basic weakness of the essays comprising Of Fear and Freedom is attested to by his judicious unwillingness to publish them at the time of composition. An acknowledged fragmentary work, it is interesting only as a direct expression of the beliefs and values of the enigmatic figure of Carlo Levi which so skillfully emerged from the pages of Christ Stopped at Eboli. . . The weakest essay in the book is that dealing with the Muses. Here one wishes that Levi had followed modern aesthetic writers in Italy, for whatever their faults, lack of clarity and directness are not among them. Perhaps, however, clarity is an elusive virtue for an oracle. The translation, all in all, is adequate, considering the difficulty of the text." Serge Hughes

Commonweal 51:563 Mr 3 '50 480w

"Not a destructive book, nor a non-believer's, this indicates the attaching, enslaving forces, their values as well as their restrictive influences in man's attainment of freedom. Not for a general audience, but an appreciative one."

+ Kirkus 17:639 N 15 '49 190w

"A special book for special tastes." E. F. Walbridge

Library J 75:103 Ja 15 '50 100w

"Adolphe Gurevitch, in a very fine preface to a very fine translation, warns us that 'Of Fear and Freedom' is neither logic nor history nor sociology. It evokes the deepest myths of human destiny—myths which are timeless, for they are not events, and which are capable of contradictory interpretations, for they are not thoughts. A myth is an 'as if' which implies but does not define a Platonic reality. The result is that while each sentence is marvelously clear, each paragraph, each chapter, and the whole book are shimmering in a luminous haze, 'dark with excess of light.'" Albert Guerard

Nation 170:158 F 18 '50 1050w

Reviewed by Irwin Edman

New Repub 122:19 Ap 3 '50 800w

"I suppose a great many readers will find Dr. Levi's book somewhat forbidding; and it is difficult to say, finally, whether or not his particular reading of the human story is significant or new. Certainly, no great illumination, in spite of the doctor's painful effort to illuminate 5,000 years of human practices, is cast; at least, no illumination greater than the light Fraser and Freud have already thrown. What 'Of Fear and Freedom' remains, is an impassioned monograph, white-hot but not entirely convincing; a 'confession' of the general horror delivered in a confession-box already crowded with monograph-writers." Alfred Hayes

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 F 5 '50 1000w

Reviewed by Paolo Milano

N Y Times p3 Ja 22 '50 1150w

"His book is remarkable because, for all its probing into the murky regions of man's mind and soul, it is as clear as spring water."

+ New Yorker 25:100 Ja 21 '50 200w

Reviewed by Siegfried Mandel

Sat R of Lit 33:30 F 25 '50 500w

LEVI, EDWARD HIRSCH. Introduction to legal reasoning. 74p $2 Univ. of Chicago press

340 Law—Interpretation and construction. Jurisprudence 49-11213

"In this essay, originally published in the University of Chicago Law Review, Mr. Levi discusses the theory of legal reasoning, and uses cases to show how the tools of law themselves are fashioned." U S Quarterly Bkl

"For what it proposes to encompass, Levi's book is compelling and valuable as a contribution to law and social science—illuminating the operation of the control process in a particular context." F. W. Killian

+ Ann Am Acad 269:181 My '50 550w

Reviewed by Albert Blaustein

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ja 1 '50 350w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith

Ethics 61:87 O '50 330w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:81 Mr '50 280w

LEVIN, BEATRICE. The lonely room. 286p $2.75 Bobbs

50-7125

"The story of Beth Brickman, a college student, the daughter of Jewish parents in a small town in Rhode Island. Her parents, slow to accept the American concept of equality of opportunity, object strenuously to Beth's scholastic aspirations but they are, eventually, reconciled with her ambitions." Chicago Sun

Reviewed by Benjamin Weintroub

Chicago Sun p4 Jl 16 '50 250w

"Acute and honest first novel. Not particularly original in substance or style, the story is nevertheless lit by a pleasing candor." Nancy Lenkeith

+ — N Y Times p16 Ap 9 '50 270w

"Unfortunately, Miss Levin never begins to realize the potential of her subject matter. The novel is put together like a badly made dress. Too full here, scanty and gaping there. Only a young author can overwrite and underwrite at the same time, and Miss Levin has managed to do both." M. R.

— San Francisco Chronicle p13 Jl 9 '50 190w

LEVIN, HARRY, ed. Perspectives of criticism [by] Walter Jackson Bate [and others]. 248p $4 Harvard univ. press

801 Literary criticism 50-7472

"Nine essays by eight authors and the editor, on the general subject of the history of criticism. Each chapter discusses a separate phase of literature." Current Hist

Reviewed by John Randolph

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 O 1 '50 100w

Current Hist 19:39 Jl '50 40w

"Of special interest to students, the essays in this miscellany are written with a regard for the reader and an attention to current issues which may enlarge their audience." H. W. Hart

+ Library J 75:558 Ap 1 '50 110w

Reviewed by David Daiches

New Repub 123:18 Ag 14 '50 360w

"It would be a rashly versatile reviewer who would undertake to criticize these extremely specialized papers. Let it suffice to remark with approval the tendency, still in the germ but nevertheless recognizable, to apply learning to topics of general interest and to subordinate scholarship to the service of critical insight." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 S 24 '50 650w

"The interests range from the Greek classics to Paul Claudel, and the points of view from the philosophical to the semantic, the biographical to the social. Despite this diversity, a measure of unity is achieved through similarity of method; the contributors, as essayists, are chiefly interested in the analysis of literature and ideas about literature. And it is pleasant to discover that there are still critics at work who write objectively and historically—free from the disputatious currents of schools of criticism." G. L. Joughin

+ N Y Times p15 Ag 20 '50 450w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:277 S '50 280w

"The nine essays are not held together by much except the high quality which they share and a preoccupation with literary history. . . I think Mr. Walter Bate's 'Coleridge on the Function of Art,' a brilliantly clear exposition of Coleridgean aesthetics, is likely to be the most generally useful essay in the book." T. W. Copeland

+ Yale R n s 40:168 autumn '50 140w

LEVIN, HARRY, 1907- . I saw the battle of Jerusalem [Eng title: Jerusalem embattled]. 288p map $3 Schocken

956.9 Jerusalem—Siege, 1948. Palestine—Jewish-Arab problem 50-8284

Personal narrative in diary form of the siege of the city of Jerusalem by the Arabs in 1948. The author, a South African journalist, is now Israeli consul general in Australia.

Reviewed by Marie Syrkin

Nation 170:625 Je 24 '50 800w

"During part of the siege Mr. Levin was in charge of the underground Haganah broadcasting service from Jerusalem, and many of his entries read like breathless reports of a war correspondent. It is perhaps too public, too self-conscious a record to endure. . . But, as the siege progresses, the diary's imperfections are forgotten in the general pace and scope of events." R. C. Wright

+ New Statesman & Nation 39:524 My 6 '50 700w

Reviewed by Marvin Lowenthal

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 My 28 '50 850w

LEVIN, MEYER. In search; an autobiography. 524p $3.75 Horizon press, 1123 Broadway, N.Y. 10

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Jews 50-4306

The author is a Chicago newspaperman who has made several visits to Palestine. "Through the catharsis of autobiography, Mr. Levin presents his search and the search of most Jews for a basis for understanding exactly what a Jew is. More than autobiography it is also a history of Jewish development in the early days of Palestine, 25 years ago, through the war in Europe and the throes of setting up Israel." (Library J)

Booklist 46:334 Jl 1 '50

"Part I, which he revealingly has called 'The Self-Accused,' is so full of self-pity the reader wants to send Levin a bill for acting as psychoanalyst. In an author honesty is not enough; he must select, discriminate and organize as well as confess. . . The scene takes on a different aspect when Meyer Levin leaves his introspection at the wailing wall to become Meyer Levin, the reporter. Here are the pages which make this book a stirring, exciting human document." Emmett Dedmon

+ — Chicago Sun p5 Je 27 '50 550w

"Meyer Levin has combined a job of reporting, which is excellent, and of soul searching of himself and others, which while not perhaps worthy of the same laudatory adjective and too often that of just an angry man, is at least adequate." Seymour Korman

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 11 '50 410w

Reviewed by H. L. Roth

Library J 75:863 My 15 '50 140w

Reviewed by Marie Syrkin

Nation 171:151 Ag 12 '50 900w

"The book closes with some philosophical reflections about the need for better understanding between the Jewish community in America and the Jewish state in Israel. Having his roots in both, Levin wants to help build a bridge between them. As philosophical reflections go, they are a healthy antidote both to the anti-Zionists and the Israel-worshiping groups among Jews in America today. But the strength of the book lies not in any solutions that Levin thinks he has discovered (actually there are many knots neither he nor we can untie now), but in the earnestness and candor of the quest itself." Max Lerner

+ — New Repub 123:19 Jl 24 '50 950w

"It is a revealing, sharply written, continuously exciting story." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 4 '50 750w

"The book is equally rewarding whether regarded as a first-hand report of the last three decades or simply as an examination of the Jewish psyche in the modern world." Nelson Algren

+ N Y Times p18 Je 11 '50 380w

Reviewed by Irving Babow

San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 14 '50 800w

"'In Search' is a bit less than full-dress autobiography and also a great deal more. It is among the most unblushing of self-portrayals and, paradoxically, among the most impersonal. It should be read, felt, absorbed, and thought about. It should also be argued with, and I register my dissent in personal terms. Mr. Levin feels his search that of the universal Jew. . . In the end he comes up with several questionable—to me—obiter dicta: notably, that every Jew must feel a psychological separateness from the goyim (a word of unfortunate connotation) and that American Jews are 'never entirely at home.'" P. R. Levin

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:14 Jl 8 '50 650w

LEVY, ISAAC D., and SMOLENS, BERNARD J., comps. Court is in session; with a foreword by Owen J. Roberts. 241p $2.50 Crown

343.1 Mock trials. Criminal law. Television broadcasting 50-6851

Based on the materials first presented in the television program: Court is in Session, given over the CBS and WCAU networks.

"The book serves a dual purpose. Not only are the trials interesting reading; they are also in such form as to be capable of dramatization by amateur clubs and student moot courts. Instructions are furnished and permission is granted for this secondary use. The trials themselves are largely concerned with criminal matters and with the more sensational aspects of civil litigation. But this is no defect." Covington Hardee

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 12 '50 360w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '50

"These present the technical points and fundamentals of legal technique and terminology, and, as dramatic skits could well define the issues pictured. But as reading matter the repetition is dullish for the layman, while, for legal minds, there is not acute enough analysis to make this important for library or reference material. As entertainment in a specific

LEVY, I. D.—Continued
medium there is enough basic information to give some familiarity with court formalities but transferred to the reading page one would doubt other than TV's audience as a market for this."

— + Kirkus 18:86 F 1 '50 120w

"The ambition behind these proceedings is commendable and the shows were doubtless entertaining. But the cases as demonstrations of 'just how justice is administered' are another thing. They do give an adequate generalized picture of courtroom procedure in civil and criminal actions, a point which former Justice Owen J. Roberts makes in his laudatory foreword. But they are obvious contrivances of contradictory pieces of evidence so nicely balanced against each other that it is apparent that holding the viewing audience, not dramatizing the plight of John Doe run afoul of the law, was the guiding consideration." P. R. Levin

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:30 Je 3 '50 230w

LEVY, MARION JOSEPH. Family revolution in modern China; issued in cooperation with the Institute of Pacific relations. 390p $6 Harvard univ. press

392.3 Family. China—Social conditions 49-8876

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"The present volume offers a penetrating analysis of the changing situation of the Chinese family. It is of particular value in that it presents a lengthy descriptive analysis of the traditional and ideal family structure of China. By sharply differentiating the 'traditional' from the 'transitional,' the author effectively portrays the changing nature of the Chinese kinship grouping. In thus offering a contrast between the present and the past, he comprehensively defines the trends of the contemporary social situation. . . The reader of Levy's work may find himself at times irritated by the author's failure to delimit exactly the areas with which he is dealing. . . While this does not seriously detract from the merits of the study, its value might have been enhanced had the author made more adequate allowance for considerations of a geographical, cultural, or linguistic nature." R. F. Spencer

+ — Am Anthropol 52:104 Ja '50 800w

Foreign Affairs 28:342 Ja '50 20w

Reviewed by Li An-che
Pacific Affairs 22:420 D '49 1650w

"The virtue of this study lies not so much in the new information which it provides as in the broad perspective which the author, a trained sociologist, brings to his task. . . The reader who can bear patiently with the unattractive terminology in which the book is written will get new glimpses of the changing structure of the Chinese family. A firmer grounding in the Chinese language, and more familiarity with life in the villages would have prevented the author's far too sharp division between the gentry and the peasantry, some grave misunderstandings about Taoism, and certain unhappy renderings of Chinese terms."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 5:382 S '49 280w

LEWIS, BENJAMIN. Better riding; the handbook of horsemanship; photographs by André Du Rona. 159p $5 Lear

798.2 Horsemanship Agr49-469

"The theme of this book, as of the author's earlier book, Riding, is the 'balanced seat.' Although the discussion is on the fundamentals of riding—mounting, handling reins, putting the horse into motion, and gaits—it is less a beginner's book than one for the rider who wants to perfect his technique. Illustrated by photographs, some of them multiple-image stroboscopic photographs; double-page spreads will present a problem for rebinding." Booklist

Booklist 46:186 F 1 '50

"'Better Riding' is one of the better books on the subject, with its thoro, understandable text augmenting the superb photografs." Will Davidson

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Mr 5 '50 90w

"An exceptionally good book on the art of riding, based on stroboscopic action and other photographs. Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 75:49 Ja 1 '50 20w

LEWIS, CHARLES LEE. Famous American marines; with drawings from photographs and paintings. 375p $3.75 Page

923.573 U.S. Marine corps 50-6302

"An account of the corps: the exploits of officers and men on land, by air and sea from the decks of the Bonhomme Richard to the summit of Mount Suribachi." (Subtitle) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 47:70 O 15 '50

Reviewed by Al Chase
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Je 18 '50 50w

Reviewed by Eleanor Breed
San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 12 '50 100w

"In its arrangement and with its index and bibliography it constitutes a reference book as well as a book to read for sheer adventure."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 My 13 '50 110w

LEWIS, CLIVE STAPLES. The lion, the witch and the wardrobe; a story for children; il. by Pauline Baynes. 154p $2.50 Macmillan 50-10611

A modern fairy tale for children, by the author of The Screwtape Letters (Book Review Digest 1943). Four English children, spending a holiday on an old English estate, find their way into the mysterious land of Narnia. They have some weird experiences in this snowcovered country, before they find their way back home.

Kirkus 18:514 S 1 '50 170w

"It is all a beautifully written, modern parable, perhaps doing for our times what George MacDonald tried to do for his. Children of the age to like it as a fairy tale will not be apt to grasp the underlying meaning, but many who are good readers will enjoy it for the excitement, the animals, and the way it admits that a dream may have been 'another world' of reality." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 12 '50 320w

"When I began reading the story, it seemed well written—one would expect that of the author of 'The Screwtape Letters'—but the fairy-tale atmosphere was curiously cut-and-dried. . . Two of my daughters—aged 6 and 8—re-educated me. I made the mistake of reading them the first chapter, and since then it has been two chapters a night, sometimes followed by tears when a third chapter is not forthcoming. I see that children like their fairyland folk matter of fact, whereas adults prefer them whimsical or numinous." Chad Walsh

+ N Y Times p20 N 12 '50 230w

"It is, in turn, beautiful, frightening, wise, and nonsensical, and should captivate, with or without its parable, the right child of between eight and eleven years old."

+ New Yorker 26:177 D 2 '50 90w

"An exceptionally good new 'fairy tale.'"

+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 D 9 '50 270w

LEWIS, LLOYD. Captain Sam Grant. 512p $6 Little

B or 92 Grant, Ulysses Simpson 50-7939

This biography of Ulysses S. Grant covers in detail his background and his life up to June, 1861, when he was named as colonel of an Illinois regiment. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by K. P. Williams
Am Hist R 56:137 O '50 500w

Booklist 46:302 Je 1 '50

Bookmark 9:240 Jl '50 30w

"Lloyd Lewis was not the kind of a biographer to make a god out of a man but he does a wonderful job of making a breathing man out of the dry dust of history." Emmett Dedmon
+ Chicago Sun p7 Ap 21 '50 600w

Reviewed by P. M. Angle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 21 '50 500w

"Along with appreciation for the way in which Lloyd Lewis has brought this part of the story into full light there must go regret that he was not permitted to finish his task. The fragment we have here is magnificent, but one lays it down mourning for the completed work which was fated never to be. Is it not possible that Mr. Lewis' publishers, with the help of some of his friends, such as Paul Angle and Carl Sandburg, could take the mountains of notes and partially written chapters which were to have appeared in later volumes and out of them fashion a fascinating book? For Lloyd Lewis was surely on the trail of the real Grant." Paul Hutchinson
+ Christian Century 67:704 Je 7 '50 1150w

"His book is suggestive. Reading it, one is reminded that biography is one of the most rewarding approaches to history. By showing us the Mexican War through young Grant's eyes, Mr. Lewis has written what is probably the clearest and most readable account of that bullying business for which Grant and many of his regular army colleagues had small appetite." Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 24 '50 950w

"In the 430 pages of this superbly written biography you will come to know Grant well, because you will practically live with him from the date of his birth until he took charge of the troops at Camp Yates, near Springfield, Illinois, on June 28, 1861." Paul Kiniery
+ Commonweal 52:397 Jl 28 '50 320w

Current Hist 19:166 S '50 40w

"A compassionate and very human story, over-detailed perhaps for the average reader of biography, but definitive and revealing for students."
+ Kirkus 18:199 Mr 15 '50 400w

"The high quality of [this] first volume, the learning, critical acumen, narrative vigor, and sympathetic understanding which mark it, but deepens our sense of loss in the untimely death of its author and presents a stiff challange to his successor." H. S. Commager
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 My 21 '50 1850w

"'Captain Sam Grant' is a complete and self-contained work, developing the story of Grant's formative years with a rich tapestry of detail. Most of the few errors inevitable in a work of such scope are minor. Captain Grant himself emerges as a well-drawn, three-dimensional character, quiet, unassuming, kindly, courageous, solid—foreshadowing the General to be." R. S. Henry
+ N Y Times p5 My 21 '50 1400w

"The book is without question, the finest study of Grant's early years yet written; Mr. Lewis painstakingly documented every statement of fact but balanced this scholarship with straight narrative chapters that bring Grant very much to life."
+ New Yorker 26:100 Je 3 '50 200w

Reviewed by Alfred Kay
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 11 '50 900w

"Mr. Lewis's book contains much besides the careful study of Grant's early life and development. His chapters on the Mexican War are perhaps the most vivid and interesting presentation of the campaigns of Taylor and Scott that have yet been written. His portrait of Grant's father, Jesse Grant, who made his way from impoverished beginnings to wealth and influence, is a striking bit of miniature work . . . The pages on Old West Point, too, are amusing and penetrating. Here is a volume which possesses enduring qualities." Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 33:12 My 27 '50 1300w

Springf'd Republican p12C Je 11 '50 750w

"Lewis has taken much of the stiffness and the stuffiness out of the Grant legend, and relegated the gossip about his minor vices to their proper place."
+ Time 55:92 My 29 '50 800w

"If the author has occasionally failed to follow the usual canons for the weighing of evidence, he has produced a work which is, in the main, sound, appreciative, and pungently written."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:306 S '50 280w

"His highly readable biography based on years of research gives a fresh picture of the boy and the man before June 28, 1861."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:26 Je '50

LEWIS, LLOYD. Letters; showing steps in the research for his biography of U. S. Grant; with an introd. by Robert Maynard Hutchins. 83p $2 Little

B or 92 Grant, Ulysses Simpson. Authorship 50-8621

This small volume contains the letters Lewis wrote to his publisher during the five years he was working on his life of Grant.

Reviewed by K. P. Williams
Am Hist R 56:137 O '50 500w

Booklist 47:38 S 15 '50

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p5 Jl 9 '50 450w

Christian Science Monitor p17 Jl 15 '50 600w

"'Steps in Research' is a dull subtitle for such hot pulsing letters. It sounds static. Perhaps never before has a historian-biographer put so vividly on paper the dynamics of rediscovering the living quality of a man in the past."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p44 D 3 '50 270w

"The book is really a sort of correlated series of footnotes, most of which, even had Mr. Lewis lived to complete his work, would have been crowded out of the biography. The material is fresh and much of it is surprising."
+ New Yorker 26:87 Ag 26 '50 230w

LEWIS, MRS MARY CHRISTIANNA (MILNE) (CHRISTIANNA BRAND, pseud). Cat and mouse. 247p $2.50 Knopf 50-9171

Mystery story.

Booklist 47:76 O 15 '50

Chicago Sun p4 S 12 '50 90w

Kirkus 18:342 Je 15 '50 110w

"Miss Brand's plot is as violently melodramatic as the best of the Victorian novelists. But like them, she writes with a force of emotion which carries conviction. And unlike them, she adds a very pleasant wit."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 3 '50 200w

"All in all, it's a first-rate chiller for a dog-day vacation." Patricia Highsmith
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 20 '50 180w

"This one is irritating, amusing, and really unnerving."
+ New Yorker 26:76 S 2 '50 80w

"Miss Brand is a past master in the straight detective story, with her own wonderful characters and devices. This suspense novel is done with spirit, humor and some chilling moments, yet it seems below her standard." L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 24 '50 100w

"Tops."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:33 Ag 26 '50 40w

"Miss Brand plays cat and mouse with her readers with dexterity. To the last pages it seems feasible that the villain may turn out to be the hero." John Garrett

LEWIS, M. C.—Continued
+ Spec 184:802 Je 9 '50 100w

"The ingredients are skilfully handled to ensure the highest degree of suspense; much ingenuity is displayed in the manner in which we are offered solution after solution of the mystery, only to be stunned by the final revelation. The setting for the most part is wildest Wales."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p241 Ap 21 '50 360w

LEWIS, ROY, and MAUDE, ANGUS. English middle classes; specially ed. by the authors, with an introd. for American readers. 360p $3.75 Knopf

323.32 Middle classes. Great Britain—Social conditions 50-6792

A survey of the English middle class, in its historical perspective and in the issues confronting it in the present. Index.

Reviewed by Jay Rumney
Am Soc R 15:576 Ag '50 900w

Booklist 46:282 My 15 '50

"To anyone interested in politics here is the most delightful book that has come out of England for a long time. As the Economist remarked in its review, it is a book equally fitting to be placed on the desk of the professional sociologist or on the bedside table of the now vanishing middle-class spare bedroom." F. H. U.
+ Canadian Forum 29:260 F '50 450w

"A sometimes brilliant and often entertaining survey. . . All in all, its illuminating investigation should be of definite interest to students, sociologists and economists here in its revealing approach to such a specific society."
+ Kirkus 18:118 F 15 '50 190w

"The scholarly tone is mellowed by a humour that is delightful. Middle class of America—don't miss this!" K. T. Willis
+ Library J 75:695 Ap 15 '50 100w

"This book, like its subject, is more deserving than successful. . . The historical chapters which open the book have not much relevance to what comes after and can safely be skipped. When they get to contemporary England, the authors make some valid points." A. J. P. Taylor
New Repub 123:20 Ag 28 '50 1000w

"The final third of this lively book is devoted to an analysis of what has happened and is happening to the middle classes. It is a sobering picture that Lewis and Maude draw: a sort of vanishing Cheshire cat who will leave not even a grin." H. S. Commager
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 9 '50 900w

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
N Y Times p5 Jl 9 '50 600w

"The story is a fascinating one, and Messrs. Lewis and Maude tell it with a verve that is unusual in a book so packed with facts and so rich in references. Certainly there is no other treatment of this subject that makes such sprightly reading." C. E. Ayres
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 Ap 8 '50 850w

LEWIS, WALTER WALLACE. Protection of transmission systems against lightning. 418p il $8 Wiley

621.31982 Lightning. Electric lines 50-5365

"A concise presentation of information about lightning and how electrical transmission systems are protected against it. It is addressed mainly to graduate electrical engineers who are concerned with the design or maintenance of power lines and systems. The important theoretical knowledge is stated concisely, and the operating principles of the chief protective devices are clearly explained. Each chapter is supplemented by lists of related literature." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"A comprehensive though compact survey. . . It is of interest to graduate electrical engineers, both those concerned with the design of electrical power lines and those concerned with their maintenance." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:325 F 15 '50 130w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:23 Mr '50

"The book should be useful, not only as a comprehensive and easily understood text for students who plan to specialize in transmission problems, but also as a reference work for designing engineers and transmission specialists who will regard it, with its excellent bibliography, as a summary of present-day achievements in the protection of electric service over high voltage transmission lines."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:249 Je '50 200w

LEWIS, WILLIAM ARTHUR. Overhead costs; some essays in economic analysis. 200p $3 Rinehart

338.52 Cost accounting 49-49497

A group of seven essays by a professor of economics in the University of Manchester, England. "All the seven essays deal in one way or another with monopoly, either in the loose sense of limited competition or in the stricter sense in which monopoly is now a thing enjoyed chiefly by nationalised industries. Mr. Lewis's theoretical approach is through the effect on economic calculations and policy of the existence of fixed costs that the producer (private firm or public corporation) cannot escape whatever his output." (Manchester Guardian) Index.

"Interesting, incisive, constructive, provocative." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:47 Ja 1 '50 180w

"It is a pity that Professor W. A. Lewis's stimulating essays have been collected under a forbidding title. . . There is much [here] for laymen, and especially for politicians and civil servants. Mr. Lewis is not only one of the liveliest minds among the younger economists; for so adept a theorist he has an unusual sense both for practical problems and for plain language." T. W. K.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 My 10 '49 400w

Reviewed by Aylmer Vallance
New Statesman & Nation 37:508 My 14 '49 850w

LEWISOHN, LUDWIG. The American Jew; character and destiny. 175p $2.50 Farrar, Straus

296 Jews in the U.S. 50-10552

"The socio-political status of American Jewry, stemming from the recent birth of the State of Israel, now evokes much controversial literature. Lewisohn, at Brandeis University, Mass., presents a brilliant essay, for 'that average intelligent American Jew . . . in this time of need and perplexity.' " Library J

Booklist 47:126 D 1 '50

"Controversial material, at times inflammatory, but demands attention."
Kirkus 18:581 S 15 '50 190w

Reviewed by J. M. Scherr
Library J 75:1656 O 1 '50 140w

"Mr. Lewisohn seems to have a narcissistic fondness for the gadfly method, and gadflies are not noted for their moderation. His stinging and goading are bound to elicit sharp reactions, and may thus, temporarily at least, exacerbate rather than abate Jewish perplexities. But this, I suspect, was a deliberate hazard Mr. Lewisohn assumed in the hope that the excess heat he thus generated would ultimately be transformed into light." Joshua Kunitz
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 24 '50 1350w

LEWISOHN, LUDWIG. Magic word; studies in the nature of poetry. 151p $2.75 Farrar, Straus

808.1 Poetry 50-7163

Four essays on the nature of poetry. Contents: Introduction; The magic word; Homer; Shakespeare; Goethe and our time.

Reviewed by J. F. Nims
Chicago Sunday Tribune p46 D 3 '50 300w

"The appeal here is doubtful, for although this is aimed at a literary audience, there's no real distinction of substance or style."
Kirkus 18:120 F 15 '50 150w

"In the three lectures applying his conception of the magic word to the supremely great poets of the world Mr. Lewisohn is most at home and most happy in his discussion of Goethe as the champion of the individual man against the collectivistic heresies of our time. . . But no one can read these studies without being stimulated by the genuine respect for human and humane values that inspires whatever Mr. Lewisohn writes, even when it seems most wrongheaded." G. F. Whicher
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Jl 16 '50 650w

"It may be that Mr. Lewisohn is far from original in his thesis and more than a little insensitive to modern literature, but his book has values to recommend it. Ably and persuasively written, it will bring to a wider audience than philosophers and critics command an important idea about literature." W. Y. Tindall
+ — N Y Times p32 O 29 '50 450w

Reviewed by A. M. Sullivan
Sat R of Lit 33:40 My 20 '50 600w

L'HOMMEDIEU, MRS DOROTHY (KEASBEY). Spot, the Dalmatian pup; with il. by Marguerite Kirmse. 60p $2.25 Lippincott

Dogs—Legends and stories 50-14013

Story of a Dalmatian puppy whose ambition was to become a firehouse dog like her mother before her. This book for grades 2-4 tells how Spot got her wish.

Booklist 47:104 N 1 '50

"This is the ninth dog story for younger children done by this well-matched team, and a fine piece of work throughout."
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 S 16 '50 110w

Kirkus 18:463 Ag 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by E. W. Turpin
Library J 75:1910 N 1 '50 70w

LICHTEN, FRANCES M. Decorative art of Victoria's era. 274p il $12.50 Scribner

745.44 Decoration and ornament. Great Britain—Social life and customs. U.S.—Social life and customs 50-9758

In fourteen chapters, which the author calls albums, are gathered examples of middle and late nineteenth-century work, from samplers to neo-Gothic architecture. Copiously illustrated. Bibliography. Index.

Bookmark 10:37 N '50 20w

Kirkus 18:495 Ag 15 '50 230w

"Those who recall the period when plush-covered albums were strategically placed on sitting-room tables will surely want to read this handsome and delightful book." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:2079 D 1 '50 70w

"Although the volume is abundantly illustrated, it is by no means a mere book of pictures. Miss Lichten introduces each of her albums with an essay . . . which combines skillfully the history of art with social history. Inevitably her material, as in all social history, fails to fall into neat compartments of the kind time and our sense of drama afford the narrative historian. Sometimes her chapters seem like the what-nots she describes in one of them, but some such piling together is actually dictated by her materials." Crane Brinton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 10 '50 650w

"Miss Lichten has a very clear understanding of the social forces which had so profound an influence on the quality of the decorative arts of the Victorian Age, and this in itself would be enough to justify a commendation of her work. It has other merits; but it is to be regretted that she has at times been infected by the prolix style of the century with which she deals; there are several passages in this book which might well have been condensed or deleted."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p624 O 6 '50 1200w

LIDDELL HART, BASIL HENRY. Defence of the West. 335p $4 Morrow

355 Military art and science. Europe—Politics 50-10635

"A general survey of the Western world's chances for survival in a conflict with Russia, plus a partial review of Allied strategy in the last war, an evaluation of Russia's strength and military quality, and some peering into the future of atomic warfare and into the possibilities of man's extinction by man." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 47:128 D 1 '50

Reviewed by H. S. Hayward
Christian Science Monitor p12 D 8 '50 800w

"Dated by the swift passage of history with the Korean War, nonetheless there are enough basic issues to make it of interest to the armchair strategist."
Kirkus 18:585 S 15 '50 210w

"The thoughtful citizen of any country will read carefully the warnings given here and be prepared to take part in discussions of the hopes and fears within our view. He will then more intelligently consider the public acts of the leaders, and the effects of such acts upon himself, as progress is made toward meeting the common danger." A. B. Lindsay
+ Library J 75:1902 N 1 '50 230w

"The most stimulating parts of Defence of the West are the chapters dealing with the might-have-beens of World War II. Here, where he is not indulging in the rather dreary routine of 'War House Polemics,' Mr. Liddell Hart is at his best." R. H. S. Crossman
+ New Statesman & Nation 39:689 Je 17 '50 1250w

"[His] refusal to give proper weight to the political factor is apparent throughout this book. . . Even when talking of Europe alone, the author has a tendency to omit essential considerations from his discussion. Nowhere in this book is there a thorough analysis of the problem of combining the various national forces of Europe into an effective defensive force. It is, for instance, quite apparent that Liddell Hart believes that Germany must be included in the defensive system. But the political difficulties that must be solved before this can be accomplished are never touched upon, and the author has not seen fit to discuss the extremely serious problems of military organization and control which would be raised by a decision to put arms back in the hands of our former antagonist." G. A. Craig
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 19 '50 1250w

"This reviewer would like to note his complete disagreement with Captain Hart's conclusion that a Supreme Chief of Staff is advisable, or that the three armed services must eventually be fused into one. The first device —the Supreme Military Boss—has always led to defeat in modern times; the second—one service, one uniform—throws away the vital though intangible treasures of tradition and pride of service. However, these are details that afford opportunity for amiable argument. They take nothing from the fundamental value of a book which is well worth the attention of every American—indeed, of every citizen of the free world." G. F. Eliot
+ — N Y Times p3 N 19 '50 1000w

"His chapters on the Red Army, Navy, and Air Force, and their development since the war, are especially provocative and sobering. In the end, after weighing all the military factors and potentials, he comes to the unarguable conclusion that there had just better not be another war."
+ New Yorker 26:187 N 18 '50 160w

"The first section deals with debatable aspects of the last war, and the author discusses

LIDDELL HART, B. H.—Continued
them in a series of short sketches so pointed, so intentionally (I imagine) provocative, and so embellished with a bewildering repertoire of metaphors that he secures at least a tactical penetration. But though they cannot fail to stimulate, they lack the reserve and counterpoint that history demands. It is a little unfortunate that they appear as an introduction to the main discussion, for they may suggest a caution in facing it which it certainly does not deserve. The author himself says they may be skipped; and, with the exception of the last chapter, that is good counsel."
+ — Spec 184:694 My 19 '50 750w

"Erratic political judgments mar the clarity and vigour with which Captain Liddell Hart presses in the military field his main contention that the small pre-war group of partisans of armoured mobility (of which he was one) was abundantly justified by events. This part of the book also contains a short chapter on resistance movements which is one of the most thoughtful contributions yet made to the subject. . . The reader must be warned of two things. This is not a well-constructed book. There is too much repetition, and some of the material has the air of having been included only because it already existed. It is, too, irritating that the author should himself insist quite so much that before 1939 he was one of the few who were not ostriches and that after 1939 he was one of the few whose eyes were not too blood-shot for clear sight."
Times [London] Lit Sup p383 Je 23 '50 1250w

LIEB, FREDERICK GEORGE. The baseball story. 335p il $3.95 Putnam
796.357 Baseball 50-9863

Traces the history of baseball from the time of the Egyptians to the opening of the 1950 season. The author discounts the Doubleday legend of the beginning of baseball in the United States. Index.

Booklist 47:72 O 15 '50

"A fact-crammed book which provides good reading for the literate bleacher fans."
+ Kirkus 18:494 Ag 15 '50 160w

"Lieb not only knows more about baseball than any other historian—he has been writing about it for 40 years—but he writes with dramatic interest as well as authority." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:1907 N 1 '50 50w

"It is a good job, well documented and well illustrated." Irving Marsh
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 N 5 '50 260w

"The most fascinating part of 'The Baseball Story' is the tale of the Brotherhood War when the Players League was organized to fight the established National League in 1890. This is a phase of history that is little known and that undoubtedly adds to its allure." Arthur Daley
+ N Y Times p30 O 22 '50 450w

LIEBERMAN, ELIAS. Unions before the bar; historic trials showing the evolution of labor rights in the United States. 371p $5 Harper
331.88 Trade unions. Labor and laboring classes—U.S. 50-7184

"A lawyer who has lived with the trade union movement in New York for almost forty years has written [this] account of the leading courtroom battles in the history of American labor-management relations. . . It brings together the full stories of labor's great courtroom dramas, each of which set the framework for contemporary industrial peace or warfare, and each of which reflected the dominant community attitudes of its time." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

"For the first time, those who wish an introduction to the past and present legal status of unions and of various union practices and policies have at their disposal a book that is well written and easily understood. Unions Before the Bar deserves all the readers it can get." R. H. Northrup
+ Am Econ R 40:709 S '50 450w

Reviewed by S. A. Levitan
Ann Am Acad 272:238 N '50 380w

Booklist 46:283 My 15 '50

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Jl 9 '50 50w

"Naturally, this book is not free from partiality, since Mr. Lieberman is himself a valiant fighter for the rights of the workingman. But if he is an advocate, he is not a blind one. Abuses of labor's power are pointed out and condemned. 'Unions Before the Bar' makes excellent reading for persons interested in the course of labor movements in this country. Its clear and concise style refutes the old canard that lawyers cannot write intelligible English." Covington Hardee
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 11 '50 700w

Current Hist 19:40 Jl '50 40w

Kirkus 18:88 F 1 '50 110w

Management R 39:501 Ag '50 80w

" 'Unions Before the Bar' will be an indispensable handbook for every student of labor problems, whether his approach is legal, economic or sociological. . . The book is particularly valuable in a time when unions have achieved both power and maturity because it recalls labor's long uphill struggles." J. H. Spingarn
+ N Y Times p10 Ap 16 '50 460w

"Despite its challenging theme this book misses fire because of its pedestrian and uninspired treatment. . . This is a pity, as Mr. Lieberman has given us a sound analysis of the cases and has a message to which both labor and the general public should give heed." R. B. Morris
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:10 Je 3 '50 700w

Reviewed by T. W. Kheel
Survey 86:521 N '50 500w

"The book should be valuable in enhancing the general reader's awareness and understanding of the relation of law to social action in one of the most dynamic areas in American national life."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:343 S '50 240w

LIEBERMAN, ROSALIE. Heaven is so high. 283p $2.75 Bobbs
50-5520

A collection of short stories all about some phase of life in Roman Catholic convents or rectories.

Booklist 46:219 Mr 1 '50

"On the whole, Miss Lieberman's stories make pleasant, quietly entertaining reading." J. M. Flynn
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Mr 19 '50 400w

" 'Heaven Is So High' has considerable charm in both subject matter and writing and reflects a life of innocence and kindliness that is not likely to offend readers of any faith. Its insistence on those qualities, however, becomes a bit cloying." David Tilden
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 5 '50 500w

"Miss Lieberman's nuns and priests are not cut from the same pattern, but what they all do have in common are problems of one sort or another. Far from usual, but delightfully fanciful, is the dilemma confronting the Reverend Mother at St. Brendan's when Sister Innocent reports she is growing wings. Just how this and other diverting situations are met is told with a freshness and gaiety that is always in good taste." Andrea Parke
+ N Y Times p31 F 5 '50 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ap 2 '50 220w

"While her book will probably do no harm, its effort to underline the individuality of the sisters betrays a basic lack of understanding of the fundamentals of the religious orders." Pamela Taylor

Sat R of Lit 33:35 Mr 25 '50 320w
Wis Lib Bul 46:23 My '50

LIFE (periodical). Picture history of World war II. 368p $10; de luxe ed $12 Time, inc, 9 Rockefeller plaza, N.Y. 20; for sale by Simon & Schuster

940.53084 World war, 1939-1945—Pictorial works 50-10501

A series of pictures arranged chronologically, covering the whole history of World war II. Includes some explanatory text and a few maps. Selective glossary of World war II personalities. Picture credits. Index.

Booklist 47:113 N 15 '50
Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 5 '50 300w
Current Hist 19:357 D '50 80w
New Repub 123:21 D 4 '50 100w

"Here are all, or virtually all, of the great pictures—photographs and paintings, from enemy as well as friendly sources, from uniformed photographers and artists as well as civilian reporters—which record so far as it can be done by graphic means the vast complex of murder and misery, drama and devastation, that made up the Second World War." Walter Millis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 O 22 '50 1700w
N Y Times p24 O 15 '50 180w
New Yorker 26:167 N 4 '50 110w

"If you love Life you'll love this—a Life-size book presenting vividly, hauntingly, the war and the men who took part in it." Eleanor Breed
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 O 29 '50 550w

"A noble accomplishment. . . [It] may not be the best conceivable compilation of its sort, but it is easily the best that has been produced since the war ended." J. T. Winterich
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 N 4 '50 360w
Springf'd Republican p12D D 3 '50 360w

"In such a book, arrangement counts heavily. Picture History's twelve sections skillfully plait far-flung but interrelated events into a clean-cut chronology."
+ Time 56:107 O 23 '50 550w

LILIENTHAL, DAVID ELI. This I do believe. 208p $2.50 Harper

321.8 Democracy 49-11214

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"This I Do Believe will, I believe, become another book in the Bible of democracy. It could well be made a current text in our high schools and colleges." H. M. Kallen
+ Ann Am Acad 269:154 My '50 480w
Reviewed by W. L. Caswell
+ Churchman 164:16 Jl '50 170w
Foreign Affairs 28:681 Jl '50 20w
Harvard Law R 63:1486 Je '50 280w
Reviewed by J. K. Gordon
Nation 170:91 Ja 28 '50 1250w

"As limpid and earnest as it is persuasive, this slim volume synthesizes the administrative experience of one of the country's most sensitive and reflective public servants; it should interest every citizen who has an honest concern for the position of the individual and for the effectiveness of democracy in an ever increasingly depersonalized world."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:82 Mr '50 280w
Wis Lib Bul 46:13 Ja '50

LILJE, HANNS, bp. Valley of the shadow; tr. and with an introd. by Olive Wyon. 128p $1.25 Muhlenberg press

940.547243 World war, 1939-1945—Prisoners and prisons, German [50-33157]

After the failure of the plot to assassinate Hitler in 1944, the author, a German clergyman, was arrested with thousands of others. This book is a record of his nine months in prison, of the interrogations and trials and finally of his liberation by the Americans.

"The author's principal concern is with his own religious experience while in prison. Nevertheless, his narrative contains numerous sidelights of value to any student of the Nazi period. If it does not invite comparison with earlier accounts centering on other dissident groups it at least supplies additional facts concerning numerous clergymen, both Catholic and Protestant, who were involved in the resistance. . . The book is not without its irritating, at times even unpleasant, features." F. L. Ford
+ — Am Hist R 56:198 O '50 450w
Time 56:71 Jl 17 '50 500w

LIN, YU-T'ANG. On the wisdom of America. 462p $5 Day

917.3 U.S.—Civilization 50-8373

"The Chinese philosopher ranges through American literature and quotes and comments on the expressions of everyday philosophy he finds there. Jefferson, Emerson, Clarence Day, Benjamin Franklin, Santayana, Thoreau, and David Grayson are favorite sources, and the selections are undoubtedly a reflection of the writer's own philosophy of moderation and the middle way." (Booklist) Index.

Reviewed by R. H. Heindel
Ann Am Acad 272:273 N '50 340w
Booklist 46:331 Jl 1 '50
Bookmark 9:241 Jl '50 30w

"Anthologies frequently annoy me, but this collection by Lin Yutang on 'The Wisdom of America' is worse than most. His basic offense is to use the names of some of America's greatest minds to give a seal of authority to as muddled a group of platitudes and anti-intellectual sophistries as ever has offended a reader's mind." Emmett Dedmon
— Chicago Sun p5 Jl 2 '50 400w

"Not only are the selections well and lovingly chosen, but Lin Yu T'ang's own random musings and running comments add immeasurably to the volume's charm and value. Many of his critical notes, some of essay length, are gems of rare insight and deep understanding. Others are little masterpieces of incisive analysis and unflinchingly candid dissection." J. A. Clark
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 2 '50 550w

"A stimulating and provocative book, well worth the difficulty in getting at the kernel, a book to stretch the mind."
+ Kirkus 18:253 Ap 15 '50 220w

"An extremely interesting, provocative book." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:1044 Je 15 '50 130w

"In the estimation of this reader, [the] book fails to penetrate to the heart of its subject. This is by no means to deny it all value. On the contrary, to almost all readers much of it will be both charming and fresh, a revelation of how much discourse at once sensible and beautiful has been produced in the comparatively short history of the United States. Not in the quotations only, but in the connective tissue with which the author has bound them together, it is full of sparkling phrases, of deft turns of thought, of penetrating criticism. It deserves wide reading, because it will produce great pleasure. But it should not be taken too seriously as the fundamental wisdom of America." G. W. Johnson
— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Je 18 '50 1150w
Reviewed by William Miller
N Y Times p21 Jl 16 '50 270w
New Yorker 26:96 Je 24 '50 140w

LIN, YU-T'ANG—Continued

"Mellow is the word for Dr. Lin in his genial description of America's wise, and readers will enjoy through him, rediscovering their ancestors." Eleanor Breed

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Je 18 '50 900w

Reviewed by Robert Bierstedt

Sat R of Lit 33:19 Je 24 '50 600w

"Though some readers are likely to be flattered and delighted to find that what they have always admired is indeed America's deepest wisdom, many will put the book down with the feeling they are being fobbed off with the obvious and the sententious. The biggest giveaway is Lin's acceptance of the late Ray Stannard Baker in his role—under the pen name David Grayson—of a horny-handed out-door man. . . Too much of this sort of homespun philosophy—and an attack on Walt Whitman as a dirty-minded fellow—makes it pretty clear that Philosopher Lin Yutang is not the best man to evaluate the wisdom of America."

— Time 55:102 Je 26 '50 400w

LINCOLN, ABRAHAM. Lincoln encyclopedia; the spoken and written words of A. Lincoln; arranged for ready reference; compiled and ed. by Archer H. Shaw; with an introd. by David C. Mearns. 395p $6.50 Macmillan

308.1 50-5351

Short quotations from Lincoln's remarks and writings, with identification as to time, place, and circumstance. They are alphabetically arranged by subject with frequent cross-references included. Chronology. No index.

"Because a good compilation of Lincoln's words arranged in cyclopedic form would be useful to many people, it is too bad that somebody did not do the job years ago. Because nobody did, it is just as regrettable that the compiler of the one that has now appeared could not have waited to make up his book until after the publication of the Abraham Lincoln Association's forthcoming edition of the writings of Lincoln, which will provide reliable texts of all Lincoln's writings. It is worse than regrettable that Mr. Shaw, editorial writer for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, uncritically includes in his book several forgeries and spurious quotations originally printed in the works of Tracy and Hertz." T. H. Williams

Am Hist R 55:992 Jl '50 370w

"The compilation is liberally cross-referenced but there is no index and identification of particular quotations may require some searching."

Booklist 46:181; 196 F 1 '50; F 15 '50

"Mr. Shaw has compiled a most valuable book. The encyclopedia of the spoken and written words of Abraham Lincoln represents many years of conscientious study and sifting." G. J. Scharschug

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 12 '50 450w

Christian Century 67:271 Mr 1 '50 280w

Current Hist 18:230 Ap '50 40w

"It should prove invaluable for documentarian, speaker, scholar. It gives the general reader a new concept of the whole man. Cross references aid in locating desired quotations, while the chronological arrangement within bracketed material, makes historical value greater."

+ Kirkus 17:671 D 1 '50 150w

"Recommended." J. H. Berthel

+ Library J 75:171 F 1 '50 130w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ap 30 '50 450w

"'Encyclopedia' is perhaps too large a word for it, since, beyond Mr. Shaw's sources, something more than 30 per cent of Lincoln's writings still remains to be put into print. Also there is some question as to why Mr. Shaw fails to list among his sources a number of standard works. . . In plan and format the book is very attractive. Quotations are given at sufficient length to make consultation of the source unnecessary for all but scholarly purposes. Cross references are ample. Except for the reservations indicated, 'The Lincoln Encyclopedia' is a most useful and commendable reference." R. P. Basler

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:12 Mr 11 '50 360w

"The value of this volume to professional scholars, schools, libraries and the student with the inevitable theme to write is apparent, and even a home library will seem naked now without a 'complete Lincoln' to turn to." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p3D F 12 '50 360w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:258 Je '50 280w

LINCOLN, MIRIAM (MRS F. P. LOOMIS). You'll live through it; facts about the menopause. 181p $2.50 Harper

612.662 Menstruation—Cessation 50-8789

Study of the menopause in women, which attempts to dispel the many myths surrounding it. Partial contents: What is the change of life?; A lesson in feminine physiology; Common symptoms of the change of life; Medical treatment; Good mental health; Warning signals suggestive of cancer; The myth of insanity; Looking forward.

Booklist 47:7 S 1 '50

Kirkus 18:292 My 15 '50 90w

"Very readable and probably accurate little book. The author, a doctor, treats the subject subjectively and realistically and from a non-alarmist point of view. . . On the whole, this is a very reassuring little book, highly recommended for anyone about to go through, or going through, or living with anyone going through this much maligned phase of life, which includes, come to think of it, just about everyone." S. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 27 '50 320w

Time 56:45 Jl 17 '50 550w

LINDGREN, MRS ASTRID (ERICSSON). Pippi Longstocking; tr. from the Swedish by Florence Lamborn; il. by Louis S. Glanzman. 158p $2 Viking

50-10396

A nonsensical story about nine-year old Pippi, a little Swedish girl. "Pippi lives alone with her horse and monkey, and foils all attempts of police, schools, and polite neighbors to make her conform to the accepted social pattern. Her wild doings are shared by a very 'nice,' normal little boy and girl who live next door. Her rare conversation includes tall tales of her life in many lands, with her father, a ship's captain. Sometimes Pippi admits she invents, but her hoards of gifts and of gold pieces are real." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R)

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

"An absurd and rollicking story. . . The matter-of-fact way in which Pippi's absurd adventures are related is one of the chief charms of this story, full of the kind of hilarity that appeals to children."

+ Horn Bk 26:376 S '50 80w

"A fresh delicious fantasy that children will love."

+ Kirkus 18:515 S 1 '50 170w

"All this good fun comes to us from Sweden, invented by a story-telling mother for her children and their friends. It is ably, vivaciously translated by Florence Lamborn, and most amusingly illustrated. Welcome to Pippi, once met, never to be forgotten! Probably it is lucky that you can tell the children she lives not in America, but in Sweden." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 12 '50 210w

"Pippi's fantastic stories and humorous escapades exemplify many of the frustrations of normal children. They will, therefore, delight young readers." M. R. Brown

N Y Times p28 N 12 '50 150w

LINDHOLM, RICHARD WADSWORTH. Public financing and fiscal policy; an analysis of government spending, revenue, and debt. 732p $5.50 Pitman

336.73 Finance. Finance—U.S. 50-7641

"This is a comprehensive text exploring all the fields usually covered in an undergraduate course in public finance. It begins with a brief discussion of the theory and goals of fiscal policy, followed by the traditional four divisions of public finance: expenditures, revenues, debts, and administration. It differs from most texts, however, in the relatively large amount of space (more than two hundred pages) devoted to discussion of expenditures. It also includes a fairly extensive discussion of the relation of banking policy to treasury policy in controlling business fluctuations." (Am Econ R) Glossary of technical terms. Index.

"On the whole, the reviewer believes that this will prove a useful text for courses emphasizing institutional materials rather than theory. Its shortcomings are not serious, and the wealth of factual data, well organized and up to date, is an important asset." Mabel Newcomer

+ Am Econ R 40:685 S '50 550w

"As a treatise the book is perhaps less significant, but as the first postwar Keynesian general book it is far from negligible. Moreover, the volume is not lacking in originality." J. W. Martin

+ Ann Am Acad 272:243 N '50 550w

LINDMAN, MAJ JAN. Snowboot, son of Fire Eye; il. by [the author]. 26p $1.50 Whitman, A.

Picture storybook about a runaway colt and two small boys who loved him. For ages seven to nine.

"Like 'Fire Eye' and other Maj Lindman books, this is an attractively illustrated picture story book with a simple, well told story, whose characters and incidents will appeal to younger children." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 O 1 '50 110w

Kirkus 18:331 Je 15 '50 120w

"Recommended where simple stories about horses are needed." A. M. Wetherell

+ Library J 75:1307 Ag '50 70w

N Y Times p16 Jl 30 '50 120w

"Delightful storybook for children." E. H. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 30 '50 90w

Wis Lib Bul 46:26 S '50

LINDOP, AUDREY (MRS DUDLEY GORDON LESLIE). Tall headlines. 326p $3 Macmillan 50-9821

"When his older son committed a crime of passion and was hanged for it, the stunned father—a retired civil servant named George Rackham—felt that the family—his wife and two children—could not lift their heads up again in Putney. The shame and the publicity were too much to endure. His remedy was utterly futile and irrational, and 'The Tall Headlines' is the terrifying record of its results." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 47:97 N 1 '50

"Adapt reporting of lower middle-class English life and a real pathos in the character of Dorrie give this a reality and a forcefulness that heightens the impact of the tragedy."

+ Kirkus 18:482 Ag 15 '50 210w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 O 1 '50 180w

Reviewed by Patricia Highsmith

N Y Times p33 N 5 '50 360w

"'The Tall Headlines' has neither the suspense of a real thriller nor the insight of a good psychological novel. It is a rather dismal piece of work." R. P.

— Sat R of Lit 33:43 N 25 '50 230w

"The author is adept at capturing the atmosphere of her characters' lower-middle-class background and in reporting the raffish locutions of their dialogue; the pathetic Doris, no less than the embittered Frankie, is a very real creation."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p449 Jl 21 '50 240w

LINDSAY, JACK. Charles Dickens; a biographical and critical study. 459p $4.75 Philosophical lib.

B or 92 Dickens, Charles 50-9420

In this biography of Charles Dickens "Mr. Lindsay demolishes what he calls 'the Dickensian Lie,' the sentimentalized, picture-postcard portrait of the novelist that has been put over on the public by more or less official Dickens biographers. In so doing, however, he does not in the least diminish Dickens' stature as a man or as a writer. He shows pretty conclusively that Dickens was all his life a revolutionist at heart and finally came to execrate the Victorian values he found it necessary to praise in his books, and that Dickens' interest in reform was more than a desire to change the poor laws." (New Yorker) Index.

"Few Dickensians will finish reading this 459 page 'expose' of their idol, and the majority of those who do probably will burn it immediately afterward. There have been many biografies of England's Victorian literary genius. Some have been reasonably objective, others, especially the earlier ones, biased in Dickens' favor, and still others scathingly denunciatory. This latest one, while falling automatically into the last named category, is original in one respect: Author Lindsay claims to have unearthed the underlying psychological motivations which drove Dickens to recreate in the characters of his novels his own childhood fears and repressions." Pat Patten

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 1 '50 550w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel

Manchester Guardian p5 F 24 '50 350w

"This is a bulky, heavily-documented book on a large subject, but there's a meagerness about it all the same. Mr. Lindsay's economies and simplifications have eliminated much we would expect in a biography as ambitious as this one. He tells the story of Dickens' life pretty much in terms of the novels, and then reads back into the life a couple of crude psychological formulas to explain the work of the artist. As a method of interpretation, this trick of mutually reflecting mirrors is hazardous, even in the case of Dickens."

— + New Repub 123:23 D 18 '50 230w

"Mr. Lindsay seems to have read, even unto the uttermost, everything Dickens ever wrote, including all the letters, and the way he keeps writings and events playing one upon another is likely to make any one who cares about Dickens read every page of his large book." M. L. Becker

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 O 22 '50 850w

"This is an irritating but serious and informed book. It is irritating because Mr. Lindsay has two terrific axes to grind—a Freudian and a Marxist one—and two systems of psychoanalytic and historico-materialistic interpretation to pursue, like a paper-chase, through the life and works of Dickens. Of the two, his psychological theories are the more revealing." Stephen Spender

N Y Times p40 O 22 '50 1050w

"A large-scale work that may be the most substantial biography of Dickens printed to date. . . Mr. Lindsay has, by means of simple psychology, common sense, and conscientious research, made Dickens an understandable human being."

+ New Yorker 26:104 S 30 '50 200w

"Mr. Jack Lindsay's biography is long, opinionated, occasionally repetitive, often tiresome, yet readable and—in the end—formidable. It is the product of immense industry, considerable love and understanding of Dickens, and a complex and imperfectly coordinated apparatus of psychological and sociological knowledge." John Connell

+ — Spec 184:286 Mr 3 '50 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p231 Ap 14 '50 2350w

LINDSAY, MICHAEL. Notes on educational problems in communist China, 1941-47; with supplements on developments in 1948 and 1949 by Marion Menzies [and others]. 194p pa $2.50 Inst. of Pacific relations

370.951 Education—China. Communism—China

"An analysis of educational policies and practices in the Communist-controlled areas prior to 1947. Supplements by Marion Menzies, William Paget and S. B. Thomas provide information on more recent developments in this field." Am Pol Sci R

Am Pol Sci R 44:786 S '50 30w

"The book is a complement to earlier, more journalistic studies and is particularly valuable because it is not limited to conditions in the Communist wartime capital of Yenan." Fenton Keyes

+ Am Soc R 15:687 O '50 500w

Foreign Affairs 29:161 O '50 20w

School & Society 71:238 Ap 15 '50 10w

LINDSAY PHILIP. Rake's progress. 320p $2.75 Sheridan

50-9396

A novel of Georgian London. The author has taken the idea presented in Hogarth's series of pictures called the Rake's progress and has written his novel about them.

Kirkus 18:489 Ag 15 '50 180w

"Mr. Lindsay is at his best in his lusty treatment of the 'psychology of the rogue.' Yet since, obviously, no novel is possible without a heroine (who, by the way, invented this absurd rule?), the author must introduce females into his plot—and there he stumbles." H. E. Jacob

+ — N Y Times p24 D 10 '50 320w

"Philip Lindsay had [an] interesting idea. . . Unhappily, his provision of local color has been generous to the point of being boring, his plot as frail a reed as could be conceived, and his characters improbable stereotypes. The student interested in a picture of the times would be well-advised to consult the more economical and entertaining pictures of Hogarth. The lover of romantic fiction can surely find a more engrossing and rewarding plot." Edward Fitzgerald

Sat R of Lit 33:47 S 23 '50 240w

"Most of the characters of the great Hogarth engravings are to be found in the book, and their adventures in high and low society make a remarkable tapestry of romance and adventure." D. F. M.

Springf'd Republican p8D N 12 '50 90w

LINDSLEY, MARY FLORA. Uncensored letter, and other poems; with an introd. by Joseph J. Reilly. 84p $2 Island press

811 50-3905

A collection of poems by a member of the English department at Hunter College. The title poem is a long narrative in which a Protestant minister, dying in a Nazi concentration camp, tells the story of his life to a priest.

"All the poems have a harmonious quality of word and thought, especially the twenty poignant stanzas entitled 'Conrad' and the powerful verses 'North Africa 1943' with which the book ends." Robert Wilberforce

+ Cath World 170:478 Mr '50 350w

"I found the title poem less interesting than the several shorter historical poems but the choice is personal rather than technical. . . The poet has a strong command of pentameter blank verse. The shorter lyrics are well turned, especially 'Spartan Parents,' which reveals a mother's attitude toward statism when it claims her son at a tender age."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:45 My 20 '50 250w

LINES, KATHLEEN M., comp. Four to fourteen; a library of books for children; with decorations by Harold Jones; introd. by Walter De La Mare; pub. for the Nat. bk. league. 204p $1.75 Cambridge

028.5 Children's literature—Bibliography

[51-83]

"This selection of books for children from 4-14 is arranged under clearly marked and subdivided subject headings. Each title has been 'scrutinized, noted, briefly summarized', and its 'intrinsic and comparative value' is expressed in annotations which are interesting and helpful to parents, teachers, and children. The only technical detail lacking is the date of publication of each title." Library J

"This lovely little red book with its charming decorations is a joy to hold in one's hand. So great is my pleasure in a list that represents an individual opinion that I find it hard to be critical in the usual way of finding fault. I find no fault in what Miss Lines has said of the books she has selected and annotated. I think she is masterly in her choice of a title and in her note concerning Enid Blyton. . . And this brings me to a point of criticism as to Miss Lines's selection which I feel might well have been more liberal and representative from American authors of distinction." A. C. Moore

+ — Horn Bk 26:278 Jl '50 1450w

"A bibliography which actually entices one to read it to the last page. . . For American children's libraries this is a valuable book list, not only for points of comparison but also for access to titles which are not available or known here and which may be of use in our collections. . . Recommended." H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 75:1200 Jl '50 160w

"The compiler has shown imagination, taste, and a grasp of the importance of good looks and good print in the books we offer our children."

+ New Statesman & Nation 39:352 Mr 25 '50 120w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 13 '50 180w

"All the good points which characterized the earlier editions of the list are here—the useful classification (as used in the Toronto Children's Library where Miss Lines laid the foundation of her own knowledge of children's reading habits), the careful discrimination between different editions, and the compiler's own illuminating annotations to each entry."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p380 Je 16 '50 210w

LINKLATER, ERIC. Spell for old bones. 223p $2.50 Macmillan

[50-958]

"In the first century A.D. giants, it seems, were occasionally born in Scotland. . . [This novel] tells us of the red-haired, squint-eyed poet Albyn's early friendship with the giant Furbister; of how the Princess Liss, who had been struck dumb with terror by Furbister's love-making, was brought back to almost inconveniently ready speech by Albyn's blandishments; of the way in which Albyn found a wife of suitable size for Furbister; and of his triumphant emergence from the great war in which the giants were exterminated." Times [London] Lit Sup

Booklist 46:316 Je 15 '50

"Mr. Linklater has a nimble and astringent humor counterpointed by cleverly manipulated language." Mary Sandrock

+ Cath World 171:233 Je '50 190w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

Chicago Sun p5 Ap 3 '50 30w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Mr 26 '50 500w

"A gay satire with current implications and highly imaginative reading."

+ Kirkus 18:187 Mr 15 '50 110w

Reviewed by M. H. Zipprich

Library J 75:563 Ap 1 '50 100w

"Mr. Linklater's story is as much a rueful fable as a witty and merry fantasy." H. I'A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p4 N 25 '49 120w

"The subject suits Mr. Linklater's smooth joviality, and the book has its moments. But we are not after all so very far away from home; no one will have to rack his brains to see that in his description of the way in which Old McGammon runs his kingdom Mr. Linklater is, in his happy way, pulling Uncle Joe's leg. As an old admirer of Mr. Linklater I can remember books in which his fooling had not only more craziness, but more of a nip in it; from the present atmosphere of cosy geniality I look back on those days with a kind of nostalgia." J. D. Scott

+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:736 D 17 '49 300w

"The man from the Orkney Islands who has been to two wars, and studied medicine, writes like the sound of a resonant human voice speaking man to man and man to woman. He has poured himself out in a story for rush light and electric lamp as well, that is in itself a spell for old bones. A chirking ironical work. Mercifully short." Ernestine Evans

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 2 '50 600w

"Set in first-century Scotland, this story is a parable for our times, delightfully told, witty, highly civilized, and full of wisdom." H. F. West

+ N Y Times p16 Ap 9 '50 450w

"It's all very whimsical, of course, but Mr. Linklater has a light touch and the good sense to waste no words."

New Yorker 26:115 Mr 25 '50 60w

"Mr. Linklater is a writer who rarely fails to satisfy the reader in quest of skilful fantasy expressed with delightful humor in good prose. The present book is a sort of combination fairy tale—for adults, to be sure—and historical fable, into which the astute reader may read a good deal of significance for our time." John Cournos

+ Sat R of Lit 33:30 My 13 '50 290w

Reviewed by Sylva Norman

Spec 183:836 D 9 '49 90w

"It is natural, in these days, to look for some political symbolism in such a tale; but it is unwise to look too hard, for Mr. Linklater's chief concern is to tell an amusing story, and in general he has too much good-humour and insufficient moral fervour to attempt political satire."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p805 D 9 '49 240w

LINKLATER, ERIC. Two comedies: Love in Albania; and, To meet the MacGregors. 215p il $2.50 Macmillan

822

"One of Mr. Linklater's comedies, Love in Albania, which wittily asserts the value of give-and-take in love, marriage and other forms of social contract, has already proved its quality on the London stage. The other, To Meet the Macgregors, is a lighthearted parody of Rob Roy." Times [London] Lit Sup

"'Love in Albania,' is really hilarious, and at times rowdy. . . But brilliant as 'Love in Albania' is, it's the other, slighter play, 'To Meet the Macgregors,' that will really delight the litterateur, for this is a parody or pastiche of 'Rob Roy,' a comedy with music—delightfully idiotic words, set to tunes from 'The Scots Musical Museum.'" Edward Wagenknecht

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 3 '50 330w

Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 18 '50 80w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 O 15 '50 230w

Reviewed by Frank Jones

San Francisco Chronicle p13 O 18 '50 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p416 Jl 7 '50 440w

LINSLEY, H. E., ed. Practical ideas for machinists. 268p il $4.50 McGraw

621.75 Machine shop practice 50-3924

"All the items appearing in this book were presented originally in the 'Practical Ideas' pages of American Machinist magazine during the past ten years. They were contributed by readers from all over the United States, from Great Britain, France, Germany, India, Australia, China, Latin America, and almost every other country. Every effort has been made to select those items which are of direct value to the practical man and which will not tend to become obsolete by reason of technical developments." Pref

Booklist 47:7 S 1 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '50

"Another of those miscellanies which a craftsman will never discard once it comes into his hands. . . Each of the ideas is illustrated and concisely described. Most have application to machine shop work, but a fair number are applicable to the doings of amateurs in basement workshops." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:1194 Jl '50 70w

LINSLEY, RAY K., and others. Applied hydrology. 689p il $8.50 McGraw

551.46 Water. Hydraulic engineering 49-11989

"Designed for use both as a text in engineering courses, and as a reference book for engineers concerned with the design of highways, airports, storm-sewers, water-supply projects, etc. Basic theory, methods of collecting data, and equipment used are discussed, but emphasis is placed on the interpretation of data and practical applications. The treatment requires a knowledge of simple statistical methods, and of elementary calculus. The authors are associated with the Division of Climatological and Hydrologic Services of the U.S. Weather Bureau." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliographies. Index.

"This book, by three well-qualified hydrologists, will be a useful addition to the library of the hydraulic engineer and the professional hydrologist. It is logically arranged, clearly written and well illustrated. . . The book bears the stamp of authority and, in the opinion of this writer, is the best which has appeared since the monumental work of Meinzer and his associates was published some years ago." E. S. Cullings

+ Eng N 145:43 Ag 10 '50 320w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:7 Ja '50

"For advanced students and practicing engineers, this is one of the best texts available, assembling as it does more significant basic procedures for developing solutions to hydrologic problems than may be found comprehensively treated in any other single text. It provides what is often too briefly discussed in hydrology texts, a detailed exposition of the meteorologic phenomena—resting upon modern physical concepts—which are responsible for precipitation."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:249 Je '50 190w

LIPKIND, WILLIAM, and MORDVINOFF, NICOLAS. Two Reds. [48p] il $2 Harcourt 50-13863

Picture-story book for young readers showing how Red, the cat, saved Red, the boy, and how the two became firm friends from that time.

Booklist 47:65 O 1 '50

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 17 '50 30w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p9 N 13 '50 50w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

LIPKIND, WILLIAM—Continued

"The text is as graphic as the pictures in its choice of words, its keen perception of life, its humor and identification with the compelling interests of a small boy." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 26:354 S '50 160w

"Examine before buying." K. H. McAlarney
Library J 75:1416 S 1 '50 80w

"The art work is brilliant; the text equally so, with its concise statements of sheer action. It is a book for boys about six to eight who will laugh at a boy and a cat right off a New York street." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 10 '50 230w

"The drawing is highly sophisticated, yet it has the forthrightness and humor of a child's viewpoint. The economical text and the vigor of the illustrations make this a notable picture book." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p16 Ag 20 '50 140w

New Yorker 26:174 D 2 '50 40w

"Will and Nicholas obviously had a wonderful time creating this new and original picture book. There are a zest and freshness in every word and line of it that boys and girls of almost any age will be quick to appreciate."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:37 N 11 '50 270w

LIPMAN, VIVIAN DAVID. Local government areas, 1834-1945. 506p maps $3.75 Macmillan

352.042 Local government—Great Britain

"In Parts I and II of this study, the author presents a historical account of the development of local government areas in England primarily since 1834 but with some attention to earlier periods. The account is based mainly on Parliamentary debates, bills, and acts, royal commission and select committee reports, departmental reports, and other official sources. . . In the third and last part of the book the author attacks the general problems involved in delimiting areas of local government both in England and elsewhere, and attempts to set forth some general principles." Ann Am Acad

"Mr. Lipman has written an admirable work in a narrow field; yet the scope of it is much wider than the title indicates, because the problem of drawing suitable local-government boundaries goes to the heart of effective self-government." E. G. Lewis
+ Am Pol Sci R 43:1289 D '49 240w

"These analyses are well done, but they do not answer the major question, which is how to cut, trim, and harmonize the area requirements for the separate services so as to produce the optimum area for a flexible multi-functional unit. No one can be blamed for not answering that question, however, since the necessary data and the tools for analyzing them are not yet available. Mr. Lipman has performed his task competently in advancing knowledge a little toward the goal. His book is recommended reading for all students of local government and public administration." William Anderson
+ — Ann Am Acad 265:185 S '49 360w

"Mr. Lipman's book is bulky and, towards the end, discursive. But the main aim of this formidable volume is achieved. It does serve the administrator well by marshalling a great many facts on a subject which, in order to understand the present, he cannot know too well."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p599 S 16 '49 480w

LIPPINCOTT, JOSEPH WHARTON. Wahoo bobcat; il. by Paul Bransom. 207p $2.50 Lippincott

Lynx—Legends and stories 50-14557

"The Wahoo bobcat, whose name came to be The Tiger, was famous in the Florida swampland, partly for his size and beauty, partly because he had saved the life of a small boy who was being attacked by a wild pig. It was later that Sammy came to know the bobcat in the woods and made friends with him, an appealing and convincing relationship." Horn Bk

Booklist 47:121 N 15 '50

"Joseph Wharton Lippincott is a naturalist who has known and loved the wilds for half a century. Out of his deep knowledge and understanding he has written this latest tribute to wilderness life. Sympathetic and leisurely . . . 'The Wahoo Bobcat' will delight true nature lovers of any age over 10." Vernon Ives
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 N 12 '50 160w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

"Mr. Lippincott has again written a story about animals and people which young readers will like and which has atmosphere, pace, and color." S. M. A.
+ Horn Bk 26:378 S '50 130w

Kirkus 18:517 S 1 '50 120w

"Vivid, dramatic, and very good. . . Recommended highly."
+ Library J 75:2159 D 15 '50 70w

"One of the best animal stories of the year." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 12 '50 180w

"The story moves leisurely but offers plenty of drama as the Tiger fights for survival. . . The people are sympathetically drawn and the animals are given human characteristics. Paul Bransom's dramatic double-page illustrations nicely enhance the text." F. C. Smith
+ N Y Times p10 N 12 '50 140w

LIPSET, SEYMOUR MARTIN. Agrarian socialism; the Cooperative commonwealth federation in Saskatchewan; a study in political sociology. 315p $4.50 Univ. of Calif.

329.971 Cooperative commonwealth federation. Saskatchewan—Politics and government. Socialism in Canada. Agriculture, Cooperative 50-10524

An analysis of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation government of Saskatchewan, Canada, which is the only political entity in North America with a socialist government. The author is assistant professor of sociology at the University of California. Index.

"Exceedingly perceptive study." L. A. Coser
+ Nation 171:488 N 25 '50 1100w

"An extremely valuable book. Mr. Lipset has given us a readable and expert discussion of some of the most complicated and important problems all of us face today in seeking to combine welfare with liberty." Morroe Berger
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 N 26 '50 750w

LIPSKY, ELEAZAR. People against O'Hara. 247p $2.50 Doubleday 50-10244

Mystery story.

Reviewed by Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p46 D 3 '50 70w

Kirkus 18:490 Ag 15 '50 100w

"Mr. Lipsky does an excellent job. . . And once again he recreates factually and convincingly the squalor of the underworld, the impersonality of the law courts and the general mixture of cynicism and humanity which makes up New York's world of crime."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p39 N 12 '50 210w

"This is a good novel as well as an excellent mystery story." M. H. Oakes
+ N Y Times p13 D 24 '50 150w

"Mr. Lipsky writes with a practising lawyer's authority and knowledge, and there's a new way of concealing a certain kind of treasure. Identity of the villain may be somewhat unfair, but procedures throughout are fascinating." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 29 '50 80w

"Run for nearest copy."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:47 O 21 '50 60w

LIPSKY, GEORGE A. John Quincy Adams, his theory and ideas; foreword by Allan Nevins. 347p $4.50 Crowell

B or 92 Adams, John Quincy 50-8112

A biographical study of the sixth president of the United States, which attempts to rescue him from the "obscurity of footnotes to general histories." The author is assistant professor of political science at the University of California. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. W. Pratt
Ann Am Acad 272:219 N '50 440w

"Unfortunately, Mr. Lipsky's academic analysis of John Quincy Adams as a thinker makes but small contribution to the family bookshelf. The general reader will be repelled by its dullness and the professional scholar will find it confused and confusing. In essence the book is minute scholastic hemstitching on the outer fringe of a great subject. The basic fault is Mr. Lipsky's method of treating his hero." Douglass Adair
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 O 1 '50 1000w

"John Quincy Adams' theories never received any systematic expression by himself. They have to be picked up here and there and put together. He expressed them on various occasions in constantly changing situations throughout more than half a century. Mr. Lipsky diligently collects these theories, classifies them methodically under proper headings and presents each one to the reader with a distinctive label. Occasionally he becomes absorbed in political science and therefore lost in history. Aside from this criticism, the book is a welcome and most helpful addition to the rising tide of Adamsoniana." S. F. Bemis
+ — N Y Times p6 Jl 2 '50 850w

"Professor Lipsky shows that Adams did possess a consistent body of ideas, which had its roots in eighteenth-century English philosophy and was supported by a wide culture and a first-class intellect. The reasoned exposition of these ideas as they manifested themselves in Adams' career makes the book interesting, and even exciting, but as a study of a human personality it is a disappointment."
New Yorker 26:73 Jl 22 '50 180w

"Adequate but not brilliant in interpretation, scholarly in method, and formidable in style, this book will be useful to students of the Adams period."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:344 S '50 280w

LIPSON, HARRY CHARLES, and others. Stress and strength of manufactured parts. 259p $4.50 McGraw

621.81 Strains and stresses. Strength of materials 50-6946

"A desk reference book for designers of machines and other articles made of metal parts. In the first section, general basic considerations on stresses and strength are discussed, and it is pointed out that good structural design depends upon achieving a balance between stress and strength. The major part of the book consists of 175 graphs which provide information on a wide range of factors which determine stress and strength such as the effects of grooves and fillets in shafts and plates, and of machining, rolling and forging." (Library J) References. Author index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:875 My 15 '50 110w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:46 My '50

LITTLE, CONSTANCE, and LITTLE, GWENYTH. Black house. 216p $2.25 Doubleday

50-5030

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p4S Ja 27 '50 50w

"Hilarious fun in early stages of yarn, but nonsense drags beyond saturation point."
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Ja 29 '50 50w

Kirkus 17:614 N 1 '49 70w

"Like all the Littles' books, this one is a little too fantastic, but the dialogue is amusing, and there's a pleasant romance."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 22 '50 180w

"The Littles have a stanch following of fans who find their humor gay and delightful. This book should make them happy. Those who don't like the Little brand of slapstick are warned that there's little else here." E. B.
N Y Times p19 Ja 15 '50 220w

"The locale and the plot may remind you vaguely of 'Seven Keys to Baldpate,' but the authors' dialogue, a series of more or less humorous insults, has a tendency to bring the whole thing down to the level of the radio."
New Yorker 25:92 Ja 14 '50 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 22 '50 70w
Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ja 14 '50 40w

LLEWELLYN, RICHARD. Few flowers for Shiner. 372p $3 Macmillan

50-5029

The hegira of Snowy, a Cockney soldier with the British 8th army, in his beloved truck, Rosie, along the shell-riddled roads of southern Italy. Snowy was on his way to the grave of his mate, Shiner, to put a few flowers on the grave and take pictures of it for Shiner's missus. At first he had only his new mate, Bill, for company, but when an American A.W.O.L. and a princess joined the party the quiet trip became an adventure.

"Mr. Llewellyn's characterization of Snowy and Bill is sometimes rather touching. It takes more than noble hearts, though, to make a good novel." C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 185:84 F '50 450w
Booklist 46:150; 172 Ja 1 '50; Ja 15 '50
Bookmark 9:108 F '50 50w

"A sentimental and slightly bewildering journey through newly liberated Italy, a few miles behind the advancing Allied armies. . . Llewellyn's sugary impressionism seems to be mainly devoted to telling us just how sweet, kind and noble is the lowly born Englishman. Rosie can ride through this smartly but the reader is apt to be road sick or prosesick." Mary Sandrock
— Cath World 170:472 Mr '50 250w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p7X Ja 22 '50 600w

"'A Few Flowers for Shiner' is, of course, destined for best sellerdom. Its author's name would put it there. It will not probably equal 'How Green Was My Valley' in popularity with American readers for one insurmountable reason. The conversation in it is all British army slang. The double threat of that idiom makes it slow reading, at times exasperating to readers who often have only their guesses as a glossary to the strange words." Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 22 '50 550w

"Mr. Llewellyn records their adventures with zest, in a true Celtic blending of the touching and the bizarre, the gay and the unutterably sad. There is also a great deal of ribald dialogue; and, in the latter half of the book, especially, passages of extreme violence, together with some awkward descriptions of the carryings-on of Snowy and the Princess. The second portion of the story seems on the surface to be almost wholly a bow and a beckon to Hollywood." M. W. Stoer
+ — Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 24 '50 650w
Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Mr '50

"At his best, Mr. Llewellyn writes with beauty and sensitivity. But far too often his poetic insights become submerged in obscure

LLEWELLYN, RICHARD—Continued
and confused ramblings. The dialogue alone remains tough, colorful, and explicit." C. H. Weiss

Commonweal 51:566 Mr 3 '50 390w

Kirkus 17:629 N 15 '49 300w

"Although many of these characters remain nebulous, the delineations of the London cockney and Lancashireman help to redeem this over-melodramatic novel." A. J. Gaines
Library J 74:1904 D 15 '49 100w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel
Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 20 '50 330w

"Mr. Llewellyn writes his rambunctious and often confused narrative sometimes in colorful but easily readable Cockney, sometimes in a very earthy, very cogent prose to which he manages to give the lift of poetry, and occasionally in a frankly impressionistic lyricism that bewilders even as it pleases." F. H. Bullock
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ja 15 '50 700w

"Mr. Llewellyn's single, optimistic view of human nature, and his love for poetic words (like sonant), picturesque speech and homely sentiment, which rang true in Welsh valleys and in country-idyll situations, do not ring true in the setting of wartime Italy. Mention of concentration camps and black marketeers does not mitigate the sense all through the novel that somehow one is reading about the first world war, not the second. Mr. Llewellyn's narrative talents also seem less suited to a crowded canvas than to an intimate one. . . It would be a relief, and I believe a pleasure, to see Mr. Llewellyn back at work again on the hills of home." A. S. Morris
N Y Times p4 Ja 15 '50 800w

"Some of the incidents of their pilgrimage are very vivid. . . In the main, however, Mr. Llewellyn is content to pay a cozy, patronizing tribute to the solid worth of England's humbler folk, whose emotions still range from wistfulness to simple gaiety and back again, as they have for so many years."
New Yorker 25:97 Ja 21 '50 110w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 Mr 19 '50 470w

"The dialogue continues splendid throughout, a trifle less convincing with the Americans, most uncertain in the case of the Princess, an educated American type whose speech and motivations the author does not fully comprehend. Incident is not merely close-packed; it evolves into melodrama, which in turn teeters on the edge of the fantastic. With this, the Italian peasants part-way turn into a chorus in a sumptuous opera or a wildly conceived ballet. . . In mid-passage the reader makes a reluctant switch to melodrama with heavy sentiment, shot with vivid passages and realistic bits. Having accepted that, he reads on to see what happens, with enjoyment, but still lamenting the lost promise of the beginning." Oliver La Farge
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:10 Ja 14 '50 550w

"It is an adroit and no doubt sincerely studied performance, though in a curious mixture of styles. First impressions are good: the sardonic edge of the dialogue seems unforced and the recurring civilian hungers of Snowy (who has Liz and two small children to think about) and the others carry a degree of sentiment that one would not quarrel with. They are repeated so often, however, the male memories, the frettings, the aching desires punctuate the journey in so uniform and mechanical a fashion that the cumulative effect is merely novelette-ish." R. D. Charques
+ — Spec 184:124 Ja 27 '50 650w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 19 '50 420w

Time 55:82 Ja 23 '50 600w

"Novelists who take war for a background add to the normal difficulties of writing a novel, the additional problem of defining to a greater or lesser degree their attitude to war and its problems; and to adjust the latter to the needs of the plot is not always as easy as it looks. It is here that Mr. Richard Llewellyn breaks down. He is, as it were, perpetually suggesting that something subtle is going to be said when, in fact, he has produced what is in its essentials merely a kind of romantic adventure story."
Times [London] Lit Sup p37 Ja 20 '50 550w

LLOYD, ARNOLD. Quaker social history, 1669-1738; with an introd. by Herbert G. Wood. 207p il $5 Longmans

289.6 Friends, Society of [50-7502]

"This book is the outcome of the discovery in 1943 of the MS. 'Advices and queries' which George Fox sent to the Quakers of Warwickshire in 1681. A comparison of that primitive version of the Friends' Book of Discipline with the first official edition, that of 1738, suggested two questions: (i) By what process did those homely advices, circulated among a loose confederation of local meetings, harden into a rigid discipline administered by a vigilant national assembly? (ii) Could George Fox, who wrote those simple queries . . . indeed be the author of that national system of Quaker church government which has stood the strain of two and a half centuries? The following studies which cover the social history of the Quakers from 1669-1738 were written in an attempt to answer those two questions." (Pref) Bibliographies. Index.

Reviewed by F. B. Tolles
Am Hist R 56:96 O '50 650w

"There are fascinating chapters on the character of an English Quaker, and on the Quakers and youth. His chapter on 'Individual Freedom and Group Authority' is of interest to many everywhere today. Indeed the public for this book is not restricted to Quakerdom and environs, nor even to the wider group who are students of 17th-century religious thought and practice. When a scholar is turned loose on a subject of experience no limits hold. This is very lively reading, as well as profound, and its authority is reinforced by comprehensive notes, appendices, and bibliography." T. M. Longstreth
+ Christian Science Monitor p20 My 18 '50 340w

Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 22 '50 70w

"However difficult the book is to read through, it is a mine of small information. The illustrations are curiously like the book. They are all of documents (except for the frontispiece, showing a Yearly Meeting) which, in spite of some beautiful copperplate, are, most of them, difficult to read. There might have been fewer of them and something of a more general interest."
Times [London] Lit Sup p108 F 17 '50 1200w

LLOYD, DAVID DEMAREST. Son and stranger. 209p $2.50 Houghton

50-7520

A middleaged American businessman and his wife visiting England two years after the war make a startling discovery. Their son, who died during the war, had been on the verge of marrying a fine young English girl, and the two-year-old grandson became a controversial subject. The son had left strict instructions that his parents should not have the child. The book works out the ramifications of the subject, and the Americans return home empty-handed and wiser.

Booklist 46:269; 287 My 1 '50; My 15 '50

"Deep themes are touched upon but the treatment is superficial. Yet Mr. Lloyd writes well. His manipulation of the slight story is so proficient that one is always expecting the novel to take on more importance. But it never does." Mary Sandrock
+ — Cath World 171:474 S '50 150w

Chicago Sun p5 Je 27 '50 140w

"Unfortunately Mr. Lloyd has told his story as if he did not trust what happened, what was said, or his situations. He continually breaks into the narrative with author's explanations, usually in such feeble prose as: 'Deep in his anguish, fearful of new and bitterer wounds, he tried to smother the hope that had been kindled by her words.' This keeps him from probing his characters as deeply as one wishes. In spite of that it is a moving book filled with live, suffering, actual people." Paul Engle

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 4 '50 500w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p8 Je 24 '50 190w

"It is an interesting, well-written story, but somehow the people fail to 'come alive.' One might describe the novel as another account of 'momism.'" R. C. Batchelder
+ — Churchman 164:16 S 1 '50 150w

"Mr. Lloyd takes all his characters very seriously and dissects their simple reactions with Jamesian fervor; sadistically he lets Luke Milam blame himself for everything that has gone wrong with his wife, his son and with Mary. Son and Stranger is really rather too elongated a short story." E. V. R. Wyatt
Commonweal 52:302 Je 30 '50 330w

Kirkus 18:186 Mr 15 '50 150w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p4 Je 2 '50 140w

"In 'Son and Stranger' David Demarest Lloyd has produced a novel which is in its way a small masterpiece. Its admirable purpose, quietly and charmingly achieved, is to provide an anatomy of love, especially parental love. . . To act as a foil for the Milams, Mr. Lloyd has created in his English family group three persons who are in their emotional poise and generosity something literally out of this world. But this flaw of perhaps intentional exaggeration is the only serious imperfection I detect in an otherwise little gem of a novel." F. H. Bullock
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 11 '50 500w

"David Lloyd should have taken more pains with his cast. The girl's father is the eternal Englishman, running his drab pub and clenching his bit of briar; Matthew's father has won business success through driving his competitors into poverty; and Matthew's sweetheart, like so many unwed mothers in fiction, is pure goodness to the core. Still, even these conventions are not enough to rob 'Son and Stranger' of its warmth and fineness." Charles Spielberger
N Y Times p18 My 28 '50 270w

"Mr. Lloyd's characterizations, especially that of the possessive Mrs. Milam, are exceedingly good. He is less fortunate with his prose, which is stiff and devoid of originality, and there is a chance that the end of his book, which brings Mrs. Milam to a fast and very unlikely reconciliation with her fate, will stop most readers short."
+ — New Yorker 26:105 My 27 '50 100w

"'Son and Stranger' is a deeply moving, perfectly written story. It is a story which achieves the goal of most novelists, in that it sounds very much as if it were the story of a well-remembered and gravely-felt experience." C. W. Weinberger
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 2 '50 700w

"The author has written a morality play in which the tares of momism and materialism all but choke the growth of a child's freedom and love. Unfortunately, the drama has been reduced to the level of a puppet show." Josephine Lawrence
— Sat R of Lit 33:20 Jl 8 '50 600w

"His book is compassionate, moving and human. And yet, although he avoids the major pitfall of sentimentality—obviously the greatest danger here—he stumbles gaily into every minor pothole he can find. His comment, humour and characterzations are often youthful and naive, and his style, in spite of the fact that later in the book it lends a certain truth and authenticity to his narrative, shares the same surface faults."
Times [London] Lit Sup p337 Je 2 '50 210w

"The theme of this absorbing short novel outweighs its structure and literary style. The story loses a little thereby, but Mr. Lloyd has written with understanding of some poignant contemporary situations and created at least three characters who are vivid if somewhat typed. . . An interesting human document."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:283 S '50 220w

Wis Lib Bul 46:28 Je '50

LOCHLONS, COLIN, pseud. See Jackson, C. P.

LOCHNER, LOUIS PAUL. Fritz Kreisler. 455p il $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Kreisler, Fritz 50-12787

This first full-length biography of Fritz Kreisler in English is written by a friend of many years' standing. The book includes Kreisler's own account of his war experiences as captain in the Austrian army, his Music and Life, a discography, bibliography, and index.

Booklist 47:33; 135 S 15 '50; D 1 '50

Reviewed by Claudia Cassidy
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 19 '50 900w

Christian Century 67:1551 D 27 '50 490w

"A typical musician's biography in its gemutlich style of presentation, this has the importance of being the first biography of the famous violinist and composer."
+ Kirkus 18:505 Ag 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller
Library J 75:1508 S 15 '50 130w

"Technically, Mr. Lochner's book is an authorized biography, which means it contains no revelations, charges, scandals or gossip. . . Much of the story is told in Mr. Kreisler's own words and is, therefore, a thorough, if somewhat discursive, portrayal of the violinist's personality. . . Kreisler's music has spoken for him admirably all through his life, but if any one wants the words too, here they are." Herbert Kupferberg
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 D 3 '50 750w

"Louis Lochner has produced the first full biography of Kreisler. He has here presented in full and intimate detail, one of the most remarkable artistic personalities and men of genius, against the background of European and American society in one of the world's most eventful periods of change. This is not a critical study of Kreisler's art, but a very informative collection of Kreisleriana." Olin Downes
N Y Times p5 D 17 '50 900w

LOCKHART, JOHN GILBERT. Cosmo Gordon Lang. 481p il $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Lang of Lambeth, Cosmo Gordon Lang, 1st baron [50-1846]

Biography of Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of York, who for forty years of his life was connected with affairs of church and state in England. Index.

"Deeply interesting and finely written biography." Roger Lloyd
+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 7 '49 1900w

Reviewed by D. M. Mackinnon
New Statesman & Nation 39:45 Ja 14 '50 1200w

"Mr. Lockhart's book suffers a bit from too much reliance on material left by the Archbishop. Too much of it was written by Lang himself. It would have gained by more objective evidence from those who had worked under him or with him. But it is a fine biographical study, and it paints an essentially true picture." Russell Southwell
+ — Spec 183:640 N 11 '49 1000w

"Mr. Lockhart's dignified and accomplished biography is a model of its kind. It reveals Lang in all his many-sidedness, and is interesting as a period piece. It depicts a lonely man who, because he never quite came to terms with himself, was often sorely troubled, but who, nevertheless, courageously and resolutely strove towards the highest and inspired many by his example."

LOCKHART, J. G.—Continued
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p737 N 11 '49 1150w

LOCKRIDGE, MRS FRANCES LOUISE (DAVIS), and LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD. Cats and people. 286p il $3.50 Lippincott
636.8 Cats 50-8836

A book about cats in general, their history, nature, care, and relations with humans and other animals, all personalized with anecdotes of the authors' three Siamese cats, Martini, Gin, and Sherry, well known to readers of the Mr and Mrs North detective stories.

Booklist 47:7 S 1 '50
Bookmark 10:5 O '50 30w

"The Lockridges have produced what is far and away the best and most comprehensive general book on cats since Carl Van Vechten wrote 'The Tiger in the House.'" Edward Wagenknecht
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 27 '50 380w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 S 16 '50 650w

"Informal but informative, this may be used as a manual (its indexed), yet will be relished by the non-aelurophile as extra-specially good non-fiction." E. L. Lewis
+ Library J 75:1287 Ag '50 70w

"Each of the top-flight cat books in recent years seems to have been just a little better than the last. This latest one is also so much the best that, could I keep but one book of its kind, this would be the one. It has the most and holds it together with a human interest so strong that people with any interest in cats or in other people will, for that matter, in the course of being continuously entertained, find out a good deal." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 S 3 '50 700w

Reviewed by Harry Gilroy
N Y Times p6 Ag 27 '50 700w

"A fine, comprehensive job, with illustrations by Helen Stone, whose heart is obviously in the right place, too."
+ New Yorker 26:86 Ag 19 '50 100w
Time 56:80 Ag 28 '50 600w

LOCKRIDGE, MRS FRANCES LOUISE (DAVIS), and LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD. Murder in a hurry. 223p $2.50 Lippincott 50-6996

Detective story.

Booklist 46:304 Je 1 '50
Bookmark 9:213 Je '50 30w

"The 14th in the series about Mr. and Mrs. North is fresh, ingratiating and, with the exception of one silly blot, plausible."
+ — Chicago Sun p5 My 9 '50 100w

"Mrs. North is as oblique and as intuitive as ever in this latest case, which is on the same high level as all the Lockridge books."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Je 18 '50 190w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
N Y Times p20 Je 4 '50 180w

"A better-than-average item in this series."
+ New Yorker 26:124 My 20 '50 100w
Sat R of Lit 33:36 My 20 '50 40w
Wis Lib Bul 46:24 S '50

LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD, and LOCKRIDGE, MRS FRANCES LOUISE (DAVIS). Foggy, foggy death. 223p $2.50 Lippincott 50-10759

Detective story.

"Smoothly satisfying."
+ Kirkus 18:573 S 15 '50 70w

"The plot is a conventional one, with a country-house setting, a familiar group of suspects, and a heroine who prowls in the dark. The treatment is loaded down with gobs of endless woman's magazine verbiage. Professionalism is still in evidence; but the result resembles the outworn Had-I-But-Known school much more than the civilized comedy of manners and emotions that one associates with the Lockridges." A. B.
N Y Times p39 N 26 '50 150w
New Yorker 26:160 N 25 '50 100w

"Top performance."
+ Sat R of Lit 33:58 D 2 '50 50w

LODWICK, JOHN. Man Dormant [Eng title: First steps inside the zoo]. 253p $2.75 Duell 50-8034

"Adrian Dormant is a British spy, not by choice, working along the French Riviera in the year 1949, or thereabouts. For the job in hand at the moment, he is making his headquarters at the home of Fletcher Dow, a rich and eccentric American with a large and unclassifiable household. Dormant does the best he can to help the British Foreign Office outwit some Russian agents, and after a certain amount of excitement things simmer back to normal—at least for the time being." New Yorker

"A malicious portrayal of the jabberwocky world of the polyglots, this achieves a pastiche of styles and themes and a certain cleverness in its clinical dissection of enervated consciences and energetic eccentricities. The South Wind flavor is recognizable but just breezes through."
Kirkus 18:216 Ap 1 '50 160w

"Author succeeds in making the unreal atmosphere both interesting and convincing to the reader." Roger McDonough
+ Library J 75:980 Je 1 '50 80w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel
Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 20 '50 100w

"Mr. Lodwick can be amusing, he can create an atmosphere, he can describe odd characters and he can tell a story. If some shock treatment could deprive him of all memory of Hemingway, Norman Douglas and early Huxley, he might become something on his own." Antonia White
New Statesman & Nation 39:76 Ja 21 '50 120w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 S 10 '50 410w

"An engrossing story, the more so because its author has little respect, but an obvious affection, for words and uses them with gentle precision. The quality of the writing is what makes this more than mere cloak-and-dagger stuff, but that same quality makes the violence, which is the essence of spy stories, hard to believe." D. M. Mankiewicz
+ — N Y Times p19 Jl 23 '50 120w

"Mr. Lodwick's book is very entertaining. He has an unusual amount of power over the unsaid word and this enables him to disclose a great deal of information about his characters very quickly and still leave his reader in a pleasant state of continuing curiosity at the end."
+ New Yorker 26:105 Je 10 '50 140w

Reviewed by R. D. Charques
Spec 184:124 Ja 27 '50 60w

"To open a novel by Mr. John Lodwick is to be reminded immediately of the work of half-a-dozen other contemporary writers. . . In spite of his regrettable excursion into pastiche there is evidence that Mr. Lodwick might one day write an excellent novel if he could only discover a manner of his own."
Times [London] Lit Sup p21 Ja 13 '50 300w

LOEWENBERG, JACOB. Dialogues from Delphi. 304p $3.50 Univ. of Calif.
701 Art—Philosophy. Esthetics 49-6294

Eight dialogs on esthetics and philosophy. The speakers are called Meredy and Hardith, a play on the novelists Hardy and Meredith. "In the title of the work 'Dialogues' has been employed to exhibit fairly the manner of presentation of the subject,' which is achieved not by disquisition but by dialogue, not by an ipse dixit but by the interchange of conversation. And to give the conversations a local habitation and a name, a visit has been made to Delphi, the oracular seat of Apollo." (Pref)

Bookmark 10:37 N '50 10w

J Philos 47:556 S 14 '50 310w

"His thinking is sound. His style felicitous. Recommended for drama and philosophy collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:1910 D 15 '49 30w

"Mr. Loewenberg's dialogues are brilliant and lucid, with no blurred edges. As one of the characters says, 'an argument serves the purpose of clarifying the mind and bringing into focus opposed points of view.' But the dialogues will do more than that for the reflective reader. They will open new vistas and bring fresh insights. Any lay reader interested in the arts will find them of inestimable value." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ja 8 '50 400w

LOEWENGARD, HEIDI HUBERTA (FREYBE) (MARTHA ALBRAND, pseud). Wait for the dawn. 250p $3 Random house 50-5756

Postwar France is the scene of this novel about Christine, so badly hurt by the war. Her father had been driven insane; her mother, a patriot, had been killed by a mob. For a time Christine worked in the One World party; then she married Victor, a wealthy man who could give her a semblance of happiness. The denouement comes when Christine finally discovers Victor's perfidy.

Booklist 46:200 F 15 '50

Bookmark 9:159 Ap '50 40w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p5 F 24 '50 70w

"In this novel about postwar France, Martha Albrand shows her usual ability to hold readers in fascinated concern for the fuller revelations of the end, but this time she has chosen a less direct approach, and places the emphasis on existing conditions more than on the outcome. . . The tone of the book is subdued but not bitter, for there is mention of a dawn. Mature and fine of texture, its effect is haunting." W. K. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 F 25 '50 290w

Kirkus 17:677 D 15 '49 190w

"Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 75:104 Ja 15 '50 100w

"This book is no bad example of its kind; it has the added advantage that you can regard it, if you prefer, as a political detective story." Norman Shrapnel
Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 11 '50 310w

"Miss Albrand tells her story with a simplicity which is almost allegorical, and in this sense it is effectively done. But in a wider sense one misses the depth of background and characterization which would give her novel an even greater force."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Mr 5 '50 270w

"Because Miss Albrand—author of 'After Midnight' and other novels—writes deftly, knowingly, in a crisp, contemporary idiom, one has a right to expect a good deal of 'Wait for the Dawn.' The early scenes are good, and Christine's resentment of the officers who are quartered in her home has a pitiful and tense kind of poignance. However, as the story gains momentum and becomes more complex and bizarre, all sense of reality is dissipated." E. H. Walton
N Y Times p17 Ap 9 '50 200w

Sat R of Lit 33:33 Mr 25 '50 140w

"The author never contrives to bring these political struggles to life—admittedly a difficult achievement in a book—and although the novel seems intended to be taken seriously the events rarely rise above melodrama."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p497 Ag 11 '50 150w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 Mr '50

LOFTING, HUGH. Doctor Dolittle and the green canary; il. by [the author]. 276p $2.75 Lippincott
50-14375

"Readers of 'Dr. Dolittle's Caravan' will remember vividly the green canary, Pipinella, the mezzo-contralto prima donna of the good doctor's Canary Opera. Hugh Lofting first wrote and illustrated the Pipinella story as a serial which appeared in The New York Herald Tribune in 1924. Some of the material was used in condensed form in 'Dr. Dolittle's Caravan.' Now, three years after Mr. Lofting's death the original story appears in book form, just as he wrote it, with a few additional pages by a member of his family to introduce and round out the narrative." N Y Times

Booklist 47:142 D 1 '50

"'Doctor Dolittle and the Green Canary' will delight all Mr. Lofting's old admirers and win him new ones." Milton Crane
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 12 '50 200w

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 30w

Kirkus 18:463 Ag 15 '50 180w

"Will be welcomed by all children and libraries. Highly recommended." Anne Izard
+ Library J 75:2158 D 15 '50 70w

"Pipinella will delight children because her life is full of adult excitement: industrial revolution, poverty and riches, meanness and compassion, all are kaleidoscoped into her bird's-eye report on the world. She seldom philosophizes, and her only way of showing judgment is in the giving or withholding of her song. Through her, Hugh Lofting has left a 'message' or two, that the children will fully appreciate." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 12 '50 450w

"There is more suspense than nonsense, but the basic humor, the kindliness, the ingenious imagination which are the hall marks of the Dolittle tales are all here." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p24 O 1 '50 230w

New Yorker 26:177 D 2 '50 70w

LOFTS, MRS NORAH (ROBINSON). Esther. 163p $2.50 Macmillan

Esther, queen of Persia—Fiction 50-10143

A new interpretation of the life of Esther, Queen of Persia, founded on the Biblical story.

"The simple language of the King James version is hard to improve upon, the story as told in Scriptures difficult to embellish. The author has artistically gilded the lily."
Kirkus 18:598 O 1 '50 70w

"Perhaps Mrs. Lofts is merely trying to translate for modern readers the Esther of centuries ago into the kind of woman she believes Esther might have been in contemporary circumstances. The ending of the book, however, leaves one with the feeling that she has prettified one of the world's great legendary figures and in so doing has robbed her of some of her intrinsic stature."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 N 19 '50 360w

New Yorker 26:133 O 7 '50 40w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p3D N 19 '50 80w

LOGAN, JOSHUA. Wisteria trees. 112p il $2.50 Random house
812 50-8392

Chekhov's Cherry Orchard was the prototype of this play about a lovely member of the

LOGAN, JOSHUA—continued
southern aristocracy, who could not seem to grasp the idea that her beautiful Louisiana plantation home was doomed.

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '50

"Of importance to theatre shelves."
+ Kirkus 18:272 My 1 '50 40w

"Not too successful a drama, it is primarily interesting as a vehicle for Helen Hayes. Recommended for large theatre and drama collections." George Freedley
Library J 75:1048 Je 15 '50 40w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p40 D 3 '50 320w

"In our opinion, Mr. Logan's whole project in transplanting 'The Cherry Orchard' to Louisiana soil and trimming it into an Americanized study of the degeneration of Southern aristocracy is rather futile. It's not unlike having a good joke analyzed on the blackboard after everyone has already laughed at it. Chekhov made his point amply and universally; why try to underline and particularize it?" Luther Nichols
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 25 '50 270w

LOMAX, ALAN. Mister Jelly Roll; the fortunes of Jelly Roll Morton, New Orleans Creole and "inventor of jazz"; drawings by David Stone Martin. 318p $3.50 Duell

B or 92 Morton, Ferdinand Joseph. Jazz music 50-8436

"The late Ferdinand 'Jelly Roll' Morton was a New Orleans Jazz singer and pianist who ranks among the topmost lyric musicians of the Afro-American tradition. Alan Lomax is a distinguished student of folk music and the son of another; the younger Lomax recorded Jelly Roll at length for the Library of Congress and has written a book about him based in large and rewarding part on shorthand reporting of Jelly's own talk." (Sat R of Lit) Includes some of his music.

Booklist 46:352 Jl 15 '50

Reviewed by Jack McPhaul
Chicago Sun p5 Jl 2 '50 140w

Reviewed by J. R. Savage
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 2 '50 650w

Kirkus 18:227 Ap 1 '50 190w

Reviewed by Leonard Burkat
+ Library J 75:868 My 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by C. S. Spalding
Music Lib Assn Notes 7:567 S '50 1300w

"Evidences of excessive enthusiasm are only occasional and should not avert the interest of the wide, general audience this book should have. It is not merely for jazz experts. It is a successful effort to tell the life story of a man in the argot that belonged to him and the people of his environment." Carl Carmer
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 18 '50 1000w

Reviewed by Louis Armstrong
N Y Times p3 Je 18 '50 650w

New Yorker 26:120 S 16 '50 200w

"It is a curiously tragic story in many ways, partaking almost of the quality of legend. Yet it is an enormously fascinating one, too. For the reader cannot help seeing that it is indeed what it sets out to be—the story of the beginning and the growth of a kind of music which, as Mr. Lomax says, 'within a generation was beating upon the hearts of most of the cities of the world.'" J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 19 '50 800w

"The book is a superb program note for Morton's performances." Wilder Hobson
+ Sat R of Lit 33:14 My 13 '50 500w

Time 55:52 Je 19 '50 700w

LOMAX, HENRY STANLEY, and DACHS, DAVID (DAVE STANLEY, pseud), eds. Treasury of baseball humor. 316p il $3 Lantern press (NY)

796.357 Baseball. Humor 50-8715

An anthology of humorous short stories, poems, and jokes all about baseball. Partial contents: Watching baseball, by Robert Benchley; The private life of the Dixie Flash, by Nunnally Johnson; Line-up for yesterday, by Ogden Nash; Alibi Ike, by Ring Lardner; Casey Jones and locomotive no. 638, by Irwin Shapiro; Early baseball reporting, Anonymous; The slide of Paul Revere, by Grantland Rice; Popup John, by Heywood Broun; Fan's out, by R. C. Ruark; Why we have left hands, by Ring Lardner; My thirty years in baseball (excerpts), by John McGraw.

"Some of the choices are funny and some, for our money, aren't. But with such authors as Ring Lardner, Bob Benchley, Charles Van Loon, Kyle Crichton, Jimmy Cannon, Heywood Broun, John Crosby, Sam Hellman, Ogden Nash, Grantland Rice, Red Smith and Tom Meany, to compile an incomplete list, chances are you'll find several things to tickle your fancy." Robert Cromie
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 13 '50 90w

Kirkus 18:358 Jl 1 '50 80w

Reviewed by David Dempsey
N Y Times p23 Ag 6 '50 230w

LONG, EDWARD LE ROY. Science and Christian faith; a study in partnership. 125p $1.75 Assn. press

215 Religion and science 50-6377

"A statement of the basic ideas that have been worked out by thinkers who believe that science and faith can live not only in the same world but in the same mind. . . The course of the argument goes from a discussion of the nature and limits of science, and then of religion, to a consideration of the ways in which they may coexist and cooperate without conflict." Christian Century

"The author gets what most intelligent Christians would consider, in a general way, the right answers. But there are many difficulties that are not ironed out and many depths that are not sounded. The boundary line between the two jurisdictions is a little too neatly drawn. The solution of the problem is a little too diagrammatically simple. But the book is brief. It is meant to be, and is, easily understandable. It will be a clarifying book for many readers." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 67:434 Ap 5 '50 280w

"A difficult and timely task exceptionally well done." C. L. Willard
+ Churchman 164:17 D 15 '50 170w

"This concise and clearly written book is addressed to youth, especially youth on the campus. . . A merit in the book is the success with which the author adapts his argument to a difficult audience. Possibly he might have made clearer that science deals with perceivable matter, while religion embraces what is other than the material." P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p15 Ap 9 '50 180w

LONG, FRANK BELKNAP. John Carstairs, space detective. 265p $2.50 Fell

49-11560

A science-fiction novel in which John Carstairs, curator of the Interplanetary Gardens in New York city, is the central figure. In his spare time Carstairs solves police cases by means of his botanical knowledge.

Booklist 46:233 Mr 15 '50

Reviewed by Richard Gehman
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 Ap 16 '50 200w

N Y Times p44 N 27 '49 180w

LONG, HANIEL. Letter to St Augustine; after re-reading his Confessions. 245p $2.75 Duell
242 Augustine, Saint, bp. of Hippo 50-5220

An interpretation of St Augustine in personal terms, applying the lessons of his writings to our times.

"The letters are approbative without fulsomeness, critical without caption, some framed as answers to rhetorical questions, but all with the sincerity of a devout correspondent." John Astley-Cock
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 2 '50 400w

"The author is a layman and while not a Catholic, the high esteem in which he holds St. Augustine would commend the book to Catholic as well as Protestant readers. However, this is a book which will be of more significance to those interested in ethics and practical religion than to those whose primary interest is theology."
+ Kirkus 17:646 D 1 '49 160w

"The author claims an intimacy with St. Augustine which the book fails to bring out possibly because of the author's lack of knowledge in the fields of theology, philosophy and church history. As a personal search for the truth on the part of the author, the book may prove useful." R. P. Breaden
+ — Library J 74:1817 D 1 '49 70w

"Basically the 'Letter to St. Augustine' is a reappraisal of man's relationship to family, state and church. . . These are major themes. They may sound oppressive, but Haniel Long writes about them with simplicity, a poet's illustration, and politeness of the heart. This is an intimate book nourished from the author's own experience. It furnishes a quiet background to Augustinean lightning-flashes of anguish, intuition and certainty." Gouverneur Paulding
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Mr 19 '50 550w
San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 30 '50 240w

LONG, MARGARET. Louisville Saturday. 278p $2.75 Random house
50-9759

The time is October, 1942; the place, Louisville. The novel is composed of sketches about eleven women of different backgrounds, all of them affected in some way by the war.

Booklist 47:62 O 1 '50

"It seems like a personal triumph when the book turns out to be a mature, finished job which can hold its own as a good piece of work with no qualifications. Margaret Long's first novel is just that, and may well be the season's dark horse which her publishers predict. It is conceived upon an extraordinary idea, and executed brilliantly." Olive Carruthers
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 1 '50 390w

"The author pulls no punches. Her novel is outspoken and intimate. . . Her conception of woman in wartime is passionate and fertile, and she reveals it in kaleidoscopic effect, in motion, color, warmth of humanity. Definitely not for public libraries, and we feel that the average reader of good taste will prefer to avoid it."
Kirkus 18:526 S 1 '50 340w

Reviewed by Jean Garrigue
New Repub 123:20 D 25 '50 130w

"Mrs. Long writes with a quivering, stretched response to sensuous impressions, a wracked, nerve-end reaction to split hands in stinging wash water, to clanging, banging trolley cars, to the smog and filth of a soft-coal burning town. In these passages she rises to a kind of frenzy of excellence entirely compelling the reader to share a sense of passionate rejection and indignation. . . 'Louisville Saturday' suffers from an unrelieved iteration which is wearing.' " M. C. Bingham
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 1 '50 750w

"This reviewer could wish that Miss Long had used a smaller cast of characters: keeping all eleven women straight is a slight burden. It is worth the effort, however, for here is a new writer of perception and power, who paints a stirring picture of women under the impact of war." Charlotte Capers
+ N Y Times p32 O 8 '50 230w
New Yorker 26:101 S 30 '50 140w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 28 '50 650w

"Here is an exceptional first novel, written with firmness and style, with warmth and insight. . . To argue with Miss Long over the theme she has chosen is in no way to detract from the skill with which she presents it. Her eleven women, from imbecile Onie to lovely Ellen, are each a rounded personality, caught whole, and presented as living and breathing truth. If there is any comparison at all to make among the character studies here, it is the astonishing one that Miss Long succeeds best when writing about happiness and good fortune." Elizabeth Janeway
+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 S 30 '50 550w

LONGSTRETH, THOMAS MORRIS. Showdown. 196p $2.50 Macmillan 50-9865

"A western Canada high school basketball team is stranded when the small plane which is flying them to Alaska for a game crashes in isolated territory. The pilot, the only adult in the group, is left unconscious and the boys are on their own to find food and shelter; but their common danger unites them, in spite of clashes in temperament, under the leadership of the stowaway who has had camping experience and who refuses to give up." Horn Bk

"There is plenty of suspense, mystery, sportsmanship, idealism—all the qualities that make a story appeal to older boys." M. J. T.
+ Christian Science Monitor p4 O 21 '50 180w

"An unusually good adventure story which combines effectively an interest in sports, in the out-of-doors and natural history with convincing human relationships." S. M. A.
+ Horn Bk 26:480 N '50 100w

"An agreeable enough tale, although the Indians are portrayed as unusually simple-minded, and the boys' white supremacy attitude is unpleasantly Blimpian."
Kirkus 18:356 Jl '50 140w

"A somewhat romantic ending, but good characterization, character development, a refreshing and plausible plot in a new setting to make it a book to be well recommended." Siri Andrews
+ Library J 75:1417 S 1 '50 80w

"The wilderness scenes are so exciting that one could wish there were more of them and less of the endless repartee which is a little out of proportion in the mature, well-told story." F. C. Smith
+ N Y Times p14 D 31 '50 180w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown
Sat R of Lit 33:61 N 11 '50 40w

LOOMIS, CHARLES PRICE, and BEEGLE, J. ALLAN. Rural social system; a textbook in rural sociology and anthropology; with a foreword by Carl C. Taylor. 873p il maps $6.75 Prentice-Hall
323.354 Sociology, Rural. U.S.—Social conditions A50-9055

"The book is a treatise on the structure of rural society, and as such it is concerned with social groups which are styled 'social systems.' . . The first three parts deal with the family and informal groups, locality groups, and social strata. The last three deal with religious, educational, political, and occupational groups and service agencies." Am J Soc

"Loomis and Beegle have done a superb job. In fact, this reviewer believes the book to be the most significant contribution to rural sociology since Sorokin and Zimmerman's Principles of Rural Urban Sociology [Book Review Digest 1929]. . . This is not an elementary book; with its glossary and its more than two thousand citations to the literature it represents a comprehensive treatise that is not adapted to the elementary student except perhaps as a reference work. As a text it should be found highly useful at the senior and graduate levels." C. E. Lively

LOOMIS, C. P.—Continued
+ Am J Soc 56:293 N '50 900w
School & Society 71:302 My 13 '50 40w

"A notable contribution of this book is an attempt to organize findings in rural sociology in terms of an explicit theory. . . One gets the feeling in certain sections of the book that the organizing concepts are forced on the data rather than coming from them. The terminology in which the theory is presented without additional development, impairs the use of the book for introductory students. . . A glossary and two appendices add to readability in that they elaborate on the meaning of the organizing concepts. A wide use is made of source materials." H. F. Kaufman
+ — Social Forces 29:221 D '50 430w

LOOMIS, J. PAUL. Salto, a horse of the Canadian Mounties. 243p $2.50 Dodd 50-6982

The adventures of a Mountie and his horse in training, on patrols, and following the trails of murderers and thieves. Most of the chapters have appeared as stories in Boy's Life.

"An acceptable but not important book about the Royal Canadian Mounted Police."
Booklist 46:338 Jl 1 '50

"A fine story of the Canadian Mounties that all over 12 will thoroughly enjoy. Recommended." G. E. Cartmell
+ Library J 75:990 Je 1 '50 60w

"The adventures are thrilling, and also offer lots of new information about the ever popular Mounties." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 4 '50 190w

LOOS, AMANDUS WILLIAM, and CHROW, LAWRENCE B., eds. The nature of man; his world, his spiritual resources, his destiny; a discussion by Lynn Harold Hough [and others]. 110p $1 Church peace union; World alliance for int. friendship through religion, 170 E. 64th st, N.Y. 21
128 Man 50-1303

A symposium composed of eleven papers and addresses, most of which were delivered in 1949. Their purpose, as stated in the foreword is: "to show how science, philosophy, and religion contribute to an understanding of the nature of man. The various authors seek to interpret the interrelationship of these disciplines as each helps contemporary man to find a way out of his present serious global predicament. Finally, the book aims to indicate clearly that, however intricate our political and economic problems, the real crisis we now face is moral and spiritual and must be met on that plane." Selected bibliography. Index.

"Each is authoritative and specialized and intellectually streamlined." T. F. Opie
+ Churchman 164:18 Ap 15 '50 90w
Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 360w

LORAC, E. C. R., pseud. See Rivett, E. C.

LORAINE, PHILIP. And to my beloved husband—. 244p $2.50 Mill 50-9713

Detective story.

Booklist 47:138 D 1 '50
Kirkus 18:402 Jl 15 '50 70w

"A simple plot, but nicely and inevitably worked out."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p34 O 8 '50 180w
N Y Times p39 O 22 '50 130w
Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p23 O 15 '50 90w

LORD, RUSSELL, and LORD, MRS KATE (KALKMAN), eds. Forever the land; a country chronicle and anthology. 394p il $5 Harper
631.45 Agriculture—U.S. Soil conservation. American literature—Collections 50-5996

"The Lords start the chronicle with their experiences with farms and the country and then record the growth of the group known as Friends of the Land. Between sections of the chronicle are selections from the organization's magazine, The Land, which the Lords edit, and other articles or extracts on soil conservation or back-to-the-land themes. It is a book for land- or conservation-conscious readers." (Booklist) Index of contributors.

Booklist 46:214 Mr 1 '50
Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Chicago Sun p5 Ap 27 '50 80w
Reviewed by Edmund Fuller
+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 19 '50 470w

"The whole reflects all phases of agrarian living, from economic despair to great personal satisfaction. For a special market."
Kirkus 17:638 N 15 '49 250w

"The quality of writing and sound sense is remarkably well sustained throughout, and the net result is a clean interpretation of the soil to those who, possessing it, so often have despoiled it. There is photography in the book, much of it very good, and all of it serviceable. Conservation may still have a long way to go, but this book is proof that it is crossing the divide." P. B. Sears
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Mr 12 '50 550w
Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 28 '50 700w
Springf'd Republican p6C Ap 9 '50 360w

"Russell and Kate Lord, who edit a magnificent quarterly, The Land, for Friends of the Land, have gleaned the best articles, letters, notes and comments published over nearly a decade, and organized them into this important book." Victor Weybright
+ Survey 86:264 My '50 550w
Wis Lib Bul 46:17 Mr '50

LOTZ, PHILIP HENRY, ed. Orientation in religious education. 618p $6.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury
377.1 Religious education 50-7274

"This omnibus 'reference' work fills a twenty years gap since the publication of Studies in Religious Education in 1931 [Book Review Digest 1932]. . . Its concern is not only with religious education of children but also with adults; its strategy is not confined to traditional methods but also includes recordings, films, and television as techniques; its main orbit is Protestantism but there are contributions on Catholic and Jewish religious education; its concepts are not only religious but also psychological; it is a work of text but also abounds in bibliography." (Library J) Bibliographies. Directory of religious education. Biographical index of contributors. Index.

"The book serves a fine purpose at this historical juncture because of the contrast which existed between the plethora of works in religious education published in the twenties and the lean era of the thirties and forties. The time has come when it is important to re-examine every aspect of this field. Certainly the present volume provides adequate materials for such a critical analysis." K. B. Cully
+ Christian Century 67:705 Je 7 '50 1550w
Reviewed by E. J. Chave
J Religion 30:292 O '50 650w

"As a work of multiple authors and designed for multiple audiences in religious education, it achieves its purposes well. . . It is both a basic and a contemporary work—an excellent editorial feat, indeed." Nathaniel Stewart

+ Library J 75:772 My 1 '50 130w

School & Society 71:287 My 6 '50 10w

LOUGHLIN, DAVID CULBERSON. Private stair. 183p $2.50 Harper

50-13803

The adventures of two sailors on leave in Bankok. At first De Castro wants only to make some extra money by selling contraband cigarettes. But when he meets the Siamese girl, Saeng, the story has a different ending.

"Tersely and toughly written, this is not for those of delicate tastes."

Chicago Sun p5 Ag 29 '50 60w

"Mr. Loughlin has succeeded in suffusing his prose for this story with a hardness and an obliqueness of insight which work strongly against the drift of the ordinary. It is, actually, the prose, the terse reduction of each situation to its stripped essentials, which saves the book and makes it a much more than ordinary novel. Altho now and then the intonation of Hemingway interrupts the fluency, the pages move with abrupt liveliness." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 3 '50 320w

"Purposeless, this is also distasteful."

— Kirkus 18:339 Je 15 '50 90w

"The author has drawn a sharp and valid picture of an Oriental seaport, seen from the gutter up, peopled by seamen and natives who think and talk in a sort of stream-of-consciousness, pidgin English that is both baffling and funny. Those readers who insist on knowing where they stand will hate 'A Private Stair'—the rest will love it." E. L. Acken

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 20 '50 350w

"Unfortunately, despite some vivid passages, 'A Private Stair' babbles as weirdly as a man who has climbed on an opium divan and smoked one too many pipes." M. J. Tweedy

— + N Y Times p11 S 3 '50 180w

New Yorker 26:120 S 16 '50 50w

Reviewed by J. M. Grant

Sat R of Lit 33:36 S 16 '50 230w

"This is a book of raw-emotions; tough, tense and dramatic. It is not, however, pleasant reading." D. F. M.

Springf'd Republican p9B Ag 20 '50 70w

"The writing is taut, perhaps too spare to make DeCarlo's sudden switch entirely credible, and sometimes there is a smart-alecky playing with words and dialogue. But Loughlin has the good novelist's knack of suggesting more than he says and keeping his story moving with an air of inevitability."

Time 56:88 Ag 21 '50 390w

LOVECRAFT, HOWARD PHILLIPS. Something about cats, and other pieces; collected by August Derleth. 306p il $3 Arkham house

818 50-1022

"Twelve years ago there died in Providence, Rhode Island, one of the most interesting minor figures in American literature, Howard Phillips Lovecraft. For something like 20 years, (he was 47 when he died), he had written stories in the fields of fantasy and horror which placed him in the tradition of Bierce and Poe. . . In this present volume the work done wholly by Lovecraft himself is confined to essays such as the title piece, fragments of editorial comment and the like chosen from Lovecraft's many contributions to amateur journalism, some poems, notes, and a whimsical burlesque done for pure amusement. For the rest, the book contains several stories on which Lovecraft helped, either by collaboration or by detailed criticism and rewriting, and some short biographical pieces by those who knew and worked with him, including Sonia H. Davis who was his wife for some years." San Francisco Chronicle

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

+ Chicago Sun p61 D 2 '49 70w

"The Lovecraft cult is a rather special affair, to be sure, but general interest in horror stories seems to be well on the upgrade, and there are undoubtedly many more potential readers for even this barrel-scraping collection than there would have been half a dozen years ago. True fans, however, will take this book in stride and reserve their full enthusiasm for the collection of Lovecraft letters which Mr. Derleth is preparing." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 6 '50 650w

LOVELACE, MAUD (HART) (MRS D. W. LOVELACE). Emily of Deep Valley; il. by Vera Neville. 257p $2.50 Crowell

50-9461

"Story of a young orphan girl, who is forced to give up plans for a college education in order to stay at home with her grandfather. However, the winter at home which Emily had anticipated as one of loneliness and disappointment proved a richly rewarding one because of her determination to face problems squarely." Library J

Booklist 47:65 O 1 '50

Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 N 12 '50 140w

Christian Science Monitor p7 N 11 '50 190w

"Full of the homely detail of daily living, there is also a wholesome integrity in this story which older girls will like." S. M. A.

+ Horn Bk 26:483 N '50 150w

"All in all, a thoroughly satisfying book with warmth, wholesomeness and a good measure of sentiment, just ripe for the middle teens."

+ Kirkus 18:333 Je 15 '50 250w

"Recommended." Margaret Miller

+ Library J 75:1838 O 15 '50 80w

"An unpretentious, heart-warming story, true in details and atmosphere to its period, which girls will like." Siri Andrews

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 15 '50 280w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 N '50

LOVELACE, MAUD (HART) (MRS D. W. LOVELACE). The tune is in the tree; drawings by Eloise Wilkin. 177p il $2.50 Crowell

50-6908

The story of a little girl who went to live with the birds while her parents were away. Annie Jo, two inches high and equipped with wings thru a hummingbird's magic, learns a great deal from birds and then returns home in time to welcome her parents. For ages 6 to 10.

Booklist 46:292 My 15 '50

Reviewed by A. L. Shea

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 11 '50 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '50

"Delightful characterizations of the birds based on sound ornithological details rescue this from sentimental whimsy. Should intrigue the young bird fancier."

+ Kirkus 18:59 F 1 '50 70w

Reviewed by Louise Davis

Library J 75:631 Ap 15 '50 40w

"Doubt popularity, but author's name will probably bring requests." M. J. Meade

Library J 75:1054 Je 15 '50 100w

"This fairy-bird story has, of course, an old-fashioned flavor, with all its careful pretends about the tiny girl and the birds talking. But it is well written and illustrated, and ought to find many friends among little girls who can still fall into such a mood."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 7 '50 200w

"Sometimes the birds are too cutely humanized for the purist's taste, as when the wives sweep, dust and cook. Yet as a whole this stays within the bounds of good fantasy. Humorous and graceful, it has the feel of the outdoors. And as Annie-Jo makes her rounds of the birds' nests, readers will learn a good deal (without realizing it) about the habits of the perfidious cowbird, the musical thrushes, the friendly robins." E. L. B.

LOVELACE, M. H.—Continued
+ — N Y Times p30 My 7 '50 140w
Wis Lib Bul 46:26 My '50

LOWE, MRS HELEN TRACY (PORTER). Abdication; or, All is true. 80p il $2.50 Knopf 812 50-8068

A poetic drama about the abdication of a young king, in favor of the woman he loves. It was produced at the Gaiety Theatre in Dublin, in September 1948.

"Mrs. Lowe-Porter has seen the abdication of Edward VIII in the light of historical pattern that is worthy of the dignity and fine prose with which she has clothed an event previously relegated to malicious gossip. Successfully performed at the Gaiety Theatre in Dublin in 1948, there is the wit and poignancy and especially the historical time sense in this play that asserts its lasting theatrical value."
+ Kirkus 18:252 Ap 15 '50 100w

"As a tour-de-force it is amusing. As drama, even though produced by Dublin's Gate Theatre, it is negligible. Only large drama and theatre collections will want this except collections devoted to the Windsor family." George Freedley
Library J 75:870 My 15 '50 60w

"The author is the gifted translator of many of the works of Thomas Mann and others. Her play is a remarkable accomplishment. . . Although 'Abdication' is an excellent imitation of the Bard and, most decidedly, worthy of reading lamp and footlights, it is not the great play that one would like to have seen evolve from the dilemma of the king who had to choose between his love and his crown." Richard Gaines
N Y Times p15 Je 25 '50 340w

"'Abdication' is not a work of art. It is an interesting and scholarly execution of a difficult literary trick. More exactly it is two tricks combined in one act, for she has moved the familiar figures and events of our own day deftly and cleverly back into the past, and she has also re-created the most exacting form of English drama with competence if not with genius. Mrs. Lowe-Porter—like a sword swallower who performs his act while being shot from a cannon—deserves applause for the neat performance of a difficult double trick." T. E. Noyes
+ — Theatre Arts 34:93 Ag '50 750w

LOWENTHAL, LEO, and GUTERMAN, NORBERT. Prophets of deceit; a study of the techniques of the American agitator. 164p $2.50 Harper
301.1523 Propaganda. Jews—Politics and social conditions 49-49134

The role and techniques of the American agitator in converting existing prejudices and tendencies into belief and action as seen in this study of their various speeches and writings. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by D. H. Wrong
Am J Soc 56:278 N '50 1400w

"Sociologists may wonder why the authors felt the need for their new concept of malaise when Durkheim's widely accepted anomie was ready to hand; here was an opportunity to add to a consistent body of theory, yet it was not accepted. Moreover, while the authors realize that their interpretations are tentative and hypothetical, the hypotheses remain implicit in the wealth of documentation. More explicit and concise statement of their hypotheses would have added to the book's usefulness. Despite these possible weaknesses, the book remains a genuine contribution. Its suggestiveness and stimulation derive in no small measure from the fine writing which it contains."
+ — Am Soc R 15:161 F '50 190w

Reviewed by J. F. Brown
Ann Am Acad 270:175 Jl '50 250w
Reviewed by J. M. Yard
Christian Century 67:532 Ap 26 '50 210w
Reviewed by R. D. MacCann
Christian Science Monitor p8 Mr 18 '50 1150w
Foreign Affairs 28:682 Jl '50 20w
Kirkus 17:506 S 1 '49 70w
Reviewed by David Spitz
New Repub 122:18 Ap 10 '50 700w

"Among studies in the social sciences, this one is, indeed, uniquely well organized, nondiscursive and extraordinarily well written. It might well serve as a model, of a type of social analysis intended for an audience larger than the profession." Carey McWilliams
+ N Y Times p53 D 4 '49 850w

"The book is particularly valuable for those teachers and laymen who wish to gain an insight into the thought patterns of an irrational segment of the American population. The book will serve as a source for propaganda analysis, a classroom activity which is becoming commonplace in our schools and colleges." Joe Park
+ Social Educ 14:236 My '50 490w
Springf'd Republican p12C Je 11 '50 150w

"In a relatively small volume the authors present an excellent study of the techniques and appeals of a dozen recent and current demagogues. . . Good research into the problems of prejudice and discrimination has, of course, been going on for many years. What makes this series of studies particularly significant is not only that new facts have been established but also the effective organization of the material so that it serves as a powerful beacon pointing the way to more efficient attacks on the number one example of social psychopathology—uncontrolled and irrational hostility." Julius Schreiber
+ Survey 86:262 My '50 190w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:217 Je '50 240w

LOWENTHAL, MAX. Federal bureau of investigation. 559p $4.50 Sloane 351.74 U.S. Federal bureau of investigation 50-10837

"This is a history of the FBI, showing its origins and activities up to the present time. Starting modestly, it has developed into a powerful body, a fact which the author emphasizes and warns against. Simple law enforcement, he maintains, is necessary but when such a body attempts to concern itself with political investigations we should be on guard." Library J

"An important if sinister book. . . Mr. Lowenthal has two somewhat conflicting themes in his book, which is tough reading because it is dull and tediously written, after the fashion of pleadings in chancery. One is that the FBI is a danger to freedom of thought and freedom of speech in the United States and contains the menace of the police state. The other is that the FBI is a menace to national security because it is not more efficient than it is." Walter Trohan
— Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 D 10 '50 700w

"The documentation is as selective as it is heavy, and the testimony of numerous highly respected witnesses who have spoken in praise of much the FBI has done, and the manner in which it was done, is coldly ignored. To judge the FBI, the reader is given an unrelieved picture of brutality, contempt for democratic procedures, inefficiency and incompetency. The work of the FBI in preventing sabotage during World War II, its praiseworthy management of the loyalty investigations, and its success in unmasking the Communist Conspiracy are passed by." P. V. Farrell
— + Commonweal 53:260 D 15 '50 900w
Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 75:1664 O 1 '50 130w

"Mr. Lowenthal's indictment is much too impressive to be dismissed. It ought to be brought to trial. Congress is now too torn politically to hear it in an atmosphere of reason. The appropriate tribunal would be an independent commission of universally respected private citizens. There is urgent need for such a commission to make an impartial study of internal security needs and of the relationship between national security and individual freedom." Alan Barth

New Repub 123:18 D 4 '50 1700w

Reviewed by E. D. Canham

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 10 '50 1400w

"This is a thoughtful and important book that too few people will take the trouble to read. It is a thoughtful book because of the immense research and the careful documentation that went into its writing. It is important because it dares, almost for the first time, to pull aside the self-righteous cloak in which the F. B. I. has wrapped itself. And it is a heretical book that is sure to stir up the dogs of controversy." Cabell Phillips

+ N Y Times p3 N 26 '50 1400w

"While a great deal of this information is valuable, and deserving of any reader's attention, the book as a whole may well alienate sportingly inclined individuals, who feel that no tussle is really satisfactory unless both teams turn up on the field."

New Yorker 26:170 D 9 '50 200w

"The book takes on added character and significance because Max Lowenthal is its author. It is the product of true workmanship. Despite the great scope of the work the depth of research and the documentation give authenticity to each chapter." J. L. Fleg

+ Sat R of Lit 33:15 D 23 '50 1150w

"Biased, slanted, and patently prejudiced, Max Lowenthal's book is a base smear. It is the antithesis of 'an objective picture of the FBI' by an author 'conservative in the most profound sense' as heralded by his publishers." N. J. L. Pieper

— Sat R of Lit 33:15 D 23 '50 1150w

Springf'd Republican p30A D 17 '50 550w

LOWRIE, DRUCELLA. Art of wrapping gifts. 96p il $2 Crowell

745.54 Wrapping of packages 50-14721

Information on materials and ways of wrapping all kinds of gifts, including diagrams on the making of all types of bows. Contains a chapter on wrapping children's gifts.

Booklist 47:131 D 1 '50

"A very useful book, not only at Christmas time, but during the year whenever gifts of any sort need the decorative touch. . . The only book of its kind that has come to our notice."

+ Wis Lib Bul 46:13 N '50

LOWRY, HOWARD FOSTER. Mind's adventure; religion and higher education. 154p $2.50 Westminster press

377.8 Church and college 50-7476

"This is not an account of the growth of higher learning in America or even of the colleges founded by the Church, but the story of how and why religion that brought forth most higher education in this country yielded its place, very widely, to the secular spirit." (School & Society) The author has been president of the College of Wooster since 1944. No index.

"A book primarily for educators, ministers and other leaders in church work, but parents and students will find it stimulating."

+ Kirkus 18:171 Mr 15 '50 180w

"The difficulty with his book is that while [the author] quotes any number of people on the subject of what a good thing it is to have a religious basis for education, he never defines exactly what he means by religion nor how he proposes to use it to give the curriculum substance. These questions he raises again and again, but always seems to slide away from a direct answer so that the reader is left with the generalized feeling that Dr. Lowry favors religion but no particular sort of religion that could be distinguished from enlightened humanism." E. M. T.

San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 10 '50 150w

School & Society 71:287 My 6 '50 50w

"Interestingly written, abundantly documented, and somewhat sentimentalized little book." W. W. Brickman

+ School & Society 72:153 S 2 '50 180w

LUBAC, HENRI DE. Drama of atheist humanism; tr. by Edith M. Riley. 253p il $4 Sheed

239 Atheism [49-49248]

"Father de Lubac, the French Jesuit author and theology professor, is concerned because atheism no longer is purely sterile and negative, but has become, despite its spiritual deficiencies, constructive and socially feasible. He makes his case largely by objective review of the pertinent thought of Feuerbach, Marx, Nietzsche, Kierkegaard, Comte, and—curiously enough—Dostoevsky." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Index.

Reviewed by L. T. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 16 '50 100w

Reviewed by C. W. H. Sutton

Hibbert J 48:199 Ja '50 750w

"The author employs the technique of his earlier study of the French Socialist philosopher, Pierre Joseph Proudhon, a tessellation of quotations from the writings of these six men, with a linking commentary and a minimum of direct criticism. The effect is both a fair and a dynamic impression of their meaning. Especially commendable is his study of Dostoevsky's novels." Paul Ramsey

+ N Y Times p31 Je 11 '50 320w

"A stimulating and impressive book."

+ New Yorker 26:152 O 14 '50 170w

"[Father de Lubac's] critique seems piecemeal, rendered bit by bit as he discusses each man and his writings. His apparent object is to make clear what these men had to say for good and to identify the bad with its source. He has done this well. The book carries the reader along, but in the absence of a single key idea the reader is left with the task of unifying and finally evaluating the material." E. M. T.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 20 '50 350w

"A scholarly and penetrating study." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p6C Ap 9 '50 240w

"Father de Lubac has not yet made up his mind whether he can treat his subject adequately on the modern level or must attempt the more arduous task of leading his readers back to dispassionate abstract reason, but he has certainly written a book of unusual penetration and compassionate understanding."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p813 D 9 '49 900w

LUCAS, HOWARD JOHNSON, and PRESSMAN, DAVID. Principles and practice in organic chemistry. 557p $6 Wiley

547 Chemistry, Organic

"Manual of laboratory procedures. The first 137 pages are devoted to standard procedures of general application. Although these chapters contain a few illustrated experiments, they are mostly concerned with descriptions of techniques. These are the chapters which are of interest in libraries and to readers out of college. The remainder of the book is devoted to a wide range of experiments illustrating typical organic reactions. . . The senior author is Professor of Organic Chemistry in the California Institute of Technology." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 46:185 F 1 '50

LUCAS, H. J.—Continued
"There is an excellent series of chapters on techniques such as melting point determination, crystallization, and distillation. . . The book seems to have been carefully prepared and, in view of its broad scope, should be most valuable for students who are planning to specialize in chemistry. The chief disadvantage to its use in an introductory course is its price which is considerably higher than that of the average laboratory text in this field." David Curtin
+ — Chem Eng 57:251 Ja '50 270w
N Y New Tech Bks 34:86 N '49

LUCK, DAVID GEORGE CROFT. Frequency modulated radar. 466p il $4 McGraw 621.38 Radio frequency modulation. Radar
49-50187

"Most of the radar equipment which has been developed for practical use is based upon signals sent in series of pulses (short bursts). Accordingly, most of the books so far published on radar have related to pulsed radar. F-M radar employs a continuous signal, the frequency of which is varied systematically (modulated). This is a technical book which covers both principles and their application and also describes apparatus in considerable detail." (Library J) Chapter references. Index.

"It is suitable as an introduction for readers, such as radio engineers, who are familiar with the terminology of ultra high frequency circuits and equipment." R. R. Hawkins
Library J 74:1914 D 15 '49 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:8 Ja '50
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:249 Je '50 240w

LUCRETIUS CARUS, TITUS. On the nature of things; tr. by W. Hannaford Brown. 262p $5 Rutgers univ. press 871.1 50-7193

"A new translation in English hexameter that was used as the closest approximation to the original measure." Booklist

Booklist 47:10 S 1 '50
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Jl 30 '50 430w

"By following the Latin text in a line-by-line translation and imitating its hexameters, Mr. Brown has stayed close to the original. It is a cumbersome and ungainly meter for English but it does present the ideas clearly and vividly—which is more important." R. H.
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:56 My 6 '50 110w

LUND, ROBERT. Hour of glory. 312p $3 Day
50-9714

"In 1898, the United States cruiser Charleston shelled and then occupied peaceful Guam. Having rounded up the pathetic Spanish garrison, the ship's captain, reluctant to detail any of his much needed men to run the government, chose to give power to a beachcomber he found there." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) This is the story of Peter Borne, the beachcomber, and of his experiences in love, and in trying to govern the island.

Reviewed by V. P. Hass
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 8 '50 400w

"Surface characterizations and a too-hastily unfolded story leave the reader somewhat unconvinced."
Kirkus 18:437 Ag 1 '50 130w

"This obscure bit of our history in the Pacific might better have been dealt with in a straight-forward historical monograph." Donald Wasson
Library J 75:1826 O 15 '50 90w

Reviewed by E. L. Acken
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p35 N 12 '50 360w

"Blending historical authenticity with fiction is, at best, a hazardous undertaking. Robert Lund meets the test and his novel contains much that makes for entertaining reading." Robert Elkon
+ N Y Times p33 N 5 '50 230w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 14 '50 750w

"As a novel this suffers primarily from the author's uncertainty of purpose. He apparently never decided whether he was writing a colorfully romantic adventure story, an attack on the historical role of the Catholic Church, or a problem novel about a man and destiny. So he threw everything in and then neglected to mix them well." E. J. Fitzgerald
Sat R of Lit 33:66 D 2 '50 260w

Reviewed by Richard Henchey
Springf'd Republican p10C D 10 '50 300w

LUNDBERG, DANIEL. Getting into serve yourself. 139p il $3 Murray & Gee
658.965 Automobiles—Service stations

"'A guide for the gasoline retailer of tomorrow.' Written by the public relations counsel and executive secretary of the Serve Yourself Gasoline Stations Association, Inc. as the 'bible' of the new industry. A highly colloquial and informal chronicle of progress and manual on how to get on . . . for the guidance of the operator of a unit of this new type of merchandising." Library J

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ag 13 '50 50w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:1297 Ag '50 70w

"The book covers everything you need to know to break in. Nothing seems to have been left out." J. F. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 30 '50 160w

LUNDBORG, LOUIS B. Public relations in the local community; pub. under the sponsorship of the Public relations society of America. 228p $3 Harper
301.154 Publicity. Community life 50-8646

"It is the thesis of this book that business firms will profit by maintaining continuously harmonious relations with the communities in which they operate and by contributing positively to the welfare of those communities. . . The book is in two parts—a 'why' part and a 'how' part. The first part deals with the reasons why the local community is important to the business firm, and the ways in which the firm will profit by being a good citizen and a good neighbor. The second part tells how a firm may proceed to become a good citizen and good neighbor in the community." (Pref) Index.

"This reviewer feels that this book will furnish an excellently briefed and well-arranged guide for company executives charged with responsibility for community relations." H. G. Hodges
+ Ann Am Acad 272:232 N '50 440w
Current Hist 19:166 S '50 30w
Kirkus 18:275 My 1 '50 130w
Wis Lib Bul 46:19 S '50

LUSTGARTEN, EDGAR MARCUS. Verdict in dispute. 253p $2.50 Scribner
364.38 Murder. Crime and criminals. Trials
50-5139

"A reconstruction of the atmosphere of six famous murder trials in which the verdicts are open to dispute, from the Florence Maybrick to the Lizzie Borden case. Crucial pieces of evidence are repeated from the trial transcripts, the backgrounds are sketched in, and attitudes of people in the courtrooms are described." Publishers' Weekly

Bookmark 9:157 Ap '50 40w
Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p5S F 10 '50 250w

"Author Lustgarten, a novelist and former barrister, writes vividly and convincingly." R. L. Hanson
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 12 '50 360w

Kirkus 18:15 Ja 1 '50 170w

"A distinguished example of a type of collection more common in the 20's and 30's than recently. For public, club, rental and law libraries." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 75:170 F 1 '50 100w

"Edgar Lustgarten . . . says he has tried 'not only to analyze the facts but to recreate the atmosphere in which these trials were fought, so that the reader can determine the dominating influences that led to their unsatisfactory result—shortcomings of counsel, ineptitude of judge, prejudice of jury. . . ' He has succeeded brilliantly." E. H.
+ New Repub 122:21 F 20 '50 230w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 F 26 '50 550w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p4 F 12 '50 800w

"Really fascinating book. . . Altogether, 'Verdict in Dispute' has considerable style, it is frequently enlivened by flashes of dry wit, it is clear and concise in its exposition, and the conclusions it draws are perceptive and seemingly well founded. There is no question but that it belongs in the front rank of criminal journalism."
+ New Yorker 25:103 F 18 '50 550w

"The reader for whom this was written will know by now that it's his kind of book. All I'd add is that with this first essay into the field, Mr. Lustgarten has made the leap to the very top." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 6 '50 800w

"Easy reading for those not familiar with these causes célèbres, but no astonishing contribution to library of true-crime lore."
Sat R of Lit 33:36 F 11 '50 40w

"The trials are admirably described, and Mr. Lustgarten's technical analysis of the various kinds of cross-examination is fascinating. . . He is an admirable writer, and I shall be surprised if his book does not find a permanent place in the annals of English justice." L. A. G. Strong
+ Spec 183:896 D 23 '49 270w

LUTZ, RUFUS ROLLA. Graphic presentation simplified. 202p il $4 Funk

650.084 Graphic methods 50-5279

"A handbook on making the various kinds of charts—curve, circle, bar, column, sector, pictorial, statistical—for business purposes. Techniques of actual production, such as lettering, inking, and use of color, are described, as well as the compilation of material and selection of the kind of chart best suited to each purpose." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:185 F 1 '50

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 26 '50 20w

Management R 39:498 Ag '50 90w

LYASHCHENKO, PETER IVANOVICH. History of the national economy of Russia to the 1917 revolution; tr. by L. M. Herman; introd. by Calvin B. Hoover; maps redrawn under the supervision of Leonard H. Dykes. 880p $13 Macmillan

330.947 Russia—Economic conditions 49-49384

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"If the reader is prepared to make allowances for the author's ideological viewpoint, this should prove a very valuable book, filled with a wealth of information. While in the first part of the book the translator was unable to provide proper English equivalents for many of the technical terms, on the whole the translation is remarkably smooth and readable. The American Council of Learned Societies has done well to make a Russian work of such importance available to the American public." J. S. Curtiss
+ Am Econ R 40:661 S '50 750w

Reviewed by F. L. Schuman
Am Hist R 56:108 O '50 750w

Reviewed by George Vernadsky
Ann Am Acad 269:193 My '50 480w

"Strict conformity, not only to the fundamental tenets of the orthodox creed, but also to its scholastic subtleties is, generally, one of the most striking characteristics of this book. It is as a specimen of totalitarian historiography, perhaps more than as a source of factual information, that Professor Lyaschenko's work deserves the highest interest of the social scientist." K. F. Helleiner
Canadian Forum 29:258 F '50 600w

Reviewed by W. P. Sears
Churchman 164:17 F 15 '50 120w

Current Hist 19:164 S '50 60w

"Though the author's early career and writings antedate the October Revolution, his interpretations here are vitiated by the necessity to conform to the Marx-Lenin-Stalin line."
Foreign Affairs 28:512 Ap '50 40w

"If the Council of Learned Societies wished to give American students an opportunity to study Russian economic history, the translation of the second edition of 1930 would have been more appropriate. The Council would have rendered a very great service if it had translated both the 1930 and 1939 editions, or even the 1930, 1939 and 1947-48 editions. It would thus have given American students unfamiliar with the Russian language the possibility of studying Stalinization of research in its two most important phases. . . On the basis of the 1939 edition alone, it will be almost impossible for such persons to distinguish between the real economic history and Stalinization of it, between the wheat and the chaff." Naum Jasny
Pol Sci Q 65:302 Je '50 1600w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 5 '50 230w

"The non-Soviet reader will probably shy at the interpretation of the concepts of feudalism, capitalism, and imperialism which the Soviet ideology requires of the author, but he can hardly withhold his respect for the work as a whole." Sidney Harcave
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:16 Mr 25 '50 650w

"The book is edited with the thoroughness we have learned to expect from Dr. Huntington. So far as can be judged from its idiomatic English style, the translation is accurate and no obstacle to understanding. Complete with adequate chapter notes and comprehensive indexes, the work is a finished tool of scholarship ready to the hand of the interested American."
+ Social Educ 14:190 Ap '50 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p256 Ap 28 '50 240w

LYLE, GUY REDVERS, and others. Administration of the college library. 2d ed rev 608p $5 Wilson, H.W.

027.7 Libraries, University and college. Library administration 49-50213

"Retains most of the material of the first edition [Book Review Digest 1945] but includes substantial revision in each chapter. The book was planned not only as a text in the teaching of college library administration but also for independent professional reading. Because readers have found the footnotes and chapter bibliographies useful for reference purposes, they have been brought up to date and in some cases extended." (Pref) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 46:174 Ja 15 '50

"Despite its title, this thorough and extremely valuable book also contains much on the problems of university libraries with the result that librarians of colleges and universities alike may find profit in its reading.

LYLE, G. R.—Continued
There still remains to be written a brief informal study of what one might call the 'human' side of administration—stressing the personal elements and their importance in the administrative pattern. Perhaps one day Mr. Lyle and his collaborators, writing with the same insight, care and skill as in the volume at hand, may give us such a book as well." D. E. Strout
+ Library J 75:553 Ap 1 '50 850w

"A sensible and skilful compendium of current practices in all aspects of college-library work. The library-school student who may be required to digest it all in one semester will undoubtedly be bewildered by its detail and horrified by its mass. The young librarian in service, who may never have the opportunity to read it in its entirety, will benefit by it as an introductory guide to specific routines and practices. Copious footnotes referring to more detailed writings increase its usefulness as a manual. It is written with clarity and simplicity, and there is no pretentious attempt to professionalize common sense." W. W. Parker
+ Library Q 20:217 Jl '50 480w

"The second edition has been painstakingly revised both in style and in the organization of the material, and numerous additions and deletions have been made to bring the work up to date."
+ Special Libraries 40:417 D '49 110w

LYNES, RUSSELL. Snobs; a guidebook to your friends, your enemies, your colleagues and yourself; with drawings by Robert Osborn. 54p $1 Harper
817 Satire 50-10646

Half serious, half humorous attempt to define the various types of snobs existing in today's society—the social snob, regional snob, sensual snob, emotional snob, etc, etc. Author concludes with the sentence: "I am sure there is no greater snob than a snob who thinks he can define a snob."

Reviewed by Richard Blakesley
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 26 '50 120w
Kirkus 18:628 O 1 '50 100w
Reviewed by Harry Gilroy
N Y Times p4 N 19 '50 380w

"Some of this is fairly amusing; it may be that the idea is just not strong enough to make it all amusing."
New Yorker 26:171 D 9 '50 130w

"For a dollar you can have a good time with this book. And, as the author suggests, it will be a rare reader who doesn't at some point, pull up short and whisper to himself: 'Oh-oh! Is there maybe just a little of this one in me?'" J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 4 '50 600w

"Mr. Lynes, an editor of Harper's magazine, is the obvious authority on contemporary snobbery and its rarefied variants. It was he who last year sorted his fellow men into Highbrows, Middlebrows, and Lowbrows. Now, adjusting an inescapable eye to a new focus on human foibles, he has come up with the conversation piece of the year, 'a guidebook to your friends, your enemies, your colleagues, and yourself.'" H. C. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 D 16 '50 500w
Time 56:110 N 20 '50 370w

LYNHAM, DERYCK. Father of the modern ballet: the Chevalier Noverre. 250p il $4.75 British bk. centre
B or 92 Ballet. Noverre, Jean Georges

"Jean Georges Noverre (1727-1807) is known chiefly as a theorist, the author of 'Lettres sur la Danse et sur les Ballets,' in which merely decorative movement is attacked and a type of dancing is called for which tells a story and is rooted in human passions. Thus, he is the artistic ancestor of all serious dancers and choreographers of today. . . [This book] brings together all the existing information about Noverre's life and career." Theatre Arts

"Brilliantly written and absorbing account of the work [of] that superb French choreographer who changed the whole complexion of ballet in Europe." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:2013 N 15 '50 40w

"It is an unqualified pleasure to read Deryck Lynham's study, and an even greater one to report that it is scholarly, well documented, and a thorough piece of research. . . Mr. Lynham has coordinated his material with logic, and the result is an indispensable work about Noverre, his contributions, and the period in which he lived. The writing is often enlivened by a liberal use of contemporary reports, one of which—concerning the night of November 8, 1755, when Noverre's 'The Chinese Festival' was given its unhappy premiere at Drury Lane—must be read to be believed." Rosalyn Krokover
+ Sat R of Lit 33:66 S 30 '50 240w

"For enthusiasts of dance and theatre history it is therefore a valuable book. It is too bad that it is not an interesting book as well. . . The value in reading Noverre and about his career is in the pleasant sense of discovering a kindred soul across the centuries." Beatrice Gottlieb
+ — Theatre Arts 34:4 N '50 600w

LYNN, STUART M. New Orleans. 168p il $7.50 Hastings house
917.6335 New Orleans—Views 50-176

A collection of photographs and text showing the various aspects and moods of New Orleans. The illustrations are arranged within their proper location sequence in four groups: architecture; courtyards and patios; ironwork; cemeteries. Index.

"The pictures are good and the book will delight New Orleans fans."
+ Booklist 46:218 Mr 1 '50
Christian Science Monitor p16 N 18 '50 50w
Reviewed by E. H. Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 9 '50 320w

"Perhaps because he took his pictures on Sundays Mr. Lynn's album fails to reflect the spirit of the city. The architectural section in particular could very well be part of a real-estate agent's catalogue. . . The captions are generous, and become, in fact, a sort of guide to the city itself." H. S.
— + Sat R of Lit 33:45 F 11 '50 140w

LYON, MRS DANA. Tentacles. 235p $2.75 Harper
49-50361

A novel describing a woman's struggle against an over-possessive father-in-law who was destroying her husband and beginning to spoil her child.

Booklist 46:335 Jl 1 '50
Kirkus 18:246 Ap 15 '50 190w

"Perhaps this story paints too obvious a picture of disintegration, but if you accept the author's premises, it lays a good background for crime."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Jl 16 '50 180w

"Dana Lyon writes with a rush of enthusiasm and her scenes are planned with a sure instinct for drama. This is a book for those who want exciting reading with a little more substance than is usually found in the psychothriller." M. S. Hurst
+ N Y Times p25 Je 25 '50 150w

"The end is a surprise, but a legitimate one, and altogether this is superior entertainment for those who don't insist on corpses, detectives, and gunfire."
+ New Yorker 26:99 Je 24 '50 110w

"A fine novel, which because of its concern with frightening things, is apt to be regarded as something less." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Je 25 '50 600w

LYON, ELINOR. Hilary's island; decorations by Kurt Werth. 248p $2.50 Coward-McCann 50-6627

Mystery story for ages nine to twelve.

"This exciting mystery has hairbreadth escapes, danger, intrigue and very satisfying conclusion."
+ Bookmark 9:164 Ap '50 60w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 23 '50 120w

"Some mystery, lively characters and the charm of the English countryside brighten this book about a vivacious youngster against the strait-laced authority of two aunts, her escape and the reconciliation."
+ Kirkus 18:177 Mr 15 '50 150w

"Good writing; lively style. Recommended." M. E. Martignoni
+ Library J 75:703 Ap 15 '50 50w

"The pace of this story is swifter than in the author's 'Wishing Water Gate' and the dialogue is equally brisk and diverting. Youngsters will find it easy to read and hard to put down." L. R. Davis
+ N Y Times p24 Ap 9 '50 130w

LYON, JUDSON STANLEY. The excursion; a study. 154p $3.75 Yale univ. press
821 Wordsworth, William—Excursion
50-5909

"After an opening chapter on the reputation of The Excursion, this study, originally presented as a doctoral dissertation, turns to a detailed account of the composition of the work. The next chapter, Sources and Analogues, stresses the kinship of the poem to four types of eighteenth-century literature: 'the long blank-verse didactic poem; the philosophical dialogue; the short verse narrative of humble life . . .; and the funeral elegy.' The heart of the study is the chapter, The Content of The Excursion. This points out 'three major impulses' that inspired the poem, namely 'antimechanism, personal fortitude, and antirationalism,' the second arising out of Wordsworth's own trials and sorrows, the first and third representing to a great extent the influence of Coleridge, which triumphed over that of the associationist Hartley." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"For Dr. Lyon the long poem, though it has many flaws, is an important focal point in Wordsworth's development, deserving closer attention than it has had. It is cleverly argued, and some readers may find it persuasive in spite of their own experiences with The Excursion. The poem is one easy to find faults in; but it is a work in its entirety not easy to discount."
Times [London] Lit Sup p375 Je 16 '50 150w

"The analysis proves the presence in The Excursion of most of Wordsworth's great merits as a poet. But probably most readers will continue to seek them in the shorter poems and in The Prelude."
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:153 Je '50 220w

LYONS, HERBERT. The rest they need. 375p $3 Dial press
50-9823

"This is the story of Gregory Grigson, editor-in-chief of The Weekly Review, one of several magazines and newspapers owned by Higby Publications, Inc. Grigson is forever suspecting that his colleagues are plotting to supplant him; during twenty years on the job he has gotten rid of ten chief assistants. Now it is the turn of Tony Rayburn. But Tony is a tougher antagonist than his predecessors. How he ultimately defeats Grigson and moves into the editor-in-chief's chair is the novel's main line." N Y Times

"Lyons lays everything on too thick. The fawning of the editor's subordinates, the general emotional turmoil in The Office, are somewhat overdone, too. I kept wondering how on earth they ever got a magazine out—and a weekly, at that." C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 186:99 N '50 700w

"The novel may, of course, describe a cyclical process as well as a single personality. But it seems to have been written in order to paint the portrait of Grigson, and to represent him as a unique phenomenon. We see The Office shudder as the Great Man approaches; we watch him torment his underlings, one by one. And we are hardly astonished to hear Grigson condemned as an incarnation of evil by one character after another. How can we also believe that all persons in authority eventually go the way of Grigson?" Milton Crane
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 1 '50 500w

"A former editor himself, [Herbert Lyons] knows what he's writing about in this first, ineffectually titled novel, and he writes it well. . . It is to his credit that he does not sit in moral judgment on any of his brilliantly individual office types." Richard Mealand
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 15 '50 800w

"Readers who have done time in unhappy shops, even those that lack most of the unrelenting grimness of Mr. Lyons' creation, will enjoy the minutiae of 'The Rest They Need.' Others will feel that if this novel were accepted at its face value, personnel departments of our large publications might soon encounter a dearth of replacements. Few people would care to work for a magazine, and no one would aspire to become an editor-in-chief." Gerald Sykes
N Y Times p34 O 1 '50 270w

"Hardy Johnson, the likable assistant editor, and his wife, are about the only people in the book who are portrayed in a warm and sympathetic light. This powerful and disturbing, but thoroughly absorbing, picture of life in the whitecollar zoo is an able job." I. B.
San Francisco Chronicle p32 D 10 '50 200w

"Mr. Lyons is commendably resentful of injustice, yet his tone is perhaps too serious and humorless for the situation he presents. It wasn't that bad. After all, Grigson finally overreached himself. No one can deny that office politics is a familiar ulcer, which can become malignant on occasion, but the supine folk in The Weekly Review would fall into slavery anywhere." J. C. Long
Sat R of Lit 33:35 N 4 '50 230w

LYTTLE, EILEEN JEANETTE. See Garrett, E. J. L.

M

MA, HO-T'IEN. Chinese agent in Mongolia [a report on the birth of the Mongolian people's republic] tr. [and ed.] by John De Francis. 215p maps $3.50 Johns Hopkins press
915.17 Mongolia 49-11857

A description of Outer Mongolia. "Ma Ho-t'ien was an experienced Chinese traveler and observer who spent seven weeks in Urga (Ulan Bator) early in 1927 and took copious notes on the politics, customs, educational institutions and other aspects of life in the Outer Mongolian capital, not excepting the forwardness of the women and the price of cabbage." (N Y Times)

Reviewed by Franz Michael
Current Hist 18:225 Ap '50 500w
Foreign Affairs 28:517 Ap '50 20w

Reviewed by H. J. Wiens
Geog R 40:503 Jl '50 850w

Reviewed by A. T. Steele
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Je 25 '50 500w

MA, HO-T'IEN—Continued
"Mr. de Francis' skillful translation makes for good reading, and Mr. Ma's adventures traveling on the wintry Mongolian steppe are a good story in themselves." J. K. Fairbank
+ N Y Times p11 Ja 1 '50 100w

"Although both Mr. De Francis and Mr. Lattimore are amply justified in emphasising the importance of any firsthand contribution to our scanty knowledge of these regions, the book suffers badly by belonging to the day before yesterday. Details of primary-school regulations, currency problems, barracks lay-out and the like do indeed justify the translator's claim that the book is important 'as a primary source of information on the area'; but a good deal of the information is dull and trivial as well as being out of date. It is when the author's narrative deals with his general impressions and (to a less degree) with his personal experiences that its value becomes apparent." Peter Fleming
+ — Pacific Affairs 23:197 Je '50 1000w

San Francisco Chronicle p30 D 11 '49 100w

"The author has made no profound study of Outer Mongolia, but he records simply and honestly, what he saw and was told. He is mildly pro-Chinese and mildly anti-Soviet, but these patriotic preferences do not seem seriously to affect his impartiality as an observer."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p343 Je 2 '50 1150w

"The general lack of information on this region makes such a book as 'Chinese Agent in Mongolia' a valuable addition." Nicholas Poppe
+ Yale R n s 39:566 spring '50 280w

MAASS, EDGAR. World and paradise. 405p $3.50 Scribner
50-5798

A long historical novel based on the time of the Thirty years' war. Some of the leading characters are Karl, Count Harrach; Rosanna, whom he meets in a Moravian settlement; and Wallenstein.

"As the author has no skill in character delineation, it is not to be expected to find intelligent character motivation. There is the required historical name-dropping; we are presented with a straw-stuffed Wallenstein, Kepler the astronomer, Gustavus Adolphus and Richelieu. The dialogue is a mixture of nineteenth century melodrama and twentieth century slang. Even the most intense historical-novel fan can afford to skip this."
— Cath World 171:75 Ap '50 250w

Christian Science Monitor p4 Ap 8 '50 240w

"An extraordinarily confused and long-winded fictional account of the Thirty Years' War. . . Tedious and ponderous."
— Kirkus 18:29 Ja 15 '50 160w

"Scenes from the Thirty Years' War flicker across these four hundred pages with cinematic brightness, many of them historical episodes very close to the facts. . . Every character in this cloak-and-sword romance talks with such virtuosity that the acts of violence seem less real than the verbal tilts. Wallenstein muses aloud, the soldiers swear in lewd and explicit phrases, Czech patriots curse their oppressors and religious opponents duel with homilies. The love story of Rosanna and the rather priggish Karl simmers now and then but the major drama is the Thirty Years' War itself." Geoffrey Bruun
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 19 '50 600w

"It is a sad duty to report that Mr. Maass' Wallenstein emerges only as a villain of the type Orson Welles loves to play from behind a beard. A few episodes, such as the wanton destruction of Magdeburg, come off very well, but altogether the author seems to have been smothered by his oversized canvas. . . As a piece of seventeenth-century research, the novel is more valuable. Mr. Maass possesses an encyclopedic knowledge." Richard Plant
— + N Y Times p40 Mr 19 '50 450w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 33:32 Ap 29 '50 150w

"The material and the episodes for a fascinating novel are present in this lengthy account of the religious and political chaos which disrupted Europe in the 1600s, but Mr. Maass has written without imagination. As a result, what could have been a colorful adventure story of romance, intrigue and battle becomes a lethargic and pedestrian narrative, wherein the author has a deadening tendency to preach and moralize." L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 12 '50 210w

MACAULAY, MRS CAMILLE. Eating together; a cookbook for diabetics and their families; with a foreword by Solomon Strouse. 419p $3.50 Farrar, Straus

616.63 Cookery. Diet in disease. Diabetes
50-5511

A cookbook for diabetics based on the author's own experiences with an adult and a child diabetic. She indicates danger signals, need for watchfulness, emergency measures, etc. The second part of the book consists of planned menus, recipes, charts for comparative diets, substitutes, measurements of meat, etc. Index.

Booklist 46:214 Mr 1 '50

"'Eating Together' is an interesting and authoritative cookbook designed for families with a diabetic member." Morrison Wood
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 4 '50 240w

"This is an interesting, readable book with an unusual approach to the problems of feeding diabetic patients. . . This book will be useful to homemakers who are responsible for food service to diabetic patients. It will also be of interest to dietitians. The introduction should be read by any who are prescribing diets for diabetic patients." Louise Mojonnier
+ J Home Econ 42:664 O '50 260w

"The best diabetic cookbook I've seen. In these days of specialized cookbooks, this is outstanding not only in its field, but for its sane approach to diabetes."
+ Kirkus 18:42 Ja 15 '50 190w

Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Mr '50

MACAULAY, ROSE. World my wilderness. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 244p $3 Little 50-10197

"In the south of France Barbary, now seventeen, had been allowed to run wild with the maquis during the war, had had little formal education under Helen, her mother, degage in her negligence, lazily and pleasantly sensual, casual. Sent back to her father, in England, to be civilized, Barbary proves to be an incorrigible gamine, hostile towards her father's new wife, untidy and unmanageable. In the dubious company of young deserters and delinquents, she prowls the streets, steals first from home and then later from shops, is finally hurt when she runs away from the police. Helen, arriving precipitously from France, realizes that Barbary will only be happy with her, uses her charms and later the disagreeable admission of her real paternity to secure her freedom from her former husband." Kirkus

Booklist 47:69; 97 O 15 '50; N 1 '50

Bookmark 10:33 N '50 40w

"Miss Macaulay cannot quite reach through to Barbary despite precious writing about the lost, and the inevitable quotes from The Waste Land. It is with Helen, Barbary's mother, that the author seems most at home. . . A Barbary and a Helen cannot be comfortable in the same novel; yet, as depicted, neither of them seems worth a book on her own. However, this one is written with charm and distinction." Mary Sandrock
+ — Cath World 172:233 D '50 200w

"For the reader whose primary interest is in style, for the manner in which a tale is set forth, here is prose fresh and invigorating.

Even at the outset, one's imagination and intelligence are caught. As for the reader who seeks for plot above all else, he, too, will find satisfaction." Margaret Williamson

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 O 31 '50 600w

"Deft and delicate, this is for superior, lighter tastes."

+ Kirkus 18:436 Ag 1 '50 180w

"Those who have enjoyed Rose Macaulay through the years (and especially Crewe Train, 1926) will welcome this new novel, the first in ten years. . . It never lacks the purest entertainment, but it has little of the gaiety of RM's earlier delightful stories. Not to be missed." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 75:1661 O 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel

Manchester Guardian p4 My 12 '50 270w

"An inadequate novelette. . . Helen, widow of an easy-going collaborator whom the Resistance have liquidated . . . I find it difficult to credit. Nothing that she says or does persuades me that she is really such a Juno, such a tigress, a great classical scholar, a formidable gambler, as well as being 'a true lady, being an Honourable and all that.' . . Miss Macaulay comes to no real conclusion." John Richardson

New Statesman & Nation 39:586 My 20 '50 390w

"It is the older generation in the book which gives it reality: Helen Michel, her French mother-in-law who detests her, her former husband whom she wounded so deeply and whom she is to wound more deeply still, and her successor, his second wife, whose dread of Helen makes her all too human. Without these characters to offset the strange pair of children, the book would be quite unbelievable. Yet 'The World My Wilderness' is written with poignancy, with memorable descriptions, with a lovely cadence of language, and with warmth of heart." Virgilia Peterson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 O 29 '50 800w

"Miss Macaulay has outlined vividly and effectively a terrible perplexity and confusion. Yet she has kept us at a civilized distance from the experience itself." Isabelle Mallet

+ N Y Times p6 O 29 '50 320w

New Yorker 26:162 N 4 '50 100w

"Her book is disquieting but not alarmingly so. In her urbane and lightly humorous manner, she tells us that we all carry our wilderness with us." J. V.

San Francisco Chronicle p21 D 3 '50 400w

"It is told in a clear and at times beautiful style, without heat, but with competence that evokes a warm response of distress and concern in the imagination of the reader." Margaret Long

+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 N 11 '50 800w

Reviewed by Frank Swinnerton

Spec 184:653 My 12 '50 1550w

"The World My Wilderness contains a deeper note of compassion than any of her earlier novels; not her most amusing book, it is certainly her most moving one. It brings up to date the situation so wittily exploited in Crewe Train, that of the barbarian at odds with civilized society. The young heroine is in fact called Barbary. . . Barbary is . . . a touching figure, and among the subtlest of the author's creations, but the people who surround her do not come wholly to life; accurately observed, chosen to illustrate a particular way of life or attitude of mind, they remain at one remove from reality, in the world of books."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p292 My 12 '50 3250w

MCBAIN, JAMES WILLIAM. Colloid science. 450p il $8 for sale by Reinhold; text ed $6 Heath

541.3452 Colloids 50-9216

"A presentation of the current knowledge of colloid phenomena, together with some discussion of its application. The phenomena are discussed from the standpoint of physics and physical chemistry." (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

"For the reader who has had no background in colloid chemistry this book will probably be difficult to understand. For those who already have some knowledge in this branch of science and for those who are responsible for graduate courses in colloid chemistry it will be extremely valuable." E. A. Hauser

+ Chem & Eng N 28:3836 O 30 '50 250w

N Y New Tech Bks 35:67 S '50

MCCAFFERY, JOHN KERWIN MICHAEL, ed. Ernest Hemingway: the man and his work. 351p $3.50 World pub.

813 Hemingway, Ernest 50-10036

An anthology of collected criticism, containing three personality sketches, and eighteen critical studies. The biographical essays are: A note on Ernest Hemingway, by John Groth; Hemingway in Paris, by Gertrude Stein; and A portrait of Mister Papa, by Malcolm Cowley. Among the authors of the critical studies are: Max Eastman; Eliot Paul; Maxwell Geismar; Alfred Kazin; James T. Farrell; Edmund Wilson; John Peale Bishop; E. B. Burgum.

Booklist 47:73 O 15 '50

"Mr. McCaffery, in his own introduction, says only in some wordy prose that Hemingway is important. But he has done an intelligent service in bringing these estimates together. This is the right time for a book on Hemingway." Walter Havighurst

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 1 '50 300w

Kirkus 18:450 Ag 1 '50 190w

"The student will find this a convenient collection; and much of it should interest the general reader." H. W. Hart

+ Library J 75:1826 O 15 '50 90w

"The book has yet to be written that really explains what makes Hemingway run, but if it is ever written, the writer of it will surely have found in this collection more clews than in any volume outside Hemingway's work itself." Milton Rugoff

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 O 15 '50 1000w

Reviewed by Granville Hicks

N Y Times p5 O 15 '50 2100w

"What is significant about this anthology of Hemingway criticism is in the long run the fact that, whether Hemingway at a given moment is or is not at his best, his work, as the editor notes in his introduction, 'has stimulated critical thinking of a very high order.' This thinking, as here represented—and Mr. McCaffery, let me repeat, has chosen admirably—is worth the time of anyone seriously interested in seriously conceived and executed contemporary fiction." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 23 '50 900w

Reviewed by Harrison Smith

Sat R of Lit 33:17 O 28 '50 1200w

MCCAMY, JAMES LUCIAN. Administration of American foreign affairs. 364p $5 Knopf

327.73 U.S.—Foreign policy. U.S. State, Department of. U.S.—Diplomatic and consular service 50-8595

"An explanation of how the work gets done, not only in the Department of State but in more than a hundred Federal agencies involved in the administration of every aspect of our foreign affairs. President and Congress, the departments and Foreign Service, civilian and military officials, and all who conduct our foreign relations pass under the author's critical review." (Publisher's note) Index.

"This book is a must for any citizen who would understand the complex structure of America's foreign relations. It is a scientific treatise on the manner in which these relations are conducted, with only occasional reference to the relations as such. The author writes authoritatively from a very wide experience." L. M. Sears

MCCAMY, J. L.—Continued
+ Ann Am Acad 272:214 N '50 360w
Booklist 46:347 Jl 15 '50

"This is highly competent work, informative in detail and balanced in judgment." Edward Littlejohn
+ Commonweal 52:565 S 15 '50 450w
Current Hist 19:230 O '50 70w

"Timely volume strongly recommended for public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 75:1178 Jl '50 170w

"The key to the successful coordination of foreign policy administration is seen by Mr. McCamy in the creation of a new central staff agency in the Executive Office of the President. If the organization and functioning of such an agency are sketched in only roughly, this book nonetheless remains as challenging and scholarly an analysis of organizing American government for the successful administration of foreign affairs as is now available." R. K. Carr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 13 '50 750w

"Mr. McCamy's book is not really intended for the layman. Some of the author's personal views on such diverse matters as bipartisanship or the quality of the American press are open to argument; and his disregard of the very genuine spiritual aspects of American foreign policy reveals a blind spot. Still these points do not affect the main burden of a book that will be of considerable interest to anyone concerned with the actual administration of government." J. B. Oakes
+ N Y Times p22 S 10 '50 450w

"The poor old State Department must be shell-shocked by the ravings of the left that its trouble is Fascism and imperialism and by the ravings of the right that its trouble is Communism. We can hardly expect it to hear this quiet and constructive author, who seems to know what the real trouble is and what should be done about it. Citizens should read this book—and yell." Basil Rauch
Sat R of Lit 33:15 S 2 '50 750w
School & Society 72:254 O 14 '50 40w

MCCAMY, JAMES LUCIAN, and MCCAMY, JULIA TEXIE BOGGESS. Government publications for the citizen; a report of the Public library inquiry. 139p $2.50 Columbia univ. press
025.173 U.S.—Government publications. Libraries—U.S. 49-11260
For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Reviewed by H. F. Gosnell
Am Pol Sci R 44:503 Je '50 150w

"This report of the Public Library Inquiry places all libraries, and especially the public libraries, in debt to Professor McCamy for a stimulating and challenging analysis of the status of the publication and distribution of government documents today. Coming upon the problem as an 'observer from the outside,' he has succeeded in making an objective description of an institution that has so far outgrown its legal basis as to be defeating a good many of the purposes for which it was established." L. C. Merritt
+ Library Q 20:139 Ap '50 3800w
Special Libraries 41:145 Ap '50 120w
Wis Lib Bul 46:11 N '50

MCCARTHY, MRS MARGUERITE GILBERT. Aunt Ella's cook book. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 205p $2.75 Little 641.5 Cookery. Country life 49-50015
"A country cookbook, prefaced by several chapters of the author's early experiences in the home of her Aunt Ella, whose fame as a cook was widespread." (Wis Lib Bul) Index.

Reviewed by Mary Meade
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ja 29 '50 160w
Kirkus 17:529 S 15 '49 130w

"A good cookbook for any collection."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:23 F '50

MCCARTHY, MARY. Cast a cold eye. 212p $2.75 Harcourt
50-9761
A group of short stories, all of which have been previously published in magazines. Contents: The weeds; The friend of the family; The cicerone; The old men; Yonder peasant, who is he?; The blackguard; C.Y.E.

Booklist 47:62 O 1 '50

"Her workmanship is a delight; she uses the English language masterfully, it says exactly what she wants it to, but that unfortunately is little. The startling effects give momentary illusions of rare understanding but the final result is that the author herself seems to be suffering from illusion." Mary Sandrock
Cath World 172:152 N '50 240w

Reviewed by Milton Crane
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 1 '50 360w

"This writing woman knows what she is writing about, and she knows how to write." George Miles
+ Commonweal 52:634 O 6 '50 420w

"Part of the charm of Mary McCarthy's stories lies in their aftermath. They seem slight while you are reading them, but afterward you find you do not forget them. . . Clear and direct rather than stylized, it should be popular with all except inveterate haters of short stories." Shirley Barker
+ Library J 75:1507 S 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
New Repub 123:18 N 27 '50 550w

"The McCarthy pictures have horror in them, and all her characters live in hell, but there is nothing depressing about reading her stories. Her style has such verve and swiftness, is so compelling, that the reader follows after her, on the scavenger hunt for the revealing incident, the ultimate perception that will give away another person and deliver him, naked and quivering, into his understanding. There is an intellectual satisfaction to be found here, gratification in a style that is so perfect a tool for its purpose." Lorine Pruette
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 24 '50 700w

"Miss McCarthy's eye is cold indeed and almost surgically sharp; and while the object of its merciless contemplation may be a fictional Francis Cleary or an actual grandmother remembered, the reader has a feeling of being watched, and just as coldly, himself. At the end of 'The Friend of the Family,' the bitterest and most amusing of these pieces, he is even asked to identify himself with the quotidian, casual monster that has been dissected before his eyes. And it is some measure of Miss McCarthy's power as a satirist . . . that this distressing invitation seems neither forced nor inappropriate, but merely deserved." Dudley Fitts
+ N Y Times p9 S 24 '50 450w

"Her brief incisive pieces are etched with corrosive acid, it is true; but they still have a savage honesty, a bristling sensibility, and at bottom a pitiless humility." Robert Halsband
Sat R of Lit 33:23 O 7 '50 600w

"It is the McCarthy pursuit of sonorous words and elegant expression that makes puppets of her characters in these stories and gives to her most truthful perceptions an air of very intellectual, very elegant emptiness. Only in The Cicerone . . . does Author McCarthy recall what good company she can be when she stops her hollow groans and starts kicking her words around."
Time 56:80 O 2 '50 340w

MCCARTHY, RAYMOND GERALD, and DOUGLASS, EDGAR MERRITT. Alcohol and social responsibility; a new educational approach. 304p $3.50 Crowell
178.4 Liquor problem 50-5280
"[An attempt at] an objective treatment of the problems of alcohol based on scientific facts. . . In Part I, Basic Principles and Facts, historical and contemporary drinking practices and attitudes are discussed. . . In Part II, An Approach Through Education, the educative influence on personality development of all the forces in the environment—family, neighborhood, church and school—are stressed." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"Here is a book long overdue, a close approach to excellence, by two schoolmen, disciples of learning, yet pedagogues by profession. There is little if any vestige of bias, but throughout a rigorous acceptance of the coin of truth that has two sides." Haven Emerson
+ Am J Pub Health 40:753 Je '50 470w

"An informative and well-balanced survey of alcoholism as a social problem." A. R. Lindesmith + Am J Soc 56:300 N '50 550w

Reviewed by R. Straus
Am Soc R 15:457 Je '50 210w

Reviewed by E. D. Burdick
Ann Am Acad 269:177 My '50 430w

Booklist 46:212 Mr 1 '50

"A fine research job." William Yates
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 19 '50 60w

"This is a work for the teacher and administrator, not to be overlooked by ministers or other public servants. It is not specifically designed for use as a textbook. . . I commend the chapter on social responsibility. It is an eloquent plea for a realignment of social attitudes which might bring both drys and moderationists into concerted efforts for objective education." A. R. King
+ Christian Century 67:433 Ap 5 '50 1250w

Reviewed by A. W. Taylor
Churchman 164:16 Jl '50 240w

Kirkus 17:643 N 15 '49 180w

School & Society 71:95 F 11 '50 30w

"A most valuable study of alcohol and social responsibility." T. E. Christensen
+ School R 58:239 Ap '50 850w

"This McCarthy-Douglass book removes the subject of alcohol from the emotional, prejudicial aura that has obscured teaching efforts these many years. It stands on a par with the basic texts in other fields such as biology, economics, history, and the like which make up the standard curriculum of our teachers colleges." Laurie Billstone
+ Survey 86:370 Jl '50 550w

"The book suffers somewhat from overemphasis on the school program and underemphasis on the problem of alcohol from the point of view of mental health. . . The book will, however, be valuable to teachers and parents, and it has the great merit of demonstrating the need for further study of social responsibility in relation to alcohol."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 6:217 Je '50 260w

MCCAUSLAND, ELIZABETH. Careers in the arts; fine and applied. 278p $3.75 Day 706.9 Art. Art, Commercial, as a profession
50-9439

"The book is in two parts, the first part treating of architecture, painting (easel, mural and portrait), sculpture, graphic art and teaching, the second part advertising, illustration, printing, posters, photography, cartooning, industrial design, interior design and decoration, textile, costume and stage design, ceramics, display and jewelry. The concluding chapter gives a general consideration of 'Education for the Arts,' which is treated in the earlier chapters with specific reference to their special topics. The characteristics and the advantages and disadvantages of each branch of art as a career, its present status and prospects and the means of qualifying for its professional or avocational pursuit are authoritatively reviewed, and many of its successful practitioners are mentioned." Springf'd Republican

---

Booklist 47:100 N 1 '50

"Applied art seems often far removed from fine art with its lofty objectives. Miss McCausland seems to be able to see the problems, at whatever level; her manual will help many a perplexed artist." Dorothy Adlow
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 D 21 '50 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '50

"Extremely readable even stimulating book." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 75:1665 O 1 '50 100w

"When choosing a career in the field of art, the student will find [here] helpful suggestions and accurate information that will be of help to him."
+ School Arts 50:6a D '50 150w

"It is an illuminating and suggestive document of cultural history." R. S. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p8D O 1 '50 370w

MCCLOY, HELEN (MRS DAVIS DRESSER). Through a glass, darkly. 238p $2.50 Random house 50-7488

Detective story.

Booklist 46:304 Je 1 '50

Chicago Sun p5 My 9 '50 60w

Reviewed by Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Je 11 '50 60w

+ Kirkus 18:150 Mr 1 '50 90w

"A sensitive and literate mystery with engrossing atmosphere."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Je 4 '50 150w

"This book is so fascinating in its paranormal lore, so skillful in its plotting, and so absorbing as a study of people under the pressure of life in a girls' school, that even readers who admired the original story will find fresh enjoyment here. Miss McCloy has always resembled the best British writers of the Sayers-Blake-Allingham school in her ability to combine a warm novel of likable people with a flawless deductive plot. Now she adds an almost Carr-like evocation of terror to produce probably her best novel to date." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p18 Je 18 '50 180w

"Altogether, a lively problem, perhaps a little too ingenious for its own good."
New Yorker 26:123 My 6 '50 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 My 21 '50 100w

"For chills, thrill, suspense, adroit detecting, and general eye-popping excitement this is way out in front!"
+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 My 20 '50 30w

MCCLUNG, ROBERT M. Ruby throat; the story of a humming bird; il. by [the author]. [48p] $2 Morrow
Humming birds—Juvenile literature
50-4796

In pictures and simple text the tale of a whole year in the life of a humming bird is told for ages five to eight. The author is assistant in the department of mammals and birds at the New York Zoological park.

Booklist 47:47 S 15 '50

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

Kirkus 18:384 Jl 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by E. W. Turpin
Library J 75:1671 O 1 '50 60w

"A wonderful story. The pictures are both exact and charming, many touched with colors. It makes another fine introduction to nature study, for families, schools and libraries to share." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 O 29 '50 170w

"Every bird-lover enjoys his rare glimpses of the hummingbird. . . In this simple, authentic nature book he is brought into steady view for our closer acquaintance. . . Large

MCCLUNG, R. M.—Continued
type and the author's pleasingly colored illustrations help to make this an attractive book." Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p42 O 15 '50 150w
New Yorker 26:187 D 2 '50 60w
Wis Lib Bul 46:20 N '50

MCCONNELL, ROBERTA. Never marry a ranger; il. by Ann and John Groth. 261p $2.75 Prentice-Hall

634.9 Forests and forestry—U.S. 50-7260

A humorous book in which a Utah forest ranger's wife describes her various trials and tribulations.

Booklist 46:311 Je 15 '50

"The trouble with most funny books is that they begin to pall about half way thru, but this one manages to sustain its tempo and interest almost consistently. Perhaps one of the reasons is that it has so much actual meat. Just as your mental jaws begin to ache from laughing at funny cracks along comes some highly interesting honest-to-goodness information about fighting forest fires or the ways of wild life, or some particularly wise observation on human nature. . . It is my guess that this book will soon be essential equipment for every forest ranger, from here on out, and it may preserve the humor and sanity of his wife. It should be essential equipment, too, for summer cabins and hunting cabins and a lot of readers who want a good laugh and a whiff of the forest." Mildred Walker

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Je 11 '50 490w

"If the hand here is not the lightest in the world, this is a readable record of a varied and vigorous career."

Kirkus 18:196 Mr 15 '50 140w

"Just light froth, but valuable for the teenager who is making the transition from juvenile to adult reading." M. D. Read

Library J 75:1057 Je 15 '50 40w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 25 '50 180w

"Mrs. McConnell is a plain spoken gal who never calls a spade a dear little buttercup. You can't be delicate and dainty when you live as close to nature as she does. She writes chiefly for the amusement of her reader and her book is sure to be a favorite among the laugh-provoking books of the season. The pen drawings by Ann and John Groth will add to the laughs." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Je 18 '50 400w

Reviewed by Pamela Taylor

+ Sat R of Lit 33:17 Jl 29 '50 470w

MCCORD, DAVID THOMPSON WATSON. Star by day [poems]. 74p $2.50 Doubleday

811 50-8540

"Sixteen years stand between the publication of 'The Crows,' David McCord's second notable collection of poems, and 'A Star by Day,' his third. . . Here again, drawing from northern New England, is Mr. McCord's quiet, clean-cut and conversational underlining of natural events." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '50
Kirkus 18:236 Ap 1 '50 90w

"For the excellence of its craftsmanship, its individuality, its clarity of communication, 'A Star by Day' deserves a wide audience of readers." Ruth Lechlitner

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 27 '50 420w

"There is hardly a poem in the book which is not in itself both interesting in concept and admirable in technique; yet I cannot help but miss in this collection a quality of warmth and fervor and passion." S. H. Hay

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:17 N 18 '50 410w

MCCORMICK, RICHARD P. Experiment in independence; New Jersey in the critical period, 1781-1789. 338p $4 Rutgers univ. press

974.9 New Jersey—History 50-7186

Documented history of the post-Revolutionary years, 1781-1789, in the state of New Jersey. The author points out the differences between East and West Jersey, but considers that they were both in favor of a strong federal union. Bibliography. Index.

"It is a startling commentary on American scholarship that we have had to wait until the publication of this book for an adequate scholarly history of even one of the thirteen states during the Confederation period. . . McCormick's work is based on thorough research, much of it in unused materials, and it is remarkably free from so many of the assumptions concerning the period which have little to recommend them except their antiquity." Merrill Jensen

+ Am Hist R 56:128 O '50 480w

"Dr. McCormick has done an outstanding piece of research on a subject which he knows thoroughly. . . Recommended for college libraries and special historical collections, not for the average public library." R. P. Tubby

+ Library J 75:693 Ap 15 '50 110w

"While there were like problems of post-war reconstruction in every state, New Jersey's own 'experiment in independence' illuminates its notable contribution to the formation of 'a more perfect union.'" S. I. Pomerantz

+ N Y Times p24 My 28 '50 220w
U S Quarterly Bkl 6:334 S '50 200w

MCCORMICK, ROBERT RUTHERFORD. War without Grant; cartography by Axel Kellstrom. 245p maps $7.50 Bond Wheelwright company, 145 E 63d st, N.Y. 21

973.73 U.S.—History—Civil war—Campaigns and battles 50-11041

"An evaluation and interpretation of the 21 battles of the [Civil] war before Grant took supreme command." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Index.

"The book is a handy compendium of military tactics and strategy as practiced in the Civil war, and is valuable for ready reference to gain a quick perspective of the stirring events of the '60s. If partisans are sometimes offended by the ruthless treatment which the author frequently gives their favorite heroes, they will at least join him in his accolade of Grant, who emerges as the greatest of the Union generals." R. L. Kincaid

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 26 '50 1000w
Springf'd Republican p70 Ag 6 '50 130w

MCCORMICK, WILFRED. Bases loaded. 182p $2 Putnam

50-6310

"Bronc Burnett, star athlete from tiny Sonora, N. M. accompanies the town's junior baseball team into the Western Sectional tournament . . . and pitches it to the inevitable victory. . . Cap'n Al Carter, coach of the team, still is offering advice on how to play baseball which the young reader may easily adapt to his own use." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Reviewed by Robert Cromie

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 14 '50 80w

"The situations are improbable. Strictly for the diamond-happy."

— Kirkus 18:134 Mr 1 '50 140w

"The best of the Bronc Burnett series so far. . . We have the usual good baseball strategy and baseball lore imparted by Captain Al Carter, the coach, and this time the story and dialogue are credible." Lillian Morrison

+ Library J 75:882 My 15 '50 70w

"It is a fast-action all-baseball story that boys around twelve will like." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 11 '50 50w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown

N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '50 110w

MACCOWN, EUGENE. Siege of innocence. 279p $3 Doubleday

49-49275

The story of Bruce Andrews, a handsome and innocent young American would-be artist, who goes to Paris to paint. He has several encounters with predatory women, but he keeps to his intentions of becoming an artist without indulging in riotous living, even in questionable situations. When he finally falls in love it is with the least likely woman he has met.

" 'The Siege of Innocence' is one of the most wicked novels of the year, but its wickedness is both veiled and satirized by the author's wit, which is as sharp as it is sofisticated. . . Some of the outrageous international crowd which populates its pages are, if not recognizable as individuals, so well typed that their characteristics might fit any one of many—like the kind of slip covers that adjust themselves to various sizes and even to divergent shapes. For some readers part of the pleasure of reading probably will be trying to identify the characters." Fanny Butcher

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 5 '50 650w

"An elaborate, and exasperating portrayal of an innocent abroad, the comedy here is arch, and the game is certainly not worth the candle."

— Kirkus 17:658 D 1 '49 120w

"Mr. MacCown evidently is familiar with the world which he describes, and his knowledge of art and architecture seems wide. But he writes in a style embellished with stilted and impossible dialogue, and so artificial and cliche-ridden as to remind one of the parody in the Nausicaa section of Joyce's 'Ulysses.' " J. J. Maloney

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 F 5 '50 380w

Reviewed by Barbara Bond

N Y Times p31 F 5 '50 140w

"Mr. MacCown, whose writing is more than a trifle overwrought, has the good sense to let his cast of exhibitionists speak for themselves and be themselves, and, as a matter of fact, they all come through rather clearly, with the exception of young Mr. Andrews, who seems even more of a fool than Mr. MacCown perhaps meant him to be."

+ — New Yorker 25:90 F 4 '50 120w

"The writing for the most part is clear and simple, but there are occasional lapses into the purple. . . However, the technical data about painting and studios is blended into the story with knowledge and artistry and the whole effect is of a slight, well-written, sophisticated and amusing story of a colony that expired in 1939, but which is now apparently being revived in the same areas of Paris." C. C. W.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 19 '50 350w

Reviewed by Pamela Taylor

Sat R of Lit 33:30 Mr 4 '50 270w

MCCOY, JOHN PLEASANT. Big as life. 241p $2.75 Harper

50-6679

A story of life in a western Virginia town two decades ago. The tale concerns chiefly the love affairs of sixty-four year old Flave Arrington, the richest man in the county.

"The author, attempting to make hilarious the efforts of old Flave to play Sir Galahad to the dull, wanton Flossie while the whole village snickered, only succeeds in creating an earthy, tragic saga of backwoods vulgarity. The novel has all the elements of an Erskine Caldwell job: sordid sexual situations, clodhopper humor, corn likker, dancehall fights and 'maw and paw' with a houseful of brats." R. L. Blakesley

Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Ap 23 '50 290w

Kirkus 18:37 Ja 15 '50 190w

"The writing of 'Big as Life' reveals the amateur, both in the best and the worst senses of that word. Mr. McCoy is often a bit too explicit, too repetitious, too impressed with his obligation to the chronology of his tale. And at the end he ties all his loose threads into a neat bundle, giving his ribald story somewhat of an old-fashioned Victorian conclusion. The novel as a whole, however, is vivid, vulgar, packed with friendly laughter and—referring once more to its very apt title—it is definitely 'Big as Life.' " F. H. Bullock

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 23 '50 500w

"While John McCoy's story of December devotion is scarcely as 'big as life,' it is believable and mildly amusing." Charlotte Capers

N Y Times p31 Ap 23 '50 90w

MCCOY, ROBERT A. Practical photography. 221p il col pl $4 McKnight

770 Photography

"This book is written as a nontechnical text for high schools, a beginning course for colleges, and as a guide for the amateur. It is designed so that the chapters need not be studied consecutively although it is suggested that this is the most logical procedure. . . It is written in a nontechnical manner to tell you how to do the things which are so self-evident for the experienced professional photographer and so difficult for the beginner. Only as many technical terms and formulas as are necessary for clarity are used." (Pref) Selected bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:305 Je 1 '50

"Probably no information is presented which is not already available in other photographic literature, but the book reads well and should be useful to any amateur who wants to take the first step beyond the Sunday snapshot stage." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 75:875 My 15 '50 90w

"Mr. McCoy has anticipated the questions of the beginning photographer and hobbyist and presented the answers in an easy-to-understand manner reflecting his wide teaching experience. Even technical details are reduced to such simple terms that they become an immediately useful part of the photographer's store of information."

+ School Arts 50:adv S '50 170w

MCCRACKEN, HENRY NOBLE. Hickory limb. 212p $2.75 Scribner

376.8 Vassar college 50-9770

The president emeritus of Vassar college records his more than thirty years at that institution, and describes his struggles to put his ideas on education for women into practice. During the course of the book he gives some history of Vassar before his own day.

Booklist 47:89 N 1 '50

Bookmark 10:30 N '50 40w

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '50

Kirkus 18:574 S 15 '50 160w

"Educators, alumnae and alumni of every college in this land, trustees and administrators of every kind of institution—educational, religious or philanthropic—will find it instructive and rewarding reading. Librarians are urged to read it and bring it to the attention of every person they can reach within these groups." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 75:1401 S 1 '50 100w

"Pleasantly discursive and frequently funny narrative; more pages than not bring at least a smile. The book undoubtedly has a special appeal to readers who have known Vassar. This particular alumna . . . found it quite fascinating to see another face of events in her own time. Beyond such personal preoccupations, general readers with any interest in colleges and the ways they grow and are run will find 'The Hickory Limb' enlightening and amusing." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 O 15 '50 500w

"Not all Vassar women will want this book! Those who do read it, however, will surely delight in the inside story of the conflicts whose reverberations shook the campus from time to time. . . Anybody interested in modern higher education will find this good reading. . . The objectivity and resulting humor with which [the author] records his relationship to a community of young women at work with their older teachers make this a refreshing book." M. M. Horton

MCCRACKEN, H. N.—Continued

+ N Y Times p5 O 1 '50 460w

New Yorker 26:135 O 7 '50 130w

MCCREA, RUTH D. Present for Molly; il. by [the author]. 59p $1.75 Aladdin

49-11861

Story for third and fourth grade girls. Molly, an orphan, who was bored with her life at boarding school, was invited to spend her vacation at the home of her elderly guardian, Mr Caruthers. He lived in a large, mysterious house, and he was an invalid, a rather dreary prospect for Molly. But the summer was far from dreary.

"This dainty pink and white book with the miniature of its heroine on the cover is just right for the little girl who has her own bookshelf and handles her books with loving care." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 Ja 29 '50 140w

"Plot seems contrived and characterization unreal, but story has a sweetness and orphan-appeal that many small girls will enjoy." J. E. Tompkins

+ — Library J 75:177 F 1 '50 80w

"Since little girls of 7 to 10 are normally sentimentalists at heart, they will enjoy this story. The style is pleasant and the illustrations are attractive, some showing considerable originality in design." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p20 F 5 '50 210w

MCCROSSEN, VINCENT A. New renaissance of the spirit. 252p $3 Philosophical lib.

901 Civilization, Christian. Twentieth century 49-11722

"Professor McCrossen, of Marietta College, proposes that the City of Man become the City of God through general adoption of Roman Catholic organization and ideals. He interprets history as an alternation between spiritual and sensate ages: Greece and the Middle Ages were spiritual; Rome, the Renaissance, and the present era are sensate, abounding in confusion and violence." Crozer Q

"It is pleasant to see a book of this sort in a series which includes works by Munsterberg, Blanck, Einstein, Barth, and other distinguished 'aliens,' for Professor McCrossen is distinctly on the side of the angels first and last. . . Passages in his pages will be comforting and tremendously exciting to many a soul. Would that his evident anticipation of good things to come, were as soundly based and persuasive as his indictment of the past and the present."

+ Cath World 171:79 Ap '50 170w

"The book's specific citations and quotations come almost entirely from the Bible, Spengler, and three noncommunistic Russians. It deserves thoughtful reading, although it would have gained strength had it been condensed to one half its length. Because of its uncompromisingly dogmatic approach one is surprised that its publisher chances to be the Philosophical Library. There is no reason to dispute Professor McCrossen's expectation that many present-day scholars will hesitate to accept his thesis. He looks to the future for vindication." Earl Cranston

Crozer Q 27:270 Jl '50 470w

MCCUNE, GEORGE MCAFEE, and GREY, ARTHUR L. Korea today; issued under the auspices of the International secretariat, Institute of Pacific relations. 372p map $5 Harvard univ. press

951.9 Korea—Politics and government

50-8875

"The present volume attempts to give a comprehensive study of both South and North Korea since the liberation in 1945 from Japanese imperialism. The author [knew] Korea from his youth. He was born in Pyongyang. At the time of his death in 1948, he was a member of the faculty of the University of California. The manuscript of his book on Korea was nearly completed; before publication, his trusted assistants brought the manuscript up to date. The author gives some space to Korea as a Japanese colony, but the principal attention is directed to the American and Russian occupations and the development of the native governments in South Korea and North Korea." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Bibliography. Index.

"This objective, penetrating, and scholarly study of Korea today gives the reader practically all the information that he needs in order to review the back-ground and history of that unfortunate country up until the invasion of South Korea on June 25, 1950." G. E. Taylor

+ Am Pol Sci R 44:1031 D '50 1350w

"Korea Today—a starkly utilitarian volume—is the most comprehensive and up-to-date background book on Korea currently available. . . The introduction to Korea Today states that U.S. responsibility for the failure to unify Korea was 'enormous . . . a responsibility shared, but not lessened, by Russia.' Here, it seems to me, the author bends over backwards too far in the effort to be objective." C. J. Rolo

+ — Atlantic 186:78 S '50 850w

Booklist 47:10 S 1 '50

Bookmark 10:5 O '50 40w

"The sudden appearance of an undeclared war in Korea has created a vigorous public demand for information regarding the hermit nation. Thus, Prof. McCune's book, appearing at this moment, possesses all the elements of timeliness. . . The book is largely a library investigation, inasmuch as the author did not study the two governments on the spot. From this deficiency stems the principal defect of the treatise. . . In an attempt to maintain scrupulous impartiality between the United States and Soviet Russia, the narrative becomes painfully monotonous. Undoubtedly, these days, power politics is a part of every international scene. But it is not the only factor in international relations. . . Thus the book seeks to maintain a scholarly level by avoiding all moral judgments." Kenneth Colegrove

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Jl 23 '50 700w

Reviewed by M. B. Jansen

Christian Science Monitor p6 Ag 12 '50 1250w

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '50

"Before his death on November 5, 1948, George M. McCune was the foremost authority on Korea in the United States. The manuscript of this book, which he left unfinished, was completed by his wife and one of his students before the outbreak of war in Korea on June 25, 1950. What it describes, therefore, is of course not Korea today but Korea yesterday. Nevertheless, it is probably the best book on the subject which has yet been published in any language, and it provides the reader with the background necessary for an understanding of what the shooting is about." H. C. Hinton

+ Commonweal 52:419 Ag 4 '50 750w

Current Hist 19:164 S '50 100w

Foreign Affairs 29:162 O '50 110w

"A timely and authoritative volume." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 75:1294 Ag '50 100w

Reviewed by Stewart Meacham

Nation 171:111 Jl 29 '50 1000w

"Long after the smoke of battle has cleared, our statesmen as well as the general public should continue to consult Korea Today, for the problems of our Korean policy are merely a variation on themes which are repeated throughout much of Asia." E. O. Reischauer

+ New Repub 123:19 Ag 14 '50 1000w

"Its principal author, the late George M. McCune, of the University of California, was uniquely versed in the problems of modern Korea and American policy there, and his book makes it plain that our present unavoidable military effort can only be a prelude to the test of American policy which will come after the fighting stops. Widely read and pondered, this scholarly summary of our record in Korea may be worth several divisions in the long struggle that lies ahead of us in Asia." J. K. Fairbank

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Jl 23 '50 1750w

"At this moment a better source book for all sorts of information on Korea could scarcely be found. . . There is, in addition, a formidable, comprehensive but extremely useful bibliography. In writing this book, Mr. McCune obviously wanted to be entirely objective and historically impartial. But in the light of what has now happened, it will seem to many readers that in his eagerness to stand up straight he leaned rather well backward." R. A. Smith

+ N Y Times p1 Jl 16 '50 370w

"Useful and lucid work."

+ New Yorker 26:68 Ag 5 '50 200w

Reviewed by W. T. deBary

Pol Sci Q 65:586 D '50 1450w

"Nowhere else is so comprehensive an analysis of Korea's past five years available in a single volume. A scholarly book, carefully documented, its publication at this time is fortunate. Its excellent assembling of facts, its clear and objective explanation of what they mean, gives us an opportunity to understand the present we are caught in, and our responsibility therein." Eleanor Breed

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 16 '50 1100w

"Here we have for the first time a rounded, profound, and scholarly study of the Southern Korean scene, and as much as it has been possible for outsiders to obtain and deduce about developments in the Northern part of the peninsula. The reasons behind the startling difference between the military, economic, and morale potential of the two states may be found therein. Publication was hastened by events but the work had been in preparation many years." J. M. Minifie

+ Sat R of Lit 33:9 Jl 22 '50 1200w

MCCUTCHEON, JOHN TINNEY. Drawn from memory [autobiography] containing many of the author's famous cartoons and sketches. 460p il $5 Bobbs

B or 92 Artists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.

Anecdotal, informal autobiographical reminiscences by the man who was for more than fifty years editorial cartoonist on the Chicago Tribune. Mr McCutcheon traveled widely and his book relates adventures and experiences in the far east, in Africa, and in South America. Many pages are devoted to life on his island home in the Bahamas, which he bought just in time to spend his honeymoon there.

Booklist 47:59 O 1 '50

"Of all the heralded autobiografies of the year, none has been more eagerly awaited by more, and more different kinds of, readers than John T. McCutcheon's 'Drawn from Memory.' No life story could have a wider, richer background, as a hero a warmer or more beloved person, nor tell a story more truly American. . . The richness of the American heritage of opportunity, of self-reliance, of the spirit of adventure and of genuine warm-hearted friendliness has never been told with more truth than in 'Drawn from Memory.'" Fanny Butcher

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 10 '50 950w

"There was no bitterness in his heart, no vitriol in his ink. Just as the cartoons disclosed what manner of man he was, so this book is the man himself, genial, informal, open." Harry Hansen

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 10 '50 800w

"'Drawn From Memory' is McCutcheon's highly personalized story told in a rambling, friendly style. There is no pretense in these pages. It is good reading from first to last. The author was fortunate that in his wife he had not only an attractive traveling companion but an intelligent editor who brought out this book after her husband's death in 1949." Ernst Von Hartz

+ N Y Times p7 S 10 '50 800w

+ New Yorker 26:106 S 30 '50 190w

"The autobiography of a thoroughly happy man, who was not only a public figure known by his work to thousands, but who also wrote in a most pleasing and interesting style, is bound to be a book that will be widely read and enjoyed, and the reviewer's task is consequently made vastly easier." C. W. Wilder

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 S 24 '50 800w

"In the life of the author there seems never to have been a dull moment and in his 'Drawn from Memory' certainly none for the reader." J. N. Darling

+ Sat R of Lit 33:44 O 7 '50 950w

MCDEVITT, JEAN. Mr Apple's family; il. by Ninon. 118p $2 Doubleday

50-7146

Mr and Mrs Apple had five children whose names were MacIntosh, Jonathan, Delicious, Snow and Ann. They were city people but when the family got too big for a city apartment Mrs Apple insisted on moving. And this is the story of how they found the little house in an apple orchard, painted it and lived in it, all told for the youngest readers.

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun p3 Ap 29 '50 100w

"This is a fine family-life story about delightful children whom little readers will take into their own circle immediately, wishing that they, too, might have such a grand time in a house in an apple orchard. The pictures by Ninon are just right." A. L. Shea

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ap 30 '50 140w

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '50

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 26:189 My '50 90w

Kirkus 18:177 Mr 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by Louise Davis

Library J 75:631 Ap 15 '50 70w

Reviewed by N. L. Rathbun

Library J 75:1197 Jl '50 50w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 23 '50 100w

"The amiability of the Apples, their democratic readiness to give each other a turn, the fun they had painting the roof, acquiring two pets (useful for keeping the grass short), and harvesting their crops will attract young readers." S. C. Gross

+ N Y Times p20 Ap 23 '50 150w

Wis Lib Bul 46:26 S '50

MACDONALD, MRS BETTY (BARD) HESKETT. Anybody can do anything. 256p $2.75 Lippincott

B or 92 50-8800

The author of The Egg and I (Book Review Digest 1945) describes her experiences and those of her sister, job hunting and job losing during the years of the depression.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

Atlantic 186:82 O '50 360w

Booklist 46:281; 350 My 15 '50; Jl 15 '50

Bookmark 10:5 O '50 30w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun p8 Ag 27 '50 500w

"Well, Betty MacDonald has done it again. Here is the merriest, maddest book of the year . . . with that fabulous MacDonald sparkle in every line of its fascinating pages." Marge Lyon

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 27 '50 500w

"A highly diverting account of how the Bard family sailed through a depression and of how

MACDONALD, B. B. H.—Continued
Betty MacDonald plunged unexpectedly into authorship. As such it should be welcomed and relished by a wide audience." C. B. Burnett
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ag 24 '50 420w

+ Kirkus 18:492 Ag 15 '50 210w

"For those who have enjoyed her earlier books this will fill in the missing portions of the author's life, because it includes flashbacks to her childhood. For public libraries." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 75:1287 Ag '50 130w

"'Anybody Can Do Anything' is a funny book. Whatever Mrs. MacDonald has to say on whatever subject gurgles forth like water poured from a bottle. She is one of those humorists who enters chuckling, chuckles uninterruptedly throughout the act and exits same. She shows no strain whatever—but the strain on her audience at times may be considerable. Nevertheless, the act as a whole is good." F. H. Bullock
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ag 27 '50 750w

"Betty MacDonald is an alchemist. She transmutes some pretty grim experiences into rollicking reminiscence, spiced with saucy phrase. For every situation from which a tear might be jerked she substitutes a giggle. The result is far better cure for the blues than handbooks about what to do before the psychoanalyst comes." S. T. Williamson
N Y Times p6 Ag 27 '50 850w

"Betty MacDonald's admirers will say she has done it again. So what? As someone said recently, privacy is on the retreat and self-confession has its own way. What a pity we can't civilize the self-confession. We admire Betty's pluck and humor but we could do with less antics and a little more reticence on minor matters. Be your age, Betty, you're a big girl now." Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ag 27 '50 550w

"It is a book to read for the enjoyment of the moment and forget. If one mulls it over, inevitably the bright, metallic threads of which its sparkling fabric is woven darken and tarnish with dismaying rapidity. Little tawdry and shabby spots eat into the surface shine." Josephine Lawrence
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:26 S 16 '50 700w
Time 56:82 Ag 28 '50 330w

MACDONALD, HUGH, ed. See Englands helicon

MCDONALD, JOHN DENNIS. Strategy in poker, business and war; il. by Robert Osborn. 128p $2.50 Norton

330.182 Economics, Mathematical. Games. Probabilities 50-9172

"An attempt to interpret to the layman the theory of games as applied to economics, business and war, which has been propounded by von Neumann and Morgenstern. Author is an editor of Fortune magazine in which the material originally appeared." (Library J) Bibliography.

Booklist 47:89 N 1 '50

Reviewed by R. D. MacCann
Christian Science Monitor p6 Ag 26 '50 1000w

Kirkus 18:376 Jl 1 '50 150w

"It won't make all clear to all who may be interested, but it brings a highly abstract theory within shooting range." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 75:1413 S 1 '50 60w

Reviewed by D. D. Miller
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 17 '50 750w

"Here is a meaty and novel treatise on a popular and pleasurable human pursuit—the making of a sucker out of one's opponent. . . The book is illustrated by Robert Osborn, a man with a rare gift for delineating uncontrollable emotions (like the joy at winning a pot) and visualizing abstractions. He has at one point depicted a debacle. A debacle looks like a melted-down Ionian pillar." Rex Lardner
+ N Y Times p3 Ag 27 '50 700w
New Yorker 26:121 S 9 '50 230w

"This ingenious, provocative book is not written with tongue in cheek. The many excellent illustrations (reminiscent of Steig's 'The Lonely Ones') admirably complement the text which is nontechnical and largely quite readable." I. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 S 17 '50 650w

MACDONALD, JOHN ROSS, pseud. See Millar, K.

MCDOUGALD, ROMAN. The woman under the mountain. 242p $2.50 Simon & Schuster 50-5799

Mystery story.

Booklist 47:138 D 1 '50

"A smooth touch, but you'll have to let yourself go."
Kirkus 18:289 My 15 '50 80w

"One of those highly involved plots which contains mystery within mystery within mystery until like the Chinese box you wonder where it will ever end. It also has a heroine who outdoes even the silliest heroines in making secret rendezvous with potential murderers in dark and dangerous places. Nevertheless, the reader, feeling slightly foolish, is held by a break-neck pace, a great deal of suspense and considerable intelligence in the writing."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Jl 30 '50 210w

"It's an artificial and faintly absurd concept. It's still an ingenious and fascinating notion, in the finest tradition of wild melodrama. . . The superlative invention of plot-counter-plot will carry you on through a series of devices that would have delighted LeFanu, Collins, Mrs. Braddon or any of the other great Victorian three-decker melodramatists." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p19 Jl 16 '50 170w

Reviewed by R. F. Henchey
Springf'd Republican p8B Jl 30 '50 90w

MCELFRESH, ADELINE. My heart went dead. 256p $2 Phoenix

Detective story.

"Diverting puzzle in which the characters are more or less stagy." Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ja 22 '50 40w

"A rather routine mystery with characters drawn from stock."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ja 8 '50 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 22 '50 90w

MCELROY, THOMAS P. Handbook of attracting birds; il. by Lambert Guenther. 163p $2.75 Knopf

598.2 Birds 50-10380

"Simple and comprehensive discussion of the values and pleasures of the hobby of attracting birds to farms and gardens. Treats of the economic, aesthetic, and conservation values of birds, how to feed them, give help at nesting time, and how to care for the young and wounded. Direction for building bird houses and feeders." (Library J) Bibliography.

Booklist 47:111 N 15 '50

"This book is for bird lovers who are willing to work at their hobby, for those who would attract birds 'to their gardens, farms, and estates.' "
Christian Science Monitor p19 N 25 '50 140w

Kirkus 18:456 Ag 1 '50 100w

"Not limited geographically or to any particular age. Author is curator of a wildlife sanctuary." V. K. Fitch

+ Library J 75:2084 D 1 '50 80w

MCEWEN, WILLIAM PETER. Enduring satisfaction; a philosophy of spiritual growth. 370p $4.75 Philosophical lib.

124 Teleology. Religion—Philosophy 50-6006

"It [is] the thesis of this study that a person may find a meaning for his life, if he organizes his thought, conduct, and imagination in terms of these spiritual appetites: (i) intellectual curiosity, (ii) an enlightened good will, (iii) an appreciation of the beautiful and the sublime, and (iv) a consecration to some transcendent cause. Without the controlling influence of some ideal ends we believe that the aspiration for a democratic way of life is an empty illusion." (p.320) Bibliography. Index.

"The author says in the preface that he has 'attempted to reach those intelligent persons with little or no philosophical training, who, nevertheless, are interested in what philosophy may have to contribute to an understanding and solution of perplexing personal and social problems' and to afford them assistance 'in their efforts to formulate a satisfactory design for living' (p. xi). This book is completely over the heads of persons of that description. It is, however, a valuable technical contribution to research in the philosophy of religion. . . The author can easily render the service to college students, returned G.I.'s, and the other inquiring laymen whom he had in mind when writing the preface and opening chapter. He needs only to prepare a brief book in words of one syllable, stating his conclusions without a single quotation, citation, or footnote, and referring those critically disposed to the full documentary evidence given in his Enduring Satisfaction." W. K. Wright

+ — Crozer Q 27:282 Jl '50 370w

School & Society 71:110 F 18 '50 50w

MCFEE, WILLIAM. Law of the sea. 318p $3.75 Lippincott

347.7 Maritime law 50-7108

"An outline of the law of the sea from the earliest known times, and as we have understood it in the western world during the Christian era. No attempt has been made to trace maritime law back to prehistoric times, or to include the sea law of oriental empires, supposing they had such a thing. It must be emphasized at once, moreover, that this book is not for lawyers, or even for law students." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:253; 270 Ap 15 '50; My 1 '50

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer

Christian Science Monitor p14 My 13 '50 650w

"While this work may be a bit specialized for the small library, it is readily recommended for all others." A. J. Gaines

+ Library J 75:693 Ap 15 '50 130w

"This curious and valuable book, not, Mr. McFee explicitly states, written for the lawyer, has its pages of heavy going. Its warmth and wit are rarely present in the early chapters on the old sea codes. Much of this material might baffle, maybe even bore, the lay reader. One is tempted to suggest reading the chapters on piracy, privateering, mutiny and Lloyds first, then, with an acquired taste, plunge into the whole." Alfred Stanford

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 4 '50 750w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt

N Y Times p19 Ag 13 '50 230w

Reviewed by R. G. Albion

Sat R of Lit 33:16 Ag 19 '50 600w

"Mr. McFee's knowledge of such stories is enormous. And the work he has done in research on the legal aspects of the book must have been the same."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:335 S '50 130w

MCGERR, PATRICIA. Follow, as the night. 222p $2.25 Doubleday

50-8209

Mystery story.

"The story is told in the clammy prose of comic book heroics. When on the last page a body (the one you'll suspect) does fall through the railing it drops with a dull thud, both literally and figuratively." Mary Sandrock

— Cath World 171:395 Ag '50 160w

"Good fill-in of details and character for sure-fire situations."

+ Kirkus 18:219 Ap 1 '50 90w

"Her new novel is as unconventional as the others, but this time she's done an excellent job through the device of flashbacks in building up the various characters who must be understood in order to solve this particular riddle."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Jl 9 '50 170w

"Miss McGerr has never used stereotyped plots—and that of 'Follow as the Night' is the most ingenious she has yet offered us. . . Miss McGerr etches the lines of her merciless portrait with skill and builds her story just as expertly." Elizabeth Bullock

+ N Y Times p19 Jl 16 '50 140w

"We'd say but definitely 'Yes.' From the italicized moment when the body hit the sidewalk (and just missed Mabel! 'Not more than 6 inches. . . ') we'd endorse Pat McGerr's thriller as one of the faster and pleasanter idyls of the early summer." E. D. Doyle

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 18 '50 150w

Sat R of Lit 33:39 Jl 22 '50 40w

MCGILL, DAN MAYS. Analysis of government life insurance. 290p $3.75 Univ. of Pa. press

351.1 Insurance, Life. Insurance, State and compulsory 49-4186

A study of United States government life insurance, a product of World war I, and the National service life insurance of World War II. "The purpose of the volume is to describe the principal policy provisions, with special emphasis on their historical development, to indicate and assess the governmental subsidies involved in the program, to point out some of the persistent problems that have been encountered, and to evaluate the insurance as an instrument of social policy. Attention is drawn to those features of government life insurance which differentiate it from commercial insurance, and these features are evaluated from the standpoint of the insured." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"Professor McGill has prepared an intelligent descriptive book on government life insurance for 'teachers in insurance educational work.' For the practising lawyer, however, the book's value is limited. . . The author, in his zeal to advance the case for commercial life insurance, is repetitious and at times unfair in his criticism of government life insurance. . . But criticism of USGLI and NSLI is always in order and Professor McGill has pointed out important difficulties." Warren Freedman

+ — Columbia Law R 50:553 Ap '50 1500w

"The author has not taken so wide a field for his province as did Sir William Beveridge; but the book is comparable to The Beveridge Report in size, in method, and in the detailed objectivity of the work." G. K. Gardner

+ Harvard Law R 62:1435 Jl '49 1350w

"The study, primarily factual, is well organized and clearly written, and is not so technical as to preclude interest on the part of the lay reader."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:345 S '49 240w

MCGILL, RALPH EMERSON. Israel revisited; with a foreword by Billy Rose. 116p $2 Tupper

915.69 Israel—Description and travel 50-12945

A southern newspaper editor and author visited the Israeli nation in 1946 and again in the spring of this year. His book is based on a series of newspaper articles which he wrote about conditions in the new state. No index.

MCGILL, R. E.—Continued

"Unprejudiced McGill, famous American newspaper reporter and editor, praises dramatic facts about the feverishly expanding new country of a million different personalities, who are metamorphosing into an unusual, rugged type of Israeli. Flyleaf maps." J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 75:1823 O 15 '50 130w

"'Israel Revisited,' despite its distinguished authorship and an enthusiastic foreword by Billy Rose, merits only passing consideration. The volume adds little to our knowledge of the subject, though well-wishers of Israel will be pleased by Ralph McGill's reaffirmation of sympathy." Marie Syrkin

— + Nation 171:414 N 4 '50 270w

"Mr. McGill understands Israel and the Israelis, and his sharp eye has seen what the country and its people are up to, and what, in the uncertain and austerity-haunted future, they are up against." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p37 N 12 '50 410w

"Unfortunately, the articles suffer from clumsy editing. They are often repetitious; observations are uncritical. . . Surely the good reporting deserved second sight." Gertrude Samuels

N Y Times p11 D 31 '50 320w

MCGILLICUDDY, CORNELIUS. Baseball book; foreword by Red Smith; il. by Floyd Torbert. 234p $2.50 Knopf

796.357 Baseball 50-7275

"The famous 88 year-old manager not only analyzes every position in the game, but tells how to become a major-leaguer. Records and glossary in appendix, index. Older boys and girls." Bookmark

Booklist 46:277 My 1 '50

Bookmark 9:214 Je '50 30w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 14 '50 100w

"Countless baseball fans will give an enthusiastic welcome to this book by a veteran player. The authority of the Manager of the Philadelphia Athletics is beyond question, and what he has to say about how baseball is organized and what it takes to be a Major Leaguer will be accepted as important." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 26:203 My '50 100w

Kirkus 18:207 Ap 1 '50 150w

Reviewed by Lillian Morrison
+ Library J 75:990 Je 1 '50 80w

"Probably this is the baseball book of the spring for older boys. . . Fathers will not be able to wait until their sons have finished it. Female fans could improve their conversation, too, by studying it. Anyone over twelve will read its clear, brisk style with interest." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 11 '50 140w

"It gets right down to fundamentals and is particularly useful in guiding youngsters to the right positions on the team and in teaching them proper baseball habits and manners." Arthur Daley

+ N Y Times p20 Ap 23 '50 200w

Reviewed by Robert Cousins
Sat R of Lit 33:19 Je 10 '50 60w

MCGILLICUDDY, CORNELIUS. My 66 years in the big leagues; the great story of America's national game; with official photographs from the Mack family and from other authentic sources. auth ed 246p $2.50; pa $1 Winston

796.357 Baseball 50-7521

"In relating his own experiences as a player and manager, 'Mr. Baseball' tells of the progress of baseball from the day of bare hands to the modern school of sluggers. He gives inside dope on great players, historic plays, memorable games, and much of the human side of baseball. An appendix contains records." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 46:290 My 15 '50

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p15 Je 13 '50 50w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Je 4 '50 140w

"For the fan and all admirers of this vigorous personality."

+ Kirkus 18:295 My 15 '50 160w

"Rather sketchy, but of interest." R. W. Henderson

Library J 75:1191 Jl '50 40w

"Discreet and stately." John Lardner

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 14 '50 160w

"As the record of the life of a Christian gentleman who has left an indelible mark on a game usually played by rougher men, this book has great interest. Even though it rambles, and seems to forget here and there, it is a good book for a man to buy his son along with his first fielder's mitt. The strongest feeling it will arouse in the elderly breast is hope that somehow Connie will manage to win just one more pennant before we are all called out at home." C. H. F.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Jl 16 '50 200w

Reviewed by Robert Cousins
Sat R of Lit 33:19 Je 10 '50 220w

"This book is, and will probably remain, one of the important records of America's favorite sport. . . It is seldom that a book of this kind is as rich in personalities and as revealing of the American spirit as this one is. The publishers have given it an excellent format. It is illustrated with good photographs and decorative drawings."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:27 Jl 8 '50 170w

"Not all the book is strictly about Mr. Mack, for although his boyhood in East Brookfield, his early years on the diamond, his long term as manager of the Athletics including the success of his championship clubs, are pretty well covered in the first half, the rest is largely documentary, with comments here and there to lend a personal tone. True to his nature, the kindly Mr. Mack has a good word for everybody, and harsh words for none. To him, everything is good—people, the game, life in general—and his story has an old-fashioned stateliness." D. B. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p12C Je 4 '50 390w

MCGINLEY, PHYLLIS (MRS C. L. HAYDEN). Most wonderful doll in the world; with drawings by Helen Stone. 61p $1.75 Lippincott

50-12175

The story of a very imaginative little girl and a doll she had lost. The things she imagined about that doll were simply wonderful. Then one day the little girl found her lost Angela and she learned a valuable lesson about Things As They Are.

Booklist 47:121 N 15 '50

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p9 N 13 '50 50w

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '50

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 26:456 N '50 90w

"It is fresh and original; and Dulcy, the little girl who had 'too much imagination,' is destined to live as long as little girls like to play dolls and read about them."

+ Horn Bk 26:469 N '50 70w

Kirkus 18:461 Ag 15 '50 130w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Sussdorff
Library J 75:2081 D 1 '50 80w

"A very clever, charming tale. . . It is a rare little gift book for girls of about six to nine." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 12 '50 170w

+ N Y Times p33 N 12 '50 160w

+ New Yorker 26:179 D 2 '50 80w

MCGIVERN, WILLIAM P. Very cold for May. 246p $2.50 Dodd

50-7786

Detective story.

"McGivern could work a little harder on plotting and motivation but his sardonic edge is nicely honed right now." James Sandoe

+ — Chicago Sun p5 My 5 '50 180w

"The murder and the growth of Jake's conscience make a nicely balanced plot and counterplot in a neatly written mystery."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Je 11 '50 170w

"The book is fast, solid and unusual." Elizabeth Bullock

N Y Times p18 Je 18 '50 180w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Jl 16 '50 120w

"Hair-trigger action, crisp conversation, gaudy people, acrid wit, and surprise finish that may perturb purists, but seem logical enough. High grade."

+ Sat R of Lit 33:61 My 6 '50 40w

MCGLOIN, JOHN BERNARD. Eloquent Indian; the life of James Bouchard, California Jesuit; foreword by Robert J. Armstrong. 380p il $5 Stanford univ. press

B or 92 Bouchard, James Chrysostom

50-138

Biographical study of an American Indian, born into a Delaware Indian tribe in 1823. After studying for the Presbyterian ministry, he became a Catholic and a Jesuit priest and as such taught and preached in the Far West for many years. Bibliography. Index.

"This is a first-rate work of historical scholarship. By dint of laborious research in the dusty files of long dead and almost forgotten newspapers, in parish records of old Churches from San Francisco to Eureka, from Susanville to Sonora, in the buried memories of the ghost towns of a once fabulous era, Father McGloin has rescued from undeserved oblivion one who well deserves to be remembered. The reader is indebted to Father McGloin not only for the diligence of his research, but also for the quiet good humor and geniality of his style." G. H. Dunne

+ Commonweal 52:157 My 19 '50 500w

N Y Times p25 Ja 22 '50 150w

"Father John Bernard McGloin, of the Department of History in the University of San Francisco is the author, and his 'Life' though written for the scholar primarily, with all the proper apparatus of notes, bibliography and the rest, is good reading for anyone at all who is seriously interested in local backgrounds of three-quarters of a century ago." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ja 15 '50 750w

"The book is not only a carefully documented story of an active life; it is also a sound portrayal of a place and a period." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R of Lit 33:32 Mr 18 '50 230w

MACGOWAN, KENNETH. Early man in the New World; with drawings by Campbell Grant. 260p $5 Macmillan

913.7 Man, Prehistoric. America—Antiquities. Indians—Origin 50-7503

A popular summary of present-day knowledge and theory concerning the pre-Columbian inhabitants of the Western hemisphere, their origins, relations to the Old World, and their civilizations. The author has been a producer of films in Hollywood and plays in New York, professor of theatre arts at the University of California at Los Angeles, and an amateur of anthropology. Index.

Booklist 46:301 Je 1 '50

"Kenneth Macgowan has done a first rate job of reporting and summarizing. Because he has read widely and well, because he has consulted first hand with scores of experts and specialists, the book has the stamp of authority. You may read it with confidence." W. M. Krogman

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 14 '50 450w

Current Hist 19:166 S '50 50w

"To the layman interested in anthropology, this should prove an interesting and occasionally entertaining account of what is known and what is still unanswered concerning the origins of man in North and South America."

+ Kirkus 18:89 F 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge

Library J 75:490 Mr 15 '50 130w

"In a book of this kind, it is inevitable that certain recent pertinent facts are overlooked but, in this case, they are few for Macgowan has been in personal contact with the foremost students in his field." S. K. Lothrop

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 My 14 '50 1000w

"Mr. Macgowan himself foresaw that certain archaeological and geological dates accepted might undergo major alterations. His book has, unfortunately, been published on the eve of those revisions. That is why I say that this book closes an era. There will be a period of quiet now until American archaeology gets itself rewritten. In the meantime this book provides much excellent and provocative reading." L. C. Eiseley

+ N Y Times p10 My 14 '50 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Jl 23 '50 150w

"Mr. Macgowan has set forth the essential background for an intelligent discussion with great skill and provides the general reader with an admirable introduction to a perennially interesting problem. His errors, of which there are a number, need not, however, be listed since they do not essentially affect his major lines of exposition." H. L. Shapiro

+ Sat R of Lit 33:13 My 27 '50 900w

School & Society 71:287 My 6 '50 30w

Reviewed by W. C. Smith

Springf'd Republican p5D S 10 '50 1050w

MCGRAW, ELOISE JARVIS. Sawdust in his shoes [il. by Pers Crowell]. 246p $2.50 Coward-McCann

50-6964

Story for older boys and girls about Joe Lang, born and raised in the tradition of the circus. Orphaned at fifteen Joe leaves the circus for a time and lives on a farm, but eventually returns to the life he loved best. Glossary.

Booklist 46:306 Je 1 '50

Bookmark 9:188 My '50 30w

"All the characters are lifelike, the action sparkles, the suspense is high—will Joe ever recapture his circus dream? It is this question, on top of all the rest, that will hold 12 to 16 year olds absorbed attention to the last dramatic page." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Jl 9 '50 260w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 26:286 Jl '50 100w

Kirkus 18:239 Ap 15 '50 150w

Reviewed by M. M. Smith

+ Library J 75:1199 Jl '50 90w

"Using alternately exciting scenes of circus life and of farm life, emphasizing Joe's inner struggle to live up to Mr. Dawsons' idea of him, making her hero both glamorous and a real boy, Mrs. McGraw has written a good story. . . Some twelve-year-olds who read it may turn from cowboy dreams to circus dreams. All will look at bareback riders with new respect, having watched Joe's solitary practice and his burning ambition."

MCGRAW, E. J.—Continued
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 7 '50 180w

"Every character in this book is warm, true and different from the others. The language is racy with circus talk and farm talk. The action is fast, funny and often moving. Moreover, the author has respect for the honest facts of human living (and therefore for the reader). A good book for children is a good book for any age and 'Sawdust in His Shoes' belongs in that rare category. Pers Crowell's drawings are unobtrusive and right." Marjorie Fischer
+ N Y Times p22 Ap 30 '50 240w
Sat R of Lit 33:38 Je 10 '50 220w
Wis Lib Bul 46:24 Jl '50

MACGREGOR, MRS MARY ESTHER (MILLER) (MARIAN KEITH, pseud). Boy of Nazareth; il. by Arthur Harper. 158p $2 Abingdon-Cokesbury
Jesus Christ—Juvenile literature 50-8724

A modern version of the childhood of Christ, describing the journey to the Passover at Jerusalem and the visit to the Temple. This is a revised edition of Glad Day in Galilee, published by Abingdon, 1935.

Booklist 47:47 S 15 '50
Reviewed by F. D. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 N 12 '50 120w
Christian Science Monitor p7 S 9 '50 150w

"Although one can level no criticism on the score of reverence, scholars will take issue with the liberties taken with the Gospel and free interpretation of material from the Apocrypha. One thing however is achieved—the idea of Jesus as a boy like—and yet unlike—other boys."
Kirkus 18:385 Jl 15 '50 100w
Reviewed by Juanita Walker
Library J 75:1307 Ag '50 70w
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 1 '50 70w

MCGUIRE, JOHN GILBERT, and BARLOW, HOWARD WALTER. Introduction to the engineering profession; concerning engineering orientation and engineering problems. 207p il $3.50 Addison-Wesley
620.69 Engineering as a profession 50-6274

"A book with two obvious uses. Young people can use it independently of school courses to find out what engineering careers require and offer. Also, it can be used as a class textbook in senior high school courses or freshman college courses. The various branches of engineering, such as chemical engineering, are discussed briefly but clearly, and lists of reading and visual aids are appended. In the final part of the book, there is a good selection of elementary engineering problems on which the would-be engineer can test his talents." (Library J) List of visual aids. Index.

Booklist 46:257 Ap 15 '50

"This is a guidance text. The authors do a fine job of presenting information about the engineering profession that will be of value to freshman students, recent high school graduates, and vocational teachers."
+ Eng N 145:50 S 14 '50 140w
Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 75:701 Ap 15 '50 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 35:21 Mr '50

MCHENRY, DEAN EUGENE. Third force in Canada; the Cooperative commonwealth federation, 1932-1948. 351p $3.50 Univ. of Calif.
329.971 Cooperative commonwealth federation 50-5973

"This work aims to tell the story of a new Canadian political party, built in part on the pattern of the British Labour Party, yet adapted to the needs and aspirations of North America. The Cooperative Commonwealth Federation (CCF) is to this continent what the 'third force' is to Europe—a middle way between the extremes of reaction and revolution. . . This study is the writer's second in a series on Labour parties functioning within the British Commonwealth of Nations. The first, on the Labour Party of the United Kingdom, was published under the title: His Majesty's Opposition: Structure and Problems of the British Labour Party, 1931-1938 [Book Review Digest 1941]." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 46:228 Mr 15 '50

"The book will be useful for study groups, for Americans wanting to know 'what's going on up there,' and for fringe people in Canada already sufficiently interested to forgive the measure of propaganda. It is plainly not a book for students of socialism or of political economy, or for those demanding critical analysis; it will be familiar stuff to many of the old days. But it was obviously not written for these. It is highly informing, and a surprisingly interesting account of a very important phase of Canada's political life." A. McCurdy
+ — Canadian Forum 30:93 Jl '50 300w

"Both descriptive and analytical, the study provides an excellent account of how political parties operate in a democratic society; it will be interesting to the general reader concerned with political action as well as to the student of party organization."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 6:205 Je '50 240w

MACHETANZ, MRS SARA, and MACHETANZ, FREDERICK. Barney hits the trail [il. by Fred Machetanz]. 195p $2 Scribner 50-9824

On his eleventh birthday Barney received a very curious set of presents from his uncle who ran a trading post in Alaska. The fur boots, parka, and mitts were explained when the invitation arrived for Barney to spend the winter in Alaska with his uncle. And this is the story of Barney's adventures during that winter.

Booklist 47:161 D 15 '50
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 30w
Kirkus 18:514 S 1 '50 100w

"Excellent black-and-white illustrations by Fred Machetanz enhance the realism of Arctic life and scene. Recommended." Virginia Haviland
+ Library J 75:2018 N 15 '50 90w

"Here are the sledge dogs, reindeer, northern lights, seal hunting that we all connect with Alaska. But the story, all based on the author's life there, has a fresh, unusual ring of truth. The pictures are stunning." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 12 '50 120w

MCHUGH, VINCENT. Primer of the novel. 308p $2.50 Random house
808.3 Fiction—Technique. Authorship 50-8744

"The novel is so complex an object of art that even a 'primer' of the novel is not too easy to produce. However, Mr. McHugh, writer and teacher, has succeeded in giving as direct information as possible in his three part book: Concepts; II—procedure; III—the novelist, and here there is much practical information about agents, editors, etc. As an author's notebook this is a commendable piece of work for it includes analysis of great novels of all ages and methods of work." Library J

Booklist 47:58 O 1 '50

"The over-all impression is that this is Mr. McHugh's notebook, in which he has been saving up for years some of the good things about the writing of fiction that originated in his own or other minds, plus some of his instructorial outlines for his work as a teacher of creative writing. But it sheds new light on the writer's problems." Kelsey Guilfoil

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 20 '50 460w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '50

"A stimulating and provocative assemblage of definitions, theories and facts about fiction writing tested against the practice of acknowledged first rate professionals, this 'primer' offers excellent (and controversial) reference and use for students, teachers and technicians in the field."
+ Kirkus 18:291 My 15 '50 130w

"This primer is not like any other book on the subject and will be a useful purchase for any library." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 75:977 Je 1 '50 110w

Reviewed by A. L. Goodman
New Repub 123:21 S 18 '50 230w

"'Primer of the Novel' is not a book to skim hurriedly. It deserves critical reading and study by the student and teacher of writing. Parts of the book should make most professional writers pause for re-evaluation of their own concepts, habits and personal relationships." H. A. Smith
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Jl 30 '50 400w

"'Primer of the Novel' is a book to set beside Percy Lubbock's 'The Craft of Fiction' and E. M. Forster's 'Aspects of the Novel.' To say this, which is eulogy, is at the same time to say that Vincent McHugh has written above the heads of the audience for whom he says he wrote the book, the apprentice novelist and the member of intermediate or advanced classes in adult education. But he has overestimated their knowledge. . . What is most valuable about [the book] I would say is Mr. McHugh's persuasive insistence that the novel is always particular." Gorham Munson
+ N Y Times p5 Jl 16 '50 1250w

"The potential reader of this book must first have a serious interest in fiction. If he hasn't, he'll get little out of it. If he has it could well be, for him, the most influential book he'll ever read." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 17 '50 950w

"This treatise will be enjoyed most by the novelist who has completed one book. He will know what McHugh is talking about. Certain passages will make him blush to think that McHugh has found him out. Others will encourage him to work at the grand design he has laid out for himself. But from every page he will learn." J. A. Michener
+ Sat R of Lit 33:16 Ag 26 '50 850w

MACIVER, ROBERT MORRISON, ed. Great expressions of human rights; a series of addresses and discussions; pub. by the Institute for religious and social studies. (Religion and civilization ser) 321p $2.50 Harper

323.4 Civil rights 50-6919

"Commentaries on 14 documents important in the history of human rights from the Biblical record of the vision of Micah, and a statement of Confucius, through the Magna Carta, the American Bill of Rights, the Chartist Petition, and other historic statements, to the United Nations International Bill of Rights. The texts of the documents themselves are given in the appendix. Useful for reference or as a study guide." (Booklist) Index.

Reviewed by Helmut Kuhn
Ann Am Acad 272:267 N '50 480w

Booklist 46:270 My 1 '50

"Such studies as these furnish a solid foundation of historical fact and expert interpretation upon which citizens and governments can build intelligent attitudes and just policies." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 67:533 Ap 26 '50 220w

Reviewed by R. D. MacCann
Christian Science Monitor p18 My 11 '50 650w

Reviewed by J. F. Davidson
Churchman 164:17 S 15 '50 210w

"It is impossible in this brief space to do justice to the various degrees of learning and analysis in these papers, or to comment in detail on any one of these classic documents. However, it is well and very convenient to have in one book these major declarations and these probing essays on the long tradition of human rights, which, from Chinese sages to United Nations delegates, have endured in the human spirit." Irwin Edman
+ N Y Times p3 My 28 '50 1100w

"While the offering is necessarily incomplete, its editor writes, it contains what he considers the major landmarks in the history of man's struggle to assert his claim to rights. It is a book that will be a valuable reference in many a library—home, school, public, ministerial, editorial." E. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 14 '50 170w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p12C Je 11 '50 360w

MACIVER, ROBERT MORRISON. The ramparts we guard. 152p $3 Macmillan

321.8 Democracy 50-5725

A re-interpretation and defense of democracy in government, particularly as it has developed in the United States, not forgetting the various threats which it is facing in these post-war days. Index.

Reviewed by David Spitz
Am Pol Sci R 44:478 Je '50 400w

Booklist 46:165; 196 Ja 15 '50; F 15 '50

Bookmark 9:157 Ap '50 40w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p4 Ap 8 '50 1100w

"This latest work of Professor MacIver's is unquestionably one of the best critical interpretations of American democracy I have seen in many years. It is a noteworthy successor to his preceding books, particularly, The Web of Government and The More Perfect Union." H. W. Hintz
+ Churchman 164:19 Ap 15 '50 180w

Foreign Affairs 28:676 Jl '50 40w

Kirkus 17:671 D 1 '49 110w

"The author has given us as illuminating a definition and clarification of the nature of democracy and the perils it faces as one is likely to find. Recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 75:103 Ja 15 '50 80w

Reviewed by G. L. Joughin
Nation 170:332 Ap 8 '50 800w

"This is a wise and thought-provoking book. It deserves to be widely read, particularly by those who profess an affection for democracy but know not what it means." David Spitz
+ New Repub 122:19 F 27 '50 650w

"This exposition and defense of democracy is lively as well as learned." August Heckscher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Jl 9 '50 700w

"Despite the fact that our airways and books are full of talk about democracy, a thoughtful analysis of its meaning is singularly rare. It is an intellectual treat, therefore, to encounter a popularly written book on democracy that spares us the impassioned rhetoric which wearies rather than inspires, and probes deeply into the assumptions and problems of our political heritage." Sidney Hook
+ N Y Times p3 F 26 '50 1600w

School & Society 71:95 F 11 '50 10w

Reviewed by Oscar Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p12C Je 4 '50 390w

"Among all of the critical interpretations of modern democracy which I have seen in the past ten or fifteen years, this latest work of Professor MacIver's is unquestionably one of the very best." H. W. Hintz
+ Survey 86:266 My '50 600w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:205 Je '50 170w

"Highly recommended."
+ Wis Lib Bul 46:18 Mr '50

MACK, CONNIE. See McGillicuddy, C.

MACKAY, MRS MARGARET (MACKPRANG). Flowered donkey; il. by Kurt Wiese. 91p $2.25 Day 50-10144

"Ten-year-old Little Flower, and her younger brother, Little Treasure, live with their parents and grandparents on a farm near Peking. Their pet animal is a braying, balking, piebald donkey. One day, Little Flower's mother sends her to a near-by village to get medicine for her father. She and her brother ride the donkey, who runs away with them to the Western Hills, where they meet a coal-carrying, camel caravan. The riders put the children on the camels, who follow the braying runaway's lead through a wind storm back home." N Y Times

"Good fun mixed with humor and suspense."
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 N 11 '50 40w

+ Kirkus 18:141 O 15 '50 160w

"Kurt Wiese's Chinese pictures always have atmosphere, and he has done his usual good job with these, catching the humor of the situations. . . Recommended." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 75:2018 N 15 '50 90w

"Written by a gifted newcomer to the field of juvenile literature, and illustrated in Kurt Wiese's best tradition, this little book about a Chinese donkey delights the ear, the eye, and the fancy." H. K. Lippmann
+ N Y Times p33 N 12 '50 150w

MCKELVEY, BLAKE. Rochester, the flower city, 1855-1890. 407p il $5 Harvard univ. press
974.789 Rochester, New York 49-10783

"The development of Rochester from frontier hamlet to boom town Mr. McKelvey traced in an earlier volume, Rochester, the Water-Power City, 1812-1854 [Book Review Digest 1946]. Now, taking up where he left off, the author tells of the town's continued growth under the stimulus of business and industrial enterprise. . . The city's advance is described as it took place, in a series of natural stages: the late eighteen-fifties, a time of hesitancy and indecision; the Civil War and its travail; the new hopes and failures of Reconstruction days; the adjustments and achievements of the late eighteen-seventies and eighties." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

"A well-balanced, competent, and valuable addition to the larger structure of the nation's history." L. B. Packard
+ Am Hist R 56:223 O '50 320w

Current Hist 17:286 N '49 50w

"Together, Mr. McKelvey's two volumes form a comprehensive and authentic history of the years they consider, and will be useful for purposes of reference."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:494 D '49 240w

MCKENNEY, RUTH (MRS RICHARD BRANSTEN). Love story. 303p $3 Harcourt
818 50-5262

"An enthusiastic endorsement of marriage and motherhood. Miss McKenney and her husband, a New Masses man, met in New Milford, Connecticut, in 1937, under appropriately droll circumstances, were married twelve days later, and have since encountered, in a spirited fashion, not only the situations familiar to most youngish couples nowadays but some of a special nature, which arose out of ideological and professional preoccupations." New Yorker

Booklist 46:165; 188 Ja 15 '50; F 1 '50

Bookmark 9:134 Mr '50 40w

"Aside from too many 'M'mmms' from Mike, and an incredible amount of rich souffles and eggs benedict (or florentine), 'Love Story' is a delightful and clever book. It will keep a lot of people chuckling for some time to come." E. B. Thompson
+ Chicago Sun p8 F 20 '50 400w

"Ruth McKenney does have one outstanding chapter in her story; the illness of her daughter. It is a highly dramatic story of frustration and courage. And her victory over her own illness could be called inspired reporting. But it isn't the subtle, humorous Ruth McKenney of a few years ago who is writing; it is a soberer, more mature woman, one who has been thru a great human experience." R. L. Blakesley
Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Mr 5 '50 250w

"The Hollywood experience confirms one's worst suspicions, and the comments on psychiatry, child-education, author's parties, and the general cussedness of many ordinary ineptitudes reveal Miss McKenney as a wit as well as a humorist. There is some genuine human philosophy in this book. The author has kindled a spark of laughter in a rather gloomy world." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 67:434 Ap 5 '50 340w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 26:399 S '50 60w

Kirkus 18:40 Ja 15 '50 240w

"This is far and away the best book the delightful author of My Sister Eileen has written. . . Highly recommended for libraries regardless of size." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:170 F 1 '50 130w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 75:1057 Je 15 '50 50w

"Most of it is funny in the customary and somewhat raucous McKenney style; part of it—the Hollywood part—is bitter; a little of it is tragic; all of it is good reading."
Nation 170:140 F 11 '50 90w

"In 'Love Story' Miss McKenney sets down honestly and vividly and with great humor the trials and triumphs and tribulations which she and her husband experienced through a dozen years." Richard Maney
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 F 12 '50 800w

"Actually her story is that of the transition of a militant left-winger into a petty bourgeois. As such the tale has an unintended irony. With an eye and an ear on the weather of the times—indeed, with all five senses straining for storm signals, Miss McKenney tells joke after joke on her left-wing friends of the old days. Some are very funny—but the author's shrill note becomes higher as she works harder and harder to persuade the reader, and herself, how silly she and her fellow left-wingers were in those times. She comes very close to saying it was all (ha ha) just a lark (ha ha) and that she, of course, has outgrown it. Perhaps she has." Harry Sylvester
N Y Times p12 F 12 '50 360w

"Despite a tendency to dwell overlong on the family ailments—admittedly unusual ones, from a medical point of view—Miss McKenney has managed to sustain a high level of comedy throughout her memoir, even when dealing with such overworked subjects as the disenchantment produced by a stretch in Hollywood, and the more eccentric aspects of ultra-progressive education."
+ — New Yorker 25:99 F 11 '50 140w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 F 12 '50 600w

"I laughed out loud twice while I was reading 'Love Story,' which is two more laughs (audible) than I've come across in any other family saga, Clarence Day always excepted. . . But brides will be brides no matter how left their sympathies or industrious their pens. . . However, a great deal of 'Love Story' is good, clean, knock-about fun. If there are too many touching scenes at hospital bedsides, too many soap-opera flourishes, and an inordinate italicizing of comic speeches, there are also richly amusing portraits of Hollywood Thinkers, labor organizers, publishers, psychoanalysts, and avant-garde writers." Phyllis McGinley
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:21 F 11 '50 800w

Spec 184:354 S 29 '50 360w

Springf'd Republican p8C Mr 12 '50 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p487 Ag 4 '50 480w

Wis Lib Bul 46:25 F '50

MCKENNEY, RUTH (MRS RICHARD BRANSTEN), and BRANSTEN, RICHARD. Here's England: a highly informal guide; il. by Osbert Lancaster. 378p $3.75 Harper

914.2 England—Description and travel 50-8541

A guidebook to England which is a combination of history, sightseeing, and details of traveling. The first part of the book is devoted to a two-week sojourn in London; the second part is a series of journeys further afield. Each chapter ends with a list of important places to visit in the neighborhood. The third part is a key to English history, architecture, and cricket. Glossary of architectural terms. Index.

Booklist 46:351 Jl 15 '50

"A lot of guidebook, historical and literary information is packed into these pages, but even this is blemished by the author's habit of italicizing key words when they hope to be (a) coy, (b) funny or (c) complimentary. Unfortunately, an author can be just as dull in italics as in regular type." E. D.
— + Chicago Sun p5 Jl 9 '50 140w

Reviewed by Gwen Morgan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 30 '50 470w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin
Christian Science Monitor p9 Jl 22 '50 900w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '50

"It is the infectious enthusiasm that makes this unique. . . Informal, gay this is an admirable addition to the gift book market or even for the reminiscing returned Anglophile."
+ Kirkus 18:292 My 15 '50 220w

"A most unusual travel book with emphasis on quality and not quantity when it comes to sightseeing, and so charmingly presented that it will be equally enjoyable to regular as well as armchair travellers." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 75:1178 Jl '50 120w

"Never was there a more nourishing mixture of sense and sensibility. And as a practical addition, there are also appendices. Since it is really impossible to get the best out of England without some knowledge of English history, the charts provided should be a boon. It even seems reasonable that the volume should include an explanation of cricket." Iris Barry
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Jl 9 '50 1000w

"The Branstens call it 'a Highly Informal Guide'; it is also a highly original and deliciously funny one, compiled with hard work and infinite care." Nancie Matthews
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 6 '50 500w
+ New Yorker 26:74 Jl 8 '50 170w

"Skipping dizzily through acres of history, Ruth McKenney loses none of the levity and sprightliness of the 'My Sister Eileen' stories. But she can be serious as well. Besides charting a course, she gives some sound advise, especially when she writes that the most important souvenir to bring back from England is a new dimension of experience." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 Jl 30 '50 450w

"One of the brightest travel books of this or any other year." H. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 33:36 Jl 15 '50 200w
Time 56:86 Jl 24 '50 280w
Wis Lib Bul 46:21 S '50

MACKENZIE, COMPTON. Tight little island [Eng title: Whiskey galore]. 339p $3 Houghton

50-10385

The novel from which the film of the same name was made. It describes the agony in two little islands in the outer Hebrides, when the war brought them a whiskey shortage. The book was published in England in 1947 with the title, Whiskey Galore.

Booklist 47:54; 97 O 1 '50; N 1 '50

"A story packed with chuckles and good hearty laughs. You will never know, until you read this bright little yarn, how essential it is to the winning of a war to have a plentiful supply of whisky on hand." Kelsey Guilfoil
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Jl 9 '50 130w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
+ Commonweal 53:126 N 10 '50 470w

"The novel from which the extremely amusing, enjoyable and photogenic moving picture was made proves no twice-told tale. . . This fills in all the little bits about the people. . . Gaelic humor and speech, this adds up to a well wetted-down yarn."
+ Kirkus 18:489 Ag 15 '50 130w

"There are some readers, perhaps, who will find the central joke of 'Tight Little Island' wearing a bit thin at times. But it provides, in the main, a rich entertainment, and its unsuitability as a temperance prize should not make it wholly unamusing even to teetotalers. Others may well decide that there could be no better place to spend a lost week end than either Great or Little Todday." James Hilton
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 O 29 '50 700w

Reviewed by Harry Gilroy
N Y Times p33 Ap 30 '50 220w
New Yorker 26:131 O 28 '50 80w

"It is a well-told story, and an amusing one, full of lively characters and situations. One small criticism: the author has obviously a fine working knowledge of Gaelic, for his Great and Little Toddaians toss this unpronounceable collection of consonants at one another with the ease of volleyball players; but most readers are not so gifted." D. M.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p34 D 10 '50 550w
Springf'd Republican p3D N 19 '50 210w

MCKENZIE, GORDON. Critical responsiveness; a study of the psychological current in later eighteenth-century criticism. 311p $4; pa $3 Univ. of Calif.

820.9 English literature—History and criticism. Literary criticism. Literature—Psychology A49-10468

"This monograph studies for the first time in detail a major trend in literary criticism of the period 1750-1800, namely, the analysis of the effect of a work of art on the minds and emotions of the reader or audience. . . Mr. McKenzie deals only with major and representative writers. His book profits in structure and clarity by its exclusion of the minor figures who merely followed in the paths of more weighty critics. Burke, Gerard, Hume, Hartley, Kames, Blair, Alison, Knight, and Jeffrey are the principal sources." U S Quarterly Bkl

"If a poet is interested in evoking a certain emotion in a reader and succeeds in doing so, then what is wrong? Are we to appeal to some esthetic court which will decide what emotions are fitting and what unfitting? Unfortunately there are hints in this book that this is precisely what the author means, but these hints are only hints and in the main Mr. McKenzie remains an historian. He has thus given us the material on which to construct portions of a history of taste and since no one other than the most devoted scholar will ever read these critics, that is all to the good." G. B.
+ — J Philos 47:535 Ag 31 '50 250w

"Of interest to all students of eighteenth-century English literature."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 5:449 D '49 280w

MCKEOWN, MARTHA (FERGUSON). Them was the days; another Mont Hawthorne story. 282p $3.50 Macmillan

917.8 Hawthorne, Monte. Frontier and pioneer life 50-7450

A second book about the author's uncle, Mont Hawthorne. It describes his boyhood, thereby antedating the events of The Trail Led North (Book Review Digest 1948).

Booklist 46:253; 285 Ap 15 '50; My 15 '50

MCKEOWN, M. F.—Continued

"This true-life story of a family and a country at the beginning of an epoch contains life and death, hunger and cold, courage and endurance. It also contains humor and humanity. I don't see how it could disappoint any reader." Walter Havighurst
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 28 '50 380w

"Mrs. McKeown has done excellently in preserving Uncle Mont's style. 'Now remember,' he says, 'I ain't no storybook hero. I'm just an old-timer who remembers good.' He and the people who 'stayed to toughy it out' are rightly commemorated." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 My 29 '50 230w

Kirkus 18:195 Mr 15 '50 220w

"The book is weak only where Mrs. McKeown, to round out fragmentary bits of recollection or give them significance, puts in historical summaries, dates and data. She does this, for instance, in passages on the Radical Rebellion of 1870 in Richmond, the activities of Crazy Horse, or the founding of the W. C. T. U. Whenever she makes Mont talk like a historian or a researcher she makes him step out of character, and what the book gains in substance it loses in flavor." R. G. Lillard
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Je 4 '50 700w

Reviewed by R. L. Neuberger
+ N Y Times p24 My 28 '50 150w

Reviewed by L. A. Potts
San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 18 '50 850w

"It is America itself Mrs. McKeown writes about, the shaping of our country and the forging of our social conscience. Occasionally she is a touch sententious; paragraphs here and there could have been dispensed with, and sometimes Mont is too obviously merely the vehicle for the real story Mrs. McKeown is concerned to tell. But on the whole she writes with an extraordinary deftness and a fine compression, making the most of both her material and her method." D. L. Morgan
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:19 Jl 29 '50 550w

MACKINTOSH, ELIZABETH (GORDON DAVIOT, JOSEPHINE TEY, pseuds). Brat Farrar. 219p $2.50 Macmillan

50-5521

A story of an imposture with a slight element of mystery: why did Brat Farrar's supposed twin brother, who evidently knew the truth, refrain from exposing him.

Booklist 46:167; 200 Ja 15 '50; F 15 '50

Reviewed by James Sandoe
+ Chicago Sun p6 Mr 3 '50 240w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 26:398 S '50 50w

Kirkus 17:681 D 15 '49 90w

"Expert English mystery with charm, humor and melodrama at the climax."
+ Kirkus 18:26 Ja 15 '50 30w

"Cleverly contrived and well-written story." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 75:105 Ja 15 '50 70w

"As readers of the Franchise Affair will remember, Miss Tey has a wonderful gift for portraying impostors; and the character of Brat Farrar, combining charm with deceit, is a triumph of her art. I suppose that her vision of country life, where the impoverished gentry keep their end up in the class-war with gymkhanas and jodhpurs, is also a triumph—but one that Mrs. Miniver will appreciate more than I do." Ralph Partridge
+ — New Statesman & Nation 38:530 N 5 '49 490w

"Miss Tey tells a melodramatic and far from credible tale. But her quiet wit, and sense of characterization do much to make the reader swallow even some of her most improbable coincidences."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 26 '50 180w

"The ingenious plot is warmly and suspensefully unfolded." A. B.
+ N Y Times p34 Mr 19 '50 150w

"Miss Tey has unusual style and ingenuity, and her book is the best of its kind in many months."
+ New Yorker 26:103 Mr 4 '50 160w

"Very good." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 F 19 '50 120w

Reviewed by Marghanita Laski
Spec 183:868 D 16 '49 120w
Wis Lib Bul 46:30 F '50

MCLEAN, BETH BAILEY. See Bailey, N. B.

MACLEAN, FITZROY HEW. Escape to adventure [Eng title: Eastern approaches]. 419p $4 Little 940.548142 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, British. World war, 1939-1945—Yugoslavia 50-7325

The experiences of a young Scottish soldier and diplomat who was parachuted into German-held Yugoslavia in 1943 "to form an estimate of the Partisans' contribution to the Allied cause." He describes his adventures in Russia, Central Asia, China, and the fighting with Rommel, as well as the Yugoslav episodes. Map on endpapers. No index.

"Escape to Adventure will undoubtedly take its place among the outstanding memoirs of World War II. Those who seek an understanding of present-day Yugoslavia, in particular, cannot afford to miss it." H. N. Howard
+ Ann Am Acad 272:280 N '50 460w

Reviewed by R. E. Danielson
+ Atlantic 186:75 Jl '50 950w

Booklist 46:313 Je 15 '50

"Thrilling, modestly-written book."
+ Bookmark 9:210 Je '50 50w

"The book is exceptionally well written and the excitement and suspense of the narrative will meet the demands of the most exacting reader." Robert Wilberforce
+ Cath World 172:158 N '50 400w

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 21 '50 450w

Reviewed by J. G. Harrison
Christian Science Monitor p6 My 20 '50 850w

"As an autobiographer he is misleadingly modest, and, except for a nice sense of humor, is given to relating his exploits in the detached, circumstantial manner of one accounting for his movements in an informal report to some interested authority. But the facts speak for themselves, and are ample justification for the journalist who once described him as a 'typical John Buchan hero.'" Eric Forbes-Boyd
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 S 27 '49 450w

Foreign Affairs 29:157 O '50 40w

"An interestingly adventurous book which gives a definite sense of behind-the-scenes reporting, a personal feeling of events experienced and people known. Good reading for men."
+ Kirkus 18:90 F 1 '50 210w

Reviewed by H. S. Watson
Manchester Guardian p4 S 20 '49 850w

"If ever a character walked straight out of fiction and into the pages of perfectly sober and factual autobiography (not unmixed with a good deal of currently valuable political history) Fitzroy Maclean is the man. And if any one has ever done it as engagingly, with so little pretentiousness, with such humor and keenness of observation, with such a good eye for scenes and people and so clear and expert a prose style, he does not come to mind." Walter Millis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 7 '50 950w

"This is a good and well written book. It is also an important historical document, essential for anyone who hopes to follow the complicated devolutions of the Titoist movement today. Furthermore, it is good reading and gives almost as much insight into the adventurous English character as on the origins of a peculiar international situation. . . However, one feels that, in condensing what he has to say [about his Yugoslav adventure] Maclean slights or ignores other heroes in that flamboyant aspect of World War II." C. L. Sulzberger

+ — N Y Times p35 Ap 30 '50 600w

"This is excellent adventure writing, twentieth-century style, and may bring back memories of R. H. Bruce Lockhart, another Scot who was a high-class British agent, and of his career in the First World War."
+ New Yorker 26:119 My 6 '50 210w

"Maclean writes with modesty and an engaging humor, with a sharp observation of people and places, in a prose so smooth and expert it would be pleasant reading in a cookbook." E. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Jl 16 '50 600w

"The book is a delight to read, a fact that has been contributed to not only by the author's lucid prose, but also by the publishers, through the careful work of their editors, proofreaders, and printers. The story it tells is highly entertaining as well as quite thrilling and—somebody be praised—there are excellent maps, though several places in Russia mentioned in the text are left out. Nonetheless, it leaves one with strange and alarming impressions." I. T. Sanderson
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:29 Ag 19 '50 650w

"The fact that the guerrilla war in Yugoslavia occupies only the latter and lesser half of the book, not one word of which is dull, can be left to speak for itself. What matters more is how the story is told. The first and longer half is a masterly piece of narrative often worthy of comparison with the masterpiece it challenges. The latter half, which deals with the legendary mission to Tito, is less excellent as prose only because it is more important for history. To the future historians of the Second World War it will be no less indispensable, though on a lesser scale, than Mr. Churchill's own memoirs." C. M. Woodhouse
+ Spec 183:300 S 2 '49 1000w

Springf'd Republican p7D Je 25 '50 850w

"One of the most readable and instructive memoirs of World War II."
+ Time 55:94 My 1 '50 1150w

Wis Lib Bul 46:20 Jl '50

MACLELLAN, ESTHER, and SCHROLL, CATHERINE. Mr O'Riley and Brownie; pictures by Margaret Bradfield. 46p $1.75 Houghton

50-5800

A picture book for ages 5-8. Brownie the dog loved to follow Mr O'Riley around but could never go inside the O'Riley butcher shop, the theater, or any other place where his master might go in the evening. One night Brownie, frightened by a car, ran into the museum of natural history, muddied the glass cases, and jumped into an enclosed exhibit thereby breaking many stuffed animals. It seemed like a dreadful catastrophe; but it all worked out for the best as the O'Rileys made such a good job of the repair work that Mr O'Riley became the curator, and Brownie as his helper could then stay inside the building.

Booklist 46:222 Mr 1 '50

"A humorous little tale with delightfully funny pictures, and a Brownie that looks just as he should." A. L. Shea
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 19 '50 160w

Kirkus 18:58 F 1 '50 90w

Reviewed by Louise Davis
Library J 75:628 Ap 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p24 F 26 '50 180w

MACMAHON, BRYAN. Jack O'Moora, and the king of Ireland's son; il. by Richard Bennett. 86p $2 Dutton

398 Folklore—Ireland 50-9961

An Irish fairy tale which tells how the Prince of Ireland set out to discover a beautiful maiden, and the adventures he and his attendants with superhuman powers had while on their quest. For ages 8 to 10.

Booklist 47:161 D 15 '50

Reviewed by J. M. Flynn
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 N 12 '50 200w

Kirkus 18:607 O 1 '50 70w

"This unusually beautiful telling of the Six Servants plot is far more spiritual than the other variants. It is filled with the lovely repetition of the Irish tales. To appreciate it fully it should be read aloud or told." Phyllis Fenner
+ Library J 75:2082 D 1 '50 80w

"Mr. MacMahon reels off this Irish folktale of wonder, exaggeration and patterned repetition with the very lilt of the shanachie's voice in the rhythmic lines. And his prose sings with the poetic imagery and turns of speech characteristic of the Irish spoken word." E. S.
+ N Y Times p22 N 12 '50 170w

"A robust Irish fairy tale, retold, with a minimum of incantation but a generous supply of laughter and relish, by a fine Irish storyteller."
+ New Yorker 26:177 D 2 '50 80w

MACMANUS, SEUMAS. Heavy hangs the golden grain. 199p $3 Macmillan

828 Folklore—Ireland 50-7451

Over ninety stories, fables, anecdotes, and poems, from the author's native Ireland.

Booklist 46:300 Je 1 '50

"A gem of a book for readers who have a background of Irish lore. In fact it is intriguing for all; only that the many tales and the repetition of themes make it advisable not to read the entire book at once. The thing to do is to savor it slowly piece by piece."
+ Cath World 171:312 Jl '50 200w

Kirkus 18:91 F 1 '50 80w

"Recommended for folklore collections." M. H. Zipprich
+ Library J 75:558 Ap 1 '50 80w

"Because of its historical content, its humor and its fantasy, this volume should make—especially if it were fully illustrated—a fascinating primer for children." James Stern
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 7 '50 320w

"Mr. MacManus beguiles, lulls, and stirs us with his lifetime favorites. . . This is not the right dish of tea for the reader who becomes restless under prolonged exposure to blarney, brogue and whimsey. However, a warm welcome surely awaits it from the young in heart who have longed for a return to the imagery and make-believe of a good story in the hands of a craftsman who knows how to set a mood before he begins." James Kelly
+ N Y Times p27 My 21 '50 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 28 '50 60w

Wis Lib Bul 46:23 Je '50

MCMEEKIN, MRS ISABEL (MCLENNAN). First book about babies, all around the world; pictures by Marguerite Scott. [41p] $1.50 Watts, F.

649.1 Infants—Juvenile literature 50-8313

Partly story book, partly simple information on a baby's needs and care, this tells about babies all over the world, how they are fed, how they are put to sleep, how they differ in some ways, are alike in others.

MCMEEKIN, I. M.—Continued

Booklist 46:338 Jl 1 '50

"A pleasant, informative book for a child with a new baby in the house. Delicately illustrated in color and wash."
+ Kirkus 18:99 F 15 '50 70w

"This book gives an excellent picture of babyhood around the world and contrasts customs of today with those of the past. Beautiful pictures of babies by Marguerite Scott on every page. Recommended for ages 6-10." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 75:1197 Jl '50 50w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 30 '50 130w

Reviewed by Lois Palmer
N Y Times p11 Jl 2 '50 130w

MCMICHAEL, STANLEY L. Selling real estate. 3d ed 527p $5.65; to schools $4.25 Prentice-Hall

333.33 Real estate business 50-7126

"Previous editions 1926, 1940 [Covers] all phases and types of real estate business from the salesman's viewpoint. The greater part is in conversational form, a man entering the field being taken in hand for orientation by the sales manager of large firm with many specialized departments, turned over in succession to specialists in various kinds of properties for explanation and field trips. Much information is introduced in check-list form in these and added chapters. No bibliography." Library J

Booklist 46:318 Je 15 '50

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 75:984 Je 1 '50 80w

MCMILLAN, GEORGE. Old breed; a history of the First Marine Division in World war II. 483p il maps $6.50 Infantry journal

940.541273 U.S. Marine corps. 1st division 49-11741

"This is a history of the Fighting First Marine Division by one of its members. . . [The author] covers the period of preparation in 1940-41; the dash to the Pacific; the daring assault on Guadalcanal and the plucky victory which was won there, and then the idyllic period of recuperation in Melbourne. Then comes the trip north again, the New Gloucester operation in one of the heaviest rainfall areas in the world; the training period at Pavuvu; bloody Pelelieu, the operation which no one noticed; Pavuvu again and finally the grand climax at Okinawa when the First once again poured its blood into the mud and helped to break the back of the Japanese forces in the final battle of the war." Chicago Sun

"Unlike other divisional histories which tend to specialize either on the details of military tactics or degenerate into mere anecdotage, George McMillan tells the whole story of the First with verve, balance and accuracy." P. H. Douglas
+ Chicago Sun p5S Ja 10 '50 550w

"A book that is of equal interest to the former member and the layman. More readable than most unit histories, it is neither too technical nor too specialized. As a tactical history, it looks over the general's shoulder at the operations maps; but it is more personalized than the 'broad-arrow' analysis of the military historian, to whom units are merely faceless numbers. As a closeup of the war, it crawls into foxholes with the men who actually held the thin line of the front." Fendall Yerxa
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ja 29 '50 380w

MACMILLAN, MRS MIRIAM (LOOK). Etuk, the Eskimo hunter; il. by Kurt Wiese. 177p $2.75 Dodd

50-9593

"After his father disappeared on a hunting trip young Etuk became the family provider, driving his dogs deep into the Arctic night to search for seal, caribou, walrus and even the mighty Nanook, or polar bear. Etuk's bravery and skill increase with every adventure, and soon he is as great a hunter as his father." N Y Times

Booklist 47:161 D 15 '50

"Mrs. MacMillan writes well and this is a good story, full of interesting adventure, and a fascinating picture of Eskimo life and customs."
+ Horn Bk 26:474 N '50 80w

"Will appeal to older children and adults. Recommended." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 75:1914 N 1 '50 110w

"Because of awkward writing, especially in dialogue, the story itself is less successful, but for information about a way of life which is now changing in contact with a different sort of culture, it is still valuable." Siri Andrews
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 12 '50 110w

"Mrs. MacMillan who has made many trips to the Far North with her explorer-husband, Comdr. Donald B. MacMillan, gives a vivid and often exciting account of Eskimo life and customs, and of the people's grim battle for food. A rugged story for rugged boys." Creighton Peet
+ N Y Times p28 N 12 '50 130w

MACNAIR, HARLEY FARNSWORTH, and LACH, DONALD FREDERICK. Modern Far Eastern international relations. 681p il maps $5.85 Van Nostrand

950 Eastern question (Far East) 50-8407

"The late Professor Harley F. MacNair of the University of Chicago planned a comprehensive book on recent Far Eastern history, but the demands of the war years and realization of his failing strength caused him to give up the broad survey and to limit his book to the international aspects beginning with the nineteenth century. After writing about half of the chapters, he called upon one of his former students, Donald F. Lach, to complete the book and see it through the press. Before his death, Professor MacNair was able to read about half of the remaining chapters." Ann Am Acad

"An excellent survey. . . This is textbook history, but it is skillfully written, and it succinctly traces the complex events shaping outside relations with the Far East." Dale Pontius
+ Ann Am Acad 272:210 N '50 400w

"The book is one of the most objective and detached works of the year. The political, economical, and ideological trends are clearly and adequately described, and, at the same time, the greatest possible accuracy is maintained. After reading this book, one will undoubtedly have acquired a true picture of the situation in the Far East." C. C. Shih
+ Canadian Forum 30:189 N '50 550w

MCNEER, MAY YONGE (MRS LYND KENDALL WARD). California gold rush; il. by Lynd Ward. (Landmark bk) 184p $1.50 Random house

50-10705

Stories of the various routes to California during the gold rush of 1849 and 1850, and of life in and around the gold diggings. For ages 9 to 12.

Booklist 47:121 N 15 '50

"In simple language, easy for 9 to 12 years old to read, the drama of those journeys and the far reaching results in the opening-up of our country becomes as real as a western movie." C. I. Judson
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 N 12 '50 170w

"First-rate informative, energetic presentation of 'living history.' "
+ Kirkus 18:423 Ag 1 '50 250w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 12 '50 120w

Reviewed by R. A. Brown
N Y Times p16 N 12 '50 50w
New Yorker 26:190 D 2 '50 40w

MCNEILLY, MRS MILDRED MASTERSON. Each bright river; a novel of the Oregon country. 308p $3 Morrow 50-6117

The Oregon country in the 1840's is the background of this novel. In 1845 Kitty Gatewood, a beautiful young Southern girl, comes to seek her fiance, bringing her wedding gown among her other exquisite possessions. When her lover killed himself rather than face her, Kitty, who had more courage than he, stayed on and grew up with the frontier.

Booklist 46:246 Ap 1 '50

"To cool judgment, the exquisite Kitty's highhearted adventure is not wholly plausible, but the story is so warmed by the author's enthusiasm for that tremendous land of mighty rivers and mountains, and for its indomitable people, that doubt turns to excited interest, the more because the writing has grace and wit, fluidity, and much pictorial power." W. K. R.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p4 Ap 8 '50 250w

"Of greater substance than the usual period romancing, this should win a faithful female audience."
+ Kirkus 17:631 N 15 '49 180w

"Characterizations generally good. Some historical facts might well have been excluded. Descriptions of the country add beauty. Recommended." K. A. Shorey
+ Library J 75:319 F 15 '50 80w

"Perhaps because she writes with the authority of a careful researcher, there is excitement here as the author re-creates the agony of the Whitman Massacre, the adventure of the Gold Rush of '48, the fear and laughter of spirited men and women building homes." Harriet Zinnes
+ N Y Times p41 Mr 19 '50 230w

Reviewed by Pamela Taylor
Sat R of Lit 33:21 Jl 8 '50 550w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p12C My 21 '50 150w

Wis Lib Bul 46:19 Ap '50

MACQUEEN-POPE, W. J. Gaiety: theatre of enchantment. 498p il $5 Greenberg
792 London. Gaiety theatre [50-3416]

An anecdotal history of the famous Gaiety Theatre in London, from its beginnings in John Hollingshead's early connection with the English stage, to the end of the Gaiety in 1938. Contains stories of the Gaiety girls, many of whom married into the aristocracy. Photographs. Index.

"Both readable and scholarly, this volume is recommended for all theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 75:1828 O 15 '50 60w

Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 10 '50 210w

Times [London] Lit Sup p753 N 18 '49 800w

MCRAVEN, WILLIAM HENRY. Nashville: Athens of the South. 303p il $3.50 Scheer & Jervis, box 807, Chapel Hill, N.C.
976.8551 Nashville, Tennessee 49-49267

"On Christmas Day, 1779, a group of pioneers, traveling through the wilderness, arrived at the Cumberland River in the present State of Tennessee, moved across the frozen surface of the river to the west bank and began the settlement that became the present city of Nashville. The story of Tennessee's historic capital, 'Athens of the South,' is told in this volume." N Y Times

"An uncritical, popular volume, somewhat excessively given to lists of names, menus and detailed accounts of forgotten festival occasions, Mr. McRaven's narrative yet captures much of the color of Nashville's interesting past and makes clear the part played therein by such worthies as Aaron Burr, Sam Houston, Jackson, Polk, Andrew Johnson and others." N. K. B.
+ N Y Times p10 D 25 '49 130w

Sat R of Lit 33:40 Je 10 '50 180w

MCSWIGAN, MARIE. Binnie latches on; il. by Jessie Robinson. 214p $2.50 Dutton 50-9422

"Binnie was the 'odd one' in the Horne family. She wasn't allowed to do all the exciting things her older brother and sister did, and she received far less attention than her baby sister and pretty cousin. She grew so sorry for herself that she became self-centered and it took her some time to realize that the state of affairs was partly her own fault. Finally, one day she went with Daddy to the newspaper office and became so much interested that she set out to publish her own paper; forgot her old troubles and began to find her own happy place with her family and friends." Horn Bk

Reviewed by B. J. Russel
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 12 '50 120w

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 13 '50 20w

"A lively, unsentimental story girls will enjoy."
+ Horn Bk 26:474 N '50 90w

"A sympathetic, entertaining story with a light touch."
+ Kirkus 18:559 S 15 '50 210w

"Binnie's youthful problems make a lively, modern story, one which girls of all dispositions will enjoy reading." I. S.
+ N Y Times p17 D 17 '50 150w

MCVEY, FRANK LE ROND. Gates open slowly; a history of education in Kentucky. 321p $4 Univ. of Ky.
370.9769 Education—Kentucky 50-881

"The retired president of the University of Kentucky here takes stock of the past and present of education in his adopted state and looks toward the future with guarded but genuine optimism. Kentucky ranks forty-third among the states in its ability to support schools." Sat R of Lit

"President McVey's story of how the common schools of his state got their first support, of how provincial academies were turned into colleges, and of how Negroes have been treated, is of primary interest to his fellow Kentuckians, and it might be said that almost nothing in the experience of this one state is really typical of any large regional development." Lyman Bryson
+ Ann Am Acad 270:180 Jl '50 410w

"Dr. McVey's narrative is heavily factual but it has its moment of drama: the fight to pass an anti-evolution law in Kentucky in 1922, the legislative score of which reads like a series of nip-and-tuck basketball games. . . Dr. McVey is rather too modest in his account of his own participation in this struggle, which was waged and won three years before the famous Scopes trial in Tennessee. . . This calmly appraising and evaluating study provides solid background for such a heartwarming fragment of Kentucky educational history as Jesse Stuart's 'The Thread That Runs So True.' "
+ Sat R of Lit 33:42 My 6 '50 230w

MCWILLIAMS, CAREY. California; the great exception. 377p $4 Wyn
917.94 California 49-49472

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

Bookmark 9:134 Mr '50 30w

"This book is a kind of 'Inside California,' weak because of rapid compilation perhaps, but neglecting few of California's cultural trends. Mr. McWilliams can be questioned at times for dogmatism, his flair for generalization, his disdain for the exact statistic as he probes for a social truth. He himself writes that because of California's bottomless diversity, 'even to describe the state accurately is to run the risk of being called a liar and a lunatic.' There undoubtedly will be those who will not believe that he has here described California accurately." R. R. Brunn

MCWILLIAMS, CAREY—Continued

+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 F 1 '50 1000w

"As usual, McWilliams seems to grab a quick and suitable statistic to make his points, but his basic lines are clear and understandable. He has contributed an excellent statement of California's farm-labor problem. . . McWilliams deals at length with Western water and he demonstrates his knowledge. He demonstrates, again, however, his capacity for grabbing a quick fact as it dangles before him. . . It is this high-pitched tone which mars the book, a glibness which is disconcerting and too bad, also, because this is too solid a book to be hampered by internal complications." Robert de Roos

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p23 D 18 '49 650w

Reviewed by Oscar Lewis
Sat R of Lit 33:14 F 4 '50 550w

U S Quarterly Bkl 6:213 Je '50 300w

MCWILLIAMS, CAREY. Witch hunt; the revival of heresy. 361p $3.50 Little

323.4 Liberty. Persecution. Civil rights. Communism—U.S. 50-10670

"A scrupulously documented study of the similarities between the current techniques of appraising the loyalty, or potential lack of it, of increasing numbers of Americans and those used periodically over the centuries for the rooting out of heretics." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 47:85; 128 N 1 '50; D 1 '50

"There's some forceful, fervent writing here, backgrounded in legend and history as well as contemporary causes celebres, and his book is a plea for reason and a protest against the violation and forfeit of freedom."

+ Kirkus 18:586 S 15 '50 250w

"Well documented and persuasively written book presents probably the ablest, though somewhat one-sided, account of an explosive political issue. Essential for public and academic libraries, even though some conservative readers may voice objections." F. E. Hirsch

+ — Library J 75:2001 N 15 '50 140w

New Yorker 26:153 N 25 '50 220w

"Unfortunately, as so often happens this book's audience may be only those who already agree with McWilliams's point of view—that unhappy few who are just as scared and indignant over what's going on in this country as he is. Not that McWilliams is infallible. Since he spouts an average of a half-dozen opinions a page, he's bound to step on someone's cherished ideas at least once. He did on some of mine." Merle Miller

+ — Sat R of Lit 33:10 D 30 '50 850w

MADALENA, LAWRENCE (LOREN WAHL, pseud). Invisible glass. 230p $2.75 Greenberg 50-6075

"Chick Johnson, with two years of college behind him and several years of war, was managing to get along with difficulty in a quartermaster group in Italy, captained by a Southern white. The lieutenants were also white. Chick and the men were Negroes. . . The new lieutenant, La Cava, who was a buddy of the captain's, from the first treated Chick decently. They both hailed from California and Chick was won over. It takes some time for Chick to realize that the lieutenant is 'in love' with him." Sat R of Lit

---

"One of the less explored sides of the war is the role of the Negro soldier, his bravery despite those who branded him yellow because he is black, his relationship to white officers and foreign civilians. With boisterous goodwill Loren Wahl attempts to tell that story. If his novel is sadly inadequate, the plot rather than the intention is to blame. . . [When] the theme switches to homosexuality the story becomes unmotivated and unreal." Herbert Mitgang

— N Y Times p29 Mr 12 '50 150w

"Though Mr. Wahl lacks a sense of structure and proportion in form, he displays real power in characterization. . . At times one is reminded of a bad movie by this book; what with the innumerable interludes of searching for a cigarette, lighting it and inhaling it—or of opening a bottle of liquor, pouring it out and drinking it. This sort of trick is used in Hollywood to hide lack of action in the story itself. It should not have been necessary here; there is enough powerful material to furnish real story-movement." A. B. S.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p28 Ap 2 '50 320w

"Packed with emotion, this is another story of man's inhumanity to man." John Cournos

Sat R of Lit 33:34 Mr 11 '50 230w

MADISON, CHARLES ALLAN. American labor leaders; personalities and forces in the labor movement. 474p $4 Harper

331.88 Labor and laboring classes—U.S. Trade unions 50-8286

"The aim of this book is to give a coherent and realistic account of the development of organized labor through a survey of the outstanding trade unions and their leaders. . . Certain portions of the manuscript have appeared as articles in the following periodicals: Labor and Nation, The American Scholar, The Chicago Jewish Forum, and The Yale Review." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by G. B. Engberg
Am Hist R 56:157 O '50 440w

"There is much, much material in this work which is worth while; it is a pity that the questionable naïveté which repeatedly places the Communists at the heart of all things good, liberal, progressive, and holy in the labor movement makes it necessary that the book be read with crossed fingers." J. N. Thurber

Ann Am Acad 272:240 N '50 750w

Booklist 46:328 Jl 1 '50

Bookmark 9:210 Je '50 40w

Reviewed by Winifred Baum
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ag 13 '50 50w

Reviewed by W. L. Mezger
Christian Science Monitor p16 Ag 9 '50 500w

"Mr. Madison tells his story with a refreshingly new approach—the labor movement as reflected in the lives of 16 giants of labor. On the whole he has succeeded admirably in reflecting the numerous facets of labor history and the present-day status of various leaders and their unions. . . [Though] the author has done a good job in telling the story of American labor, he does have too great a propensity for such adjectives as 'ruthless,' 'greedy,' and 'arrogant' in reference to certain corporations . . . and he is apt to be too tolerant of the Communist influence in the labor movement." M. K. Hammond

+ — Current Hist 19:163 S '50 1100w

"These are interesting and provocative biographical sketches, wide in scope and encompassing those leaders who have influenced the thinking and action of unions. . . In the first half of the book, the author seems objective and fair in his analysis; then there is evident a slight leaning of bias against those leaders who have tried to clean communism out of the ranks, while for Bridges he has only unadulterated praise. This unbalance somehow weakens the total effect of the book, though it has great merit and—with reservations and understanding—should be a valuable addition to the history of the movement and the force of personal power."

+ — Kirkus 18:229 Ap 1 '50 180w

"Madison is ambiguous in his attitude toward left-wing union leaders who subvert trade-union policy to the demands of a special political line. A clearer perspective on this matter would have made this book a perfect one volume story of American labor." B. B. Seligman

+ — New Repub 123:21 Ag 14 '50 650w

"The writing is lively and the spirit and events of the times in which each man played his role have been captured with considerable success. But Mr. Madison's evaluations of the contribution made by the various labor leaders are far less convincing than his character portrayals. . . Mr. Madison's lack of understanding of the disruptive tactics practiced by Communists within the labor movement, no less than his evaluation of Bridges, indicate a naivete which should not, however, be allowed to detract from the value of the book as a collection of the life stories of the most prominent of our American labor leaders." E. M. Herrick
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 27 '50 800w

"Unfortunately throughout the book he displays a blind spot in dealing with communism in the labor movement. . . It is for Bridges, West Coast longshore leader, that Mr. Madison reserves his highest and most unqualified admiration. Naïveté, if that is what it is, could scarcely go further than his rejection of the obvious explanation for Bridges' 'patriotism' after Pearl Harbor." Louis Stark
N Y Times p6 Je 4 '50 700w

"It is regrettable that radical sympathy and personal bias spoil the scholarship, industry, and effort represented by the volume." Mark Starr
— + Sat R of Lit 33:13 S 30 '50 900w

Reviewed by J. A. Fitch
Survey 86:424 S '50 650w
Wis Lib Bul 46:19 S '50

MAGIL, ABRAHAM BERNARD. Israel in crisis. 224p $2.50; pa $1.25 Int. pubs.
956.9 Israel 50-3552

"A newspaper correspondent's account of Israel as he saw it during a six months' sojourn. He presents the problems confronting the new state as well as the dangers resulting from Anglo-American attempts to dominate the economy and politics of the country." (Am Pol Sci R) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 44:786 S '50 40w

"Ostensibly, the book is a critical appraisal of the new state's present conditions and future possibilities, based on a six months' stay in Israel. . . What it actually turns out to be, however, is a political tract, more concerned with proving the rightness of the communistic doctrine than with doing justice to the facts. This is the more a pity as the exposition all through is apt and vivid, and the criticism in some cases quite to the point." H. F. Infield
— + Ann Am Acad 272:295 N '50 550w

MAGILL, FRANK N., ed. Masterplots. 2v 570; 571-1144p $10 Salem press, 475 5th av, N.Y. 17
808.8 Plots (drama, novel, etc) 49-5436

Outlines of plots of 510 famous novels, plays, epic poems and legendary tales, ranging in time from Homer to the present. Arrangement is alphabetical according to title, with a complete list of titles, and an author index. A short critique precedes each story.

"Designed primarily for reference and not 'as a short cut in the study of literature,' this well planned and well produced work will prove valuable in just that way. . . With every allowance for personal taste, we find it hard to justify the exclusion of, for instance, that famed triumvirate, Baring, Chesterton, and Belloc. And where are Bernanos and Bloy? . . The arrangement of the work is excellent."
+ — Cath World 170:400 F '50 200w

"An admirably done, recommended reference work. . . Both the brief critical notes and the plot summaries are competently written, and they have been carefully proof-read." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 75:105 Ja 15 '50 100w

Reviewed by S. S. Gordon
School R 58:190 Ap '50 1400w

MAGNUS, RUDOLF. Goethe as a scientist; foreword by Günther Schmid; tr. by Heinz Norden. (Life of science lib) 259p $3.50 Schuman
B or 92 Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von 49-50257

The original German edition of this work appeared in 1906, and is now translated into English for the first time. It is concerned with Goethe's contributions as a scientist; his studies in osteology, comparative anatomy, geology, mineralogy, and meteorology; as well as the theory of colors The book also includes something of Goethe's life. Bibliography. Index.

"This book is recognized as the best nontechnical treatment thus far of Goethe's contributions to the world of natural science." H. B. Nichols
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 F 4 '50 700w
Kirkus 17:573 O 1 '49 130w

"The book is an important contribution to the history of science and literature, but has a limited appeal for readers lacking a scientific background." J. E. Brown
+ Library J 74:1600 O 15 '49 150w

Reviewed by Gerald Wendt
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 Mr 5 '50 500w

"This volume should be welcomed by the wide public whose interest has been stimulated anew by the recent attention given to the great German's contributions in other fields. The fact that it originally was presented in another form and a good many years ago does not diminish at all the value and timeliness of its subject matter; and it is a thorough and lucid account." G. S.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Mr 26 '50 110w

"Mr. Magnus's work, now nearly half a century old, is informative and just in placing Goethe's scientific work in a fair perspective. Yet it tends, perhaps, to strengthen the impression that in spite of this or that inevitable correction, much of Goethe's science remains sound. That is, I fear, if not wrong, at least misleading. Most of Goethe's scientific work is in empirical detail primitive and easily disproved." Victor Lange
Sat R of Lit 33:30 Ap 8 '50 850w
School & Society 72:334 N 18 '50 30w

MAHANNAH, FLOYD. The yellow hearse. 249p $2.50 Duell
50-13321

Detective story.

Reviewed by Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 O 1 '50 70w
Kirkus 18:371 Jl 1 '50 60w

"Rough and tumble in the tradition of the private eye yarns, but the characters are warmer, more likeable and more credible than most."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ag 20 '50 170w
N Y Times p24 Ag 27 '50 90w

"Except for the fact that one of the characters (word used advisedly) in this volume persists in calling our town 'Frisco,' we cannot think of a single reason why you wouldn't enjoy this tale of violent doings in and around Reno." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 6 '50 210w

MAHOOD, M. M. Poetry and humanism. 335p $3.75 Yale univ. press
821.09 English poetry. Religious poetry. Seventeenth century. Humanism 50-11219

A study of the religious poets of the seventeenth century—Donne, Herbert, Milton, Vaughan, Traherne. "According to M. Maritain there are two kinds of humanism. The one believes that man is his own centre, and therefore the centre of all things; the other 'recognizes that the centre for man is God; it implies the Christian conception of man as

MAHOOD, M. M.—Continued
at once sinner and redeemed.' This latter humanism rejoices in the full development of man's natural gifts, but it does not deny his dependence on God, or his limitations as a fallen being. And it is with this theocentric or Christian humanism, as it is expressed by the religious poets of the seventeenth century, that Miss Mahood is concerned in her book." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Index.

Reviewed by Russell Lord
Christian Science Monitor p6 S 9 '50 550w

"Hers is a scholarly yet exceedingly provocative book—'fair argumentative' would be a Scot's description of it." Anne Fremantle
+ Commonweal 53:308 D 29 '50 700w

"Miss Mahood's main argument is worked out with careful scholarship, and she has many interesting critical observations in passing. What is not quite certain is how far her critical approach is entirely disinterested. There are passages, especially in the chapter on Milton, where she seems to have used the poetry to illustrate a thesis rather than to have found the thesis growing from analysis of the poetry: sometimes the discussion seems to be conducted at one remove from the actual experience of a normal reading." R. G. Cox
+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 25 '50 430w

Reviewed by Iain Fletcher
New Statesman & Nation 39:494 Ap 29 '50 950w

"Miss Mahood brings both sensitivity and learning to her consideration of each case-history. If she makes a broad survey, she does so with ease and assurance, and throughout her book she throws off, en passant, that sort of brief comment which is the rewarding distillation of much hard and perceptive thinking. When he reaches the last sentence of her book, the reader will have little doubt that she has illuminated in an original manner the journey to 'that Paradize Within' which is the conscious or unvoiced end of all the seventeenth-century humanists who launched at Paradise and sail towards home." Ronald Lewin
+ Spec 184:508 Ap 14 '50 900w

"At times a reader may feel that literary criticism has been used primarily to demonstrate a theory, but the book is always stimulating and often wise, and makes valuable comment not only on the thought of the seventeenth century but on that of our own."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p258 Ap 28 '50 1000w

MAJOR, HARLAN. Norwegian holiday [phot. by the author]. 268p $3.50 Funk

914.81 Norway—Description and travel 50-5923

A guidebook, in informal style, telling where to go and what to see in Norway, with notes on motoring, fishing, skiing and hiking, and advice on hotels and food. Index.

Booklist 46:231 Mr 15 '50

"This is a delightful and informing book about a very delightful country." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 67:242 F 22 '50 110w

"Although it cannot be termed a complete guide book, 'Norwegian Holiday' is well worth reading while planning a tour of Norway, and it should prove a useful and up-to-date supplement to one's Baedeker during the trip." R. L.
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Mr 21 '50 300w

"Mr. Major, a keen angler, gives full data of the 120 most important fishing rivers. For every kind of trip one learns where to stay, and a basic vocabulary starts a traveler talking."
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Mr 19 '50 240w

Reviewed by Harry Gilroy
+ N Y Times p22 Ap 9 '50 320w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 23 '50 250w

"One of the handsomest travel books of the year, it is the most thorough individual work on Norway published since the war. There is no doubt that Harlan Major likes Norway and his unflagging enthusiasm eventually becomes too monotonous a diet." H. S.
+ — Sat R of Lit 33:42 Mr 11 '50 150w

Wis Lib Bul 46:22 Mr '50

MAJOR, MABEL, and PEARCE, THOMAS MATTHEWS, eds. Signature of the sun; Southwest verse, 1900-1950. 302p $4 Univ. of N.Mex. press

811.08 American poetry—Collections. American literature—Southwest 50-4676

An anthology of regional verse from the states of Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, and Arizona. Notes on authors and index to poems.

Booklist 47:58 O 1 '50

"This anthology is recommended as an excellent example of regional verse." George McDonald
+ Library J 75:1669 O 1 '50 70w

MALE, EMILE. Religious art from the twelfth to the eighteenth century. 208p 48pl $4.50 Pantheon bks.

709.9482 Christian art and symbolism. Art—France 49-10882

For descriptive note see Annual for 1949.

"Such a presentation of religious art is not only invaluable as information, but indispensable as inspiration. If it seems to be limited to a narrow span of years, it is not so limited in its principles and implications. What the author says is important and convincing; what he implies is a necessary tool of the sincere and serious student of all religious art." R. E. Keighton
+ Crozer Q 27:176 Ap '50 450w

"M. Mâle's work has been at once an inspiration and an object of sharp criticism for more than one generation of scholars. His arbitrary selection of facts, his over-confident statements, are matched by his profound learning and by a rapturous eloquence which displays the scholar who is also the Catholic apologist and the French patriot." C. R. Cheney
+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 18 '50 300w

"The student who is familiar with the four mother volumes will necessarily miss material not contained in the new publication, which has been reduced from almost 2,000 pages of the original work. Although he may deplore omissions—and in so doing he would but attest to M. Mâle's great accomplishments—he might still like to add the new volume to his shelves. But to the reader unacquainted with the original volumes the new one is bound to produce that excitement which comes with knowledge either suddenly acquired or shedding new light on things supposedly already known." Herbert Weisberger
+ Sat R of Lit 33:70 My 6 '50 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p288 My 12 '50 500w

MALETZ, DAVID. Young hearts; a novel of modern Israel [tr. from the Hebrew by Solomon N. Richards]. 237p $3 Schocken 50-7276

A novel about life in a communal settlement of modern Israel. The chief characters are Hannah and Menahem, a young married couple.

Bookmark 9:244 Jl '50 30w

"The struggle of the novel is crude; characters do not come alive, and the writing itself is mediocre and even naive. Yet it is the first vivid document of life in an Israeli communal settlement, and when Maletz writes of labor in the fields he moves into something of Thoreau's eloquence. His human warmth is contagious and convincing." J. L. Teller

+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 25 '50 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '50

"Told with understanding and beautiful simplicity by one who has experienced the life. A worthy contribution to our own understanding." H. L. Roth
+ Library J 75:775 My 1 '50 80w

